

28995|2009-05-28 13:10:49|Tafari khumbaka|Re: where's king solomon?|

isee this as a take on what the writers of that time wanted and saw as The standard of beauty;. Seems the writers saw the arab/modern persian type as the newstandard of what the old black world(Sheba, Saba, abbys-sinia=abbys is a black place, code word for Saba) Canaan/Ka-anu should desire.

The old is the black but comely one the feminine, that is too say the black one with the sophistication , the new is the patriarchy of europa and the mediterranean islands and northern syria.

the old Saba of Cain is being replaced with Abel/Sara

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 9:44 AM

how are these statements broken down?

10: My beloved is white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand.

11: His head is as the most fine gold, his locks are bushy, and black as a raven.

12: His eyes are as the eyes of doves by the rivers of waters, washed with milk, and fitly s

13: His cheeks are as a bed of spices, as sweet flowers: his lips like lilies, dropping sweet smelling myrrh.

14: His hands are as gold rings set with the beryl: his belly is as bright ivory overlaid with sapphires.

15: His legs are as pillars of marble, set upon sockets of fine gold: his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the cedars.

16: His mouth is most sweet: yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is n friend, O daughters of Jerusalem.

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, Lamar Perryman wrote:

From: Lamar Perryman

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 5:35 PM

Greeting Scholars,

I would just like to say something here. I do not know how The Aramaic to Hebrew from Kadmon got translated into European Yiddish meaning Red.???

How Solomon (Sol Khamon; Sol Ankh Amon) skin complexion gets translated ir

Euro-Yiddish red, tan, ruddy light skin and his supposed locks get to be straight black hair like a raven.???

I do believe that there is a bit too much Euro-Jewish interpretations that have held the whole Israeli Business hostage to a select group of men who actually trace their roots to Europe or Caucasian Asia.

And Again, That is The One Single Thing about Historical Israel and The Fabricated Israel.

Try as one might, whether they be real historically or drawn from various Canaanite, Egyptian and Sumerian figures, The actual presentation of these peoples are Black, African or African Asiatics.

Even when represented by racist or duped Caucasians, Arabs and Orientals the whole of Historical and Mythological Israel is that of a Black/Africoid Nation and That is what keeps the mysteries, the hypes and the suppositions about The Israelites rolling along.

MLP.,

The Nationalists.

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 7:38 PM

by robert bauval and samuel kramer, respectively?

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 12:32 PM

you should do some word searches and may could also use two good books orion mystery
The sumerians ,, also gerald massey does some reserch on the Anu of Sumer ,, sounds like you are on the right track to me.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 11:26 AM

Could -omon/amon be the combination of Aum and Anu?

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 9:11 PM

-HOTEP!

Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or (Amon)?

-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom refer to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses the phrase fineg also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. According to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

>

> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> usually theologians say because the bible calls him ruddy..... they say the hebrew word translated reddish .

>

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, rehal orville wrote:

>

>

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 11:19 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> THANKS A LOT

>

> Who can explain how jewish priests now say Jacob, David were likely to have red hair?

>

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

>

>

> From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 12:29 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>
 >
 >
 >
 > check out:
 > hebrew myth
 > by Gary Greenberg
 > -----
 > Akhenaton
 > by Donald Redford
 > -----
 > the life and times of Akhenaton
 > by Arthur Weigall
 > -----
 > all the books by Ahmed Osman
 > ----
 > all books by Gerald Massey
 > -----
 > echoes of the old dark land
 > Dr. Charles Finch
 >
 > -----
 > the metaphysical bible dictionary
 > -----
 >
 > the site that was sent, does an excellent job of naming Amen-Hetep III as the mythical Solomon
http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
 >
 >
 >
 > I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned as too surmise plausible plagiary hebrew scribe and masters.
 >
 > my personal view is:
 >
 > Akhen-Aton and Amen-hetep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up mythical life of Solomon.
 >
 > the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh-Amen is the mythical Queen of the Sheba (not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.
 >
 > Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the hebrews.
 >
 > Akhen-Aton is the mythical Moses of the hebrews and the life of Joshua was taken from A

and Hor-em-Heb.

>

> Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their Moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people of Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.

>

> Many of the psalms of the Bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.

> until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mes III) who lived in northeastern Khamit was Yv/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en-Aton God was then called Adon (in Hebrew khmit d and t are interchangeable) .

>

> in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings (pharaohs) who have the name Moses=Meshu

>

> Solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the Exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton run from ancient Egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai, > he left in his stead his brother {or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).

>

> Akhu-n-Adonai's return was in the reign of Sethi II who was a king in the old area of Akhet-Aton and Zaru-Kha the entrance into Ancient Egypt from the east.

> this area was the city (Zaru-Kha) given to his mother by his father Amenhotep III, and one of the places of refuge. At the rise of King Sethi I too the position of King of kings of the two lands was taken by Akhen-Aton. Akhen-Aton returned and presented his rod of snakes that ate (poetic language) the scepter of Sethi I (Pharaoh) King of kings Sethi I.

> Sethi I and co-ruler Ra-Mes I are the Kings who drove the Israelites (Shasu) completely out of ancient Khamit all the way to the far north with Rameses II sealing the act with the war of Armageddon (Heru-magi-Adonai) at Ka-Desh much like a past King of Kings Tehuti-Mes III in the same region.

>

> of course the Meshu=Moses= Moshe of the line of Meshu 18 and 19 dynasty kings never came to see his promised place he promised to Israel a kingdom for them due to his Ra bloodline.

> I would "GUESS" the son of Adonai probably died at Sera-bit-El khadim (Sera-sara-zera) where the golden calf of The Goddess Het-Hert had a temple complex .

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

> --- On Sun, 5/17/09, rehal orville wrote:

>

>

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king Solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Sunday, May 17, 2009, 2:19 AM

\geq

>
>
>
>
>
>
> http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
> king solomon
>
>
>
> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>

| 28996|2009-05-28 13:20:25|cristofori whitakara|Re: where's king solomon?|
at what time was this written and from your reply it seems that self-hatred started millenia ago.
abbysinia? could it also be ab bys(bes) sinai(?) the heart of the ptahite bes on both sides of the sea as in africa and sinai(peninsula)? just a thought

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 4:10 PM

isee this as a take on what the writers of that time wanted and saw as The standard of beauty;. Seems the writers saw the arab/modern persian type as the newstandard of what the old black world(Sheba, Saba, abbys-sinia= abbys is a black place, code word for Saba) Canaan/Ka-anu should desire.

The old is the black but comely one the feminine, that is too say the black one with the sophistication , the new is the patriarchy of europa and the mediterranean islands and northern syria.

the old Saba of Cain is being replaced with Abel/Sara

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 9:44 AM

how are these statements broken down?

10: My beloved is white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand.
11: His head is as the most fine gold, his locks are bushy, and black as a raven.
12: His eyes are as the eyes of doves by the rivers of waters, washed with milk, and fitly set.
13: His cheeks are as a bed of spices, as sweet flowers: his lips like lilies, dropping sweet smelling myrrh.
14: His hands are as gold rings set with the beryl: his belly is as bright ivory overlaid with sapphires.
15: His legs are as pillars of marble, set upon sockets of fine gold: his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the cedars.
16: His mouth is most sweet: yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem.

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, Lamar Perryman wrote:

From: Lamar Perryman
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 5:35 PM

Greeting Scholars,

I would just like to say something here. I do not know how The Aramaic to Hebrew words from Kadmon got translated into European Yiddish meaning Red.???

How Solomon (Sol Khamon; Sol Ankh Amon) skin complexion gets translated into Euro-Yiddish red, tan, ruddy light skin and his supposed locks get to be straight black hair raven.???

I do believe that there is a bit too much Euro-Jewish interpretations that have held the whole Israeli Business hostage to a select group of men who actually trace their roots to Europe or Caucasian Asia.

And Again, That is The One Single Thing about Historical Israel and The Fabricated Israe Try as one might, whether they be real historically or drawn from various Canaanite, Egypt and Sumerian figures, The actual presentation of these peoples are Black, African or African Asiatics.

Even when represented by racist or duped Caucasians, Arabs and Orientals the whole of Historical and Mythological Israel is that of a Black/Africoid Nation and That is what keep mysteries, the hypes and the suppositions about The Israelites rolling along.

MLP.,

The Nationalists.

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 7:38 PM

by robert bauval and samuel kramer, respectively?

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 12:32 PM

you should do some word searches and may could also use two good books orion mystery
The sumerians ,, also gerald massey does some reserch on the Anu of Sumer ,.
sounds like you are on the right track to me.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 11:26 AM

Could -omon/amon be the combination of Aum and Anu?

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 9:11 PM

-HOTEP!

Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or (Amon)?

-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom refe
to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses thephrase fineg
also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. Acoording to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

[illegible]

>
> -----
> the metaphysical bible dictionary
> -----
>
> the site that was sent, does an excellent job of naming AmenHetep III as the mythical solomon.,
http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
>
>
>
>
> I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned as too surmise plausible plagiarism of hebrew scribe and masters.
>
> my personal view is:
>
> Akhen-Aton and Amen_hetep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the
mythical life of solomon.
>
> the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh-Amen is the mythical Queen of the Sheba (it's not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.
>
> Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the hebrews.
>
> Akhen-Aton is the mythical Moses of the hebrews and the life of Joshua was taken from Ay
and Hor-em-Heb.
>
> Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their Moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people called Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.
>
> Many of the psalms of the bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.
> until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern Khamit was Yvh/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en-Aton God was then called Adon (in hbrw and khamit d and t are interchangeable) .
>
> in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings (pharaohs) who have the name Moses=msh/mesh.
>
> Solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton run from anc. Egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai, > he left in his stead his brother {or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).
>

Donald Redford, writes in frustration that "such topics as the foreign policy of David and Solomon, Solomon's trade in horses or his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter must remain themes for midrash and fictional treatment. "(2)

> In contrast, archaeology has confirmed the reigns of all other great kings of the ancient world mentioned in the Bible, and some of the later, lesser kings of Judah and Israel (namely, Omri, Ahab, Jehu, Pekah, Hosea, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, and Uzziah).(3) Conservative Biblical scholars believe that it is only a matter of time before concrete evidence of the reigns of David and Solomon is found as well. As will be discussed, concrete evidence for David and Solomon already exists, and comes from the very place one would least expect to find it.

>

>

> /.../ SO who were they, can you give their Egyptian names and the links to us?

>

>

> --- On Sat, 5/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: maatcollective@ yahoo groups. com

> Date: Saturday, May 16, 2009, 4:07 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481

> king solomon

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

| 28997|2009-05-28 13:22:54|cristofori whitakara|Re: congo, worst place on earth?|

Question: is it true that the congolese women refused to have sex with men in war so this is why the men started raping them?

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: [Ta_Seti] congo, worst place on earth?
To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 3:55 PM

[Rape-Free Cellphones \[All Things D\]](#)

Gizmodo Wed, 27 May 2009 16:24 PM PDT

There's a rare material used in cellphones that is mined in the Democratic Republic of Congo. The material, columbite tantalite, is mined by workers under inhumane conditions, including rape. Now,...

Eve Ensler Calls for Cruelty Free Cellphones

AllThingsD Online via Yahoo! Finance Wed, 27 May 2009 12:19 PM PDT

On May 13, 2009, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held a hearing called Confronting Rape and Other Forms of Violence Against Women in Conflict Zones. Its purpose: to end the use of rape as a weapon of war in the Eastern Democratic Republic of Congo--a place where 1,100 women a month are raped, in

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

| 28998|2009-05-28 13:33:38|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?| Yam is also an old,old name for gebel-barka region and considered a old name for the interior of Africa.

wheat growing over water , maybe its speaking of fertility from a nebulus/unknown source?.
check out the chapter on Amen in Metu-Neter vol. 1, 2 , 3

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 1:11 PM

i found this to be interesting that when i looked up the words to my question was amun/on possibly the combination of the two words Aum and Anu that i came across another word y and this word seems to be the combination of Yam(sea) and Anu or the sea of anu? i then up the mdu ntchr for amun and it was rendered imn with the symbol above. so then i wond about the wavy lines...does it symbolize water (yam) and couldn't figure out what the rect square above it was? i know the "flag" represent a neter, could that be Anu?

--- On Sat, 5/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Saturday, May 23, 2009, 2:02 PM

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 8:11 PM

-HOTEP!

Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or (Amon)?

-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom referring to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses thephrase finegold is also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. Acoording to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

>

> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>
>
>
>
>

> usually theologians say because the bible calls him ruddy..... they say the hebrew word can be translated reddish .

>
>
>
>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, rehal orville wrote:

>
>

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 11:19 PM

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> THANKS A LOT

>

> Who can explain how jewish priests now say Jacob, David were likely to have red hair?

>

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

>
>

> From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 12:29 PM

>
>
>
>
>
>
>

$$>$$
$$>$$
 \succ
$$>$$
$$>$$
 \succ \succ \angle

> hebrew myth

$$> \text{-----}$$

> by Donald Redford

> the life and times of Akhenaton

> -----

$$> \dots$$

> -----

> Dr. Charles Finch

> _____

> -----

> the site that wassent, does an excellent job of naming AmenHetepIII as the mythical solomon.,

as=35927&w=125219& d=243481

 \succ

> I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned astoo surmise plausible plagirism of hebrew scribe and masters.

> my personal view is:

- >
- > Akhen-Aton and Amen-hotep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the mythical life of Solomon.
- >
- > the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh-Amen is the mythical Queen of Sheba (it's not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the Hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.
- >
- > Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the Hebrews.
- >
- > Akhen-Aton is the mythical Moses of the Hebrews and the life of Joshua was taken from Ay and Hor-em-Heb.
- >
- > Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their Moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people called Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.
- >
- > Many of the psalms of the Bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.
- > until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern Khamit was Yhw/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en-Aton God was then called Adon (in Hebrew and Khamit d and t are interchangeable) .
- >
- > in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings (pharaohs) who have the name Moses=msh/mesh.
- >
- > Solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the Exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton run from ancient Egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai,
- > he left in his stead his brother {or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).
- >
- > Akhu-n-Adonai's return was in the reign of Sethi II who was a king in the old area of Avaris and Zaru-Kha the entrance into Ancient Egypt from the east.
- > this area was the city (Zaru-Kha) given to his mother by his father Amenhotep III, and one of his places of refuge,. At the rise of King Sethi I took the position of King of kings of the two lands Akhen-Adonia returned and presented his rod of snakes that ate (poetic language) the scepters of (Pharaoh) King of kings Sethe I.
- > Sethi I and co-ruler Ra-Mesh I are the Kings who drove the Israelites (shasu) completely out of ancient Khamit all the way to the far north with Rameses II sealing the act with the war of Armageddon (Heru-magi-Adonai) at Ka-Desh much like a past King of Kings Tehuti-Msh III in the same region.
- >
- > of course the Meshu=Moses= Moshe of the line of Msh 18 and 19 dynasty kings never got to see his promised place he promised to Israel a kingdom for them due to his Ra bloodline .
- > I would "GUESS" the son of Adonai probably died at Sera-bit-El khadim (Sera-sara-zera) where the golden calf of The Goddess Het-Hert had a temple complex .

>
>
> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>
> --- On Sun, 5/17/09, rehal orville wrote:
>
>
> From: rehal orville
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?
> To: Ta_Seti@yahogroups .com
> Date: Sunday, May 17, 2009, 2:19 AM
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> I read that : /.../
> David and Solomon are portrayed in the Bible as two of the greatest kings of the ancient world. However, no trace of their empire has ever been found in Palestine. It is a period curiously missing from the archaeological record of the region. Quoting from the book, Archaeology of the Land of the Bible, "The Bible is the only written source concerning the United Monarchy, and it is therefore the basis of any historical presentation of the period."(1) There is such a complete void of external sources that the archaeologist, author and leading authority on the era, Donald Redford, writes in frustration that "such topics as the foreign policy of David and Solomon, Solomon's trade in horses or his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter must remain themes for midrash and fictional treatment. "(2)
> In contrast, archaeology has confirmed the reigns of all other great kings of the ancient world mentioned in the Bible, and some of the later, lesser kings of Judah and Israel (namely, Omri, Ahab, Jehu, Pekah, Hosea, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, and Uzziah).(3) Conservative Biblical scholars believe that it is only a matter of time before concrete evidence of the reigns of David and Solomon is found as well. As will be discussed, concrete evidence for David and Solomon already exists, and comes from the very place one would least expect to find it.
>
>
> /.../ SO who were they, can you give their Egyptian names and the links to us?
>
>
> --- On Sat, 5/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>
>
> From: Tafari khumbaka
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?
> To: maatcollective@ yahoogroups. com
> Date: Saturday, May 16, 2009, 4:07 PM
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
> king solomon
>
>
>
>
> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>

| 28999|2009-05-28 13:49:23|Tafari khumbaka|Re: where's king solomon?|

the unknown regions of Ptah-Tanenen thats a thought!.

i think Abbysinia is a recent word , i am not sure.

the writings of the people of Israel is never older than 900 to 1000 yrs. b.c., although some of the books may have been taken from older books, (probaly Caanite/Phoenician).

There were Great cities of cooper workers in those sinai lands and they burrowed deep in the mountains and lands there, they were considered places of foreboding by the uncultured herderds and vagabond people ,there were great pillars of black smoke as they imported and cut down anything that would burn to smelt copper and mine precious lapis-lazuli etc.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 3:20 PM

at what time was this written and from your reply it seems that self-hatred started millenia abbysinia? could it also be ab bys(bes) sinai(?) the heart of the ptahite bes on both sides of sea as in africa and sinai(peninsula) ? just a thought

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 4:10 PM

isee this as a take on what the writers of that time wanted and saw as The standard of beau Seems the writers saw the arab/modern persian type as the newstandard of what the old bl world(Sheba, Saba, abbys-sinia= abbys is a black place, code word for Saba) Canaan/Kashould desire.

The old is the black but comely one the feminine, that is too say the black one with the sophistication , the new is the patriarchy of europa and the mediterranian islands and nort syria.

the old Saba of Cain is being replaced with Abel/Sara

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 9:44 AM

how are these statements broken down?

10: My beloved is white and ruddy, the chiefest among ten thousand.

11: His head is as the most fine gold, his locks are bushy, and black as a raven.

12: His eyes are as the eyes of doves by the rivers of waters, washed with milk, and fitly s

13: His cheeks are as a bed of spices, as sweet flowers: his lips like lilies, dropping sweet smelling myrrh.

14: His hands are as gold rings set with the beryl: his belly is as bright ivory overlaid with sapphires.

15: His legs are as pillars of marble, set upon sockets of fine gold: his countenance is as Lebanon, excellent as the cedars.

16: His mouth is most sweet: yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is n friend, O daughters of Jerusalem.

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, Lamar Perryman wrote:

From: Lamar Perryman
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 5:35 PM

Greeting Scholars,

I would just like to say something here. I do not know how The Aramaic to Hebrew words from Kadmon got translated into European Yiddish meaning Red.???

How Solomon (Sol Khamon; Sol Ankh Amon) skin complexion gets translated into Euro-Yiddish red, tan, ruddy light skin and his supposed locks get to be straight black hair raven.???

I do believe that there is a bit too much Euro-Jewish interpretations that have held the whole Israeli Business hostage to a select group of men who actually trace their roots to Europe or Caucasian Asia.

And Again, That is The One Single Thing about Historical Israel and The Fabricated Israe Try as one might, whether they be real historically or drawn from various Canaanite, Egypt and Sumerian figures, The actual presentation of these peoples are Black, African or African Asiatics.

Even when represented by racist or duped Caucasians, Arabs and Orientals the whole of Historical and Mythological Israel is that of a Black/Africoid Nation and That is what keep mysteries, the hypes and the suppositions about The Israelites rolling along.

MLP.,

The Nationalists.

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 7:38 PM

by robert bauval and samuel kramer, respectively?

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 12:32 PM

you should do some word searches and may could also use two good books orion r
The sumerians ,, also gerald massey does some reserch on the Anu of Sumer ,.

sounds like you are on the right track to me.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2009, 11:26 AM

Could -omon/amon be the combination of Aum and Anu?

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 9:11 PM

-HOTEP!

Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or (Amon)?

-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom refe
> to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses thephrase fineg
> also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin > nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. Acoording to the same > lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

>

> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM

>

>

>

>

>

tr

> usually theologians say because the bible calls him ruddy..... they say the hebrew word translated reddish .

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, rehal orville wrote:

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 11:19 PM

> THANKS A LOT

> Who can explain how jewish priests now say Jacob, David were likely to have red hair?

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

> From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 12:29 PM

>
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 > check out:
 > hebrew myth
 > by Gary Greenberg
 > -----
 > Akhenaton
 > by Donald Redford
 > -----
 > the life and times of Akhenaton
 > by Arthur Weigall
 > -----
 > all the books by Ahmed Osman
 > ----
 > all books by Gerald Massey
 > -----
 > echoes of the old dark land
 > Dr. Charles Finch
 >
 > -----
 > the metaphysical bible dictionary
 > -----
 >
 > the site that was sent, does an excellent job of naming AmenHetepIII as the mythical sole
 > http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
 > as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
 >
 >
 >
 >
 > I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned as too surmise plausible plagiary > hebrew scribe and masters.

>

> my personal view is:

>

> Akhen-Aton and Amen-hotep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the mythical life of Solomon.

>

> the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh-Amen is the mythical Queen of the Sheba (not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the Hebrew scriptures. The Bible is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.

>

> Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the Hebrews.

>

> Akhen-Aton is the mythical Moses of the Hebrews and the life of Joshua was taken from Akhen-Aton and Hor-em-Heb.

>

> Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their Moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people of the Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.

>

> Many of the psalms of the Bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.

> until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Akhen-Aton and Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern Khamit was Yhw/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en-Aton God was then called Adon (in Hebrew Adonai, khamit d and t are interchangeable) .

>

> in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings (pharaohs) who have the name Moses=mshu.

>

> Solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton running from ancient Egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai, > he left in his stead his brother {or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).

>

> Akhu-n-Adonai's return was in the reign of Sethi II who was a king in the old area of Akhet-Aton and Zaru-Kha the entrance into Ancient Egypt from the east.

> this area was the city (Zaru-Kha) given to his mother by his father Amenhotep III, and one of the places of refuge. At the rise of King Sethi I took the position of King of kings of the two lands. Akhen-Adonia returned and presented his rod of snakes that ate (poetic language) the scepter of Sethi I (Pharaoh) King of kings Setdhi I.

> Sethi I and co-ruler Ra-Mesh I are the Kings who drove the Israelites (shasu) completely out of ancient Khamit all the way to the far north with Rameses II sealing the act with the war of Armageddon (Heru-magi-Adonai) at Ka-Desh much like a past King of Kings Tehuti-Mesh III of the same region.

>

> of course the Meshu=Moses= Moshe of the line of Msh 18 and 19 dynasty kings never returned to see his promised place he promised to Israel a kingdom for them due to his Ra bloodline.

> I would "GUESS" the son of Adonai probaly died at Sera-bit-El khadim (sera-sara-zera) the golden calf of The Goddess Het-Hert had a temple complex .

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

> --- On Sun, 5/17/09, rehal orville wrote:

>

>

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Sunday, May 17, 2009, 2:19 AM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> I read that : /.../

> David and Solomon are portrayed in the Bible as two of the greatest kings of the ancient However, no trace of their empire has ever been found in Palestine. It is a period curiously missing from the archaeological record of the region. Quoting from the book, Archaeology the Land of the Bible, "The Bible is the only written source concerning the United Monarchy and it is therefore the basis of any historical presentation of the period."(1) There is such a complete void of external sources that the archaeologist, author and leading authority on the Donald Redford, writes in frustration that "such topics as the foreign policy of David and Solomon, Solomon's trade in horses or his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter must remain the for midrash and fictional treatment. "(2)

> In contrast, archaeology has confirmed the reigns of all other great kings of the ancient mentioned in the Bible, and some of the later, lesser kings of Judah and Israel (namely, Ahab, Jehu, Pekah, Hosea, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, and Uzziah).(3) Conservative Bible scholars believe that it is only a matter of time before concrete evidence of the reigns of David and Solomon is found as well. As will be discussed, concrete evidence for David and Solomon already exists, and comes from the very place one would least expect to find it.

>

>

> /.../ SO who were they, can you give their Egyptian names and the links to us?

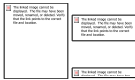

>

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
 Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
 To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 1:11 PM

i found this to be interesting that when i looked up the words to my question was amun/omon possibly the combination of the two wors Aum and Anu that i came across another word yamanu and this word seems to be the combination of Yam(sea) and Anu or the sea of anu? i then looked up the mdu ntchr for amun and it was rendered imn with the symbol above. so then i wondered about the wavy lines...does it symbolize water (yam) and couldn't figure out what the rectangular square above it was? i know the "flag" represent a neter, could that be Anu?

--- On Sat, 5/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
 To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 Date: Saturday, May 23, 2009, 2:02 PM

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut
 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
 To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 8:11 PM

-HOTEP!

Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or (Amon)?

-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom referring to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses the phrase finegold is also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. According to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

>

> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

$$>$$
$$>$$
 γ
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 \geq \angle

7

/ /

1

>

>

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 \succ
$$>$$
 \succ
$$>$$
$$>$$
 γ
$$>$$

> by.Arthur Weigall

> -----
> all the books by Ahmed Osman
> ----
> all books by Gerald Massey
> -----
> echoes of the old dark land
> Dr. Charles Finch
>
> -----
> the metaphysical bible dictionary
> -----
>
> the site that wassent, does an excellent job of naming AmenHetepIII as the mythical solomon,.
http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
>
>
>
>
> I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned astoo surmise plausible plagiarism of
hebrew scribe and masters.
>
> my personal view is:
>
> Akhen-Aton and Amen_hetep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the
mythical life of solomon.
>
> the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh- Amen is the mythical Queen of the Sheba(it's not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.
>
> Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the hebrews.
>
> Akhen-Aton is the mythical moses of the hebrews and the life of joshua was taken from Ay
and Hor-em-Heb.
>
> Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people called Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.
>
> Many of the psalms of the bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.
> until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern khamit was Yvh/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en- Aton God was then called Adon (in hbrw and khamit d and t are interchangeable) .
>

> in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings(pharoahs) who have the name Moses=msh/mesh.

 \succ

> solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton
run from anc. egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai,

> he left in his stead his brother{or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).

$$>$$

> Akhu-n-Adonai's return was in the reign of sethi II who was a king in the old area of Avari and Zaru-Kha the entrance into Anc.E. from the east.

> this area was the city(Zaru-Kha) given to his mother by his father Amenhtp III, and one of his places of refuge,. At the rise of King Sethi I too the position ofKing of kings of the two lands AkuenAdonia returned and presented his rod of snakes that ate(poetic language) the scepters of (Pharoah) King of kings Setdhi I.

> Sethi I and co-ruler Ra-Mesh I are the Kings who drove the Isralite's(shasu) completely out of ancient khamit all the way to the far north with Ramesh II sealing the actwith the war of Armaggedon (Heru-magi-Adonai) at Ka-Desh much like a pass King of Kings Tehuti-Msh III in the same region.

 \succ

> of course the the meshu=moses= moshe of the line of Msh 18 and 19 dynasty kings never got to see his promised place he promised to Israel a kingdom for them due to his Ra bloodline .

> I would "GUESS" the son of Adonai probaly died at Sera-bit-El khadim (sera-sara-zera) where the golden calf of The Goddess Het-Hert had a temple complex .

 \succ \succ

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

 \succ

> --- On Sun, 5/17/09, rehal orville wrote:

$$>$$
$$>$$

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Sunday, May 17, 2009, 2:19 AM

$$>$$
$$>$$
 \succ \geq \succ \succ \angle \angle \angle

✓

✓

1

/

> I read that : /.../

> David and Solomon are portrayed in the Bible as two of the greatest kings of the ancient world. However, no trace of their empire has ever been found in Palestine. It is a period curiously missing from the archaeological record of the region. Quoting from the book, Archaeology of the Land of the Bible, "The Bible is the only written source concerning the United Monarchy, and it is therefore the basis of any historical presentation of the period."(1) There is such a complete void of external sources that the archaeologist, author and leading authority on the era, Donald Redford, writes in frustration that "such topics as the foreign policy of David and Solomon, Solomon's trade in horses or his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter must remain themes for midrash and fictional treatment. "(2)

> In contrast, archaeology has confirmed the reigns of all other great kings of the ancient world mentioned in the Bible, and some of the later, lesser kings of Judah and Israel (namely, Omri, Ahab, Jehu, Pekah, Hosea, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, and Uzziah).(3) Conservative Biblical scholars believe that it is only a matter of time before concrete evidence of the reigns of David and Solomon is found as well. As will be discussed, concrete evidence for David and Solomon already exists, and comes from the very place one would least expect to find it.

>

>

> /.../ SO who were they, can you give their Egyptian names and the links to us?

>

>

> --- On Sat, 5/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: maatcollective@ yahooogroups. com

> Date: Saturday, May 16, 2009, 4:07 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481

> king solomon

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

| 29001|2009-05-28 14:04:08|cristofori whitakara|Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?|
"for the interior of Africa" very interesting also being that the sahara desert was once water.
--- On Thu, 5/28/09, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 4:33 PM

Yam is also an old,old name for gebel-barka region and considered a old name for the interior of Africa.

wheat growing over water , maybe its speaking of fertility from a nebulus/unknown source?.
check out the chapter on Amen in Metu-Neter vol. 1, 2 , 3

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 1:11 PM

i found this to be interesting that when i looked up the words to my question was amun/omon possibly the combination of the two wors Aum and Anu that i came across another word yamanu and this word seems to be the combination of Yam(sea) and Anu or the sea of anu? i then looked up the mdu ntchr for amun and it was rendered imn with the symbol above. so then i wondered about the wavy lines...does it symbolize water (yam) and couldn't figure out what the rectangular square above it was? i know the "flag" represent a neter, could that be Anu?

--- On Sat, 5/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Saturday, May 23, 2009, 2:02 PM

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 8:11 PM

-HOTEP!

Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or (Amon)?

-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom referring to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses thephrase finegold is also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. Acoording to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

>

> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> usually theologians say because the bible calls him ruddy..... they say the hebrew word can be translated reddish .

>

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, rehal orville wrote:

>

>

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 11:19 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> THANKS A LOT

>

> Who can explain how jewish priests now say Jacob, David were likely to have red hair?

>

> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

>

>

> From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 12:29 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>
>
>
>
> check out:
> hebrew myth
> by Gary Greenberg
> -----
> Akhenaton
> by Donald Redford
> -----
> the life and times of Akhenaton
> by Arthur Weigall
> -----
> all the books by Ahmed Osman
> ----
> all books by Gerald Massey
> -----
> echoes of the old dark land
> Dr. Charles Finch
>
> -----
> the metaphysical bible dictionary
> -----
>
> the site that was sent, does an excellent job of naming Amenhetep III as the mythical Solomon,.
http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
>
>
>
> I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned as too surmise plausible plagiarism of hebrew scribe and masters.
>
> my personal view is:
>
> Akhen-Aton and Amenhetep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the mythical life of Solomon.
>
> the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh-Amen is the mythical Queen of the Sheba (it's not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.
>
> Tehuti-mes III is the mythical David of the hebrews.
>
> Akhen-Aton is the mythical Moses of the hebrews and the life of Joshua was taken from Aye

and Hor-em-Heb.

>

> Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their Moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people called Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.

>

> Many of the psalms of the Bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.

> until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern Khamit was Yvh/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en- Aton God was then called Adon (in Hebrew and Khamit d and t are interchangeable) .

>

> in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings (pharaohs) who have the name Moses=msh/mesh.

>

> Solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the Exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton run from ancient Egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai,

> he left in his stead his brother {or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).

>

> Akhu-n-Adonai's return was in the reign of Sethi II who was a king in the old area of Avari and Zaru-Kha the entrance into Ancient Egypt from the east.

> this area was the city (Zaru-Kha) given to his mother by his father Amenhotep III, and one of his places of refuge. At the rise of King Sethi I too the position of King of kings of the two lands Akhen-Adonia returned and presented his rod of snakes that ate (poetic language) the scepters of (Pharaoh) King of kings Sethe I.

> Sethi I and co-ruler Ra-Mesh I are the Kings who drove the Israelite's (Shasu) completely out of ancient Khamit all the way to the far north with Rameses II sealing the act with the war of Armageddon (Heru-magi-Adonai) at Ka-Desh much like a past King of Kings Tehuti-Msh III in the same region.

>

> of course the Meshu=Moses= Moshe of the line of Msh 18 and 19 dynasty kings never got to see his promised place he promised to Israel a kingdom for them due to his Ra bloodline .

> I would "GUESS" the son of Adonai probably died at Sera-bit-El khadim (Sera-sara-zera) where the golden calf of The Goddess Het-Hert had a temple complex .

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

> --- On Sun, 5/17/09, rehal orville wrote:

>

>

> From: rehal orville

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king Solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Sunday, May 17, 2009, 2:19 AM

\angle

>
>
>
>
>
>
> http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
> king solomon
>
>
>
> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>

| 29002|2009-05-28 14:39:22|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?|
i personally liken it to a belief of the anc.E. had that there was an inland sea far to the south,. and perhaps the myth came from an old knowledge that once they lived in a lush sahara and/or Lake tangyniyka(lake Naga) far to the Sud.

check out an ancient Egyptian tale called The lost Mariner by egyptologist:

the tale of the shipwrecked sailor from Ancient Egypt's Middle Kingdom, a shipwrecked sailor confronts a monster on a mysterious and bountiful island, and the monster tells the sailor that once he leaves the island, it will become water and he will not be able to return

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 4:04 PM

"for the interior of Africa" very interesting also being that the sahara desert was once water

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 4:33 PM

Yam is also an old,old name for gebel-barka region and considered a old name for the interior of Africa.

wheat growing over water , maybe its speaking of fertility from a nebulous/unknown source
check out the chapter on Amen in Metu-Neter vol. 1, 2 , 3

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
 Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
 To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 1:11 PM

i found this to be interesting that when i looked up the words to my question was amun/omon possibly the combination of the two wors Aum and Anu that i came across another word yamanu and this word seems to be the combination of Yam(sea) and Anu or the sea of anu? i then looked up the mdu ntchr for amun and it was rendered imn with the symbol above. so then i wondered about the wavy lines...does it symbolize water (yam) and couldn't figure out what the rectangular square above it was? i know the "flag" represent a neter, could that be Anu?

--- On Sat, 5/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?
 To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 Date: Saturday, May 23, 2009, 2:02 PM

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut
 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
 To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 8:11 PM

-HOTEP!

Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or (Amon)?

-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom referring to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses the phrase finegold is also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. According to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

>

> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

$$>$$
$$>$$
 γ
$$>$$
$$>$$
 γ
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 \succ \succ

/

/

 γ
$$>$$
$$>$$

1

1

 γ
$$>$$

✓

1

 \gt \succ

>

$$>$$
 \geq

>

 γ \succ

/ /

>

$$>$$
 \succ

—

/ /

1

/

✓

/

/

/ /

/ /

 γ

> -----
> all the books by Ahmed Osman
> ----
> all books by Gerald Massey
> -----
> echoes of the old dark land
> Dr. Charles Finch
>
> -----
> the metaphysical bible dictionary
> -----
>
> the site that wassent, does an excellent job of naming AmenHetepIII as the mythical solomon,.
http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
>
>
>
>
> I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned astoo surmise plausible plagiarism of hebrew scribe and masters.
>
> my personal view is:
>
> Akhen-Aton and Amen_hetep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the
mythical life of solomon.
>
> the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh- Amen is the mythical Queen of the Sheba(it's not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.
>
> Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the hebrews.
>
> Akhen-Aton is the mythical moses of the hebrews and the life of joshua was taken from Ay
and Hor-em-Heb.
>
> Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people called Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.
>
> Many of the psalms of the bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.
> until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern khamit was Yvh/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en- Aton God was then called Adon (in hbrw and khamit d and t are interchangeable) .
>

> I read that : /.../

> David and Solomon are portrayed in the Bible as two of the greatest kings of the ancient world. However, no trace of their empire has ever been found in Palestine. It is a period curiously missing from the archaeological record of the region. Quoting from the book, Archaeology of the Land of the Bible, "The Bible is the only written source concerning the United Monarchy, and it is therefore the basis of any historical presentation of the period."(1) There is such a complete void of external sources that the archaeologist, author and leading authority on the era, Donald Redford, writes in frustration that "such topics as the foreign policy of David and Solomon, Solomon's trade in horses or his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter must remain themes for midrash and fictional treatment. "(2)

> In contrast, archaeology has confirmed the reigns of all other great kings of the ancient world mentioned in the Bible, and some of the later, lesser kings of Judah and Israel (namely, Omri, Ahab, Jehu, Pekah, Hosea, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, and Uzziah).(3) Conservative Biblical scholars believe that it is only a matter of time before concrete evidence of the reigns of David and Solomon is found as well. As will be discussed, concrete evidence for David and Solomon already exists, and comes from the very place one would least expect to find it.

>

>

> /.../ SO who were they, can you give their Egyptian names and the links to us?

>

>

> --- On Sat, 5/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> To: maatcollective@ yahooogroups. com

> Date: Saturday, May 16, 2009, 4:07 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481

> king solomon

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

| 29003|2009-05-28 21:55:00|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: 14th Annual Stone Awards|

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 5/28/09, Alandas

From: Alandas Dobbins >

Subject: 14th Annual Stone Awards

To: "'Tafari khumbaka"' , Ausar65@aol.com

Date: Thursday, May 28, 2009, 9:38 PM

<http://stoneawards.org/>

NOTE: This is considered proprietary and confidential information.

| 29004|2009-05-29 06:57:14|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funeral|

A Great Giant of knowledge and sharing has become a Ancestor!.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 5/29/09, Runoko Rashidi wrote:

From: Runoko Rashidi

Subject: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funeral

To: TravelwithRunoko@yahoogroups.com, globalafricanpresence@yahoogroups.com, SmaiTawi@yahoogroups.com,
SOA@yahoogroups.com, AfricanWarriorTradition@yahoogroups.com, luv4self_network@yahoogroups.com, TheBlackList@yahoogroups.com,
BeliefsAndReligion@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, May 29, 2009, 8:44 AM

Dr. Van Sertima passed away peacefully and quickly at home on Memorial Day, May 25th.

Funeral will take place this
Saturday, May 30,
2009

The Riverside Church
490 Riverside Drive
New York NY 10027

| 29005|2009-05-29 07:18:53|Ferg|Re: nefertiti|

I agree Peter. One day the truth will be known so long as the pressure mounts.
Somo

----- Original Message -----

From: Peter Gray
To: Marc Washington
Sent: Wednesday, May 27, 2009 4:14 PM
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: nefertiti

Yes very interesting article, Ferg. While it does not conclusively prove the case, it certainly reveals the possibility, or likelihood, of fraud.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: egyptology@theunit.fsnet.co.uk
Date: Wed, 27 May 2009 15:24:33 +0100
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: nefertiti

Could this be of interest?

shangri-la.0catch.com/press/nefertiti.html

----- Original Message -----

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Sent: Saturday, May 16, 2009 5:31 PM
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: nefertiti

For obvious reasons, we rarely see this and other legitimate portrayals of Nefertiti.

Regards,
Paul

--- In Ta_Seti@yahooogroups .com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Ferg

> To: ferg@...

> Sent: Saturday, May 16, 2009 3:09 PM

> Subject: Emailing: E.GA.2303.1943(3)

>

>

> Queen Nefertiti, see attachment

>

> Somo

>

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.

| 29006|2009-05-29 08:17:51|ray greenidge|Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away|
All,

I just learned that Dr Ivan Van Sertima recently passed away. May his soul rest in peace. We will miss him.

Ray

| 29007|2009-05-29 11:05:41|Peter Gray|Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away|
Thank you, Ray, but most of all, may his books continue to be read.
Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: raygreenidge@yahoo.com
Date: Fri, 29 May 2009 08:17:51 -0700
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away

All,

I just learned that Dr Ivan Van Sertima recently passed away. May his soul rest in peace. We will miss him.

Ray

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.
| 29008|2009-05-29 11:22:00|Alex van Deelen|Toolbox Of Neocolonialism - Re: congo, worst place on earth?|
Tafari khumbaka,

Much of the media depiction of what is going in Africa is about deception. How often haven't you heard Africa described as 'the poorest continent on earth', or an African country described as 'the poorest country in the world'? These are outright lies. The people may be poor, but most African countries have massive natural and raw material wealth, that is being stolen as we speak. The question is: where does the money go?

For instance, does ms. Ensler at any time go into who benefits from this mining of Coltan and Tanzanite?

Who own the concessions? Who do the army officers pass on their coltan/cobalt/tanzanite to?

Remember that all these metals are traded in London. How does it end up there, and how does it help make London one of the richest cities in the world?

There are good reports on what is going on in Africa, and specifically the so-called extractive industries - mining.

A look at the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) (1)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1U28joj6d1A>

A look at the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) (2)

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=EMMQhHuI9_Y

In Focus: Congo's Bloody Coltan

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3OWj1ZGn4uM>

Gertler's Bling Bang Torah Gang

Israel and the Ongoing Holocaust in Congo (Part 1)

<http://dissidentvoice.org/2008/02/gertlers-bling-bang-torah-gang/>

I include the last article, not because most of the oligarchs in Africa who benefit from the exploitation of Africa's raw materials are Jewish (they're not - the likes of Equinox, Vedanta etc. are Australian, Indian and there are Canadian and US corporations involved), but because this article mentions a lot of names for further examination.

Alex

| 29009|2009-05-29 11:57:12|Marc Taylor|offtopic: 10 Ideas Changing the World Right Now - Africa: Open for B|

I ran across this on time magazines website... I found it interesting that Africa: Open for Business is included in the 10 ideas changing the world right now...

As African Americans, we'd ought not miss out on the opportunity to claim our homeland and help rebuild it before it becomes colonized for the umpteenth time...

What's Next

The global economy is being remade before our eyes. Here's what's on the horizon

- Jobs Are the New Assets
- Recycling the Suburbs
- The New Calvinism
- Reinstating The Interstate
- Amortality
- Africa: Open for Business
- The Rent-a-Country
- Biobanks
- Survival Stores
- Ecological Intelligence

| 29010|2009-05-29 11:57:41|Michael Bayman|Moorcentric-Center-Of-Gravity From The Amexem-Moor-Empire: Perspecti|

From: Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

Unto:All-Moors (Declared/Undeclared)/Original-men and women:
on-this-planet

Re: Latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Government

I.S.L.A.M.:

On the behalf of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial-Majesty:
Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey and the-entire: Amexem-Moor-Empire: National-Collective , peace,
good-health, and much-prosperity: be-upon-you.

For the record, please-find-below a link for the latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency by the order from the Operations-Director : Distinguished-Noble:
Seti-Hotep: Bey under the authority of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Minister For The Communications,

His-Excellency: Grand-Noble: Dan-El

For the record, we-request-that-you: share the link with brothers and sisters, in-yourcipher/circle, if-you-appreciate the information therein the video.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=J69nurxwvCw>

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

| 29011|2009-05-29 11:58:12|Ginger Daniels|Texas governor nearing his 200th execution|

Coalitions plan day of protests nationwide

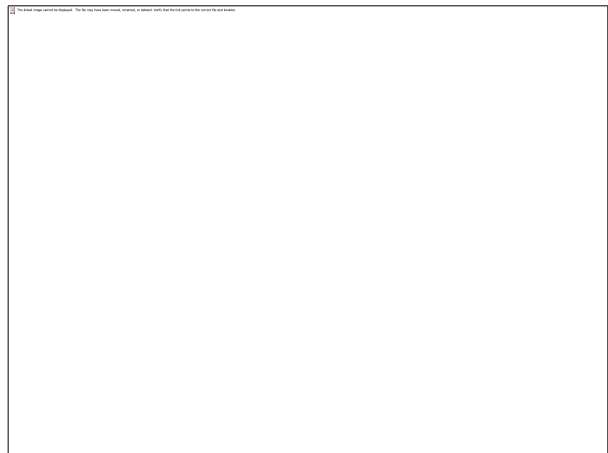

HOUSTON, Texas (FinalCall.com) - On June 2, the 200th execution under Texas Governor Rick Perry is scheduled to take place and protestors from across the state are synchronizing their plans to speak out against it.

Since becoming governor in December 2000,
Mr. Perry has surpassed any governor in U.S. history in the number of executions under their watch. The date of the 200th execution could change if any prior scheduled executions are halted, but the outcry will never stop, according to Gloria Rubac.

We're never going to stop protesting these killings Ms. Rubac told The Final Call. She also heads the Texas Death Penalty Abolishment Movement in Houston.

The prison system has never been about reform, especially in Texas. They are taking innocent lives so we are asking everyone around the country to call Gov. Perry, march in your city and let your voice be heard, she added.

Ms. Rubac has been involved in the abolishment of the death penalty since it was reinstated nationwide in 1982. Every week she and other members can be found visiting prisoners in Huntsville, Texas, attending sessions at the state capitol and hosting grassroots planning meetings at local venues.

In total, Texas has executed 437 people since 1982, including 152 under former Texas Governor George W. Bush. His highest number of executions took place in the year 2000, the year he became President. The 199th execution by Gov. Perry is scheduled on May 19 for an offender in Tarrant County. The 200th is slated to be a Black male by the name of Michael Lynn Riley.

According to the latest statistics released by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, there are presently over 300 offenders on death row. Out of that population, 130 of those are Black males, 101 White males and 99 Hispanic males. Black women make up 40 percent of the female gender on death row and White women represent 50 percent.

Since 1982, Blacks have made up 32 percent of those put to death, second only to Whites (40 percent). Harris County leads all Texas counties with the most death row sentences over the past 27 years with 280. The second ranked county is Dallas with 96. Both counties also lead in the number of present offenders on death row with 114 and 40 respectively.

It is a shame how many lives are being taken and most of them may have been innocent, said Reginald Gordon, who served 16 years in prison. People don't recognize how these killings have served the political ambitions of these government officials. There are a lot of inmates being released now based on witnesses falsely identifying them, so who knows how many of those that have been executed were truly innocent.

Upon his release from prison, Mr. Gordon launched OG1 Operation Outreach to initially help former prisoners make a smooth transition back into society and now has extended to tours at state prisons along with workshops for at-risk youth.

Along with protesting, (we) have to go into the communities and teach our people responsibility to avoid entering that system which is a dead end, said Mr. Gordon. We have to start caring about ourselves. Black men are being shot daily and there is no outcry but when the swine flu hit, people (started) going crazy. We have to value our own lives.

N.O.I. Student Minister Robert Muhammad, who witnessed the execution of Gary Graham in 2000, said it is better to be rich and guilty in Texas than it is to be poor and innocent. Texas will have to answer to the God of Justice for these killings. I cringe at the thought of what will be brought down on this state. Perry has become one of the most prolific killers in the country.

In terms of community responsibility, Mr. Muhammad recommends that we as leaders have to get from behind our rostrums, pulpits and office desks to start engaging our people. Most people on death row have less education, have been hooked on drugs, and have not had a lot of opportunities. We must unify to change that landscape and save our people from entering that system by pooling our resources.

Grassroots organizers in Texas are even calling on international groups to organize a protest at their nearest U.S. embassy or consulate. In Houston, the protest will take place at the Old Hanging Tree in the downtown area. Protestors in Austin will march at the state capitol and Huntsville residents will gather outside The Walls Unit.

Organizers are also asking people to do one or more of the following proactive tasks:

On the day of the 200th execution, call Gov. Perry's Office at 512-462-1782 and share their opinions on the death penalty.

Send Gov. Perry a letter of protest to: Texas Moratorium Network, 3616 Far West Blvd, Suite 117, Box 251, Austin, Texas 78731

Sign the online petition and add your name to the list of people who are raising their voices to protest the 200th execution.

Donate a symbolic 200 cents towards organizing against the Texas death penalty. That is one penny for every execution under Rick Perry.

This campaign is sponsored by the Texas Moratorium Network, Texas Death Penalty Abolition Movement, Campaign to End the Death Penalty Austin, Students Against the Death Penalty, Texas Death Penalty Education and Resource Center, and Abolish the Death Penalty Project on Amaze.

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

| 29012|2009-05-29 16:47:51|Ginger Daniels|Re: Fw: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funeral|

WOW... I'm so sorry to hear this. My thoughts and prayers go out to his family and all that he touched during his time here. He will live on through his work and his infallible spirit which have touched my life in a major way.

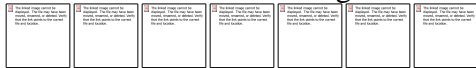

To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Fri, 29 May 2009 06:57:12 -0700

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Fw: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funeral

A Great Giant of knowledge and sharing has become a Ancestor!.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 5/29/09, Runoko Rashidi wrote:

From: Runoko Rashidi

Subject: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funeral

To: TravelwithRunoko@ yahoogroups. com, globalafricanpresen ce@yahoogroups. com, SmaiTawi@yahoo group s.com, SOA@yahoogroups.
com, AfricanWarriorTradi tion@yahoogroups .com, luv4self_network@ yahoogroups. com, TheBlackList@ yahoogroups. com, BeliefsAndReligion@
yahoogroups. com

Date: Friday, May 29, 2009, 8:44 AM

Dr. Van Sertima passed away peacefully and quickly at home on Memorial Day, May 25th.

Funeral will take place this

Saturday, May 30,
2009

The Riverside Church
490 Riverside Drive
New York NY 10027

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.
| 29013|2009-05-29 16:47:53|Michael Bayman|Religious And Spiritual-Aspects From The
Amexem-Moor-Empire: Perspec|

From: Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

Unto:All-Moors (Declared/Undeclared)/Original-men and women:
on-this-planet

Re: Latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Government

I.S.L.A.M.:

On the behalf of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial-Majesty:
Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey and the-entire: Amexem-Moor-Empire: National-Collective , peace,
good-health, and much-prosperity: be-upon-you.

For the record, please-find-below a link for the latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency by the order from the Operations-Director : Distinguished-Noble:
Seti-Hotep: Bey under the authority of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Minister For The Communications,

His-Excellency: Grand-Noble: Dan-El

For the record, we-request-that-you: share the link with brothers and sisters, in-yourcipher/circle, if-you-appreciate the information therein the video.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7UQuf1sQdSs>

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

| 29014|2009-05-29 16:48:13|garageman_mike|Women's names in Ancient Nubia, at the time of Pharaoh Rameses II or|

Hello, I'm new to this group and indeed Egyptology studies.I'm in the process of putting together some short stories that I wish to set in Egypt at the time of Pharaohs Rameses II and Merneptah.

One of my Egyptian characters has captured a Nubian priestess on one of the campaigns there and taken her back to Memphis to marry her.

Any information on Nubian gods and goddesses would also be useful.

Thanks for your help in advance. I'm sure I shall have many questions more to ask in the future.

Mike

| 29015|2009-05-29 16:48:40|hebrew b'yisrael|Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away|
May Yahweh rest his soul!

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ivan_van_Sertima

When & where is his homecoming ceremony?

From: ray greenidge
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Sent: Friday, May 29, 2009 11:17:51 AM
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away

All,

I just learned that Dr Ivan Van Sertima recently passed away. May his soul rest in peace. We will miss him.

Ray

| 29016|2009-05-29 16:48:42|The Jacksons|Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away|
When!????

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com
From: atenergy@hotmail.com
Date: Fri, 29 May 2009 14:04:09 -0400
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away

Thank you, Ray, but most of all, may his books continue to be read.
Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: raygreenidge@ yahoo.com

Date: Fri, 29 May 2009 08:17:51 -0700
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away

All,

I just learned that Dr Ivan Van Sertima recently passed away. May his soul rest in peace. We will miss him.

Ray

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.
| 29017|2009-05-29 16:51:52|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away|

Ivan van Sertima dies

By Stabroek staff | May 29, 2009 in Local News

Well known Guyanese-British literary critic, linguist, poet and anthropologist, Dr Ivan van Sertima, died recently, according to a release from the Guyana Cultural Association New York Inc/Guyana Folk Festival which expressed condolences to his family.

Ivan van Sertima

According to the release Dr van Sertima was born in January 1935 in Kitty when the country was still a British colony and remained a British citizen. After completing his primary and secondary schooling in Guyana, he travelled to London and went to university. In addition to producing an array of creative writing, van Sertima also completed undergraduate studies in African languages and literature and during his studies he became fluent in Swahili and Hungarian. He also worked for several years in Great Britain as a journalist, doing weekly broadcasts to the Caribbean and Africa.

He later immigrated to the US where he entered the University of Rutgers in New Brunswick, New Jersey for graduate work and he has had over 30 years of teaching at the university where he also completed his Master's degree.

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, The Jacksons wrote:

>

>

> When!????

>

>

>

> To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

> From: atenergy@...

> Date: Fri, 29 May 2009 14:04:09 -0400

> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away

>

>

>

$$>$$
$$>$$

> Peter

 \succ
$$>$$

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Dr Ivan Van Sertima - Passed Away

$$>$$
$$>$$
 \triangleright \succ \angle
$$>$$

> I just learned that Dr Ivan Van Sertima recently passed away. May his soul rest in peace. We will miss him.

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$

> Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Don't worry about storage limits. Check it out.

$$>$$
 \triangleright \succ

>
>
>

> Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Don't worry about storage limits.
>
> http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT_TAGLM_WL_HM_Tutorial_Storage1_052009
>

| 29018|2009-05-30 12:33:31|Alex van Deelen|Fw: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funeral|
That is sad news.

Has anyone had a chance to read and comment on his Wikipedia page?

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ivan_Van_Sertima

Please comment and especially the 'criticisms' heading could do with a lot of work.

I'm not familiar enough with his work or specifically South America to add something sensible (although I think it is either highly likely or certain that West Africans made their way to the Americas before Columbus did).

The criticisms of his work seem to be more of an attack on 'Afrocentrism' than specific criticisms that can be examined.

Alex

| 29019|2009-05-30 16:15:51|shutefnut|Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?|
yahoogroups.com

Hotep!

The Greco-Roman concept and transliteration of (Sol) meaning Sun, or Sun God. And that the transliteration of (Omon and Oman) is in fact consistent with its place of origin, that being Oman which is located in Southern Arabia. Oman was the place where the myth of Solomon, and the beautiful queen of Ethiopia vibrated. Not just because it at one time had been a colony of Ethiopia. But in fact there was a very strong marriage because of its close proximity to each other.

> Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 8:11 PM

>

>

>

>

> -HOTEP!

>

> Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or > (Amon)?

>

> -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>>

>> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom referring to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses the phrase finegold is also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion? Another word used in those verses is Bushy. According to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?

>>

>> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>>

>>

>>

>> From: Tafari khumbaka

>> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

>> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> usually theologians say because the bible calls him ruddy..... they say the hebrew word can be translated reddish .

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>>

>> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, rehal orville wrote:

>>

>> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

>> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 11:19 PM

> >

>>

> >

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> THANKS A LOT

> >

>> Who can explain how jewish priests now say Jacob, David were likely to have red hair?

>>

> > --- On Mon, 5/18/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

>>

>>

>> From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

>> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

>> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 12:29 PM

> >

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

 \gg

✓ ✓

10

$\frac{1}{2}$

11

11

11

10

11

10

10

—

> >
 > > check out:
 > > hebrew myth
 > > by Gary Greenberg
 > > -----
 > > Akhenaton
 > > by Donald Redford
 > > -----
 > > the life and times of Akhenaton
 > > by Arthur Weigall
 > > -----
 > > all the books by Ahmed Osman
 > > ----
 > > all books by Gerald Massey
 > > -----
 > > echoes of the old dark land
 > > Dr. Charles Finch
 > >
 > > -----
 > > the metaphysical bible dictionary
 > > -----
 > >
 > > the site that was sent, does an excellent job of naming Amenhetep III as the mythical solomon,. http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481
 > >
 > >
 > >
 > > I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned as too surmise plausible plagiarism of hebrew scribe and masters.
 > >
 > > my personal view is:
 > >
 > > Akhen-Aton and Amenhetep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the mythical life of solomon.
 > >
 > > the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh-Amen is the mythical Queen of the Sheba( it's not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.
 > >
 > > Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the hebrews.
 > >
 > > Akhen-Aton is the mythical moses of the hebrews and the life of joshua was taken from Ay
 and Hor-em-Heb.
 > >
 > > Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people called Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.

> >

> > Many of the psalms of the bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.

> > until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern khamit was Yvh/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en- Aton God was then called Adon (in hbrw and khmit d and t are interchangeable) .

> >

> > in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings (pharaohs) who have the name Moses=msh/mesh.

> >

> > solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton run from anc. egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai,

> > he left in his stead his brother {or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).

> >

> > Akhu-n-Adonai's return was in the reign of sethi II who was a king in the old area of Avari and Zaru-Kha the entrance into Anc.E. from the east.

> > this area was the city (Zaru-Kha) given to his mother by his father Amenhtp III, and one of his places of refuge,. At the rise of King Sethi I too the position of King of kings of the two lands AkuenAdonia returned and presented his rod of snakes that ate (poetic language) the scepters of (Pharaoh) King of kings Setdhi I.

> > Sethi I and co-ruler Ra-Mesh I are the Kings who drove the Isralite's (shasu) completely out of ancient khamit all the way to the far north with Ramesh II sealing the act with the war of Armageddon (Heru-magi-Adonai) at Ka-Desh much like a pass King of Kings Tehuti-Msh III in the same region.

> >

> > of course the the meshu=moses= moshe of the line of Msh 18 and 19 dynasty kings never got to see his promised place he promised to Israel a kingdom for them due to his Ra bloodline .

> > I would "GUESS" the son of Adonai probably died at Sera-bit-El khadim (sera-sara-zera) where the golden calf of The Goddess Het-Hert had a temple complex .

> >

> >

> > Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

> >

> > --- On Sun, 5/17/09, rehal orville wrote:

> >

> >

> > From: rehal orville

> > Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

> > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> > Date: Sunday, May 17, 2009, 2:19 AM

> >

> >

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> I read that : /.../

>> David and Solomon are portrayed in the Bible as two of the greatest kings of the ancient world. However, no trace of their empire has ever been found in Palestine. It is a period curiously missing from the archaeological record of the region. Quoting from the book, Archaeology of the Land of the Bible, "The Bible is the only written source concerning the United Monarchy, and it is therefore the basis of any historical presentation of the period." (1) There is such a complete void of external sources that the archaeologist, author and leading authority on the era, Donald Redford, writes in frustration that "such topics as the foreign policy of David and Solomon, Solomon's trade in horses or his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter must remain themes for midrash and fictional treatment." (2)

>> In contrast, archaeology has confirmed the reigns of all other great kings of the ancient world mentioned in the Bible, and some of the later, lesser kings of Judah and Israel (namely, Omri, Ahab, Jehu, Pekah, Hosea, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, and Uzziah). (3) Conservative Biblical scholars believe that it is only a matter of time before concrete evidence of the reigns of David and Solomon is found as well. As will be discussed, concrete evidence for David and Solomon already exists, and comes from the very place one would least expect to find it.

>>

>>

>> /.../ SO who were they, can you give their Egyptian names and the links to us?

>>

>>

>> --- On Sat, 5/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>>

>>

>> From: Tafari khumbaka

>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: maatcollective@ yahoo groups. com

>> Date: Saturday, May 16, 2009, 4:07 PM

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

> >

> >

> >

> > http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?
as=35927&w=125219&d=243481

> > king solomon

> >

> >

> >

> > Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

> >

>

| 29020|2009-05-30 16:15:56|Michael J Robinson|The Transition of Dr. Ivan Van Sertima and
Funeral Services|

Maat Hotep Family,

I was very saddened to learn about the passing of our great Scholar Warrior Dr. Ivan Van Sertima. I found out yesterday from emails I receive from Dr. Runoko Rashidis Yahoo Group. Here are some emails that came out yesterday with more information.

Thanks,

Michael J. Robinson

President

African History Network

Mrobinson@AfricanHistoryNetwork.com

www.YouTube.com/mjrob1914

mjrob1914@comcast.net

mjrob1914@gmail.com

www.AfricanHistoryNetwork.com

"Right knowledge, corrects wrong behavior!!!"

29 May 2009

Greetings Family,

I was shocked to learn upon my arrival from Peru back to the United States this morning of the transition of brother Ivan Van Sertima. Ivan was a good friend and a great teacher. I met him in 1981 and worked very actively with him for more than two decades. And he was probably the single most scholarly influence in my life. I miss him and I am hurting. Perhaps later today or this weekend I will write a very personal series of recollections of this great scholar. For the last ten years he was in poor health. So, he is gone now and many of us will talk about what a great scholar he was. He was one of the very best.

I miss you Ivan. You made a huge contribution.

In love of Africa,

Runoko Rashidi

The funeral will take place this Saturday, May 30, 2009

The Riverside Church
490 Riverside Drive
New York NY 10027

(between 120th and 122nd Streets and Riverside Dr.)

Viewing: 10:00 a.m. - 11:00 a.m. in the Nave

Service: 11:00 a.m. - about 12:30 p.m.

Burial: 1:00p.m. at the Woodlawn Cemetery

Webster Avenue and East 233rd St.
Bronx NY 10470
(718) 920-0500

Condolences may be sent to our website, www.journalofafricancivilizations.com under info@journalofafricancivilizations.com or to:

Mrs. Jacqueline L. Van Sertima
347 Felton Avenue
Highland Park NJ 08904

A TRIBUTE TO DR. IVAN VAN SERTIMA

(Composed in 2003)

By RUNOKO RASHIDI

"We have come to reclaim the house of history. We are dedicated to the revision of the role of the African in the world's great civilizations, the contribution of Africa to the achievement of man in the arts and sciences. We shall emphasize what Africa has given to the world, not what it has lost."

--Ivan Van Sertima

With absolute certainty it can be stated that, due to his consistent and unrelenting scholarship over the past twenty-five years in the rewriting of African history and the reconstruction of the African's place in world history, particularly in the field of the African presence in ancient America, Ivan Van Sertima has cemented his position as one of our greatest living scholars. Indeed, during this turbulent and exciting period, he has been in the vanguard of those scholars fighting to place African history in a new light. Simply put, Van Sertima's clarion call has been: "We shall follow the trail of the African in Europe, in Asia, and in every corner of the New World, seeking to set the record straight. This is no romantic exploration of antiquities. It is a search for roots."

Ivan Van Sertima was born in Kitty Village, Guyana, South America on January 26, 1935. He was educated at the School of Oriental and African Studies at London University where he graduated with honors. From 1957 to 1959, he served as a Press and Broadcasting Officer in the Guyana Information Services. During the decade of the 1960s, he broadcasted weekly from Britain to both Africa and the Caribbean. He came to the United States in 1970, where he completed his post graduate studies at Rutgers University in New Jersey. Dr. Van Sertima began his teaching career as an instructor at Rutgers in 1972, and he is now Professor of African studies in the Department of Africana Studies.

Van Sertima is a literary critic, a linguist, and an anthropologist, and has made a name for himself in all three fields. As a linguist, he is the compiler of the Swahili Dictionary of Legal Terms, based on his field work in Tanzania, East Africa in 1967. As a literary critic, he is the author of Caribbean Writers, a collection of critical essays on the Caribbean novel. He is also the author of several major literary reviews published in Denmark, India, Britain, and the United States. He was recognized for his work in this field by being requested by the Nobel Committee of the Swedish Academy to nominate candidates for the Nobel Prize in Literature from 1976 to 1980.

The cornerstone of Dr. Van Sertima's legacy will probably be his authorship of They Came Before Columbus: The African Presence in Ancient America. According to Van Sertima:

"The African presence in America before Columbus is of importance not only to African and American history, but to the history of world civilizations. The African presence is proven by stone heads, terra cottas, skeletons, artifacts, techniques and inscriptions, by oral traditions and documented history, by botanical, linguistic and cultural data."

They Came Before Columbus is a groundbreaking historical work and a literary hallmark. The ideas and themes presented in They Came Before Columbus were not novel. Indeed, many people had written on the African presence in pre-Columbian America before Van Sertima, notably Leo Wiener, Kofi Wangara, R.A. Jairazbhoy, Legrand H. Clegg II, and Floyd W. Hayes III, but Van Sertima's book was the first such work of its type written by an African to comprehensively address the subject. In his own words, Van Sertima notes that:

"What I have sought to do in this book, therefore, is to present the whole picture emerging from these disciplines, all the facts that are now known about the links between Africa and America in pre-Columbian times."

They Came Before Columbus has now gone through more than twenty printings. It was published in French in 1981, and in the same year was awarded the Clarence L. Holt Prize, a prize awarded every two years "for a work of excellence in literature and the humanities relating to the cultural heritage of Africa and the African diaspora." In 1979 Dr. Chancellor Williams received the Clarence L. Holte prize for the Destruction of Black Civilization.

Following upon the publication of They Came Before Columbus, and equally momentous, in 1979 Dr. Van Sertima founded the Journal of African Civilizations which quickly gained "a reputation for excellence and uniqueness among historical and anthropological journals. It is recognized as a valuable information source for both the layman and student." The late St. Clair Drake described the Journal of African Civilizations as "one of the most important events in the development of research and publication from the perspective of Pan-African scholarship."

Van Sertima set the tone early on when he stated that:

"The destruction of African high-cultures after the massive and continuous invasions of Europe left many Africans surviving on the periphery or outer ring of what constituted the best in African civilizations. New facts that challenge this image create such consternation and incredulity that an extraordinarily emotional campaign is mounted by some of the most respected voices in the scientific establishment to explain away the new data.

That drift of dynastic Egypt from Africa has now dramatically slowed. Recent archeological finds have caught up with the mythmakers. More and more the history of Africa is being reconstructed upon the basis of hard, objective data rather than upon the self-serving speculations and racist theories about the black barbarians."

Since 1979 the Journal of African Civilizations has published works by and about many of the world's finest Africanist scholars in a series of magnificent anthologies. These works include Blacks in Science, Nile Valley Civilizations, African Presence in Early America, Black Women in Antiquity, Egypt Revisited, Egypt: Child of Africa, African Presence in Early Europe, Golden Age of the Moor, African Presence in the Art of the Americas, Great Black Leaders, Great African Thinkers (coedited with Larry Obadele Williams), and African Presence in Early Asia (coedited with Runoko Rashidi). In 1998 Transaction Press produced Van Sertima's newest text--Early America Revisited--the definitive statement on the subject.

On July 7, 1987 Dr. Van Sertima appeared before a Congressional Committee to challenge the Columbus myth. In November 1991 he defended his thesis in an address to the Smithsonian Institute. In this arena Ivan Van Sertima has emerged as an undefeated champion.

SOURCES:

They Came Before Columbus and Early America Revisited, by Ivan Van Sertima

| 29021|2009-05-30 16:15:56|odhiambo okech|PLACE OF THE YOUTH AGENDA AND SOCIAL BASE|
Doc,

We have a vacuum and politicians, both young in age and young in ideas, have perfected the art of using the youth as a ladder to the top.

The moment they are at the top, they discard the ladder. And the youth wait with baited breath for the next circle of 5 years.

Currently, if you are following, there was a circus in town. Jimmy Kibaki met the usual gang, Tony Gachoka and they had a meeting with Kiema Kilonzo MP, in the name of the youth.

One would be excused if he were a visitor in town watching Jimmy Kibaki talking about organizing a Youth Convention to address the plight of the youth.

I will be excused for I have been in town all along. Where has this guy who now wants to talk about the youth been? Is the Youth Agenda appealing only when he realizes that his Dad must leave the political scene in 2012 and he must prepare to inherit the same?

The same happened with one Gideon Moi. He also came to know about the existence of the youth only when time was nigh for Mzee Moi.

True, the youth of Kenya must wake up and face reality. They must not be used by late converts just because the converts want something. If Jimmy Kibaki was sincere about the youth, he would have joined forces with other known people who have all along been on the front line agitating for the rights, not only of the youths, but of Kenyans.

I know of many young men and women who have brushed soldiers with the law when agitating for our rightss. In their defence, I have never seen nor had that Jimmy Kibaki was in the frontline helping to either secure their release or paid bail for any one of them.

All known agents of change must be on the look out. Our struggles will be arboted once people like the young Kibaki come on board in the name of the youth. They are not coming to help the youth, they just want to secure and insure their property. And the wealth that they are inheriting from their parents.

Maybe time has come for Kenyans to reject political inheritance of seats. And a good example had been set in Baringo Central.

Odhiambo T Oketch

Komarock Nairobi.

--- On Fri, 5/29/09, Shem Ochuodho wrote:

From: Shem Ochuodho
Subject: Re: [NewVisionKenya] Re: PLACE OF THE YOUTH AGENDA AND SOCIAL BASE
To: NewVisionKenya@yahoogroups.com, "ProgressiveMinds"
Cc: "NYCIV Group"
Date: Friday, May 29, 2009, 9:21 AM

Dada Elizabeth,

To the best of my knowledge, there is no on-going structured, large-scale civil empowerment or education programs, other than those being implemented by Bunge, Komarock, NYC, CRECO/CREDO, NCEC, CMD, Partners for Change, etc. If you have some specific thoughts, please go ahead and share.

Back to the issue of the place of the youth: I remember during the days of Mageuzi and PPF (Progressive People's Forum - which gave birth to NAC -> NAK -> NARC), we were scouting for 'progressive' people. Loosely, among the virtues of 'progressive' were (for the politicians/ MPs) 'youthful, visionary, popular, etc'. 'Youthful' was redefined to include 'Youthful in Age, Politics or Mind'. Hence Prof. Nyong'o and Hon. Beth Mugo of yesteryears were eligible to be members of the Progressives Movement in that sense.

Having said that, age is a dynamic parameter. Nevertheless, the youth (in terms of age) are today the worst victims of Kenya's bad governance/leadership, and they have minds least polluted by ukabila, unemployment, etc, and therefore stand the best chance to bring about change. When some time last year a grouping of young (20-30 year olds) Kenyan Professionals invited me to a Naivasha Retreat as Guest Speaker, my challenge to them was: we have done our bit; you must now be on the driving seat! And I meant it. I reminded them of an article by Columnist Kap Kirwok. 'Kenya's Future Lies Neither with Kibaki Nor Raila'. Neither does it lie with the Ochuodho's of this world. It lies with the youth. The 'rest of us' can simply play advisory/ supportive role.

Best regards,

Shem, Juba

Shem J. Ochuodho, MSc (Eng), PhD, LLD (Hon)
Senior Advisor
Ministry of Telecom & Postal Services
Government of Southern Sudan (GoSS), Juba
Kenya Community Abroad (KCA) 2007 Excellence Award Winner
AfricaOnline 2005 Industry Pioneer Award Recipient
Father of Internet in Kenya (CSK 2000)
Cell: +249-955-021- 040/+256- 477-232025/ +254-734- 137371
Skype: shem.ochuodho

[Views expressed herein are my own, and do not reflect those of my employer]

--- On Fri, 5/29/09, Arinolah E-N wrote:

From: Arinolah E-N
Subject: Re: [NewVisionKenya] Re: PLACE OF THE YOUTH AGENDA AND

SOCIAL BASE

To: NewVisionKenya@ yahoo. com

Date: Friday, May 29, 2009, 6:46 PM

Wenzetu,

Thanks for such clarifications are really necessary for us to move forward.

Although it has been said before- in my own words, what we need is the youthful wealth in its diversity. Since the youth are active they are one the 'major' target group to driving policy changes. By wealth i mean so many other productive 'assets' that we can combine from all works of life to bring the change be it human or material in nature. Not ignoring the fact that a greater wealth of wisdom is necessary to combine this diversity. The youth of this generation are still energetic and in possession of much of the diversity. We all know it is not about sweeping clean the old guards out of the house(it may not be feasible), it is about having the youth at the forefront to ensure that things are done by whoever is commissioned to do so the right way.

I say yet again, these energies need to be sensitized towards upholding the change necessary in Kenya. The conception of our Martin Luther King begins by our individual change of attitude towards who to bring the change and how to do it.

I am relatively a new member i am not sure how far strategies already in place towards civic empowerment by this forum. Can somebody update me apart from the work plan by brother Kombo and Bunge of any steps already in place. Before i duplicate any ideas.

Thanks

Arinolah E-N

On 5/29/09, Okiya Omtatah Okiiti <omtatah@yahoo.com> wrote:

Ndugu Cyprian,

I agree with you about the false categories in society, but Matunda and myself did not bash/fight the youth in our comments. All we are saying is that our failures are a result of bad policies and our salvation lies in good policies. It is not about race, age, ethnicity, colour, or religious creed. Dr. Martin Luther King and the ANC were successful because they fought against things they could change, i.e. bad policies that underwrote segregation. And we too must challenge the current system at the policy level. Otherwise, we will just be seeking to replace the old tyrant with a younger one, and that has absolutely no value.

The rest has been ably clarified by Ndugu Matunda.

From: Matunda Nyanchama <matunda@hotmail.com>

To: orina Nyamwamu <orinaonka@yahoo.com>; "newvisionkenya@ yahoo. com" <newvisionkenya@yahoo.com>; bidiafrika@ googlegroups. com; kamau.moses. n@gmail. com; muthoniwanyambura@ yahoo. co. uk; Kepta Ombati <kombati@akibauhaki. org>; Okiiti Omtatah <omtatah@yahoo.com>

Cc: ann.njogu@creaw. org; nkabeberi@imd- cmd. co. ke; Maina Kiai <mkiai2001@yahoo. com>

com>

Sent: Friday, May 29, 2009 7:08:49 AM

Subject: RE: PLACE OF THE YOUTH AGENDA AND SOCIAL BASE

Cyprian,

There is no fight anywhere; just points of clarification.

I have a personal take on the issue, especially as articulated with respect to age. I am sure you have heard leaders extol the young to work hard for "they are leaders of tomorrow"! The underlying message is that there is no leadership vacancy today; you will get it tomorrow.

We must nurture a culture that asks for and inculcates leadership today; those kids in schools need to lead in circumstances in which they find themselves; they need to work hard in their studies, games, and all, including leadership for they need this experience over time in order to lead at a higher level.

The shameless exploitation of our culture is also real! In days of yore elders never stole from their communities! Seers never stole or corrupted their flock as religious leaders do today! So the elders must understand that they cannot have their cake and eat it too! They can't seek deference when they neither hold nor practice values that serve the common good!

Talking of youth is also necessary to give them the confidence that they can make the necessary difference for a better future. Often, as has been seen, youth follow, get used and get dumped for selfish gain. Empowerment would enable them to critically examine what they engage in and question those things not in line with values of democracy, justice, fairness, etc. Obama new this and withresonance (mainly) youth responded that "yes we can"!

There is more! When youth energy is harnessed for common good, it can move mountains! American upheavals, that rocked the social order in many ways, was largely advanced by the youth, many that rejected the old order! Through protest (e.g. againsttheVietnam war), music (rock and roll), clothing, etc., they were able to create a "new order"!It culminated in Lyndon Johnson abandoning a run for a second term for the White House! It set consumption patterns that have become a staple of the world; and civil rights legislation that happened in the 1960s couldn't have happened without youthful energies of Malcom X, Martin Luther King Jr, among many others! They were warriors of a generation now aging!

Who is our Martin Luther King? Or Malcom X?

When Spider webs unite, they can stop a lion. - Ethiopian proverb
Another generation wasn't lost so much as undiscovered; and the whole secret, power and knowledge of their own discovery is locked within them they know it, feel it, have the whole thing in them and they cannot utter it.

Thomas Wolfe

MatundaNyanchama, e-mail: matunda@hotmail.com

Read my Blog: www.matunda.org

Visit: www.aganoconsulting.com for business information

Click here for International Scholarship Info

Date: Fri, 29 May 2009 06:13:27 -0700

From: orinaonka@yahoo.com

Subject: PLACE OF THE YOUTH AGENDA AND SOCIAL BASE

To: NewVisionKenya@yahoogroups.com; bidiafrika@googlegroups.com;

kamau.moses.n@gmail.com; muthoniwanyambura@yahoo.co.uk; kombati@akibauhaki.org; omtatah@yahoo.com; matunda@hotmail.com

CC: ann.njogu@creaw.org; nkabebere@imd-cmd.co.ke; mkiai2001@yahoo.com

There is no ideology called blackpeople. There is no ideology called minorities. There is no ideology called women. There is no ideology called the poor. Women leadership is no panacea. Black leadership is no panacea. White leadership is no panacea either. Minorities may produce a leader like Moi who ends up DOPE-ing the people (depriving, oppressing, pauperizing and exploiting the so called majority peoples). So Matunda, Omtatah and all of us are right. In fact the discussion is not whether one is right or wrong. What there is is that the majority of the people; and this is a democratic claim; who suffer under the leadership that DOPEs them must be moved in simple terms;

That is why Dr. Martin Luther did not mobilize blacks but most of the people who came to his rallies were blacks. That is why ANC is not a racially founded political party. Majority of the people who were members of the ANC were black.

Stop fighting this thing called Youth. If you are hearing what I am saying. Stop chastising the youth. Have them with you. And move them to the next level. Please hear me on this.

--- On Fri, 5/29/09, nmatunda <matunda@hotmail.com> wrote:

From: nmatunda <matunda@hotmail.com>

Subject: [NewVisionKenya] Re: Change is coming, no matter what

To: NewVisionKenya@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, May 29, 2009, 1:56 PM

Ndugu Zanguni,

This idea of age/youth/etc. seems to recur from time to time. Even Moi, in the sunset of his presidency, asked for the youth to lead! They have the energy, he said; they are less encumbered with the politics of "old", he added; they are more likely to see the world in a "new light"!

Then (it is a while back) I responded that Youth Are Not A Panacea for Kenya's problems! It has been widely quoted by many people on this debate. It was true then; it is true today! Just watch the performance of the "Young Turks" in the present parliament. They seem to be following the old, tried, tested and won out script! A script that has been tried, tested and failed!

We need a new script; and yes, the youth must be the larger component of this script. And for reasons that they have greater stakes in the future of the nation than the aged and soon-to-die off generation. It is why they have to pay greater attention to today's politics, the seedlings of the crops they will harvest in their prime!

I want to posit this: part of our problem is our culture: African culture and its deference to elders and authority is NOT good for democracy! Deference to elders was good in times of the hunter gatherer days, and ages thereafter, when experience correlated with age! Elders' experiences served societies well; the youth had to be deferent (sp) so that they could learn and perpetuate society. Moreover, those elders were also selfless and dedicated to the survival of the societies they lived in! (Question: are our elders committed to the collective good of our nation to the extent the elders of yore did?)

Respect and deference to elders served well those societies in those times now gone; it was a different world then from what we have today where knowledge is not a preserve of those that have lived long on this earth; one needs take a stroll to the library (of course we have the Internet as well!) a couple of times, and make good use of time studying! And one's knowledge expanse could leapfrog and dwarf that of elders that may be engaged in narrow, micro-focused ethnic chauvinism, corruption, etc!

And that is where, in my view, the youth MUST assert themselves: that the elders should NOT and MUST NOT dismiss them in the name of tradition. Indeed, that they have a right to be heard in the same weight as everyone else!

There is more! I read somewhere that Kenyans under 30 years of age constitute close to 65% of the voters roll! Now there it is: one needs these numbers to make real change happen, i.e. if the numbers are harnessed properly.

We need a message to the youth thus: you have bigger stakes in the nation's future; for that future to be different, we MUST do things differently (not the tried, tested and failed wayss); and you must vote for your interest here which is: a just society of fairness, equity, accountability, and true democratic governance.

Matunda Nyanchama

--- In NewVisionKenya@ yahoogroups. com, Okiya Omtatah Okoiti wrote:

>

> Wazalendo Wenza,

>

> I don't think the mess in Kenya will be cleaned using such water and soap prescriptions that see our problems as mere birthday issues. We are dealing with moral issues and the youth, just like the old, have their duty. I think we need an ideational change more than we do a mere generational one. I don't care what one's age is in politics; I am concerned about what they do in power. But if I must choose between hyenas, then I will chose an old one whose claws are blunt and teeth have fallen out. Just look at the young hyenas in our parliament today!

>

> Peace!

>

> Omtatah

>

>

>

>

> _____

> From: Arinolah E-N 2000abneo@.. .

> To: NewVisionKenya@ yahoogroups. com

> Sent: Thursday, May 28, 2009 2:33:31 PM

> Subject: Re: [NewVisionKenya] Change is coming, no matter what

>

> All

> I appreciate this post. It is the current youth to ripp them off from below. I attended a youth meeting away from home which made me proud the extend to which 'youth in KENYA' were mentioned. Yet it seem we have failed to take a step further. If Waki report tells me right, the youth energy can be an asset to generations to come.

> I am however motivated to appreciate that the power to effect change > is not necessarily monetary. What is money anyway? I have a choice to > comprehend it as a public toy. For it is the wealth of diversity, > knowledge and wisdom to combine it that matters.
> Indeed, the youth have it all we can do if we unite our wealth for > change. The change i wish to have is good governance, leadership of > integrity, one who knows she and/or he owns the tall walls (as noted > in kind by brother Matunda at a forum in attendance) on my behalf and > i can claim it back! Just a nutshell...we could have more of > discussion, focus or listening groups all over Kenya to champion our > goals. Its a time when i can confidently come back voluntarily for a > justified course. The change we wanted for such a while.
>
>
> Arinolah E-N
>
> On 5/28/09, e_mckenzi@.. . e_mckenzi@.. . wrote:
>>
>>
>> Change is coming, no matter what
>>
>> Updated 5 hr(s) 45 min(s) ago
>> Okech Kendo
>> United States Ambassador Michael E Ranneberger is among the few who >> understand the country is behind schedule for change.
>> To facilitate it, he is asking the youth to take charge of their future. To >> this crusade he has invited the civil society, reform-minded politicians and >> the media to push for change. He believes a coalition of these >> constituencies can 'force-quit' the older order.
>> The invitation to young people has particularly offended politicians who >> have used them to perpetuate themselves in power. The youth have been >> doormats, used, dumped and then forgotten once the opportunists are >> 'inside'. As the so-called youth wingers get more impoverished and >> dependent, their captors get rich and snobbish, believing they can buy >> eternity. When they return to ask for votes, it is another season of >> promises and handouts. They would then have acquired more wealth to buy >> their way in for another term, believing young people will always sing their >> song.
>> The ambassador is telling the youth to arise and challenge the old order, >> for they have nothing to lose but the chain of dependency. He is telling >> them they can change their destiny if they had the will to exploit their >> power. Across the country, young people are organising into critical study >> groups. They ask themselves why they have been cheated for this long and >> what they can do to show their abusers their power can also count.
>> But some politicians have not taken this message kindly. They are accusing >> the envoy of inciting the youth to rebel against the ancient regime. They >> say the ambassador is inciting voters against their power-wielding and >> moneyed captors. They are saying the ambassador is interfering with their >> peace-loving constituents.

>> Agent of change
>> They report he has done so in Naivasha, in Rarieda and Bungoma. At those >> reconciliation and empowerment meetings, the local MPs are not welcome >> because they incite and resist change.
>> Even young MPs who should know where Ranneberger draws his inspiration are >> suspicious of him as an agent of change.
>> Last week a group of MPs who feel the envoy is a threat to the status quo • >> with Rarieda MP Nicholas Gumbo speaking for them • raised the alarm. They >> claim the man is up to no good. They accuse him of mobilising the youth to >> agitate for constitutional and institutional reforms.
>> But what MPs call incitement is no more than a reminder to the political >> class to do what they promised. He is telling them they are running out of >> time and soon lies won't sell or liars thrive.
>> Before the 2002 General Election, young people were told they would get a >> new constitution in the first 100 days of President Kibaki's administration.
>> Once he was in State House, the tone and priorities changed. Allies would >> later say all they wanted was to "get rid of President Moi". Once that >> happened, they lost interest in a new constitution.
>> The same crowd messed up the 2005 Referendum on the draft constitution.
The
>> Bomas Draft, a product of talks at the constitutional review conference, >> became the Wako Draft • a power clique's idea of the Kenya they want.
>> On February 28 last year, the National Accord was signed with a promise of a >> new constitution within the first 12 months of the Grand Coalition's life.
>> The parties to the Accord, and Parliament, pledged to drive change.
>> Sixteen months later, there is no new constitution. Instead last week, a >> faction of Government presented a proposal on minimum reforms, with former >> Justice and Constitutional Affairs Minister Kiraitu Murungi citing the >> location of their new goalpost. The other side stuck to a call for >> comprehensive review of the moribund constitution. With the polarity discord >> continues.
>> Ranneberger says no citizen should tolerate this from leaders who pledged >> themselves to reforms. He has been on this assignment for more than a year >> now. But his push gained new momentum after Barack Obama was elected >> president in November, last year. After Obama's inauguration in January, the >> crusade gathered new impetus.
US
>> With the help of young people across the US, Obama upset the old order. The >> youth understand the message and know it is within their means to reclaim >> the future from the stranglehold of anti-change power wielders..
>> The youth were told they were being prepared for future leadership. But the >> future has been elusive, change suppressed.

>> The ambassador, an outsider, is pleading with reluctant Kenyans to do what >> is right for Kenya. He knows political leaders with too much past at the end >> of the future cannot drive change. This lot of power wielders, who have >> caused a generational jam at the top, needs a stronger force from below to >> upset their world.
>> Time is ripe for this.
>> The writer is The Standard's Managing Editor, Quality and Production.
>> kendo@...
>>
>>
>>
>>
>
>
> --
>>
>
> -----
>
> Yahoo! Groups Links
>

Windows Live helps you keep up with all your friends, in one place.

--
ARIELIZ
JB

| 29022|2009-05-30 16:15:57|Shu Tefnut|Fw: Lecture: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC
ART & ARCHITECTURE, PART I|

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Shu Tefnut

To: afrikanunity_ofharlem@yahoo.com; HERU BENNU AMEN RA ; Eugene Bennett ;
bnyee@googlegroups.com; dr.garaia@africanidea.org; friends@templehealing.com;
GatherTheFires@yahooogroups.com; happilynaturalday@yahooogroups.com; hndsupport@gmail.com;
luv4self_network@yahooogroups.com; mwananchi@yahooogroups.com; NABSE@yahooogroups.com;
nnabakyaala.afrika@gmail.com; openyourthirdeye@yahoo.com; smaitawi@yahooogroups.com;
Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com; thanubian2@yahoo.com; trueblackness@yahooogroups.com

Sent: Friday, May 22, 2009 10:04:35 PM

Subject: Lecture: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART & ARCHITECTURE, PART II

HOTEP/ GREETINGS FAMILY

BRO. HERU BENNU AMEN RA, WILL BE GIVING A LECTURE ON THE:

AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART AND ARCHITECTURE, PART II

when: June 4th, 2009

where: The Mackey Group.

103 Quincy St, near corner of Franklyn ave

in the basement,

Brooklyn, New York

time: 8pm. sharp

direction by train: 8th ave line "C" train to Franklyn ave.

THIS WILL BE A POWERPOINT PRESENTATION.

LECTURE CONTENT:

1. Development of Paleolithic cultures along the Nile River Valley, and the Great Rift Valley.

We will review Odawan,

Archulian, Tasian, Badarian, and Mustrian stone tool industries.

2. Pre-dynastic periods reviewed with a focus on early artifacts and an attempt to give a chronological perspective of the art and architecture of the Nagada I, II, and III positions in the development of the art and architecture of dynastic Egypt.

3. Kush the birth place of the Gods of ancient Kemet. The Nubian high culture and its effects on Nile valley civilization.

The foundation of art and architecture that reached its zenith in Egypt. As a result the civilizing of other cultures such as:

The Greeks, Romans, Assyrians, Babylonians, and the Hindus Kush Valleys, all of whom have benefited from the culture of the Nubians who in fact established the canons of art and architecture, and set the standards for world art history.

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "Black New Yorkers for Educational Excellence" group.

To post to this group, send email to bnyee@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send email to bnyee+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

For more options, visit this group at <http://groups.google.com/group/bnyee?hl=en>

| 29023|2009-05-30 16:16:14|odhiambo okech|Two weeks; KCDN Peace Run/Walk|
30th May 2009

Dear Friends of KCDN,

It is two weeks to the 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk. And we are at work. With your support, we want to bring to the fore the virtues of Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation. That is the theme of the event. We want to inculcate this on the minds of our children and their parents/guardians.

As we battle with logistics, I am happy to report that yesterday, we received Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Lenny Amolo in support. We had earlier confirmed video coverage from Development Through Media. Dommie, thank you.

I have also today received a telephone call from Ms Arinolah from Southern Sudan. She has sent Mr. Otieno Sungu with her contributions. I am yet to meet Mr. Sungu, though we have talked on the phone several times. Mr. Sungu has also confirmed his support and as soon as it is in, we will report. He will visit us at KCDN any time during his stay in Kenya.

I have pledges from some Friends of KCDN; Mr. Elijah Kombo, Dr Shem Ochuodho, Mr Andrew Keros, and as soon as they actualize, we will report. We are also happy with the technical support from Dr Matunda Nyanchama from Canada. He is doing a great deal of work for us from the touch line and we are in constant communication. Thank you Doc.

Lastly, we must thank the Youth of Koma who have taken the challenge to make this event a success. It is through the active participation of the youth in the process of Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation that Kenya will be liberated from those who want to perpetuate tribalism as a tool of oppression.

We must all join hands and say no to tribalism, tribalistic leaders, and in the same vein, advance the call for Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation.

Kenya is ours and we must cherish her. Kindly give us your support.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi.

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557.

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29024|2009-05-30 19:16:24|Tafari khumbaka|Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?|

oman can be related to the ammonite people(northern Syria)or the Anu or On /Annu or On Thebes/Uaset

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 5/29/09, shutefnut wrote:

From: shutefnut

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, May 29, 2009, 9:07 PM

yahoogroups. com

Hotep!

The Greco-Roman concept and transliteration of (Sol) meaning Sun, or Sun God. And that the transliteration of (Omon and Oman) Is in fact consistent with it's place of origin. that being Oman which is located in Southern Arabia. Oman was the place where the myth of Solomon, and the beautiful queen of Ethiopia vibrated. Not just because it at one time had been a colony of Ethiopia But in fact there was a very strong marriage because of it's close proximity to each other.

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

>

>

>

>

>

> i found this to be interesting that when i looked up the words to my question was amun/omon possibly the combination of the two wors Aum and Anu that i came across another word yamanu and this word seems to be the combination of Yam(sea) and Anu or the sea of anu? i then looked up the mdu ntchr for amun and it was rendered imn with the symbol above. so then i wondered about the wavy lines...does it symbolize water (yam) and couldn't figure out what the rectangular square above it was? i know the "flag" represent a neter, could that be Anu?

>

> --- On Sat, 5/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

> From: Tafari khumbaka

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: to:shutefnut, where's king solomon?

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Saturday, May 23, 2009, 2:02 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 > Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
 >
 > --- On Fri, 5/22/09, shutefnut wrote:
 >
 >
 >
 > From: shutefnut
 > Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: where's king solomon?
 > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 > Date: Friday, May 22, 2009, 8:11 PM
 >
 >
 >
 >
 > -HOTEP!
 >
 > Are we talking about Soloman, also translated Sol: meaning (Sun), and Omon: or > (Amon)?
 >
 > -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:
 >>
 >> according the a hebrew-english lexicon (crosswalk) the word was admoniy or adom referring to his light skin complexion i suppose this because in the following verses thephrase finegold is also used to refer to his complexion meaning to me that he had a yellowish red (light skin nubian) complexion?
 Another word used in those verses is Bushy. Acoording to the same lexicon the hebrew word taltal is used meaning he had wavy black(raven) hair?
 >>
 >> --- On Tue, 5/19/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:
 >>
 >>
 >> From: Tafari khumbaka
 >> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?
 >> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
 >> Date: Tuesday, May 19, 2009, 3:40 PM
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> usually theologians say because the bible calls him ruddy..... they say the hebrew word can be translated reddish .

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>>

>> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, rehal orville wrote:

>>

>>

>> From: rehal orville

>> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

>> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 11:19 PM

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> THANKS A LOT

>>

>> Who can explain how jewish priests now say Jacob, David were likely to have red hair?

>>

>> --- On Mon, 5/18/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

>>

>>

>> From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

>> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

>> Date: Monday, May 18, 2009, 12:29 PM

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >> check out:
 >> hebrew myth
 >> by Gary Greenberg
 >> -----
 >> Akhenaton
 >> by Donald Redford
 >> -----
 >> the life and times of Akhenaton
 >> by Arthur Weigall
 >> -----
 >> all the books by Ahmed Osman
 >> ----
 >> all books by Gerald Massey
 >> -----
 >> echoes of the old dark land
 >> Dr. Charles Finch
 >>
 >> -----
 >> the metaphysical bible dictionary
 >> -----
 >>
 >> the site that wassent, does an excellent job of naming AmenHetepIII as the mythical solomon,. <http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?as=35927&w=125219&d=243481>
 >>
 >>
 >>
 >> I personally take a lil bit from each writer aforementioned astoo surmise plausible plagiarism of hebrew scribe and masters.

> >

> > my personal view is:

> >

> > Akhen-Aton and Amen_hetep III and the lives of most of the 18th dynasty Kings make up the mythical life of Solomon.

> >

> > the Great Queenmother/ Royal wife of Tut-Ankh-Amen is the mythical Queen of Sheba (it's not Queen Sheba but queen of the sheba/Saba.) and her life is confused by the hebrew scribe who is also writing about Queenmother Het-Shep-Sedth of the 18th dynasty.

> >

> > Tehuti-mesh III is the mythical David of the hebrews.

> >

> > Akhen-Aton is the mythical Moses of the hebrews and the life of Joshua was taken from Ay and Hor-em-Heb.

> >

> > Akhen-Aton's life is also the life of their Moses and it is the 18th dynasty that the people called Shasu eventually become Israel come together as one people and began to create a myth for themselves separating themselves from the peoples of the region as God's chosen to inherit all the lands of the people already there.

> >

> > Many of the psalms of the bible are taken word for word from the writings of Akhen-Aton.

> > until the rise of the religion of Aton the name of God for the Shasu tribes (mercenaries of Tehuti-Mesh III) who lived in northeastern Khamit was Yvh/EL/Bel/Yah/ Daud but with the rise of Aton and during the time of Moses/Akhu-en-Aton God was then called Adon (in hbrw and khmit d and t are interchangeable) .

> >

> > in the 18th dynasty there are 5 King of kings (pharaohs) who have the name Moses=msh/mesh.

> >

> > Solomon's temple is the city of Akhet-Aton and the exodus is Akhu-En-Adonai/ Akhen-Aton run from anc. Egypt leaving to save his life with lepers/followers of Aton/Adonai, > > he left in his stead his brother {or son} Smen-khara to rule as civil ruler and himself as spiritual leader (left hoping to return).

> >

> > Akhu-n-Adonai's return was in the reign of Sethi II who was a king in the old area of Avari and Zaru-Kha the entrance into Anc.E. from the east.

> > this area was the city (Zaru-Kha) given to his mother by his father Amenhotep III, and one of his places of refuge. At the rise of King Sethi I too the position of King of kings of the two lands Akhen-Adonia returned and presented his rod of snakes that ate (poetic language) the scepters of (Pharaoh) King of kings Setdhi I.

> > Sethi I and co-ruler Ra-Mesh I are the Kings who drove the Israelite's (shasu) completely out of ancient khamit all the way to the far north with Ramesh II sealing the act with the war of Armageddon (Heru-magi-Adonai) at Ka-Desh much like a pass King of Kings Tehuti-Msh III in the same region.

>>

>> of course the the meshu=moses= moshe of the line of Msh 18 and 19 dynasty kings never got to see his promised place he promised to Israel a kingdom for them due to his Ra bloodline .

>> I would "GUESS" the son of Adonai probaly died at Sera-bit-El khadim (sera-sara-zera) where the golden calf of The Goddess Het-Hert had a temple complex .

>>

>>

>> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>>

>> --- On Sun, 5/17/09, rehal orville wrote:

>>

>>

>> From: rehal orville

>> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

>> Date: Sunday, May 17, 2009, 2:19 AM

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> I read that : /.../

>> David and Solomon are portrayed in the Bible as two of the greatest kings of the ancient world. However, no trace of their empire has ever been found in Palestine. It is a period curiously missing from the archaeological record of the region. Quoting from the book, Archaeology of the Land of the Bible, "The Bible is the only written source concerning the United Monarchy, and it is therefore the basis of any historical presentation of the period."(1) There is such a complete void of external sources that the archaeologist, author and leading authority on the era, Donald Redford, writes in frustration that "such topics as the foreign policy of David and Solomon, Solomon's trade in horses or his marriage to Pharaoh's daughter must remain themes for midrash and fictional treatment. "(2)

>> In contrast, archaeology has confirmed the reigns of all other great kings of the ancient world mentioned in the Bible, and some of the later, lesser kings of of Judah and Israel (namely, Omri, Ahab, Jehu, Pekah, Hosea, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Mannasseh, and Uzziah).(3) Conservative Biblical scholars believe that it is only a matter of time before concrete evidence of the reigns of David and Solomon is found as well. As will be discussed, concrete evidence for David and Solomon already exists, and comes from the very place one would least expect to find it.

>>

>>

>> /.../ SO who were they, can you give their Egyptian names and the links to us?

>>

>>

>> --- On Sat, 5/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>>

>>

>> From: Tafari khumbaka

>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] where's king solomon?

>> To: maatcollective@ yahooogroups. com

>> Date: Saturday, May 16, 2009, 4:07 PM

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> <http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?as=35927&w=125219&d=243481>

>> king solomon

>>

>>

>>

>> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>>

>

| 29025|2009-05-30 19:21:21|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Learning to live in the bliss|

--- On Sat, 5/30/09, Afrikannubian@aol.com wrote:

From: Afrikannubian@aol.com

Subject: Learning to live in the bliss

To: AUSAR65@aol.com

Date: Saturday, May 30, 2009, 8:01 AM

Hello Everyone,

There is a workshop call learning to live in the bliss in June. This workshop can be very transformational on many levels.

:

--- On Tue, 5/26/09, Afrikannubian@aol.com wrote:

LEARNING TO LIVE IN BLISS

June 12-14, 2009

Ipsalu Tantra Retreat Level 1

- Break through your Limitations. Uncover your Authentic Self.
- Open and surrender your self to infinite Love.
- Discover life to be spiritual and orgasmic simultaneously.
- Free and channel sexual energy to higher levels of awareness.
- Learn the Cobra Breath technique to safely activate unlimited energy.
- Ipsalu Kriya Tantra awakens sex to beauty & more.
- Learn to combine your spirituality with your sexuality.

It is joy beyond words. Most people leave the workshop immersed in bliss. You can live this way all the time by just removing the obstructions. In meditative space and flowing with primal energy, something Divine happens. You embody God. Sexual energy is a powerful tool for awakening True Self. Ipsalu Tantra gives you exquisite time-tested techniques for learning to live in bliss.

Antoinette & Richard Asimus

Founders of Tantra Heart, Level 4 Ipsalu Tantra Teachers, Senior

Teaching Faculty of Tantrika International

June 12-14, 2009 Friday 6pm thru Sunday 5:30pm

The HART Center, Memphis, Tennessee

 The Level 1 course is for singles and couples and all sexual orientations

$250 per person/$225 per person for couples includes lunch

Sat. and Sun., & a practice CD

$100 deposit holds your place in the course (remainder due May 12)

Patrick Harris ~901-483-3255, afrikannubian@aol.com, Memphis area

Gabriella ~501-563-8089, gabriella@allaboutyoga.org, Little Rock area

Cancellation Policy: Registrations are non-refundable. Some parts may be transferable with some restrictions. Ask for more details.

www.allaboutyoga.org

gabriella@allaboutyoga.org

A strong credit score is 700 or above. See Yours in Just 2 Easy Steps!

A Good Credit Score is 700 or Above. See yours in just 2 easy steps!

Dinner Made Easy Newsletter - Simple Meal Ideas for Your Family. Sign Up Now!

Discover the variety of Bisquick mix. Get Recipes & Savings Now.

A Good Credit Score is 700 or Above. See yours in just 2 easy steps!

| 29026|2009-05-31 07:11:31|Peter Gray|Re: Fw: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funera|

I agree with Alex. Attacks against Van Sertima have generally been against the very concept of diffusionism rather than his specific hypothesis. Perhaps one of his greatest contributions to the academic debate on the African presence in the Americas was his testimony as an expert witness before Congress [1987?], in which he detailed numerous written first-hand and second-hand accounts of encounters (by Spanish explorers in the Caribbean) with "Ethiopians", specifically in Darien (modern day Panama).

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: avdeelen@ziggo.nl
Date: Sat, 30 May 2009 21:27:55 +0200
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re:Fw: [TravelwithRunoko] Dr. Ivan Van Sertima's Passing and Funeral

That is sad news.

Has anyone had a chance to read and comment on his Wikipedia page?

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Ivan_Van_Sertima

Please comment and especially the 'criticisms' heading could do with a lot of work.

I'm not familiar enough with his work or specifically South America to add something sensible (although I think it is either highly likely or certain that West Africans made their way to the Americas before Columbus did).

The criticisms of his work seem to be more of an attack on 'Afrocentrism' than specific criticisms that can be examined.

Alex

Windows Live: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.
| 29027|2009-05-31 14:26:31|Asar Imhotep|Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Peace Phamily

Is there anyone of you who could lead me in the direction of any material that could shed light on how Egyptologists came to the conclusion of what signs carry what phonetic value? I am familiar with Champollion's decipherment, but I am interested in the follow-up work which decided that this means this sound and that means that sound, etc.

Can anyone help me?

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29028|2009-05-31 14:37:28|Asar Imhotep|Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound_of_meaning_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29029|2009-05-31 18:41:06|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the Nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this to be diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the Nile valley or south americans influenced by west

Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their Nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South America was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the North American, especially the Southern American people. And the Aztecs, Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially through trade with the North American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinka and the African peoples of the Canary Islands, and the Ashante/Akan, also the Roman/Berber Africans of Tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to South America and maybe North America also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound_of_meaning_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29030|2009-05-31 20:12:06|Shu Tefnut|Fw: Lecture: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART & ARCHITECTURE, PART I|

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Shu Tefnut

To: afrikanunity_ofharlem@yahoo.com; HERU BENNU AMEN RA ; Eugene Bennett ; bnyee@googlegroups.com; dr.garaia@africanidea.org; friends@templehealing.com; GatherTheFires@yahooogroups.com; happilynaturalday@yahooogroups.com; hndsupport@gmail.com; luv4self_network@yahooogroups.com; mwananchi@yahooogroups.com; NABSE@yahooogroups.com; nnabakyaala.afrika@gmail.com; openyourthirdeye@yahoo.com; smaitawi@yahooogroups.com; Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com; thanubian2@yahoo.com; trueblackness@yahooogroups.com

Sent: Friday, May 22, 2009 10:04:35 PM

Subject: Lecture: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART & ARCHITECTURE, PART II

HOTEP/ GREETINGS FAMILY

BRO. HERU BENNU AMEN RA, WILL BE GIVING A LECTURE ON THE:

AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART AND ARCHITECTURE, PART II

when: June 4th, 2009

where: The Mackey Group.

103 Quincy St, near corner of Franklynave

in the basement,

Brooklyn, New York

time: 8pm. sharp

direction by train: 8th ave line "C" train to Franklyn ave.

THIS WILL BE A POWERPOINT PRESENTATION.

LECTURE CONTENT:

1. Development of Paleolithic cultures along the Nile River Valley, and the Great Rift Valley.

We will review Odawan,

Archulian, Tasian, Badarian, and Mustrian stone tool industries.

2. Pre-dynastic periods reviewed with a focus on early artifacts and an attempt to give a chronological perspective of the art and architecture of the Nagada I, II, and III positions in the development of the art and architecture of dynastic Egypt.

3. Kush the birth place of the Gods of ancient Kemet. The Nubian high culture and its effects on Nile valley civilization.

The foundation of art and architecture that reached its zenith in Egypt. As a result the civilizing of other cultures such as:

The Greeks, Romans, Assyrians, Babylonians, and the Hindus Kush Valleys, all of whom have benefited from the culture of the Nubians who in fact established the canons of art and architecture, and set the standards for world art history.

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "Black New Yorkers for Educational Excellence" group.

To post to this group, send email to bnyee@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send email to bnyee+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

For more options, visit this group at <http://groups.google.com/group/bnyee?hl=en>

| 29031|2009-05-31 20:12:42|Mike Donovan|Re: Fw: Lecture: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF
PHARONIC ART & ARCHITECTURE, PA|

Hello Shu

As I don't live in New York, I wonder would it be possible to get hold of some of this lecture content online. I'm especially keen to get the information on the the third part, Kush the birthplace of the gods of ancient Kemet.

Many thanks.

Mike

From: Shu Tefnut

To: afrikanunity_ofharlem@yahoo.com; HERU BENNU AMEN RA ; Eugene Bennett ;
bnyee@googlegroups.com; dr.garaia@africanidea.org; friends@templehealing.com;
GatherTheFires@yahooogroups.com; happilynaturalday@yahooogroups.com; hndsupport@gmail.com;
luv4self_network@yahooogroups.com; mwananchi@yahooogroups.com; NABSE@yahooogroups.com;
nnabakyaala.afrika@gmail.com; openyourthirdeye@yahoo.com; smaitawi@yahooogroups.com;
Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com; thanubian2@yahoo.com; trueblackness@yahooogroups.com

Sent: Saturday, 30 May, 2009 9:31:55

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Fw: Lecture: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART & ARCHITECTURE, PART II

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Shu Tefnut

To: afrikanunity_ofharlem@yahoo.com; HERU BENNU AMEN RA ; Eugene Bennett ; bnyee@googlegroups.com; dr.garaia@africanidea.org; friends@templehealing.com; GatherTheFires@ yahooogroups.com; happilynaturalday@yahooogroups.com; hndsupport@gmail.com;
luv4self_network@yahooogroups.com; mwananchi@yahooogroups.com; NABSE@yahooogroups.com;
nnabakyaala.afrika@gmail.com; openyourthirdeye@yahoo.com; smaitawi@yahooogroups.com;
Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com; thanubian2@yahoo.com; trueblackness@yahooogroups.com

Sent: Friday, May 22, 2009 10:04:35 PM

Subject: Lecture: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART & ARCHITECTURE, PART II

HOTEP/ GREETINGS FAMILY

BRO. HERU BENNU AMEN RA, WILL BE GIVING A LECTURE ON THE:

AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART AND ARCHITECTURE, PART II

when: June 4th, 2009

where: The Mackey Group.

103 Quincy St, near corner of Franklynave

in the basement,

Brooklyn, New York

time: 8pm. sharp

direction by train: 8th ave line "C" train to Franklyn ave.

THIS WILL BE A POWERPOINT PRESENTATION.

LECTURE CONTENT:

1. Development of Paleolithic cultures along the Nile River Valley, and the Great Rift Valley.

We will review Odawan,

Archulian, Tasian, Badarian, and Mustrian stone tool industries.

2. Pre-dynastic periods reviewed with a focus on early artifacts and an attempt to give a chronological perspective of the art and architecture of the Nagada I, II, and III positions in the development of the art and architecture of dynastic Egypt.

3. Kush the birth place of the Gods of ancient Kemet. The Nubian high culture and its effects on Nile valley civilization.

The foundation of art and architecture that reached its zenith in Egypt. As a result the civilizing of other cultures such as:

The Greeks, Romans, Assyrians, Babylonians, and the Hindus Kush Valleys, all of whom have benefited from the culture of the Nubians who in fact established the canons of art and architecture, and set the standards for world art history.

~~~~~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "Black New Yorkers for Educational Excellence" group.

To post to this group, send email to bnyee@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send email to bnyee+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

For more options, visit this group at <http://groups.google.com/group/bnyee?hl=en>

----- ~~~~~ ----- ~~~~~ ~~~~~

| 29032|2009-05-31 20:16:19|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace Phamily

>

> Is there anyone of you who could lead me in the direction of any material that could shed light on how Egyptologists came to the conclusion of what signs carry what phonetic value? I am familiar with Champollions decyphering, but I am interested in the follow-up work which decided that this means this sound and that means that sound, etc.

>

> Can anyone help me?

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

Asar, check out this page and the following linked ones:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/ancient/egyptians/decipherment\_03.shtml

This should give you a pretty good lead on whose works to look for.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29033|2009-06-01 08:40:57|Mike Donovan|Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt|

Can anyone point me in the direction of some downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt? Also, I'm looking for a city plan for the city of Memphis circa - era of Rameses II and Merenptah.

Thanks in advance for your help.

Mike

| 29034|2009-06-01 13:54:27|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt|

The book
Hidden tombs of Memphis
by Geoffrey T. Martin
may be a good help?, read it loong time ago, forgotten whats in it( orthodox egytology) and u
may can see if Baines has a website who wrote Atlas of ancient Egypt

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Mike Donovan wrote:

From: Mike Donovan
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 5:44 AM

Can anyone point me in the direction of some downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt? Also, I'm looking for a city plan for the city of Memphis circa - era of Rameses II and Merenptah.

Thanks in advance for your help.

Mike

| 29035|2009-06-01 14:21:45|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Check out YouTube - African tribe lost in India|

Also here is a website about what those who live near or on oil drilling sites in nigeria must face daily from the army and its mercenaries .

<http://allafrica.com/stories/200906010585.html>

scroll farther down for info on Hindi-Africans , V

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, AUSAR65@aol.com wrote:

From: AUSAR65@aol.com
Subject: Check out YouTube - African tribe lost in India
To: alandas@nsightmemphis.com, godlyu productions@yahoo.com, healingbynana@yahoo.com, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 3:19 PM

YouTube - African tribe lost in India

---

An Excellent Credit Score is 750. See Yours in Just 2 Easy Steps!

| 29036|2009-06-01 15:40:51|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|the 1st christians|

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=orPuzjxU9gE>

good lecture : gnosticism 1st christians

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29037|2009-06-01 17:10:05|Asar Imhotep|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

I appreciate it Paul

However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 10:15 PM

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace Phamily

>

> Is there anyone of you who could lead me in the direction of any material that could shed light on how Egyptologists came to the conclusion of what signs carry what phonetic value? I am familiar with Champollions decyphering, but I am interested in the follow-up work which decided that this means this sound and that means that sound, etc.

>

> Can anyone help me?

>

> Asar Imhotep
> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>
>

Asar, check out this page and the following linked ones:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/ancient/egyptians/decipherment\_03.shtml

This should give you a pretty good lead on whose works to look for.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29038|2009-06-01 17:27:54|shrisahetep@sbcglobal.net|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus - www.ancientamerican.com. There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)

To:

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunic native people that are indigenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america

also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29039|2009-06-01 17:29:31|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> I appreciate it Paul

> However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

>

>

The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29040|2009-06-01 17:51:38|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29041|2009-06-01 21:35:02|Peter Gray|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

In an interview with Listervelt Middleton back in the 90s I believe, Bernal also stated that the phonetics of AE language first struck him as he was browsing through a Coptic dictionary.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net

Date: Tue, 2 Jun 2009 00:51:30 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In [Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com](mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com), Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologists decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>
> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.
>
> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

---

Hotmail goes with you. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29042|2009-06-02 07:48:05|Ferg|The Pharaoh|

Attachments :

The Pharaoh 2.pdf

Greetings all.

Hope this pdf about the name for the Pharaoh stimulates thought.

Somo

| 29043|2009-06-02 09:34:56|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

>> However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

>>

>>

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29044|2009-06-02 09:35:15|Shu Tefnut|Fw: AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART & ARCHITECTURE, PART II|

HOTEP/ GREETINGS

BRO. HERU BENNU AMEN RA, WILL BE GIVING A LECTURE ON THE:

AFRICAN ORIGINS OF PHARONIC ART AND ARCHITECTURE, PART II

when: June 4th, 2009

where: The Mackey Group.

103 Quincy St, near corner of Franklynave

in the basement,

Brooklyn, New York.

time: 8pm. sharp

direction by train: 8th ave line "C" train to Franklyn ave.

THIS WILL BE A POWERPOINT PRESENTATION.

LECTURE CONTENT:

1. Development of Paleolithic cultures along the Nile River Valley, and the Great Rift Valley. We will review Odawan, Archulian, Tasian, Badarian, and Mustrian stone tool industries.

2. Pre-dynastic periods reviewed with a focus on early artifacts and an attempt to give a chronological perspective of the art and architecture of the Nagada I, II, and III positions in the development of the art and architecture of dynastic Egypt.

3. Kush the birth place of the Gods of ancient Kemet. The Nubian high culture and its effects on Nile valley civilization.

The foundation of art and architecture that reached its zenith in Egypt. As a result the civilizing of other cultures such as:

The Greeks, Romans, Assyrians, Babylonians, and the Hindus Kush Valleys, all of whom have benefited from the culture of the Nubians who in fact established the canons of art and architecture, and set the STANDARD for world art history.

PICT0005.JPG

| 29045|2009-06-02 09:36:41|clyde winters|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Hi Asar

The values for Egyptian have changed because our knowledge of Coptic has changed. In the beginning Champollion found that you could interpret Egyptian using the Greek phonetic values. as a result, he probably attempted to interpret Egyptian by looking for words in Coptic, that matched the Greek phonemics.

As Egyptologist knowledge of Coptic advanced researchers abandoned the use of Greek phonemics to interpret Egyptian lexical items. Instead of using Greek phonemics, Coptic phonemics were used which led to resulting changes in how Egyptian words were interpreted in Champollion's day and today. This is why no Egyptologist interested in the Egyptian language would study the language without first gaining a background in Coptic.

In summary, phonemics values of Egyptian have changed because they agree with Coptic, the cognate language of ancient Egyptian.

Clyde

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 7:08 PM

I appreciate it Paul

However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 10:15 PM

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace Phamily

>

> Is there anyone of you who could lead me in the direction of any material that could shed light on how Egyptologists came to the conclusion of what signs carry what phonetic value? I am familiar with Champollions decypherment, but I am interested in the follow-up work which decided that this means this sound and that means that sound, etc.

>

> Can anyone help me?

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

Asar, check out this page and the following linked ones:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/ancient/egyptians/decipherment\_03.shtml

This should give you a pretty good lead on whose works to look for.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29046|2009-06-02 14:58:15|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

Ive read The lost treasure of King Juba.,

and i find a lot of conjecture and assumptions, and just because someone builds a pyramid doesn't mean that Ancient Egyptians told them how to do it.

i also checked out site u sent.

thanks

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, shrisahetep@sbcglobal.net wrote:

From: shrisahetep@sbcglobal.net

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 6:02 AM

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus - www.ancientamerican.com. There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)

To:

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to sc america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mis ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north americ they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusio way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced b Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of tl canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since the the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north am also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups.com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29047|2009-06-02 16:20:07|Tafari khumbaka|Re: The Pharaoh [1 Attachment] tua!, great work,. only thing i would say as a criticism is the f sound was "probaly" used in different times at different places ,as Diop has shown the woloff use a f sound also.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Ferg wrote:

From: Ferg
Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 9:47 AM

Greetings all.
Hope this pdf about the name for the Pharaoh stimulates thought.
Somo

| 29048|2009-06-03 12:07:19|Tafari khumbaka|tuesday pick me up!|

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KQG0LNiRjf4&eurl=http%3A%2F%2Fwww%2Eyoutube%2Ecom%2Fuser%2Fidamawatu&feature=player\_embedded

click above

a good afternoon pick me up!, NJOY!

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29049|2009-06-03 12:11:34|cristofori whitakara|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29050|2009-06-03 12:14:17|odhiambo okech|The Administration Police Band|
3rd June 2009

Dear Friends of KCDN,

It is 10 days to the hosting of the 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk, and we can now confirm that the Administration Police Band will lead the KCDN Peace Run/Walk on the 13th June 2009. We also thank Mr. Elijah Kombo for the Mpesa support that he sent to us today.

And this is how we are placed;

- 1] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Lenny Amolo of AIG Kenya Ltd.
- 2] Kshs 10,000.00 from Mr. Eric Jangolo of Barclays Bank, [strictly for our rent].
- 3] Kshs 2,800.00 from Mr. Elijah Kombo.
- 4] Video Coverage from Dommie Yambo- Development Through Media.
- 5] 10 balls [5-football, 5 netball] from Text Book Centre Ltd.
- 6] Administration Police Band has confirmed their participation.

Our budget is still far from being met and we appeal to all those who would want to support the hosting of this event to kindly send in their support by Friday. We have Friends who have pledged their support and we are optimistic that we will receive the same before Friday 5th June. It will enable us to plan adequately with what we have.

We need some T-shirts, banners, placards, manila papers, paper caps, tents, chairs, PA system, skipping ropes, buckets, copies and many other items that will enrich our day. We will also need some water, first aid, etc. If we can make these confirmations and receipts by Friday 5th June, we will be able to sort ourselves out.

Lastly, we must thank the Youth of Koma who have taken the challenge to make this event a success in terms of helping with the organization. It is through the active participation of the youth in the process of Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation that Kenya will be liberated from those who want to perpetuate tribalism as a tool of oppression.

We must all join hands and say no to tribalism, tribalistic leaders, and in the same vein, advance the cause for Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation.

Kenya is ours and we must cherish her. Kindly give us your support.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi.

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557.

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29051|2009-06-03 12:15:28|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind.I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially withGreek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala L.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>
> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:
> >
> > I appreciate it Paul
> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.
> >
> >
> >
> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.
>
> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 29052|2009-06-03 13:08:21|Ginger Daniels|Re: The Pharaoh|
Can you forward the attachment please? It did not come through. Thank you.

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com
Date: Tue, 2 Jun 2009 16:18:58 -0700
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh

tua!, great work,. only thing i would say as a criticism is the f sound was "probaly" used in different times at different places ,as Diop has shown the woloff use a f sound also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Ferg wrote:

From: Ferg
Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 9:47 AM

Greetings all.
Hope this pdf about the name for the Pharaoh stimulates thought.
Somo

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29053|2009-06-03 13:22:58|Mike Donovan|Re: Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt|
Tafari

Thank you very much for your help. The Baines atlas especially, seems like it will probably be exactly what I want.

Thanks once again.

Mike

---

From: Tafari khumbaka
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Sent: Tuesday, 2 June, 2009 3:54:23
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt

The book
Hidden tombs of Memphis
by Geoffrey T. Martin
may be a good help?, read it loong time ago, forgotten whats in it( orthodox egytology) and u
may can see if Baines has a website who wrote Atlas of ancient Egypt

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Mike Donovan wrote:

From: Mike Donovan
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 5:44 AM

Can anyone point me in the direction of some downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt? Also, I'm looking for a city plan for the city of Memphis circa - era of Rameses II and Merenptah.

Thanks in advance for your help.

Mike

| 29054|2009-06-03 13:58:12|Shri Sa Hetep|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

"My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indogenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors."

Your views can also be looked at as conjecture and assumptions. Unless you can produce evidence and artifacts to the contrary. In terms of who built the Pyramids in North America, great effort is taken to cover up the fact that the USA does indeed have pyramids - Not mounds. Once that fact is accepted, and not hidden from everyone, then the pyramids builders can be discussed. There is nothing wrong with Ancient Egyptians voyaging to Ancient North America and building pyramids. Evidence of this fact has been suppressed for centuries.

Maybe you are comfortable with the notion that Chris Columbus discovered America...

Here are some links to show pyramids in North America:

http://www.crystalinks.com/united\_states.html
<http://www.crystalinks.com/pyrnorthamerica.html>

As well as Pyramids worldwide:

<http://www.crystalinks.com/pyramids.html>

Peace,
Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 4:57 PM

Ive read The lost treasure of King Juba., and i find a lot of conjecture and assumptions, and just because someone builds a pyramid
does'nt mean that Ancient egyptians told them how to do it.
i also checked out site u sent.
thanks

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net wrote:

From: shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 6:02 AM

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus - www.ancientamerican .com. There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep
Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)

To:

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

[http://www.earthmat rix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf](http://www.earthmat rix.com/sound_of_meaning_two.pdf)

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimho tep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29055|2009-06-03 14:55:58|Asar Imhotep|Re: The Pharaoh [1 Attachment]|
Good work

I am going to give a formal response tonight.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU

---

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Ferg wrote:

From: Ferg
Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 9:47 AM

Greetings all.
Hope this pdf about the name for the Pharaoh stimulates thought.
Somo

| 29056|2009-06-03 14:59:00|Michael Bayman|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

R A Jairazbhoy's book Rameses III Father of Ancient America...Out of print book occassionally available on amazon. Good book. Our ancestor,

Dr. Ivan: Van-Sertima apparently goes after Rafiq-A-Jairazbhoy in the book = They Came Before Columbus only to 'clarify' his position in the book = African Presence In Early America.

Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch's: paperback-copy, fell apart years ago from constant usage as a reference:

" I acquired a copy from A&B 20: Earthyears ago. It was a short read which is one reason as to why I read it eleventy times (He laughs). I used to carry it with me in the 'suitcase' I was notorious for and would pull it out along with They Came Before Columbus, Golden Age Of The Moors and wear folks out. It was par for the course that I make presentations about His-Majesty: Rameses III looking for the entrance into the after world referred to as the place where the sun sets between the twin mountain peaks as described in Jairazboy's: book.Training-Classes: 2-1, 2-2, 2-3, and 2-4 were the only classes where I covered that material. By the time we commenced the G.I.A. (General-Information-Agency) Nationals: Basic-Training-Class: 1-1, my little book fell apart as the pages began to fall out. Eventually it came apart altogether. It was thrown out mistakenly duringa move from one location unto another as it was thought to be trash. Needless to say I was not happy. Keep in mind this was before the days of amazon.com, ebay, craigslist and all of those web based options. Now you can contract a party that could be (supposedly)doing business with a "strawparty"togo online and acquire a copy on occassion as I have been informed of this by my long time Nationals (students and staff), For this reason you find the booklisted in our book list therein the F.Y.I. flyers that Admissions dispatches for distribution".

---

From: "shrisahetep@sbcglobal.net"

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Monday, June 1, 2009 7:02:56 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus - www.ancientamerican .com. There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)

To:

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the Nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the Nile valley or south americans influenced by west

Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their Nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South America was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the North American, especially the Southern American people. And the Aztecs, Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially through trade with the North American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinka and the African peoples of the Canary Islands, and the Ashante/Akan, . also the Roman/Berber Africans of Tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to South America and maybe North America also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahooogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com/>

BANTU

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29057|2009-06-03 15:06:00|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my "already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled California?.

All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australian aboriginees chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it without AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks atthe A.E. teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E. in north amer. and australiathere is not a lot of proof for such an assertion.

i haveyet to read The black discovery of america by. M.Bradley

an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to sc america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mis ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north americ they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusio: way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced b Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of tl canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north am also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

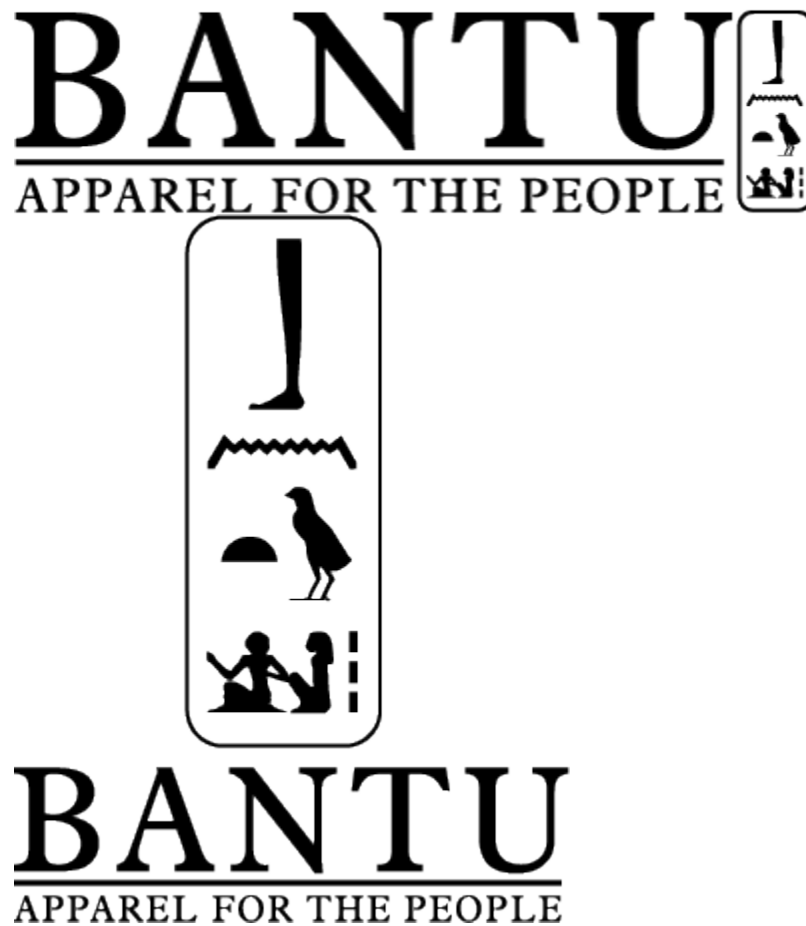

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29058|2009-06-03 15:15:20|Asar Imhotep|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|
Peace Dr. Winters

Thanks for your response. What I am trying to figure out is why would the Africans abandon scripts they have been using for over 3000 years? It makes no sense to have scripts that are adequate to convey messages in your own language to abandon them for the Greek letters.

If the ancient Egyptians can come up with over 800 glyphs, would it be impossible for them to simply create 5 to 8 more glyphs for the vowel sounds? It just doesn't make sense. My hunch is that the creators of the Coptic script weren't Egyptian. Why would you use a foreign script, although we know its Khananu, to write in your own language, when all you had to do was create about 5 more glyphs? When I compare some of the lexical items of Coptic and other African languages, it lacks an African character which I can't put into words. In Coptic you have definite and indefinite articles which middle Egyptian doesn't have which tells me that it was adapted in such a way as to communicate with non-African.

If there are efforts today to "revitalize" the language, wouldn't that mean that the language, as originally spoken died out, which means that they really don't know 100% how the language sounds? If that is true, then what does that say about the phonemics of Egyptian, if it is based on a language scholars are still trying to piece together? I don't know, just questions.

Also,

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

---

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 7:42 AM

Hi Asar

The values for Egyptian have changed because our knowledge of Coptic has changed. In the beginning Champollion found that you could interpret Egyptian using the Greek phonetic values. as a result, he probably attempted to interpret Egyptian by looking for words in Coptic, that matched the Greek phonemics.

As Egyptologist knowledge of Coptic advanced researchers abandoned the use of Greek phonemics to interpret Egyptian lexical items. Instead of using Greek phonemics, Coptic phonemics were used which led to resulting changes in how Egyptian words were interpreted in Champollion's day and today. This is why no Egyptologist interested in the Egyptian language would study the language without first gaining a background in Coptic.

In summary, phonemics values of Egyptian have changed because they agree with Coptic, the cognate language of ancient Egyptian.

Clyde

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 7:08 PM

I appreciate it Paul

However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 10:15 PM

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace Phamily

>

> Is there anyone of you who could lead me in the direction of any material that could shed light on how Egyptologists came to the conclusion of what signs carry what phonetic value? I am familiar with Champollions decyphermment, but I am interested in the follow-up work which decided that this means this sound and that means that sound, etc.

>

> Can anyone help me?

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

Asar, check out this page and the following linked ones:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/ancient/egyptians/decipherment\_03.shtml

This should give you a pretty good lead on whose works to look for.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29059|2009-06-03 15:32:33|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

comfortable with cristobol columbus?/.....

Thanks for the sites u sent, i will view a couple ,please know i appreciate your research. sometimes writing will not convey intent....

Typing,,,, typingisnt easy for me,. so if i was abrupt in my 1st correspondence please forgive my lack of skills and method .

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 8:44 PM

"My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indigenous to the Mississippi, Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people. If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the Nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this to be diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the Nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of Nile valley brethren and ancestors."

Your views can also be looked at as conjecture and assumptions. Unless you can produce evidence and artifacts to the contrary. In terms of who built the Pyramids in North America, great effort is taken to cover up the fact that the USA does indeed have pyramids - Not mounds. Once that fact is accepted, and not hid from everyone, then the pyramids builders can be discussed. There is nothing wrong with Ancient Egyptians voyaging to Ancient North America and building pyramids. Evidence of this fact has been suppressed for centuries.

Maybe you are comfortable with the notion that Chris Columbus discovered America...

Here are some links to show pyramids in North America:

http://www.crystalinks.com/united\_states.html
<http://www.crystalinks.com/pyrnorthamerica.html>

As well as Pyramids worldwide:

<http://www.crystalinks.com/pyramids.html>

Peace,
Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 4:57 PM

Ive read The lost treasure of King Juba.,
and i find a lot of conjecture and assumptions, and just because someone builds a pyramid
does'nt mean that Ancient egyptians told them how to do it.
i also checked out site u sent.
thanks

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net wrote:

From: shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 6:02 AM

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus -
www.ancientamerican .com. There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep
Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)

To:

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi
,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29060|2009-06-03 15:34:55|cristofori whitakara|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

this is too similiar to be an accident or coincident. what language families do the native american words come from?

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 5:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

---

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29061|2009-06-03 15:53:56|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> If there are efforts today to "revitalize" the language, wouldn't that mean that the language, as originally spoken died out, which means that they really don't know 100% how the language sounds? If that is true, then what does that say about the phonemics of Egyptian, if it is based on a language scholars are still trying to piece together? I don't know, just questions.

>

>

Asar, one dialect of Coptic -- Bohairic -- continues to be "spoken" as a liturgical language of the Egyptian Orthodox Church. So they have some living knowledge of the sound system.

Sounds that were not present in the Greek alphabet were imported into the Coptic script from the Demotic script -- about half a dozen characters.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29062|2009-06-03 16:43:09|Art Vandalay|Fw: A Film to Help Black Boys/Young Men|

Every parent, teacher, counselor, guardian and young person should see this! Excellent!!! Let's spread the word!

Arthur

Dear Friends,

Today 1 in 15 Black men are incarcerated, 1 out of 3 Black boys born this decade will do time in prison, 70% of Black children grow up without a father in the home, etc... many of us know the statistics.

Over the past 18 months, we have shown our film For Our Sons to thousands of people across the country (and abroad), from Atlanta, Bermuda, California and Chicago, to DC, Ghana (Africa), New Jersey and throughout the 5 Boroughs that make up New York City.

It is clear from the high praise that it has received and the inspiration that it has produced that this film needs to be seen by a larger audience.

Go to the For Our Sons website and order the Free DVD: foroursons.com or 4oursons.com

Help us spread the word! Show it to the people in your lives, particularly our young people. Please share this email with your friends, families, colleagues and networks.

Eric K. McKay

| 29063|2009-06-03 18:15:59|appiusclaudiuspriscus|Nubians predicted 2012: here's the math|
Arcturus in 4328 BC Egypt: Hermetic knowledge

by Joseph C. Keller, M. D.

May 19, 2009; last revision May 31, 2009

Sec. 1. Calendars.

The calendar of every civilization changes. Our calendar changed (Julian to Gregorian) in 1582AD, skipping ten days and introducing a more complicated leap year formula. Julius Caesar changed our calendar much more. Because calendars change, king lists with reign lengths always have supplemented the calendar.

Our year basically starts at the winter solstice, though off by eleven days. The ancient Greek year explicitly started anew at every summer solstice, with Year 1, of the first four-year "Olympiad", occurring in 776BC.

The Egyptian calendar had features enabling it to preserve dates for millenia. One of these features was that the day count, instead of being corrected by a complicated leap-day formula to fit the tropical year, either started anew in each tropical year (what I call the "tropical calendar"; basically it was like our ordinary calendar), or remained simply 365, ignoring discrepancy with the tropical year (what I call the "365-day calendar"; basically it did the job of today's astronomical Julian Date). This gave two different calendars which could correct each other. The phase between the two different "years" is a kind of year count.

Another Egyptian feature was that the dates of "heliacal" rising of bright stars (dates of risings nearest sunrise) including at least Arcturus, Canopus, Sirius and Procyon, were recorded, alongside the 365-day calendar date or tropical date, and reign years. For a star on the ecliptic (with zero proper motion), this would be the same as recording the phase between the 365-day year and sidereal year; the phase of the 365-day year would shift with period 1425yr. For a star at the ecliptic pole, the tropical date of heliacal rising would be constant; heliacal rising, like tropical date, would shift relative to the 365-day year, with period 1508yr.

The heliacal rising of Canopus is used in calendars even today:

"?claims Allen, [Canopus] was known as Karbana in the writings of an Egyptian priestly poet in the time of [Thutmose III]?"

"?Allen claimed that the heliacal rising of Canopus `even now [1899] used in computing their [the Arabs'] year,?"

- Fred Schaaf, "The Brightest Stars", pp. 107, 109 (Google book online)

"In the Gulf region the Canopus calendar,?10-day units from the late summer heliacal rising of Canopus, has long been a traditional calendrical system for Bedouins and sailors."

- Gary D. Thompson, 2007-2009 (online, members.optusnet.com.au)

Stars far from the ecliptic (e.g., Arcturus and Canopus) rise far from the point of sunrise, thus are easier to see at sunrise. Arcturus about equals Vega in brightness, i.e. "Visual magnitude" (some sources, e.g. the 1997 Pulkovo Spectrophotometric catalog, say Vega is brightest, some, e.g. the 5th ed. Bright Star Catalog, Arcturus; the slight difference depends on photometric details) but Arcturus' orange color penetrates better than Vega's blue-white, when observed at low altitude angle. Stars near the equator also might rise far from the sun if near the tropic opposite the sun (e.g., Sirius).

The ancient Egyptians had two calendars. One calendar had three seasons of four lunar months each, alternating 30 and 29 days, so the average would equal the synodic lunar month. Apparently the first day of the third season ("summer") was set at the summer solstice. There would have been eleven, or sometimes twelve extra days at the end. I call this the "tropical calendar" because it's based on the solstice (Tropics of Cancer & Capricorn).

The other calendar, apparently, was structured the same as the first, but always with a total of 365 days, whatever the current summer solstice date. I call this the "365-day calendar". The first day of this calendar was "1 Thoth" (see OA Toffteen, "Ancient Chronology", p. 180; online Google book), which shifted around the tropical year with period 1508 yrs, assuming today's tropical year of 365.24219 days. The length of the tropical year is nearly constant, because under perturbation, an orbit's major axis distance is stable to third order (conjecture of Lagrange & Poisson, proved by Tisserand) and also because Earth's precession rate has only higher-order dependency, on Earth's or Luna's small eccentricity or on Earth's nearly constant axial tilt.

Sec. 2. Finding the solstice.

The Alexandrian calendar (26/25BC; its first leap year was 22BC) of Augustus, was a Julian calendar for Egyptians. With its leap year, it fixed the old "1 Thoth" New Year of the ancient Egyptian 365-day calendar, at August 29 of the Julian calendar.

The Council of Nicaea, 325 AD, which deliberated the date of Easter, considered March 21 to be the spring equinox, hence December 21 the winter solstice. Perhaps surprisingly, this was not shifted the expected two days (one day per 128 yr) earlier than Ptolemy's winter solstice date, current in the 2nd century AD. Ptolemy (the astronomer) said, the Egyptian calendar day, 26 Choiak, is the winter solstice (James Evans, "The History and Practice of Ancient Astronomy", p. 180; online Google book). Because 1 Thoth had been standardized to August 29, 26 Choiak was December 21 (recalling that the 1st & 3rd months of any four-month Egyptian season had 30d, and the 2nd & 4th, 29).

The Julian calendar (45BC) suffered some irregular extra days at first. Wikipedia's article, "Julian Calendar", says:

"the [Roman] pontifices added a leap day every three years, instead of every four years. According to Macrobius, the error was the result of counting inclusively, so that the four-year cycle was considered as including both the first and fourth years. This resulted in too many leap days. Augustus remedied this discrepancy after 36 years by restoring the correct frequency. He also skipped several leap days in order to realign the year. The historic sequence of leap years in this period is not given explicitly by any ancient source, although the existence of the triennial leap year cycle is confirmed by an inscription that dates from 9 or 8 BC. The chronologist Joseph Scaliger established in 1583 that the Augustan reform was instituted in 8 BC, and inferred that the sequence of leap years was 42, 39, 36, 33, 30, 27, 24, 21, 18, 15, 12, 9 BC, AD 8, 12 etc. This proposal is still the most widely accepted solution."

Between 22.0 BC and 11.0 AD (after which, leap years were correct) there were 6 Julian calendar leap days instead of the necessary  $(22+11-1)/4 = 8$ . The Alexandrian calendar would have had to keep pace with the Julian calendar.

Ptolemy wrote a little later than 128yr (the time for the Julian calendar's equinox to lag a day) after the adoption of the Alexandrian calendar, so the equinox in 22BC would have been dated a net  $8-6-1=1$  days earlier than Ptolemy's, i.e., March 20, so the solstice was, most likely, June 21 (considering the effect of Earth's orbital eccentricity). Since the first leap year in the Alexandrian calendar was 22BC, it would be most accurate to consider August 29 of  $(22+4/2)=24$ BC, as 69d past the solstice.

Sec. 3. Finding "1 Thoth".

Most authors list only the three main "Sothic dates" (those of Sesostris III, Amenhotep I, and Thutmose III), though Brein (2000) lists six. One of the three main "Sothic dates" (so-called because Prof. Eduard Meyer, of the Univ. of Berlin, hypothesized in 1904 that they pertained to Sirius; which indeed one does) is:

(Ebers papyrus) Year 9 of the reign of 18th Dynasty (New Kingdom) Pharaoh Amenhotep I. It is the 9th day of the 3rd month of summer (i.e. 3rd season), i.e. 11th month of the Egyptian year.

If this refers to what I call the "tropical calendar", and if the first day of the summer season had been adjusted to be on the solstice, then Amenhotep's date is  $30+29+(9-1) = 67\text{d}$  past the solstice. In Sec. 2, I found that 1 Thoth in 24BC, was 69d past the summer solstice, when 1 Thoth was fixed by the Alexandrian calendar. Eight years earlier than Amenhotep's date, 1 Thoth would have been 69d past the solstice, if Amenhotep's date is 1 Thoth. (Amenhotep I was the pharaoh, who decided to stop building pyramids, and instead cut tombs into rock cliffs.)

According to Damien Mackey, the 4th century AD Alexandrian astronomer Theon (father of the famous pagan martyr Hypatia) said that the Alexandrian calendar began (approximately) at the end of a cycle of some kind. Now we know, what that cycle was. It was the 1508yr cycle of the Egyptian 365-day year vs. the tropical year. Amenhotep's date is 1 Thoth, in approximately the year  $24+1508-8 = 1524\text{BC}$  (so Amenhotep I's reign started 1532BC). Indeed it was recorded as "New Year's festival?the heliacal rising of the Sirius [Mistranslated? Should say Arcturus? - JK] star." (Toffteen, p. 179). This year is comparable to the other estimates of Amenhotep's antiquity made by Egyptologists.

Sec. 4. Amenhotep I, Nabta, Giza and the heliacal risings of Arcturus.

Neglecting Earth's orbital eccentricity, the sun's ecliptic longitude (in the "coordinates of the ecliptic of date") on Amenhotep's date, would be  $90+67*360/365.25 = 156.0$ . To correct for eccentricity, I find Earth's longitude of perihelion at 103 (today's value) -  $(2000+1524)*(1/25785 + 1/112000) * 360 = 42$ . The eccentricity correction to the sun's longitude is, by Simpson's rule,

$$(156-90)*2*0.017*(\cos(90+42)/6+\cos(90+42-66)/6+\cos(90+42-33)/1.5) = -0.3\text{deg}$$

and the corrected longitude is 155.7.

The Egyptians are said to have observed the stars, from observatories in Memphis and Heliopolis (both near Giza, 29.979N), from the desert near Hierakonpolis, from Thebes, from various shrines in upper Egypt, and from Elephantine Island. I'll start by assuming it's Elephantine Island: that was an important commercial, military and religious site during the New Kingdom, and it's on the Tropic of Cancer (exactly so, at ~ 4000BC, according to the formula in the 1990 Astronomical Almanac). Considering refraction, and measuring to the top of the sun disk, in

1524BC at Elephantine I., 24.1N, the apparent heliacal rising of Arcturus would occur with the sun at longitude 153.16, 2.5deg too little. (The details of my calculation are in Sec. 9.)

My calculated difference in Arcturus' heliacal rising at Giza vs. Elephantine, in 1524BC, is -5.01 degrees of sun longitude, for the +5.88 degrees of latitude separation on the ground. So, moving 1.60 degrees farther south, would change the sun's longitude at the heliacal rising, from 153.16 to 154.52; only a day before 1 Thoth. So, Egyptian astronomers consistently made this observation from a point about 1.6 degrees of latitude south of Elephantine, near the northern edge of the Nubian desert: namely, Nabta, 22.5N (warning: the Nature article describing Nabta, though excellent in substance and highly recommended overall, contains some numerical errors involving an erroneous distance scale on their main map).

The farther south the observer, the more vertical the rising of the sun and Arcturus, so the smaller the gross or net effects of atmospheric refraction. The Nabta megaliths are a Stonehenge-like structure, dated 4000-4500BC, over a mile in size, whose alignment even now displays sometimes as good as one-arcminute accuracy.

Thus for Amenhotep the cycle is marked, not by the seasons, but by a kind of sidereal year based on one star: not Sirius as for the Sothic year of Eduard Meyer, but the "Arcturian year". Expressing the sun's longitude at heliacal rising, as a quadratic function of time (and assuming the Egyptians made no refraction correction, nor did Arcturus' proper motion change), and integrating, I find that Arcturus' heliacal rising, on 1 Thoth, two cycles before Amenhotep, was 4328BC, if the observation was made at Nabta.

Because of Arcturus' large southward proper motion, the two cycles before Amenhotep average a mere 1402yr apiece. The match, to what follows, is precise enough to prove that Arcturus' average proper motion was about the same from 4328BC to 1524BC, as from 1524BC to 2000AD, and as today at 2000AD. This "Year 1" is 6339yr before 2012 (see Sec. 8).

I find that the heliacal rising of Arcturus from Giza (not Elephantine I.) at 4328BC occurred with the sun at longitude 90.19, assuming the Egyptians used the top of the sun and made no refraction correction. The heliacal rising of Canopus from Elephantine in the same year, was with the sun at longitude 90.32. If the Egyptians had used the center of the sun, both these longitudes would be ~ 1/4 deg less: that is, in the founding year of the Egyptian calendar, on the summer solstice, Arcturus rose heliacally on-center with the sun, on the 30N parallel, and Canopus rose heliacally on-center with the sun, on the Tropic of Cancer.

At 4328BC, the sun longitude at heliacal rising for Arcturus differed 10 deg between Upper and Lower Egypt; Canopus differed 20deg. Upper Egypt apparently avoided this latitude-associated ambiguity altogether, by making their calendar's Day 1 (1 Thoth), simply the heliacal rising of Arcturus at Nabta, 14 days after the summer solstice.

Sec. 5. Sesostri III and the heliacal rising of Procyon.

Generally, any bright star will rise heliacally nearest 1 Thoth, only for four consecutive years, about every 1400 or 1500 yr. There are only a few convenient first-magnitude stars: some are too near the ecliptic, in the sun's glare; and at any epoch of precession, some are too far south ever to rise in Egypt. Hence some observations would be made on days of the 365-day calendar, other than 1 Thoth.

The earliest of the three main known "Sothic dates" is:

(Kahun papyrus, a.k.a. Lahun papyrus) Year 7 of the reign of 12th Dynasty (Middle Kingdom) Pharaoh Sesostri III. It is the 16th day of the 4th month of "winter" (i.e. 2nd season), i.e. 8th month of the Egyptian year.

Suppose this observation were made, not on any special day (like 1 Thoth) of the 365-day calendar, but rather at a special epoch, namely, when 1 Pachons, the eventual nominal first day of summer of the 365-day calendar, fell on the summer solstice. (Likewise our Christmas Day falls on the eventual nominal first day of winter as fixed in the Alexandrian calendar: 1 Tybi = 1 Thoth +  $4 \times 29.5\text{d}$  = August 29 + 118d = December 25.) Sesostri's 1 Thoth would be  $4 \times 29.5 + (365 - 12 \times 29.5) = 129\text{d}$  past the summer solstice. So, by comparison with Amenhotep, the year of Sesostri's "Sothic" (or rather, Procyonic) date is  $1524 + (129 - 67)/365.25 \times 1508 = 1780\text{BC}$  (so, the reign of Sesostri III began 1786BC). This is a century later than usually supposed, but Egyptologists think Middle Kingdom dates are uncertain anyway, and they largely have been based on the supposed Sirius risings, which the research in this article supplants.

Suppose that, like Amenhotep's date given in the Ebers papyrus, Sesostri's date given in the Kahun papyrus, is a tropical date with 1 Pachons set to the summer solstice. The date would be  $(29 + 1 - 16) = 14\text{d}$  before the summer solstice. Neglecting Earth's orbital eccentricity, the sun's ecliptic longitude (in the "coordinates of the ecliptic of date") on this date, would be  $90 - 14 \times 360/365 = 76.2$ . To correct for eccentricity, find Earth's longitude of perihelion at 103 (today's value) -  $(2000 + 1780) \times (1/25785 \text{ for equinox precession} + 1/112000 \text{ for perihelion advance}) \times 360 = 38$ .  $\cos(76 + 14/2 - 180 - 38) \times 2 \times 0.017 \times 13.8 = -0.3$ , so the corrected longitude is 76.5.

From Elephantine I., the sun's longitude at the apparent (top, of sun, at horizon) heliacal rising of Procyon, for 1780BC, is 74.52deg. Interpolating the year, in the table at the end of Sec. 9, the difference Giza - Elephantine is 2.41, so for Cynopolis at 28.30N (see Sec. 6) the heliacal rising of Procyon in 1780BC occurs when the sun's longitude is 76.24.

Sec. 6. Thutmose III and the heliacal rising of Sirius.

The latest of the three main "Sothic dates" is:

Year ? (the reign year has been broken off the tablet, according to Toffteen, p. 181) of the reign of 18th Dynasty (New Kingdom) Pharaoh Thutmose III. It is the 28th day of the 3rd month of "summer" (i.e. 3rd season), i.e. 11th month of the Egyptian year.

Toffteen translates the text as "Sirius festival". This time, the star really was Sirius, if the date refers not to the tropical calendar (as for the other two main Sothic dates) but instead, to the shifting 365-day calendar. (The same emendation might repair the two contradictory lunar dates from this reign, which have produced three schools of thought among Egyptologists, that Thutmose III's 54-year reign began 1504, 1490 or 1479BC. See RE Parker, JNES 16:39+, 1957, cited by LW Casperson, "The Lunar Dates of Thutmose III", in the JSTOR online archives; and, Cline & O'Connor, "Thutmose III", Google book online.)

This Sothic date is about 1422BC (more precisely, 1424BC; see below): it is  $29.5 \times 10 + 27 = 322$ d past, not the the first day of the tropical calendar, but rather, past 1 Thoth. In turn, 1 Thoth is  $67 - (1524 - 1422) / 1508 \times 365.25$ d past the summer solstice, so Thutmose's date is net 364.3d past the summer solstice, and the sun is at longitude 89.1.

Luckily, near this century, the longitude of the sun, at the heliacal rising of Sirius, is practically independent of latitude in Egypt. For Giza in 1422BC it's 89.66 and at Elephantine, 89.69. This date in 1422BC is a heliacal rising of Sirius on the summer solstice throughout Egypt, an event even rarer than the heliacal rising of Arcturus on the summer solstice on the 30N parallel in 4328BC.

This heliacal rising of Sirius was recorded so carefully, in part because it occurred on the solstice, and because it was simultaneous throughout Egypt; but, those both are conditions that last about a century (due to the small difference between the tropical and sidereal years). Unlike the 4328BC rising of Arcturus, Thutmose's date is decades away from exact coincidence, of heliacal rising with solstice, anywhere in Egypt.

Like Amenhotep's rising of Arcturus, Thutmose's rising of Sirius was recorded because it occurred on the shifting 365-day calendar date, of the heliacal rising of Sirius somewhere in Egypt in the foundation year 4328BC. Using the same quadratic approximation and integral calculus method as for Arcturus, I find that for Giza observations, two Sothic cycles before this 1422BC rising, would be 4338BC (  $2 \times$  average 1458 yr Sothic cycles ago). For Elephantine, I find 4302BC (  $2 \times$  average 1440 yr Sothic cycles ago). By interpolation, consistency with the 4328BC founding date, occurs for an original "Dog Star" observatory at 28.35N.

Indeed the latitude of Cynopolis (literally "Dog City")(Egyptian name: Hardai) is  $28^{\circ}18' = 28.30^{\circ}$  N (Rawlinson, "History of Ancient Egypt", p. 16; online Google book). This was the city of the divine jackal Anubis and his wife Anput. It had a cemetery for dogs. It is said to be the original breeding site of dogs like the Great Dane.

When integrating the shift, in days, of the 365-day year, I simply multiply the change in sun longitude of the star's heliacal rising, by  $365.25/360$ . For Arcturus, the eccentricity correction needed for this, because that sun longitude ranged from 96 (in 4328BC) to  $96 - 9$ (perihelion gain vs. sidereal)+11(Arcturus' rising's gain vs. sidereal) more than the perihelion, is 0.3d, so the calendar's Year 1 would be, more precisely, 4329BC.

For Sirius, the corresponding figure is 46 (in 1422BC) to  $46 + 9 + 17$ , which adds  $24^{\circ} \times 0.034 \times \cos(59) = 0.4$ d of shift (because Earth has slower angular speed near aphelion). This makes the length of time needed,  $\sim 2$ yr less. So, the more precise year is  $1422 + 2 + (4329 -$ 4328) = 1425BC, and the sun's longitude on this 365-day calendar date is  $89.1 + 0.7 = 89.8$ .

Sec. 7. The Festival Year of Seti I.

Cerny, Journal of Egyptian Archaeology 47:150+, 1961, quotes Seti's inscription:

"Year 1, 1st month of winter, day 1, beginning of perpetuity."

Amenhotep's date proves that originally in ~ 4329BC, 1 Thoth was 14 days past the summer solstice at Nabta, thus the 15th day of what eventually was called the third season. As it shifted backward through the tropical year, it seems subsequently to have been renamed the *first* day of the third season, then the first day of the *second* season (winter, to which Seti refers). Still later it was renamed the first day of the so-called *first* season. In the shifting 365-day calendar, 1 Thoth migrates through all the seasons anyway.

Seti's festival year might have been two tropical cycles after the founding year. That is, 1 Thoth returned yet again to its original ecliptic longitude, giving Seti's year as  $4329\text{BC} + 2 \times 1508 = 1313\text{BC}$ .

This is near the date oftenest given by Egyptologists, because it is about one of their standardized 1460yr (or 1463yr) Sothic cycles before the ~ 139AD cycle end mentioned by Censorinus. More precisely, using quadratic approximation and integral calculus again, I find that this Sothic (i.e., of Sirius) cycle really is 1454yr, from 1313BC to 142AD (the eccentricity correction of Sec. 6, makes this 1453yr and 141AD). Censorinus had defined the cycle end, only as "100yr" (generally for Romans, time intervals were inclusive, e.g., "4 yr before 143AD" meant "140AD") before 238AD, the time of his writing; the round number suggests it was known only vaguely or ambiguously. The Romans commemorated this cycle with a coin in 143AD (Wilbur Jones, "Venus and Sothis", p. 79).

For Seti's cycle, two tropical cycles led to one Sirius cycle; then came oblivion, until now! For Thutmose, it was two Sirius cycles and then oblivion. For Amenhotep, it was two Arcturus cycles, one tropical cycle and then oblivion.

Sec. 8. Barbarossa.

The planet I discovered, Barbarossa, according to my best estimate based on all four sky survey points 1954-1997, has orbital period 6340yr. The Egyptian calendar foundation year 4329BC, is 6340yr before 2012AD, the end of the Mayan calendar cycle. The end of this longest Mayan (5125 year) cycle, falls on the winter solstice (such a long-range solstice forecast would require astronomical knowledge about as good as that of 16th century Europe). A Mayan monument announces that then "Bolon descends" who has "nine colleagues" (Barbarossa's Declination and ecliptic latitude will be decreasing, and its Declination, will be less than last time due to Earth's axis precession; another meaning of "descent" might be the sudden decrease in Declination due to a decrease in Earth's obliquity last time; see below). From lake varves, Brauer et al have determined the sudden onset of the Younger Dryas cooling, at least in Europe, to the year, at  $12683 = 6341.5 * 2$  yr before 2012.

The heliacal rising of Arcturus, the most convenient star for such observations, at the summer solstice, would occur at intervals of approx. 25,785 yr (Newcomb's determination of the period corresponding to Earth's tropical minus sidereal orbital frequency). This occurrence on the 30th parallel, centrally located at the apex of the Nile delta, would seem enough reason to found a calendar, especially with Canopus rising heliacally on the solstice at Elephantine the same year.

Usually the sun's longitude at a star's heliacal rising, differs 5 or 10 deg between Upper & Lower Egypt. The recorded dates discussed above, show that at least four favorite stars were observed on or near the summer solstice during the 42deg of precession from 4300 to 1300 BC. With a favorite star, on the average every ten degrees of longitude, often as not at least one would be rising heliacally on the summer solstice somewhere in Egypt. For two to do so, is only mildly unusual, but for their locations to be the 30N parallel (Arcturus) and the Tropic of Cancer (Canopus) is suspicious.

If two stars happen to rise heliacally on the same day (i.e., both rise heliacally with sun longitude in the range, say, 89.50 to 90.50), the root-mean-square difference in the sun longitudes is 0.4deg. Arcturus at Giza (0.021deg S of 30N) and Canopus at Elephantine (est. from Astronomical Almanac obliquity polynomial, 0.04deg S of Tropic of Cancer in 4329BC) differ, in the calendar's Year 1, only  $90.17 - 90.31 = -0.14$ , though correction to exactly 30N and to the predicted Tropic, degrades this to -0.33.

Either star in the preceding paragraph, if the sun longitude is corrected to sun-center rising rather than sun-top rising, should have its sun longitude randomly in the range ~89.24 to ~90.24 (assuming the sun and star atmospheric corrections roughly cancel). Yet these correct to 89.91 & 90.05 (though correction to "exactly 30N" and to *our predicted* Tropic, changes this to 89.87 & 90.20).

The summer solstice heliacal risings of Arcturus & Canopus at two different Egypt sites in 4329BC, might be luck were it not for the nearly exact equality of the sun's longitude at sun-center heliacal rising, to 90.0deg, for Arcturus & Canopus at the 30N parallel and the Tropic of Cancer, resp. This seems to reveal a new physical phenomenon. Maybe an unknown (not inverse square law) force exerted by these nearby giant stars, stabilized Earth's axis, after some disturbance, in a new position constrained by geometric relations described as heliacal rising at 30th parallel and Tropic. Another such unexplained geometric relation, the equal (in absolute value) latitudes of Hawaii, Mt. Olympus on Mars, and Jupiter's Great Red Spot, already is known (mentioned by Richard Hoagland on the "Coast to Coast AM" radio show).

I find that the azimuths of the two lines connecting the three Great Pyramids (according to Petrie's survey) match the projection of Orion's Belt (reflected EW) from the top of a stick, for one direction of Earth's axis. The obliquity of this direction is 27.95deg, not 23.45 as today.

Maybe stabilization by Arcturus and Canopus, happened to Mars too. As an approximation, let's assume Mars' orbital plane is the same as Earth's, take the Declination of Mars' N pole as 52.92deg (2009 Astronomical Almanac), take the ecliptic latitude of Mars' N pole 90deg minus 23deg59', and find the difference in ecliptic longitude of Earth's and Mars' axes by spherical trigonometry. Then the net precession  $1/25771.5 - 1/171000$ , implies opposite axis tilts ~6375yr before 2012: Arcturus and Canopus would have risen heliacally near Mars' 30N & Tropic of Cancer, but at Mars' winter, not summer, solstice.

I propose that these solstice heliacal risings were not luck, but rather were the result of an unknown physical force associated with the orbital period of my distant hyperjovian planet, Barbarossa (which never comes near Earth; see my posts to the messageboard of Dr. Tom Van Flandern, for details). Comet swarms in 1::1 orbital resonance with Barbarossa might also have a role.

Arcturus' proper motion is greater than that of any other first-magnitude star visible from Egypt. The most important component of its proper motion, is the decreasing Declination, which increases the sun longitude of heliacal rising, so the difference between the 365-day and Arcturian years is abnormally large, and the length of the Arcturian vs. 365-day cycle abnormally short. Another suspicious fact about Arcturus, is that it is almost the closest "giant" (i.e., Spectral Type III) star to the sun, only slightly farther than Pollux, and believed to be considerably more massive than Pollux. Similarly, Canopus is the second-closest "supergiant" (i.e., Type I or II) star to the sun.

Above, I suggested that Seti's reference to "1st month of winter, day 1" revealed only that 1 Thoth, originally the first day of the "third" or summer season, later was called the first day of the "second" or winter season, and then the first day of the "first" season which was neither winter nor summer, where it stayed, having slipped backward to the beginning of the calendar. In the 365-day calendar, there would be a tendency over the centuries to change the name of the season, of which 1 Thoth was first day, as its season in the tropical year moved backward. This would seem to be enough reason for Seti, in some context or other, to call 1 Thoth the first day of winter, but there is another, more speculative, explanation.

This other explanation is, that c. 4329BC, when Barbarossa presumably attained a special position in its orbit, an unknown physical interaction occurred which caused Earth changes and also illuminated Barbarossa. If Barbarossa were visible for many years, the Egyptians (or Atlanteans?) might have been able to determine its orbital period. They would notice and record any calendrical markers of the year of recurrence. Maybe the marker, is when the heliacal rising of Arcturus at Nabta occurs on the original 365-day calendar's first (in some sense) day of winter.

When 1 Thoth originally, in Upper Egypt, equalled our June 22 summer solstice + 14d, 1 Phamenoth equalled our December 30, almost New Year's Eve. At the Egyptian calendar's foundation, 1 Phamenoth was a rough approximation of the winter solstice. Suppose Arcturus rises heliacally on 1 Phamenoth in 2012AD. Relative to Arcturus' heliacal rising, 1 Thoth must regress  $4 \times 365.24 + 177$  d since the foundation. The Arcturus term in my integral must be adjusted only -0.09deg to account for eccentricity. The result for Nabta is 1614.55 "mean degrees", which gives 6344yr at Nabta.

So, at Nabta in 2012AD, Arcturus rises heliacally only a day before 1 Phamenoth, the original rough winter solstice of the ancient Egyptian 365-day calendar. (Likewise Arcturus rose a day before 1 Thoth in 1524BC; these discrepancies might be due to the same error.) This is the origin of the association of "Bolon" (Barbarossa? or merely Arcturus?) with the winter solstice, in 2012, in the Mayan calendar. The Egyptian calendar contains Hermetic knowledge, about the period of Barbarossa, and the period of climate change cycles, including the Younger Dryas.

Sec. 9. Calculation of heliacal risings and settings.

I took star positions and proper motions from the current (May, 2009) online VizieR version of the Bright Star Catalog, 5th ed. The proper motions in RA refer to linear arcseconds, not fifteenths of seconds of Right Ascension; so in extrapolating RA, they need to be multiplied by  $\sec(\phi)$ , where  $\phi$  is the midrange of the base and extrapolated Declinations. After extrapolating the proper motion, I found the celestial coordinates in the equinoxes of date for 2000.0AD, for 1001.0BC, and for 4001.0BC, using the rigorous formulas of the 1990 Astronomical Almanac, p. B18. I also found Earth's obliquity for those years, using the polynomial on the same page.

No computer program was used. All calculations were on one Texas Instruments 30X IIS calculator, made in China.

The remaining calculations, to find the sun's longitude at heliacal rising of the star, consisted of using one spherical trigonometry formula (see, e.g., the CRC Math tables):

$$\cos(a) = \cos(b) \cos(c) + \sin(b) \sin(c) \cos(A)$$

(this is the vector dot product in spherical coordinates) four times in three spherical triangles:

1) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the star's codeclination, the observer's colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the star's sub-rising point (90.5667deg, using the 34 arcminute average atmospheric refraction given by Stephen Daniels, www.astronomy.net, 1999, online). Here I found the vertex angle, and hence the Right Ascension of the observer's zenith.

2) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the segment from Earth's N pole to the ecliptic N pole, the observer's colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the point beneath the N ecliptic pole (observer's ecliptic colatitude); here I found the last of these, thence the ecliptic longitude of the observer's zenith, mindful of the signs of angles.

3) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the sun's ecliptic colatitude (always exactly 90degrees), the observer's ecliptic colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the sub-suncenter point for suntop rise (90.8250deg, using the 34 arcminute average atmospheric refraction cited above, and also an average sun semidiameter of 0.5*31 arcmin).

All observer terrestrial latitudes are geographic. I estimate that the effect of Earth's polar flattening, is negligible. The final correction to the sun's longitude, for the parallax caused by Earth's radius, was -0.0019deg at Giza and -0.0020deg at Elephantine Island.

The sun longitudes for 2000.0AD, 1001.0BC & 4001.0BC always were interpolated with the unique second degree polynomial, with time as abscissa (see, e.g., Stirling's interpolation formula, CRC Math tables). Other, less important estimates throughout this paper, were made with sufficient accuracy using convenient linear or quadratic interpolation schemes. I found "Sothic"-type rising cycle periods, by integrating, with variable limits, the increase in sun longitude at rising, in coordinates of equinox of date (given by a quadratic interpolant), plus the gain of the equinox vs. the 365-day point. Sun longitudes are for exact heliacal rising somewhere on the relevant parallel.

The format below lists the longitudes for 2000.0AD, 1001.0BC, 4001.0BC:

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Arcturus:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N, bronze plaque on Cheops' pyramid, per GPS by Lehner)
199.6386, 157.2941, 97.7240

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N, according to Tompkins, "Secrets of the Great Pyramid", p. 179)
202.9072, 161.6498, 107.6906

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Procyon:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)
121.9500, 86.1111, 51.0502

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)
120.1393, 83.8767, 48.0433

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Sirius:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)
121.3902, 93.3560, 68.3317

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)
117.0431, 93.7134, 61.0702

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Canopus:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)

149.3027, 136.9634, 116.0721

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)

136.4925, 123.3116, 94.4229

| 29064|2009-06-03 18:17:52|Shri Sa Hetep|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

With all due respect to indigenous people here in the United States, Australia, China, etc. it is not a slap in the face to remember and honor a people from whom such a beautiful culture was shared. A slap in the face to Native Americans is having their land stolen from broken treaties, being moved to reservations, having toxic waste dumped in their water supply by corporations, and having loved ones killed by small pox. ( I do not think the Ancient Egyptians carried out such harmful acts). It is a slap in the face for Ancient Egyptians to have their culture stolen, and replicated without being given proper credit, e.g. all Greek knowledge originated in Ancient Kemet - but that is not taught in our school, the back of the US dollar bill has Ancient Egyptian symbolism - but credit is not given to the originators of the symbolism, Anthony Browder gives a tour of Washington D. C. and all of it many Ancient Egyptian landscapes - to include the Washington Monument, etc. Many cultures and societies are designed according to Ancient Egyptian symbolism, but the actual Actual Ancient Egyptians are forgotten & their descendents are forced to live in poverty, and are denied the knowledge of their own ancestors - their own Divine Lineage - That is a slap in the face.

Ancient Egyptians are constantly "slapped in the face" by being portrayed as caucasian (remember Liz Taylor's performance as an Ancient Egyptian Queen); also by having their knowledge stolen, their sacred libraries burned to the ground, their sacred treasures stolen and housed under the Vatican, as well as having their many burial grounds desecrated for the benefit of science.

Ancient Egyptians may have taught the world about many things, pyramid building included, but I doubt they spread hatred, genocide, false democracy, diseases, rape, theft, the threat of nuclear war, etc. unlike those that came over on the Mayflower.

How often does one see the Chinese give honor to their indigenous Black populations? The world does not even know about Black Chinese people. (they keep them well hidden, and well marginalized) How often are images of the many Black Buddha statues all throughout Asia shown to the world? That is a slap in the face. Even Chinese Pyramids were kept well hidden for decades. How many people worldwide know that the Dogon of Mali knew of astronomical bodies, alignments, etc. without the use of modern scientific equipment, and for centuries before any European contact? (Much of this knowledge corresponds to the Ancient Egyptian alignments of Pyramids) And if I am not mistaken, aren't the so-called Ab-Originals of Australia are Black people?

There also exists a history of Native Americans living in harmony with Black people, Asian people, etc but that too has been stolen and suppressed. The truth about Ancient America is not about disrespecting anyone, but more about giving proper credit, honor, and respect where it is due. Ancestor veneration is integral to many Asian, Native American, and African cultures. We have more in common that what has been taught in school.

I say, let's spend more time honoring those who brought forth civilization, and let karma take care of the rest.

Peace,

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:05 PM

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my "already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled California?. All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australain aboriginees chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it without AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks atthe A.E. teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E. in north amer. and australiathere is not a lot of proof for such an assertion.

i haveyet to read The black discovery of america by. M.Bradley
an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the Nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this to be diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the Nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their Nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

---

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29065|2009-06-03 18:17:54|Shri Sa Hetep|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

Hetepu Atef,

Tuau, Lets strive to 'Sepi En Angkh En Maat' (Inspect our Living of Truth), and 'Paukhet Apep Hut Set' (Overthrowing the emotional, sensual, and evil aspect of the Spirit).

Meri Hur Hetep
(Harmony, Love, and Peace),

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:32 PM

comfortable with cristobol columbus?/. .... ..

Thanks for the sites u sent, i will view a couple ,please know i appreciate your research.
sometimes writing will not convey intent....

Typing,,, typingisnt easy for me,. so if i was abrupt in my 1st correspondence please forgive my lack of skills and method .

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 8:44 PM

"My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indogenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.
If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors."

Your views can also be looked at as conjecture and assumptions. Unless you can produce evidence and artifacts to the contrary. In terms of who built the Pyramids in North America, great effort is taken to cover up the fact that the USA does indeed have pyramids - Not mounds. Once that fact is accepted, and not hidden from everyone, then the pyramids builders can be discussed. There is nothing wrong with Ancient Egyptians voyaging to Ancient North America and building pyramids. Evidence of this fact has been suppressed for centuries.

Maybe you are comfortable with the notion that Chris Columbus discovered America...

Here are some links to show pyramids in North America:

http://www.crystalink.com/united\_states.html

http://www.crystalink.com/pyrnorth\_america.html

As well as Pyramids worldwide:

<http://www.crystalink.com/pyramids.html>

Peace,
Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 4:57 PM

Ive read The lost treasure of King Juba,.
and i find a lot of conjecture and assumptions, and just because someone builds a pyramid
does'nt mean that Ancient egyptians told them how to do it.
i also checked out site u sent.
thanks

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net wrote:

From: shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 6:02 AM

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus -
www.ancientamerican.com. There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep
Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com
Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)
To:
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29066|2009-06-03 18:20:09|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt|
God bless/Hetepu Bro.Mike

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Mike Donovan wrote:

From: Mike Donovan
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 7:16 AM

Tafari

Thank you very much for your help. The Baines atlas especially, seems like it will probably be exactly what I want.

Thanks once again.

Mike

---

From: Tafari khumbaka
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, 2 June, 2009 3:54:23
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt

The book
Hidden tombs of Memphis
by Geoffrey T. Martin
may be a good help?, read it loong time ago, forgotten whats in it( orthodox egytology) an may can see if Baines has a website who wrote Atlas of ancient Egypt

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Mike Donovan wrote:

From: Mike Donovan
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 5:44 AM

Can anyone point me in the direction of some downloadable maps of Ancient Egypt? Also looking for a city plan for the city of Memphis circa - era of Rameses II and Merenptah.

Thanks in advance for your help.

Mike

| 29067|2009-06-03 19:14:05|clyde winters|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has
been decyphered?|

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy people.

A cataclysm occurned around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pgymy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent.

The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty.
By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Aman worship, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala lnet> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In [Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com](mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com), "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In [Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com](mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com), Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29068|2009-06-03 19:25:09|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

To see one's own reflections in the writings of another is normal and human .,i was not saying any of the things you are writing about., perhas you are seeing your own doubts, you are extraplacating about things i did not say or insinuate.

what my person is saying is:proof of Anc. Egpytians directly influencing the the Tunica and others of said region is wanting.

But there is plenty of proof of other Africans influencing the whole of the northern America by way of the southern American indians .

Other Africans as documented by Ancestor Ivan Van Sertima deeply and irrevacably helped to create the cosmology and plausible architectural work of the south Americans who plausibly influenced the northern native Americans.

And yes without proof no-one should usurp the works and ingenuity of another.

To say the northern Americans were taught their mound/pyramid work by Africans without proof is an insult to their intelligence.

i personally would love to give my ancestors the anc.egyptians the credit for all thats good ., but without us(a.e.) people were and are good and bad and all in between.

also note the mounds/pyramids of northern america can be made without one knowing the blueprints of pyramids of the Nile valley ( it dont take specific A.e. knowledge).

with limited archaeological remnants testifying to the A.E. in northern America the linguistic comparison should be directed in a major manor to people who had the A.E. language in their daily speech Mandinke, Hausa , roman-Tunisian , etc. people that are documented in south america .

And yes south America influenced north America.

see:

ages of gold and silver

by John G. Jackson

-

Discovering mans past in the america's by national geographic society

-

they came before columbus

by Ivan Van Sertima

-

california state univ.,hayward

Malachi Andrews

message to white america /four articles by Legrand Clegg

---

please stop insinuating things i never wrote.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 8:03 PM

With all due respect to indigenous people here in the United States, Australia, China, etc. it is not a slap in the face to remember and honor people from whom such a beautiful culture was shared. A slap in the face to Native Americans is having their land stolen from broken treaties being moved to reservations, having toxic waste dumped in their water supply by corporations, and having loved ones killed by small pox. ( I do not think the Ancient Egyptians carried out such harmful acts). It is a slap in the face for Ancient Egyptians to have their culture stolen, and replicated without being given proper credit, e.g. all Greek knowledge originated in Ancient Kemet - but that is not taught in our school, the back of the US dollar bill has Ancient Egyptian symbolism - but credit is not given to the originators of the symbolism, Anthony Browder gives a tour of Washington D. C. and all of it many Ancient Egyptian landscapes - to include the Washington Monument, etc. Many cultures and societies are designed according to Ancient Egyptian symbolism, but the actual Actual Ancient Egyptians are forgotten & their descendents are forced to live in poverty, and are denied the knowledge of their own ancestors - their own Divine Lineage - That is a slap in the face.

Ancient Egyptians are constantly "slapped in the face" by being portrayed as caucasian (remember Liz Taylor's performance as an Ancient Egyptian Queen); also by having their knowledge stolen, their sacred libraries burned to the ground, their sacred treasures stolen and housed under the Vatican, as well as having their many burial grounds desecrated for the benefit of science.

Ancient Egyptians may have taught the world about many things, pyramid building included, but I doubt they spread hatred, genocide, false democracy, diseases, rape, theft, the threat of nuclear war, etc. unlike those that came over on the Mayflower.

How often does one see the Chinese give honor to their indigenous Black populations? The world does not even know about Black Chinese people. (they keep them well hidden, and well marginalized) How often are images of the many Black Buddha statues all throughout Asia shown to the world? That is a slap in the face. Even Chinese Pyramids were kept well hidden for decades. How many people worldwide know that the Dogon of Mali knew of astronomical bodies, alignments, etc. without the use of modern scientific equipment, and for centuries before any European contact? (Much of this knowledge corresponds to the Ancient Egyptian alignments of Pyramids) And if I am not mistaken, aren't the so-called Ab-Originals of Australia are Black people?

There also exists a history of Native Americans living in harmony with Black people, Asian people, etc but that too has been stolen and suppressed. The truth about Ancient America is not about disrespecting anyone, but more about giving proper credit, honor, and respect where it is due. Ancestor veneration is integral to many Asian, Native American, and African cultures. We have more in common than what has been taught in school.

I say, let's spend more time honoring those who brought forth civilization, and let karma take care of the rest.

Peace,

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:05 PM

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my "already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled California?. All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australian aborigines chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it without AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks at the A.E. teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E.

in north amer. and australiathere is not a lot of proof for such an assertion.
i haveyet to read The black discovery of america by. M.Bradley
an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29069|2009-06-03 19:27:33|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

that book was a synopsis, the actual work was several volumes.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Michael Bayman wrote:

From: Michael Bayman

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:13 AM

R A Jairazbhoy's book Rameses III Father of Ancient America...Out of print book occassinally available on amazon. Good book. Our ancestor,

Dr. Ivan: Van-Sertima apparently goes after Rafiq-A-Jairazbhoy in the book = They Came Before Columbus only to 'clarify' his position in the book = African Presence In Early America.

Amexem-Moor- Empire: Constitutional- Monarch's: paperback-copy, fell apart years ago from constant usage as a reference:

" I acquired a copy from A&B 20: Earthyears ago. It was a short read which is one reason as to why I read it eleventy times (He laughs). I used to carry it with me in the 'suitcase' I was notorious for and would pull it out along with They Came Before Columbus, Golden Age Of The Moors and wear folks out. It was par for the course that I make presentations about His-Majesty: Rameses III looking for the entrance into the after world referred to as the place where the sun sets between the twin mountain peaks as described in Jairazboy's: book.Training-Classes: 2-1, 2-2, 2-3, and 2-4 were the only classes where I covered that material. By the time we commenced the G.I.A. (General-Informatio n-Agency) Nationals: Basic-Training- Class: 1-1, my little book fell apart as the pages began to fall out. Eventually it came apart altogether. It was thrown out mistakenly duringa move from one location unto another as it was thought to be trash. Needless to say I was not happy. Keep in mind this was before the days of amazon.com, ebay, craigslist and all of those web based options. Now you can contract a party that could be (supposedly)doing business with a "strawparty"togo online and acquire a copy on occassion as I have been informed of this by my long time Nationals (students and staff), For this reason you find the booklisted in our book list therein the F.Y.I. flyers that Admissions dispatches for distribution" .

---

From: "shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net"

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Sent: Monday, June 1, 2009 7:02:56 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus - www.ancientamerican.com. There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)

To:

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to sc america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mis ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north americ they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusio way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced b Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of tl canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since the the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north am also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta\_seti@yahoogroups.com, [FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups.com](mailto:FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups.com)

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com/>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

Nuk Ausar maakheru Hetep

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 8:11 PM

Hetepu Atef,

Tuau, Lets strive to 'Sepi En Angkh En Maat' (Inspect our Living of Truth), and 'Paukhet Apep Hut Set' (Overthrowing the emotional, se and evil aspect of the Spirit).

Meri Hur Hetep

(Harmony, Love, and Peace),

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:32 PM

comfortable with cristobol columbus?/.. ..... ...

Thanks for the sites u sent, i will view a couple ,please know i appreciate your research. sometimes writing will not convey intent....

Typing,,, typingisnt easy for me,. so if i was abrupt in my 1st correspondence please forgi lack of skills and method .

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 8:44 PM

"My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indogenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors."

Your views can also be looked at as conjecture and assumptions. Unless you can produce evidence and artifacts to the contrary. In terms of who built the Pyramids in North America, great effort is taken to cover up the fact that the USA does indeed have pyramids - Not mounds. Once that fact is accepted, and not hidden from everyone, then the pyramids builders can be discussed. There is nothing wrong with Ancient Egyptians voyaging to Ancient North America and building pyramids. Evidence of this fact has been suppressed for centuries.

Maybe you are comfortable with the notion that Chris Columbus discovered America...

Here are some links to show pyramids in North America:

http://www.crystalinks.com/united\_states.html

http://www.crystalinks.com/pyrnorth\_america.html

As well as Pyramids worldwide:

<http://www.crystalinks.com/pyramids.html>

Peace,

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 4:57 PM

Ive read The lost treasure of King Juba,.
and i find a lot of conjecture and assumptions, and just because someone builds a pyramid
does'nt mean that Ancient egyptians told them how to do it.
i also checked out site u sent.
thanks

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net wrote:

From: shrisahetep@ sbcglobal. net
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 6:02 AM

What if there is evidence of Egyptian voyages to North America? Check out back issues of the journal: Ancient American, Archeology of the Americas Before Columbus -
[www.ancientamerican .com](http://www.ancientamerican .com). There are pyramids in North America, often referred to as mounds.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep
Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

---

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com
Date: Sun, 31 May 2009 18:39:56 -0700 (PDT)
To:

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.
If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.
My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi
,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.
If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the Nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this to be diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the Nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their Nile valley brethren and ancestors.
South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29071|2009-06-03 20:48:19|Asar Imhotep|Re: The Pharaoh [reply]|
Greetings everyone

This email is in response to Ferg Somos essay on Pharaoh The Great House created May 31st 2009. This discussion centers around the question of, Does the ancient Egyptian words Great House, represented by the consonants PR-AA, find its cognate in the Kiswahili Bantu languages? Given the information in the essay provided by brother Ferg Somo, I think this one may need more investigation to come to something more conclusive. The primary reasons I have come to this conclusion resides upon these premises:

1. The philosophical connections can easily be interpreted as loose
2. The consonants PR in the Egyptian language by itself is does not refer to the king himself
3. The meaning of PARA doesnt seem to match other African usages of the term

Given these issues, which I will explore below, I will offer some alternative theories in which we may be able to try and piece this together.

My first critique centers around the ideas supposedly connecting -ARA, -ALA, -WARA, which are Bantu words meaning to layout or to spread. The conventional understanding of the Egyptian glyph represented by Gardiner sign O1, is that it represents a house or court; in other words, it represents an area or building used for some administrative purposes. It is a location in which people conduct some sort of business. The symbol representing the consonants PR are never used to represent the concept of spreading or laying out. Words used to convey this concept can be seen by the following:

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - A24
sS to spread out [ verb ] O34 - N37 - A55 - A24
sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - D40
sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - D54
sSSi to spread (a bed) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - N37 - M17 - A53 - A55
sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - N8
sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - Z9 - D54
pDw displayed offering, spread out [ noun + verb ] Q3 - I10 - N29 - N29 - N29 - Z8 - W22
pSS spread (oneself over) [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - N37 - D291

pSS straddle, spread (oneself over), spread out (awnings) [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - N37 - D54
pS to spread out [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - Z9 - Y1 - H5
xnr to scatter, to disperse, spread [ verb ] J1 - N35 - D21 - G43
xns traverse (region), travel, spread (of illness) [ verb ] J1 - N35 - O34 - D54
xnr to scatter, to disperse, spread [ verb ] M12 - G1 - N35 - Z2 - D21 - Z1 - N31 - D54
ab to spread out [ verb ] M17 - D59 - W10 - Z9 - D40

ENCIRCLE

Snn encircles [ verb ] V7 - N35 - N35 - X1 - D54
Sni encircle, enclose, surround, [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - D40
Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - D54
Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - Z8
Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - Z8
Sni to encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V9
Snw circuit, circumference, enclosure wall [ noun - arch. ] V7 - N35 - W24 - G43 - V10
inH to surround, envelope, enclose, encompass, to hem in [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - A24
inH surround, enclose, embrace, rim [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - G45
inH surround, enclose, embrace, rim, edging, frame, border, outline [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - V1 - D40

The only meaning that comes remotely close phonetically to PR and the proposed meaning encircle would be:

pXr surround, enclose [ verb ] Q3 - F32 - D21 - F46

pXr surround, enclose, travel around / traverse (a region) [ verb ] F46 - D21 - D54

We would have to account for the KH sound being dropped in which PR could possibly be a derivative. In any of the examples above, none use the O1 determinative to denote an enclosure. I propose that the PR symbol used to represent a house denotes something that is typically African. In African traditional societies, houses did not have doors. For evidence see Malidoma Some Healing Wisdom of Africa and K. Fu-Kiaus MBONGI: An African Traditional Political Institution. Not only did the homes not have doors, neither did administrative offices. The indigenous policy is that all members of the society are welcome to their neighbors homes and all administrative places were open to the public. It fostered community and no secrets. This is why temples were not closed off. The only places that were closed off were secret places where priests conducted their work and this may have been more of an area inside the home. This may explain why to the Egyptians used the O1 symbol to represent home, temple or administrative office: because the culture had an open door policy. It seems to convey that places where it is expected to have a flow in and out of human traffic to conduct a specific business, they used the PR O1 symbol. When they wanted to denote boundaries, an enclosure, something that surrounds something, they used another symbol which has no openings.

My second concern is with the rendering of PR to refer to the King. I havent been able to find where the consonants PR in the Egyptian language represented the King: Only in combination with the word /aA/. /aA/ means GREAT. Here are other renderings that may be instructive:

pr aA great house, palace [ noun - arch. ] O1 - O29

pr aA pharaoh [ noun - title ] O1 - O29

pr aA great house, palace, pharaoh [ noun - arch. ] O29 - O1

pr bity palace of king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] L2 - X1 - O1

pr nsw King's Palace, Court, Temple, Palace of King of Upper Egypt [ noun - arch. ]

M23 - X1 - N35 - O1 - Z1

pr nsw Temple [ noun - arch. ] M23 - X1 - O1

pr bity palace of king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] O1 - Z1 - L2 - X1 - A301

Hwt bity House of the king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] O6 - X1 - O1 - L2 - X1 - Z1 -

A45A

wat the sole palace (of the king) [ noun ] T21 - X1 - O1

The only way we can render PR to mean Pharaoh is if it is conjunction with the word /aA/. AA is an adjective for what type of house it is. So it is not a part of the word PR itself, it is a separate word. Now the word /aA/ may be an abstraction of the word /aAt/:

aAt Chief [ noun - title ] D36 - O29 - X1 - H8 - B1

What is unique about this rendering is that the determinative is not that of a male, but of a woman. This is hinting to the fact that the chief, king, was so because of his relationship to the Queen mother matriarchal. We find another abstraction with the term:

AAAtA Nubian chieftain ? [ noun - title ] G1 - G1 - X1 - G1 - D40 - A14

On this same line of thinking, aA can also be an honorary descriptor:

aA distinguished, genteel, noble [ adjective ] O29

So we are finding terms that directly correlate with a chief, noble or someone of greatness in /aA/ and /aAt/, but no words using the consonants PR by themselves to mean KING or CHIEF.

Thirdly, the name PARA doesn't seem to match other African renditions. As Diop noted:

Egyptian Walaf

Per-aa = Pharaoh Fari = supreme king

Fara = officer in charge

Fara leku = keeper of harem

Paour = the chief Bur = the king

P-our = the king (b > p)

P.ouro = king (Coptic)

We know this term FARI is used across East Africa as well and it too refers to a king and can be rendered FARI, FARO and FURA. What is telling about this term is that everywhere else in Africa and even in the Levant, they pronounced the /p/ as an /f/ sound. This can only be possible if the initial /p/ in PR was followed with an H. Since there is no PH sound glyph, the closest rendition of the sound they could represent within their language was with the P glyph. Bs and Ps shift easily, but not Ps and Fs. This is especially true when you consider that all of these languages have a plosive /p/ sound native to their languages. There is no reason the Greeks would transpose P into PH when they have a plosive P sound (pi).

Also in your rendering of PA, you use it to mean to fly. It seems more appropriate when you consider in ancient Egyptian PA also means PLACE. This would fit more so with the term PR if we assume this is an agglutinated term. PA can also mean THIS or THE. So we would have to find out what the /r/ stands for. I initially assumed the /r/ to stand for RA as RAS and RASI in Kiswahili mean KING or CHIEF. This is how we get RAS TAFARI King of Kings (Emperor). So we would assume a possible rendering for PR-AA to mean THE KING GREAT or THE GREAT KING or THIS KING GREAT or THIS GREAT KING. But this needs more investigation.

There is a term RS (Budge 432a) which is the title of a priest. Ras in Kiswahili also means head or leader. This is a conceptual match. Budge also has an entry for RA to mean a PLACE. This might be important. For PA can mean THE or THIS and if RA means PLACE then the PR bilateral would mean THIS PLACE which would be a perfect rendering of the term since PR by itself refers to a PLACE.

I do want to point out that PR-AA means more than just GREAT HOUSE and PHARAOH. As Budge (238a) notes, in later times PR-AA was a titled used by mere officers. It was written pr-aA stn (per-aa suten) meaning the pr-aA of the King. STN is where we get in Arabic SULTEN (the king) from. The pr-aA is not used in this context to mean a location. Budge gives another rendering meaning the pharaohs man. This may be interpreted as a close friend or trusted servant or colleague.

Side Note: In your rendering of PA meaning to rise, Budge also has an enter PR meaning to rise on pg (242a). This would closely match with the Bantus notion of PARA, on one level, meaning to rise or to fly as the glyph used is a birds wing.

I will continue to investigate, but I think this needs to be scrutinized a little more.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29072|2009-06-04 05:57:11|Ferg|Re: The Pharaoh|
Your email please.
Somo

----- Original Message -----

From: Ginger Daniels
To: Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Sent: Wednesday, June 03, 2009 12:28 AM
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh

Can you forward the attachment please? It did not come through. Thank you.

---

To: Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: tafari\_sudra@yahoo.com
Date: Tue, 2 Jun 2009 16:18:58 -0700
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh

tua!, great work,. only thing i would say as a criticism is the f sound was "probaly" used in different times at different places ,as Diop has shown the woloff use a f sound also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Ferg wrote:

From: Ferg

Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 9:47 AM

Greetings all.
Hope this pdf about the name for the Pharaoh stimulates thought.
Somo

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29073|2009-06-04 16:24:17|odhiambo okech|Thank you; Sungu and Arinolah|

Attachments :

DSCN1418.JPG
DSCN1417.JPG
DSCN1416.JPG
DSCN1415.JPG
DSCN1414.JPG

4rd June 2009

Dear Friends of KCDN,

It is 8 days to the hosting of the 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk, and we can now confirm that Mr. Otieno Sungu and Ms Arinolah Elizabeth have supported the hosting of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk on the 13th June 2009. We also received the 10 balls donated to KCDN by Text Book Centre Ltd today.

And this is how we are placed;

- 1] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Lenny Amolo of AIG Kenya Ltd.
- 2] Kshs 10,000.00 from Mr. Eric Jangolo of Barclays Bank, [But strictly for our rent].
- 3] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Otieno Sungu of Southern Sudan .
- 4] Kshs 1,000.00 from Arinolah of Southern Sudan, [She is sending Kshs 1,000.00 more] 5] Video Coverage from Dommie Yambo- Development Through Media.
- 6] 10 balls [5-football, 5 netball] from Text Book Centre Ltd.
- 7] Administration Police Band has confirmed their participation.

Our budget is still far from being met and we appeal to all those who would want to support the hosting of this event to kindly send in their support by Friday. We have Friends who have pledged their support and we are optimistic that we will receive the same before Friday 5th June.

It will enable us to plan adequately with what we have.

We need some T-shirts, banners, placards, manila papers, paper caps, tents, chairs, PA system, skipping ropes, buckets, copies and many other items that will enrich our day. We will also need some water, first aid, etc. If we can make these confirmations and receipts by Friday 5th June, we will be able to sort ourselves out.

Lastly, we must thank the Youth of Koma who have taken the challenge to make this event a success in terms of helping with the organization. It is through the active participation of the youth in the process of Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation that Kenya will be liberated from those who want to perpetuate tribalism as a tool of oppression.

We must all join hands and say no to tribalism, tribalistic leaders, and in the same vein, advance the cause for Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation.

Kenya is ours and we must cherish her. Kindly give us your support.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi.

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557.

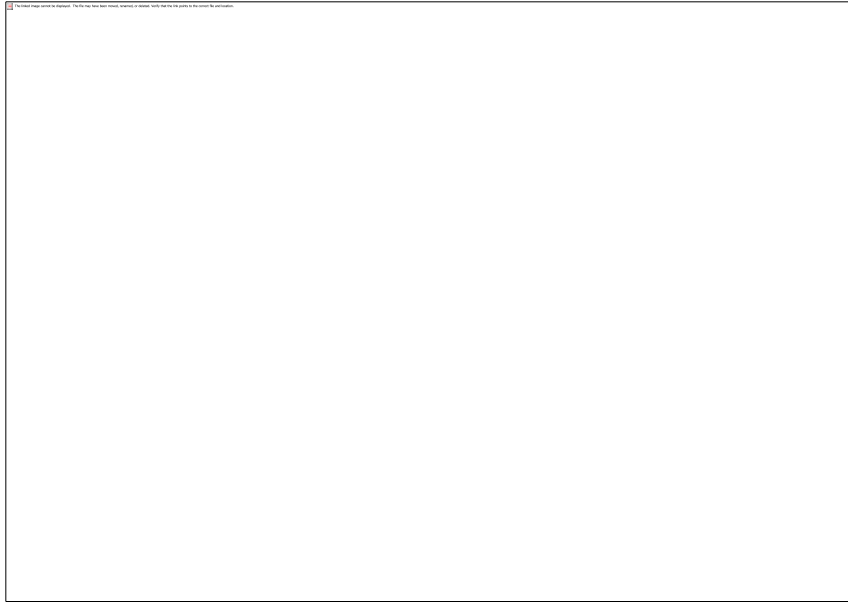

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29074|2009-06-04 16:24:21|Ginger Daniels|DOES YOUR HAIR FEEL LIKE MINE??|

Attachments :
.....

Sorry the picture didnt come across in the first email...

This little boy wanted to see if the president's hair felt like his. And this may actually be the most adorable picture ever taken, in the history of the world, ever.

Obama bends over so the son of a White House staff member can pat his head during a family visit to the Oval Office May 8, 2009. The youngster wanted to see if the President's haircut felt like his own. (Official White House Photo by Pete Souza)

This little boy wanted to see if the President's hair felt like his.

Perhaps at the beautiful demonstration of a child's curiosity when we don't "shush" them.

Perhaps at the thought that this young boy could see part of himself in the President of the United States , for the very first time.

Perhaps at the humble way President Obama bent down.

Perhaps all of the above.

---

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.

| 29075|2009-06-04 16:24:29|Ferg|Re: The Pharaoh [reply]|

?

Will respond...give me time!

Somo

----- Original Message -----

From: Asar Imhotep

To: Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Thursday, June 04, 2009 4:47 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh [reply]

Greetings everyone

This email is in response to Ferg Somos essay on Pharaoh The Great House created May 31st 2009. This discussion centers around the question of, Does the ancient Egyptian words Great House, represented by the consonants PR-AA, find its cognate in the Kiswahili Bantu languages? Given the information in the essay provided by brother Ferg Somo, I think this one may need more investigation to come to something more conclusive. The primary reasons I have come to this conclusion resides upon these premises:

1. The philosophical connections can easily be interpreted as loose
2. The consonants PR in the Egyptian language by itself is does not refer to the king himself
3. The meaning of PARA doesnt seem to match other African usages of the term

Given these issues, which I will explore below, I will offer some alternative theories in which we may be able to try and piece this together.

My first critique centers around the ideas supposedly connecting -ARA, -ALA, -WARA, which are Bantu words meaning to layout or to spread. The conventional understanding of the Egyptian glyph represented by Gardiner sign O1, is that it represents a house or court; in other words, it represents an area or building used for some administrative purposes. It is a location in which people conduct some sort of business. The symbol representing the consonants PR are never used to represent the concept of spreading or laying out. Words used to convey this concept can be seen by the following:

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - A24

sS to spread out [ verb ] O34 - N37 - A55 - A24

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - D40

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - D54

sSSi to spread (a bed) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - N37 - M17 - A53 - A55

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - N8

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - Z9 - D54

pDw displayed offering, spread out [ noun + verb ] Q3 - I10 - N29 - N29 - N29 - Z8 - W22
pSS spread (oneself over) [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - N37 - D291

pSS straddle, spread (oneself over), spread out (awnings) [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - N37 - D54
pS to spread out [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - Z9 - Y1 - H5
xnr to scatter, to disperse, spread [ verb ] J1 - N35 - D21 - G43
xns traverse (region), travel, spread (of illness) [ verb ] J1 - N35 - O34 - D54
xnr to scatter, to disperse, spread [ verb ] M12 - G1 - N35 - Z2 - D21 - Z1 - N31 - D54
ab to spread out [ verb ] M17 - D59 - W10 - Z9 - D40

ENCIRCLE

Snn encircles [ verb ] V7 - N35 - N35 - X1 - D54
Sni encircle, enclose, surround, [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - D40
Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - D54
Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - Z8
Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - Z8
Sni to encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V9
Snw circuit, circumference, enclosure wall [ noun - arch. ] V7 - N35 - W24 - G43 - V10
inH to surround, envelope, enclose, encompass, to hem in [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - A24
inH surround, enclose, embrace, rim [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - G45
inH surround, enclose, embrace, rim, edging, frame, border, outline [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - V1 - D40

The only meaning that comes remotely close phonetically to PR and the proposed meaning encircle would be:

pXr surround, enclose [ verb ] Q3 - F32 - D21 - F46
pXr surround, enclose, travel around / traverse (a region) [ verb ] F46 - D21 - D54

We would have to account for the KH sound being dropped in which PR could possibly be a derivative. In any of the examples above, none use the O1 determinative to denote an enclosure. I propose that the PR symbol used to represent a house denotes something that is typically African. In African traditional societies, houses did not have doors. For evidence see Malidoma Some Healing Wisdom of Africa and K. Fu-Kiaus MBONGI: An African Traditional Political Institution. Not only did the homes not have doors, neither did administrative offices. The indigenous policy is that all members of the society are welcome to their neighbors homes and all administrative places were open to the public. It fostered community and no secrets. This is why temples were not closed off. The only places that were closed off were secret places where priests conducted their work and this may have been more of an area inside the home. This may explain why to the Egyptians used the O1 symbol to represent home, temple or administrative office: because the culture had an open door policy. It seems to convey that places where it is expected to have a flow in and out of human traffic to conduct a specific business, they used the PR O1 symbol. When they wanted to denote boundaries, an enclosure, something that surrounds something, they used another symbol which has no openings.

My second concern is with the rendering of PR to refer to the King. I havent been able to find where the consonants PR in the Egyptian language represented the King: Only in combination with the word /aA/. /aA/ means GREAT. Here are other renderings that may be instructive:

pr aA great house, palace [ noun - arch. ] O1 - O29

pr aA pharaoh [ noun - title ] O1 - O29

pr aA great house, palace, pharaoh [ noun - arch. ] O29 - O1

pr bity palace of king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] L2 - X1 - O1

pr nsw King's Palace, Court, Temple, Palace of King of Upper Egypt [ noun - arch. ] M23 - X1 - N35 - O1 - Z1

pr nsw Temple [ noun - arch. ] M23 - X1 - O1

pr bity palace of king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] O1 - Z1 - L2 - X1 - A301

Hwt bity House of the king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] O6 - X1 - O1 - L2 - X1 - Z1 - A45A

wat the sole palace (of the king) [ noun ] T21 - X1 - O1

The only way we can render PR to mean Pharaoh is if it is conjunction with the word /aA/. AA is an adjective for what type of house it is. So it is not a part of the word PR itself, it is a separate word. Now the word /aA/ may be an abstraction of the word /aAt/:

aAt Chief [ noun - title ] D36 - O29 - X1 - H8 - B1

What is unique about this rendering is that the determinative is not that of a male, but of a woman. This is hinting to the fact that the chief, king, was so because of his relationship to the Queen mother matriarchal. We find another abstraction with the term:

AAtA Nubian chieftain ? [ noun - title ] G1 - G1 - X1 - G1 - D40 - A14

On this same line of thinking, aA can also be an honorary descriptor:

aA distinguished, genteel, noble [ adjective ] O29

So we are finding terms that directly correlate with a chief, noble or someone of greatness in /aA/ and /aAt/, but no words using the consonants PR by themselves to mean KING or CHIEF.

Thirdly, the name PARA doesn't seem to match other African renditions. As Diop noted:

Egyptian Walaf

Per-aa = Pharaoh Fari = supreme king

Fara = officer in charge

Fara leku = keeper of harem

Paour = the chief Bur = the king

P-our = the king (b > p)

P.ouro = king (Coptic)

We know this term FARI is used across East Africa as well and it too refers to a king and can be rendered FARI, FARO and FURA. What is telling about this term is that everywhere else in Africa and even in the Levant, they pronounced the /p/ as an /f/ sound. This can only be possible if the initial /p/ in PR was followed with an H. Since there is no PH sound glyph, the closest rendition of the sound they could represent within their language was with the P glyph. Bs and Ps shift easily, but not Ps and Fs. This is especially true when you consider that all of these languages have a plosive /p/ sound native to their languages. There is no reason the Greeks would transpose P into PH when they have a plosive P sound (pi).

Also in your rendering of PA, you use it to mean to fly. It seems more appropriate when you consider in ancient Egyptian PA also means PLACE. This would fit more so with the term PR if we assume this is an agglutinated term. PA can also mean THIS or THE. So we would have to find out what the /r/ stands for. I initially assumed the /r/ to stand for RA as RAS and RASI in Kiswahili mean KING or CHIEF. This is how we get RAS TAFARI King of Kings (Emperor). So we would assume a possible rendering for PR-AA to mean THE KING GREAT or THE GREAT KING or THIS KING GREAT or THIS GREAT KING. But this needs more investigation.

There is a term RS (Budge 432a) which is the title of a priest. Ras in Kiswahili also means head or leader. This is a conceptual match. Budge also has an entry for RA to mean a PLACE. This might be important. For PA can mean THE or THIS and if RA means PLACE then the PR bilateral would mean THIS PLACE which would be a perfect rendering of the term since PR by itself refers to a PLACE.

I do want to point out that PR-AA means more than just GREAT HOUSE and PHARAOH. As Budge (238a) notes, in later times PR-AA was a titled used by mere officers. It was written pr-aA stn (per-aa suten) meaning the pr-aA of the King. STN is where we get in Arabic SULTEN (the king) from. The pr-aA is not used in this context to mean a location. Budge gives another rendering meaning the pharaohs man. This may be interpreted as a close friend or trusted servant or colleague.

Side Note: In your rendering of PA meaning to rise, Budge also has an enter PR meaning to rise on pg (242a). This would closely match with the Bantus notion of PARA, on one level, meaning to rise or to fly as the glyph used is a birds wing.

I will continue to investigate, but I think this needs to be scrutinized a little more.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimho tep.com>

| 29076|2009-06-04 16:24:34|Ginger Daniels|Does your hair feel like mine?|

---

This little boy wanted to see if the president's hair felt like his. And this may actually be the most adorable picture ever taken, in the history of the world, ever.

Obama bends over so the son of a White House staff member can pat his head during a family visit to the Oval Office May 8, 2009. The youngster wanted to see if the President's haircut felt like his own. (Official White House Photo by Pete Souza)

This little boy wanted to see if the President's hair felt like his.

Perhaps at the beautiful demonstration of a child's curiosity when we don't "shush" them.

Perhaps at the thought that this young boy could see part of himself in the President of the United States , for the very first time.

Perhaps at the humble way President Obama bent down.

Perhaps all of the above.

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29077|2009-06-04 16:24:39|Peter Gray|Re: Nubians predicted 2012: here's the math|

Forgive my ignorance of astronomy, but is all of this rigorous review/analysis consistent with Diop's argument that the AE had a 565-day solar calendar as early as 3800 BC? Many thanks.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: appiusclaudiuspriscus@yahoo.com
Date: Thu, 4 Jun 2009 00:37:59 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Nubians predicted 2012: here's the math

Arcturus in 4328 BC Egypt: Hermetic knowledge

by Joseph C. Keller, M. D.
May 19, 2009; last revision May 31, 2009

Sec. 1. Calendars.

The calendar of every civilization changes. Our calendar changed (Julian to Gregorian) in 1582AD, skipping ten days and introducing a more complicated leap year formula. Julius Caesar changed our calendar much more. Because calendars change, king lists with reign lengths always have supplemented the calendar.

Our year basically starts at the winter solstice, though off by eleven days. The ancient Greek year explicitly started anew at every summer solstice, with Year 1, of the first four-year "Olympiad", occurring in 776BC.

The Egyptian calendar had features enabling it to preserve dates for millenia. One of these features was that the day count, instead of being corrected by a complicated leap-day formula to fit the tropical year, either started anew in each tropical year (what I call the "tropical calendar"; basically it was like our ordinary calendar), or remained simply 365, ignoring discrepancy with the tropical year (what I call the "365-day calendar"; basically it did the job of today's astronomical Julian Date). This gave two different calendars which could correct each other. The phase between the two different "years" is a kind of year count.

Another Egyptian feature was that the dates of "heliacal" rising of bright stars (dates of risings nearest sunrise) including at least Arcturus, Canopus, Sirius and Procyon, were recorded, alongside the 365-day calendar date or tropical date, and reign years. For a star on the ecliptic (with zero proper motion), this would be the same as recording the phase between the 365-day year and sidereal year; the phase of the 365-day year would shift with period 1425yr. For a star at the ecliptic pole, the tropical date of heliacal rising would be constant; heliacal rising, like tropical date, would shift relative to the 365-day year, with period 1508yr.

The heliacal rising of Canopus is used in calendars even today:

"claims Allen, [Canopus] was known as Karbana in the writings of an Egyptian priestly poet in the time of [Thutmose III]

"Allen claimed that the heliacal rising of Canopus `even now [1899] used in computing their [the Arabs'] year,"

- Fred Schaaf, "The Brightest Stars", pp. 107, 109 (Google book online)

"In the Gulf region the Canopus calendar, 10- day units from the late summer heliacal rising of Canopus, has long been a traditional calendrical system for Bedouins and sailors."

- Gary D. Thompson, 2007-2009 (online, members.optusnet.com.au)

Stars far from the ecliptic (e.g., Arcturus and Canopus) rise far from the point of sunrise, thus are easier to see at sunrise. Arcturus about equals Vega in brightness, i.e. "Visual magnitude" (some sources, e.g. the 1997 Pulkovo Spectrophotometric catalog, say Vega is brightest, some, e.g. the 5th ed. Bright Star Catalog, Arcturus; the slight difference depends on photometric details) but Arcturus' orange color penetrates better than Vega's blue-white, when observed at low altitude angle. Stars near the equator also might rise far from the sun if near the tropic opposite the sun (e.g., Sirius).

The ancient Egyptians had two calendars. One calendar had three seasons of four lunar months each, alternating 30 and 29 days, so the average would equal the synodic lunar month. Apparently the first day of the third season ("summer") was set at the summer solstice. There would have been eleven, or sometimes twelve extra days at the end. I call this the "tropical calendar" because it's based on the solstice (Tropics of Cancer & Capricorn).

The other calendar, apparently, was structured the same as the first, but always with a total of 365 days, whatever the current summer solstice date. I call this the "365-day calendar". The first day of this calendar was "1 Thoth" (see OA Toffteen, "Ancient Chronology", p. 180; online Google book), which shifted around the tropical year with period 1508 yrs, assuming today's tropical year of 365.24219 days. The length of the tropical year is nearly constant, because under perturbation, an orbit's major axis distance is stable to third order (conjecture of Lagrange & Poisson, proved by Tisserand) and also because Earth's precession rate has only higher-order dependency, on Earth's or Luna's small eccentricity or on Earth's nearly constant axial tilt.

Sec. 2. Finding the solstice.

The Alexandrian calendar (26/25BC; its first leap year was 22BC) of Augustus, was a Julian calendar for Egyptians. With its leap year, it fixed the old "1 Thoth" New Year of the ancient Egyptian 365-day calendar, at August 29 of the Julian calendar.

The Council of Nicaea, 325 AD, which deliberated the date of Easter, considered March 21 to be the spring equinox, hence December 21 the winter solstice. Perhaps surprisingly, this was not shifted the expected two days (one day per 128 yr) earlier than Ptolemy's winter solstice date, current in the 2nd century AD. Ptolemy (the astronomer) said, the Egyptian calendar day, 26 Choiak, is the winter solstice (James Evans, "The History and Practice of Ancient Astronomy", p. 180; online Google book). Because 1 Thoth had been standardized to August 29, 26 Choiak was December 21 (recalling that the 1st & 3rd months of any four-month Egyptian season had 30d, and the 2nd & 4th, 29).

The Julian calendar (45BC) suffered some irregular extra days at first. Wikipedia's article, "Julian Calendar", says:

"the [Roman] pontifices added a leap day every three years, instead of every four years. According to Macrobius, the error was the result of counting inclusively, so that the four-year cycle was considered as including both the first and fourth years. This resulted in too many leap days. Augustus remedied this discrepancy after 36 years by restoring the correct frequency. He also skipped several leap days in order to realign the year. The historic sequence of leap years in this period is not given explicitly by any ancient source, although the existence of the triennial leap year cycle is confirmed by an inscription that dates from 9 or 8 BC. The chronologist Joseph Scaliger established in 1583 that the Augustan reform was instituted in 8 BC, and inferred that the sequence of leap years was 42, 39, 36, 33, 30, 27, 24, 21, 18, 15, 12, 9 BC, AD 8, 12 etc. This proposal is still the most widely accepted solution."

Between 22.0 BC and 11.0 AD (after which, leap years were correct) there were 6 Julian calendar leap days instead of the necessary  $(22+11-1)/4 = 8$ . The Alexandrian calendar would have had to keep pace with the Julian calendar.

Ptolemy wrote a little later than 128yr (the time for the Julian calendar's equinox to lag a day) after the adoption of the Alexandrian calendar, so the equinox in 22BC would have been dated a net  $8-6-1=1$  days earlier than Ptolemy's, i.e., March 20, so the solstice was, most likely, June 21 (considering the effect of Earth's orbital eccentricity). Since the first leap year in the Alexandrian calendar was 22BC, it would be most accurate to consider August 29 of  $(22+4/2)=24$ BC, as 69d past the solstice.

Sec. 3. Finding "1 Thoth".

Most authors list only the three main "Sothic dates" (those of Sesostris III, Amenhotep I, and Thutmose III), though Brein (2000) lists six. One of the three main "Sothic dates" (so-called because Prof. Eduard Meyer, of the Univ. of Berlin, hypothesized in 1904 that they pertained to Sirius; which indeed one does) is:

(Ebers papyrus) Year 9 of the reign of 18th Dynasty (New Kingdom) Pharaoh Amenhotep I. It is the 9th day of the 3rd month of summer (i.e. 3rd season), i.e. 11th month of the Egyptian year.

If this refers to what I call the "tropical calendar", and if the first day of the summer season had been adjusted to be on the solstice, then Amenhotep's date is  $30+29+(9-1) = 67$ d past the solstice. In Sec. 2, I found that 1 Thoth in 24BC, was 69d past the summer solstice, when 1 Thoth was fixed by the Alexandrian calendar. Eight years earlier than Amenhotep's date, 1 Thoth would have been 69d past the solstice, if Amenhotep's date is 1 Thoth. (Amenhotep I was the pharaoh, who decided to stop building pyramids, and instead cut tombs into rock cliffs.)

According to Damien Mackey, the 4th century AD Alexandrian astronomer Theon (father of the famous pagan martyr Hypatia) said that the Alexandrian calendar began (approximately) at the end of a cycle of some kind. Now we know, what that cycle was. It was the 1508yr cycle of the Egyptian 365-day year vs. the tropical year. Amenhotep's date is 1 Thoth, in approximately the year  $24 + 1508 - 8 = 1524\text{BC}$  (so Amenhotep I's reign started 1532BC). Indeed it was recorded as "New Year's festival the heliacal rising of the Sirius [Mistranslated? Should say Arcturus? - JK] star." (Toffteen, p. 179). This year is comparable to the other estimates of Amenhotep's antiquity made by Egyptologists.

Sec. 4. Amenhotep I, Nabta, Giza and the heliacal risings of Arcturus.

Neglecting Earth's orbital eccentricity, the sun's ecliptic longitude (in the "coordinates of the ecliptic of date") on Amenhotep's date, would be  $90 + 67 \cdot 360 / 365.25 = 156.0$ . To correct for eccentricity, I find Earth's longitude of perihelion at 103 (today's value) -  $(2000 + 1524) \cdot (1/25785 + 1/112000) \cdot 360 = 42$ . The eccentricity correction to the sun's longitude is, by Simpson's rule,

$$(156 - 90) \cdot 2 \cdot 0.017 \cdot (\cos(90 + 42)/6 + \cos(90 + 42 - 66)/6 + \cos(90 + 42 - 33)/1.5) = -0.3\text{deg}$$

and the corrected longitude is 155.7.

The Egyptians are said to have observed the stars, from observatories in Memphis and Heliopolis (both near Giza, 29.979N), from the desert near Hierakonpolis, from Thebes, from various shrines in upper Egypt, and from Elephantine Island. I'll start by assuming it's Elephantine Island: that was an important commercial, military and religious site during the New Kingdom, and it's on the Tropic of Cancer (exactly so, at ~ 4000BC, according to the formula in the 1990 Astronomical Almanac). Considering refraction, and measuring to the top of the sun disk, in 1524BC at Elephantine I., 24.1N, the apparent heliacal rising of Arcturus would occur with the sun at longitude 153.16, 2.5deg too little. (The details of my calculation are in Sec. 9.)

My calculated difference in Arcturus' heliacal rising at Giza vs. Elephantine, in 1524BC, is -5.01 degrees of sun longitude, for the +5.88 degrees of latitude separation on the ground. So, moving 1.60 degrees farther south, would change the sun's longitude at the heliacal rising, from 153.16 to 154.52; only a day before 1 Thoth. So, Egyptian astronomers consistently made this observation from a point about 1.6 degrees of latitude south of Elephantine, near the northern edge of the Nubian desert: namely, Nabta, 22.5N (warning: the Nature article describing Nabta, though excellent in substance and highly recommended overall, contains some numerical errors involving an erroneous distance scale on their main map).

The farther south the observer, the more vertical the rising of the sun and Arcturus, so the smaller the gross or net effects of atmospheric refraction. The Nabta megaliths are a Stonehenge-like structure, dated 4000-4500BC, over a mile in size, whose alignment even now displays sometimes as good as one-arcminute accuracy.

Thus for Amenhotep the cycle is marked, not by the seasons, but by a kind of sidereal year based on one star: not Sirius as for the Sothic year of Eduard Meyer, but the "Arcturian year".

Expressing the sun's longitude at heliacal rising, as a quadratic function of time (and assuming the Egyptians made no refraction correction, nor did Arcturus' proper motion change), and integrating, I find that Arcturus' heliacal rising, on 1 Thoth, two cycles before Amenhotep, was 4328BC, if the observation was made at Nabta.

Because of Arcturus' large southward proper motion, the two cycles before Amenhotep average a mere 1402yr apiece. The match, to what follows, is precise enough to prove that Arcturus' average proper motion was about the same from 4328BC to 1524BC, as from 1524BC to 2000AD, and as today at 2000AD. This "Year 1" is 6339yr before 2012 (see Sec. 8).

I find that the heliacal rising of Arcturus from Giza (not Elephantine I.) at 4328BC occurred with the sun at longitude 90.19, assuming the Egyptians used the top of the sun and made no refraction correction. The heliacal rising of Canopus from Elephantine in the same year, was with the sun at longitude 90.32. If the Egyptians had used the center of the sun, both these longitudes would be  $\sim 1/4$  deg less: that is, in the founding year of the Egyptian calendar, on the summer solstice, Arcturus rose heliacally on-center with the sun, on the 30N parallel, and Canopus rose heliacally on-center with the sun, on the Tropic of Cancer.

At 4328BC, the sun longitude at heliacal rising for Arcturus differed 10 deg between Upper and Lower Egypt; Canopus differed 20deg. Upper Egypt apparently avoided this latitude-associative ambiguity altogether, by making their calendar's Day 1 (1 Thoth), simply the heliacal rising of Arcturus at Nabta, 14 days after the summer solstice.

Sec. 5. Sesostri III and the heliacal rising of Procyon.

Generally, any bright star will rise heliacally nearest 1 Thoth, only for four consecutive years, about every 1400 or 1500 yr. There are only a few convenient first-magnitude stars: some are too near the ecliptic, in the sun's glare; and at any epoch of precession, some are too far south ever to rise in Egypt. Hence some observations would be made on days of the 365-day calendar, other than 1 Thoth.

The earliest of the three main known "Sothic dates" is:

(Kahun papyrus, a.k.a. Lahun papyrus) Year 7 of the reign of 12th Dynasty (Middle Kingdom) Pharaoh Sesostri III. It is the 16th day of the 4th month of "winter" (i.e. 2nd season), i.e. 8th month of the Egyptian year.

Suppose this observation were made, not on any special day (like 1 Thoth) of the 365-day calendar, but rather at a special epoch, namely, when 1 Pachons, the eventual nominal first day of summer of the 365-day calendar, fell on the summer solstice. (Likewise our Christmas Day falls on the eventual nominal first day of winter as fixed in the Alexandrian calendar: 1 Tybi = 1 Thoth +  $4 \times 29.5d$  = August 29 + 118d = December 25.) Sesostri's 1 Thoth would be  $4 \times 29.5 +$

$(365 - 12 \times 29.5) = 129$ d past the summer solstice. So, by comparison with Amenhotep, the year of Sesostris' "Sothic" (or rather, Procyonic) date is  $1524 + (129 - 67)/365.25 \times 1508 = 1780$ BC (so, the reign of Sesostris III began 1786BC). This is a century later than usually supposed, but Egyptologists think Middle Kingdom dates are uncertain anyway, and they largely have been based on the supposed Sirius risings, which the research in this article supplants.

Suppose that, like Amenhotep's date given in the Ebers papyrus, Sesostris' date given in the Kahun papyrus, is a tropical date with 1 Pachons set to the summer solstice. The date would be  $(29 + 1 - 16) = 14$ d before the summer solstice. Neglecting Earth's orbital eccentricity, the sun's ecliptic longitude (in the "coordinates of the ecliptic of date") on this date, would be  $90 - 14 \times 360/365 = 76.2$ . To correct for eccentricity, find Earth's longitude of perihelion at 103 (today's value) -  $(2000 + 1780) \times (1/25785 \text{ for equinox precession} + 1/112000 \text{ for perihelion advance}) \times 360 = 38$ .  $\cos(76 + 14/2 - 180 - 38) \times 2 \times 0.017 \times 13.8 = -0.3$ , so the corrected longitude is 76.5.

From Elephantine I., the sun's longitude at the apparent (top, of sun, at horizon) heliacal rising of Procyon, for 1780BC, is 74.52deg. Interpolating the year, in the table at the end of Sec. 9, the difference Giza - Elephantine is 2.41, so for Cynopolis at 28.30N (see Sec. 6) the heliacal rising of Procyon in 1780BC occurs when the sun's longitude is 76.24.

Sec. 6. Thutmose III and the heliacal rising of Sirius.

The latest of the three main "Sothic dates" is:

Year ? (the reign year has been broken off the tablet, according to Toffteen, p. 181) of the reign of 18th Dynasty (New Kingdom) Pharaoh Thutmose III. It is the 28th day of the 3rd month of "summer" (i.e. 3rd season), i.e. 11th month of the Egyptian year.

Toffteen translates the text as "Sirius festival". This time, the star really was Sirius, if the date refers not to the tropical calendar (as for the other two main Sothic dates) but instead, to the shifting 365-day calendar. (The same emendation might repair the two contradictory lunar dates from this reign, which have produced three schools of thought among Egyptologists, that Thutmose III's 54-year reign began 1504, 1490 or 1479BC. See RE Parker, JNES 16:39+, 1957, cited by LW Casperson, "The Lunar Dates of Thutmose III", in the JSTOR online archives; and, Cline & O'Connor, "Thutmose III", Google book online.)

This Sothic date is about 1422BC (more precisely, 1424BC; see below): it is  $29.5 \times 10 + 27 = 322$ d past, not the the first day of the tropical calendar, but rather, past 1 Thoth. In turn, 1 Thoth is  $67 - (1524 - 1422)/1508 \times 365.25$ d past the summer solstice, so Thutmose's date is net 364.3d past the summer solstice, and the sun is at longitude 89.1.

Luckily, near this century, the longitude of the sun, at the heliacal rising of Sirius, is practically independent of latitude in Egypt. For Giza in 1422BC it's 89.66 and at Elephantine, 89.69. This date in 1422BC is a heliacal rising of Sirius on the summer solstice throughout Egypt, an event even rarer than the heliacal rising of Arcturus on the summer solstice on the 30N parallel in 4328BC.

This heliacal rising of Sirius was recorded so carefully, in part because it occurred on the solstice, and because it was simultaneous throughout Egypt; but, those both are conditions that last about a century (due to the small difference between the tropical and sidereal years). Unlike the 4328BC rising of Arcturus, Thutmose's date is decades away from exact coincidence, of heliacal rising with solstice, anywhere in Egypt.

Like Amenhotep's rising of Arcturus, Thutmose's rising of Sirius was recorded because it occurred on the shifting 365-day calendar date, of the heliacal rising of Sirius somewhere in Egypt in the foundation year 4328BC. Using the same quadratic approximation and integral calculus method as for Arcturus, I find that for Giza observations, two Sothic cycles before this 1422BC rising, would be 4338BC (2 * average 1458 yr Sothic cycles ago). For Elephantine, I find 4302BC (2 * average 1440 yr Sothic cycles ago). By interpolation, consistency with the 4328BC founding date, occurs for an original "Dog Star" observatory at 28.35N.

Indeed the latitude of Cynopolis (literally "Dog City") (Egyptian name: Hardai) is 28deg18' = 28.30deg N (Rawlinson, "History of Ancient Egypt", p. 16; online Google book). This was the city of the divine jackal Anubis and his wife Anput. It had a cemetery for dogs. It is said to be the original breeding site of dogs like the Great Dane.

When integrating the shift, in days, of the 365-day year, I simply multiply the change in sun longitude of the star's heliacal rising, by 365.25/360. For Arcturus, the eccentricity correction needed for this, because that sun longitude ranged from 96 (in 4328BC) to 96-9(perihelion gain vs. sidereal)+11( Arcturus' rising's gain vs. sidereal) more than the perihelion, is 0.3d, so the calendar's Year 1 would be, more precisely, 4329BC.

For Sirius, the corresponding figure is 46 (in 1422BC) to 46+9+17, which adds 24deg*0.034* cos(59) = 0.4d of shift (because Earth has slower angular speed near aphelion). This makes the length of time needed, ~ 2yr less. So, the more precise year is 1422+2+(4329- 4328) = 1425BC, and the sun's longitude on this 365-day calendar date is 89.1 + 0.7 = 89.8.

Sec. 7. The Festival Year of Seti I.

Cerny, Journal of Egyptian Archaeology 47:150+, 1961, quotes Seti's inscription:

"Year 1, 1st month of winter, day 1, beginning of perpetuity."

Amenhotep's date proves that originally in ~ 4329BC, 1 Thoth was 14 days past the summer solstice at Nabta, thus the 15th day of what eventually was called the third season. As it shifted backward through the tropical year, it seems subsequently to have been renamed the *first* day of the third season, then the first day of the *second* season (winter, to which Seti refers). Still later it was renamed the first day of the so-called *first* season. In the shifting 365-day calendar, 1 Thoth migrates through all the seasons anyway.

Seti's festival year might have been two tropical cycles after the founding year. That is, 1 Thoth returned yet again to its original ecliptic longitude, giving Seti's year as  $4329\text{BC} + 2 \times 1508 = 1313\text{BC}$ .

This is near the date oftenest given by Egyptologists, because it is about one of their standardized 1460yr (or 1463yr) Sothic cycles before the  $\sim 139\text{AD}$  cycle end mentioned by Censorinus. More precisely, using quadratic approximation and integral calculus again, I find that this Sothic (i.e., of Sirius) cycle really is 1454yr, from 1313BC to 142AD (the eccentricity correction of Sec. 6, makes this 1453yr and 141AD). Censorinus had defined the cycle end, only as "100yr" (generally for Romans, time intervals were inclusive, e.g., "4 yr before 143AD" meant "140AD") before 238AD, the time of his writing; the round number suggests it was known only vaguely or ambiguously. The Romans commemorated this cycle with a coin in 143AD (Wilbur Jones, "Venus and Sothis", p. 79).

For Seti's cycle, two tropical cycles led to one Sirius cycle; then came oblivion, until now! For Thutmose, it was two Sirius cycles and then oblivion. For Amenhotep, it was two Arcturus cycles, one tropical cycle and then oblivion.

Sec. 8. Barbarossa.

The planet I discovered, Barbarossa, according to my best estimate based on all four sky survey points 1954-1997, has orbital period 6340yr. The Egyptian calendar foundation year 4329BC, is 6340yr before 2012AD, the end of the Mayan calendar cycle. The end of this longest Mayan (5125 year) cycle, falls on the winter solstice (such a long-range solstice forecast would require astronomical knowledge about as good as that of 16th century Europe). A Mayan monument announces that then "Bolon descends" who has "nine colleagues" (Barbarossa's Declination and ecliptic latitude will be decreasing, and its Declination, will be less than last time due to Earth's axis precession; another meaning of "descent" might be the sudden decrease in Declination due to a decrease in Earth's obliquity last time; see below). From lake varves, Brauer et al have determined the sudden onset of the Younger Dryas cooling, at least in Europe, to the year, at  $12683 = 6341.5 \times 2$  yr before 2012.

The heliacal rising of Arcturus, the most convenient star for such observations, at the summer solstice, would occur at intervals of approx. 25,785 yr (Newcomb's determination of the period corresponding to Earth's tropical minus sidereal orbital frequency). This occurrence on the 30th parallel, centrally located at the apex of the Nile delta, would seem enough reason to found a calendar, especially with Canopus rising heliacally on the solstice at Elephantine the same year.

Usually the sun's longitude at a star's heliacal rising, differs 5 or 10 deg between Upper & Lower Egypt. The recorded dates discussed above, show that at least four favorite stars were observed on or near the summer solstice during the 42deg of precession from 4300 to 1300 BC. With a favorite star, on the average every ten degrees of longitude, often as not at least one would be rising heliacally on the summer solstice somewhere in Egypt. For two to do so, is only mildly unusual, but for their locations to be the 30N parallel (Arcturus) and the Tropic of Cancer (Canopus) is suspicious.

If two stars happen to rise heliacally on the same day (i.e., both rise heliacally with sun longitude in the range, say, 89.50 to 90.50), the root-mean-square difference in the sun longitudes is 0.4deg. Arcturus at Giza (0.021deg S of 30N) and Canopus at Elephantine (est. from Astronomical Almanac obliquity polynomial, 0.04deg S of Tropic of Cancer in 4329BC) differ, in the calendar's Year 1, only  $90.17 - 90.31 = -0.14$ , though correction to exactly 30N and to the predicted Tropic, degrades this to -0.33.

Either star in the preceding paragraph, if the sun longitude is corrected to sun-center rising rather than sun-top rising, should have its sun longitude randomly in the range ~89.24 to ~90.24 (assuming the sun and star atmospheric corrections roughly cancel). Yet these correct to 89.91 & 90.05 (though correction to "exactly 30N" and to *our predicted* Tropic, changes this to 89.87 & 90.20).

The summer solstice heliacal risings of Arcturus & Canopus at two different Egypt sites in 4329BC, might be luck were it not for the nearly exact equality of the sun's longitude at sun-center heliacal rising, to 90.0deg, for Arcturus & Canopus at the 30N parallel and the Tropic of Cancer, resp. This seems to reveal a new physical phenomenon. Maybe an unknown (not inverse square law) force exerted by these nearby giant stars, stabilized Earth's axis, after some disturbance, in a new position constrained by geometric relations described as heliacal rising at 30th parallel and Tropic. Another such unexplained geometric relation, the equal (in absolute value) latitudes of Hawaii, Mt. Olympus on Mars, and Jupiter's Great Red Spot, already is known (mentioned by Richard Hoagland on the "Coast to Coast AM" radio show).

I find that the azimuths of the two lines connecting the three Great Pyramids (according to Petrie's survey) match the projection of Orion's Belt (reflected EW) from the top of a stick, for one direction of Earth's axis. The obliquity of this direction is 27.95deg, not 23.45 as today.

Maybe stabilization by Arcturus and Canopus, happened to Mars too. As an approximation, let's assume Mars' orbital plane is the same as Earth's, take the Declination of Mars' N pole as 52.92deg (2009 Astronomical Almanac), take the ecliptic latitude of Mars' N pole 90deg minus 23deg59', and find the difference in ecliptic longitude of Earth's and Mars' axes by spherical trigonometry. Then the net precession  $1/25771.5 - 1/171000$ , implies opposite axis tilts ~6375yr before 2012: Arcturus and Canopus would have risen heliacally near Mars' 30N & Tropic of Cancer, but at Mars' winter, not summer, solstice.

I propose that these solstice heliacal risings were not luck, but rather were the result of an unknown physical force associated with the orbital period of my distant hyperjovian planet, Barbarossa (which never comes near Earth; see my posts to the messageboard of Dr. Tom Van Flandern, for details). Comet swarms in 1:1 orbital resonance with Barbarossa might also have a role.

Arcturus' proper motion is greater than that of any other first-magnitude star visible from Egypt. The most important component of its proper motion, is the decreasing Declination, which increases the sun longitude of heliacal rising, so the difference between the 365-day and Arcturian years is abnormally large, and the length of the Arcturian vs. 365-day cycle abnormally short. Another suspicious fact about Arcturus, is that it is almost the closest "giant" (i.e., Spectral Type III) star to the sun, only slightly farther than Pollux, and believed to be considerably more massive than Pollux. Similarly, Canopus is the second-closest "supergiant" (i.e., Type I or II) star to the sun.

Above, I suggested that Seti's reference to "1st month of winter, day 1" revealed only that 1 Thoth, originally the first day of the "third" or summer season, later was called the first day of the "second" or winter season, and then the first day of the "first" season which was neither winter nor summer, where it stayed, having slipped backward to the beginning of the calendar. In the 365-day calendar, there would be a tendency over the centuries to change the name of the season, of which 1 Thoth was first day, as its season in the tropical year moved backward. This would seem to be enough reason for Seti, in some context or other, to call 1 Thoth the first day of winter, but there is another, more speculative, explanation.

This other explanation is, that c. 4329BC, when Barbarossa presumably attained a special position in its orbit, an unknown physical interaction occurred which caused Earth changes and also illuminated Barbarossa. If Barbarossa were visible for many years, the Egyptians (or Atlanteans?) might have been able to determine its orbital period. They would notice and record any calendrical markers of the year of recurrence. Maybe the marker, is when the heliacal rising of Arcturus at Nabta occurs on the original 365-day calendar's first (in some sense) day of winter.

When 1 Thoth originally, in Upper Egypt, equalled our June 22 summer solstice + 14d, 1 Phamenoth equalled our December 30, almost New Year's Eve. At the Egyptian calendar's foundation, 1 Phamenoth was a rough approximation of the winter solstice. Suppose Arcturus rises heliacally on 1 Phamenoth in 2012AD. Relative to Arcturus' heliacal rising, 1 Thoth must regress  $4 \times 365.24 + 177$  d since the foundation. The Arcturus term in my integral must be adjusted only -0.09deg to account for eccentricity. The result for Nabta is 1614.55 "mean degrees", which gives 6344yr at Nabta.

So, at Nabta in 2012AD, Arcturus rises heliacally only a day before 1 Phamenoth, the original rough winter solstice of the ancient Egyptian 365-day calendar. (Likewise Arcturus rose a day before 1 Thoth in 1524BC; these discrepancies might be due to the same error.) This is the origin of the association of "Bolon" (Barbarossa? or merely Arcturus?) with the winter solstice, in 2012, in the Mayan calendar. The Egyptian calendar contains Hermetic knowledge, about the period of Barbarossa, and the period of climate change cycles, including the Younger Dryas.

Sec. 9. Calculation of heliacal risings and settings.

I took star positions and proper motions from the current (May, 2009) online Vizier version of the Bright Star Catalog, 5th ed. The proper motions in RA refer to linear arcseconds, not fifteenths of seconds of Right Ascension; so in extrapolating RA, they need to be multiplied by  $\sec(\phi)$ , where  $\phi$  is the midrange of the base and extrapolated Declinations. After extrapolating the proper motion, I found the celestial coordinates in the equinoxes of date for 2000.0AD, for 1001.0BC, and for 4001.0BC, using the rigorous formulas of the 1990 Astronomical Almanac, p. B18. I also found Earth's obliquity for those years, using the polynomial on the same page.

No computer program was used. All calculations were on one Texas Instruments 30X IIS calculator, made in China.

The remaining calculations, to find the sun's longitude at heliacal rising of the star, consisted of using one spherical trigonometry formula (see, e.g., the CRC Math tables):

$$\cos(a) = \cos(b) \cdot \cos(c) + \sin(b) \cdot \sin(c) \cdot \cos(A)$$

(this is the vector dot product in spherical coordinates) four times in three spherical triangles:

1) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the star's codeclination, the observer's colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the star's sub-rising point (90.5667deg, using the 34 arcminute average atmospheric refraction given by Stephen Daniels, www.astronomy.net, 1999, online). Here I found the vertex angle, and hence the Right Ascension of the observer's zenith.

2) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the segment from Earth's N pole to the ecliptic N pole, the observer's colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the point beneath the N ecliptic pole (observer's ecliptic colatitude); here I found the last of these, thence the ecliptic longitude of the observer's zenith, mindful of the signs of angles.

3) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the sun's ecliptic colatitude (always exactly 90degrees), the observer's ecliptic colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the sub-suncenter point for suntop rise (90.8250deg, using the 34 arcminute average atmospheric refraction cited above, and also an average sun semidiameter of 0.5*31 arcmin).

All observer terrestrial latitudes are geographic. I estimate that the effect of Earth's polar flattening, is negligible. The final correction to the sun's longitude, for the parallax caused by Earth's radius, was -0.0019deg at Giza and -0.0020deg at Elephantine Island.

The sun longitudes for 2000.0AD, 1001.0BC & 4001.0BC always were interpolated with the unique second degree polynomial, with time as abscissa (see, e.g., Stirling's interpolation formula, CRC Math tables). Other, less important estimates throughout this paper, were made with sufficient accuracy using convenient linear or quadratic interpolation schemes. I found "Sothic"-type rising cycle periods, by integrating, with variable limits, the increase in sun longitude at rising, in coordinates of equinox of date (given by a quadratic interpolant), plus the gain of the equinox vs. the 365-day point. Sun longitudes are for exact heliacal rising somewhere on the relevant parallel.

The format below lists the longitudes for 2000.0AD, 1001.0BC, 4001.0BC:

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Arcturus:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N, bronze plaque on Cheops' pyramid, per GPS by Lehner)
199.6386, 157.2941, 97.7240

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N, according to Tompkins, "Secrets of the Great Pyramid", p. 179)

202.9072, 161.6498, 107.6906

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Procyon:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)

121.9500, 86.1111, 51.0502

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)

120.1393, 83.8767, 48.0433

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Sirius:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)

121.3902, 93.3560, 68.3317

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)

117.0431, 93.7134, 61.0702

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Canopus:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)

149.3027, 136.9634, 116.0721

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)

136.4925, 123.3116, 94.4229

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29078|2009-06-04 16:24:43|clyde winters|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

Teach On.....

Clyde

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 8:03 PM

With all due respect to indigenous people here in the United States, Australia, China, etc. it is not a slap in the face to remember and honor a people from whom such a beautiful culture was shared. A slap in the face to Native Americans is having their land stolen from broken treaties, being moved to reservations, having toxic waste dumped in their water supply by corporations, and having loved ones killed by small pox. ( I do not think the Ancient Egyptians carried out such harmful acts). It is a slap in the face for Ancient Egyptians to have their culture stolen, and replicated without being given proper credit, e.g. all Greek knowledge originated in Ancient Kemet - but that is not taught in our school, the back of the US dollar bill has Ancient Egyptian symbolism - but credit is not given to the originators of the symbolism, Anthony Browder gives a tour of Washington D. C. and all of it many Ancient Egyptian landscapes - to include the Washington Monument, etc. Many cultures and societies are designed according to Ancient Egyptian symbolism, but the actual Actual Ancient Egyptians are forgotten & their descendents are forced to live in poverty, and are denied the knowledge of their own ancestors - their own Divine Lineage - That is a slap in the face.

Ancient Egyptians are constantly "slapped in the face" by being portrayed as caucasian (remember Liz Taylor's performance as an Ancient Egyptian Queen); also by having their knowledge stolen, their sacred libraries burned to the ground, their sacred treasures stolen and housed under the Vatican, as well as having their many burial grounds desecrated for the benefit of science.

Ancient Egyptians may have taught the world about many things, pyramid building included, but I doubt they spread hatred, genocide, false democracy, diseases, rape, theft, the threat of nuclear war, etc. unlike those that came over on the Mayflower.

How often does one see the Chinese give honor to their indigenous Black populations? The world does not even know about Black Chinese people. (they keep them well hidden, and well marginalized) How often are images of the many Black Buddha statues all throughout Asia shown to the world? That is a slap in the face. Even Chinese Pyramids were kept well hidden for decades. How many people worldwide know that the Dogon of Mali knew of astronomical bodies, alignments, etc. without the use of modern scientific equipment, and for centuries before any European contact? (Much of this knowledge corresponds to the Ancient Egyptian alignments of Pyramids) And if I am not mistaken, aren't the so-called Ab-Originals of Australia are Black people?

There also exists a history of Native Americans living in harmony with Black people, Asian people, etc but that too has been stolen and suppressed. The truth about Ancient America is not about disrespecting anyone, but more about giving proper credit, honor, and respect where it is due. Ancestor veneration is integral to many Asian, Native American, and African cultures. We have more in common that what has been taught in school.

I say, let's spend more time honoring those who brought forth civilization, and let karma take care of the rest.

Peace,

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:05 PM

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my

"already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled California?. All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australian aboriginees chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it without AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks at the A.E. teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E. in north amer. and australian there is not a lot of proof for such an assertion.

i have yet to read The black discovery of america by M. Bradley

an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this to be diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

---

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29079|2009-06-04 16:24:43|kyasa529|Poem for Ivan Van Sertima|
Samba Rhythms to a Great Noble Champion of Historical Truth

Hail to the Great Scholar Ivan Van Sertima
You lifted the cataract of the euro-induced myopia

Your letter of introduction to the "royal academy"
was a tremendous boon to authentic historiography.

We salute your father's literary treasure trove
which you gleaned its latent secrets as you strove.

We are the beneficiaries of your tenacious sagacity
As we uphold the banner of vindication and veracity.

We reveled in the grandeur of Abubakari II's Journey
We healed our tortured psyches with Anta Diop's Legacy.

We gorged our intellectual appetites on Blacks in Science's profundity
While we fell deeper in love with the classic Black Women in Antiquity.

The Journals of African Civilization were like plasma for astral bodies
As your treatise, The Golden Age of Moors rescued us from the "Renaissance" follies.

We know the Illustrious Ancestors have cleared your path to the Land of Amen
As your prodigious body of work is an awe -inspiring, sacredly eternal Hymn.

Bomani Kyasa June 1, 2009

| 29080|2009-06-04 16:25:08|clyde winters|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has
been decyphered?|

Asar

Your questions are quite interesting. In your post you wonder:

- 1) Why would Egyptians abandon a script they used for 3000 years and replace it with Greek. ;
- 2) Coptic lacks an African character, this is most evident in the identification of indefinite and definite articles;
- 3) Egyptian died out years ago, what are the phonemics of Egyptian.

The first thing you have to realize is that the history of writing in Egypt presented by Europeans is probably incorrect. In this history writing in Egypt begins with the Hierglyphics and moves forward to Hieratic and Demotic. This view is probably wrong.

It is obvious that the Dynastic Egyptians probably use a syllabic script modeled on the Libyco-Berber writing given the engravings found on Egyptian ceramics.

We have to acknowledge two writing traditions in Egypt: the writing of the Anu and the writing system introduced by the Dynastic Egyptians.

The first rulers of Egypt were the Anu. The Anu or pygmies ruled much of the world before the great flood which occurred sometime before 4000BC. The Anu probably invented Egyptian Hieroglyphics and the Cuneiform writing system of Mesopotamia.

The Dynastic Egyptians were probably Proto-Saharans. The Proto-Saharans lived in the highland regions of the Sahara, and after the great flood as the marshlands began to dry up these people moved down into the Low lands. The Proto-Saharans used a syllabic writing system. They engraved these signs on their pottery.

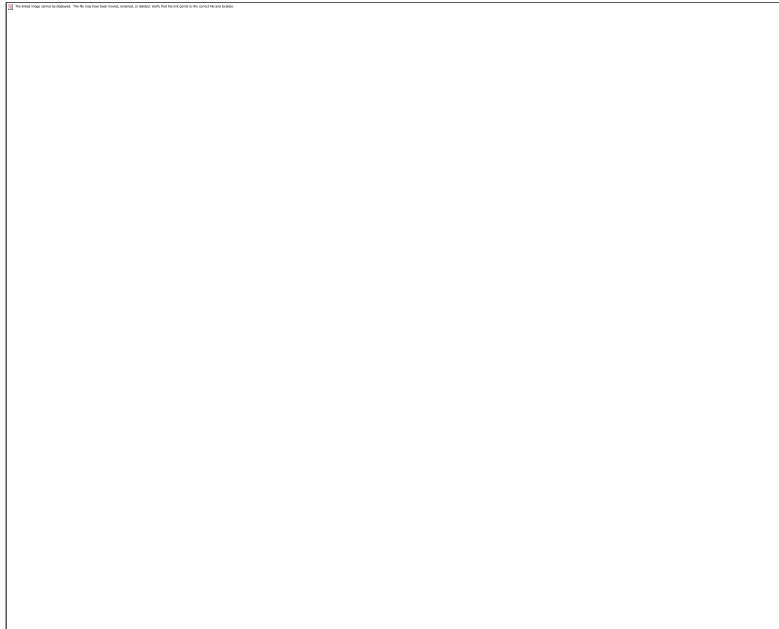

They also used these signs to engrave rocks like the Seth Inscription.

The Proto-Saharans took this writing with them up the Nile. After conquering the Anu the Dynastic Egyptians used Hieroglyphics, while they continued to use the Proto-Saharan script to write on their pottery. The Egyptian tradition of syllabic writing is also evident in the Thinite signs:

and the Gebel Sheikh inscription:

Eventhough the Dynastic Egyptians used the Anu writing for formal documents they used their syllabic script mainly Thinite to invent Hieratic and later Demotic writing. This is why we fail to see a direct link between hieroglyphic and the cursive Egyptian scripts. Lets, not forget that it was an Egyptian who invented Arabic. Thus Arabic has little similarity to the other Semitic scripts.

Africa is a continent of numerous ethnic groups who speak distinct languages. Often you find people speaking different languages living side by side. To insure communicate the people have developed a lingua franca.

Egypt was divided into nomes. Each nomehad its own leader and the people worshipped their own gods. This suggest to me that people living in the Nomes may have been diverse ethnic groups. If this is so, Egyptian was simply a national language like Swahili in Tanzania , which has minority groups that speak other languages including various Bantu languages; or like the India , where people speak a myriad of languages but English and Hindi provide the people of India with a common means of communication.

As a result, Egyptian was used as low as the political situation made the language a neutral language which did not favor one group or the other. As a result, when the Greeks and Romans came to power over time they replaced Egyptian with Greek and Latin.

The same thing occurred in the Meroitic empire. Egyptian was the lingua franca of Meroe . But after the Romans began to push more and more Egyptians out of Egypt into Meroitic territory the Meroites abandoned Egyptian, for Tocharian and the Kharosthi script since the Buddist of Upper Egypt and Meroe were already using this language to write their spiritual knowledge.

Although you see Coptic as a non-African language researchers have made it clear that Coptic is related to many African languages including Mande and Fula. The problem we have is that many researchers in the English speaking world are unfamiliar with French literature that has been used by Diop and other linguist to prove the close , genetic relationship between African and Egyptian since the research of Homburger.

As a result, English speakers interested in studying the relationship between Egyptian and African languages believe they lack a methodology to conduct research in this area and feel they have to develop their own methodology. The was true when I began writing on comparative linguistic research back in the 1980s. But this is no longer true because I have outlined traditional Afrocentric linguistic methods which can inform your research. I have written two documents which can help you understand Afrocentric methodology. The first explains the Afrocentric Social Sciences:

<http://www.geocities.com/Athens/Academy/8919/structure.htm>

In the second document I explain how Afrocentric researchers conduct linguistic research:

<http://www.geocities.com/Athens/Academy/8919/ling.htm>

Finally the answers to your questions are as follows,

- 1) we may never know the exact pronunciation of ancient Egyptian but Coptic is probably a good representative of how the language was probably spoken by some ancient Egyptians;
- 2) Coptic is related to other African languages;
- 3) Egyptians probably abandoned Egyptian because the political climate changed in Egypt and non-Europeans substituted their own language for Egyptian as is the right of all conquerors.

You can check out my page on the history of writing here:

<http://www.geocities.com/Tokyo/Bay/7051/anwrite.htm>

Clyde

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:15 PM

Peace Dr. Winters

Thanks for your response. What I am trying to figure out is why would the Africans abandon scripts they have been using for over 3000 years? It makes no sense to have scripts that are adequate to convey messages in your own language to abandon them for the Greek letters.

If the ancient Egyptians can come up with over 800 glyphs, would it be impossible for them to simply create 5 to 8 more glyphs for the vowel sounds? It just doesn't make sense. My hunch is that the creators of the Coptic script weren't Egyptian. Why would you use a foreign script although we know its Kharoshthi, to write in your own language, when all you had to do was create about 5 more glyphs? When I compare some of the lexical items of Coptic and other African languages, it lacks an African character which I can't put into words. In Coptic you have definite and indefinite articles which middle Egyptian doesn't have which tells me that it was adapted in such a way as to communicate with non-Africans.

If there are efforts today to "revitalize" the language, wouldn't that mean that the language originally spoken died out, which means that they really don't know 100% how the language sounds? If that is true, then what does that say about the phonemics of Egyptian, if it is based on a language scholars are still trying to piece together? I don't know, just questions.

Also,

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 7:42 AM

Hi Asar

The values for Egyptian have changed because our knowledge of Coptic has changed. In the beginning Champollion found that you could interpret Egyptian using the Greek phonetic values. as a result, he probably attempted to interpret Egyptian by looking for words in Coptic, that matched the Greek phonemics.

As Egyptologist knowledge of Coptic advanced researchers abandoned the use of Greek phonemics to interpret Egyptian lexical items. Instead of using Greek phonemics, Coptic phonemics were used which led to resulting changes in how Egyptian words were interpreted in Champollion's day and today. This is why no Egyptologist interested in the Egyptian language would study the language without first gaining a background in Coptic.

In summary, phonemics values of Egyptian have changed because they agree with Coptic, the cognate language of ancient Egyptian.

Clyde

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 7:08 PM

I appreciate it Paul

However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU

---

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 10:15 PM

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace Phamily

>

> Is there anyone of you who could lead me in the direction of any material that could shed light on how Egyptologists came to the conclusion of what signs carry what phonetic value? I am familiar with Champollions decyphermment, but I am interested in the follow-up work which decided that this means this sound and that means that sound, etc.

>

> Can anyone help me?

>
> Asar Imhotep
> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>
>

Asar, check out this page and the following linked ones:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/ancient/egyptians/decipherment\_03.shtml

This should give you a pretty good lead on whose works to look for.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29081|2009-06-04 17:50:17|Tafari khumbaka|is the Congo the worst place on earth?|

Play

Conflict leaves Congo's fertile land fallow

AFP via Yahoo! News-May 13 2:53 AM

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29082|2009-06-04 18:07:01|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: From Java for Saturday 1 pm.-10 pm|

Attachments :

JPEG FRONT PCARD JJJ.jpg

JPEG BACK PCARD JJJ.jpg

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 6/4/09, JavaJohari@aol.com wrote:

From: JavaJohari@aol.com

Subject: Fwd: From Java for Saturday 1 pm.-10 pm

To: gmw0417@yahoo.com, adansteele@yahoo.com, AUSAR65@aol.com, exhumingofanation@hotmail.com, diaporadoll@hotmail.com,

beverley_dickey@yahoo.com, dkofie@yahoo.com, Wizexs@yahoo.com
Cc: alandas@nsightmemphis.com, feferachelle227@yahoo.com,
Fredjones4@att.net, crystalngilcrest@yahoo.com, harrellandassao@att.net, Thothman81@bellsouth.net, Afrikannubian@aol.com, ENetCPA@aol.com, mikii2u@yahoo.com, HoyleC@hotmail.com, sailizenzele@yahoo.com, sexyfatmata@hotmail.com, neosoulville@gmail.com, Yo_Gary17@hotmail.com, fredjones4@comcast.net, Tony.a.jones@hotmail.com, DJordan219@Yahoo.com, m.jones.42@hotmail.com, roykent@yahoo.com, directconnect08@gmail.com, fumilayoagala@yahoo.com, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com, Kinglarse@yahoo.com, marcus_jordan@cable.comcast.com, lisalardell8@yahoo.com, angela-morrow@comcast.net, kmorrow78@hotmail.com, oojamaa@gmail.com, sadio.butterfly@Yahoo.com, meltayhr@yahoo.com,
tripwithstephanie@yahoo.com, vrainette@Yahoo.com, aikmic@yahoo.com
Date: Thursday, June 4, 2009, 7:22 PM

Come!, Meet, Greet, Dine, Relax, Enjoy all Day Festivities!
1:00-4:00pm Jazz Set: Soft Fire Dou and Friends, Vocalists, Poets (Sophia), Dancers!
4:00-6:30 Lecture: Elihu Pleasant Bey--"The Nations of Black America: Moors, Choctaw, Cherokee, etc."
7:00 until Jazz & R & B---Blue, Nia, Lady G, Mike, Muslima(vocalists) and Ghetto (rapper) & Other
Special Guests
See Attached and PAST THE WORD PLEASE!, ASANTE SANA, HOTE

---

We found the real 'Hotel California' and the 'Seinfeld' diner. What will you find? Explore WhereItsAt.com.

| 29083|2009-06-04 21:25:09|Asar Imhotep|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has
been decyphered?|
Greetings Dr. Winters

I appreciate your comments. I think I have read your articles listed, but I will review them again. I would like to point out that I don't think Coptic is NOT an African language. What I hypothesized is that the script used probably wasn't created to be used by native Egyptians: probably some outsiders who spoke Egyptian. I still fail to see why after 3000 years you would write in your own language using another people's script, especially if the prevailing thought was your society was the best of human societies. I speculate at the moment that the Coptic speakers who created the script were probably native Greek speakers who wrote originally in the Greek. Since they were familiar with the script, they used it to write Egyptian words and as pressures came trying to force them to convert to other spiritual traditions, it became a source of identity for the Copts. But again, these are my speculations.

As far as the nature of the pharaonic society, I agree whole heartedly. I recommend for the group if they can find the book titled Conflict of Minds by Jordan K. Ngubane of south Africa. He discusses what the Zulu call 'simultaneous legitimacy' which is a philosophy rooted in African cosmology which states that man is a self-defying being and has the right to self-definition. Each person's self-definition is simultaneously legitimate, valid and important. African traditional societies was based on this philosophy and is why the societies, even if conquered, were allowed to keep their traditions. We know this was practiced in ancient Egypt during the expansions of the 18th dynasty in to what is now Saudi Arabia: as they were allowed to keep their traditions.

This is why Akenaten was so despised because he attempted to usurp this vital African principle of simultaneous validity by making everyone abandon their local ancestral deities for his primary deity Itn (Atannu, Itango). This, and other things, caused the revolt. Menkara is famous for writing into law that the nomes could worship the way they pleased: that they were self-defining values and no man can prescribe destiny for another man.

That concept went against cosmic order and as we know that force of conflict in Egypt was called ISFT. This same term survives in among the Zulu as UZIBATHE (f > b). So it is this principle that is missing from mainstream Egyptological discourses and why many are confused by the "many gods" and multiple words for the same concept in the Egyptian language. The were autonomous nomes representing different cultures and languages. These were a result of African tradition which allows for each agmination (cluster or group) to define itself in its own self-interest and it being simultaneously valid, important and legitimate. I encourage the list to revisit the story of Tshaka Zulu. The very concept of a Zulu nation is taken right off the pages of Narmer who united upper and lower eKami. This same concept is the thrust behind the unification of China of its previous five kingdoms. It's an amazing story. But even the Zulus say they migrated from the Sudan primarily because of the drying up of the Sahara. I found this same story in the Kongo. I say this because this is why you find so many similarities of ancient Egyptian culture among people of the Kongo and among the Zulu of south Africa. Ferg brought out one of the ancient names of Egypt being BAKAA which was located in the Sudan. One of the Zulu tribes is named BHACA and they say they migrated from the Sudan. Ngubane also speculates that PUNT is really a transposition of BUNTU. All throughout his work he rarely used the word BANTU, he said BUNTU.

With that said, I don't knock the Coptic script. Just given what I know about the philosophy which drives African cultures, African people do not abandon ancestral ways on a whim. Something major has to happen. 3000 years of consistent writing in a style which they kept even during Hyksos, Persian, Greek and Roman occupation to just abandon it suddenly because it was a part of the "culture" of the times doesn't seem logical. Again, it seems more logical that some Egyptian speaking foreigners adopted and modified the script because that was their heritage. I think they followed the Arabs lead as you mentioned, it's really an Egyptian script for their language. I think the inverse happen with the Copts: that they used the Greek to speak Egyptian and if true, then we could assume that they spoke Egyptian with a Greek tongue which would render some sounds differently than a native Egyptian. But again, I'm speculating right now.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

--- On Thu, 6/4/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, June 4, 2009, 3:14 PM

| 29084|2009-06-05 09:25:57|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Check out YouTube - HANNIBAL BARCA WAS BLACK|

--- On Thu, 6/4/09, AUSAR65> wrote:

From: AUSAR65@aol.com
Subject: Check out YouTube - HANNIBAL BARCA WAS BLACK
To: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com
Date: Thursday, June 4, 2009, 5:50 PM

YouTube - HANNIBAL BARCA WAS BLACK

---

Limited Time Offers: Save big on popular laptops at Dell

| 29085|2009-06-05 11:24:31|cristofori whitakara|Fang People| is the byeri of the Fang similiar to what the Kemetians did for King Tutankamun?

| 29086|2009-06-05 14:27:21|Sekmet|OFFICIAL BLACK REPORT CARD ON OBAMA!|
<http://www.blackconsciousness.com/nvmay09.html>

There are 2 votes. One on the work that President Obama has done so far and the other on "WHAT" worries you most about the State of America. Please get that vote on. Over 28,000 votes have been received. This is one of the reasons you got your computer. It's a tool. Make it work for you. The results will be posted on June 15th. Represent you community and family well! Make one vote and have your browser go back so you can make the other. This kind of power and these kind of choices are not what the powers that "be" want you to have. TAKE ADVANTAGE NOW! THERE WAS A TIME WHEN BLACK PEOPLE WOULDN'T DARE THINK THIS WAY!

<http://www.blackconsciousness.com/nvmay09.html>

Visit this page to find out about LECTURES & EVENTS IN YOUR AREA!

<http://www.blackconsciousness.com/LecturePage.html>

| 29087|2009-06-05 14:27:23|Rahel Kassahun|AU Seeks Your Feedback|

Africa Unbound Magazine

Dear all,

Next month, we will release the first year anniversary issue of our online magazine, Africa Unbound. During this first year, we have attracted thousands of progressive individuals who are interested in exploring new ways to think about development issues in Africa. The support and inputs that we have been receiving from our members has been invaluable to us. As we move forward into our second year of publication, we would like to get your feedback on a few key issues that will help us evaluate our work. Please send us your response to the following brief survey questions.

Take this survey

Thank you for participating in our survey. We hope to see you online soon.

Sincerely,

Rahel Kassahun, Ph.D.
Africa Unbound
Founder & Editor-in-Chief
www.AfricaUnbound.com

Forward email

This email was sent to rahelkassahun@yahoo.com by rkassahun@africaunbound.com.
Update Profile/Email Address | Instant removal with SafeUnsubscribe | Privacy Policy.
Africa Unbound | P.O.Box 16836 | Arlington | VA | 22203

| 29088|2009-06-05 14:27:25|odhiambo okech|Kenyan eyes California Governors seat|
Mr Oriri,

As Kenyans, we must all support Dr Joe Mwangi in his political pursuit.

If he is short on resources, we must come together and avail the same. If he is short on strategy, we must rally behind him and each one of us provide him with our best.

All of us who believe in one Kenya must support and encourage Dr Mwangi to run.

Go on Brother, we are behind you.

Odhiambo T Oketch,
Komarock Nairobi.

--- On Thu, 6/4/09, aoriri1234@sbcglobal.net wrote:

From: aoriri1234@sbcglobal.net
Subject: Re: Kenyan eyes California Governors seat
To: bidiafrika@googlegroups.com
Date: Thursday, June 4, 2009, 1:59 PM

It nice to read about this distingiushed Kenyan but I am afraid Dr Joe Mwangi is day dreaming.

His resume and resources do not add up. He should start running for council or school board
Rev. Oriri, _USA

Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry

---

From: cedric makwaka

Date: Thu, 4 Jun 2009 10:49:34 -0400

To:

Subject: Re: Kenyan eyes California Governors seat
he is not getting that seat from the terminator

On Thu, Jun 4, 2009 at 9:24 AM, Robert Alai <alai.robert@gmail.com> wrote:

Joe Symmon
Kenyan eyes California Governors seat
By topi lyambila

Dr. Joe Mwangi Symmons - California Governor 2010.

If they thought Obama was the Omega then they are in for a thumbing!

America the Kenyans are here to stay. Love us hate us we shall be moving into a position near you. Dr. Joe Mwangi Symmon is vying for the California Govs seat. Move over Arnold!

Dr. Mwangi is a proven path-finder with quite a CV stretching from back home where he founded Abarn Homes in 1977, a realty company and worked there until 1982, before, founding Panken Insurance, an underwriting firm where he worked until 1982.

His political dalliance begun in 1979. While attending graduate school, he was elected President of the student movement in 1984.

Born and bred in Murang'a, Kenya, Dr. Mwangi reckons his defining moment in life was on June 10, 1973 when he became a Christian and then marrying wife Dr. Alycejo in 1976, with whom they have three children.

This is his story; and his vision for the people of California;

California Governor - 2010.

My name is Joe Symmon and I am running for Governor of California. I am a moral voice of change, hope and destined for greatness.

What is critical to human progress is vision seeing a future that is achievable and worth attaining. Without a vision and sound judgment, people perish. Californias political change is long overdue. And this is our moment to bring that change, to restore hope and reclaim our Golden state for ourselves and our emerging generations.

When I am Governor, I will deal with issues affecting us today with high integrity, wisdom and leading boldly by example.

Our economy will thrive, our schools and teachers will excel, and our universal health care and environmental systems will work. Static and status quo style of leadership in Sacramento will go. It is time to break the cycle of failed policies and politics. I am a visionary endowed with freshness and new ideologies. The issues that unite us are far greater than issues that divide us. As Governor I will pursue and implement these issues:

Integrity

The Governor will lead by example. The way I carry myself in private will be how I will treat others. Asserting the Golden rule at all decision making process. The immediate result of following the Golden Rule is that I will be treating other people very, very well. "And as you wish that men would do to you, do so to them." I have personally practiced this rule since my debut into politics in 1979 and during my tenure as a Graduate student president in 1984.

Moral, virtue and family values

I am married to one wife for 33 years. We have raised three biological kids and are now raising almost 200 orphans with a full-time staff of over thirty. We provide them with a home, food, education, clothing, health care. By so doing, we have ignited an unstoppable hope and destiny. Giving them an opportunity for better and responsible citizenry. A Governor ought to rule his house well before he can aspire for public office, and this I have done. Solomon said when the righteous rule, people rejoice and when the wicked are in authority, people mourn This is our time to turn the page.

Economy

Ending economic instability requires a true break with the status quo. It will not happen in the course of business as usual. My plan is to unite the leaders in Sacramento so that we can have a simple majority rule to pass the budget. Partisanship politics will be a thing of the past. I have no intention to raise taxes. My giving back plan will be rolled out in my first 100 days. California will attract businesses that migrated in the past to return, and existing businesses shall perform better. This will boost the creation of new jobs.

Education

Our high institutions of learning should be well equipped to carry out research that will advance modern technological and social changes in every sector of learning. Were experiencing cutbacks in almost every department and eventually affecting teaching profession and trickling down to students performance. As Governor, I will employ a team of technocrats and professionals to change the system. Teachers should be paid well and every effort made to motivate and retain them on the job. College students should have sufficient grants to keep them focused more in their studies rather than have them work two or three jobs. Many have snoozed and died on the wheel working multiple shifts.

Environment

We should harness the sun and the wind to produce sufficient energy to run our vehicles and industries.

| 29089|2009-06-05 14:27:40|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from west to east (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the possibility of an earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and have read that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants from Lemuria and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: The King of Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world, as all seem to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history is needed. If Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world was Lemuria, there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from southeast Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis is claimed to have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately 17,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration pattern you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears to span more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pygmy people. A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pygmy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pygmies living on every continent.

The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty. By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Amen, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginn you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 29090|2009-06-05 14:27:42|Ptah Ra|Re: Standing strong for our children MUST READ|
--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Ginger Daniels wrote:
>

I would like to weigh in on the topic of saving our children also. I have decided that the best response I can offer is an excerpt from a lecture I delivered two years ago titled "The Need for Culture". I am a student of The Honorable Paul N. Johnson, and consider him to be the divinely anointed person to guide us from all of the predicaments in which we as a race find ourselves today. The following excerpt is based upon his teachings in 1919.

"The Need for Culture"

The Honorable Paul N. Johnson teaches us that "Culture is the heart, and soul, and lifeblood of a race". How is this possible? As its heart, culture animates and regulates the pulse, the rhythm, and beat of the life and vitality of a nation. As its soul, culture is the spiritual and cosmic guide, directing the race to success and achievement and inclining the race away from self destructive practices. As the lifeblood of a race it is their culture that perpetuates the continuous flow of creativity that emanates from the fertile minds, the creative minds within the race. This continuous flow of creativity is the force that sustains a race. Control of that creative process guarantees the continuing success of the race.

The heart of the race is the organ (culture) that tirelessly pumps its life promoting and life sustaining forces throughout the body (race). It is the culture of a people that takes in all of the constructive and creative ideas of the race and interprets them according to the temperament and needs of the race. It then expresses those things according to the unique perspective of the race (as determined by their unique culture). Hence it is the heart that is responsible for the spiritual development and enhancement of the race. The heart is the seat of the emotions and the brain is the seat of the intellect.

As the soul of the race culture is the invisible intuitive guide of the race. It is the collection of spirit power available to the race via the developed souls of the race?both past (ancestors) and present. The soul (culture) of the race is responsible for the harmonious thought vibrations it receives from the God of the race via the Angel of the race. It is responsible for the proper dissemination of the thought vibrations it receives. Like attracts it's like?so a developed, receptive mind is a requirement to receive these noble inspirations. Culture is responsible for character formation and development, and retention of learned life lessons. Culture is responsible for the transmission of all of the lessons of life that have been learned to succeeding generations. It is the lessons from the soul that dignify a people, protect and safeguard that people. As the life blood of a people, culture is the educational/ instructional processes (temples, schools, etc.) that synthesize the experiences of life into systems of action that support the directions given by the soul.

What educational processes are available to us: informal training, formal training, life experiences, psychic and intuitive experiences, dreams/visions, and religious/cultural training. The oldest and strongest educational channel available to us and used by modern Kushites-Khemites is our intuition. Intuitive learning is not founded upon the learning processes recognized by the western civilizations. Yet it is the process that the FAHAMME Rasool advocated "need not be laughed to scorn". Laughter and ridicule by Khemites and other nations causes this intuitive ability to be suppressed in individuals capable of exercising it. The resulting shame and stigmaticism causes a person/people to further suppress rather than develop their intuitive faculty(ies) .

However, it is these glimpses of inspiration that lead to both mental and psychic growth. Hence the teaching of the FAHAMME Rasool that "The African's way of seeing and understanding things needs to be developed into a science making it useful, practical and up to date".

When a people become cultured, they develop a unique philosophy of life and a unique philosophy of death (or the absence of life). This is followed by the development of a people's unique concept of both heaven and hell (reward and punishment).

A people's philosophy of life addresses questions such as: the purpose and meaning of life, how life is defined, how is a full life achieved, how is a completed life evaluated, and if there is anything other than life, i.e. is there life after death? If so what is death?

A people's philosophy of life compels a consideration of death or transition: what is death, what is the function or purpose of death? How are the consequences of death evaluated? If the philosophy defines a event promoted by death, then that philosophy of life will produce concepts of an after-life: i.e., heaven, after life, how defined, its purpose, and how it is to be evaluated.

A people's unique philosophy of life also produces concepts of accountability for life: heaven and hell (real or imagined), purpose of a heaven and hell, how is heaven or hell accomplished, how is heaven and hell evaluated or how are the effects or results of heaven and hell evaluated?

With this explanation of the awesome responsibility of a people's culture, we can begin the process of examining the exact state of affairs of our race and begin the corrective actions needed.

>

>

>

>

>

> By Susan L. Taylor

> -Guest Columnist-

> Updated May 11, 2009 - 2:59:18 PM

>

>

>

>

>

> Let's tell the truth: We've fallen into forgetfulness and apathy. Though our foreparents risked all that was dear to them to open a way for us, we have relinquished the fundamental Black values that guided their lives. The great benefits that millions of us enjoy today don't come from nothing. They have grown out of a long and glorious legacy of mutual love, faith in God and commitment to the children. These core values traveled with them over the seas and centuries. They emboldened enslaved Africans to get up from servitude, challenge racist practices, stand strong in the face of heinous acts of violence today's Black people will never know.

> We are the beneficiaries of unimaginable suffering and sacrifice and also strategic thinking, planning and action. But on our watch, with all our privileges, technology and supports, we are doing far less for our young than was done for us. We are the first generation of African Americans to allow the next generation to lose ground. Millions of our children are in peril; it's their worst time since slavery, said Marian Wright Edelman. Yet, there isn't a single issue we are organized around. Not one that Black leaders have agreed upon and are standing together on to work for change.

> When we shrink back from the values and work that moved us forward, the consequences are life-destroying. The village falls apart. Today, on our watch, these are the chilling facts:

> - 58 percent of Black 4th graders are functionally illiterate.

> - In some cities only 18 percent of Black males graduate from high school.

> - A Black male is 700 percent more likely than a White male to be sentenced to prison.

> - Nearly one million Black men are imprisoned in a for-profit system built on unfair drug-sentencing laws.

> - Suicide is rising fast among our children.

> - HIV/AIDS is the leading cause of death for our young women.

> - The leading cause of death for our Black boys is homicide.

> All of this and we are not outraged ? but pointing the finger at sagging pants, do-rags and the misogynistic and murderous messages in music we've allowed. Instead, let's look in the mirror. Let us accept our responsibility for not governing the village more carefully. Our young in crisis don't need more policing or punishment.

> They need us. They need our attention, guidance and encouragement. They need Black love.

> A recent study by the California Mentor Foundation of 124 mentoring programs showed that, of youngsters matched with mentors:

> -98 percent stayed in school

> -98 percent avoided a teen pregnancy

> -85 percent did not use drugs

> -98 percent avoided gang participation

> It's time for us to act! Greatly disproportionate numbers of caring White sisters and brothers are mentoring our children. They are the first respondents. We are the last. The National CARES Mentoring Movement (NCMM) is a call to us?to our faith leaders and leaders in the public and private sectors and every able, stable Black adult?to come out of our silos and work together to galvanize volunteers to guide and encourage our vulnerable young.

> Here's the ask: Let us do what Black folks have had difficulty doing for several decades. Let us get along. Agree. Link arms and aims and take care of the mothers and fathers of our tomorrows. Their future is in our hands.

> Mentor a child. Mentoring is one investment that has shown disproportionately positive returns. Dedication just four hours a month can save and secure a life. Log on to caresmentoring.com and input your zip code for a list of nearby mentoring opportunities.

> With family and friends, group mentor our struggling young in a reentry program, an underserved school, or a group home. Push your faith leader to do the work of the church, which also lies beyond the congregation. Support the educators and children in the nearest failing school with books, supplies, encouragement ? and mentors.

> Working together we will write a new history for our children. Mentoring is the answer. And it's a privilege.

> (Susan L. Taylor is editor-in-chief emeritus of Essence Magazine, Founder and CEO of the National CARES Mentoring Movement and a member of the National Coalition on Black Civic Participation's Black Women's Roundtable. This column was distributed by NNPA.)

>

>

>

> Hotmail goes with you. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

>

>

> Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Don't worry about storage limits.

>

http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/Storage?ocid=TXT\_TAGLM\_WL\_HM\_Tutorial\_Storage1\_052009

>

| 29091|2009-06-05 14:27:51|cristofori whitakara|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

queen moo and the...is dealing with kemetians and a country in today's south america.

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 6:05 PM

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my "already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled California?.

All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australian aboriginees chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it without AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks atthe A.E. teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E. in north amer. and australianthere is not a lot of proof for such an assertion.

i haveyet to read The black discovery of america by. M.Bradley

an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29092|2009-06-05 14:28:04|olmec982000@yahoo.com|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Asar

Thanks for your comments. I would not call them speculation. I see your ideas as viable hypotheses that deserve testing. It is only after you test your theories about Coptic and find them invalid that one can give them another name.

Keep up the great work. You and Ferg appear to be the only people I know writing in English who are seriously seeking the connections between African languages and ancient Egyptian.

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/4/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, June 4, 2009, 11:25 PM

Greetings Dr. Winters

I appreciate your comments. I think I have read your articles listed, but I will review them again. I would like to point out that I don't think Coptic is NOT an African language. What I hypothesized is that the script used probably wasn't created to be used by native Egyptians: probably some outsiders who spoke Egyptian. I still fail to see why after 3000 years you would write in your own language using another people's script, especially if the prevailing thought was your society was the best of human societies. I speculate at the moment that the Coptic speakers who created the script were probably native Greek speakers who wrote originally in the Greek. Since they were familiar with the script, they used it to write Egyptian words and as pressures came trying to force them to convert to other spiritual traditions, it became a source of identity for the Copts. But again, these are my speculations.

As far as the nature of the pharaonic society, I agree whole heartedly. I recommend for the group if they can find the book titled Conflict of Minds by Jordan K. Ngubane of south Africa. He discusses what the Zulu call 'simultaneous legitimacy' which is a philosophy rooted in African cosmology which states that man is a self-defying being and has the right to self-defintion. Each person's self-definition is simultaneously legitimate, valid and important. African traditional societies was based on this philosophy and is why the societies, even if conquered, were allowed to keep their traditions. We know this was practiced in ancient Egypt during the expansions of the 18th dynasty in to what is now Saudi Arabia: as they were allowed to keep their traditions.

This is why Akenaten was so dispised because he attempted to usurp this vital African principle of simultaneous validity by making everyone abandon their local ancestral deities for his primary deity Itn (Atannu, Itango). This, and other things, caused the revolt. Menkara is famous for writing into law that the nomes could worship the way they pleased: that they were self-defining values and no man can prescribe destiny for another man.

That concept went against cosmic order and as we know that force of conflict in Egypt was called ISFT. This same term survives in among the Zulu as UZIBATHE (f > b). So it is this principle that is missing from mainstream Egyptological discourses and why many are confused by the "many gods" and multiple words for the same concept in the Egyptian language. The were autonomous nomes representing different cultures and languages. These were a result of African tradition which allows for each agmination (cluster or group) to define itself in its own self-interest and it being simultaneously valid, important and legitimate. I encourage the list to revisit the story of Tshaka Zulu. The very concept of a Zulu nation is taken right off the pages of Narmer who united upper and lower eKami. This same concept is the thrust behind the unification of China of its previous five kingdoms. It's an amazing story. But even the Zulus say they migrated from the Sudan primarily because of the drying up of the Sahara. I found this same story in the Kongo. I say this because this is why you find so many similarities of ancient Egyptian culture among people of the Kongo and among the Zulu of south Africa. Ferg brought out one of the ancient names of Egypt being BAKAA which was located in the Sudan. One of the Zulu tribes is named BHACA and they say they migrated from the Sudan. Ngubane also speculates that PUNT is really a transposition of BUNTU. All throughout his work he rarely used the word BANTU, he said BUNTU.

With that said, I don't knock the Coptic script. Just given what I know about the philosophy which drives African cultures, African people do not abandon ancestral ways on a whim. Something major has to happen. 3000 years of consistent writing in a style which they kept even during Hyksos, Persian, Greek and Roman occupation to just abandon it suddenly because it was a part of the "culture" of the times doesn't seem logical. Again, it seems more logical that some Egyptian speaking foreigners adopted and modified the script because that was their heritage. I think they followed the Arabs lead as you mentioned, it's really an Egyptian script for their language. I think the inverse happen with the Copts: that they used the Greek to speak Egyptian and if true, then we could assume that they spoke Egyptian with a Greek tongue which would render some sounds differently than a native Egyptian. But again, I'm speculating right now.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

--- On Thu, 6/4/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 4, 2009, 3:14 PM

| 29093|2009-06-05 14:28:04|Peter Gray|FW: [Ta_Seti] Nubians predicted 2012: here's the math|
Sorry, I meant "365-day" calender, not 565 of course.

Peter

---

From: atenergy@hotmail.com

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Nubians predicted 2012: here's the math
Date: Thu, 4 Jun 2009 11:18:15 -0400

Forgive my ignorance of astronomy, but is all of this rigorous review/analysis consistent with Diop's argument that the AE had a 565-day solar calendar as early as 3800 BC? Many thanks.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: appiusclaudiuspriscus@yahoo.com
Date: Thu, 4 Jun 2009 00:37:59 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Nubians predicted 2012: here's the math

Arcturus in 4328 BC Egypt: Hermetic knowledge

by Joseph C. Keller, M. D.
May 19, 2009; last revision May 31, 2009

Sec. 1. Calendars.

The calendar of every civilization changes. Our calendar changed (Julian to Gregorian) in 1582AD, skipping ten days and introducing a more complicated leap year formula. Julius Caesar changed our calendar much more. Because calendars change, king lists with reign lengths always have supplemented the calendar.

Our year basically starts at the winter solstice, though off by eleven days. The ancient Greek year explicitly started anew at every summer solstice, with Year 1, of the first four-year "Olympiad", occurring in 776BC.

The Egyptian calendar had features enabling it to preserve dates for millenia. One of these features was that the day count, instead of being corrected by a complicated leap-day formula to fit the tropical year, either started anew in each tropical year (what I call the "tropical calendar"; basically it was like our ordinary calendar), or remained simply 365, ignoring discrepancy with the tropical year (what I call the "365-day calendar"; basically it did the job of today's astronomical Julian Date). This gave two different calendars which could correct each other. The phase between the two different "years" is a kind of year count.

Another Egyptian feature was that the dates of "heliacal" rising of bright stars (dates of risings nearest sunrise) including at least Arcturus, Canopus, Sirius and Procyon, were recorded, alongside the 365-day calendar date or tropical date, and reign years. For a star on the ecliptic (with zero proper motion), this would be the same as recording the phase between the 365-day year and sidereal year; the phase of the 365-day year would shift with period 1425yr. For a star at the ecliptic pole, the tropical date of heliacal rising would be constant; heliacal rising, like tropical date, would shift relative to the 365-day year, with period 1508yr.

The heliacal rising of Canopus is used in calendars even today:

"claims Allen, [Canopus] was known as Karbana in the writings of an Egyptian priestly poet in the time of [Thutmose III]

"Allen claimed that the heliacal rising of Canopus `even now [1899] used in computing their [the Arabs'] year,"

- Fred Schaaf, "The Brightest Stars", pp. 107, 109 (Google book online)

"In the Gulf region the Canopus calendar, 10- day units from the late summer heliacal rising of Canopus, has long been a traditional calendrical system for Bedouins and sailors."

- Gary D. Thompson, 2007-2009 (online, members.optusnet. com.au)

Stars far from the ecliptic (e.g., Arcturus and Canopus) rise far from the point of sunrise, thus are easier to see at sunrise. Arcturus about equals Vega in brightness, i.e. "Visual magnitude" (some sources, e.g. the 1997 Pulkovo Spectrophotometric catalog, say Vega is brightest, some, e.g. the 5th ed. Bright Star Catalog, Arcturus; the slight difference depends on photometric details) but Arcturus' orange color penetrates better than Vega's blue-white, when observed at low altitude angle. Stars near the equator also might rise far from the sun if near the tropic opposite the sun (e.g., Sirius).

The ancient Egyptians had two calendars. One calendar had three seasons of four lunar months each, alternating 30 and 29 days, so the average would equal the synodic lunar month. Apparently the first day of the third season ("summer") was set at the summer solstice. There would have been eleven, or sometimes twelve extra days at the end. I call this the "tropical calendar" because it's based on the solstice (Tropics of Cancer & Capricorn).

The other calendar, apparently, was structured the same as the first, but always with a total of 365 days, whatever the current summer solstice date. I call this the "365-day calendar". The first day of this calendar was "1 Thoth" (see OA Toffteen, "Ancient Chronology", p. 180; online Google book), which shifted around the tropical year with period 1508 yrs, assuming today's tropical year of 365.24219 days. The length of the tropical year is nearly constant, because under perturbation, an orbit's major axis distance is stable to third order (conjecture of Lagrange & Poisson, proved by Tisserand) and also because Earth's precession rate has only higher-order dependency, on Earth's or Luna's small eccentricity or on Earth's nearly constant axial tilt.

Sec. 2. Finding the solstice.

The Alexandrian calendar (26/25BC; its first leap year was 22BC) of Augustus, was a Julian calendar for Egyptians. With its leap year, it fixed the old "1 Thoth" New Year of the ancient Egyptian 365-day calendar, at August 29 of the Julian calendar.

The Council of Nicaea, 325 AD, which deliberated the date of Easter, considered March 21 to be the spring equinox, hence December 21 the winter solstice. Perhaps surprisingly, this was not shifted the expected two days (one day per 128 yr) earlier than Ptolemy's winter solstice date, current in the 2nd century AD. Ptolemy (the astronomer) said, the Egyptian calendar day, 26 Choiak, is the winter solstice (James Evans, "The History and Practice of Ancient Astronomy", p. 180; online Google book). Because 1 Thoth had been standardized to August 29, 26 Choiak was December 21 (recalling that the 1st & 3rd months of any four-month Egyptian season had 30d, and the 2nd & 4th, 29).

The Julian calendar (45BC) suffered some irregular extra days at first. Wikipedia's article, "Julian Calendar", says:

"the [Roman] pontifices added a leap day every three years, instead of every four years. According to Macrobius, the error was the result of counting inclusively, so that the four-year cycle was considered as including both the first and fourth years. This resulted in too many leap days. Augustus remedied this discrepancy after 36 years by restoring the correct frequency. He also skipped several leap days in order to realign the year. The historic sequence of leap years in this period is not given explicitly by any ancient source, although the existence of the triennial leap year cycle is confirmed by an inscription that dates from 9 or 8 BC. The chronologist Joseph Scaliger established in 1583 that the Augustan reform was instituted in 8 BC, and inferred that the sequence of leap years was 42, 39, 36, 33, 30, 27, 24, 21, 18, 15, 12, 9 BC, AD 8, 12 etc. This proposal is still the most widely accepted solution."

Between 22.0 BC and 11.0 AD (after which, leap years were correct) there were 6 Julian calendar leap days instead of the necessary  $(22+11-1)/4 = 8$ . The Alexandrian calendar would have had to keep pace with the Julian calendar.

Ptolemy wrote a little later than 128yr (the time for the Julian calendar's equinox to lag a day) after the adoption of the Alexandrian calendar, so the equinox in 22BC would have been dated a net  $8-6-1=1$  days earlier than Ptolemy's, i.e., March 20, so the solstice was, most likely, June 21 (considering the effect of Earth's orbital eccentricity). Since the first leap year in the Alexandrian calendar was 22BC, it would be most accurate to consider August 29 of  $(22+4/2)=24$ BC, as 69d past the solstice.

Sec. 3. Finding "1 Thoth".

Most authors list only the three main "Sothic dates" (those of Sesostris III, Amenhotep I, and Thutmose III), though Brein (2000) lists six. One of the three main "Sothic dates" (so-called because Prof. Eduard Meyer, of the Univ. of Berlin, hypothesized in 1904 that they pertained to Sirius; which indeed one does) is:

(Ebers papyrus) Year 9 of the reign of 18th Dynasty (New Kingdom) Pharaoh Amenhotep I. It is the 9th day of the 3rd month of summer (i.e. 3rd season), i.e. 11th month of the Egyptian year.

If this refers to what I call the "tropical calendar", and if the first day of the summer season had been adjusted to be on the solstice, then Amenhotep's date is  $30+29+(9-1) = 67$ d past the solstice. In Sec. 2, I found that 1 Thoth in 24BC, was 69d past the summer solstice, when 1 Thoth was fixed by the Alexandrian calendar. Eight years earlier than Amenhotep's date, 1 Thoth would have been 69d past the solstice, if Amenhotep's date is 1 Thoth. (Amenhotep I was the pharaoh, who decided to stop building pyramids, and instead cut tombs into rock cliffs.)

According to Damien Mackey, the 4th century AD Alexandrian astronomer Theon (father of the famous pagan martyr Hypatia) said that the Alexandrian calendar began (approximately) at the end of a cycle of some kind. Now we know, what that cycle was. It was the 1508yr cycle of the Egyptian 365-day year vs. the tropical year. Amenhotep's date is 1 Thoth, in approximately the year  $24+1508-8 = 1524$ BC (so Amenhotep I's reign started 1532BC). Indeed it was recorded as "New Year's festival the heliacal rising of the Sirius [Mistranslated? Should say Arcturus? - JK] star." (Toffteen, p. 179). This year is comparable to the other estimates of Amenhotep's antiquity made by Egyptologists.

Sec. 4. Amenhotep I, Nabta, Giza and the heliacal risings of Arcturus.

Neglecting Earth's orbital eccentricity, the sun's ecliptic longitude (in the "coordinates of the ecliptic of date") on Amenhotep's date, would be  $90+67*360/365.25 = 156.0$ . To correct for eccentricity, I find Earth's longitude of perihelion at 103 (today's value) -  $(2000+1524)*(1/25785 + 1/112000) * 360 = 42$ . The eccentricity correction to the sun's longitude is, by Simpson's rule,

$$(156-90)*2*0.017*(\cos(90+42)/6 + \cos(90+42-66)/6 + \cos(90+42-33)/1.5) = -0.3\text{deg}$$

and the corrected longitude is 155.7.

The Egyptians are said to have observed the stars, from observatories in Memphis and Heliopolis (both near Giza, 29.979N), from the desert near Hierakonpolis, from Thebes, from various shrines in upper Egypt, and from Elephantine Island. I'll start by assuming it's Elephantine Island: that was an important commercial, military and religious site during the New Kingdom, and it's on the Tropic of Cancer (exactly so, at ~ 4000BC, according to the formula in the 1990 Astronomical Almanac). Considering refraction, and measuring to the top of the sun disk, in 1524BC at Elephantine I., 24.1N, the apparent heliacal rising of Arcturus would occur with the sun at longitude 153.16, 2.5deg too little. (The details of my calculation are in Sec. 9.)

My calculated difference in Arcturus' heliacal rising at Giza vs. Elephantine, in 1524BC, is -5.01 degrees of sun longitude, for the +5.88 degrees of latitude separation on the ground. So, moving 1.60 degrees farther south, would change the sun's longitude at the heliacal rising, from 153.16 to 154.52; only a day before 1 Thoth. So, Egyptian astronomers consistently made this observation from a point about 1.6 degrees of latitude south of Elephantine, near the northern edge of the Nubian desert: namely, Nabta, 22.5N (warning: the Nature article describing Nabta, though excellent in substance and highly recommended overall, contains some numerical errors involving an erroneous distance scale on their main map).

The farther south the observer, the more vertical the rising of the sun and Arcturus, so the smaller the gross or net effects of atmospheric refraction. The Nabta megaliths are a Stonehenge-like structure, dated 4000-4500BC, over a mile in size, whose alignment even now displays sometimes as good as one-arcminute accuracy.

Thus for Amenhotep the cycle is marked, not by the seasons, but by a kind of sidereal year based on one star: not Sirius as for the Sothic year of Eduard Meyer, but the "Arcturian year". Expressing the sun's longitude at heliacal rising, as a quadratic function of time (and assuming the Egyptians made no refraction correction, nor did Arcturus' proper motion change), and integrating, I find that Arcturus' heliacal rising, on 1 Thoth, two cycles before Amenhotep, was 4328BC, if the observation was made at Nabta.

Because of Arcturus' large southward proper motion, the two cycles before Amenhotep average a mere 1402yr apiece. The match, to what follows, is precise enough to prove that Arcturus' average proper motion was about the same from 4328BC to 1524BC, as from 1524BC to 2000AD, and as today at 2000AD. This "Year 1" is 6339yr before 2012 (see Sec. 8).

I find that the heliacal rising of Arcturus from Giza (not Elephantine I.) at 4328BC occurred with the sun at longitude 90.19, assuming the Egyptians used the top of the sun and made no refraction correction. The heliacal rising of Canopus from Elephantine in the same year, was with the sun at longitude 90.32. If the Egyptians had used the center of the sun, both these longitudes would be  $\sim 1/4$  deg less: that is, in the founding year of the Egyptian calendar, on the summer solstice, Arcturus rose heliacally on-center with the sun, on the 30N parallel, and Canopus rose heliacally on-center with the sun, on the Tropic of Cancer.

At 4328BC, the sun longitude at heliacal rising for Arcturus differed 10 deg between Upper and Lower Egypt; Canopus differed 20deg. Upper Egypt apparently avoided this latitude-associative ambiguity altogether, by making their calendar's Day 1 (1 Thoth), simply the heliacal rising of Arcturus at Nabta, 14 days after the summer solstice.

Sec. 5. Sesostri III and the heliacal rising of Procyon.

Generally, any bright star will rise heliacally nearest 1 Thoth, only for four consecutive years, about every 1400 or 1500 yr. There are only a few convenient first-magnitude stars: some are too near the ecliptic, in the sun's glare; and at any epoch of precession, some are too far south ever to rise in Egypt. Hence some observations would be made on days of the 365-day calendar, other than 1 Thoth.

The earliest of the three main known "Sothic dates" is:

(Kahun papyrus, a.k.a. Lahun papyrus) Year 7 of the reign of 12th Dynasty (Middle Kingdom) Pharaoh Sesostri III. It is the 16th day of the 4th month of "winter" (i.e. 2nd season), i.e. 8th month of the Egyptian year.

Suppose this observation were made, not on any special day (like 1 Thoth) of the 365-day calendar, but rather at a special epoch, namely, when 1 Pachons, the eventual nominal first day of summer of the 365-day calendar, fell on the summer solstice. (Likewise our Christmas Day falls on the eventual nominal first day of winter as fixed in the Alexandrian calendar: 1 Tybi = 1 Thoth +  $4 \times 29.5\text{d} = \text{August } 29 + 118\text{d} = \text{December } 25$ .) Sesostris' 1 Thoth would be  $4 \times 29.5 + (365 - 12 \times 29.5) = 129\text{d}$  past the summer solstice. So, by comparison with Amenhotep, the year of Sesostris' "Sothic" (or rather, Procyonic) date is  $1524 + (129 - 67)/365.25 \times 1508 = 1780\text{BC}$  (so, the reign of Sesostris III began 1786BC). This is a century later than usually supposed, but Egyptologists think Middle Kingdom dates are uncertain anyway, and they largely have been based on the supposed Sirius risings, which the research in this article supplants.

Suppose that, like Amenhotep's date given in the Ebers papyrus, Sesostris' date given in the Kahun papyrus, is a tropical date with 1 Pachons set to the summer solstice. The date would be  $(29 + 1 - 16) = 14\text{d}$  before the summer solstice. Neglecting Earth's orbital eccentricity, the sun's ecliptic longitude (in the "coordinates of the ecliptic of date") on this date, would be  $90 - 14 \times 360/365 = 76.2$ . To correct for eccentricity, find Earth's longitude of perihelion at  $103$  (today's value) -  $(2000 + 1780) \times (1/25785 \text{ for equinox precession} + 1/112000 \text{ for perihelion advance}) \times 360 = 38$ .  $\cos(76 + 14/2 - 180 - 38) \times 2 \times 0.017 \times 13.8 = -0.3$ , so the corrected longitude is  $76.5$ .

From Elephantine I., the sun's longitude at the apparent (top, of sun, at horizon) heliacal rising of Procyon, for 1780BC, is  $74.52\text{deg}$ . Interpolating the year, in the table at the end of Sec. 9, the difference Giza - Elephantine is  $2.41$ , so for Cynopolis at  $28.30\text{N}$  (see Sec. 6) the heliacal rising of Procyon in 1780BC occurs when the sun's longitude is  $76.24$ .

Sec. 6. Thutmose III and the heliacal rising of Sirius.

The latest of the three main "Sothic dates" is:

Year ? (the reign year has been broken off the tablet, according to Toffteen, p. 181) of the reign of 18th Dynasty (New Kingdom) Pharaoh Thutmose III. It is the 28th day of the 3rd month of "summer" (i.e. 3rd season), i.e. 11th month of the Egyptian year.

Toffteen translates the text as "Sirius festival". This time, the star really was Sirius, if the date refers not to the tropical calendar (as for the other two main Sothic dates) but instead, to the shifting 365-day calendar. (The same emendation might repair the two contradictory lunar dates from this reign, which have produced three schools of thought among Egyptologists, that Thutmose III's 54-year reign began 1504, 1490 or 1479BC. See RE Parker, JNES 16:39+, 1957, cited by LW Casperson, "The Lunar Dates of Thutmose III", in the JSTOR online archives; and, Cline & O'Connor, "Thutmose III", Google book online.)

This Sothic date is about 1422BC (more precisely, 1424BC; see below): it is  $29.5 \times 10 + 27 = 322\text{d}$  past, not the the first day of the tropical calendar, but rather, past 1 Thoth. In turn, 1 Thoth is  $67 - (1524 - 1422)/1508 \times 365.25\text{d}$  past the summer solstice, so Thutmose's date is net  $364.3\text{d}$  past the summer solstice, and the sun is at longitude  $89.1$ .

Luckily, near this century, the longitude of the sun, at the heliacal rising of Sirius, is practically independent of latitude in Egypt. For Giza in 1422BC it's  $89.66$  and at Elephantine,  $89.69$ . This date in 1422BC is a heliacal rising of Sirius on the summer solstice throughout Egypt, an event even rarer than the heliacal rising of Arcturus on the summer solstice on the 30N parallel in 4328BC.

This heliacal rising of Sirius was recorded so carefully, in part because it occurred on the solstice, and because it was simultaneous throughout Egypt; but, those both are conditions that last about a century (due to the small difference between the tropical and sidereal years). Unlike the 4328BC rising of Arcturus, Thutmose's date is decades away from exact coincidence, of heliacal rising with solstice, anywhere in Egypt.

Like Amenhotep's rising of Arcturus, Thutmose's rising of Sirius was recorded because it occurred on the shifting 365-day calendar date, of the heliacal rising of Sirius somewhere in Egypt in the foundation year 4328BC. Using the same quadratic approximation and integral calculus method as for Arcturus, I find that for Giza observations, two Sothic cycles before this 1422BC rising, would be 4338BC (2 * average 1458 yr Sothic cycles ago). For Elephantine, I find 4302BC (2 * average 1440 yr Sothic cycles ago). By interpolation, consistency with the 4328BC founding date, occurs for an original "Dog Star" observatory at 28.35N.

Indeed the latitude of Cynopolis (literally "Dog City") (Egyptian name: Hardai) is  $28^{\circ}18' = 28.30^{\circ}$  N (Rawlinson, "History of Ancient Egypt", p. 16; online Google book). This was the city of the divine jackal Anubis and his wife Anput. It had a cemetery for dogs. It is said to be the original breeding site of dogs like the Great Dane.

When integrating the shift, in days, of the 365-day year, I simply multiply the change in sun longitude of the star's heliacal rising, by  $365.25/360$ . For Arcturus, the eccentricity correction needed for this, because that sun longitude ranged from 96 (in 4328BC) to  $96-9$  (perihelion gain vs. sidereal) + 11 (Arcturus' rising's gain vs. sidereal) more than the perihelion, is 0.3d, so the calendar's Year 1 would be, more precisely, 4329BC.

For Sirius, the corresponding figure is 46 (in 1422BC) to  $46+9+17$ , which adds  $24^{\circ} * 0.034 * \cos(59) = 0.4$ d of shift (because Earth has slower angular speed near aphelion). This makes the length of time needed, ~ 2yr less. So, the more precise year is  $1422+2+(4329-4328) = 1425$ BC, and the sun's longitude on this 365-day calendar date is  $89.1 + 0.7 = 89.8$ .

Sec. 7. The Festival Year of Seti I.

Cerny, Journal of Egyptian Archaeology 47:150+, 1961, quotes Seti's inscription:

"Year 1, 1st month of winter, day 1, beginning of perpetuity."

Amenhotep's date proves that originally in ~ 4329BC, 1 Thoth was 14 days past the summer solstice at Nabta, thus the 15th day of what eventually was called the third season. As it shifted backward through the tropical year, it seems subsequently to have been renamed the *first* day of the third season, then the first day of the *second* season (winter, to which Seti refers). Still later it was renamed the first day of the so-called *first* season. In the shifting 365-day calendar,

1 Thoth migrates through all the seasons anyway.

Seti's festival year might have been two tropical cycles after the founding year. That is, 1 Thoth returned yet again to its original ecliptic longitude, giving Seti's year as  $4329\text{BC} + 2 \times 1508 = 1313\text{BC}$ .

This is near the date oftenest given by Egyptologists, because it is about one of their standardized 1460yr (or 1463yr) Sothic cycles before the ~ 139AD cycle end mentioned by Censorinus. More precisely, using quadratic approximation and integral calculus again, I find that this Sothic (i.e., of Sirius) cycle really is 1454yr, from 1313BC to 142AD (the eccentricity correction of Sec. 6, makes this 1453yr and 141AD). Censorinus had defined the cycle end, only as "100yr" (generally for Romans, time intervals were inclusive, e.g., "4 yr before 143AD" meant "140AD") before 238AD, the time of his writing; the round number suggests it was known only vaguely or ambiguously. The Romans commemorated this cycle with a coin in 143AD (Wilbur Jones, "Venus and Sothis", p. 79).

For Seti's cycle, two tropical cycles led to one Sirius cycle; then came oblivion, until now! For Thutmose, it was two Sirius cycles and then oblivion. For Amenhotep, it was two Arcturus cycles, one tropical cycle and then oblivion.

Sec. 8. Barbarossa.

The planet I discovered, Barbarossa, according to my best estimate based on all four sky survey points 1954-1997, has orbital period 6340yr. The Egyptian calendar foundation year 4329BC, is 6340yr before 2012AD, the end of the Mayan calendar cycle. The end of this longest Mayan (5125 year) cycle, falls on the winter solstice (such a long-range solstice forecast would require astronomical knowledge about as good as that of 16th century Europe). A Mayan monument announces that then "Bolon descends" who has "nine colleagues" (Barbarossa's Declination and ecliptic latitude will be decreasing, and its Declination, will be less than last time due to Earth's axis precession; another meaning of "descent" might be the sudden decrease in Declination due to a decrease in Earth's obliquity last time; see below). From lake varves, Brauer et al have determined the sudden onset of the Younger Dryas cooling, at least in Europe, to the year, at  $12683 = 6341.5 \times 2$  yr before 2012.

The heliacal rising of Arcturus, the most convenient star for such observations, at the summer solstice, would occur at intervals of approx. 25,785 yr (Newcomb's determination of the period corresponding to Earth's tropical minus sidereal orbital frequency). This occurrence on the 30th parallel, centrally located at the apex of the Nile delta, would seem enough reason to found a calendar, especially with Canopus rising heliacally on the solstice at Elephantine the same year.

Usually the sun's longitude at a star's heliacal rising, differs 5 or 10 deg between Upper & Lower Egypt. The recorded dates discussed above, show that at least four favorite stars were observed on or near the summer solstice during the 42deg of precession from 4300 to 1300 BC. With a favorite star, on the average every ten degrees of longitude, often as not at least one would be rising heliacally on the summer solstice somewhere in Egypt. For two to do so, is only mildly unusual, but for their locations to be the 30N parallel (Arcturus) and the Tropic of Cancer

(Canopus) is suspicious.

If two stars happen to rise heliacally on the same day (i.e., both rise heliacally with sun longitude in the range, say, 89.50 to 90.50), the root-mean-square difference in the sun longitudes is 0.4deg. Arcturus at Giza (0.021deg S of 30N) and Canopus at Elephantine (est. from Astronomical Almanac obliquity polynomial, 0.04deg S of Tropic of Cancer in 4329BC) differ, in the calendar's Year 1, only  $90.17 - 90.31 = -0.14$ , though correction to exactly 30N and to the predicted Tropic, degrades this to -0.33.

Either star in the preceding paragraph, if the sun longitude is corrected to sun-center rising rather than sun-top rising, should have its sun longitude randomly in the range ~89.24 to ~90.24 (assuming the sun and star atmospheric corrections roughly cancel). Yet these correct to 89.91 & 90.05 (though correction to "exactly 30N" and to *our predicted* Tropic, changes this to 89.87 & 90.20).

The summer solstice heliacal risings of Arcturus & Canopus at two different Egypt sites in 4329BC, might be luck were it not for the nearly exact equality of the sun's longitude at sun-center heliacal rising, to 90.0deg, for Arcturus & Canopus at the 30N parallel and the Tropic of Cancer, resp. This seems to reveal a new physical phenomenon. Maybe an unknown (not inverse square law) force exerted by these nearby giant stars, stabilized Earth's axis, after some disturbance, in a new position constrained by geometric relations described as heliacal rising at 30th parallel and Tropic. Another such unexplained geometric relation, the equal (in absolute value) latitudes of Hawaii, Mt. Olympus on Mars, and Jupiter's Great Red Spot, already is known (mentioned by Richard Hoagland on the "Coast to Coast AM" radio show).

I find that the azimuths of the two lines connecting the three Great Pyramids (according to Petrie's survey) match the projection of Orion's Belt (reflected EW) from the top of a stick, for one direction of Earth's axis. The obliquity of this direction is 27.95deg, not 23.45 as today.

Maybe stabilization by Arcturus and Canopus, happened to Mars too. As an approximation, let's assume Mars' orbital plane is the same as Earth's, take the Declination of Mars' N pole as 52.92deg (2009 Astronomical Almanac), take the ecliptic latitude of Mars' N pole 90deg minus 23deg59', and find the difference in ecliptic longitude of Earth's and Mars' axes by spherical trigonometry. Then the net precession  $1/25771.5 - 1/171000$ , implies opposite axis tilts ~6375yr before 2012: Arcturus and Canopus would have risen heliacally near Mars' 30N & Tropic of Cancer, but at Mars' winter, not summer, solstice.

I propose that these solstice heliacal risings were not luck, but rather were the result of an unknown physical force associated with the orbital period of my distant hyperjovian planet, Barbarossa (which never comes near Earth; see my posts to the messageboard of Dr. Tom Van Flandern, for details). Comet swarms in 1::1 orbital resonance with Barbarossa might also have a role.

Arcturus' proper motion is greater than that of any other first-magnitude star visible from Egypt. The most important component of its proper motion, is the decreasing Declination, which increases the sun longitude of heliacal rising, so the difference between the 365-day and Arcturian years is abnormally large, and the length of the Arcturian vs. 365-day cycle abnormally short. Another suspicious fact about Arcturus, is that it is almost the closest "giant" (i.e., Spectral Type III) star to the sun, only slightly farther than Pollux, and believed to be considerably more massive than Pollux. Similarly, Canopus is the second-closest "supergiant" (i.e., Type I or II) star to the sun.

Above, I suggested that Seti's reference to "1st month of winter, day 1" revealed only that 1 Thoth, originally the first day of the "third" or summer season, later was called the first day of the "second" or winter season, and then the first day of the "first" season which was neither winter nor summer, where it stayed, having slipped backward to the beginning of the calendar. In the 365-day calendar, there would be a tendency over the centuries to change the name of the season, of which 1 Thoth was first day, as its season in the tropical year moved backward. This would seem to be enough reason for Seti, in some context or other, to call 1 Thoth the first day of winter, but there is another, more speculative, explanation.

This other explanation is, that c. 4329BC, when Barbarossa presumably attained a special position in its orbit, an unknown physical interaction occurred which caused Earth changes and also illuminated Barbarossa. If Barbarossa were visible for many years, the Egyptians (or Atlanteans?) might have been able to determine its orbital period. They would notice and record any calendrical markers of the year of recurrence. Maybe the marker, is when the heliacal rising of Arcturus at Nabta occurs on the original 365-day calendar's first (in some sense) day of winter.

When 1 Thoth originally, in Upper Egypt, equalled our June 22 summer solstice + 14d, 1 Phamenoth equalled our December 30, almost New Year's Eve. At the Egyptian calendar's foundation, 1 Phamenoth was a rough approximation of the winter solstice. Suppose Arcturus rises heliacally on 1 Phamenoth in 2012AD. Relative to Arcturus' heliacal rising, 1 Thoth must regress  $4 \times 365.24 + 177$  d since the foundation. The Arcturus term in my integral must be adjusted only -0.09deg to account for eccentricity. The result for Nabta is 1614.55 "mean degrees", which gives 6344yr at Nabta.

So, at Nabta in 2012AD, Arcturus rises heliacally only a day before 1 Phamenoth, the original rough winter solstice of the ancient Egyptian 365-day calendar. (Likewise Arcturus rose a day before 1 Thoth in 1524BC; these discrepancies might be due to the same error.) This is the origin of the association of "Bolon" (Barbarossa? or merely Arcturus?) with the winter solstice, in 2012, in the Mayan calendar. The Egyptian calendar contains Hermetic knowledge, about the period of Barbarossa, and the period of climate change cycles, including the Younger Dryas.

Sec. 9. Calculation of heliacal risings and settings.

I took star positions and proper motions from the current (May, 2009) online VizieR version of the Bright Star Catalog, 5th ed. The proper motions in RA refer to linear arcseconds, not fifteenths of seconds of Right Ascension; so in extrapolating RA, they need to be multiplied by  $\sec(\phi)$ , where  $\phi$  is the midrange of the base and extrapolated Declinations. After extrapolating the proper motion, I found the celestial coordinates in the equinoxes of date for 2000.0AD, for 1001.0BC, and for 4001.0BC, using the rigorous formulas of the 1990

Astronomical Almanac, p. B18. I also found Earth's obliquity for those years, using the polynomial on the same page.

No computer program was used. All calculations were on one Texas Instruments 30X IIS calculator, made in China.

The remaining calculations, to find the sun's longitude at heliacal rising of the star, consisted of using one spherical trigonometry formula (see, e.g., the CRC Math tables):

$$\cos(a) = \cos(b) \cos(c) + \sin(b) \sin(c) \cos(A)$$

(this is the vector dot product in spherical coordinates) four times in three spherical triangles:

1) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the star's codeclination, the observer's colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the star's sub-rising point (90.5667deg, using the 34 arcminute average atmospheric refraction given by Stephen Daniels, www.astronomy.net, 1999, online). Here I found the vertex angle, and hence the Right Ascension of the observer's zenith.

2) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the segment from Earth's N pole to the ecliptic N pole, the observer's colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the point beneath the N ecliptic pole (observer's ecliptic colatitude); here I found the last of these, thence the ecliptic longitude of the observer's zenith, mindful of the signs of angles.

3) The triangle, the lengths of whose sides, are the sun's ecliptic colatitude (always exactly 90degrees), the observer's ecliptic colatitude, and the distance between observer's zenith and the sub-suncenter point for suntop rise (90.8250deg, using the 34 arcminute average atmospheric refraction cited above, and also an average sun semidiameter of 0.5*31 arcmin).

All observer terrestrial latitudes are geographic. I estimate that the effect of Earth's polar flattening, is negligible. The final correction to the sun's longitude, for the parallax caused by Earth's radius, was -0.0019deg at Giza and -0.0020deg at Elephantine Island.

The sun longitudes for 2000.0AD, 1001.0BC & 4001.0BC always were interpolated with the unique second degree polynomial, with time as abscissa (see, e.g., Stirling's interpolation formula, CRC Math tables). Other, less important estimates throughout this paper, were made with sufficient accuracy using convenient linear or quadratic interpolation schemes. I found "Sothic"-type rising cycle periods, by integrating, with variable limits, the increase in sun longitude at rising, in coordinates of equinox of date (given by a quadratic interpolant), plus the gain of the equinox vs. the 365-day point. Sun longitudes are for exact heliacal rising somewhere on the relevant parallel.

The format below lists the longitudes for 2000.0AD, 1001.0BC, 4001.0BC:

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Arcturus:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N, bronze plaque on Cheops' pyramid, per GPS by Lehner)
199.6386, 157.2941, 97.7240

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N, according to Tompkins, "Secrets of the Great Pyramid",
p. 179)
202.9072, 161.6498, 107.6906

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Procyon:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)
121.9500, 86.1111, 51.0502

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)
120.1393, 83.8767, 48.0433

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Sirius:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)
121.3902, 93.3560, 68.3317

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)
117.0431, 93.7134, 61.0702

Sun ecliptic longitudes at apparent heliacal rising of Canopus:

Latitude of Giza (29.979N)
149.3027, 136.9634, 116.0721

Latitude of Elephantine Island (24.10N)
136.4925, 123.3116, 94.4229

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.
| 29094|2009-06-05 14:28:13|Ptah Ra|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American
Languages?|

Although not supported by the academic standards of today, the fact is, there is no place on this planet that was not explored by the ancient Khemites (Egyptians). As the pace of exploration increases and new discoveries are announced, this fact will become common knowledge. Our ancient and magnificent culture is yet intact. Our job is to find and revive it. We are all doing a great work.

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 8:55 PM

Teach On.....
Clyde

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 8:03 PM

With all due respect to indigenous people here in the United States, Australia, China, etc. it is not a slap in the face to remember and honor people from whom such a beautiful culture was shared. A slap in the face to Native Americans is having their land stolen from broken treaties, being moved to reservations, having toxic waste dumped in their water supply by corporations, and having loved ones killed by small pox. ( I do not think the Ancient Egyptians carried out such harmful acts). It is a slap in the face for Ancient Egyptians to have their culture stolen, copied and replicated without being given proper credit, e.g. all Greek knowledge originated in Ancient Kemet - but that is not taught in our school, the back of the US dollar bill has Ancient Egyptian symbolism - but credit is not given to the originators of the symbolism, Anthony Browder gave a tour of Washington D. C. and all of it many Ancient Egyptian landmarks to include the Washington Monument, etc. Many cultures and societies are designed according to Ancient Egyptian symbolism, but the actual Ancient Egyptians are forgotten & their descendants are forced to live in poverty, and are denied the knowledge of their own ancestors and their own Divine Lineage - That is a slap in the face.

Ancient Egyptians are constantly "slapped in the face" by being portrayed as caucasian (remember Liz Taylor's performance as an Ancient Egyptian Queen); also by having their knowledge stolen, their sacred libraries burned to the ground, their sacred treasures stolen and housed under the Vatican, as well as having their many burial grounds desecrated for the benefit of science.

Ancient Egyptians may have taught the world about many things, pyramid building included, but I doubt they spread hatred, genocide, false democracy, diseases, rape, theft, the threat of nuclear war, etc. unlike those that came over on the Mayflower.

How often does one see the Chinese give honor to their indigenous Black populations? The world does not even know about Black Chinese people. (they keep them well hidden, and well marginalized) How often are images of the many Black Buddha statues all throughout Asia shown to the world? That is a slap in the face. Even Chinese Pyramids were kept well hidden for decades. How many people worldwide know that the Dogon of Mali knew of astronomical bodies, alignments, etc. without the use of modern scientific equipment, and for centuries before any European contact? (Much of this knowledge corresponds to the Ancient Egyptian alignments of Pyramids) And if I am not mistaken, aren't the so-called Ab-Originals of Australia are Black people?

There also exists a history of Native Americans living in harmony with Black people, Asian people, etc but that too has been stolen and suppressed. The truth about Ancient America is not about disrespecting anyone, but more about giving proper credit, honor, and respect where it is due. Ancestor veneration is integral to many Asian, Native American, and African cultures. We have more in common that what has been taught in school.

I say, let's spend more time honoring those who brought forth civilization, and let karma take care of the rest.

Peace,

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 5:05 PM

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my "already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled California?.

All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need

Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australian aboriginees chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it without AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks atthe A.E.

teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E. in north amer. and australiathere is not a lot of proof for such an assertion.

i haveyet to read The black discovery of america by. M.Bradley

an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plungeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29095|2009-06-05 14:28:15|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Hello Asar, my name is Roger.

What you write here to Doc. Winters sounds reasonable . . . why would it be impossible for the Egyptians to create an additional 5 to 8 glyphs for vowel sounds . . . unless there was a break in the continuation of grammarians who could read and transcribe the ancient hieroglyphs.

Your hunch regarding the creators of the Coptic language sounds more than reasonable. Especially, since Egypt had been around for more than a few thousand years, and the Coptic script originated only during the 1st century . . . so I read. However, it appears that any effort to revitalize the language not only could mean that it had literally died out, or was dying. I believe there is an attempt among linguists to put the Egyptian language back together, but I am not so sure that it can be solely achieved by identifying and comparing the similarity words (all props to Doc Winters).

When I was attempting to understand ancient cosmology, it was suggested that I seek to understand how primordial man communicated. Not being a linguist, the example given to me to understand this was to consider the original sounds (phonics) as primordial expressions in response to the perception of natural events. Consequently, and over time, these original sounds became obscured and covered over with what can be likened to layer after layer of graffiti on a wall. Thus, it was suggested that I peel back each layer of graffiti until I found the original impression. Personally, I had to fight back the urge to shoot the guy. But in following his advice, it did bear a little fruit.

Like you I suppose, I found myself digging into Egyptian symbolism and her mythologies. Initially, this made no sense to me until I came across something that Jacques Lacan, a contemporary of Freud, regarding the relation of language to unconscious functioning. Essentially, he pointed out that language is metaphoric and symbolic, that it is one giant step removed from reality. In this gap between the real and symbolic are all the lies, deception, and fraud of human existence. The graffiti analogy then made sense.

The point that I am attempting to make here is that it may be impossible to find the original phonetics of the Egyptians, since by their own admission the Pygmy/Anu culture existed before hand, and Egypt's culture when through evolution. However, it would appear that it may be possible to approach knowledge of these sounds mathematically, which would entail deciphering Egypt's myths and symbols. For example, consider the experiments that Pythagoras engaged in to understand unity, duality, and harmony, which he learned from the Egyptians. I think you will be amazed how . . . if not the sound . . . then, the concept of the sound materializes.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 6:15 PM

Peace Dr. Winters

Thanks for your response. What I am trying to figure out is why would the Africans abandon scripts they have been using for over 3000 years? It makes no sense to have scripts that are adequate to convey messages in your own language to abandon them for the Greek letters.

If the ancient Egyptians can come up with over 800 glyphs, would it be impossible for them to simply create 5 to 8 more glyphs for the vowel sounds? It just doesn't make sense. My hunch is that the creators of the Coptic script weren't Egyptian. Why would you use a foreign script although we know its Khamenu, to write in your own language, when all you had to do was create about 5 more glyphs? When I compare some of the lexical items of Coptic and other African languages, it lacks an African character which I can't put into words. In Coptic you have definite and indefinite articles which middle Egyptian doesn't have which tells me that it v adapted in such a way as to communicate with non-African.

If there are efforts today to "revitalize" the language, wouldn't that mean that the language, as originally spoken died out, which means that they really don't know 100% how the language sounds? If that is true, then what does that say about the phonemics of Egyptian, if it is based on a language scholars are still trying to piece together? I don't know, just questions.

Also,

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 7:42 AM

Hi Asar

The values for Egyptian have changed because our knowledge of Coptic has changed. In the beginning Champollion found that you could interpret Egyptian using the Greek phonetic values. as a result, he probably attempted to interpret Egyptian by looking for words in Coptic, that matched the Greek phonemics.

As Egyptologist knowledge of Coptic advanced researchers abandoned the use of Greek phonemics to interpret Egyptian lexical items. Instead of using Greek phonemics, Coptic phonemics were used which led to resulting changes in how Egyptian words were interpreted in Champollion's day and today. This is why no Egyptologist interested in the Egyptian language would study the language without first gaining a background in Coptic.

In summary, phonemics values of Egyptian have changed because they agree with Coptic, the cognate language of ancient Egyptian.

Clyde

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 7:08 PM

I appreciate it Paul

However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU

---

APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 10:15 PM

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace Phamily

>

> Is there anyone of you who could lead me in the direction of any material that could shed light on how Egyptologists came to the conclusion of what signs carry what phonetic value? I am familiar with Champollions decyphermment, but I am interested in the follow-up work which decided that this means this sound and that means that sound, etc.

>

> Can anyone help me?

>
> Asar Imhotep
> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>
>

Asar, check out this page and the following linked ones:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/ancient/egyptians/decipherment\_03.shtml

This should give you a pretty good lead on whose works to look for.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29096|2009-06-05 14:31:14|Paul Kekai Manansala|Great PR: Obama @ Giza Pyramids|
Check out my blog post:

<http://obamabarack.blogspot.com/2009/06/obama-discovers-hieroglyphic-likeness.html>

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29097|2009-06-05 19:12:42|Roger Asterilla|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origins is traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups.com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups.com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

- ? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*
- ? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*
- ? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*
- ? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Haramein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > Alchemical Products

> . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
- > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
  - > Scores of Unique Vendors*
  - > . . . and much more!*
-

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

---

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

=====

This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.

=====

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----

Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>
Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>
Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/>

Your email settings:
Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/join>
(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:

mailto:EmeraldTablet- digest@yahoogroups.com
mailto:EmeraldTablet- fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:
EmeraldTablet- unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:
<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

| 29098|2009-06-05 19:25:21|Peter Gray|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

I have to say all this alchemy stuff seems sonuts!! "Learn how alchemy can transform ourselves and the world ..." WTF.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: rogaster1@yahoo.com
Date: Fri, 5 Jun 2009 16:56:59 -0700
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origin is traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups.com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups.com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

- ? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*
- ? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*
- ? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*
- ? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Haramein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold

- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
- > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
  - > Scores of Unique Vendors*
  - > . . . and much more!*

---

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

---

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

=====

This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.

=====

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----

Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>
Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>
Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/>

Your email settings:
Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/join>
(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:
mailto:EmeraldTablet- digest@yahoogroups.com
mailto:EmeraldTablet- fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:
EmeraldTablet- unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:
<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.
| 29099|2009-06-05 21:10:32|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

Moo is fictional or a real Queen Mut?
there is lots good circumstantial evidence of A.E. inso. america and plenty of actual facts testifying of west Africans

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 1:40 PM

queen moo and the...is dealing with kemetians and a country in today's south america.

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 6:05 PM

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my
"already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled Califc
All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need
Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australi aboriginees chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it v

AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks at the A.E. teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E. in north amer. and australia there is not a lot of proof for such an assertion. i have yet to read The black discovery of america by M. Bradley
an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunic native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this to be diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

| 29100|2009-06-05 22:10:36|Asar Imhotep|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

>>

Asar

Thanks for your comments. I would not call them speculation. I see your ideas as viable hypotheses that deserve testing. It is only after you test your theories about Coptic and find them invalid that one can give them another name.

Keep up the great work. You and Ferg appear to be the only people I know writing in English who are seriously seeking the connections between African languages and ancient Egyptian.

Clyde

>>

I appreciate your feedback Dr. Winters. I guess the next question is one of method: how will I go about testing my hypothesis?

I was also thinking, to further clarify my position, we may look at it from the stand point of someone who is use to writing out vowels, but would be frustrated having to not write the vowels in the native Mdw Ntr script. For someone who grew up in the tradition, this would not be a problem.

It's just like those languages that do not have a defined definite and indefinite article in their spoken language (Zulu for instance). For someone who grew up speaking it, it's not a problem for them not to have it: they can communicate quite well without them. But for someone whose language emphasize the use of these articles, they will always feel the need to put them in while trying to speak the foreign language that does not have the articles.

This is the case for us English speakers reading the Mdw Ntr script. We can't communicate without the articles, so we put them in when translating Mdw Ntr texts. I think this may have been the case with the people who first created the Coptic script. They may have been frustrated with writing with no vowels, so they used their native script, modified it to indicate that they are not speaking Greek, and used it to communicate in the kiKami language. It may have been an issue of comfort.

Again, for a nation that in the final scheme of things, created 5000 glyphs, I doubt they were creative enough to create vowels.

Another thing you point out that may be instructive is that if the Egyptian scripts were syllabic, this would provide more motivation for Greeks to create a phonetic script since that was what they were used to writing. Their language is not syllabic and they don't think in those terms. So it may have been easier for them to actually create a phonetic script to communicate in a manner that best reflected their language patterns. And it would make sense then for them to adopt the remaining Demotic scripts for sounds that did not exist in Greek. Again, if it was a native script, the Egyptian writing script has a sign for each sound (syllable?) for a native speaker to communicate. Only a foreigner would find it necessary to need the vowels and is why they had to import the other Demotic sounds.

You don't "import" sounds from your own language. You only "import" things you don't already have. The ancient Egyptians, if they created the Copt script, already had the Demotic and could have used it to communicate. To me it makes more sense to look at the original Copts as native Greek speakers who wanted to communicate in a way that was familiar to Greek speakers.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

| 29101|2009-06-05 22:51:07|Asar Imhotep|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|
Greetings Roger

Thanks for your reply. I would encourage you to deepen your knowledge of African cosmologies because you will get a lot of answers concerning Egyptian customs and ideas. One thing I discovered, by way of wisdom poetry, is that there are supposed to be proverbs associated with each keyword and key glyphs in the Egyptian language.

It's almost like all of the Scriptures that exist for each ODU in Ifa. Each sign has a teaching and a saying that goes with it. Mainstream Egyptology is missing this component. It is common all throughout Africa and this is how they teach. So i would encourage you to not only study the cosmologies, but to gather and mine for as many African proverbs as you can. I explain this a little in the BAKALA book I am currently working on and provide some examples of the method.

I plan to do some indepth studies on each major glyph and keywords, words that also have a "deity" associated with them, and match them to African proverbs in an attempt to gain a deeper meaning for the glyph. For instance, there is an African proverb that states, "A man's foot and the ground must meet." I associate that proverb with the "foot" symbol that represents the /b/ sound in Mdw Ntr. The /b/ glyph can be used to represent the concept of a "place" or an "abode." We say either "Ba" or "Pa" in the Bantu languages (most times /ha/). What we can gather from this is that not only does BA (foot) mean "place," it can also mean "existence" as you can't exist unless you have a "place" to put your foot down. You will find other African proverbs that assert this as well. So I will be exploring this indepth and will publish my preliminary results to the list.

As far as the sound and materialization is concerned, this is another study I have taken on. For I have found that the Chladni shapes resemble a lot of African textile patterns and sacred signs and symbols. Could the ancients have been conscious of this phenomenon? is this why they say that the Creator created everything through sound waves? is this why they call all phenomenon ODU, MDW, TU, NTU, NTFU, NWO, NI, etc. as the "form" (NTU) is the result of sound waves? Did they codify this in their textile patterns and shapes? Do these "artistic patterns" codify sound frequencies? They very "alphabet" of the Creator? Mdw Ntr - divine "words."

That's what Mdw Ntr is, the specific sound vibrations of nature that cause things to come into being. I recommend everyone read Amadou Hampate Ba's article in the UNESCO General History of Africa Vol 1 as he breaks down this teaching among the Fulfulde and Bambara cultures of Mali.

For those who are unfamiliar with Chladni shapes, here is a link that I think will help you to understand how sound shapes matter:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Pfs4Rd5f\_IQ

Englash has already exposed the African science of Fractals and I think this may be another hidden treasure of Black Africa. I have already found some matches among Akan patterns, some Egyptian and Dogon symbols.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 2:06 PM

| 29102|2009-06-06 20:26:37|Asar Imhotep|Re: Great PR: Obama @ Giza Pyramids|
He does seem to look like the Tupu figure. What's ironic about it is that in African symbolic thought, the "head" is symbolic for leadership; godhead in a way.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Great PR: Obama @ Giza Pyramids
To: Ta_Seti@yahogroups.com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 4:31 PM

Check out my blog post:

<http://obamabarack.blogspot.com/2009/06/obama-discovers-hieroglyphic-likeness.html>

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29103|2009-06-06 22:49:15|odhiambo okecth|Thank you; Dr Shem Ochuodho|
6th June 2009

Dear Friends of KCDN,

It is 7 days to the hosting of the 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk, and we have received Kshs 3,000.00 from Dr Shem Ochuodho from Southern Sudan in support of the hosting of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk on the 13th June 2009. We have also received a further Kshs 1,000.00 from Ms Arinolah EN also of Southern Sudan. Thank you so much.

We are also happy that The Young Professionals will be joining us on the day.

And this is how we are placed;

- 1] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Lenny Amolo of AIG Kenya Ltd.
- 2] Kshs 10,000.00 from Mr. Eric Jangolo of Barclays Bank, [But strictly for our rent].
- 3] Kshs 2,800.00 from Mr. Elijah Kombo of Bidii Africa.
- 4] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Otieno Sungu of Southern Sudan.
- 5] Kshs 2,000.00 from Arinolah EN of Southern Sudan.
- 6] Kshs 3,000.00 from Dr Shem Ochuodho of Southern Sudan.
- 7] Video Coverage from Dommie Yambo- Development Through Media.
- 8] 10 balls [5-football, 5 netball] from Text Book Centre Ltd.
- 9] Administration Police Band has confirmed their participation.

Our budget is still far from being met and we appeal to all those who would want to support the hosting of this event to kindly send in their support. We have Friends who have pledged their support and we are optimistic that we will receive the same in time. It will enable us to plan adequately with what we have.

We need some T-shirts, banners, placards, manila papers, paper caps, tents, chairs, PA system, skipping ropes, buckets, copies and many other items that will enrich our day. We will also need some water, first aid, etc. If we can make these confirmations earlier, we will be able to sort ourselves out.

Lastly, we must thank the Youth of Koma who have taken the challenge to make this event a success in terms of helping with the organization. It is through the active participation of the youth in the process of Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation that Kenya will be liberated from those who want to perpetuate tribalism as a tool of oppression.

We must all join hands and say no to tribalism, tribalistic leaders, and in the same vein, advance the cause for Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation.

Kenya is ours and we must cherish her. Kindly give us your support.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi.

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557.

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29104|2009-06-06 22:49:22|Roger Asterilla|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

Oh c'mon Peter . . . examine, then condemn (lol)

Roger

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

To: "Marc Washington"

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 10:24 PM

I have to say all this alchemy stuff seems sonuts!! "Learn how alchemy can transform ourselves and the world ..." WTF.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

From: rogaster1@yahoo. com

Date: Fri, 5 Jun 2009 16:56:59 -0700

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origin is traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm

Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

To: EmeraldTablet@ yahoogroups. com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich

To: EmeraldTablet@ yahoogroups. com

Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM

Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

- ? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*
- ? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*
- ? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*
- ? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Hameed
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy

- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
 Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
 Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
- > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*

- > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
- > Scores of Unique Vendors*
- > . . . and much more!*

---

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

---

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

===== =

This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.

===== =

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----

Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>
Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>
Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/>

Your email settings:
Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/join>
(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:
mailto:EmeraldTablet-digest@yahoogroups.com
mailto:EmeraldTablet-fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:
EmeraldTablet-unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:
<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

| 29105|2009-06-06 22:49:25|Maurice Humphrey|Decades of Cointelpro|
Check out these videos very interesting.
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YoXHMvo\_mA
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8lEtYw0qCCM>

| 29106|2009-06-06 22:49:38|Ferg|Re: The Pharaoh [reply]|
?

Thank you Aser for the criticisms.

I much appreciate it. Its what research is all about. Also thank you for the data provided. You must have some sort of magical device for correlating information!

(1) The philosophical connections can easily be interpreted as loose

The purpose of the paper was to examine the etymology of the Ancient Egyptian word PARA, a word for a house. The Proto-Bantu word for a house is different but includes in its definition an enclosure or yard. To arrive at the etymology of the word certain conceptual assumptions are relevant. These include the words ALA, ARA, etc which mean 'to lay out', 'to spread' as an example to lay a cloth on a table or things on a table, or to lay out a blanket. Both concepts relate to a covering, and a covering means a cover such as a roof! From this, the word for a ceiling, roof or floor is given as KA-PALA. The next stage was to determine the meaning of PA. Having established this in the paper the word KA-PALA derived the word for a roof, ceiling or platform, similar to the word PARA. I see no problem with the words 'to layout' or 'to spread'. Both ideas are from the Luvale-Bantu language.

Although in the data provided you said, no where are the words 'to spread' or 'to layout' to be found in the AE language which would fit the words ALA, ARA, etc, I don't see a problem with this as conceptual ideas in the AE language may be difficult to discern. The fact that we cannot find the idea does not mean that it does not exist, otherwise how would the word PARA appear in the AE language. As an example the Kiswahili-Bantu word KOMA, to bring to an end, to end, to finish is similar to the AE word. Both components KO + MA, can be accounted for, but finding them in the AE language could be difficult. What matters is the sound/meaning relationship which exists between the languages.

(2) The consonants PR in the Egyptian language by itself does not refer to the king himself

True, however I don't recall saying it. You are right the only time PARA-AA is mentioned as the king himself is in a letter to Akhenaton. In this instance he is called PHARAOH.

To the question you posed Does the ancient Egyptian words Great House, represented by the consonants PR-AA, find its cognate in the Kiswahili and Bantu languages?

The answer to your question is that a similar word exists as NYUMBA- KUU, a great house in Kiswahili-Bantu. It could very well have been PARA-KUU, but PARA for the roof of a house is not used as such. However the Prince of Punt was called PARAHU, the great house. HU is a different form of KUU as HUU is derived from HULU and means big, large or great. As a different example the Zulu-Bantu word for a house is NDLU and NDLUNKULU without prefixes means a great house. The word for great is KULU. The Zulu-Bantu great house is the royal house and is surrounded by a family group of homes attached to the great house.

Finally the word RAS, head is an Arabic Semitic word which has found its way in various parts of the world. I cannot see how the Wolf word, FARI, FARA, supreme king could be related to a Semitic word. Again the word FARI cannot be separated and therefore one does not know how the word originated. However the word RA is a Bantu word which I may explain later should the need be.

THE WORD PARA-AA

From my observations the AE word for the great house was definitely pronounced with a P rather than an F sound. The ending AA signifying great is interesting. It depends what one considers 'what is great'. There are several definitions for 'great'. Two of them include, marvelous, wonderful. It is my intuition that the AE word for great is to do with wonder or excitement and could be an interjection similar to 'WA', a great house. Thus AA appears in Kiswahili-Bantu as an exclamation for wonder and excitement.

There seems so much to elaborate on. Perhaps I will expand my paper in greater detail ironing out some of the problems. I take your criticisms on board!

Somo

----- Original Message -----

From: Asar Imhotep

To: Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Thursday, June 04, 2009 4:47 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh [reply]

Greetings everyone

This email is in response to Ferg Somo's essay on Pharaoh The Great House created May 31st 2009. This discussion centers around the question of, Does the ancient Egyptian words Great House, represented by the consonants PR-AA, find its cognate in the Kiswahili Bantu languages? Given the information in the essay provided by brother Ferg Somo, I think this one may need more investigation to come to something more conclusive. The primary reasons I have come to this conclusion reside upon these premises:

1. The philosophical connections can easily be interpreted as loose
2. The consonants PR in the Egyptian language by itself does not refer to the king himself

3. The meaning of PARA doesnt seem to match other African usages of the term

Given these issues, which I will explore below, I will offer some alternative theories in which we may be able to try and piece this together.

My first critique centers around the ideas supposedly connecting -ARA, -ALA, -WARA, which are Bantu words meaning to layout or to spread. The conventional understanding of the Egyptian glyph represented by Gardiner sign O1, is that it represents a house or court; in other words, it represents an area or building used for some administrative purposes. It is a location in which people conduct some sort of business. The symbol representing the consonants PR are never used to represent the concept of spreading or laying out. Words used to convey this concept can be seen by the following:

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - A24

sS to spread out [ verb ] O34 - N37 - A55 - A24

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - D40

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - D54

sSSi to spread (a bed) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - N37 - M17 - A53 - A55

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - N8

sS pass, spread, spread out, strew, post (sentries) [ verb ] O34 - N37 - Z9 - D54

pDw displayed offering, spread out [ noun + verb ] Q3 - I10 - N29 - N29 - N29 - Z8 - W22

pSS spread (oneself over) [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - N37 - D291

pSS straddle, spread (oneself over), spread out (awnings) [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - N37 - D54

pS to spread out [ verb ] Q3 - N37 - Z9 - Y1 - H5

xnr to scatter, to disperse, spread [ verb ] J1 - N35 - D21 - G43

xns traverse (region), travel, spread (of illness) [ verb ] J1 - N35 - O34 - D54

xnr to scatter, to disperse, spread [ verb ] M12 - G1 - N35 - Z2 - D21 - Z1 - N31 - D54

ab to spread out [ verb ] M17 - D59 - W10 - Z9 - D40

ENCIRCLE

Snnt encircles [ verb ] V7 - N35 - N35 - X1 - D54

Sni encircle, enclose, surround, [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - D40

Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - D54

Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - Z8

Sni encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V1 - Z8

Sni to encircle [ verb ] V7 - N35 - V9

Snw circuit, circumference, enclosure wall [ noun - arch. ] V7 - N35 - W24 - G43 - V10

inH to surround, envelope, enclose, encompass, to hem in [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - A24

inH surround, enclose, embrace, rim [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - G45

inH surround, enclose, embrace, rim, edging, frame, border, outline [ verb ] M17 - K1 - N35 - V28 - V1 - D40

The only meaning that comes remotely close phonetically to PR and the proposed meaning encircle would be:

pXr surround, enclose [ verb ] Q3 - F32 - D21 - F46

pXr surround, enclose, travel around / traverse (a region) [ verb ] F46 - D21 - D54

We would have to account for the KH sound being dropped in which PR could possibly be a derivative. In any of the examples above, none use the O1 determinative to denote an enclosure. I propose that the PR symbol used to represent a house denotes something that is typically African. In African traditional societies, houses did not have doors. For evidence see Malidoma Some Healing Wisdom of Africa and K. Fu-Kiaus MBONGI: An African Traditional Political Institution. Not only did the homes not have doors, neither did administrative offices. The indigenous policy is that all members of the society are welcome to their neighbors homes and all administrative places were open to the public. It fostered community and no secrets. This is why temples were not closed off. The only places that were closed off were secret places where priests conducted their work and this may have been more of an area inside the home. This may explain why to the Egyptians used the O1 symbol to represent home, temple or administrative office: because the culture had an open door policy. It seems to convey that places where it is expected to have a flow in and out of human traffic to conduct a specific business, they used the PR O1 symbol. When they wanted to denote boundaries, an enclosure, something that surrounds something, they used another symbol which has no openings.

My second concern is with the rendering of PR to refer to the King. I havent been able to find where the consonants PR in the Egyptian language represented the King: Only in combination with the word /aA/. /aA/ means GREAT. Here are other renderings that may be instructive:

pr aA great house, palace [ noun - arch. ] O1 - O29

pr aA pharaoh [ noun - title ] O1 - O29

pr aA great house, palace, pharaoh [ noun - arch. ] O29 - O1

pr bity palace of king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] L2 - X1 - O1

pr nsw King's Palace, Court, Temple, Palace of King of Upper Egypt [ noun - arch. ] M23 - X1 - N35 - O1 - Z1

pr nsw Temple [ noun - arch. ] M23 - X1 - O1

pr bity palace of king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] O1 - Z1 - L2 - X1 - A301

Hwt bity House of the king of Lower Egypt [ noun - arch. ] O6 - X1 - O1 - L2 - X1 - Z1 - A45A

wat the sole palace (of the king) [ noun ] T21 - X1 - O1

The only way we can render PR to mean Pharaoh is if it is conjunction with the word /aA/. AA is an adjective for what type of house it is. So it is not a part of the word PR itself, it is a separate word. Now the word /aA/ may be an abstraction of the word /aAt/:

aAt Chief [ noun - title ] D36 - O29 - X1 - H8 - B1

What is unique about this rendering is that the determinative is not that of a male, but of a woman. This is hinting to the fact that the chief, king, was so because of his relationship to the Queen mother matriarchal. We find another abstraction with the term:

AAAt Nubian chieftain ? [ noun - title ] G1 - G1 - X1 - G1 - D40 - A14

On this same line of thinking, aA can also be an honorary descriptor:

aA distinguished, genteel, noble [ adjective ] O29

So we are finding terms that directly correlate with a chief, noble or someone of greatness in /aA/ and /aAt/, but no words using the consonants PR by themselves to mean KING or CHIEF.

Thirdly, the name PARA doesn't seem to match other African renditions. As Diop noted:

Egyptian Walaf

Per-aa = Pharaoh Fari = supreme king

Fara = officer in charge

Fara leku = keeper of harem

Paour = the chief Bur = the king

P-our = the king (b > p)

P.ouro = king (Coptic)

We know this term FARI is used across East Africa as well and it too refers to a king and can be rendered FARI, FARO and FURA. What is telling about this term is that everywhere else in Africa and even in the Levant, they pronounced the /p/ as an /f/ sound. This can only be possible if the initial /p/ in PR was followed with an H. Since there is no PH sound glyph, the closest rendition of the sound they could represent within their language was with the P glyph. Bs and Ps shift easily, but not Ps and Fs. This is especially true when you consider that all of these languages have a plosive /p/ sound native to their languages. There is no reason the Greeks would transpose P into PH when they have a plosive P sound (pi).

Also in your rendering of PA, you use it to mean to fly. It seems more appropriate when you consider in ancient Egyptian PA also means PLACE. This would fit more so with the term PR if we assume this is an agglutinated term. PA can also mean THIS or THE. So we would have to find out what the /r/ stands for. I initially assumed the /r/ to stand for RA as RAS and RASI in Kiswahili mean KING or CHIEF. This is how we get RAS TAFARI King of Kings (Emperor). So we would assume a possible rendering for PR-AA to mean THE KING GREAT or THE GREAT KING or THIS KING GREAT or THIS GREAT KING. But this needs more investigation.

There is a term RS (Budge 432a) which is the title of a priest. Ras in Kiswahili also means head or leader. This is a conceptual match. Budge also has an entry for RA to mean a PLACE. This might be important. For PA can mean THE or THIS and if RA means PLACE then the PR bilateral would mean THIS PLACE which would be a perfect rendering of the term since PR by itself refers to a PLACE.

I do want to point out that PR-AA means more than just GREAT HOUSE and PHARAOH. As Budge (238a) notes, in later times PR-AA was a titled used by mere officers. It was written pr-aA stn (per-aa suten) meaning the pr-aA of the King. STN is where we get in Arabic SULTEN (the king) from. The pr-aA is not used in this context to mean a location. Budge gives another rendering meaning the pharaohs man. This may be interpreted as a close friend or trusted servant or colleague.

Side Note: In your rendering of PA meaning to rise, Budge also has an enter PR meaning to rise on pg (242a). This would closely match with the Bantus notion of PARA, on one level, meaning to rise or to fly as the glyph used is a birds wing.

I will continue to investigate, but I think this needs to be scrutinized a little more.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29107|2009-06-06 22:49:52|Shu Tefnut|Fw: REMINDER, AFRICA / EGYPT / NUBIA:
EDUCATIONAL TOUR.|

Africa / Egypt / Nubia Educational Tour. August 15th, through August 25th, 2009.

Starting at $2379.00 P.P Double Room

Join Us As We Return to the Motherland.

Join us on our annual tour, as we return to the motherland. Lets experience the great works and wonders of our ancestors, who were

the builders of the Great Pyramids, Sphinx, and many temples. You will enjoy the historical sites from Nubia to the Giza Plateau. Experience the beginning of world civilization which was influenced by ancient Egypt. Experience Nubia, which is the foundation and beginning of the Nile Valley civilization which is called Ancient Egypt. We will visit the Nubian Museum which boasts the antiquity of Ancient Egypt with artifacts going back 90,000 years. You will witness and see stone pictographs, tools made of metal (copper) and ancient sites, before there was an Egyptian Dynasty. Learn the history of Egypt and come back to the beginning of knowledge with Bro. Heru Bennu Amen Ra. (aka George Bennett M.F.A.) African Art historian, Archeologist Researcher/Lecturer, From Paleolithic (Kush) to (kemet) Egypt.

Day 1: - Departure from USA

Board your international flight to Cairo and begin your journey back in time to Egypt, and Nubia the holy land.

Day 02 - Cairo

Arrival in the Land of the Pharaohs. At Cairo International airport you will be welcomed and assisted through immigration and customs by our representative, then escorted to Hotel.

Day 03: - Cairo, Aswan

After breakfast, you will begin a full day of sight seeing in Cairo which include the Pyramids, Sphinx, Egyptian Museum, and the bazaar. Camel ride opportunity-overnight in Cairo.

Transfer to Railway Station to board night train to Aswan. Overnight on board.

The Pyramids of Giza:

The only present-day survivors of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World, The Pyramids of Giza are among the worlds greatest tourist attractions and never lose their ability to inspire and overwhelm visitors. The largest and oldest of the Pyramids of Giza is that of Cheops (Khufu). The Pyramids of Khafre the Great and Menkaure the Divine may not be as large in size as the Great Pyramid, but they are no less imposing in fascination.

Sphinx

The Sphinx remains a symbol of strength, wisdom and mystery for eons. Partially buried several times over the years by the shifting desert sands, the Sphinx now stands fully exposed with its impressive dimensions visible to all. The body of a lion with the head of a king or god, the Sphinx lines up with the Pyramid of Khafre. After visiting the Pyramids of Giza, proceed to visit the Egyptian Museum.

The Egyptian Museum

The Egyptian Museum was built during the reign of Khedive Abbass Helmi II in 1897, and opened its doors on November 15, 1902. Today, the museum contains the most important collection of Egyptian antiquities in the world. Exhibited are over 120,000 objects from the Pharaonic and Greco-Roman periods, including the celebrated mummies of ancient Egyptian kings and the treasures of King Tutankhamen. After Lunch, drive to Old Cairo, where early Judaism and Christianity flourished in Egypt. Visit the Ben Ezra Synagogue and Saint Sergious Church

Day 04: Aswan, Abu Simbel, Aswan

transferred to your hotel. The next morning

After breakfast you will be transferred to airport

for your flight to Abu Simbel visit the colossal Temple of Ramses II and the temple of his beloved Queen Nefertari, both temples carved out of a hillside beside the Nile in the 13th century BC. Transfer back to the airport for your flight back to Aswan. Upon arrival you will be escorted to your 4D/3N cruise.

Accommodation aboard your cruise ship will consist of a cabin with private facilities. In the afternoon, you will be escorted to visit the Nubian Museum, Temple of Philae, and the Broken Obelisk

The Nubian Museum

Located in the city of Aswan, on the eastern bank of the Nile, 899 kilometers south of Cairo. The museum is a three-story building with an outdoor exhibition area. It houses the main finds of the UNESCO salvage campaign carried out at the time of the building of the High Dam, which eventually flooded that whole region. Another major exhibit is a diorama which shows the daily life of Nubian villagers. Dinner & overnight on board.

Day 05 : Aswan - Kom Ombo Edfu

Philae Temple

On a small island in the Nile near Aswan stands the amazing Temple of Isis at Philae. This monument is possibly best known for the international effort which moved it in its entirety to the island when its original location was threatened by the change in water level caused by the High Dam. The temple has been completely dismantled and rebuilt to the original orientation on the nearby island of Agilika which rises higher from the water and has been reshaped and landscaped to resemble the original Philae. Sail to Komombo. Visit the temple shared by the two Gods Sobek and Haroeris

Temple of Kom Ombo:

The temple is actually made up of two temples: that of Sobek and that of Haroeris. In ancient time, crocodiles waded in the river. There are two entrances, two courts, two colonnades, two hypostyle halls and two sanctuaries. There were probably even two sets of priests for the two temples. Despite being badly damaged, the temple is a beautiful sight as one approaches from either direction on the river, particularly as sunset nears and the colors change. Overnight in Edfu.

Day 06: Edfu - Esna - Luxor

After breakfast, visit the temple of Horus in Edfu

The Temple of Horus:

Of all the temples of ancient Egypt, the one at Edfu is the most complete and best preserved. The reason is that the temple had been totally submerged under the desert except for the very top of the pylon entrance. A small amount of stone had been removed from the exposed part, but when excavated it was found to be in near perfect condition. Sail to Esna, cross the lock, then sail to Luxor and overnight.

Day 07: Luxor

Disembarkation after breakfast. Cross to the west bank. And visit Valley of the Kings, the Temple of Queen Hatshepsut and the Colossi of Memnon.

Valley of the Kings & Queens:

A vast City of the Dead where magnificent tombs were carved into the desert rocks, decorated richly, and filled with treasures for the afterlife by generations of Pharaohs. You will also see the Valley of the Queens.

Temple of Queen Hatshepsut:

The temple built in El Deir El Bahari on the west bank of the Nile in Luxor by queen

Hatshepsut, who ruled Egypt for almost 20 years. She chose a very well protected location as it is surrounded by the mountains

Colossi of Memnon:

Two large colossal sculptures of Amenhotep III also foundation of temple.

On the way back to the river Nile, your road passes by the famed Colossi of Memnon, known in Ancient Greek times for their haunting voices at dawn. Transfer to the railway station to board your first class sleeping train to Cairo. Overnight on board.

Day 08: Cairo

Upon arrival you will be escorted to Hotel in Cairo. Rest of your day at leisure.

Suggested Tour Visit the pyramids of Saqqara, and the tombs of Kagemeni and Ptah hotep

Day 09: Day of leisure suggested tour

Old Cairo:

Is so named because it is the oldest part of Cairo, and in fact, predates what is now Cairo. Later, the Romans built a fortress here which we call Babylon. Some of these Roman walls still exist. Later, it became a Christian stronghold, with as many as 20 churches built within an area of one square mile. There are only five remaining from which is the Church of St. Sergius (Abu Serga), which legend has it is built atop one of the sites where the Holy Family rested on their flight from Herod. Overnight at hotel.

Day 10: Sun Departure

After breakfast, transfer to Cairo International Airport for your flight back to the USA.

Great trip.

Contact info: For more details contact Dr. Bennett ( 347-495-4289 ) or Egyptian Connections at ( 800-334-4477 )

Itinerary subject to change

Day 1 Depart from JFK

Day 2 Upon arrival to Cairo, you will be met and escorted to your Cairo Hotel - Overnight

After your breakfast, you will begin your full day of sight-seeing in Cairo, which will include the Day 3 Egyptian Museum, Bazaar, Pyramids and Sphinx. Camel ride Opportunity - Transfer to train station for trip to Aswan. Overnight on train

- Day 4 Upon arrival, transfer to your Hotel for Check in. Afternoon visit of the Nubian Museum.
Overnight in Hotel.
- Day 5 After Breakfast, transfer to your deluxe Nile Cruise (Optional Abu Simbel Tour). After Orientation, enjoy your tour to the Temple of Philae, which is dedicated to the goddess Isis. Sail to Kom Ombo
- Day 6 Visit the Temple of Kom Ombo, shared by the two Gods Sobek & Haroeris. Sail to Edfu. Upon Arrival to Edfu, visit the Temple of Horus. Sail to Luxor
- Day 7 Cross the Nile to visit the Valley of the Kings and Queens, the Temple of Hatshepsut and the Colossi of Memnon. In the afternoon, visit the Temple of Karnack, the largest religious complex in the world, and the Temple of Luxor with its elegant colonnaded hall, Evening Captain's Dinner party Overnight on Board.
- Day 8 Disembark, rest of the day at Leisure in Luxor, 7 PM. Transfer to the train station for a trip to Cairo Overnight on train
- Day 9 Day Free at leisure.
- Day 10 After your breakfast, you will transfer to the airport for your homebound flight

Africa/Egypt Reservation Form

Please print this Form and e-mail, fax to 201-678-0077, or mail to our address:

Name of Traveler:

Name of Companion:

Phone:

Mailing Address:

(Separate forms should be completed in case more than two are joining the trip)

Payment Information: (Please check the appropriate boxes)

Basic Package $2379.00

Single Supplement

| 29108|2009-06-06 22:49:54|Roger Asterilla|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

I apologize . . . this post should not have arrived here. Again, I am sorry.
Roger

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 7:56 PM

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origin is traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups.com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups.com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*

? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*

? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*

? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Hamein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
- > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
  - > Scores of Unique Vendors*
  - > . . . and much more!*

---

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

---

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

===== =
This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.
===== =

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----
Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>
Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>
Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/>

Your email settings:
Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/join>
(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:
mailto:EmeraldTablet-digest@yahoogroups.com
mailto:EmeraldTablet-fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:
EmeraldTablet-unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:

<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

| 29109|2009-06-06 22:50:02|Rahel Kassahun|Re: Poem for Ivan Van Sertima|
Great poem. Thank you.

--- On Thu, 6/4/09, kyasa529 wrote:

From: kyasa529
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Poem for Ivan Van Sertima
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, June 4, 2009, 4:29 PM

Samba Rhythms to a Great Noble Champion of Historical Truth

Hail to the Great Scholar Ivan Van Sertima
You lifted the cataract of the euro-induced myopia

Your letter of introduction to the "royal academy"
was a tremendous boon to authentic historiography.

We salute your father's literary treasure trove
which you gleaned its latent secrets as you strove.

We are the beneficiaries of your tenacious sagacity
As we uphold the banner of vindication and veracity.

We reveled in the grandeur of Abubakari II's Journey
We healed our tortured psyches with Anta Diop's Legacy.

We gorged our intellectual appetites on Blacks in Science's profundity
While we fell deeper in love with the classic Black Women in Antiquity.

The Journals of African Civilization were like plasma for astral bodies
As your treatise, The Golden Age of Moors rescued us from the "Renaissance" follies.

We know the Illustrious Ancestors have cleared your path to the Land of Amen
As your prodigious body of work is an awe -inspiring, sacredly eternal Hymn.

Bomani Kyasa June 1, 2009

| 29110|2009-06-06 22:50:38|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has
been decyphered?|

Good Morning Brother Asar -- Thank you for your reply . . .

I find myself enjoying your posts. From my vantage point, it appears that you are connecting meaning with existence, i.e., the connection between cosmology, nature, customs, words, etc. Your efforts, and all such as yourself, are to be commended for embarking on this task.

In honesty, I must admit that I am not as yet familiar with the Ifa language, but I can assure you that it is high on my to-do list, since I have recently discovered my ancestral connection to the Yoruba & Falani people. However, I can say that I have become aware of the coded significance of the worlds sacred scriptures. But, as I am sure you know, awareness and understanding are entirely two different things. Thus, my efforts to glean their depths are on-going and your suggestion is sound. Therefore, I look forward to your book regarding the BAKALA. It is a present interest of mine albeit from the vantage point of alchemy.

Again, as an African American, I must honestly admit to my neurosis . . . mentally conditioned in America that has resulted in my intense need to understand Africa. Consequently, all of my cultural filters havent been eliminated and my approach to my dilemma has been to begin from where I am, and then to seek origins. The fruits of my effort have given rise to the realization that from America my journey to Africa has been two-fold: through the rise of Western culture from Africa; and through slavery to the cultural foundation of West African slaves. As a result, it was in seeking to understand the Western esoteric traditions that have brought me to Africa. Thus, the meaning implied in your description of the relationship between the major glyphs, deities, and proverbs is not lost, and I look forward to your upcoming explanations.

I have come to believe that there are no accidents in existence (even our having this discourse). Thus, given what little I know regarding the sacred traditions of Africa, i.e., the masters of fire (shamans/Hogons, etc, blacksmiths, weavers, and potters), I would say that they were aware of the relationships between textile patterns, signs and symbols that you mention. Regarding sound, I would further say that I believe this was what was implied by the ancient Egyptians in saying that Horus and Thoth were the heart(intellect) and tongue (Word) of Ptah. Therefore, I would without hesitation bet that the artistic patterns you mention correspond with sound frequencies, and an examination of which will reveal the Mother Letters used esoteric traditions, i.e., divine words.

My very next tasks for this morning is to seek Amadou Hampate Bas article and view the video clip you have suggested. Although I am familiar with fractal geometry, I am not familiar with English. This sounds interesting . . . since Sacred Geometry is another interest I have, I was hoping you would share a little more information on this individual?

Roger PEACE

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Saturday, June 6, 2009, 1:50 AM

Greetings Roger

Thanks for your reply. I would encourage you to deepen your knowledge of African cosmologies because you will get a lot of answers concerning Egyptian customs and ideas. One thing I discovered, by way of wisdom poetry, is that there are supposed to be proverbs associated with each keyword and key glyphs in the Egyptian language.

It's almost like all of the Scriptures that exist for each ODU in Ifa. Each sign has a teaching and a saying that goes with it. Mainstream Egyptology is missing this component. It is common all throughout Africa and this is how they teach. So i would encourage you to not only study the cosmologies, but to gather and mine for as many African proverbs as you can. I explain this a little in the BAKALA book I am currently working on and provide some examples of the method.

I plan to do some indepth studies on each major glyph and keywords, words that also have a "deity" associated with them, and match them to African proverbs in an attempt to gain a deeper meaning for the glyph. For instance, there is an African proverb that states, "A man's foot and the ground must meet." I associate that proverb with the "foot" symbol that represents the /b/ sound in Mdw Ntr. The /b/ glyph can be used to represent the concept of a "place" or an "abode." We say either "Ba" or "Pa" in the Bantu languages (most times /ha/). What we can gather from this is that not only does BA (foot) mean "place," it can also mean "existence" as you can't exist unless you have a "place" to put your foot down. You will find other African proverbs that assert this as well. So I will be exploring this indepth and will publish my preliminary results to the list.

As far as the sound and materialization is concerned, this is another study I have taken on. For I have found that the Chladni shapes resemble a lot of African textile patterns and sacred signs and symbols. Could the ancients have been conscious of this phenomenon? is this why they say that the Creator created everything through sound waves? is this why they call all phenomenon ODU, MDW, TU, NTU, NTFU, NWO, NI, etc. as the "form" (NTU) is the result of sound waves? Did they codify this in their textile patterns and shapes? Do these "artistic patterns" codify sound frequencies? They very "alphabet" of the Creator? Mdw Ntr - divine "words."

That's what Mdw Ntr is, the specific sound vibrations of nature that cause things to come into being. I recommend everyone read Amadou Hampate Ba's article in the UNESCO General History of Africa Vol 1 as he breaks down this teaching among the Fulfulde and Bambara cultures of Mali.

For those who are unfamiliar with Chladni shapes, here is a link that I think will help you to understand how sound shapes matter:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Pfs4Rd5f\_IQ

Englash has already exposed the African science of Fractals and I think this may be another hidden treasure of Black Africa. I have already found some matches among Akan patterns, some Egyptian and Dogon symbols.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

BANTU
APPAREL FOR THE PEOPLE

MOCHA-Versity

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 2:06 PM

| 29111|2009-06-07 07:13:56|Tafari khumbaka|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy
Conference 2009|

i love the work of mantak and meenawan chia

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Saturday, June 6, 2009, 12:30 AM

I apologize . . . this post should not have arrived here. Again, I am sorry.
Roger

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 7:56 PM

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the pr alchemy . . . not to mention that itsoriginis tracedto the shamanic (HAM)and blacksmithtraditions (Sem priests)of Africa.
<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

- ? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*
- ? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*
- ? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*
- ? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Haramein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold

- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
- > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
  - > Scores of Unique Vendors*

> . . . and much more!*

---

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

---

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

=====

This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.

=====

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----

Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>

Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>

Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/>

Your email settings:

Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/join>

(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:

mailto:EmeraldTablet-digest@yahoogroups.com

mailto:EmeraldTablet-fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:

EmeraldTablet-unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:

<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

| 29112|2009-06-07 08:17:26|Peter Gray|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

Roger,

"Alchemy" is a belief that one substance can be transformed into another via spells and incantations, at least that is how it has been practised historically and defined in formal science. Perhaps you don't endorse mainstream science, but I do. That's just my perspective.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: rogaster1@yahoo.com

Date: Sat, 6 Jun 2009 09:08:21 -0700

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

Oh c'mon Peter . . . examine, then condemn (lol)

Roger

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

To: "Marc Washington"

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 10:24 PM

I have to say all this alchemy stuff seems so nuts!! "Learn how alchemy can transform ourselves and the world ..." WTF.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: rogaster1@yahoo. com
Date: Fri, 5 Jun 2009 16:56:59 -0700
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origin is traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*

? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*

? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*

? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

> Dr. Masaru Emoto
> Master Mantak Chia

- > William Henry
- > Nassim Hamein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
 Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
 Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
  - > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
  - > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
  - > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
  - > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
  - > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
  - > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.
-

- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
  - > Scores of Unique Vendors*
  - > . . . and much more!*
-

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
  - > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
  - > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
  - > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
  - > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
  - > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
  - > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!
- * Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.
-

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

===== =
This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries
dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy.
The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality
and thereby transform the world.
===== =

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----
Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>

Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>

Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/>

Your email settings:

Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/join>

(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:

mailto:EmeraldTablet-digest@yahoogroups.com

mailto:EmeraldTablet-fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:

EmeraldTablet-unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:

<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

---

Windows Live: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.

| 29113|2009-06-07 16:41:34|Asar Imhotep|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

You are welcome

I must point out however that IFA is not the language. We simply refer to it as the Yoruba language. Ifa is a spiritual system whose name roughly means, "the study of the wisdom of nature." Ifa is said differently across Nigeria, Ghana and Benin. It can be rendered as IFA, OFA, or simply FA. So it just depends on where you go as to how it is pronounced.

As far as English, his full name is Ron Eglash . Here is a breif synopsis on him:

"Ethno-mathematician" Ron Eglash is the author of African Fractals, a book that examines the fractal patterns underpinning architecture, art and design in many parts of Africa. By looking at aerial-view photos -- and then following up with detailed research on the ground -- Eglash discovered that many African villages are purposely laid out to form perfect fractals, with self-similar shapes repeated in the rooms of the house, and the house itself, and the clusters of houses in the village, in mathematically predictable patterns.

As he puts it: "When Europeans first came to Africa, they considered the architecture very disorganized and thus primitive. It never occurred to them that the Africans might have been using a form of mathematics that they hadn't even discovered yet."

His other areas of study are equally fascinating, including research into African and Native American cybernetics, teaching kids math through culturally specific design tools (such as the Virtual Breakdancer applet, which explores rotation and sine functions), and race and ethnicity issues in science and technology. Eglash teaches in the Department of Science and Technology Studies at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in New York, and he recently co-edited the book Appropriating Technology, about how we reinvent consumer tech for our own uses.

He talks about his book and its content in the following video lecture on TED.com:

http://www.ted.com/index.php/talks/lang/eng/ron\_eglash\_on\_african\_fractals.html

On your other comments, I have basically this advice for you. When starting off studying African culture and history, try avoiding Egypt for awhile. This goes contrary to what Diop recommends, but I have found that Egypt makes much more sense when you have a thorough understanding of indigenous culture, history and philosophy. If you truly want to understand Egypt, you will waste your time sifting through all of the material trying to make sense of it. But once you have a clear understanding of how African systems work, the superhighway of wisdom, the african concept of simultaneous validity, then when you read texts about KM.t, you can see where Egyptologists have made their errors: even some of our best minds on Egypt.

So my advice is to first study material written by INITIATED scholars. An initiated scholar is one who has been initiated into the secrets of the culture. Because American institutions don't really understand African systems and methods for knowledge acquisition, they erroneously think that they can objectively watch and write down words for dictionaries and that is how they can fully understand African people and customs.

The secrets behind any indigenous cultures are in the heads of the initiated elders. If you aren't initiated, you can't understand in full why they do what they do. So it is a blessing from the divine when you find scholars who are born into the culture and initiated into the priesthoods that write about their experiences and philosophies.

When you read their work and compare them to works done by uninitiated sociologists, linguists and historians, you will notice a BIG difference in interpretation. Therefore, I recommend you start off with works by Credo Mutwa, Kimbwadende Fu-Kiau, Malidoma Some, Jordan Ngubane, Afolobi Epega, Kykosa Kajangu, Amadou Hampate Ba, Mazisi Kunene, and Mabika Kalanda. Even a few Whites who have been initiated are good sources for information including Phillip Neimark and Eric de Rosny (french writer).

Once you have read all of their works, then come back to Egypt. You will see things others don't see. You will make connections others can't. Of course, the best way is simply to get initiated your self, but that is your journey and destiny. I don't knock African-American scholarship on the subject, but you can tell, by use of language and there interpretations who has been initiated and who has not. There are however some American scholars you need to pay attention to. Those are James Smalls, Leonard Jefferies, Asa Hilliard III, Charles S. Finch, John Henrik Clarke, and John G. Jackson. They have all gone through several initiations in various different African systems. So their interpretation of African philosophy is spot on. I know this personally.

You must note though that even initiated scholars utilize the work of mainstream scholarship because it fills the gaps that are present in African stories. Dr. Ben has always stressed this, although he himself is an initiated scholar.

So I hope i have given you something to build on. You should be busy for a couple of years.

Ancestrally

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been

decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Saturday, June 6, 2009, 11:03 AM

Good Morning Brother Asar -- Thank you for your reply . . .

I find myself enjoying your posts. From my vantage point, it appears that you are connecting meaning with existence, i.e., the connection between cosmology, nature, customs, words, etc. Your efforts, and all such as yourself, are to be commended for embarking on this task.

In honesty, I must admit that I am not as yet familiar with the Ifa language, but I assure you that it is high on my to-do list, since I have recently discovered an ancestral connection to the Yoruba & Falani people. However, I can say that I have become aware of the coded significance of the world's sacred scriptures. But, as you surely know, awareness and understanding are entirely two different things. My efforts to glean their depths are on-going and your suggestion is sound. Therefore, I look forward to your book regarding the BAKALA. It is a present interest of mine, albeit from the vantage point of alchemy.

Again, as an African American, I must honestly admit to my neurosis . . . my conditioning in America that has resulted in my intense need to understand . . . . Consequently, all of my cultural filters haven't been eliminated and my approach to my dilemma has been to begin from where I am, and then to seek origins. The fruits of my effort have given rise to the realization that from America my journey to Africa has been two-fold: through the rise of Western culture from Africa; and through the slavery to the cultural foundation of West African slaves. As a result, it was in seeking to understand the Western esoteric traditions that have brought me to Africa. The meaning implied in your description of the relationship between the major gods & deities, and proverbs is not lost, and I look forward to your upcoming explanation.

I have come to believe that there are no accidents in existence (even our having this discourse). Thus, given what little I know regarding the sacred traditions of the ancients, i.e., the masters of fire (shamans/Hogons, etc, blacksmiths, weavers, and potters) I would say that they were aware of the relationships between textile patterns and symbols that you mention. Regarding sound, I would further say that I believe that was what was implied by the ancient Egyptians in saying that Horus and Thoth were the heart(intellect) and tongue (Word) of Ptah. Therefore, I would without hesitation bet that the artistic patterns you mention correspond with sound frequencies, the examination of which will reveal the Mother Letters used in esoteric traditions and divine words.

My very next task for this morning is to seek Amadou Hampate Ba's article and the video clip you have suggested. Although I am familiar with fractal geometry, I am not familiar with English. This sounds interesting . . . since Sacred Geometry is another interest I have, I was hoping you would share a little more information . . .

individual?

Roger PEACE

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Asar Imhotep wr

| 29114|2009-06-08 07:35:04|Roger Asterilla|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

Hello Peter . . . how are you today?

At the risk of an all out debate, I should state first that 'words reveal and conceal'. Most people who attempt to 'debunk' alchemy tend not to have engaged in its study or practice, or are simply are obedient to perceived authority and beliefs of others.

In its most essential meaning, alchemy refers to the process of transformation on all levels of nature, which refer to how the forces underlying the visible manifestation of existence of existence interact between the metaphysical (invisible) and physical (visible) levels. These forces have given rise to the substance of space, which has manifested to become galaxies, stars, and planets.

The existence and evidence of these forces is what has given rise to the symbolic presentation of the periodic table, which reveals three presentations of matter, i.e. gases, liquids, and solids of the visible universe. However, since 'gas' is the most subtle of these states, if your intuition is engaged you will realize that it is something that pre-exists gas.

Further, since 'space' itself is a substance that is composed of a 3:1 ratio of hydrogen to helium . . . and, given that both are atoms, the question that would naturally come to mind is 'what give rise to atoms?' This inquiry should lead you into quantum physics towards the Superstring Theory. But, then, you have to ask what generated these theoretical strings . . . many presume to be GOD?

But as a word symbol, the term 'God' implies a non-differentiated state of pre-existence. My point with all of this is that "alchemy" refers to a synthesis of 'inner' and 'outer' worlds of existence. It is the intergration of 'intuition' and 'reason' into the MEANING of existence. Another way of stating this is that alchemy is an attempt of religion and science into PHILOSOPHY that is often discussed or talked about in symbols, the primary language of all three . . . even the 'words' we are using are symbols!

Therefore, it is for me not a problem that you 'endorse' mainstream science, since it is part of the WHOLE. . . just examine and then condemn . . . if you must.

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Sun, 6/7/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

To: "Marc Washington"

Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 11:17 AM

Roger,

"Alchemy" is a belief that one substance can be transformed into another via spells and incantations, at least that is how it has been practised historically and defined in formal science. Perhaps you don't endorse mainstream science, but I do. That's just my perspective.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: rogaster1@yahoo. com
Date: Sat, 6 Jun 2009 09:08:21 -0700
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

Oh c'mon Peter . . . examine, then condemn (lol)
Roger

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: "Marc Washington"
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 10:24 PM

I have to say all this alchemy stuff seems so nuts!! "Learn how alchemy can transform ourselves and the world ..." WTF.
Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: rogaster1@yahoo. com
Date: Fri, 5 Jun 2009 16:56:59 -0700
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origins are traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.
<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*

? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*

? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*

? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Hamein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari

> . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!

Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!

Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.

> To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
  - > Scores of Unique Vendors*
  - > . . . and much more!*
-

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

---

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

=====

This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.

=====

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----
Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>
Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>
Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/>

Your email settings:
Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/join>
(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:
mailto:EmeraldTablet-digest@yahoogroups.com
mailto:EmeraldTablet-fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:
EmeraldTablet-unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:
<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

---

Windows Live: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.

| 29115|2009-06-08 07:35:28|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|
Hello Brother Asar,

Then, I stand corrected regarding the Yoruba language. My brother-law, who is Nigerian hasnt stated my lessons as of yet.

Your statement regarding, It never occurred to them that the Africans might have been using a form of mathematics that they hadn't even discovered yet." Dont be too hard on Western scientists (lol), the holographic nature of the universe wasnt realized until about 1982. Quantum physics sort of threw everyone for a loop in the West . . . initially.

After looking at Eglash's video, I found the realization of the fractal geometric arrangement of African villages quite interesting. But, it would seem that given that Africa is predominantly composed of societies still having traditional practices closely tied to nature, the surprise of some scientists at this realization is surprising. Especially, since it is impossible to separate the Golden Ratio, the primary mathematical function in nature, from fractal geometry. After all, fractal geometry is related to the centripetal force of nature, which is revealed in the myth of Sobek, the Crocodile deity of Kom Ombo, and one of the oldest realizations of Africa. And, the fact that Kom Ombo is a dual temple of Sobek and Horus the Elder, fractals and the Golden Ratio are also understood in biological functioning. I prefer this entry into Nature.

Fractal geometry in its relation to the Golden Ratio is behind the present explosion of heart sciences (Intelligence of the Heart), i.e., emotional regulation, heart rate variability, the relationship of the heart rate to brain functioning and thought, and a host of other applied biological sciences. They are teaching these things to children now as a form of training for learning. However, I am not sure if it has reached African American communities as of yet.

I appreciate your suggestion regarding approaching African culture, but I have been studying some aspect of ancient Egypt since 1984. And, after all that she has taught me, it is simply impossible for me to do so. The trick that I have found is to not historicize mythology . . . just simply let the symbols evoke meaning. I think it works pretty well! As a result, Egypt makes more sense to me when I study her myths, and how they systematically evolved from her preceding cultures.

I can assure you that I was taught by and study initiated scholars. However, they can only encourage you to learn and study. They can't realize or experience the functions of nature for you . . . you must realize them within and without on your own. At some point, experiential learning must guide inquiry. To this regard one of the major precepts I was taught in alchemy is that analogy is key to wisdom, and it has paid off in spades.

I can't agree with you more regarding the source of the secrets behind indigenous cultures. I have been studying shamanism and the blacksmith traditions for some time now, which have their origins deep into African cultural history, and extending into myth and legend. In fact, they are indicated in the Stellar, Lunar, and Solar traditions of Egypt, and recognized in alchemy as the unification of the Sun and the Moon.

Educationally, my background is ancient philosophy and religions, and I have since pursued psychophysiology . . . and some other interest. As a result, I have found nature's principles are the same the world over and the same for everyone. The trick is to realize and apply them. Thus, in America the best criteria I have found to gauge scholarship is the presence or absence of conscience. However, I will in time examine some of the scholars you have suggested. I am aware of brother Credo though, and what little I read on Amadou Hampate Ba, at your suggestion, it gave me some clarity to an African deity I was interested in.

I also have to agree with you that a person's words reveal their perceptual level into nature. Also, I am familiar with the African American scholars that you mentioned, and have found many of them interesting. The problem for me is that I am already convinced of Africa's contributions to the world, but my present focus is upon experiential learning. A lot is happening and more yet to happen. If I am interpreting you correctly, you know what I mean. Maybe in the future we can discuss how the Golden Ratio and fractal relationship is revealed in biological functioning?

Roger PEACE

--- On Sun, 6/7/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 7:41 PM

You are welcome

I must point out however that IFA is not the language. We simply refer to it as the Yoruba language. Ifa is a spiritual system whose name roughly means, "the study of the wisdom of nature." Ifa is said differently across Nigeria, Ghana and Benin. It can be rendered as IFA, or simply FA. So it just depends on where you go as to how it is pronounced.

As far as English, his full name is Ron Eglash. Here is a brief synopsis on him:

"Ethno-mathematician" Ron Eglash is the author of African Fractals, a book that examines fractal patterns underpinning architecture, art and design in many parts of Africa. By looking at aerial-view photos -- and then following up with detailed research on the ground -- Eglash discovered that many African villages are purposely laid out to form perfect fractals, self-similar shapes repeated in the rooms of the house, and the house itself, and the cluster of houses in the village, in mathematically predictable patterns.

As he puts it: "When Europeans first came to Africa, they considered the architecture very disorganized and thus primitive. It never occurred to them that the Africans might have been using a form of mathematics that they hadn't even discovered yet."

His other areas of study are equally fascinating, including research into African and Native American cybernetics, teaching kids math through culturally specific design tools (such as Virtual Breakdancer applet, which explores rotation and sine functions), and race and ethnic issues in science and technology. Eglash teaches in the Department of Science and Technology Studies at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in New York, and he recently co-edited the book Appropriating Technology, about how we reinvent consumer tech for our own uses.

He talks about his book and its content in the following video lecture on TED.com:

http://www.ted.com/index.php/talks/lang/eng/ron\_eglash\_on\_african\_fractals.html

On your other comments, I have basically this advice for you. When starting off studying African culture and history, try avoiding Egypt for awhile. This goes contrary to what Diop recommends, but I have found that Egypt makes much more sense when you have a thorough understanding of indigenous culture, history and philosophy. If you truly want to understand Egypt, you will waste your time sifting through all of the material trying to make sense of it. But once you have a clear understanding of how African systems work, the superhighway of wisdom, the african concept of simultaneous validity, then when you read texts about KM.t, you can see where Egyptologists have made their errors: even some of our best minds on Egypt.

So my advice is to first study material written by INITIATED scholars. An initiated scholar is one who has been initiated into the secrets of the culture. Because American institutions don't really understand African systems and methods for knowledge acquisition, they erroneously think that they can objectively watch and write down words for dictionaries and that is how they can fully understand African people and customs.

The secrets behind any indigenous cultures are in the heads of the initiated elders. If you aren't initiated, you can't understand in full why they do what they do. So it is a blessing from the divine when you find scholars who are born into the culture and initiated into the priesthoods that write about their experiences and philosophies.

When you read their work and compare them to works done by uninitiated sociologists, linguists and historians, you will notice a BIG difference in interpretation. Therefore, I recommend you start off with works by Credo Mutwa, Kimbwadende Fu-Kiau, Malidoma Some, Jordan Ngubane, Afolobi Epega, Kykosa Kajangu, Amadou Hampate Ba, Mazisi Kunene, and Mabika Kalanda. Even a few Whites who have been initiated are good sources for information including Phillip Neimark and Eric de Rosny (french writer).

Once you have read all of their works, then come back to Egypt. You will see things others don't see. You will make connections others can't. Of course, the best way is simply to get initiated your self, but that is your journey and destiny. I don't knock African-American scholarship on the subject, but you can tell, by use of language and there interpretations who has been initiated and who has not. There are however some American scholars you need to pay attention to. Those are James Smalls, Leonard Jefferies, Asa Hilliard III, Charles S. Finch, John Henrik Clarke, and John G. Jackson. They have all gone through several initiations in various different African systems. So their interpretation of African philosophy is spot on. I know this personally.

You must note though that even initiated scholars utilize the work of mainstream scholarship because it fills the gaps that are present in African stories. Dr. Ben has always stressed this, although he himself is an initiated scholar.

So I hope i have given you something to build on. You should be busy for a couple of years.

Ancestrally

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimho tep.com>

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Saturday, June 6, 2009, 11:03 AM

Good Morning Brother Asar -- Thank you for your reply . . .

I find myself enjoying your posts. From my vantage point, it appears that you are connecting meaning with existence, i.e., the connection between cosmology, nature, customs, words, etc. Your efforts, and all such as yourself, are to be commended for embarking on this task.

In honesty, I must admit that I am not as yet familiar with the Ifa language, but I can assure you that it is high on my to-do list, since I have recently discovered my ancestral connection to the Yoruba & Falani people. However, I can say that I have become aware of the coded significance of the worlds sacred scriptures. But, as I am sure you know, awareness and understanding are entirely two different things. Thus, my efforts to glean their depths are on-going and your suggestion is sound. Therefore, I look forward to your book regarding the BAKALA. It is a present interest of mine albeit from the vantage point of alchemy.

Again, as an African American, I must honestly admit to my neurosis . . . mentally conditioned in America that has resulted in my intense need to understand Africa. Consequently, all of my cultural filters havent been eliminated and my approach to my dilemma has been to begin from where I am, and then to seek origins. The fruits of my effort have given rise to the realization that from America my journey to Africa has been two-fold: through the rise of Western culture from Africa; and through slavery to the cultural foundation of West African slaves. As a result, it was in seeking to understand the Western esoteric traditions that have brought me to Africa. Thus, the meaning implied in your description of the relationship between the major glyphs, deities, and proverbs is not lost, and I look forward to your upcoming explanations.

I have come to believe that there are no accidents in existence (even our having this discourse). Thus, given what little I know regarding the sacred traditions of Africa, i.e., the masters of fire (shamans/Hogons, etc, blacksmiths, weavers, and potters), I would say that they were aware of the relationships between textile patterns, signs and symbols that you mention. Regarding sound, I would further say that I believe this was what was implied by the ancient Egyptians in saying that Horus and Thoth were the heart(intellect) and tongue (Word) of Ptah. Therefore, I would without hesitation bet that the artistic patterns you mention correspond with sound frequencies, and an examination of which will reveal the Mother Letters used esoteric traditions, i.e., divine words.

My very next tasks for this morning is to seek Amadou Hampate Bas article and view the video clip you have suggested. Although I am familiar with fractal geometry, I am not familiar with English. This sounds interesting . . . since Sacred Geometry is another interest I have, I was hoping you would share a little more information on this individual?

Roger PEACE

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Asar Imhotep wr

| 29116|2009-06-08 07:35:30|Roger Asterilla|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

I have to agree with you . . . Again, I apologize. I was stressing a point with someone in the Emerald Tablet regarding the upcoming Alchemy Conference. I am still trying to get this multi-tasking down . . . I am of the old school and initially thought the internet was a series of 'tubes'

Roger

--- On Sun, 6/7/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 10:13 AM

i love the work of mantak and meenawan chia

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Saturday, June 6, 2009, 12:30 AM

I apologize . . . this post should not have arrived here. Again, I am sorry.
Roger

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 7:56 PM

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origins traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*

? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*

? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*

? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Hamein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
- > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
  - > Scores of Unique Vendors*
  - > . . . and much more!*

---

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15

> Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

---

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

===== =
This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.
===== =

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----
Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>
Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>
Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/>

Your email settings:
Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:
<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTablet/join>
(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:
mailto:EmeraldTablet-digest@yahoogroups.com
mailto:EmeraldTablet-fullfeatured@yahoogroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:
EmeraldTablet-unsubscribe@yahoogroups.com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:

<http://docs.yahoo.com/info/terms/>

| 29117|2009-06-08 11:42:25|cristofori whitakara|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from west to east (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the possibility of an earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and have read that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants from Lemuria and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: The King of Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world, as all seem to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history is needed. If Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world was Lemuria, there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from southeast Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis is claimed to have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately 17,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration pattern you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears to span more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy people.

A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pgymy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent.

The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty. By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Aman worship, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29118|2009-06-08 14:19:42|Peter Gray|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

To be honest, Roger, I have not engaged the study or practice of alchemy simply because, as I said before, I follow mainstream science in regard to its definition. I think the first calling of an educated/informed person is to critique or criticize (whether constructively or not). In fact it is this ability to critique or pick things apart that separates us from the average slab of concrete. It's very easy to see lessons of quantum physics in the Dogon cosmogeny, for example, or in a myriad of other belief systems if you try hard enough, but without an agreed upon definition of science, it is just not possible to have a debate. So if we have different ideas of what science is, debate is futile. My allegiance to formal science (as I perceive it of course) is not obedience to "perceived authority" or the "beliefs of others", it's just that I have been convinced by the logic of high school/university science.

Best regards, Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: rogaster1@yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 7 Jun 2009 10:19:00 -0700

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

Hello Peter . . . how are you today?

At the risk of an all out debate, I should state first that 'words reveal and conceal'. Most people who attempt to 'debunk' alchemy tend not to have engaged in its study or practice, or are simply obedient to perceived authority and beliefs of others.

In its most essential meaning, alchemy refers to the process of transformation on all levels of nature, which refer to how the forces underlying the visible manifestation of existence of existence interact between the metaphysical (invisible) and physical (visible) levels. These forces have given rise to the substance of space, which has manifested to become galaxies, stars, and planets.

The existence and evidence of these forces is what has given rise to the symbolic presentation of the periodic table, which reveals three presentations of matter, i.e. gases, liquids, and solids of the visible universe. However, since 'gas' is the most subtle of these states, if your intuition is engaged you will realize that it is something that pre-exists gas.

Further, since 'space' itself is a substance that is composed of a 3:1 ratio of hydrogen to helium . . . and, given that both are atoms, the question that would naturally come to mind is 'what give rise to atoms? This inquiry should lead you into quantum physics towards the Superstring Theory. But, then, you have to ask what generated these theoretical strings . . . many presume to be GOD?

But as a word symbol, the term 'God' implies a non-differentiated state of pre-existence. My point with all of this is that "alchemy" refers to a synthesis of 'inner' and 'outer' worlds of existence. It is the intergration of 'intuition' and 'reason' into the MEANING of existence. Another way of stating this is that alchemy is an attempt of religion and science into PHILOSOPHY that is often discussed or talked about in symbols, the primary language of all three . . . even the 'words' we are using are symbols!

Therefore, it is for me not a problem that you 'endorse' mainstream science, since it is part of the WHOLE. . . just examine and then condemn . . . if you must.
Roger "PEACE"

--- On Sun, 6/7/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

To: "Marc Washington"

Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 11:17 AM

Roger,

"Alchemy" is a belief that one substance can be transformed into another via spells and incantations, at least that is how it has been practised historically and defined in formal science. Perhaps you don't endorse mainstream science, but I do. That's just my perspective.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoo.com

From: rogaster1@yahoo.com

Date: Sat, 6 Jun 2009 09:08:21 -0700

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

Oh c'mon Peter . . . examine, then condemn (lol)
Roger

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: "Marc Washington"
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 10:24 PM

I have to say all this alchemy stuff seems sonuts!! "Learn how alchemy can transform ourselves and the world ..." WTF.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: rogaster1@yahoo. com
Date: Fri, 5 Jun 2009 16:56:59 -0700
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the pr alchemy . . . not to mention that its origin is traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

From: V Jm
Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahoogroups. com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

An Ox Goad,

---

From: zuckavich
To: EmeraldTablet@ yahoogroups. com
Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

- ? A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around the globe!*
- ? Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists in 500 years!*
- ? Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern world!*
- ? Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the world!*

SPEAKERS

- > Dr. Masaru Emoto
- > Master Mantak Chia
- > William Henry
- > Nassim Haramein
- > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > Hans Andrea
- > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > Dennis William Hauck
- > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > Barry Carter
- > Don Nance
- > Don Estes
- > Peter Sterling
- > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > Micah Nilsson
- > Paul Bartscher
- > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > Gary Stadler
- > Daniel Coaten
- > Duane Saari
- > . . . and more

TOPICS

- > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > Alchemy for the Economy
- > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > Alchemy for Businesses
- > Planetary Stargates
- > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > Consciousness Alchemy
- > Taoist Alchemy
- > Spiritual Alchemy
- > Practical Alchemy
- > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > Psychological Alchemy
- > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > Alchemical Performances & Music

- > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > Alchemical Products
- > . . . and so much more!

Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!

Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!

Or Call 866-755-7025

Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom. There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings, plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

---

The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

- > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the consciousness of the general public.
- > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and the many ways in which it can be practically applied in life, work, society, and the world at large for creating transformation and evolution.
- > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers, healers, and teachers.
- > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters", where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and synthesis.
- > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple, Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were more openly discussed and practiced.
- > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing its applicability, universality, and transformative power that everyone can apply in their life according to their personal resonance and chosen path.
- > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested people together each year as well as encourages people to stay connected between conferences in various ways: small local or regional group meetings, social networking communications through Facebook and other online discussion groups.

-
- > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
  - > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
  - > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
  - > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
  - > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
  - > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
  - > Free Entertainment and Gifts*

- > Scores of Unique Vendors*
- > . . . and much more!*

Many package options to choose from*:

- > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

* Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not include keynote speakers.

For complete information, please go to:

www.AlchemyConference.com

Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

=====

This annual event is produced jointly by the International Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a non-profit organization with members in 23 countries dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy. The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality and thereby transform the world.

=====

<http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

<http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

-----

Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>

Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>

Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

To visit your group on the web, go to:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/>

Your email settings:

Individual Email | Traditional

To change settings online go to:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/EmeraldTable/join>

(Yahoo! ID required)

To change settings via email:

mailto:EmeraldTablet- digest@yahoogroups.com

mailto:EmeraldTablet- fullfeatured@ yahoogroups. com

To unsubscribe from this group, send an email to:

EmeraldTablet- unsubscribe@ yahoogroups. com

Your use of Yahoo! Groups is subject to:

http://docs. yahoo. com/ info/terms/

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

---

Windows Live: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

| 29119|2009-06-08 19:03:28|Tafari khumbaka|interview with Chavez|

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bcqeN5pTglg>

click above

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29120|2009-06-09 12:53:39|Asar Imhotep|Bantu origins of the Sidis of India|

<http://www.pambazuka.org/en/category/comment/51594>

Bantu origins of the Sidis of India

Abdulaziz Y. Lodhi

2008-10-29, Issue 404

<http://pambazuka.org/en/category/comment/51594>

Printer friendly version

There is 1 comment on this article.

---

In his work on the Sidis of India, Abdulaziz Y. Lodhi discusses the historical experiences of a group of prominent East African ancestry in the Indian sub-continent. Exploring linguistic developments and the role of Islam in their broader integration, the author discusses the new championing of the Swahili language of a group keen to revitalise their cultural links to Africa and reconstruct their heritage. With the group gaining wider scholarly and public recognition in recent years, Lodhi also reflects on Bantu linguistic data observable in contemporary Sidi speech and the effect of new efforts at cultural revival spearheaded by touring Sidi musical performers.

---

Scattered and less known communities of African descent in the Indian sub-continent, Sri Lanka and the nearby islands in the Indian Ocean are generally known as Sidi or Siddi. Their presence in India was first mentioned in colonial annals as a novelty or in Census Reports (Freeman.Grenville 1988:XVII).(1) However, recently several serious studies about their history, social organisation, cultural and economic activity, their military exploits in the various colonial armies and their political participation have been presented at international conferences by both Indian and Western scholars (Indian Ocean Studies Conference 2002, UCLA, Jayasuriya and Pankhurst 2003).(2)

AFRO-INDIANS HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

Camara (1997) reported the self-identifying Afro-Indians of African origin in India to number about 35,000, who have settled in Gujarat, Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, Kerala and Karnataka, and in the former Portuguese territories of Daman, Diu and Goa. Today their number is estimated to be 76,000 in Gujarat alone.(3) In Gujarat they are found in the districts of Ahmedabad, Amreli, Jamnagar, Junagadh, Rajkot, Bhavnagar, Bharuch, Ratanpur, Surendranagar and Cutch. According to the Census Report of India (Naik & Pandya, 1981), Sidis in Gujarat in 1971 numbered about 5,000 and during the past decades their number has increased slightly and has been fairly constant there because of migration, mainly to the Mumbai region.(4) They are normally settled in areas/hamlets/villages of their own but in Ahmedabad, Bharuch and Cutch they live in mixed areas as they do in parts of Andhra Pradesh.

These Afro-Indians are variously known as Sidhi/Sidi/Siddi or Habshi/Habsi in India, Shidi/Shidee in Pakistan and Kaffir in Sri Lanka. It is generally accepted by scholars that these ethnonyms tell us that the Sidis were in the employ of Sayyads, the Muslim rulers of India, and that many of them came from Ethiopia and Sudan in the 1500s as mercenaries and prisoners of war sold as slaves (Pankhurst 2003).(5) The Arabic religious and/or aristocratic title Sayyad or Sayyidis usually given as the etymology of the ethnonyms Sidhi, Sidhdhi, Siddi, Sidi, or Shidi.

My recent research into the etymology of the term Sidi, and its variants, suggests a possible alternative meaning of the term Sidi. Differing from the established Arabic religious and/or aristocratic title Sayyad, Sayyid, Seyyid, Sayed or Syed (with the non-emphatic / s / consonant siin () (6) ultimately reduced to Sidi in many African dialects of Arabic)(7), the term saydi, with the emphatic // consonant saad () not reduced, means captive or prisoner of war.

In the past, Sudanese and Ethiopian prisoners of war were sold as slaves to other African rulers who sold them to slave traders who in turn brought them to the Middle East and India. As late as the beginning of the 20th century, in the Ottoman armies there were more than 10,000 African mercenaries spread all over the Ottoman empire. The term Sidi might have been borrowed in India from early Arabic/Ottoman usage. In pre-Ottoman period, African soldiers in India were referred to as Habshi or Habsi).(8) Early African soldiers in India appear to have been mostly freemen and mercenaries, and it has been established that there were several groups of Africans who were traders and sailors who had immigrated to India. Thus all Africans in India were not slaves nor were they of slave descent. However, Sidis in the Portuguese enclaves and most Sidi females in domestic employ in the aristocratic households were probably slaves or of slave origin.(9) Ian Hancock (PC 1996) is of the opinion that many Sidis appear to have deserted the various armies at different times and found refuge among the Gypsy/Roma already in India and also after the Roma came to Europe, and were assimilated. This is sometimes apparent in the physiognomy of some Roma with darker complexion and somewhat woolly hair.

A great majority of the Sidis of India today are Sunni Muslims, and the few Hindus and Christians are found in Daman, Goa and Karnataka.(10) The Karnataka Sidis are descendants of the deserters who left Portuguese Goa and fled to the forest across the border, and they most probably originate in Mozambique and Angola.(11)

The Sidis are loosely organised into mostly endogamous tribes or professional castes. The Royal Sidis are survivors of the former Sidi State of Jafarabad established by the Sidi Naval Chief of Janjira during the time of the warrior King Shivaji of the Maratha in the mid-1600s. These Jafarabad Sidis together with the Royal Sidis in Hyderabad, Aurangabad and the former Sidi principalities of Radhanpur in the Kathiawar region of north Gujarat, and in Sachin near the port of Surat, marry mostly among themselves or with upper class/caste Muslim Indians.(12) In some cases they have special tribal names such as the Tai of Saurashtra, the Shemali of Jambur (probably of Somali origin)(13), the Kafara(14) of Diu (probably from southern Mozambique and/or South Africa) and the Saheli(15) of Daman (probably from the Kenya-Tanzania coast). In a few cases in Cutch they also have traditional Indian caste names such as Sidhi Langa (musicians/drummers), Sidhi Dhobi (washermen) and Sidhi Kharwa (sailors).

The Kafara Sidi of Diu have maintained some of their East African customs and a few linguistic items. Small groups of Shemali Sidis and Saheli Sidis have kept alive some rites and rituals from their East African Bantu past, but otherwise the Sidis are de facto Indians since they speak Indian languages as their mother-tongues and practice mostly the Indian variant of Sunni Islam with the Indian Sufi cult of pir (saint) with rituals and celebrations performed at a dargah (mausoleums, shrine). At these shrines they worship also ancestors and founders of settlements (Patel 1986, Catlin 2002, Basu 2002, and Shroff 2002).(16)

There are several legends about the origins of some early Sidi settlements but so far no contemporary written record has been found to verify their early oral history or substantiate the Sidi claims of various ancestries. However, there are a few early reports by European officials and travellers and one short language study by the explorer Richard F. Burton (1851). According to one commonly accepted legend (Patel 1986), the founder of the Sidi settlement in Jambur in Gujarat is supposed to have originally come from Kano in Nigeria via the Sudan and Mecca after his Hajj pilgrimage. This leader was a wealthy merchant by the name of Bawa/Baba Ghor who first settled in the Rajpipla Hills near Bharuch and Khambhat where he developed mining and trade in agate, the precious stone known as akik in India.(17) A certain variety of agate beads are known as Baba Ghorī, and another maroon cornelian stone is named after his sister and successor Mai Mariyam, also known as Mai Misra/Mishra.(18)

It appears that a large number of Sidis came, or were brought, to India from different parts of Africa as soldiers to serve in the Muslim armies of the Nawabs and Sultans, hence their Muslim faith and relative absence of the Hindu caste system among them. Many were officials in the Muslim, and later Hindu, armies and as royal bodyguards some of them rose to power in more than one place, such as Jafarabad, Radhanpur, Ahmedabad and Aurangabad. Some were singers and ceremonial drummers. In Gujarat the drummers are known as nagarchi, and the chief drummer had the title of nagarsha(h) (king of drums). In Cutch and Sindh, the Sidi singer-drummers are known as langa (male lango, female langi) and they are prestigious and respectable professionals. It is also claimed by the Shemali Sidi that one of Bawa Ghor's younger brothers was a nagarsha in the former Kingdom of Madhapur, and he is worshipped as one of the several pirs in Jambur.

Some Sidis came to India as special servants in the courts of Muslim Nawabs and Sultans, some came as herbalists and midwives, a few were brought by Indian merchants returning home from Africa, and a few were brought as domestic slaves especially in the Portuguese territories (Shirodkar 1985:27 and passim).

Noble north Indian families had a convention of keeping Habshi, or other non-Indians, as personal attendants since servants having no local social or blood connections or roots guaranteed political loyalty and security (as was the case with the Arab/Omani sultans of Zanzibar whose armed forces and administrative personnel consisted mainly of the Balochi and Makrani of Iran/Pakistan, and Cutchi/Sindhi and Pathan of north-west India). Very few African slaves were brought to the Indian sub-continent to provide cheap labour. Ownership of African slaves was an expensive affair since local Indian feudal practices related to slavery provided abundant indigenous cheap or free labour to rulers, landowners and the upper castes. The rulers of India could also obtain slaves of various categories from other parts of Asia, Eastern Europe and the Caucasus. The descendants of these slaves of different origins in most Muslim societies generally cannot be distinguished as racial or ethnic groups or minorities since most of them were employed in the higher administration and the armies, serving different governments and later marrying the natives. As Bates & Rassam (1989) describe it, they were a kind of life-long servants of the ruler, rather than slaves in the Western sense.

SIDIS TODAY

Before the arrival of British rule in India, the Sidis were undergoing a process of assimilation, but the British divide-and-rule policy segregated the Sidi groups from one another and also from the indigenous Indian communities in which they lived. As a result, the Sidis have been re-tribalised and have become impoverished in many areas.(19)

Those Sidi settlements in Gujarat that are organised as separate communities with a tribal system existing outside the main political stream and currents of socio-economic development have been classified by the central government as scheduled tribes and they get central government support. Jambur Village near Madhapur with its own panchayat (five member leadership committee), a primary school and a shop, was the first Sidi enclosure to get such support (Census of India 1961). Most Sidis in Gujarat are farmers and unskilled workers, but in other regions one finds Sidi doctors, lawyers, policemen, journalists, technicians, teachers, businessmen and landowners. There is an inter-state movement to organise and unite all the Sidi groups and improve their economic conditions and raise their social status. An increasing number of them are realising economic improvement as entertainers in the growing tourist industry.

SIDIS AND LANGUAGE

East African slaves were randomly caught, or were recruited from different tribal lands; they usually spoke related languages and several individuals came from the same area or were members of the same ethnic group. For these reasons they could communicate in an Eastern African language in the beginning, but as mixed groups, small in numbers and spread over wide areas surrounded by large Indian languages with a long tradition, they could not maintain nor transmit their original languages and cultures to future generations. Instead they became Indianised, leaving few African linguistic traces in their speech and cultural registers of terminology. Another factor was Islam, the religion of the politically dominant section of the Indian society with whom the Sidis were initially allied, which became a common denominator of their cultural identification and also facilitated their social and linguistic integration, and economic, political and military success in many areas before the advent of the British colonial rule.

Thus the Sidis today speak Gujarati (or a mixture of Gujarati and Hindi) in the Saurashtra region of Gujarat. In the district of Cutch they speak Cutchi (a dialect of Sindhi), and in Daman and Diu they speak the local Gujarati dialects with a few Swahili/Bantu words and phrases. In Sindh they speak Sindhi and also Urdu, and Dakhini in Andhra Pradesh. Other groups of Sidis speak Marathi, Malayalam, Konkani or Kannada according to their region of settlement.

Richard Burtons wordlist of 1851 is a brief and random lexicon (Freeman-Grenville 1988:18) of the Sidi language as spoken in coastal Sindh and Cutch at that time and contains altogether 122 words and phrases, numerals and 22 place names including some tribal homelands; the latter are all derived from languages spoken in Tanzania (Shambaa, Zigua, Ngindo and Yao) which points to the Tanzanian mainland as their original home. In other parts of the Indian sub-continent, some linguistic items from Mozambique (from Makua, Nyanja and Yao languages) and Malawi (Nyanja/Chewa) have been identified.(20)

The following is a short list extracted from Richard Burtons Sidi language (collected in Sindh during 1849-50, and not claimed by him nor by the contemporary Sidis to be Swahili).

Burtons Sidi language Modern/Standard Swahili (based on Zanzibar Town):

moto moto (fire; hot) komongo chuma (iron, iron bar)
maji maji (water)
nyumba nyumba (house, home)
somba samaki, insi, nswi (fish)

vura mvua (rain)
khundoro kondoo/khondoo (sheep)
mawingo mawingu (clouds)
pinde pinde (bow)
mukoki mkuki (spear)
menu meno (teeth)
nyoere nywele (hair)
muguru mguu (foot)
macho macho (eyes)
devo ndevu, devu (beard)
mototo mtoto (child, son)
baba ya baba (father)
viyakazi (daughter) vijakazi (slave girls, maids)
moya moja (one)
perhi mbili (two), pili (second)
tahtu tatu/thathu (three) mme nne (four) thano tano/thano (five)
thandatu sita (six)
fungate saba (seven, week) (Old Swahili fungate)
mnani nane (eight)
mpya tisa, kenda (nine)
kummi kumi (ten)
akachukola akachukua (he/she took it away)
akaje akaja (he/she came)
akanepa akanipa (he/she gave me)
akabija akauza (he/she sold it)
akafenga akaiba (he/she stole it)

Place names, languages and ethnonyms mentioned by the Sidis of Sindh and recorded by Burton (1851) are:

Lamo (Lamu along north Kenya coast)
Baramaji (Mbwanaji south of Darassalaam)
Kinkhwere (Kinghwele spoken south of Darassalaam)

Whiteley (1969:52) reported many slaves seem to have come from the coastal areas, and the Sidi language appears to have been one they could all speak. Though they include members of some inland tribes, such as Nyamwezi and Sagara, many are easily recognizable as coastal groups, e.g. Dengereko, Makonde, Matumbi, Gindo, Mudoe, Mzigra, etc. Mr. R. B. Patel, of Nairobi, tells me that there is still a Swahili-speaking Sidi community in Kathiawar, in the remote Gir forest some 200 miles S.W. of Ahmedabad. (This Sidi community is in Jambur, the negro village with about 150 households, which the present author visited in March 2008.)

Recent fieldwork among the Sidis in Ratanpur and Bhavnagar in Gujarat during January 2007 has yielded only about a dozen Bantu/Swahili single word items and about a dozen phrases and a couple of complete Swahili-sounding sentences, e.g. Ee manamuki, wapi koenda? (You young woman, where are you going?). In modern Swahili it would be Wee mwanamke, unakwenda wapi? A couple of sentences were of mixed Bantu-Gujarati construction, e.g. Kulya karwa jae! (Let us go to eat! Bantu kulya = to eat, eating; Gujarati karwa jae = let us go to do). One lexical item, injoro (curry, gravy) used in Ratanpur, is not derived from any Bantu language but rather from the Ethiopian usage injira (or Somali anjera).(21)

POINTS OF CONCLUSION

In the face of globalisation which seems to make the world become more inter-connected, ethnicity is increasingly emphasised in many parts of the world where claims to specific local identities and renewed or (re)constructed ethnicities are more loudly presented.

The Sidis of Gujarat in India are a fragmented East African community of mixed ancestry, primarily descendants of Muslim African traders, sailors and mercenaries. A few of them are of slave origin. Today they speak Gujarati and Cutchi with only a few Swahili/Bantu expressions mostly connected with their Sufi ritual dances and music.

A long period of relative Sidi isolation has been broken by both Indian and Western anthropological and historical interest in the various Sidi communities and this has given them a wider recognition both at home and abroad. In the last few years, Sidi cultural societies have been organising international festivals in Gujarat and participating in international cultural gatherings in East Africa with their song and dance troupes that have also been touring the West. These renewed contacts of the Sidis with East Africa have increased slightly the number of Swahili/Bantu word stock in their Gujarati and Cutchi; for example the Sidis, though being culturally and linguistically de facto Indian, are emphasising their African heritage and their entertainment groups are now increasingly using Swahili greetings when addressing their public, and their men dress like the East African Swahili Muslims. An increasing number of Sidi individuals are also involved in modern sports (football) and athletics (running) especially in Pakistan, thus playing the role of an essential factor of Sidi ethnic identity.

Over the course of the last decade, several Western researchers have been emphasising the Africanness of the Sidis and have exaggerated their slave origins (Kjaerholm 1992, Whitehead 1997 and 1999), an exaggeration which some Sidi groups are capitalising on. Recently a couple of Sidi groups of artists have toured East Africa and Europe on a commercial basis performing Sufi dances and songs with the repertoire in Gujarati and Hindi mixed with some Swahili phrases. It seems, the Sidis are adopting Swahili as their ancestral language, as many African-American communities have done in the United States. Sufi cult and dance groups (e.g. the Sidi Goma and the black Sufis of Gujarat), healing rituals, spirit possession and exorcism, and annual celebrations, have become objects of historical and social anthropological research mostly supported by Western institutions and they are increasingly becoming exotic tourist attractions.(22)

James Clifford (1997:257) rightly points out that The currency of diaspora discourse extends to a wide range of populations and historical predicaments. Many individuals, groups and whole communities of the African diaspora around the world have reconstructed, reinvented and imagined their ancestral homeland,(23) and the Sidis of Gujarat are increasingly perceiving East Africa, misconceiving particularly Zanzibar the central slave market of the Indian Ocean during the 18th and 19th centuries as the home of their African ancestors and Swahili as their ancestral language. Globalisation and technological advances have strongly pushed the Sidi communities in the general trend in the world of nations becoming culturally heterogeneous, with minority languages, or minority language use, in some cases playing the role of an essential factor of ethnic identity, whether traditionally inherited or newly constructed.

* Abdulaziz Y. Lodhi is an associate professor in Swahili and Comparative Bantu at the Department of Linguistics & Philology at the Uppsala University, Sweden.

* Please send comments to editor@pambazuka.org or comment online at <http://www.pambazuka.org/>

References:

- (1) The Greco-Egyptian maritime manual Periples of the Erithraean Sea written around the first century AD mentions export of slaves from East Africa to the northern shores of the Indian Ocean, but provides no figures. In official Indian annals, the earliest mention of African presence in India is in the person of Jamaliddin bin Yakut, the stable master of Raziya Begum, Empress Radiyya of Delhi (AD 1236-40).
- (2) The pioneering works highlighting the African Diaspora in the Indian Ocean and South Asia are by George Shepperson (1968) and Joseph I. Harris (1971/1977), a comparative perspective of which is provided by Edward A. Alpers (2003). CONEXOES Newsletter of the African Diaspora Research Project, Michigan State University, contains reports on extensive ongoing research in the field of African diaspora in general. Another very recent work edited by Amy Catlin-Jairazbhoy and Edward A. Alpers (2004) contains a dozen different accounts of various aspects of Sidi history, culture and ethnicity in India.
- (3) PC with Miss Farida Sidi of Sidi Goma Al-Mubrik Charitable Foundation, Bhavnagar, Gujarat, India.
- (4) PC with various participants of the IOS 2002. In 1853 it was reported by Major Hammerton, the British Consul in Muscat, that a lively slave trade existed between Zanzibar and the Indian states of Cutch and Kathiawar (Jayasurya and Pankhurst 2003:10). Since this trade would have by today generated tens of thousands of descendants of those slaves, it is my contention that such a lively trade could not have existed, and that instead there were many East Africans who came to Cutch as sailors and short-term employees of the Cutchi, Sindhi and Kathiawari merchant houses. Moreover, my data collected from the archives of Zanzibar do not support the claims of a lively trade in slaves between East Africa and India during the 1850s. See also Shirodkar (1985) for the Portuguese slave trade between Mozambique and Goa.
- (5) Malik Ambar, the ruler of Ahmadnagar during 1601-1626 was of Ethiopian origin and was succeeded by his son. Another African historically noted was Sidi Sayyid, a wealthy ex-slave who in 1573 built the famous Juma Masjid, the great Friday Mosque in Ahmedabad, with the help of African architects and craftsmen (Harries 1998:98). See also several studies by Richard Pankhurst on the Ethiopian diaspora in India. For details on African aristocracies in India see Robbins, Kenneth X. and John McLeod (Editors). 2006. African Elites in India: Habshi Amarat. Ahmedabad. Mapin Publishing Pvt, Ltd.
- (6) Lodhi: posting to the forum NAMASKAR-AFRIKANA-L@HOME.EASE.LSOFT.COM, 24 September 1998.

(7) The ethnonym Sidi was taken from northern India by the British and applied to all Afro-Indians, and today it is used by many Sidis as a surname. Its earliest mention in English is by W. Bedwell in 1615 as a name or title of honour of Africans and African descendents in high position in the Middle East and India (OUP 1919).

(8) The ethnonym Chaush used by the Sidis of Hyderabad is a Turkish loan originally meaning military commander or officer in charge. In pre-colonial Swahili one finds chausi, shaushi and bishausi with the same connotations as in Ottoman Turkish and Hindi/Urdu.

(9) Such female domestic servants of African or mixed descent in the aristocratic households were referred to as khadi in Gujarati, which is derived from Arabic khadim (serf) and also loaned into Swahili as khadimu/hadimu.

(10) Lodhi, field notes and PC with Professor Jayanti K. Patel, Dept. of Sociology, Ahmedabad, January 1991. Patel has collected a wealth of sociological and cultural-anthropological material on the Siddi of Gujarat, but almost nothing linguistic. The present writer was given the opportunity to go through Siddi wedding and other songs in Gujarati in which only a few Bantu words were identified. A couple of other non-Indic items appearing in these songs from Jambur which were not of Arabic, Persian or Turkish origin may be of Hausa, Amharic or Somali origin.

(11) It should be noted that most of the Gujarati Sidis I have spoken with categorically claim that they are not of slave descent! They are Badshahi i.e. of royal employ having aristocratic connections.

(12) This can be compared with the situation in Sri Lanka where in 2001 there was only one reported marriage between two Kafara Sidi partners. All other Kafara marriages involved a non-Kafara partner (PC Jayasuriya, April 2002).

(13) The term Shemali seems to be derived from somali which is also pronounced shomali in various Indic languages.

(14) The term Kafara is of Arabic origin meaning pagan and in the colonial usage of various European languages in eastern and southern Africa, it was borrowed from Swahili to mean negro or black. The British took many southern African Kaffirs to the Indian Ocean islands of Mauritius, Seychelles etc after 1847 from Kafraria, the British Cape Colony Reserve near Cape Town.

(15) The term Saheli is derived from the Swahili word mswahili originally meaning of/from the coast. It is derived from Arabic swahil (coast) and swahily (of/from the coast).

(16) Updated findings of these four authors are published in Catlin-Jairazbhoy and Alpers (2004).

(17) This stone is known as akiki in Eastern Africa. It is an Arabic loanword both in the Indian and East African languages. For details of this trade, see J. Mark Kenoyer and Kuldeep K. Bhan: Sidis and the agate bead industry of Western India in Catlin-Jairazbhoy and Alpers (2004:42-61).

(18) According to one tradition in the Dongri district of Mumbai, Mai Misra is called so because she came to India via Misre or Misar (Egypt).

(19) However, during the early British rule in East Africa, dozens of Cutchi and Gujarati speaking Siddi individuals and families from the ports of Mandvi and Surat immigrated to Zanzibar and Mombasa where they are today completely assimilated into the East African Swahili-speaking coastal Muslim communities. Many more were repatriated by the British and rehabilitated by the various mission stations along the East African coast and converted to Christianity. Descendants of these are today recognised as Christian first language speakers of Swahili in Mombasa, Tanga, Daressalaam and Zanzibar. However, this repatriation did not have any notable impact on India or East Africa and the diaspora in general as it was over the Atlantic in West Africa.

(20) I have recently suggested for Amy Catlin-Jairazbhoy (working on the Sidis of Gujarat) and Sabir Badalkhan (working on the Sheedis of Pakistani Baluchistan) the etymology of a couple of Sidi linguistic items, among them magulman as Bantu magulu mane, the four legged high drum commonly used during the Sidi Sufi performances. The term magulman is also used by the Baluchistan Shidi to refer to the songs sung with this drum, and the performance itself may be called magulman, which is sometimes pronounced as mugalman leading some people to erroneously assume that the drum and the dances are from the Mughal court or period. The phrase magulu mane is commonly found in several local languages of Mainland Tanzania such as Zaramo/Zalamo, Shambaa/Shambala, Bondei and Zigua/Zigula, speakers who were part of the East African diaspora to Gujarat via southern Somalia during the first three quarters of the 1800s.

(21) In the about 50 Jikr of the Sidi lady Rumanaben Bilal of Ahmedabad collected by Amy Catlin-Jairazbhoy, there are many Bantu/Swahili words, phrases and even some complete sentences, most of which are not understood by the Sidis themselves. This linguistic data together with the data from January 2007 will be analysed and published by the present writer in the near future. (22) This phenomenon has been capitalised on by several radio and TV channels such as the private station Talking Africa (June 2002, London) and the BBC which aired a series of programmes in November 2000 and an article entitled The lost Africans of India by Andrew Whitehead of The World Today ( BBC News Online Friday 24 November, 2000). This approach has the tendency to formalize a collective memory in the words of Robin Cohen (1997).

(23) For a broad history and deeper discussion of these issues, see Sidney Lemelle and Robin D. G. Kelly, 1994.

Alpers Edward A. 2003. The African Diaspora in the Indian Ocean: A Comparative Perspective, in Jayasuriya, Shihan de Silva and Richard Pankhurst (Eds.), pp. 19-50.

Basu, Helene. 1994. Habshi-Sklaven, Sidi-Fakiren: muslimische Heiligenverehrung im westlichen Indien. Berlin: Das Arabische bok.

Basu, Helene. 2002. Indian Sidi African Query. Paper, Indian Ocean Studies Conference, University of California, Los Angeles.

Bates, D. G. and A. Rassam. 1989. Peoples & Cultures of the Middle East. Trenton NJ: Prentice Hall.

Burton, Richard F. 1851. Sindh, and the Races that inhabit the Valley of the Indus, London.

Camara, Charles. 1997. Afro-Indians a preliminary survey. Conference Paper, The Northwestern Indian Ocean as Cultural Corridor, 17-19 January 1997, Dept. of Social Anthropology, Stockholm University, Sweden.

Catlin, Amy. 2002. To tour or To be toured African Indians at Home and Abroad. Paper, Indian Ocean Studies Conference, University of California, Los Angeles.

Catlin-Jairazbhoy, Amy and Edward A. Alpers (Eds.). 2004. Sidis and Scholars: Essays on African Indians. Trenton, NJ: The Red Sea Press, Inc.

Census of India Vol.5, Part 5B, No.1, 1961. Siddi - a negroid tribe of India. Ethnographic Series, Gujarat.

Census of India Vol.5, Part 6, No.10, 1961. Village Survey Monograph: Jambur. Ethnographic Series, Gujarat.

Census of India. 1981. District census handbook. Village and town directory Siddi District. Series 11 Madhya Pradesh, Part XIII-A.

Clifford, James. 1997. Routes: Travels and Translations in the Late Twentieth Century. Cambridge, Mass.: Harvard University Press.

Cohen, Robin. 1997. Global Diasporas: An Introduction. London: UCL Press.

CONEXOES. 1989-91. Newsletter of the African Diaspora Research Project, Vols. 1-3. Dept. of Sociology, Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Freeman-Grenville, G.S.P. 1988. The Swahili Coast - 2nd to 19th Centuries. London: Variorum Reprints. (Ch. XVII The Siddi and Swahili)

Harris, Joseph E. 1977. African presence in Asia: consequences of the East African slave trade. Evanston: University of Illinois Press.

_____. 1993. (Ed.) Global dimensions of the African diaspora. Washington: Howard University Press.

_____. 1998. Africans And Their History. New York: Penguin/Meridian.

Jayasuriya, Shihan de Silva and Richard Pankhurst (Eds.). 2003. The African Diaspora in the Indian Ocean. Trenton, N.J.: Africa World Press.

Kjaerholm, Lars. 1992. Sjøverlevde Indiens negerslavar. Illustrerad Vetenskap 3:46-49, 79. Stockholm.

Lemelle, Sidney and Robin D. G. Kelly (Eds.). 1994. Imagining Home Class, Culture and Nationalism in the African Diaspora. London and New York: Verso.

Lodhi, Abdulaziz Y. 1992. African Settlements in India. Nordic Journal of African Studies 1(1):83-87.

_____. African Settlements in India. NAMASKAR-AFRIKANA-L@HOME.EASE.LSOFT.COM,
24 September 1998.

_____. Siddi, the East African community in Gujarat: Globalization in earlier days and their situation today. Paper presented to the Panel on Globalization and Minority Languages in South Asia, 18th European Conference on Modern South Asian Studies, 6-9 July 2004, Lund, Sweden.

Misra, Satish C. 1964. Muslim Communities in Gujarat: Preliminary studies in their History and Social Organisation. New York: Asia Publishing House.

Naik, T. B. and G. P. Pandya. 1981. The Sidis of Gujarat (A Socio-Economic Study and a Development Plan).

Tribal Research & Training Institute: Ahmedabad.

_____. 1993. The Sidis of Gujarat (A Socio-Economic Study and a Development Plan).

Tribal Research & Training Institute: Ahmedabad.

OUP 1919, A New English Dictionary on Historical Principles, Vol IX Part I, Oxford University Press, London.

Patel, Jayanti K. 1986. African Settlements in Gujarat. India Quarterly, July-Sept.:238-246.

Pankhurst, Richard. 2003. The Ethiopian Diaspora to India, in Jayasuriya, Shihan de Silva and Richard Pankhurst (Eds.), pp. 189-221.

Robbins, Kenneth X. and John McLeod (Editors). 2006. African Elites in India: Habshi Amarat. Ahmedabad. Mapin Publishing Pvt, Ltd.

Shepperson, George. 1968. The African Abroad or the African Diaspora, in T. O. Ranger (Ed.), Emerging Themes of African History. Nairobi: pp. 152-176.

Shirodkar, P. P. 1985. Slavery in Coastal India. Purabhilekh Puratatva 3(1):27-44. State Archives: Panaji, India.

Shroff, Beheroze. 2002. Sidis and Parsis a film project. Paper, Indian Ocean Studies Conference, University of California, Los Angeles.

Whitehead, Andrew. 1997. Stranded In A Foreign Land an African community without a past. BBC FOCUS ON AFRICA , Jan-March:28-30.

_____. 1999. Asian Blacks Unique Past Is Ever Present the other African Diaspora. International Herald Tribune, April 13.

_____. 2000. The lost Africans of India. The World Today, BBC News Online, Friday 24 November. Whiteley, Wilfred W. 1969. SWAHILI The Rise of a National Language. London: Methuen.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29121|2009-06-09 13:54:41|Asar Imhotep|Re: The Pharaoh [reply]|
Peace Ferg

I dont know if I have a device. I wish I had one that made my research a lot easier. In regards to your first set of statements, you might want to rename or alter the title of your paper because the reader would assume you are correlating the word PR (PARA) to mean PHAROAH instead of a PLACE, HOUSE, etc. If that was the intent, then the criticism would be valid as you do not find the consonants PR to mean the king by itself: only in conjunction with /aA/.

Now as far as PARA is concerned, I think that the P and R can be accounted for in the kiKam language. As mentioned in my initial reply, PA can mean THIS or THE. I also pointed out where the R(a) can mean a PLACE. So in the kiKam language we can account for the general meaning of PR to mean a THIS PLACE or THE PLACE. This may be an alternative interpretation worth exploring.

As far as the word RAS, I dont think this is a Semitic word. As I demonstrated in the initial reply, I mentioned in Budge 432a a word RS that is a title of a priest. In other words, it is a title for someone in a leadership position. For this a little understanding of African culture will come in handy. What we call a priest in the West is simply an initiated person in the community who holds a position of power. In all African traditional societies, you cannot hold a position of power unless you are initiated into the culture. For a lack of a better term in English, we simply say a PRIEST. All members of the administration of ancient Ta-Meri were priests. These were the heads of society. I think this term RS in the Egyptian actually is native born and not an importation from outside.

For examples using the word FARI, remember Budge stated that the term PR-AA was later associated with anyone who worked as an official. So in the letter to Akhenaton, they were simply calling him a the great official. We see this play out in the Walaf language as Diop demonstrated:

Egyptian Walaf

Per-aa = Pharaoh Fari = supreme king

Fara = officer in charge

Fara leku = keeper of harem

As we can see, the word FARA refers to an officer in charge, not the king. It seems to be, at least in the Walaf language, that when FARI ends with an /i/ it refers to the King. When FARI ends with an /a/ (FARA) it is referring to someone who is in charge, the head of the department, etc. So we see the same relationship of PR-AA and FARA/FARI in both languages.

So when we examine the term RS (RAS) in the kiKami language, we see this type of association as it is in the Wolof language. I charge that RAS is an Egyptian term that was borrowed in the Semitic languages. Its just like the word SULTEN in Arabic is an Egyptian word. See Budge 238a for the word STN which means KING. All of this makes sense when we understand that Semitic is an African language group, so its not an issue of borrowing from them as a lot of their vocabulary is simply paleo-African lexicon.

I think we need to explore the Egyptian relationship between /aA/ meaning great and /aAt/ meaning chief. This may prove that the aA In pr-aA is actually referring to the king and pr is locative.

I hope I made sense. Keep up the good work.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Ferg wrote:

From: Ferg
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] The Pharaoh [reply]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Saturday, June 6, 2009, 8:46 AM

?

Thank you Aser for the criticisms.

I much appreciate it. Its what research is all about. Also thank you for the data provided. You must have some sort of magical device for correlating information!

(1) The philosophical connections can easily be interpreted as loose

The purpose of the paper was to examine the etymology of theAncient Egyptian wordPARA, a word for a house. The Proto-Bantu word for a house is different but includes in its definition anenclosure or yard. To arrive at the etymology of the word certainconceptual assumptions are relevant. These include the wordsALA, ARA, etc whichmean 'to lay out', 'to spread' as an example to lay a cloth on a table or things on a table,or to lay out a blanket. Both concepts relate to a covering, and a covering means a cover such as a roof! From this, the word for a ceiling, roofoor floor is given as KA-PALA. The next stage was to determine the meaning of PA. Having established this in the paper the word KA-PALA derived the word for a roof, ceiling or platform, similar to the word PARA.I see no problem with the words 'to layout' or 'to spread'. Both ideas are from the Luvale-Bantu language.

Although in the data provided you said, no where are the words 'to spread' or 'to layout' to be found in the AE language which would fit the words ALA, ARA, etc, I don't see a problem with this as conceptual ideas in the AE language may be difficult to discern. The fact that we cannot find the idea does not mean that it does not exist, otherwise how would the word PARA appear in the AE language. As an example the Kiswahili-Bantu word KOMA, to bring to an end, to end, to finish is similar to the AE word. Both components KO + MA, can be accounted for, but finding them in the AE language could be difficult. What matters is the sound/meaning relationship which exists between the languages.

(2) The consonants PR in the Egyptian language by itself does not refer to the king himself

True, however I don't recall saying it. You are right the only time PARA-AA is mentioned as the king himself is in a letter to Akhenaton. In this instance he is called PHARAOH.

To the question you posed Does the ancient Egyptian words Great House, represented by the consonants PR-AA, find its cognate in the Kiswahili and Bantu languages?

The answer to your question is that a similar word exists as NYUMBA- KUU, a great house in Kiswahili-Bantu. It could very well have been PARA-KUU, but PARA for the roof of a house is not used as such. However the Prince of Punt was called PARAHU, the great house. HU is a different form of KUU as HUU is derived from HULU and means big, large or great. As a different example the Zulu-Bantu word for a house is NDLU and NDLUNKULU without prefixes means a great house. The word for great is KULU. The Zulu-Bantu great house is the royal house and is surrounded by a family group of homes attached to the great house.

Finally the word RAS, head is an Arabic Semitic word which has found its way in various parts of the world. I cannot see how the Wolf word, FARI, FARA, supreme king could be related to a Semitic word. Again the word FARI cannot be separated and therefore one does not know how the word originated. However the word RA is a Bantu word which I may explain later should the need be.

THE WORD PARA-AA

From my observations the AE word for the great house was definitely pronounced with a P rather than an F sound. The ending AA signifying great is interesting. It depends what one considers 'what is great'. There are several definitions for 'great'. Two of them include, marvelous, wonderful. It is my intuition that the AE word for great is to do with wonder or excitement and could be an interjection similar to 'WA', a great house. Thus AA appears in Kiswahili-Bantu as an exclamation for wonder and excitement.

There seems so much to elaborate on. Perhaps I will expand my paper in greater detail ironing out some of the problems. I take your criticisms on board!

Somo

|---

Peace Phamily

Not sure if this report has been shared on Ta-Seti already, but if so, I apologize for the repost. What do you think?

FULL PAPER

http://hpgl.stanford.edu/publications/AJHG\_2002\_v70\_p1197-1214.pdf

A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa Is Supported by High-Resolution Analysis of Human Y-Chromosome Haplotypes

ABSTRACT

The variation of 77 biallelic sites located in the nonrecombining portion of the Y chromosome was examined in 608 male subjects from 22 African populations. This survey revealed a total of 37 binary haplotypes, which were combined with microsatellite polymorphism data to evaluate internal diversities and to estimate coalescence ages of the binary haplotypes. The majority of binary haplotypes showed a nonuniform distribution across the continent. Analysis of molecular variance detected a high level of interpopulation diversity ( $F_p$  0.342), which appears to be partially related to the geography ( $F_p$  0.230). In sub-Saharan Africa, the recent spread of a set of haplotypes CT partially erased pre-existing diversity, but a high level of population ( $F_p$  0.332) and geographic ( $F_p$  0.179) ST CT structuring persists. Correspondence analysis shows that three main clusters of populations can be identified: northern, eastern, and sub-Saharan Africans. Among the latter, the Khoisan, the Pygmies, and the northern Cameroonians are clearly distinct from a tight cluster formed by the Niger-Congospeaking populations from western, central western, and southern Africa. Phylogeographic analyses suggest that a large component of the present Khoisan gene pool is eastern African in origin and that Asia was the source of a back migration to sub-Saharan Africa. Haplogroup IX Y chromosomes appear to have been involved in such a migration, the traces of which can now be observed mostly in northern Cameroon.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29123|2009-06-09 20:13:34|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|oye, aja ,aje'.....|

<http://www.rootsandrooted.org/?p=243>

click above

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29124|2009-06-10 12:05:52|odhiambo okech|3 days Countdown; KCDN Peace Run/Walk|

Attachments :

Programme.doc

Yesterday we erroneously indicated that Bishop Dr Julius Mbagaya gave us Kshs 55,000.00. This was a typing error and the correct position is that he gave us Kshs 5,000.00.

Today morning, Homeboyz called us and said they will give us water. Many thanks. Partnership for Change have also sent to us their support today. We are now almost done. We hope, with your support, to be very ready by Friday

We really appreciate the Friends of KCDN who have come in good numbers to support us. This is how we stand as at now;

- 1] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Lenny Amolo of AIG Kenya Ltd.
- 2] Kshs 10,000.00 from Mr. Eric Jangolo of Barclays Bank, [But strictly for our rent].
- 3] Kshs 2,800.00 from Mr. Elijah Kombo of Bidii Africa.
- 4] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Otieno Sungu of Southern Sudan.
- 5] Kshs 2,000.00 from Arinolah EN of Southern Sudan.
- 6] Kshs 3,000.00 from Dr Shem Ochuodho of Southern Sudan.
- 7] Kshs 15,000.00 from Bunge la Mwananchi- Mr. George Nyongesa.
- 8] Kshs 5,000.00 from Bishop Dr. Julius Mbagaya.
- 9] Video Coverage from Dommie Yambo- Development Through Media.
- 10] 10 balls [5-football, 5 volleyballs] from Text Book Centre Ltd.
- 11] Administration Police Band has confirmed their participation.
- 12] Partnership for Change.

13] 240 bottles of water from H2O- Mr. Myke Rabar

14] Kshs 500.00 from a Friend of KCDN who would like to remain anonymous

We are still expecting more support and as soon as they are in, we will make it public. Follow us here;<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

Many thanks to all those who have come on board to help us host this event.

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi,

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557.

| 29125|2009-06-10 12:05:55|odhiambo okech|Thank you; Friends of KCDN|

9th June 2009

Dear Friends of KCDN,

It is 3 days to the hosting of the 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk, and we must thank all those Friends of KCDN who have come on board to help us host this event.

We have today received Kshs 15,000.00 from Bunge La Mwananchi, and Kshs 5,000.00 from Bishop Dr Julius Mbagaya. The support cheque from Bunge was presented to us by Mr. George Nyongesa in the company of Mark Korir and Jacob Odipo. They also presented us with a banner marked; organizing citizenry, setting the agenda, transforming lives.

At KCDN, we believe in one Kenya where we all look at each other as a brother or a sister. We want to implore on all Kenyans to be proud of who they are. Be proud having been born a Luo, Kikuyu, Kisii, Luhya, Giriama, Pokomo, Kamba, Kalenjin et al. Be proud that it is this diversity that makes us Kenyan.

As we host the 2nd Edition of KCDN Peace Run/Walk, we want to implore all Kenyans never to accept being used as agents of doom again; Do not kill your neighbour on accounts of his/her political belief; Do not fight because of politics.

Let us vote differently but remain friends. In the same vain, if you loose in an election, do not steal or cook the results. Accept the results as they come in and live to fight another day. Do not let Kenyans be used to fight the war of losers.

Do not vote on account of your tribe. Please vote for leadership, not the kind that has let Kenya down for the last 46 years. Let us vote for that one Kenyan who has a vision that is clear enough to propel us out of poverty, illiteracy and disease.

Let us have no time with leaders who run to seek solace in their tribes whenever they are faced with hard choices. They will never bring the change that we want for Kenya.

Above all, let us have a leadership that will have some feelings for the Orphans and Vulnerable Children in our society; a leadership that will want to clear the slums of Kenya; not a leadership that would want to promote slum tourism. I do not fancy leaders coming to visit the slums of Kenya every so often without tangible solutions.

If we cannot honestly preach the virtues of Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation and if we cannot have the courage to address the Annotated Agenda Item No. 4 as captured in the National Accord of 2008, then the end repercussions might be worse than what we saw in 2008. We are now all the wiser. Vote and let that vote count. No more manipulations. Kwani? If we all believe in one Kenya, then any one of us can be our leader.

As we approach this day, kindly join us in preaching Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation across the land. If you believe in this process, let us do it. At least at KCDN we are doing something. And we want to thank the following persons and institutions for coming forward to support us. We believe that it is not yet late for you to join us and lend a hand;

And this is how we are placed;

- 1] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Lenny Amolo of AIG Kenya Ltd.
- 2] Kshs 10,000.00 from Mr. Eric Jangolo of Barclays Bank, [But strictly for our rent].
- 3] Kshs 2,800.00 from Mr. Elijah Kombo of Bidii Africa.
- 4] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Otieno Sungu of Southern Sudan.
- 5] Kshs 2,000.00 from Arinolah EN of Southern Sudan.
- 6] Kshs 3,000.00 from Dr Shem Ochuodho of Southern Sudan.
- 7] Kshs 15,000.00 from Bunge la Mwananchi- Mr. George Nyongesa.
- 8] Kshs 55,000.00 from Bishop Dr. Julius Mbagaya.
- 9] Kshs 5,000.00 from Chifu of New York. [Still a pledge]
- 10] a pledge from Bernard Otworu of Southern Sudan.
- 11] Video Coverage from Dommie Yambo- Development Through Media.
- 12] 10 balls [5-football, 5 volleyballs] from Text Book Centre Ltd.
- 13] Administration Police Band has confirmed their participation.
- 14] Partnership for Change.
- 15] League of Young Professionals.

Our budget is still far from being met and we appeal to all those who would want to support the hosting of this event to kindly send in their support. We have Friends who have pledged their support and we are optimistic that we will receive the same in time. It will enable us to plan adequately with what we have.

We need some T-shirts, banners, placards, manila papers, paper caps, tents, chairs, PA system, skipping ropes, buckets, copies and many other items that will enrich our day. We will also need some water, first aid, etc. If we can make these confirmations earlier, we will be able to sort ourselves out.

Lastly, we must thank the Youth of Koma who have taken the challenge to make this event a success in terms of helping with the organization. It is through the active participation of the youth in the process of Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation that Kenya will be liberated from those who want to perpetuate tribalism as a tool of oppression.

We must all join hands and say no to tribalism, tribalistic leaders, and in the same vein, advance the cause for Peace, National Healing and Reconciliation. Kenya is ours and we must cherish her. Kindly give us your support.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi.

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557.

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29126|2009-06-10 12:05:58|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Attachments :

Lemuria India map.jpg

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyen Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from west t (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the possibility earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and have that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants from Le and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: The k Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world, as al to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history is need Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world was Le there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from sou Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis is clair have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration p you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears t more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups former lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy people.

A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pgymy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent.

The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dyn: By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Aman wor the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement o people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into W Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is support the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was a settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

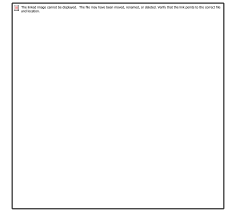

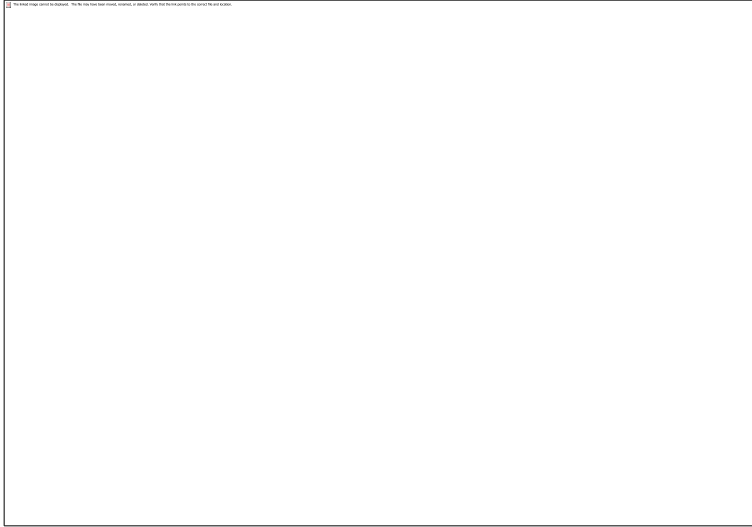

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29127|2009-06-10 12:06:00|Maurice Humphrey|ODUNDE FESTIVAL in Philly June12th-14th 2009|

1/1 The HTML image cannot be displayed. Your computer may not have enough memory to open the image, or the image may have been deleted. Restart your computer and try again.

1/1 The HTML image cannot be displayed. Your computer may not have enough memory to open the image, or the image may have been deleted. Restart your computer and try again.

Please Send Donations
to:

Odunde, PO Box 21748,
Philadelphia, PA 19146

Festiva l Weeke nd:
June 12-14th
2009

ODUN
DE
Weeke nd
Events
Schedu le

June 12, Fr

Business Forum for the Repu

Location:

Federal Reserve Bank

7th and Arch Streets

Philadelphia, PA

Cost: $50

Pre-Registration is REQUIRED

Register at interdependence.org or

Ambassador V.I.P. Reception

Location:

African-American Museum

7th and Arch Streets

Philadelphia, PA

R.S.V.P @ 215-732-8510 By June

June 1

Saturday the Afr

Business Roundtable

Location:

Philadelphia Depart

1515 Arch Streets -

Philadelphia, PA

FREE!!

ODUNDE Cultural ( Streets). The Egung

elevated and honora

everyone wear white

will follow the proce

June 14, Su

ODUNDE Festival and Africa
10 a.m. 8 p.m.

South Street and Grays Ferry Stage procession, performances begin on

As a cultural celebration designed for ODUNDE emphasizes performers from African Diaspora whose work celebr African or African-American art for braiding, stepping, roller dance, drien dance, traditional African instrumen and traditional African American p ODUNDE employs over 40 artists.
from our stage.

The ODUNDE Festival was an origi
Marketplace festivals, featuring tra and jewelry. The most colorful aspe throughout the day, The African M every year. We are grateful to its ve our organization.

River Procession - 12 noon 1:30 p
The River Procession leaves from 2308 Grays Ferry Avenue (23rd &

| 29128|2009-06-10 12:06:07|Michael Bayman|His-Imperial-Majesty Specifying Emergency-
Preparedness...You Only Ge|

From: Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

Unto:All-Moors (Declared/Undeclared)/Original-men and women:
on-this-planet

Re: Latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Government

I.S.L.A.M.:

On the behalf of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial-Majesty:
Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey and the-entire: Amexem-Moor-Empire: National-Collective , peace,
good-health, and much-prosperity: be-upon-you.

For the record, please-find-below a link for the latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency by the order from the Operations-Director : Distinguished-Noble:
Seti-Hotep: Bey under the authority of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Minister For The Communications,

His-Excellency: Grand-Noble: Dan-El

For the record, we-request-that-you: share the link with brothers and sisters, in-your-cipher/circle, if-you-appreciate the information therein the video.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=XymMHYzPIYs>

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency:

| 29129|2009-06-10 12:06:17|cristofori whitakara|Re: Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?|

i read the book over a decade ago however from what i remember this guy was trying to say that the Maya were the people to bring high culture to the nile valley africans (HA!). i assume because of the time this person lived who couldn't see the people being kidnapped and brought into american slavery were the originators.

--- On Sat, 6/6/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Saturday, June 6, 2009, 12:10 AM

Moo is fictional or a real Queen Mut?

there is lots good circumstantial evidence of A.E. inso. america and plenty of actual facts testifying of west Africans

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 1:40 PM

queen moo and the...is dealing with kemetians and a country in today's south america.

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 6:05 PM

i have about 25 books on my shelf waiting to be read , and many i need to review on my "already" read shelf.

can u give an synopsis of the queen moo book, is it about the blacks who 1st settled California?. All i am saying is that other people white, native american etc. dont necessarily need Anc.Egyptians to teach them how too build a pyramid; and its a slap in the face of australian aboriginees chinese and native American to say if they built a pyramid they couldnt do it without AE.

One book ive read called voyages of the pyramid builders by R. Schock looks atthe A.E. teaching pyramid building in the americas, my opinion he is very impressive as all are when dealing with the african and plausible A.E. of Africa in so. amer. but when it comes to the A.E. in north amer. and australiathere is not a lot of proof for such an assertion.

i haveyet to read The black discovery of america by. M.Bradley
an it may be a yr or so more before i can get too it., lol

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 2:29 PM

There is a book by augustus le plongeon title queen moo and the egyptian sphinx

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 9:39 PM

Aharvard professor wrote several volumes on the 19th dynasty and possible relations to south america.

If i remember correctly Dr. van-sertima was influenced by the work.

My person thinks if these are the same tunica native people that are indegenous to the Mississippi ,Tennessee area also, than they may not be an b.c. people.

If they are not an b.c. people and there is no evidence of egyptian voyages to north america and they have no artifacts from the nile valley, i think one must 1st conclude this tobe diffusion by way of the south americans in contact with the nile valley or south americans influenced by west Africans who carried many of the biological and cultural traits of their nile valley brethren and ancestors.

South america was a civilization that in many ways was the standard to the north american especially the southern american people. And the Azteca ,Inca, Tezpeca and others were in contact especially thru trade with the north American native people.

Perhaps the words they use should be compared to Mandinke and the African peoples of the canary islands, and the ashante/akan, . also the roman/berber Africans of tunisia, since they are the most probable contacts that have actual voyages to south america and maybe north america also.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 5/31/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Comparative Linguistics with Native American Languages?
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com
Date: Sunday, May 31, 2009, 4:37 PM

Peace

What do you think?

http://www.earthmatrix.com/sound\_of\_meaning\_two.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29130|2009-06-10 12:06:34|Joseph Wright|Re: A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa|

Though I'm very intelligent; I am not a micro biologist... I am sure you are not a micro biologist. I don't have a clue what your e-mail is about. Especially, all the "shop jargon and technical terms." Therefore, purpose and credibility are questionable! Comes off as 99% babel: baffle; I'm not impressed!

jew

--- On Tue, 6/9/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009, 4:54 PM

Peace Phamily

Not sure if this report has been shared on Ta-Seti already, but if so, I apologize for the repost. What do you think?

FULL PAPER

http://hpgl.stanford.edu/publications/AJHG\_2002\_v70\_p1197-1214.pdf

A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa Is Supported
by High-Resolution Analysis of Human Y-Chromosome Haplotypes

ABSTRACT

The variation of 77 biallelic sites located in the nonrecombining portion of the Y chromosome was examined in

608 male subjects from 22 African populations. This survey revealed a total of 37 binary haplotypes, which were combined with microsatellite polymorphism data to evaluate internal diversities and to estimate coalescence ages of the binary haplotypes. The majority of binary haplotypes showed a nonuniform distribution across the continent.

Analysis of molecular variance detected a high level of interpopulation diversity ( $F_p = 0.342$ ), which appears to be partially related to the geography ( $F_p = 0.230$ ). In sub-Saharan Africa, the recent spread of a set of haplotypes

CT partially erased pre-existing diversity, but a high level of population ( $F_p = 0.332$ ) and geographic ( $F_p = 0.179$ ) structuring persists. Correspondence analysis shows that three main clusters of populations can be identified:

northern, eastern, and sub-Saharan Africans. Among the latter, the Khoisan, the Pygmies, and the northern Cameroonians are clearly distinct from a tight cluster formed by the Niger-Congospeaking populations from western, central western, and southern Africa. Phylogeographic analyses suggest that a large component of the present

Khoisan gene pool is eastern African in origin and that Asia was the source of a back migration to sub-Saharan Africa. Haplogroup IX Y chromosomes appear to have been involved in such a migration, the traces of which can now be observed mostly in northern Cameroon.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29131|2009-06-10 12:06:38|rogaster1|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

ALL IS WELL!

Roger

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> To be honest, Roger, I have not engaged the study or practice of alchemy simply because, as I said before, I follow mainstream science in regard to its definition. I think the first calling of an educated/informed person is to critique or criticize (whether constructively or not). In fact it is this ability to critique or pick things apart that separates us from the average slab of concrete. It's very easy to see lessons of quantum physics in the Dogon cosmogeny, for example, or in a myriad of other belief systems if you try hard enough, but without an agreed upon definition of science, it is just not possible to have a debate. So if we have different ideas of what science is, debate is futile. My allegiance to formal science (as I perceive it of course) is not obedience to "perceived authority" or the "beliefs of others", it's just that I have been convinced by the logic of high school/university science.

>

>

>

> Best regards, Peter

>

>

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> From: rogaster1@...

> Date: Sun, 7 Jun 2009 10:19:00 -0700

> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>
>
>
>
> Hello Peter . . . how are you today?
>
> At the risk of an all out debate, I should state first that 'words reveal and conceal'. Most people who attempt to 'debunk' alchemy tend not to have engaged in its study or practice, or are simply are obedient to perceived authority and beliefs of others.
>
> In its most essential meaning, alchemy refers to the process of transformation on all levels of nature, which refer to how the forces underlying the visible manifestation of existence of existence interact between the metaphysical (invisible) and physical (visible) levels. These forces have given rise to the substance of space, which has manifested to become galaxies, stars, and planets.
>
> The existence and evidence of these forces is what has given rise to the symbolic presentation of the periodic table, which reveals three presentations of matter, i.e. gases, liquids, and solids of the visible universe. However, since 'gas' is the most subtle of these states, if your intuition is engaged you will realize that it is something that pre-exists gas.
>
> Further, since 'space' itself is a substance that is composed of a 3:1 ratio of hydrogen to helium . . . and, given that both are atoms, the question that would naturally come to mind is 'what give rise to atoms? This inquiry should lead you into quantum physics towards the Superstring Theory. But, then, you have to ask what generated these theoretical strings . . . many presume to be GOD?
>
> But as a word symbol, the term 'God' implies a non-differentiated state of pre-existence. My point with all of this is that "alchemy" refers to a synthesis of 'inner' and 'outer' worlds of existence. It is the intergration of 'intuition' and 'reason' into the MEANING of existence. Another way of stating this is that alchemy is an attempt of religion and science into PHILOSOPHY that is often discussed or talked about in symbols, the primary language of all three . . . even the 'words' we are using are symbols!
>
> Therefore, it is for me not a problem that you 'endorse' mainstream science, since it is part of the WHOLE . . . just examine and then condemn . . . if you must.
>
> Roger "PEACE"
>
> --- On Sun, 6/7/09, Peter Gray wrote:
>
>
> From: Peter Gray
> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
> To: "Marc Washington"
> Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 11:17 AM

>
>
>
>
> Roger,
>
> "Alchemy" is a belief that one substance can be transformed into another via spells and incantations, at least that is how it has been practised historically and defined in formal science.
Perhaps you don't endorse mainstream science, but I do. That's just my perspective.
>
> Peter
>
>
>
>
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
> From: rogaster1@yahoo. com
> Date: Sat, 6 Jun 2009 09:08:21 -0700
> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> Oh c'mon Peter . . . examine, then condemn (lol)
>
> Roger
>
> --- On Fri, 6/5/09, Peter Gray wrote:
>
>
> From: Peter Gray
> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
> To: "Marc Washington"
> Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 10:24 PM
>
>
>
>
> I have to say all this alchemy stuff seems so nuts!! "Learn how alchemy can transform ourselves and the world ..." WTF.

> Peter

>

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> From: rogaster1@yahoo. com

> Date: Fri, 5 Jun 2009 16:56:59 -0700

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origin is traced to the shamanic (HAM) and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.

>

> http://alchemyguildofdc.ning. com/

>

> --- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:

>

>

> From: V Jm

> Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

> To: EmeraldTablet@ yahoogroups. com

> Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!

>

> An Ox Goad,

>

>

>

>
>
> From: zuckavich
> To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
> Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
> Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
>
> INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
> Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009
>
> <http://www.AlchemyConference.com>
>
> ☐ A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around > the globe!*> ☐ Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists > in 500 years!*> ☐ Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern > world!*> ☐ Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the > world!*>
>
> SPEAKERS
>
>> Dr. Masaru Emoto
>> Master Mantak Chia
>> William Henry
>> Nassim Haramein
>> Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
>> Hans Andrea
>> Dr. Gudni Gudnason
>> Dennis William Hauck
>> Robert Allen Bartlett
>> Barry Carter
>> Don Nance
>> Don Estes
>> Peter Sterling
>> Dr. Thom Cavalli
>> Micah Nilsson
>> Paul Bartscher
>> Dr. Theresa Ibis
>> Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
>> Gary Stadler
>> Daniel Coaten
>> Duane Saari
>> . . . and more

>

> TOPICS

>

- >> The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- >> Alchemy for the Economy
- >> Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- >> Alchemy for Businesses
- >> Planetary Stargates
- >> Alchemy of Energy Healing
- >> Consciousness Alchemy
- >> Taoist Alchemy
- >> Spiritual Alchemy
- >> Practical Alchemy
- >> Kabbalistic Alchemy
- >> Psychological Alchemy
- >> Ceremonial Alchemy
- >> Alchemical Performances & Music
- >> Healing Herbal Elixirs
- >> ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- >> Alchemical Products
- >> . . . and so much more!

>

- > Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
- > Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
- > Or Call 866-755-7025

>

> Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

>

- > Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual
- > techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational
- > event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to
- > inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom.
- > There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings,
- > plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

> _____

> The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

>

- >> To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the
- > consciousness of the general public.
- >> To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and
- > the many ways in which it can be practically applied in
- > life, work, society, and the world at large for creating
- > transformation and evolution.
- >> To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a
- > Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers,
- > healers, and teachers.

- > > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters",
- > where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions
- > and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the
- > intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and
- > synthesis.
- > > To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple,
- > Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were
- > more openly discussed and practiced.
- > > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing
- > its applicability, universality, and transformative power
- > that everyone can apply in their life according to their
- > personal resonance and chosen path.
- > > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested
- > people together each year as well as encourages people to
- > stay connected between conferences in various ways: small
- > local or regional group meetings, social networking
- > communications through Facebook and other online discussion
- > groups.

> _____

>

- > > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
- > > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
- > > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
- > > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
- > > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
- > > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
- > > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
- > > Scores of Unique Vendors*
- > > . . . and much more!*

> _____

>

- > Many package options to choose from*:
- > > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*
- > > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*
- > > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop
- > > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote
- > > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*
- > > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15
- > > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!
- > * Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there
- > is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not
- > include keynote speakers.

> _____

>

- > For complete information, please go to:
- >

> www.AlchemyConference.com

>

> Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

>

> =====

> This annual event is produced jointly by the International > Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a > non-profit organization with members in 23 countries
> dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy.
> The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the > ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great > masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals > with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with > practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality
> and thereby transform the world.

> =====

> <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

> <http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

>

>

>

>

> -----

>

> Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

> Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>

> Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>

> Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®. See how.

>

>

>

>

> Windows Live□: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.

>

>

>

>
>
>
>
>

>

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.

>

http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TXT\_TAGLM\_WL\_HM\_Tutorial\_QuickAdd\_062009

>

| 29132|2009-06-10 12:06:56|Hill|Sound familiar?|

THE FOLLOWING is a speech made by former South African President P.W. Botha to his Cabinet. This reprint was written by David G. Mailu for the Sunday Times, a South African newspaper, dated August 18, 1985.

"Pretoria has been made by the White mind for the White man. We are not obliged even the least to try to prove to anybody and to the Blacks that we are superior people. We have demonstrated that to the Blacks in a thousand and one ways. The Republic of South Africa that we know of today has not been created by wishful thinking. We have created it at the expense of intelligence, sweat and blood. Were they Afrikaners who tried to eliminate the Australian Aborigines? Are they Afrikaners who discriminate against Blacks and call them Niggers in the States? Were they Afrikaners who started the slave trade? Where is the Black man appreciated? England discriminates against its Blacks and their "Sus" law is out to discipline the Blacks. Canada, France, Russia, and Japan all play their discrimination too. Why in the hell then is so much noise made about us? Why are they biased against us? I am simply trying to prove to you all that there is nothing unusual we are doing that the so called civilized worlds are not doing. We are simply an honest people who have come out aloud with a clear philosophy of how we want to live our own White life.

We do not pretend like other Whites that we like Blacks. The fact that, Blacks look like human beings and act like human beings do not necessarily make them sensible human beings. Hedgehogs are not porcupines and lizards are not crocodiles simply because they look alike. If God wanted us to be equal to the Blacks, he would have created us all of a uniform colour and intellect. But he created us differently: Whites, Blacks, Yellow, Rulers and the ruled. Intellectually, we are superior to the Blacks; that has been proven beyond any reasonable doubt over the years. I believe that the Afrikaner is an honest, God fearing person, who has demonstrated practically the right way of being. Nevertheless, it is comforting to know that behind the scenes, Europe, America, Canada, Australia-and all others are behind us in spite of what they say. For diplomatic relations, we all know what language should be used and where. To prove my point, Comrades, does anyone of you know a White country without an investment or interest in South Africa? Who buys our gold? Who buys our diamonds? Who trades with us? Who is helping us develop other nuclear weapons? The very truth is that we are their people and they are our people. It's a big secret. The strength of our economy is backed by America, Britain, and Germany. It is our strong conviction, therefore, that the Black man is the raw material for the White man. So Brothers and Sisters, let us join hands together to fight against this Black devil. I appeal to all Afrikaners to come out with any creative means of fighting this war. Surely God cannot forsake his own people whom we are. By now every one of us has seen it practically that the Blacks cannot rule themselves. Give them guns and they will kill each other. They are good in nothing else but making noise, dancing, marrying many wives and indulging in sex. Let us all accept that the Black man is the symbol of poverty, mental inferiority, laziness and emotional incompetence. Isn't it plausible therefore, that the White man is created to rule the Black man? Come to think of what would happen one day if you woke up and on the throne sat a Kaffir! Can you imagine what would happen to our women? Does anyone of you believe that the Blacks can rule this country?

Hence, we have good reasons to let them all-the Mandelas-rot in prison, and I think we should be commended for having kept them alive in spite of what we have at hand with which to finish them off. I wish to announce a number of new strategies that should be put to use to destroy this Black bug. We should now make use of the chemical weapon. Priority number one, we should not by all means allow any more increases of the Black population lest we be choked very soon. I have exciting news that our scientists have come with an efficient stuff. I am sending out more researchers to the field to identify as many venues as possible where the chemical weapons could be employed to combat any further population increases. The hospital is a very strategic opening, for example and should be fully utilized. The food supply channel should be used. We have enveloped excellent slow killing poisons and fertility destroyers. Our only fear is in case such stuff came in to their hands as they are bound to start using it against us if you care to think of the many Blacks working for us in our homes.

However, we are doing the best we can to make sure that the stuff remains strictly in our hands. Secondly, most Blacks are vulnerable to money inducements. I have set aside a special fund to exploit this venue. The old trick of divide and rule is still very valid today. Our experts should work day and night to set the Black man against his fellowman. His inferior sense of morals can be exploited beautifully. And here is a creature that lacks foresight. There is a need for us to combat him in long term projections that he cannot suspect. The average Black does not plan his life beyond a year: that stance, for example, should be exploited. My special department is already working round the clock to come out with a long-term operation blueprint. I am also sending a special request to all Afrikaner mothers to double their birth rate. It may be necessary too to set up a population boom industry by putting up centers where we employ and support fully White young men and women to produce children for the nation. We are also investigating the merit of uterus rentals as a possible means of speeding up the growth of our population through surrogate mothers.

For the time being, we should also engage a higher gear to make sure that Black men are separated from their women and fines imposed upon married wives who bear illegitimate children.

I have a committee working on finding better methods of inciting Blacks against each other and encouraging murders among themselves. Murder cases among Blacks should bear very little punishment in order to encourage them.

My scientists have come up with a drug that could be smuggled into their brews to effect slow poisoning results and fertility destruction. Working through drinks and manufacturing of soft drinks geared to the Blacks, could promote the channels of reducing their population. Ours is not a war that we can use the atomic bomb to destroy the Blacks, so we must use our intelligence to effect this. The person-to-person encounter can be very effective.

As the records show that the Black man is dying to go to bed with the White woman, here is our unique opportunity. Our Sex Mercenary Squad should go out and camouflage with Apartheid Fighters while doing their operations quietly administering slow killing poison and fertility destroyers to those Blacks they thus befriend.

We are modifying the Sex Mercenary Squad by introducing White men who should go for the militant Black woman and any other vulnerable Black woman. We have received a new supply of prostitutes from Europe and America who are desperate and too keen to take up the appointments.

My latest appeal is that the maternity hospital operations should be intensified. We are not paying those people to help bring Black babies to this world but to eliminate them on the very delivery moment. If this department worked very efficiently, a great deal could be achieved.

| 29133|2009-06-10 18:03:02|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Check out YouTube - AFRICA & THE REAL GREEKS 1 of 3|

njoyed dat!, LOL

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/10/09, AUSAR65 wrote:

From: AUSAR65

Subject: Check out YouTube - AFRICA & THE REAL GREEKS 1 of 3

To: tafari\_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Wednesday, June 10, 2009, 1:28 PM

YouTube - AFRICA & THE REAL GREEKS 1 of 3

---

Dell Inspiron 15 Laptop: Now in 6 vibrant colors! Shop Dell's full line of laptops.

| 29134|2009-06-10 19:37:30|Asar Imhotep|Re: A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa|

There is an African proverb that states, "A wise man instructs everyone. It is the person that decides if it fits."

If the email doesn't make sense to you, you have one of two choices. You can either 1) take some time out to purchase some books on microbiology and dna sequencing and begin studying so that you may understand, or 2) you can choose to ignore it and move on to something more your speed.

There is another African proverb that states, "A man can't be judge of his neighbor's intelligence. His own vital experience is never his neighbor's." Your understanding, or lack there of, is not a prerequisite for my understanding. Obviously the email was not directed towards you, but to the members on this list who study African history, migrations and who understand the various tools in the field that are useful in their research. An intelligent reply would have been something like, "I do not understand the details of this email. Is there any material that you can point me to for the layman where I can get up to speed?"

A iKami proverb states, "- An answer brings no illumination unless the question has matured to a point where it gives rise to this answer which thus becomes its fruit. Therefore learn how to put a question." This speaks for itself.

If at this point it is not clear, then the ancients instruct me with these proverbs:

- Leave him in error who loves his error.
- Every man is rich in excuses to safeguard his prejudices, his instincts, and his opinions

So ending, in the words of Dr. John Henrik Clarke, "I only debate my equals...all others I teach."

Ancestrally

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Wed, 6/10/09, Joseph Wright wrote:

From: Joseph Wright
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, June 10, 2009, 12:26 PM

Though I'm very intelligent; I am not a micro biologist... I am sure you are not a micro biologist. I don't have a clue what your e-mail is about. Especially, all the "shop jargon and technical terms." Therefore, purpose and credibility are questionable! Comes off as 99% babel: baffle; I'm not impressed!

jew

--- On Tue, 6/9/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009, 4:54 PM

| 29135|2009-06-10 20:27:51|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Bantu origins of the Sidis of India| seems this writing is taking the long road to say the reason blacks are in India is because of the 1500's slave trade and not the settling of the forest's and jungle's by the ancient Africans. "Noble north Indian families had a convention of keeping Habshi, or other" my question is what makes the Northern Indians noble?.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/9/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Bantu origins of the Sidis of India
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 9, 2009, 2:53 PM

<http://www.pambazuk a.org/en/ category/ comment/51594>

Bantu origins of the Sidis of India

Abdulaziz Y. Lodhi

2008-10-29, Issue 404

<http://pambazuka.org/en/category/comment/51594>

Printer friendly version

There is 1 comment on this article.

In his work on the Sidis of India, Abdulaziz Y. Lodhi discusses the historical experiences of a group of prominent East African ancestry in the Indian sub-continent. Exploring linguistic developments and the role of Islam in their broader integration, the author discusses the new championing of the Swahili language of a group keen to revitalise their cultural links to Africa and reconstruct their heritage. With the group gaining wider scholarly and public recognition in recent years, Lodhi also reflects on Bantu linguistic data observable in contemporary Sidi speech and the effect of new efforts at cultural revival spearheaded by touring Sidi musical performers. Scattered and less known communities of African descent in the Indian sub-continent, Sri Lanka and the nearby islands in the Indian Ocean are generally known as Sidi or Siddi. Their presence in India was first mentioned in colonial annals as a novelty or in Census Reports (Freeman.Grenville 1988:XVII).( 1) However, recently several serious studies about their history, social organisation, cultural and economic activity, their military exploits in the various colonial armies and their political participation have been presented at international conferences by both Indian and Western scholars (Indian Ocean Studies Conference 2002, UCLA, Jayasuriya and Pankhurst 2003).(2)

AFRO-INDIANS HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

Camara (1997) reported the self-identifying Afro-IndiansIndians of African origin in Indiato number about 35,000, who have settled in Gujarat, Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, Kerala and Karnataka, and in the former Portuguese territories of Daman, Diu and Goa. Today their number is estimated to be 76,000 in Gujarat alone.(3) In Gujarat they are found in the districts of Ahmedabad, Amerili, Jamnagar, Junagadh, Rajkot, Bhavnagar, Bharuch, Ratanpur, Surendranagar and Cutch. According to the Census Report of India (Naik & Pandya, 1981), Sidis in Gujarat in 1971 numbered about 5,000 and during the past decades their number has increased slightly and has been fairly constant there because of migration, mainly to the Mumbai region.(4) They are normally settled in areas/hamlets/ villages of their own but in Ahmedabad, Bharuch and Cutch they live in mixed areas as they do in parts of Andhra Pradesh.

These Afro-Indians are variously known as Sidhi/Sidi/Siddi or Habshi/Habsi in India, Shidi/Shidee in Pakistan and Kaffir in Sri Lanka. It is generally accepted by scholars that these ethnonyms tell us that the Sidis were in the employ of Sayyads, the Muslim rulers of India, and that many of them came from Ethiopia and Sudan in the 1500s as mercenaries and prisoners of war sold as slaves (Pankhurst 2003).(5) The Arabic religious and/or aristocratic title Sayyad or Sayyidis usually given as the etymology of the ethnonyms Sidhi, Sidhdhi, Siddi, Sidi, or Shidi.

My recent research into the etymology of the term Sidi, and its variants, suggests a possible alternative meaning of the term Sidi. Differing from the established Arabic religious and/or aristocratic title Sayyad, Sayyid, Seyyid, Sayed or Syed (with the non-emphatic / s / consonant siin () (6) ultimately reduced to Sidi in many African dialects of Arabic)(7), the term saydi, with the emphatic // consonant saad () not reduced, means captive or prisoner of war.

In the past, Sudanese and Ethiopian prisoners of war were sold as slaves to other African rulers who sold them to slave traders who in turn brought them to the Middle East and India. As late as the beginning of the 20th century, in the Ottoman armies there were more than 10,000 African mercenaries spread all over the Ottoman empire. The term Sidi might have been borrowed in India from early Arabic/Ottoman usage. In pre-Ottoman period, African soldiers in India were referred to as Habshi or Habsi).(8) Early African soldiers in India appear to have been mostly freemen and mercenaries, and it has been established that there were several groups of Africans who were traders and sailors who had immigrated to India. Thus all Africans in India were not slaves nor were they of slave descent. However, Sidis in the Portuguese enclaves and most Sidi females in domestic employ in the aristocratic households were probably slaves or of slave origin.(9) Ian Hancock (PC 1996) is of the opinion that many Sidis appear to have deserted the various armies at different times and found refuge among the Gypsy/Roma already in India and also after the Roma came to Europe, and were assimilated. This is sometimes apparent in the physiognomy of some Roma with darker complexion and somewhat woolly hair.

A great majority of the Sidis of India today are Sunni Muslims, and the few Hindus and Christians are found in Daman, Goa and Karnataka.(10) The Karnataka Sidis are descendants of the deserters who left Portuguese Goa and fled to the forest across the border, and they most probably originate in Mozambique and Angola.(11)

The Sidis are loosely organised into mostly endogamous tribes or professional castes. The Royal Sidis are survivors of the former Sidi State of Jafarabad established by the Sidi Naval Chief of Janjira during the time of the warrior King Shivaji of the Maratha in the mid-1600s. These Jafarabad Sidis together with the Royal Sidis in Hyderabad, Aurangabad and the former Sidi principalities of Radhanpur in the Kathiawar region of north Gujarat, and in Sachin near the port of Surat, marry mostly among themselves or with upper class/caste Muslim Indians.(12) In some cases they have special tribal names such as the Tai of Saurashtra, the Shemali of Jambur (probably of Somali origin)(13), the Kafara(14) of Diu (probably from southern Mozambique and/or South Africa) and the Saheli(15) of Daman (probably from the Kenya-Tanzania coast). In a few cases in Cutch they also have traditional Indian caste names such as Sidhi Langa (musicians/drummers ), Sidhi Dhobi (washermen) and Sidhi Kharwa (sailors).

The Kafara Sidi of Diu have maintained some of their East African customs and a few linguistic items. Small groups of Shemali Sidis and Saheli Sidis have kept alive some rites and rituals from their East African Bantu past, but otherwise the Sidis are de facto Indians since they speak Indian languages as their mother-tongues and practice mostly the Indian variant of Sunni Islam with the Indian Sufi cult of pir (saint) with rituals and celebrations performed at a dargah (mausoleums, shrine). At these shrines they worship also ancestors and founders of settlements (Patel 1986, Catlin 2002, Basu 2002, and Shroff 2002).(16)

There are several legends about the origins of some early Sidi settlements but so far no contemporary written record has been found to verify their early oral history or substantiate the Sidi claims of various ancestries. However, there are a few early reports by European officials and travellers and one short language study by the explorer Richard F. Burton (1851). According to one commonly accepted legend (Patel 1986), the founder of the Sidi settlement in Jambur in Gujarat is supposed to have originally come from Kano in Nigeria via the Sudan and Mecca after his Hajj pilgrimage. This leader was a wealthy merchant by the name of Bawa/Baba Ghor who first settled in the Rajpipla Hills near Bharuch and Khambat where he developed mining and trade in agate, the precious stone known as akik in India.(17) A certain variety of agate beads are known as Baba Ghori, and another maroon cornelian stone is named after his sister and successor Mai Mariyam, also known as Mai Misra/Mishra. (18)

It appears that a large number of Sidis came, or were brought, to India from different parts of Africa as soldiers to serve in the Muslim armies of the Nawabs and Sultans, hence their Muslim faith and relative absence of the Hindu caste system among them. Many were officials in the Muslim, and later Hindu, armies and as royal bodyguards some of them rose to power in more than one place, such as Jafarabad, Radhanpur, Ahmedabad and Aurangabad. Some were singers and ceremonial drummers. In Gujarat the drummers are known as nagarchi, and the chief drummer had the title of nagarsha(h) (king of drums). In Cutch and Sindh, the Sidi singer-drummers are known as langa (male lango, female langi) and they are prestigious and respectable professionals. It is also claimed by the Shemali Sidi that one of Bawa Ghor's younger brothers was a nagarsha in the former Kingdom of Madhapur, and he is worshipped as one of the several pirs in Jambur.

Some Sidis came to India as special servants in the courts of Muslim Nawabs and Sultans, some came as herbalists and midwives, a few were brought by Indian merchants returning home from Africa, and a few were brought as domestic slaves especially in the Portuguese territories (Shirodkar 1985:27 and passim).

Noble north Indian families had a convention of keeping Habshi, or other non-Indians, as personal attendants since servants having no local social or blood connections or roots guaranteed political loyalty and security (as was the case with the Arab/Omani sultans of Zanzibar whose armed forces and administrative personnel consisted mainly of the Balochi and Makrani of Iran/Pakistan, and Cutchi/Sindhi and Pathan of north-west India). Very few African slaves were brought to the Indian sub-continent to provide cheap labour. Ownership of African slaves was an expensive affair since local Indian feudal practices related to slavery provided abundant indigenous cheap or free labour to rulers, landowners and the upper castes. The rulers of India could also obtain slaves of various categories from other parts of Asia, Eastern Europe and the Caucasus. The descendants of these slaves of different origins in most Muslim societies generally cannot be distinguished as racial or ethnic groups or minorities since most of them were employed in the higher administration and the armies, serving different governments and later marrying the natives. As Bates & Rassam (1989) describe it, they were a kind of life-long servants of the ruler, rather than slaves in the Western sense.

SIDIS TODAY

Before the arrival of British rule in India, the Sidis were undergoing a process of assimilation, but the British divide-and-rule policy segregated the Sidi groups from one another and also from the indigenous Indian communities in which they lived. As a result, the Sidis have been re-tribalised and have become impoverished in many areas.(19)

Those Sidi settlements in Gujarat that are organised as separate communities with a tribal system existing outside the main political stream and currents of socio-economic development have been classified by the central government as scheduled tribes and they get central government support. Jambur Village near Madhapur with its own panchayat (five member leadership committee), a primary school and a shop, was the first Sidi enclosure to get such support (Census of India 1961). Most Sidis in Gujarat are farmers and unskilled workers, but in other regions one finds Sidi doctors, lawyers, policemen, journalists, technicians, teachers, businessmen and landowners. There is an inter-state movement to organise and unite all the Sidi groups and improve their economic conditions and raise their social status. An increasing number of them are realising economic improvement as entertainers in the growing tourist industry.

SIDIS AND LANGUAGE

East African slaves were randomly caught, or were recruited from different tribal lands; they usually spoke related languages and several individuals came from the same area or were members of the same ethnic group. For these reasons they could communicate in an Eastern African language in the beginning, but as mixed groups, small in numbers and spread over wide areas surrounded by large Indian languages with a long tradition, they could not maintain nor transmit their original languages and cultures to future generations. Instead they became Indianised, leaving few African linguistic traces in their speech and cultural registers of terminology. Another factor was Islam, the religion of the politically dominant section of the Indian society with whom the Sidis were initially allied, which became a common denominator of their cultural identification and also facilitated their social and linguistic integration, and economic, political and military success in many areas before the advent of the British colonial rule.

Thus the Sidis today speak Gujarati (or a mixture of Gujarati and Hindi) in the Saurashtra region of Gujarat. In the district of Cutch they speak Cutchi (a dialect of Sindhi), and in Daman and Diu they speak the local Gujarati dialects with a few Swahili/Bantu words and phrases. In Sindh they speak Sindhi and also Urdu, and Dakhini in Andhra Pradesh. Other groups of Sidis speak Marathi, Malayalam, Konkani or Kannada according to their region of settlement.

Richard Burtons wordlist of 1851 is a brief and random lexicon (Freeman-Grenville 1988:18) of the Sidi language as spoken in coastal Sindh and Cutch at that time and contains altogether 122 words and phrases, numerals and 22 place names including some tribal homelands; the latter are all derived from languages spoken in Tanzania (Shambaa, Zigua, Ngindo and Yao) which points to the Tanzanian mainland as their original home. In other parts of the Indian sub-continent, some linguistic items from Mozambique (from Makua, Nyanja and Yao languages) and Malawi (Nyanja/Chewa) have been identified.( 20)

The following is a short list extracted from Richard Burtons Sidi language (collected in Sindh during 1849-50, and not claimed by him nor by the contemporary Sidis to be Swahili).

Burtons Sidi language Modern/Standard Swahili (based on Zanzibar Town):

moto moto (fire; hot)
komongo chuma (iron, iron bar)
maji maji (water)
nyumba nyumba (house, home)
somba samaki, insi, nswi (fish)
vura mvua (rain)
khundoro kondoo/khondoo (sheep)
mawingo mawingu (clouds)
pinde pinde (bow)
mukoki mkuki (spear)
menu meno (teeth)
nyoere nywele (hair)
muguru mguu (foot)
macho macho (eyes)
devo ndevu, devu (beard)
mototo mtoto (child, son)
baba ya baba (father)
viyakazi (daughter) vijakazi (slave girls, maids)
moya moja (one)
perhi mbili (two), pili (second)
tahtu tatu/thathu (three)
mme nne (four)
thano tano/thano (five)
thandatu sita (six)
fungate saba (seven, week) (Old Swahili fungate)
mnani nane (eight)
mpya tisa, kenda (nine)
kummi kumi (ten)
akachukola akachukua (he/she took it away)
akaje akaja (he/she came)
akanepa akanipa (he/she gave me)
akabija akauza (he/she sold it)
akafenga akaiba (he/she stole it)

Place names, languages and ethnonyms mentioned by the Sidis of Sindh and recorded by Burton (1851) are:

Lamo (Lamu along north Kenya coast)
Baramaji (Mbwanaji south of Daressalaam)
Kinkhwere (Kinghwele spoken south of Daressalaam)

Whiteley (1969:52) reported many slaves seem to have come from the coastal areas, and the Sidi language appears to have been one they could all speak Though they include members of some inland tribes, such as Nyamwezi and Sagara, many are easily recognizable as coastal groups, e.g. Dengereko, Makonde, Matumbi, Gindo, Mudoe, Mzigra, etc. Mr. R. B. Patel, of Nairobi, tells me that there is still a Swahili-speaking Sidi community in Kathiawar, in the remote Gir forest some 200 miles S.W. of Ahmedabad. (This Sidi community is in Jambur, the negro village with about 150 households, which the present author visited in March 2008.)

Recent fieldwork among the Sidis in Ratanpur and Bhavnagar in Gujarat during January 2007 has yielded only about a dozen Bantu/Swahili single word items and about a dozen phrases and a couple of complete Swahili-sounding sentences, e.g. Ee manamuki, wapi koenda? (You young woman, where are you going?). In modern Swahili it would be Wee mwanamke, unakwenda wapi? A couple of sentences were of mixed Bantu-Gujarati construction, e.g. Kulya karwa jae! (Let us go to eat! Bantu kulya = to eat, eating; Gujarati karwa jae = let us go to do). One lexical item, injoro (curry, gravy) used in Ratanpur, is not derived from any Bantu language but rather from the Ethiopian usage injira (or Somali anjera).(21)

POINTS OF CONCLUSION

In the face of globalisation which seems to make the world become more inter-connected, ethnicity is increasingly emphasised in many parts of the world where claims to specific local identities and renewed or (re)constructed ethnicities are more loudly presented.

The Sidis of Gujarat in India are a fragmented East African community of mixed ancestry, primarily descendants of Muslim African traders, sailors and mercenaries. A few of them are of slave origin. Today they speak Gujarati and Cutchi with only a few Swahili/Bantu expressions mostly connected with their Sufi ritual dances and music.

A long period of relative Sidi isolation has been broken by both Indian and Western anthropological and historical interest in the various Sidi communities and this has given them a wider recognition both at home and abroad. In the last few years, Sidi cultural societies have been organising international festivals in Gujarat and participating in international cultural gatherings in East Africa with their song and dance troupes that have also been touring the West. These renewed contacts of the Sidis with East Africa have increased slightly the number of Swahili/Bantu word stock in their Gujarati and Cutchi; for example the Sidis, though being culturally and linguistically de facto Indian, are emphasising their African heritage and their entertainment groups are now increasingly using Swahili greetings when addressing their public, and their men dress like the East African Swahili Muslims. An increasing number of Sidi individuals are also involved in modern sports (football) and athletics (running) especially in Pakistan, thus playing the role of an essential factor of Sidi ethnic identity.

Over the course of the last decade, several Western researchers have been emphasising the Africanness of the Sidis and have exaggerated their slave origins (Kjaerholm 1992, Whitehead 1997 and 1999), an exaggeration which some Sidi groups are capitalising on. Recently a couple of Sidi groups of artists have toured East Africa and Europe on a commercial basis performing Sufi dances and songs with the repertoire in Gujarati and Hindi mixed with some Swahili phrases. It seems, the Sidis are adopting Swahili as their ancestral language, as many African-American communities have done in the United States. Sufi cult and dance groups (e.g. the Sidi Goma and the black Sufis of Gujarat), healing rituals, spirit possession and exorcism, and annual celebrations, have become objects of historical and social anthropological research mostly supported by Western institutions and they are increasingly becoming exotic tourist attractions. (22)

James Clifford (1997:257) rightly points out that The currency of diaspora discourse extends to a wide range of populations and historical predicaments. Many individuals, groups and whole communities of the African diaspora around the world have reconstructed, reinvented and imagined their ancestral homeland,(23) and the Sidis of Gujarat are increasingly perceiving East Africa, misconceiving particularly Zanzibar the central slave market of the Indian Ocean during the 18th and 19th centuries as the home of their African ancestors and Swahili as their ancestral language. Globalisation and technological advances have strongly pushed the Sidi communities in the general trend in the world of nations becoming culturally heterogeneous, with minority languages, or minority language use, in some cases playing the role of an essential factor of ethnic identity, whether traditionally inherited or newly constructed.

* Abdulaziz Y. Lodhi is an associate professor in Swahili and Comparative Bantu at the Department of Linguistics & Philology at the Uppsala University, Sweden.

* Please send comments to editor@pambazuka.org or comment online at <http://www.pambazuka.org/>

References:

- (1) The Greco-Egyptian maritime manual Periples of the Erithraean Sea written around the first century AD mentions export of slaves from East Africa to the northern shores of the Indian Ocean, but provides no figures. In official Indian annals, the earliest mention of African presence in India is in the person of Jamaliddin bin Yakut, the stable master of Raziya Begum, Empress Radiyya of Delhi (AD 1236-40).
- (2) The pioneering works highlighting the African Diaspora in the Indian Ocean and South Asia are by George Shepperson (1968) and Joseph I. Harris (1971/1977), a comparative perspective of which is provided by Edward A. Alpers (2003). CONEXOES Newsletter of the African Diaspora Research Project, Michigan State University, contains reports on extensive ongoing research in the field of African diaspora in general. Another very recent work edited by Amy Catlin-Jairazbhoy and Edward A. Alpers (2004) contains a dozen different accounts of various aspects of Sidi history, culture and ethnicity in India.
- (3) PC with Miss Farida Sidi of Sidi Goma Al-Mubrik Charitable Foundation, Bhavnagar, Gujarat, India.
- (4) PC with various participants of the IOS 2002. In 1853 it was reported by Major Hammerton, the British Consul in Muscat, that a lively slave trade existed between Zanzibar and the Indian states of Cutch and Kathiawar (Jayasurya and Pankhurst 2003:10). Since this trade would have by today generated tens of thousands of descendants of those slaves, it is my contention that such a lively trade could not have existed, and that instead there were many East Africans who came to Cutch as sailors and short-term employees of the Cutchi, Sindhi and Kathiawari merchant houses. Moreover, my data collected from the archives of Zanzibar do not support the claims of a lively trade in slaves between East Africa and India during the 1850s. See also Shirodkar (1985) for the Portuguese slave trade between Mozambique and Goa.
- (5) Malik Ambar, the ruler of Ahmadnagar during 1601-1626 was of Ethiopian origin and was succeeded by his son. Another African historically noted was Sidi Sayyid, a wealthy ex-slave who in 1573 built the famous Juma Masjid, the great Friday Mosque in Ahmedabad, with the help of African architects and craftsmen (Harries 1998:98). See also several studies by Richard Pankhurst on the Ethiopian diaspora in India. For details on African aristocracies in India see Robbins, Kenneth X. and John McLeod (Editors). 2006. African Elites in India: Habshi Amarat. Ahmedabad. Mapin Publishing Pvt, Ltd.

(6) Lodhi: posting to the forum NAMASKAR-AFRIKANA- L@HOME.EASE. LSOFT.COM, 24 September 1998.

(7) The ethnonym Sidi was taken from northern India by the British and applied to all Afro-Indians, and today it is used by many Sidis as a surname. Its earliest mention in English is by W. Bedwell in 1615 as a name or title of honour of Africans and African descendents in high position in the Middle East and India (OUP 1919).

(8) The ethnonym Chaush used by the Sidis of Hyderabad is a Turkish loan originally meaning military commander or officer in charge. In pre-colonial Swahili one finds chausi, shaushi and bishausi with the same connotations as in Ottoman Turkish and Hindi/Urdu.

(9) Such female domestic servants of African or mixed descent in the aristocratic households were referred to as khadi in Gujarati, which is derived from Arabic khadim (serf) and also loaned into Swahili as khadimu/hadimu.

(10) Lodhi, field notes and PC with Professor Jayanti K.Patel, Dept. of Sociology, Ahmedabad, January 1991. Patel has collected a wealth of sociological and cultural-anthropological material on the Siddi of Gujarat, but almost nothing linguistic. The present writer was given the opportunity to go through Siddi wedding and other songs in Gujarati in which only a few Bantu words were identified. A couple of other non-Indic items appearing in these songs from Jambur which were not of Arabic, Persian or Turkish origin may be of Hausa, Amharic or Somali origin.

(11) It should be noted that most of the Gujarati Sidis I have spoken with categorically claim that they are not of slave descent! They are Badshahi i.e. of royal employ having aristocratic connections.

(12) This can be compared with the situation in Sri Lanka where in 2001 there was only one reported marriage between two Kafara Sidi partners. All other Kafara marriages involved a non-Kafara partner (PC Jayasuriya, April 2002).

(13) The term Shemali seems to be derived from somali which is also pronounced shomali in various Indic languages.

(14) The term Kafara is of Arabic origin meaning pagan and in the colonial usage of various European languages in eastern and southern Africa, it was borrowed from Swahili to mean negro or black. The British took many southern African Kaffirs to the Indian Ocean islands of Mauritius, Seychelles etc after 1847 from Kafraria, the British Cape Colony Reserve near Cape Town.

(15) The term Saheli is derived from the Swahili word mswahili originally meaning of/from the coast. It is derived from Arabic swahil (coast) and swahily (of/from the coast).

(16) Updated findings of these four authors are published in Catlin-Jairazbhoy and Alpers (2004).

(17) This stone is known as akiki in Eastern Africa. It is an Arabic loanword both in the Indian and East African languages. For details of this trade, see J. Mark Kenoyer and Kuldip K. Bhan: Sidis and the agate bead industry of Western India in Catlin-Jairazbhoy and Alpers (2004:42-61)

(18) According to one tradition in the Dongri district of Mumbai, Mai Misra is called so because she came to India via Misre or Misar (Egypt).

(19) However, during the early British rule in East Africa, dozens of Cutchi and Gujarati speaking Siddi individuals and families from the ports of Mandvi and Surat immigrated to Zanzibar and Mombasa where they are today completely assimilated into the East African Swahili-speaking coastal Muslim communities. Many more were repatriated by the British and rehabilitated by the various mission stations along the East African coast and converted to Christianity. Descendants of these are today recognised as Christian first language speakers of Swahili in Mombasa, Tanga, Daressalaam and Zanzibar. However, this repatriation did not have any notable impact on India or East Africa and the diaspora in general as it was over the Atlantic in West Africa.

(20) I have recently suggested for Amy Catlin-Jairazbhoy (working on the Sidis of Gujarat) and Sabir Badalkhan (working on the Sheedis of Pakistani Baluchistan) the etymology of a couple of Sidi linguistic items, among them magulman as Bantu magulu mane, the four legged high drum commonly used during the Sidi Sufi performances. The term magulman is also used by the Baluchistan Shidi to refer to the songs sung with this drum, and the performance itself may be called magulman, which is sometimes pronounced as mugalman leading some people to erroneously assume that the drum and the dances are from the Mughal court or period. The phrase magulu mane is commonly found in several local languages of Mainland Tanzania such as Zaramo/Zalamo, Shambaa/Shambala, Bondei and Zigua/Zigula, speakers who were part of the East African diaspora to Gujarat via southern Somalia during the first three quarters of the 1800s.

(21) In the about 50 Jikr of the Sidi lady Rumanaben Bilal of Ahmedabad collected by Amy Catlin-Jairazbhoy, there are many Bantu/Swahili words, phrases and even some complete sentences, most of which are not understood by the Sidis themselves. This linguistic data together with the data from January 2007 will be analysed and published by the present writer in the near future. (22) This phenomenon has been capitalised on by several radio and TV channels such as the private station Talking Africa (June 2002, London) and the BBC which aired a series of programmes in November 2000 and an article entitled The lost Africans of India by Andrew Whitehead of The World Today ( BBC News Online Friday 24 November, 2000). This approach has the tendency to formalize a collective memory in the words of Robin Cohen (1997).

(23) For a broad history and deeper discussion of these issues, see Sidney Lemelle and Robin D. G. Kelly, 1994.

Alpers Edward A. 2003. The African Diaspora in the Indian Ocean: A Comparative Perspective, in Jayasuriya, Shihan de Silva and Richard Pankhurst (Eds.), pp. 19-50.

Basu, Helene. 1994. Habshi-Sklaven, Sidi-Fakiren: muslimische Heiligenverehrung im westlichen Indien. Berlin: Das Arabische bok.

Basu, Helene. 2002. Indian Sidi African Query. Paper, Indian Ocean Studies Conference, University of California, Los Angeles.

Bates, D. G. and A. Rassam. 1989. Peoples & Cultures of the Middle East. Trenton NJ: Prentice Hall.

Burton, Richard F. 1851. Sindh, and the Races that inhabit the Valley of the Indus, London.

Camara, Charles. 1997. Afro-Indians a preliminary survey. Conference Paper, The Northwestern

Indian Ocean as Cultural Corridor, 17-19 January 1997, Dept. of Social Anthropology, Stockholm University, Sweden.

Catlin, Amy. 2002. To tour or To be toured African Indians at Home and Abroad. Paper, Indian Ocean Studies Conference, University of California, Los Angeles.

Catlin-Jairazbhoy, Amy and Edward A. Alpers (Eds.). 2004. Sidis and Scholars: Essays on African Indians. Trenton, NJ: The Red Sea Press, Inc.

Census of India Vol.5, Part 5B, No.1, 1961. Siddi - a negroid tribe of India. Ethnographic Series, Gujarat.

Census of India Vol.5, Part 6, No.10, 1961. Village Survey Monograph: Jambur. Ethnographic Series, Gujarat.

Census of India. 1981. District census handbook. Village and town directory Siddi District. Series 11 Madhya Pradesh, Part XIII-A.

Clifford, James. 1997. Routes: Travels and Translations in the Late Twentieth Century. Cambridge, Mass.: Harvard University Press.

Cohen, Robin. 1997. Global Diasporas: An Introduction. London: UCL Press.

CONEXOES. 1989-91. Newsletter of the African Diaspora Research Project, Vols. 1-3. Dept. of Sociology, Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Freeman-Grenville, G.S.P. 1988. The Swahili Coast - 2nd to 19th Centuries. London: Variorum Reprints. (Ch. XVII The Siddi and Swahili)

Harris, Joseph E. 1977. African presence in Asia: consequences of the East African slave trade. Evanston: University of Illinois Press.

_____. 1993. (Ed.) Global dimensions of the African diaspora. Washington: Howard University Press.

_____. 1998. Africans And Their History. New York: Penguin/Meridian.

Jayasuriya, Shihan de Silva and Richard Pankhurst (Eds.). 2003. The African Diaspora in the Indian Ocean. Trenton, N.J.: Africa World Press.

Kjaerholm, Lars. 1992. Sjöfarande Indiens negerslavar. Illustrerad Vetenskap 3:46-49, 79. Stockholm.

Lemelle, Sidney and Robin D. G. Kelly (Eds.). 1994. Imagining Home Class, Culture and Nationalism in the African Diaspora. London and New York: Verso.

Lodhi, Abdulaziz Y. 1992. African Settlements in India. Nordic Journal of African Studies 1(1):83-87.

_____. African Settlements in India. NAMASKAR-AFRIKANA- L@HOME.EASE.LSOFT.COM,
24 September 1998.

_____. Sidhi, the East African community in Gujarat: Globalization in earlier days and their situation today. Paper presented to the Panel on Globalization and Minority Languages in South Asia, 18th European Conference on Modern South Asian Studies, 6-9 July 2004, Lund, Sweden.

Misra, Satish C. 1964. Muslim Communities in Gujarat: Preliminary studies in their History and Social Organisation. New York: Asia Publishing House.

Naik, T. B. and G. P. Pandya. 1981. The Sidis of Gujarat (A Socio-Economic Study and a Development Plan).

Tribal Research & Training Institute: Ahmedabad.

_____. 1993. The Sidis of Gujarat (A Socio-Economic Study and a Development Plan).
Tribal Research & Training Institute: Ahmedabad.

OUP 1919, A New English Dictionary on Historical Principles, Vol IX Part I, Oxford University Press, London.

Patel, Jayanti K. 1986. African Settlements in Gujarat. India Quarterly, July-Sept.:238- 246.

Pankhurst, Richard. 2003. The Ethiopian Diaspora to India, in Jayasuriya, Shihan de Silva and Richard Pankhurst (Eds.), pp. 189-221.

Robbins, Kenneth X. and John McLeod (Editors). 2006. African Elites in India: Habshi Amarat. Ahmedabad. Mapin Publishing Pvt, Ltd.

Shepperson, George. 1968. The African Abroad or the African Diaspora, in T. O. Ranger (Ed.), Emerging Themes of African History. Nairobi: pp. 152-176.

Shirodkar, P. P. 1985. Slavery in Coastal India. Purabhilekh Puratatva 3(1):27-44. State Archives: Panaji, India.

Shroff, Beheroze. 2002. Sidis and Parsis a film project. Paper, Indian Ocean Studies Conference, University of California, Los Angeles.

Whitehead, Andrew. 1997. Stranded In A Foreign Land an African community without a past. BBC FOCUS ON AFRICA , Jan-March:28- 30.

_____. 1999. Asian Blacks Unique Past Is Ever Present the other African Diaspora.

International Herald Tribune, April 13.

_____. 2000. The lost Africans of India. The World Today, BBC News Online, Friday 24 November. Whiteley, Wilfred W. 1969. SWAHILI The Rise of a National Language. London: Methuen.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29136|2009-06-10 20:41:35|Ptah Ra|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

Roger,

In support of a more positive view of alchemy let me say that I have a very good friend that is an alchemist. He holds 2 masters degrees and a phd in chemistry. He has successfully duplicated the work of David Hudson as well as having invented and patented several chemical products. More could be said but this is not the place. Continued success to you.

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, rogaster1 wrote:

From: rogaster1
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 11:19 PM

ALL IS WELL!

Roger

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> To be honest, Roger, I have not engaged the study or practice of alchemy simply because, as I said before, I follow mainstream science in regard to its definition. I think the first calling of an educated/informed person is to critique or criticize (whether constructively or not). In fact it is this ability to critique or pick things apart that separates us from the average slab of concrete. It's very easy to see lessons of quantum physics in the Dogon cosmogeny, for example, or in a myriad of other belief systems if you try hard enough, but without an agreed upon definition of science, it is just not possible to have a debate. So if we have different ideas of what science is, debate is futile. My allegiance to formal science (as I perceive it of course) is not obedience to "perceived authority" or the "beliefs of others", it's just that I have been convinced by the logic of high school/university science.

>

>

>

> Best regards, Peter

>

>

>

>

>

> To: Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> From: rogaster1@..

> Date: Sun, 7 Jun 2009 10:19:00 -0700

> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Hello Peter . . . how are you today?

> At the risk of an all out debate, I should state first that 'words reveal and conceal'.

Most people who attempt to 'debunk' alchemy tend not to have engaged in its study or practice, or are simply are obedient to perceived authority and beliefs of others.

>

> In its most essential meaning, alchemy refers to the process of transformation on all levels of nature, which refer to how the forces underlying the visible manifestation of existence of existence interact between the metaphysical (invisible) and physical (visible) levels. These forces have given rise to the substance of space, which has manifested to become galaxies, stars, and planets.

>

> The existence and evidence of these forces is what has given rise to the symbolic presentation of the periodic table, which reveals three presentations of matter, i.e. gases, gases, liquids, and solids of the visible universe. However, since 'gas' is the most subtle of these states, if your intuition is engaged you will realize that it is something that pre-exists gas.

>

> Further, since 'space' itself is a substance that is composed of a 3:1 ratio of hydrogen to helium . . . and, given that both are atoms, the question that would naturally come to mind is 'what give rise to atoms? This inquiry should lead you into quantum physics towards the Superstring Theory. But, then, you have to ask what generated these theoretical strings . . . many presume to be GOD?

>

> But as a word symbol, the term 'God' implies a non-differentiated state of pre-existence. My point with all of this is that "alchemy" refers to a synthesis of 'inner' and 'outer' worlds of existence. It is the intergration of 'intuition' and 'reason' into the MEANING of existence. Another way of stating this is that alchemy is an attempt of religion and science into PHILOSOPHY that is often discussed or talked about in symbols, the primary language of all three . . . even the 'words' we are using are symbols!

>

> Therefore, it is for me not a problem that you 'endorse' mainstream science, since it is part of the WHOLE . . . just examine and then condemn . . . if you must.

>

> Roger "PEACE"

>

> --- On Sun, 6/7/09, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> From: Peter Gray

> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

> To: "Marc Washington" <ta\_seti@yahoogroups.com>

> Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 11:17 AM

>

>

>

>

> Roger,

>

> "Alchemy" is a belief that one substance can be transformed into another via spells and incantations, at least that is how it has been practised historically and defined in formal science. Perhaps you don't endorse mainstream science, but I do. That's just my perspective.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> From: rogaster1@yahoo.com

> Date: Sat, 6 Jun 2009 09:08:21 -0700

> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

>

$\succ$  $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$

>
> It's not bull, it is just too few people of color in America who are engaged in the > practice of alchemy . . . not to mention that its origin is traced to the shamanic (HAM) > and blacksmith traditions (Sem priests) of Africa.
>
> http://alchemyguild ofdc.ning. com/
>
> --- On Fri, 6/5/09, V Jm wrote:
>
>
> From: V Jm
> Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
> To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
> Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!
>
> An Ox Goad,
>
>
>
>
>
>
> From: zuckavich
> To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
> Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
> Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
>
> INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
> Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009
>
> http://www.AlchemyC onference. com
>
> ► A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around > the globe!*
> ► Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists > in 500 years!*
> ► Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern > world!*
> ► Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the > world!*

>

>

> SPEAKERS

>

>> Dr. Masaru Emoto

>> Master Mantak Chia

>> William Henry

>> Nassim Hamein

>> Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis

>> Hans Andrea

>> Dr. Gudni Gudnason

>> Dennis William Hauck

>> Robert Allen Bartlett

>> Barry Carter

>> Don Nance

>> Don Estes

>> Peter Sterling

>> Dr. Thom Cavalli

>> Micah Nilsson

>> Paul Bartscher

>> Dr. Theresa Ibis

>> Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil

>> Gary Stadler

>> Daniel Coaten

>> Duane Saari

>> . . . and more

>

> TOPICS

>

>> The Alchemy of Harry Potter

>> Alchemy for the Economy

>> Alchemy in the Quantum Age

>> Alchemy for Businesses

>> Planetary Stargates

>> Alchemy of Energy Healing

>> Consciousness Alchemy

>> Taoist Alchemy

>> Spiritual Alchemy

>> Practical Alchemy

>> Kabbalistic Alchemy

>> Psychological Alchemy

>> Ceremonial Alchemy

>> Alchemical Performances & Music

>> Healing Herbal Elixirs

>> ORMUS & White Powder Gold

>> Alchemical Products

> > . . . and so much more!

>

> Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!

> Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!

> Or Call 866-755-7025

>

> Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation

>

> Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual

> techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational > event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to > inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom.

> There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings,

> plus entertainment and other fun surprises.

>

> _____
> The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:

>

> > To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the > consciousness of the general public.

> > To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and

> the many ways in which it can be practically applied in > life, work, society, and the world at large for creating > transformation and evolution.

> > To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a

> Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers,

> healers, and teachers.

> > To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters",

> where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions

> and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the > intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and > synthesis.

> > To revive the times, like those of Solomon's Temple,

> Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were > more openly discussed and practiced.

> > To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing

> its applicability, universality, and transformative power

> that everyone can apply in their life according to their > personal resonance and chosen path.

> > To continue this annual gathering that brings interested

> people together each year as well as encourages people to > stay connected between conferences in various ways: small

> local or regional group meetings, social networking

> communications through Facebook and other online discussion > groups.

>

> _____

>

> > Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
> > Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
> > Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
> > For Beginning and Advanced Students*
> > Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
> > Informal Meetings with Speakers*
> > Free Entertainment and Gifts*
> > Scores of Unique Vendors*
> > . . . and much more!*

> _____

>

> Many package options to choose from*:

> > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*

> > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*

> > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop

> > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote

> > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*

> > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15

> > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

> * Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there > is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not > include keynote speakers.

> _____

>

> For complete information, please go to:

>

> www.AlchemyConference.com

>

> Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

>

> =====

> This annual event is produced jointly by the International > Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a > non-profit organization with members in 23 countries
> dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy.
> The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the > ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great > masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals > with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with > practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality
> and thereby transform the world.

> =====

> <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

> <http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

>

>

>
>
> -----
>
> Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>
> Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>
> Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>
> Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups Links
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®. See how.
>
>
>
>
> Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> -----
> Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.
> http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TEXT\_TAGLM\_WL\_HM\_Tutorial\_QuickAdd\_062009
>

| 29137|2009-06-11 13:08:14|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: new site, Shifu Roper|

--- On Thu, 6/11/09, Frank Roper wrote:

From: Frank Roper
Subject:

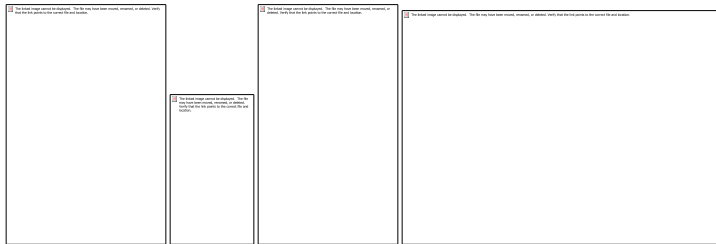

Date: Thursday, June 11, 2009, 7:48 AM

PLEASE TAKE A LOOK, <http://www.rmaa.webs.com/>

| 29138|2009-06-11 21:57:11|Tafari khumbaka|72|

tafari

It is said that jesus could have called down 72,000 angels if he so desired while on the cross .

Initiation takes place no matter what!

initiation will take place inevitably even a people without a system of acculturating one into society and imprinting the wholesome laws into the subconscious and inflaming those laws and ways with the fire of the soul burning that way of life into the heart.

even a people dumb to such ways will be initiated only it will not be on one's own court, it will be the uncivilized march into the way of "man" and dying enough times that waking up due to so much pain is inevitable

72, 75, 78

---

72 Names of God from the ancient Habiru Canaanite/ Ka-Anu and 75 and/or 78 names/re Ra from the ancient Khamau people of the Hapi valley.

In the procession of the equinox's the number 72 is extremely important and a way of organizing incorporating the Maat/math system into ritual and everyday mundane life, if the "culture incorporating the astronomical/astrological philosophy is well understanding/gnosis is amenable.

75 names of Ra plus the 1-in-3 trinity of Ra-Amen, Mut and Nefr-Tem is the same cosmic of the Ka-Anu( canaanite 72 names) a method to use the names of Ra in any given situation especially appropriate in particular seasons and administrations/epochs.

a method to co-ordinate the parts of the body inner and outer with certain vibrational sounds/numbers/names and colors, herbs. properly instigated holydays and festivals, sacred rituals in alignment with the 26,000 yr cycle broken down in 3,600 and 2,500 and 1,450 yr cycles etc..all flowing organically with a monthly lunar cycle/7day week and solar cycle/week.

a science of culture, socio-psychological taboos and challenges /initiation that align with quantum physics by-way of an astrological-oracular methodology based on math/Maat engaging Maat in the individual through age appropriate rites of passage/initiation that exasperate cyclic nature of Nature/NET ER bringing out the divinity of the initiate taking one from a man giving one the quality to be humane by allowing the god within to raise in all one's mind and chakra's in so doing bringing god's and goddess's into the world.

These teaching are very evident in the way the Khamau went from the time of the bull too the time of the lamb and lastly before they died (from there home land) the time of the fish. The irony of the days of the fish, the time of the fisherman falling to the greeks and romans and they taken the religion of Ithyss"christian ity" (gnosis,gy mno-sophey ,Isis) to the whole planet shows that teachings thatthe Khamau gave to the world is a living reality that is not the personalpersuasion ofa regional religion (al-khami/ Ra Kham) but a universal reality that is as real as fibonacci arithmetic /Arrat-Maa ti.

The 72 murders of Ausar called the sebau coorespond to the 72 hrs of the grave that the fishman ichthyss/J esus spent in the grave,, the greeks attempted to keep the calendral- mythosthat the ancient Africans created by way of their bringing to the forefront Heru-Pa-Kh art (Heru the kharast/ch rist) the child born unto mankind stepping on crocodiles and choking serpents the enemies of fish.

http://www .mythome.o rg/ojluca .html

click above for additional info;

also see Metu-Neter vol.1 esp. pgs. 388- 396

[www.tauien terprises. com](http://www.tauien terprises. com)

Tafari-sud ra,Khumbak a

-----
-----
-----
(this was taken from a site on Qabbalah jewelry)

According to Kabbalah, the spiritual power of the Hebrew letters can have influence on our lives. Kabbalah teaches that the combinatio n of certain letters can work as a tool to help us overcome the obstacles of our material existence. One such Kabbalist tool is the 72 names of God. The 72 names of G-d are presented as a table of three letter sequences. Many of us have encountere d at least some of these sequences in Jewish jewelry, such as the widely popular "Aleph-Lam ed-Hey". What are these sequences and what do they mean? Why does Kabbalah consider these sequences a secret to understand ing their influence on our existence?

The table of the 72 names is a Kabbalisti c spiritual key for protection , healing, love, abundance, strength the power to make changes. According to the Kabbalah, The Creator has 72 names. We can employ Creator's sacred names through these three letters sequences. The sequences are not real words. Interestin gly, no one knows how to pronounce them. Each sequence believed to posses a segula, a quality for a certain aspect in life. Aleph-Lame d-Hey, for example, is a segula against the evil eye.

-----
How did the Kabbalist come up with that table? The source for the 72 names of God is found in the book of Exodus, in three successive psalms in chapter 14: 19- 21.

19: And the angel of God, who went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of cloud removed from before them, and stood behind them;

20: and it came between the camp of Egypt and the camp of Israel; and there was the cloud and the darkness here, yet gave it light by night there; and the one came not near the other all the night.

21: And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all the night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided.

-----

The 72 names of God are revealed if you follow these steps: Writing the three psalms in Hebrew vertically with no spaces - psalm 19 from right to left, psalm 20 from left to right, and psalm 21 from right to left. This table is a result of Kabbalists' work of decoding the Bible which lasted for hundreds of years by generations of Kabbalists. The Kabbalah perceives the Bible as an encrypted text that needs to be decoded in order to reveal deeper layers that hold within them secrets and spiritual energy.

The 72 names of God exemplify how these hidden secrets lie beneath the surface layer of the Biblical plot. What happens in these passages from the book of Exodus? Consider the following scene described in the Book. Under the leadership of Moses, the people of Israel stand on the banks of the Red Sea, while trying to escape from the Egyptian army. Pharaoh's powerful and well-equipped army is after them. The Israelites, out of desperation and fear, plea to God: "hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness?" Did the Israelites forget all the miracles that God had performed in Egypt for their miraculous rescue? The Kabbalah explains that the fear is derived from the human ego. As the red sea parts and the Israelites begin to walk through it, they must overcome the ego and demonstrate complete and unconditional faith.

This is how Faith turns into reality. The secret is found in the text. The Bible is, in fact, a collection of encrypted messages that explain how to overcome human faults and challenges we face daily. The 72 combinations of God fight off the negative energy that is produced by the human ego. Thus, the 72 names work as a sacred tool that mediates between the earthly and the spiritual worlds. These combinations enhance the power to bring changes in various aspects of our lives. For example, the best known combination, Aleph-Lamed-Dalet, is believed to ward off the evil eye. Shin-Aleph-Hey is believed to possess the quality of helping us find love and strengthen relationships. According to Kabbalah, the 72 names of God bring us closer to life's joyful secrets.

72 names of God chart:

flag | Delete

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29139|2009-06-12 08:24:22|Ginger Daniels|Charges dropped in TX dragging|

Charges Dropped in Texas Dragging Death

Friday June 5, 2009

Murder charges have been dropped against two white men who were accused in the dragging death of a black man, a long-time friend. At the request of the special prosecutor in the case, Shannon Finley and Charles Crostley were released from jail. Brandon McClelland, 24, died Sept. 16, 2008 after a late-night beer run the three friends made from Paris, Texas to Oklahoma.

It appeared that McClelland's body had been dragged about 70 feet under a vehicle, but there was no eyewitnesses and little or no physical evidence linking Finley's truck to McClelland's death.

Special Prosecutor Appointed

In spite of this, McClelland's mother and some black activist groups believed his death was similar to the James Byrd case in 1998, in which Byrd was chained by the ankles to the back of a pickup truck by three white supremacists and dragged for three miles near Jasper, Texas.

As a result, Toby Shook was appointed as a special prosecutor in the case. It was Shook who asked the judge to dismiss the charges this week.

"After investigation, it has been determined this case should be dismissed in the interests of justice," special prosecutor Toby Shook said. "The decision is about the state of the evidence in the case as it exists today."

Shook's case took a different turn when a gravel truck driver came forward last month and gave a sworn statement in which he admitted that he might have accidentally run over McClelland.

'Facts Did Not Add Up'

Several civil rights groups criticized the dismissal, but supporters of Finley and Crostley said the charges never made sense in the first place.

"I believed all along there was insufficiency of the evidence," said Ben Massar, Finley's attorney. "The facts in this case did not add up to these two kids being guilty of the charge."

I think it's very simple," said David Turner, Crostley's lawyer. "These fellows didn't do it."

Shook said the investigation will continue, but it is unlikely the gravel truck driver will face charges.

---

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.

| 29140|2009-06-12 08:24:29|Roger Asterilla|Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009|

I read you . . .

--- On Wed, 6/10/09, Ptah Ra wrote:

From: Ptah Ra

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 10, 2009, 6:11 PM

Roger,

In support of a more positive view of alchemy let me say that I have a very good friend that is an alchemist. He holds 2 masters degrees and a phd in chemistry. He has successfully duplicated the work of David Hudson as well as having invented and patented several chemical products. More could be said but this is not the place. Continued success to you.

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, rogaster1 wrote:

From: rogaster1
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 11:19 PM

ALL IS WELL!

Roger

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> To be honest, Roger, I have not engaged the study or practice of alchemy simply because, as I said before, I follow mainstream science in regard to its definition. I think the first calling of an educated/informed person is to critique or criticize (whether constructively or not). In fact it is this ability to critique or pick things apart that separates us from the average slab of concrete. It's very easy to see lessons of quantum physics in the Dogon cosmogeny, for example, or in a myriad of other belief systems if you try hard enough, but without an agreed upon definition of science, it is just not possible to have a debate. So if we have different ideas of what science is, debate is futile. My allegiance to formal science (as I perceive it of course) is not obedience to "perceived authority" or the "beliefs of others", it's just that I have been convinced by the logic of high school/university science.

>

>

>

> Best regards, Peter

>

>

>

>

>

> To: Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> From: rogaster1@..

> Date: Sun, 7 Jun 2009 10:19:00 -0700

> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Hello Peter . . . how are you today?

>

> At the risk of an all out debate, I should state first that 'words reveal and conceal'. Most people who attempt to 'debunk' alchemy tend not to have engaged in its study or practice, or are simply are obedient to perceived authority and beliefs of others.

>

> In its most essential meaning, alchemy refers to the process of transformation on all levels of nature, which refer to how the forces underlying the visible manifestation of existence of existence interact between the metaphysical (invisible) and physical (visible) levels. These forces have given rise to the substance of space, which has manifested to become galaxies, stars, and planets.

>

> The existence and evidence of these forces is what has given rise to the symbolic presentation of the periodic table, which reveals three presentations of matter, i.e. gases, liquids, and solids of the visible universe. However, since 'gas' is the most subtle of these states, if your intuition is engaged you will realize that it is something that pre-exists gas.

>

> Further, since 'space' itself is a substance that is composed of a 3:1 ratio of hydrogen to helium . . . and, given that both are atoms, the question that would naturally come to mind is 'what give rise to atoms? This inquiry should lead you into quantum physics towards the Superstring Theory. But, then, you have to ask what generated these theoretical strings . . . many presume to be GOD?

>

> But as a word symbol, the term 'God' implies a non-differentiated state of pre-existence. My point with all of this is that "alchemy" refers to a synthesis of 'inner' and 'outer' worlds of existence. It is the intergration of 'intuition' and 'reason' into the MEANING of existence. Another way of stating this is that alchemy is an attempt of religion and science into PHILOSOPHY that is often discussed or talked about in symbols, the primary language of all three . . . even the 'words' we are using are symbols!

> Therefore, it is for me not a problem that you 'endorse' mainstream science, since it is part of the WHOLE . . . just examine and then condemn . . . if you must.
>
> Roger "PEACE"
>
> --- On Sun, 6/7/09, Peter Gray wrote:
>
>
>
> From: Peter Gray
> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference
2009
> To: "Marc Washington" <ta\_seti@yahoogroups.com>
> Date: Sunday, June 7, 2009, 11:17 AM
>
>
>
>
> Roger,
>
> "Alchemy" is a belief that one substance can be transformed into another via spells and incantations, at least that is how it has been practised historically and defined in formal science. Perhaps you don't endorse mainstream science, but I do. That's just my perspective.
>
> Peter
>
>
>
>
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> From: rogaster1@yahoo.com
> Date: Sat, 6 Jun 2009 09:08:21 -0700
> Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

>
>
> From: V Jm
> Subject: Re: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
> To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
> Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 6:33 PM
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> This is what I call a pile of bull.....Son of a gun!!!!!!!!!! !! Business crap!!!!
>
> An Ox Goad,
>
>
>
>
>
>
> From: zuckavich
> To: EmeraldTablet@ yahooogroups. com
> Sent: Friday, June 5, 2009 10:12:37 AM
> Subject: [Emerald Tablet] International Alchemy Conference 2009
>
> INTERNATIONAL ALCHEMY CONFERENCE
> Los Angeles Convention Center ~ October 23-25, 2009
>
> http://www.AlchemyC onference. com
>
> ► A rare opportunity to work with Alchemists from around > the globe!*
> ► Join us for the largest public gathering of Alchemists
> in 500 years!*
> ► Discover the many applications of Alchemy in the modern > world!*
> ► Learn how Alchemy can transform ourselves and the > world!*
>
>
> SPEAKERS
>
> > Dr. Masaru Emoto
> > Master Mantak Chia
> > William Henry
> > Nassim Haramein

- > > Dr. Alfredo Sefir-Younis
- > > Hans Andrea
- > > Dr. Gudni Gudnason
- > > Dennis William Hauck
- > > Robert Allen Bartlett
- > > Barry Carter
- > > Don Nance
- > > Don Estes
- > > Peter Sterling
- > > Dr. Thom Cavalli
- > > Micah Nilsson
- > > Paul Bartscher
- > > Dr. Theresa Ibis
- > > Dr. Pradheep Chhalliyil
- > > Gary Stadler
- > > Daniel Coaten
- > > Duane Saari
- > > . . . and more
- >
- > TOPICS
- >
- > > The Alchemy of Harry Potter
- > > Alchemy for the Economy
- > > Alchemy in the Quantum Age
- > > Alchemy for Businesses
- > > Planetary Stargates
- > > Alchemy of Energy Healing
- > > Consciousness Alchemy
- > > Taoist Alchemy
- > > Spiritual Alchemy
- > > Practical Alchemy
- > > Kabbalistic Alchemy
- > > Psychological Alchemy
- > > Ceremonial Alchemy
- > > Alchemical Performances & Music
- > > Healing Herbal Elixirs
- > > ORMUS & White Powder Gold
- > > Alchemical Products
- > > . . . and so much more!
- >
- > Register before July 1 for early bird discounts!
- > Register Now Online at www.AlchemyConference.com!
- > Or Call 866-755-7025
- >
- > Alchemy - the Art and Science of Transformation
- >

- > Practitioners will share both practical and spiritual
- > techniques in this intensive, multimedia and educational
- > event. The emphasis is on real alchemy, and the goal is to
- > inform and empower individuals with the ancient wisdom.
- > There will be lots of opportunities for informal meetings,
- > plus entertainment and other fun surprises.
- > _____
- > The Purpose of this gathering is multifold:
- >
- >> To restore the Wisdom of the Alchemical Tradition to the
- > consciousness of the general public.
- >> To educate attendees in the true teachings of Alchemy and
- > the many ways in which it can be practically applied in
- > life, work, society, and the world at large for creating
- > transformation and evolution.
- >> To invoke the energy of World Transformation at a
- > Conscious and Intentional gathering of spiritual seekers,
- > healers, and teachers.
- >> To provide a forum for a "Meeting of the Masters",
- > where practicing Alchemists from many different traditions
- > and disciplines can come together in open dialogue with the
- > intention of fostering collaboration, synergy, and
- > synthesis.
- >> To revive the times, like those of Salomon's Temple,
- > Alexandria, Prague, and others when the ancient arts were
- > more openly discussed and practiced.
- >> To represent the many faces of Alchemy, thereby showing
- > its applicability, universality, and transformative power
- > that everyone can apply in their life according to their
- > personal resonance and chosen path.
- >> To continue this annual gathering that brings interested
- > people together each year as well as encourages people to
- > stay connected between conferences in various ways: small
- > local or regional group meetings, social networking
- > communications through Facebook and other online discussion
- > groups.
- > _____
- >
- >> Practicing Alchemists from 12 Countries*
- >> Famous Authors, Consultants and Researchers*
- >> Lectures on All Aspects of Alchemy*
- >> For Beginning and Advanced Students*
- >> Workshops in Spiritual and Practical Alchemy*
- >> Informal Meetings with Speakers*
- >> Free Entertainment and Gifts*
- >> Scores of Unique Vendors*

> > . . . and much more!*

> _____

>

> Many package options to choose from*:

> > Full Event Pass (3-days)*: $295*

> > 1-day Event Pass*: $135*

> > Workshop Pass*: $60/workshop

> > Keynote Speaker Only*: $75/keynote

> > Single Speaker Only*: $40/speaker*

> > Entertainment Evening Only*: $15

> > Vendor/Exhibit Pass*: Free!

> * Workshops not included in 3-day or 1-day passes, there > is an extra fee for these. Single speaker fee does not > include keynote speakers.

> _____

>

> For complete information, please go to:

>

> www.AlchemyConference.com

>

> Call us toll-free: 866-755-7025

>

> =====

> This annual event is produced jointly by the International > Alchemy Guild and the Modern Mystery School. The Guild is a > non-profit organization with members in 23 countries
> dedicated to preserving the ancient teachings of alchemy.
> The Modern Mystery School offers spiritual training in the > ancient lineage of wisdom transmitted through the great > masters. The goal of our work is to empower individuals > with the highest level of spiritual growth coupled with > practical knowledge on how to change our personal reality
> and thereby transform the world.

> =====

> <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

> <http://www.AlchemyConference.com>

>

>

>

>

> -----

>

> Alchemy Guild: <http://www.AlchemyGuild.org>

> Flamel College: <http://www.FlamelCollege.org>

> Crucible Catalog: <http://www.Crucible.org>

> Alchemy Lab: <http://www.AlchemyLab.com/contents.htm> Yahoo! Groups

Links

 $\triangleright$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\triangleright$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$

> Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®. See how.

 $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$

> Windows Live™: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.

 $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\triangleright$

> Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail®.

> <http://windowslive.com/Tutorial/Hotmail/QuickAdd?ocid=TXT>
TAGLM WL HM Tutorial QuickAdd 062009

 $\geq$

| 29141|2009-06-12 08:24:42|odhiambo okeeth|13th June 2009; Programme|
The 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk if finally here with us.

We thank all those friends who have given us support in kind and financially for without your support, we would not have been able to organize.

The event will be flagged off at Montana/Calvery Grounds in Komarock, just opposite Kayole Secondary School at 8.00am by Mr PK Thuku, the District Commissioner Nairobi East District. The procession will then be led by the Administration Police Band along Spine Road upto Kenol Petrol Station. We will move into Komarock Phase 3 upto Car Wash. We will then move back to the starting point via Infill and Sector.

The DC will then give his speech and leave. He has another schedule some other place.

We will then have activities that shows our common heritage as Kenyans. The parents will play the kind of games that they used to play as they grow up. The children will do likewise. These will form part of the entertainments that we want.

We aim at making Kenyans know that we are the same; one people.

We will then invite our guests to give encouraging speeches that aim at creating an everlasting peace, national healing and reconciliation.

The leadership of the university students from across the country will be in attendance, and our mail celebrant will be Bishop Dr. Julius Mbagaya, President of the Baptist Convention in Kenya.

You are all invited to come and listen to Bishop's message as concerns the healing process we so desire in Kenya. Come and listen to the DC as he makes his appeal on the same. And come and help us recreate that bond that makes us Kenyans.

Those who would be kind enough to help us pay the bills can link up with me for their support.

Invitation Courtesy of;

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi.
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29142|2009-06-12 08:25:00|Roger Asterilla|Re: Fw: Check out YouTube - AFRICA & THE
REAL GREEKS 1 of 3|
Funnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnnny! (lol)

--- On Wed, 6/10/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Fw: Check out YouTube - AFRICA & THE REAL GREEKS 1 of 3
To: maatcollective@yahoo.com
Date: Wednesday, June 10, 2009, 9:01 PM

njoyed dat!, LOL

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/10/09, AUSAR65 wrote:

From: AUSAR65
Subject: Check out YouTube - AFRICA & THE REAL GREEKS 1 of 3
To: tafari\_sudra@yahoo.com
Date: Wednesday, June 10, 2009, 1:28 PM

YouTube - AFRICA & THE REAL GREEKS 1 of 3

---

Dell Inspiron 15 Laptop: Now in 6 vibrant colors! Shop Dell's full line of laptops.

| 29143|2009-06-12 08:25:00|Shu Tefnut|Fw: YouTube- AFRICA & THE REAL GREEKS 1 OF 3|

Hotep family,

I, got this video from the Ta-Seti yahoo groups. And I'm just passing it along.

Checkthisout!

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZKpzOwma74U>

| 29144|2009-06-13 03:57:22|Shri Sa Hetep|Re: 72 - (F/U TO PICTURE OF THE 72,000 NADIS)|

NIRMANU NADI SHUDDI

PURPOSE: The purpose of Nirmanu Nadi Shuddi is to cleanse (SHUDDI) the body's energy (Rau, Chi, Prana, etc.) channels (meridians, nadis, etc.) of physical and psychical impurities. Note, psychical impurities are the negative conditionings. Nirmanu means, "without mantra", as there is a techniques of purification with mantra.

EFFECTS: It improves the health, emotional and mental performance (by removing the psychical impurities = negative conditionings), the ability to retain the breath (more energy reaches the cells because the nadis are cleansed), and allows for the complete flow oi Kundalini (bi-polar life force) to the highest spiritual center (Sekhet-Aearu, Sahasrara, Kether, Crown center, etc.) for the realization of one's Divinity. Note the semantic correspondence between the Khamitian, Sanskrit and Hebrew terms, Sekhet-Aearu. Sahasrara [h=kh], and Kether, respectively.

RULES OF NADI SHUDDI

1)Allow at least 3 hours after eating, 40 minutes after liquids, before doing. Never, when there is a sense of fullness.

2)Never do if fatigued, or sick.

3)The best times are at sunrise, and at 6 hours increment thereafter (4 times/day).

These times coincide with the Akasha periods! (the best times for Yoga).

Do not perform after Asanas or exercises.

Do when the body is relaxed, calm and refreshed.

The maximum length of practice at one sitting is 30 minutes. Beginners must not try to achieve this goal if it is beyond their capacity. There are three stages: perspiration, mild temporary trembling (if it does not cease after 3 minutes, it signals the reaching of one's limit), and a crawling sensation on the skin (this is the utmost limit). The limit of one's capacity is also signalled by the inability to control the breathing as described below. Going beyond one's limited signalled by the signs described above or below will show themselves later in the form of tiredness, irritability, dizziness, redness of the eyes, etc. But these may also be the signs of faulty practice. Stop for two or three days and on resumption correct the faults, or reduce the length of practice. SOME PEOPLE MAY ONLY BE ABLE TO PRACTICE COMFORTABLY FOR 3-5 MINUTES AT FIRST. Give yourself time to gradually build up to the 30 minutes.

The in and out breaths must be smooth, quiet, and slow (according to the count). On the in breath the stomach must be pushed down. But avoid bloating, and pain in the throat area.

In holding the breath avoid tension in any part of the body, except in the muscles involved in the bandhas. Avoid, also pressure build-up in the eyes, ears, and head (you are holding the breath too long- discontinue practice and build up your capacity the Zazen. side B of taoe.

10) During the held breath, lower the chin firmly, without tension, in the V at the base of the neck (this is Jalandhara Bandha), & then contract the perineum muscle slightly, but held firmly (this is Mula Bandha), & maintain the strength, not tension in the abdomen.

11) Before breathing out release Jalandhara Bandha, and pull in the entire lower abdomen (this is Uddiyana Bandha), and then breathe out KEEP THE BREATH SILENT, SMOOTH, AND SLOW. This is a round of breath.

12) The ring and little fingers are used to stop up the left nostril by pressing on the lower side while the thumb rests on the right side of the bridge. The thumb is used to press against the lower right side of the nostril to stop it up, while the little and ring fingers rest on the side of the bridge. The other two fingers remain free. The three fingers described are used to stop up both nostrils at the held breath. A round of breathing is IN through the left nostril (stop up the right), HOLD the breath (stop up both nostril), OUT through the right, In through the right, HOLD, and OUT through the left.

13) The eyes are kept slightly open focused between the eyebrows (this improves concentration and develops the Ajna/pineal center). When tired, i.e., slight pain is felt, close eyes and concentrate inwardly on the same point. When refreshed resume open eye concentration (this is called Shambavi Mudra). Note, Mudras/seals are means of focusing energy at particular points in the body. Bandhas are means of restraining and controlling the flow of energy in channels. Jalandhara and Mula Bandha force the Sun and Moon breaths (Ha, Tha) respectively, to unite and generate Kundalini, as well as causing it to enter into the channel (the Nile, Sushumna) that takes it to the main psychic centers. Uddiyana Bandha takes Kundalini up the Sushumna.

14)The tip of the tongue is to be placed on the gum line of the front teeth. Saliva must never be swallowed while holding the breath. Swallow only at the end of the out breath?

15)THE POSTURE IS OF UTMOST IMPORTANCE. If you can sit in Siddhasana, perfect. Otherwise, sit with your back straight, totally relaxed (you may prop up the back with pillows). Place one of your heels under the perineum. If tired before the exercise is over, alternate. The hand not used must sit in your lap, palm up, thumb joined with 3rd finger (Jnana Mudra).

16)Relax completely for several minutes after exercise, and allow 15 minutes before liquids, and at least 30 minutes before meals. Right after the exercise is the right time for meditating, chanting, problem solving thinking, creative work, etc. You can now do your aerobics, asanas, etc. Approximately 28,800 rounds of breathing will completely purify all of the meridians. A suggested goal to work up to is 4 thirty minutes sessions a day (=320 rounds/day, which after 3 months = 28,800 rounds).

17)If the breath cannot be kept quiet, or slow, or smooth, or at an even pace, you have reached your limit, even if the above indicated signs have not appeared. Obstructions of the meridians will impede the holding of breath, limit the ability to persevere in the exercise. But as time passes, all will improve. MAKE PROGRESS SLOWLY.

Expect also, PSYCHIC CATHARSIS. I.e., the purification will literally burn up conditionings, but in many cases, the burning will take several days or weeks. In the mean time the aroused conditioning which had been suppressed will become manifest. I.e., you will find yourself desiring to do things you once had under control, or things you didn't think you were capable of or had within you (negative or positive). Speak to your counsellor about this. Do your Men Ab, and keep up the exercise. It will pass.

Once the meridians are purified, you will experience great health, and the ability to meditate effectively, and all the metaphysical and mundane benefits that come with that.

It is strongly recommended that you take the Hatha Yoga class to increase your ability to relax, and increase you strength and endurance.

ANYONE WITH HEART OR HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE PROBLEMS MUST NOT DO THIS EXERCISE WITHOUT MONITORING BY YOUR PHYSICIAN, OR GET "SPECIAL NADI SHUDDH TAPE.

All students will be tested on the above material. Since faulty practice can lead to physical and psychical disorders, students who fail to show competent knowledge of these rules will be dropped from the class, and are strongly advised to discontinue practice of this material and all other breathing exercises (pranayamas).

Copyright 1985 AUSAR-AUSET SOCIETY

--- On Thu, 6/11/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: [Ta_Seti] 72

To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, June 11, 2009, 11:57 PM

tafari

It is said that jesus could have called down 72,000 angels if he so desired while on the cro

Initiation takes place no matter what!

initiation will take place inevitably even a people without a system of acculturating one into society and imprinting the wholesome laws into the subconscious and inflaming those laws and ways with the fire of the soul burning that way of life into the heart.

even a people dumb to such ways will be initiated only it will not be on one's own court, it will be the uncivilized march into the way of "man" and dying enough times that waking up due to so much pain is inevitable

72, 75, 78

---

72 Names of God from the ancient Habiru Canaanite/ Ka-Anu and 75 and/or 78 names/ra from the ancient Khamau people of the Hapi valley.

In the procession of the equinox's the number 72 is extremely important and a way of organizing incorporating the Maat/math system into ritual and everyday mundane life, if the "culture incorporating the astronomical/astrological philosophy is well understanding/gnosis and amenable.

75 names of Ra plus the 1-in-3 trinity of Ra-Amen, Mut and Nefertem is the same cosmology of the Ka-Anu (Canaanite 72 names) a method to use the names of Ra in any given situation is especially appropriate in particular seasons and administrations/epochs.

a method to co-ordinate the parts of the body inner and outer with certain vibrations/sounds/numbers/names and colors, herbs, properly instigated holidays and festivals, sacred rituals in alignment with the 26,000 yr cycle broken down in 3,600 and 2,500 and 1,450 yr cycles etc...all flowing organically with a monthly lunar cycle/7 day week and solar cycle/1 week.

a science of culture, socio-psychological taboos and challenges/initiation that align with quantum physics by way of an astrological-oracular methodology based on math/Maat using Maat in the individual through age appropriate rites of passage/initiation that exasperate the cyclic nature of Nature/NETER bringing out the divinity of the initiate taking one from a man giving one the quality to be humane by allowing the god within to raise in all one's meridians and chakra's in so doing bringing god's and goddess's into the world.

These teachings are very evident in the way the Khamau went from the time of the bull to the time of the lamb and lastly before they died (from their home land) the time of the fish.

The irony of the days of the fish, the time of the fisherman falling to the Greeks and Roman they taken the religion of Ithyss "Christianity" (gnosis, gnosticism, Isis) to the whole world shows that teachings that the Khamau gave to the world is a living reality that is not the personal persuasion of a regional religion (al-khami/ Ra Kham) but a universal reality that is as real as Fibonacci arithmetic /Arrat-Mati.

The 72 murders of Ausar called the Sebasteia correspond to the 72 hrs of the grave that the fish Ichthyus/Jesus spent in the grave,, the Greeks attempted to keep the calendrical-mythos that ancient Africans created by way of their bringing to the forefront Heru-Pa-Khart (Heru the kharast/christ) the child born unto mankind stepping on crocodiles and choking serpents enemies of fish.

<http://www.mythome.org/ojluca.html>

click above for additional info;

also see Metu-Neter vol.1 esp. pgs. 388- 396

www.tauienterprises.com

Tafari-sud ra,Khumbak a

(this was taken from a site on Qabbalah jewelry)

According to Kabbalah, the spiritual power of the Hebrew letters can have influence on our lives. Kabbalah teaches that the combination of certain letters can work as a tool to help us overcome the obstacles of our material existence. One such Kabbalist tool is the 72 names of God. The 72 names of G-d are presented as a table of three letter sequences. Many of us have encountered at least some of these sequences in Jewish jewelry, such as the widely popular "Aleph-Lamed-Hey". What are these sequences and what do they mean? Why does Kabbalah consider these sequences a secret to understanding their influence on our existence?

The table of the 72 names is a Kabbalistic spiritual key for protection , healing, love, abundance, strength the power to make changes. According to the Kabbalah, The Creator has 72 names. We can employ Creator's sacred names through these three letters sequences. The sequences are not real words. Interestingly, no one knows how to pronounce them. Each sequence believed to possess a segula, a quality for a certain aspect in life. Aleph-Lamed-Hey, for example, is a segula against the evil eye.

How did the Kabbalist come up with that table? The source for the 72 names of God is found in the book of Exodus, in three suc

(Message over 64 KB, truncated)

| 29145|2009-06-13 22:17:20|Asar Imhotep|Learn the basics of Genetics|
Peace Pham

Here is a link for those who want to understand the basics of genetics. I think this is a good resource. It may come in handy in your wisdom bag of knowledge.

<http://learn.genetics.utah.edu/index.html>

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29146|2009-06-13 22:31:10|rogaster1|Re: A Back Migration from Asia to Sub-Saharan Africa|
"Be not proud, O man, in thy wisdom.
Discourse with the ignorant as well as the wise.

If one comes to thee full of knowledge, listen and heed, for wisdom is all."

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> There is an African proverb that states, "A wise man instructs everyone. It is the person that decides if it fits."

>

> If the email doesn't make sense to you, you have one of two choices. You can either 1) take some time out to purchase some books on microbiology and dna sequencing and begin studying so that you may understand, or 2) you can choose to ignore it and move on to something more your speed.

>

> There is another African proverb that states, "A man can't be judge of his neighbor's intelligence. His own vital experience is never his neighbor's." Your understanding, or lack thereof, is not a prerequisite for my understanding. Obviously the email was not directed towards you, but to the members on this list who study African history, migrations and who understand the various tools in the field that are useful in their research. An intelligent reply would have been something like, "I do not understand the details of this email. Is there any material that you can point me to for the layman where I can get up to speed?"

>

> A iKami proverb states, "- An answer brings no illumination unless the question has matured to a > point where it gives rise to this answer which thus becomes its fruit.

> Therefore learn how to put a question." This speaks for itself.

>

> If at this point it is not clear, then the ancients instruct me with these proverbs:

>

> -

> Leave him in error who loves his error.

> -

> Every man is rich in excuses to safeguard his prejudices, his instincts, and his opinions

>

> So ending, in the words of Dr. John Henrik Clarke, "I only debate my equals...all others I teach."

>

> Ancestrally

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

>

>

>

> --- On Wed, 6/10/09, Joseph Wright wrote:

>

> From: Joseph Wright

<<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Free-the-Scott-Sisters-Committee/>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29148|2009-06-13 22:31:42|nathaniel x vance|Urgent: The Scott Sisters Need Our Help!
Dear Members,

Remember the Jena Six? Students came from all over the nation 50,000 strong to protest an end to wanton racist injustice in Jena Louisiana, and the massive protest did have a positive result in spurring some justice for Mychal Bell and the Jena Six? But what can we do to help the Scott Sisters as well, two forgotten sisters, who have thus far languish for 14 and a half years in a Mississippi prison since 1993 for a made-up robbery that they did not commit. These two sisters are likewise asking for our help, yet few of us have taken the time to respond in hardly any way. If there are any of you who are compassionate enough to be serious about assisting the Scott sisters with any kind of moral support or help, please take a moment to consider checking out these links below. The Scott sisters would deeply appreciate your help! May GOD bless each of us for whatever we may do in their behalf!

<<http://www.ipetitions.com/petition/Free-Jamie-Gladys/index.html>>

For information concerning their case, please click these links below.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=yaTCaGF2qJw&feature=player\_embedded>

<<http://www.4wardever.org/#/jamieandgladysscott/4532650148>>

^^^^^^^^Also, please consider joining this group!^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^

<<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Free-the-Scott-Sisters-Committee/>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29149|2009-06-14 03:04:35|Shri Sa Hetep|Ancient Egyptian Hieroglyphs used by North American Indian Algonquia|

Attachments :

ANCIENT AMERICAN 6.JPG

ANCIENT AMERICAN 5.JPG

ANCIENT AMERICAN 4.JPG

ANCIENT AMERICAN 3.JPG

ANCIENT AMERICAN 2.JPG

Peace-n-Blessings,

Please see attached article from Ancient American, vol. 9, number. 60

(December 2004) titled, "Algonquians Traditions and Other Ancient American Enigmas". This article is about a North American Indian Algonquian Tribe, called the Mic-Mac, and how their form of hieratic writing closely resembles Ancient Egyptian Hieroglyphs.

The article is a Adobe .pdf file.

Namaste,

Shri Sa Hetep

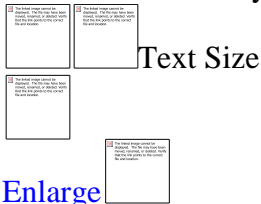

| 29150|2009-06-14 07:35:28|Paul Kekai Manansala|South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,000 |

Engraved pigments point to ancient symbolic tradition

Incisions on ochre from a South African cave suggest modern human behavior emerged around 100,000 years ago

By Bruce Bower

Web edition : Friday, June 12th, 2009

Enlarge

Line designsGeometric patterns incised on pieces of ancient pigment, such as these 100,000-year-old finds, may reveal the surprisingly ancient origins of modern human behavior.Courtesy of C. Henshilwood and F. d'Errico

Scientists excavating a Stone Age cave on South Africa's southern coast have followed a trail of engraved pigments to what they suspect are the ancient roots of modern human behavior.

Analyses of 13 chunks of decorated red ochre (an iron oxide pigment) from Blombos Cave indicate that a cultural tradition of creating meaningful geometric designs stretched from around 100,000 to 75,000 years ago in southern Africa, say anthropologist Christopher Henshilwood of the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg and his colleagues. Their report appears online and in an upcoming Journal of Human Evolution.

Much debate surrounds the issue of when and where language, religion, symbolic decorations and other facets of modern human behavior originated. Researchers such as Henshilwood hypothesize that modern human behavior developed gradually in Africa, beginning more than 100,000 years ago. Others posit that a brain-boosting genetic mutation around 50,000 years ago fostered modern behavior in Africa. Some researchers suspect that behavioral advances first appeared in Europe, Asia and Africa at that later time.

Possible examples of symbolic behavior from around 100,000 years ago □?□ such as proposed human burials in the Middle East and pigment use in Africa □?□ have been controversial.

"What makes the Blombos engravings different is that some of them appear to represent a deliberate will to produce a complex abstract design," Henshilwood says. "We have not before seen well-dated and unambiguous traces of this kind of behavior at 100,000 years ago."

Further studies need to confirm that the ancient incisions were not the result of, say, slicing into ochre with stone tools in order to remove powder quickly, cautions anthropologist Curtis Marean of Arizona State University in Tempe, who studies ancient human behavior at another South African cave (SN: 10/20/07, p. 243).

Even if the Blombos pigments contain intentional designs, fully modern human behavior □?□ such as the use of figurative art (SN: 6/20/09, p. 11) □?□ didn't emerge until tens of thousands of years later, contends archaeologist Nicholas Conard of the University of Tuebingen, Germany.

Henshilwood and study coauthor Francesco d'Errico of the University of Bordeaux I in Talence, France, disagree. In their view, the Blombos pigments bear intentionally fashioned designs that held some sort of meaning and were passed down the generations for 25,000 years. Thus, the two researchers say, it's likely that a 100,000-year-old society already steeped in symbolic behavior originally produced the ochre engravings.

In 2002, Henshilwood's team described evidence of symbolic engravings on two other ochre pieces from Blombos Cave. Those 77,000-year-old finds were excavated in 1999 and 2000.

Engraved chunks of pigment in the new analysis were unearthed during the same excavations. Specimens came from either of three sediment levels with estimated ages of 72,000 years, 77,000 years and 100,000 years.

A microscopic analysis indicates that ochre designs were made by holding a piece of pigment with one hand while impressing lines into the pigment with the tip of a stone tool. On several pieces, patterns covered areas that had first been ground down.

Geometric patterns on the ochre pieces include cross-hatched designs, branching lines, parallel lines and right angles.

Pigment powder had also been removed from many of the recovered ochre chunks. Incised patterns may have served as models for pigment designs applied to animal skins or other material, the scientists speculate.

Excavations of Blombos Cave sediment from before 100,000 years ago have begun. "The discovery of more, and perhaps even more striking, engravings is very possible," Henshilwood says.

ZetaTalk: GodlikeProduction Live

Written on the June 13, 09 GodlikeProduction live chat

Classified Bolides, Bird crop circle, Enhancement Call, Sighting Call, Planet X viewing, Cover-up crumble, Cover-up death, Switzerland bonds, Escalating violence, Bush skydive, Solar activity, Zhuge Liang, Wishful thinking, Fish crop circle, Amateur astronomers, AIG bailout, Mind control, Obesity, Wobble vortexes, Crop circle hoax, Shuttle activity, Crop shortages, Angels, Telepathy, Cool summers

<<http://zetatalk.com/index/zeta516.htm>>

The ZetaTalk Newsletter

Issue 137 Weekly news and views from around the world and beyond.

Wobble Clouds; Winged Globe Flight; Crop Circle Creatures

<<http://zetatalk.com/newsletr/issue137.htm>>

[According to the STO Zeta space angels, planet earth can expect an increase in many more UFO/ET sightings]

<<http://www.zetatalk.com/index/blog0928.htm>>

*****

Fireballs (Bible: There will be signs in the sky!)

<http://fireball.meteorite.free.fr/index\_en.html>

More Mystery Crop Circles

<<http://www.cropcircleconnector.com/2009/rutlands/rutlands2009.html>>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=z8fYbRpQM3U>

<<http://www.cropcircleconnector.com/2009/yatesbury2/yatesbury2009b.html>>

+++++

You be the Judge!

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29152|2009-06-14 19:10:07|odhiambo okech|2nd Edition KCDN Peace Run/Walk|

Attachments :

10

14th June 2009

In his recent speech to the Muslim World at Cairo University, President Barack Obama of the USA said; we must say openly the things we hold in our hearts and that too often are said only behind closed doors. There must be a sustained effort to listen to each other; to learn from each other; to respect one another; and to seek common ground.

This message came at the very right time in the history of the world.

In all corners, people are not saying openly the things they hold dear in their hearts. Even in Kenya, we do not say openly the things that we hold dear in our hearts. In many cases, we engage in double-speak.

At KCDN, we have decided to talk very openly about the things we hold dear and such was the occasion when we hosted the 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk yesterday the 13th June 2009.

DO 1 Nairobi East District Mr. Nyenje, stood in for the DC Nairobi East District and his message was that of hope. He let the people know that is spreading the message of peace, national healing and reconciliation, institutions such as KCDN were doing the right thing.

He confirmed that the presence of the Band from the Administration Police was enough indication that even at the Police Force, they also want a peaceful country. Their presence in taking part in the procession must be seen as a sure move in the direction of engaging the masses in seeking a lasting solution to peace, national healing and reconciliation.

He then invited our main celebrant Bishop Dr Julius Mbagaya, President of the Baptist Convention who led the people in reciting a short prayer.

Mr Nyenge then flagged off the procession which was ably led by the Administration Police Band under the Command of Insp. Mwangi. We left the field, turned into Spine Road, went up to Kenol Petrol Station, turned right into Komarock, went up to Car Wash, turned right and headed back to the field. The procession took us 44 minutes.

Back at the field, we had several small games and acrobatic troupes. We had games like; kati, rounders, bano, egg race, skipping rope competition, tag-of-war. The most interesting was bano where Mr. Sylvester Ogola, the student leader from Masinde Muliro University came out the winner.

With the sports and entertainments done, we introduced the rest of our guests to the people. In attendance we had Mr. Elijah Kombo from Bidii and New Vision Africa, Mr. George Nyongesa and Jacob Odipo from Bunge La Mwananchi, Sylvester Ogola the President Masinde Muliro University Students, Mr. David Muriuki from Sauti Moja Kenya, Mr. Chris Kariaku and Mr. Francis Mwangi Chege from the League of Young Professionals, Ms. Caroline Ndungi from Komarocks Residents Association, Ms. Mellen Kinaru the Secretary General Komarocks Residents Association, Mr. Wilfred Kagiri and Mr. Norman Chomba from The Voice Movement, Rev. Johnson Kanyenje The Vicar ACK Komarock [Good Samaritan] and he was accompanied by Mr. Cyrus Mbogo Ileri. Our main guest was Bishop Dr. Julius Mbagaya, the President of the Baptist Convention in Kenya.

Rev Kanyenje told the people to preach peace across the board and use occasions such as what KCDN had done, to help spread the word. He urged people to live as brothers and sisters in the firm knowledge that we are one people.

In his powerful presentation, Bishop Mbagaya paused the question; where is the problem in Kenya? Is it the politicians? Is it the Government? Is it the professionals? Or is it the people? He absolved the Government by looking at how Government makes appointment after vetting based on known academic and other known creteria. He looked at the politicians and returned a verdict of not guilty. They are so few; only 210, and they are elected by the people.

He then zeroed on the people. We are the problem in Kenya. We are given an opportunity every 5 years and we vote in people who cannot make a difference for Kenya. Time has come when the people must wake up and lead the process. Time has come when the people must also have a vetting process that outlines the calibre of leaders that we vote for.

We must vet the leadership that we want. Like it happens to computers, garbage in begets garbage out. When we vote for people who have stolen from State Corporation, Government Departments, or people who have criminal and theft cases pending across the courts in Kenya, we must not expect anything better in return.

Once a thief always a thief. We will only be giving them more leverage at stealing. Hence time has come for Kenyans to wake up. The time is now, the hour has come and we must all join hands to save Kenya.

We then ended our day by joining in the Komarock Peace Declaration herein attached.

Thank you all for having come in those large numbers to make this day a success. Thanks also to all those who supported us in realizing this dream.

Let us meet at the 3rd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk next year.

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi.

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

And we must thank the following people and institutions for their support;

- 1] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Lenny Amolo of AIG Kenya Ltd.
- 2] Kshs 10,000.00 from Mr. Eric Jangolo of Barclays Bank, [But strictly for our rent].
- 3] Kshs 2,800.00 from Mr. Elijah Kombo of Bidii Africa.
- 4] Kshs 2,000.00 from Mr. Otieno Sungu of Southern Sudan.

- 5] Kshs 2,000.00 from Arinolah EN of Southern Sudan.
- 6] Kshs 3,000.00 from Dr Shem Ochuodho of Southern Sudan.
- 7] Kshs 15,000.00 from Bunge la Mwananchi- Mr. George Nyongesa.
- 8] Video Coverage from Dommie Yambo- Development Through Media.
- 9] 10 balls [5-football, 5 volleyballs] from Text Book Centre Ltd.
- 10] Administration Police Band.
- 11] Partnership for Change.
- 12] Kshs 5,000.00 from Bishop Dr. Julius Mbagaya.
- 13] League of Young Professionals.
- 14] Kshs 500.00 from a friend who requests to remain anonymous
- 15] Kshs 500.00 from Ms Josephine Kamanthe of League of Young Professionals.
- 16] Kshs 200.00 from Truphena Awuor of the League of Young Professionals.
- 17] 240 bottles of water from H2O Beverages Ltd
- 18] Akiba Uhaki Foundation

Note; we have some more Friends of KCDN who had pledges their support. We hope to hear from them soon.

| 29153|2009-06-15 04:32:27|Obadele (abibitumikasa.com)|Akom Songs Workshop; Repatriation Course; Afrikan Martial Arts Class|

(All online classes are live and interactive online meetings via streaming audio and video technology)

Black by Popular Demand

What: 3 Hour Intensive Twi Workshop: Akɔm Songs of the Akan Part 1

Who: You Afrikan!

When: June 27, 2009 @ 6:30PM EST

Where: Abibitumi Kasa Member Classroom

How much: 50 USD

How: Step 1: Register and pay for the workshop at

<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/payment.html> (you'll be automatically redirected to this page from the register page)

Step 2: Create an account at free forum at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/register.php> then at the time of class click member classroom or on this link:

<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

To set up audio and video and font for workshop view our instructional videos at: <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/video-tutorials-how-abibitumi-kasa/>

"?sansa bireku anyane o a eee!" , ?kura sekamma e!, Momfa d?nn? hyia me o, Esi!

Learn what these songs and more mean. It is very important to pronounce the words to Akɔm songs dedicated to the Abosom correctly. In this workshop, we will sing and understand what we are singing for songs dedicated to Abosom and Mmoatia alike. Additionally youll receive a document of how the words to these songs are written. Be sure to check out this not to miss workshop and tell a friend or an entire shrine house to be online this Saturday at 6:30PM at Abibitumi Kasa!

This workshop will cover:

Pronunciation

Reading

Singing

Comprehension

Worldview

Abibitumi Kasa Staff and Family

To register for class, go to <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

Repatriation Course, 101

When: Class Begins June 28th at 2:00PM EST

Who: All Afrikan people who are interested in repatriation

Where: <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

How: To access the online member classroom, you must register for the Abibitumi Kasa site at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/register.php>

You'll need to do this if you don't have an account already.

If you already have an account at the site, login at this link:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/login.php>

From there click on the link to member classroom on any page at the site at class time or visit the link to the member classroom here directly at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

Learn to hook up your audio and/or webcam for class and more at:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/video-tutorials-how-abibitumi-kasa/>

How Much: $95

Why: Repatriation, Visit, Interacting with Family, and more.

The topic of Repatriation has been relegated to the poets, revolutionaries and the players of instrument, but rarely has it been broken down in terms of the practical movement of a nation of dispersed African families, men and women, forward into Africa.

Repatriation Courses 101 & 102 eliminates the questions, misconceived notions and fears about returning to Africa. In their place we provide logical answers and a direct link, in a no holds barred setting, minus the limitations we face providing crucial information via our web-site. The course will be taught by yours truly, a Repatriate in the field for 10 years. I am determined to demystify repatriation for all interested.

The first course will begin on Sunday June 28, 2009 at 2 p.m., eastern standard time. It will continue, at the same time for the next 5 weeks and costs $95.00. To register: <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/ariel.htm> for questions call: +233-20-946-6408

Course Outlines:

Repatriation Course 101

Introductory Lesson:

- Brief autobiography of course instructor
  - Redefine repatriation
  - Explain course objectives
- Entertain general questions and concerns

Lesson 1: Logistics of moving to Ghana

- Costs (airfare, shipping, duties, etc.)
- What to bring and why (cars, furniture, tools, etc.)
  - Dealing with the ports and clearing of goods
    - Banking

Lesson 2: Buying, leasing or renting property in Ghana

- Terms of renting
- Terms of buying, limitations and ways around them
  - Benefits and disadvantages of each
  - Building headaches and solutions
- Practical management of in-house help (servants)
  - Security issues

Lesson 3: Doing Business in Ghana

- Ghana Investment Promotions Center: requirements and bylaws
- Industries most complimentary to our experience and know how
- Profit margins, earning the local currency against ridiculous inflation rates and still staying ahead
  - Exporting & Importing
- Non Government (profit) Organizations

Lesson 4: Residence permits and citizenship in Ghana

- Immigrations
- Right of Abode: legally & realistically

- Naturalizing
  - Marriage
- Passport & other I.D.s

Lesson 5: Health and Wellness in Ghana

- Hygiene
- Buying & preparing food
- Malaria, typhoid & A.I.D.S.
  - Children & Elders
  - Giving birth

Repatriation Course 102

Lesson 1: Concerning the Youth & the Elders

- Varied options available for education and recreation of youth
- Issues at the schools (cutting hair, spanking, hygiene, etc.)
  - Other concerns: school fees, uniforms, curriculum, etc.
    - Challenges faced by the Elders
    - Options available to Elders

Lesson 2: Culture Shock!

- Our expectations vs. reality
- Pan African rhetoric & uninviting policies
  - Religion vs. Tradition
  - Who do voodoo?

Lesson 3: Adjusting to Ghana

- Humility as an asset
  - Acceptance as a tool
  - Overcoming as a necessity
- Various ways one humbles, accepts, overcomes and yet remains in their own realm of high frequency

Lesson 4: Socializing/acclimating in Ghana

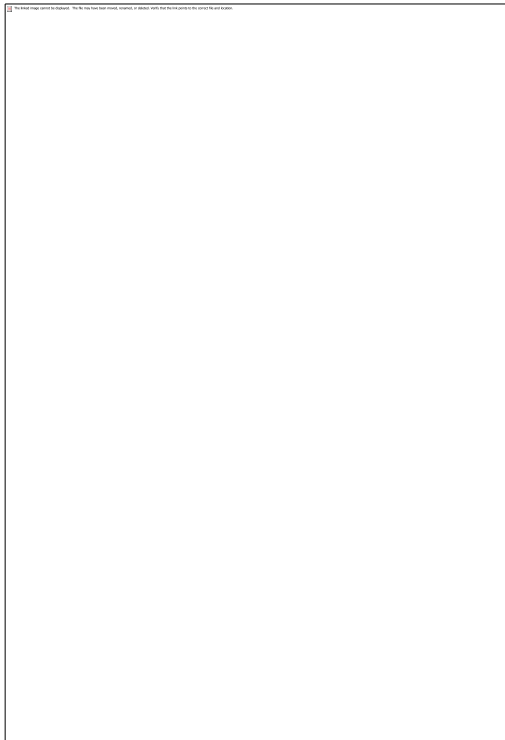

- Family
  - Men
  - Women
  - Children
  - Marrying

Lesson 5: Successful Repatriate

- Find that peace of mind in a sometimes crazy society
- Learn to cohabit with brothers and sisters that have very little in common with you
- Self sustenance & prosperity in an environment that is designed to cause failure
  - Victory!
  -
  -

To register for class, go to <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

To register for class, go to <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

AFRIKAN MARTIAL ARTS:
Discovering the Warrior Within
(Course Description)

When: Class begins June 28th, 2009 at 6:00PM EST

How much: $160

How long: 8 weeks

Who: All Afrikan people who are interested in Afrikan Martial Arts and Self-Defense

Where: <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

How: To access the online member classroom, you must register for the Abibitumi Kasa site at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/register.php>

You'll need to do this if you don't have an account already.

If you already have an account at the site, login at this link:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/login.php>

From there click on the link to member classroom on any page at the site at class time or visit the link to the member classroom here directly at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

Learn to hook up your audio and/or webcam for class and more at:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/video-tutorials-how-abibitumi-kasa/>

Join author of the ground-breaking book Afrikan Martial Arts: Discovering the Warrior Within and Master Instructor, Balogun Oyabode Abeegunde assisted by the Full Instructors and students of the Afrikan Martial Arts Institute in learning the Traditional Afrikan Martial Arts System of Egbe Ogun, a holistic system of techniques and principles from Wolof Laamb, Yoruba Ijakadi and Mandinka Kilijawaaro.

Taught in eight-week sessions, this dynamic, interactive and exciting class teaches students effective and efficient methods of self-defense, as well as traditional Afrikan martial principles and strategies.

Traditional Afrikan martial arts stress common sense, efficiency, and improvisation in the application of self-defense and combat techniques. Students learn to quickly and effectively defend themselves against strikes, chokes, throws, bear-hugs and headlocks, attacks while they are prone on the ground, knives, clubs and firearms. Students also learn to apply powerful strikes, throws, chokes, joint-locks and weapon disarms.

Dont be a victim! Discover the Warrior Within!!

AFRIKAN MARTIAL ARTS:
Discovering the Warrior Within
(Syllabus)

1. WEEK 1

2. Salute
3. Basic Footwork
4. Subu (Falls & Rolls)
5. High Cover vs. Hook / Straight Punches
6. Low Cover vs. Low Hook / Straight Punches
7. Executing a proper punch
8. Student Creed

1. WEEK 2 Q & A

1. WEEK 3

2. Salute
3. Basic Footwork
4. Subu
5. High Cover vs. Hook / Straight Punches
6. Low Cover vs. Low Hook / Straight Punches
7. Defense vs. Jab □Cross □Hook Combo
8. Defense vs. Hook □Hook □Low Hook
9. Student Creed

1. WEEK 4 Q & A

1. WEEK 5 As Week 3, with further refinement of technique

1. WEEK 6 Q & A

1. WEEK 7

2. As weeks 3 and 5
3. Exposing & Refuting Myths

1. WEEK 8 Q & A

To register for class, go to
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

Live Interactive Online and Accra, Ghana Afrikan Language Classes

Register for Free Afrikan Liberation Institute

Sign Up for AKALI Mailing List

Abibitumi Kasa Fundraiser

| 29154|2009-06-15 20:58:31|Asar Imhotep|Fw: [AfricanLanguages] Facebook Swahili version launched|

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Mon, 6/15/09, Don Osborn wrote:

From: Don Osborn

Subject: [AfricanLanguages] Facebook Swahili version launched

To: "A12n tech support"

Cc: AfricanLanguages@yahoogroups.com, DigAfrica@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 15, 2009, 8:39 PM

FYI (article on BBC seen via a mention on Twitter). Some people have apparently had trouble accessing it, and in fact I do not see it on the list of languages. If you have a FB acct. go to Settings and then Language and click on Primary language

Facebook Swahili version launched

Monday, 15 June 2009

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/africa/8100295.stm>

The social-networking website Facebook has launched in Swahili, targeting more than 110m speakers of the language.

A group of Swahili scholars launched the new version with the permission of the California-based internet firm.

Facebook use has spread over the past five years in East and Central Africa, where most Swahili-speakers live.

Analysts say a Hausa version could be launched next in West Africa and Zulu for southern Africa. Facebook already exists in Afrikaans.

Symon Wanda, one of the project's initiators, said they wanted to launch a Swahili version to safeguard the future of the language.

"The youth, the future generation, if you look at the biggest percentage of users on Facebook, they are the youth," he told the BBC's Network Africa programme.

"They can easily navigate through when it's maybe a language they understand, which makes it easier to use the Swahili than to use the English."

The BBC's Ruth Nesoba, in Nairobi, says the Swahili site has already been on trial for some time and word has spread quickly.

Facebook's Simon Wanda says they have been monitoring the take-up and says more than 60% of Facebook users in East Africa are already using the Swahili version.

The bulk of Swahili-speakers live in Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda, eastern Democratic Republic of Congo, parts of the Horn of Africa, Malawi, Mozambique and the Indian Ocean islands.

Facebook already exists in some 50 language versions.

| 29155|2009-06-16 08:01:49|Tafari khumbaka|Re: 72 - (F/U TO PICTURE OF THE 72,000 NADI'S)| tua-u. excellent info!

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Sat, 6/13/09, Shri Sa Hetep wrote:

From: Shri Sa Hetep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] 72 - (F/U TO PICTURE OF THE 72,000 NADI'S)

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Saturday, June 13, 2009, 5:56 AM

NIRMANU NADI SHUDDI

PURPOSE: The purpose of Nirmanu Nadi Shuddi is to cleanse (SHUDDI) the energy (Rau, Chi, Prana, etc.) channels (meridians, nadis, etc.) of physical and psychological impurities. Note, psychological impurities are the negative conditionings. Nirmanu :

"without mantra", as there is a techniques of purification with mantra.

EFFECTS: It improves the health, emotional and mental performance (by removing the psychical impurities = negative conditionings) , the ability to retain the breath (more energy reaches the cells because the nadis are cleansed), and allows for the complete flow oi Kundalini (bi-polar life force) to the highest spiritual center (Sekhet-Aearu, Sahasrara, Kether, Crown center, etc.) for the realization of one's Divinity. Note the semantic correspondence between the Khamitian, Sanskrit and Hebrew terms, Sekhet-Aearu. Sahasrara [h=kh], and Kether, respectively.

RULES OF NADI SHUDDI

1) Allow at least 3 hours after eating, 40 minutes after liquids, before doing. Never, when there is a sense of fullness.

2) Never do if fatigued, or sick.

3) The best times are at sunrise, and at 6 hours increment thereafter (4 times/day).

These times coincide with the Akasha periods! (the best times for Yoga).

Do not perform after Asanas or exercises.

Do when the body is relaxed, calm and refreshed.

The maximum length of practice at one sitting is 30 minutes. Beginners must not try to achieve this goal if it is beyond their capacity. There are three stages:

perspiration, mild temporary trembling (if it does not cease after 3 minutes, it signals the reaching of one's limit), and a crawling sensation on the skin (this is the utmost limit). The limit of one's capacity is also signalled by the inability to control the breathing as described below. Going beyond one's limited signalled by the signs described above or below will show themselves later in the form of tiredness, irritability, dizziness, redness of the eyes, etc. But these may also be the signs of faulty practice. Stop for two or three days and on resumption correct the faults, or reduce the length of practice. SOME PEOPLE MAY ONLY BE ABLE TO PRACTICE COMFORTABLY FOR 3-5 MINUTES AT FIRST. Give yourself time to gradually build up to the 30 minutes.

The in and out breaths must be smooth, quiet, and slow (according to the count).

On the in breath the stomach must be pushed down. But avoid bloating, and pain in the throat area.

In holding the breath avoid tension in any part of the body, except in the muscles involved in the bandhas. Avoid, also pressure build-up in the eyes, ears, and head

(you are holding the breath too long- discontinue practice and build up your capacity the Zazen. side B of taoe.

f

10) During the held breath, lower the chin firmly, without tension, in the V at the base of the neck (this is Jalandhara Bandha), & then contract the perineum muscle.

slightly, but held firmly (this is Mula Bandha), & maintain the strength, not tension
in the abdomen.

11) Before breathing out release Jalandhara Bandha, and pull in the entire lower abdomen (this is Uddiyana Bandha), and then breathe out KEEP THE BREATH
SILENT, SMOOTH, AND SLOW. This is a round of breath.

12) The ring and little fingers are used to stop up the left nostril by pressing on the lower side while the thumb rests on the right side of the bridge. The thumb is used to press against the lower right side of the nostril to stop it up, while the little and ring fingers rest on the side of the bridge. The other two fingers remain free.
The three fingers described are used to stop up both nostrils at the held breath. A round of breathing is IN through the left nostril (stop up the right), HOLD the breath (stop up both nostril), OUT through the right, In through the right, HOLD, and OUT
through the left.

13) The eyes are kept slightly open focused between the eyebrows
(this improves concentration and develops the Ajna/pineal center). When tired, i.e., slight pain is felt, close eyes and concentrate inwardly on the same point When refreshed resume open eye concentration (this is called Shambavi Mudra). Note, Mudras/seals are means of focusing energy at particular points in the body. Bandhas are means of restraining and controlling the flow of energy in channels. Jalandhara and Mula Bandha force the Sun and Moon breaths (Ha, Tha) respectively, to unite and

generate Kundalini, as well as causing it to enter into the channel (the Nile, Sushumna) that takes it to the main psychic centers. Uddiyana Bandha takes Kundalini up the Sushumna.

14) The tip of the tongue is to be placed on the gum line of the front teeth. Saliva must never be swallowed while holding the breath. Swallow only at the end of the out breath?

15) THE POSTURE IS OF UTMOST IMPORTANCE. If you can sit in Siddhasana, perfect. Otherwise, sit with your back straight, totally relaxed (you may prop up the back with pillows). Place one of your heels under the perineum. If tired before the exercise is over, alternate. The hand not used must sit in your lap, palm up, thumb joined with 3rd finger (Jnana Mudra).

16) Relax completely for several minutes after exercise, and allow 15 minutes before liquids, and at least 30 minutes before meals. Right after the exercise is the right time for meditating, chanting, problem solving thinking, creative work, etc. You can now do your aerobics, asanas, etc. Approximately 28,800 rounds of breathing will completely purify all of the meridians. A suggested goal to work up to is 4 thirty minutes sessions a day (=320 rounds/day, which after 3 months = 28,800 rounds).

17) If the breath cannot be kept quiet, or slow, or smooth, or at an even pace, you have reached your limit, even if the above indicated signs have not appeared. Obstructions of the meridians will impede the holding of breath, limit the ability to persevere in the exercise. But as time passes, all will improve. MAKE PROGRESS SLOWLY.

Expect also, PSYCHIC CATHARSIS. I.e., the purification will literally burn up conditionings, but in many cases, the burning will take several days or weeks. In the mean time the aroused conditioning which had been suppressed will become manifest. I.e., you will find yourself desiring to do things you once had under control, or things you didn't think you were capable of or had within you (negative or positive). Speak to your counsellor about this. Do your Men Ab, and keep up the exercise. It will pass.

Once the meridians are purified, you will experience great health, and the ability to meditate effectively, and all the metaphysical and mundane benefits that come with that.

It is strongly recommended that you take the Hatha Yoga class to increase your ability to relax, and increase you strength and endurance.

ANYONE WITH HEART OR HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE PROBLEMS MUST NOT DO THIS EXERCISE WITHOUT MONITORING BY YOUR PHYSICIAN, OR GET "SPECIAL NADI SHUDDH TAPE.

All students will be tested on the above material. Since faulty practice can lead to physical and psychical disorders, students who fail to show competent knowledge of these rules will be dropped from the class, and are strongly advised to discontinue practice of this material and all other breathing exercises (pranayamas) .

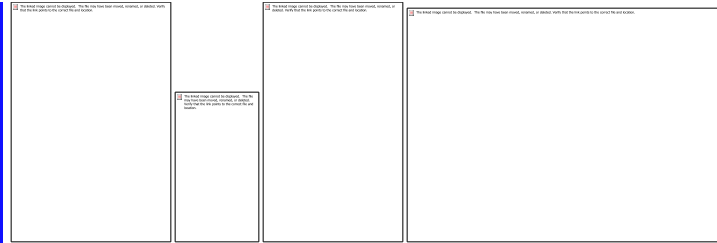

Copyright 1985 AUSAR-AUSET SOCIETY

--- On Thu, 6/11/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: [Ta_Seti] 72
To: maatcollective@ yahooogroups. com
Date: Thursday, June 11, 2009, 11:57 PM

tafari

It is said that jesus could have called down 72,000 angels if he so desired while on Initiation takes place no matter what!

initiation will take place inevitably even a people without a system of acculturating one into society and imprinting the wholesome laws into the subconscious and inflaming those laws and ways with the fire of the soul burning that way of life into the heart.

even a people dumb to such ways will be initiated only it will not be on one's own court, it will be the uncivilized march into the way of "man" and dying enough times that waking up due to so much pain is inevitable

72, 75, 78

---

72 Names of God from the ancient Habiru Canaanite/ Ka-Anu and 75 and/or 78 names/ren Ra from the ancient Khamau people of the Hapi valley.

In the procession of the equinox's the number 72 is extremely important and a way of organically incorporating the Maat/math system into ritual and everyday mundane life, if the "culture" incorporating the astronomical/astrological philosophy is well understanding/gnosis and amenable.

75 names of Ra plus the 1-in-3 trinity of Ra-Amen, Mut and Nefertem is the same cosmology of the Ka-Anu (Canaanite 72 names) a method to use the names of Ra in any given situation is especially appropriate in particular seasons and administrations/epochs.

a method to co-ordinate the parts of the body inner and outer with certain vibrational sounds/numbers/names and colors, herbs. properly instigated holidays and festivals, sacred rituals in alignment with the 26,000 yr cycle broken down in 3,600 and 2,500 and 1,450 yr cycles etc..all flowing organically with a monthly lunar cycle/7 day week and solar cycle/1 year week.

a science of culture, socio-psychological taboos and challenges/initiation that align with quantum physics by-way of an astrological-oracular methodology based on math/Maat ensuring Maat in the individual through age appropriate rites of passage/initiation that exasperate the cyclic nature of Nature/NETER bringing out the divinity of the initiate taking one from a man giving one the quality to be humane by allowing the god within to raise in all one's meridians and chakras in so doing bringing god's and goddess's into the world.

These teachings are very evident in the way the Khamau went from the time of the bull to the time of the lamb and lastly before they died (from their home land) the time of the fish.

The irony of the days of the fish, the time of the fisherman falling to the Greeks and Romans they taken the religion of Ithyss "Christianity" (gnosis, gyno-sophy, Isis) to the whole planet shows that teachings that the Khamau gave to the world is a living reality that is not the personal persuasion of a regional religion (al-khami/ Ra Kham) but a universal reality that is as real as Fibonacci arithmetic /Arrat-Maat.

The 72 murders of Ausar called the sebau coorespond to the 72 hrs of the grave that the fish Ithyss/Jesus spent in the grave,, the Greeks attempted to keep the calendrical-myth that the ancient Africans created by way of their bringing to the forefront Heru-Pa-Khart (Heru the kharast/ch rist) the child born unto mankind stepping on crocodiles and choking serpents to enemies of fish.

http://www .mythome.o rg/ojluca .html

click above for additional info;

also see Metu-Neter vol.1 esp. pgs. 388- 396

www.tauienterprises. com

Tafari-sud ra,Khumbak a

-----
-----
-----
(this was taken from a site on Qabbalah jewelry)

According to Kabbalah, the spiritual power of the Hebrew letters can have influence on our Kabbalah teaches that the combination of certain letters can work as a tool to help us overcome the obstacles of our material existence. One such Kabbalist tool is the 72 names of God. The names of G-d are presented as a table of three letter sequences. Many of us have encountered at least some of these sequences in Jewish jewelry, such as the widely popular "Aleph-Lam d-Heh Hey". What are these sequences and what do they mean? Why does Kabbalah consider these sequences a secret to understanding their influence on our existence?

The table of the 72 names is a Kabbalistic spiritual key for protection , healing, love, abundance, strength the power to make changes. According to the Kabbalah, The Creator has 72 names. We can employ Creator's sacred names through these three letters sequences. These sequences are not real words. Interestingly, no one knows how to pronounce them. Each sequence is believed to possess a segula, a quality for a certain aspect in life. Aleph-Lame d-Heh for example, is a segula against the evil eye.

-----
How did the Kabbalist come up with that table? The source for the 72 names of God is found in the book of Exodus, in three successive psalms in chapter 14: 19- 21.

19: And the angel of God, who went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of cloud removed from before them, and stood behind them;

20: and it came between the camp of Egypt and the camp of Israel; and there was the cloud and the darkness here, yet gave it light by night there; and the one came not near the other all the night.

21: And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the LORD caused the sea to go dry by a strong east wind all the night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided

-----

The 72 names of God are revealed if you follow these steps: Writing the three psalms in Hebrew vertically with no spaces - psalm 19 from right to left, psalm 20 from left to right, psalm 21 from right to left. This table is a result of Kabbalists' work of decoding the Bible which lasted for hundreds of years by generations of Kabbalists. The Kabbalah perceives the Bible as an encrypted text that needs to be decoded in order to reveal deeper layers that hold within them secrets and spiritual energy.

The 72 names of God exemplify how these hidden secrets lie beneath the surface layers of the Biblical plot. What happens in these passages from the book of Exodus? Consider the following scene described in the Book. Under the leadership of Moses, the people of Israel are on the banks of the Red Sea, while trying to escape from the Egyptian army. Pharaoh's powerful and well-equipped army is after them. The Israelites, out of desperation and fear, plead to "hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness?" Did the Israelites forget all the miracles God had performed in Egypt for their miraculous rescue? The Kabbalah explains that the miracle was derived from the human ego. As the Red Sea parts and the Israelites begin to walk through it, they must overcome the ego and demonstrate complete and unconditional faith.

This is how Faith turns into reality. The secret is found in the text. The Bible is, in fact, a collection of encrypted messages that explain how to overcome human faults and challenges we face daily. The 72 combinations of God fight off the negative energy that is produced by the human ego. Thus, the 72 names work as a sacred tool that mediates between the earthly and spiritual worlds. These combinations enhance the power to bring changes in various aspects of our lives. For example, the best known combination, Aleph-Lamed-Dalet, is believed to protect us from the evil eye. Shin-Aleph-Hey is believed to possess the quality of helping us find love and strengthen relationships. According to Kabbalah, the 72 names of God bring us closer to the joyful secrets.

72 names of God chart:

flag | Delete

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

| 29156|2009-06-16 08:51:59|odhiambo okech|International Day of the African Child|
16th June

As we celebrate the International Day of the African Child today, we must look back to history and evaluate our leaders into Independence. Did they have the vision for Africa and for the ## African Child?

From Moluor Kwame Nkrumah in Ghana, to Namzdi Azikiwe and Chief Obafemi Awolowo in Nigeria, Siaka Stevens in Sierra Leone, Leopold Sedar Senghor in Senegal, Patrice Lumumba and Moïse Kasavumbu in Congo Kinshasa, Eduardo Dos Santos in Angola, Kenneth Kaunda in Zambia, Hastings Kamuzu Banda in Malawi, Julius Nyerere in Tanzania, Milton Obote in Uganda, Mzee Jomo Kenyatta in Kenya, and the many independent heroes in Africa, one thing stands out; their visionless approach to leadership in Africa.

Our Independence heroes fought for freedom, not for Africans, but for themselves. They fought for freedom to liberate themselves from the pangs of poverty, illiteracy, disease and want. They fought for control of contracts and tenders. They fought to compete in ruining the economies of African states.

At independence, we used to have plenty of food. Many household used to have 3 square meals per day. There was uji in the evening as you watched your cattle come back home. Githeri or Nyoyo, was never counted as food. One would proudly say that we have not eaten; we have just taken some nyoyo.

But that was then. It lasted almost 10 years into independence when Africa started reeling from the mismanagement by our independence heroes. Ten years into Independence, service delivery was being slowly but surely being replaced by personal delivery. The African Independence hero was delivering surely to his family and cronies.

They had learnt that accounts could be opened far from motherland Africa. In these accounts, loans negotiated for Africa would find a resting place. In these accounts, Grants meant for Africa would be diverted. And in these accounts, money stolen out rightly from the Central Banks in Africa would be sent.

That was the African independence hero. Instead of working for the future of Africa and her children, he worked for the future of his Child and family. Not the future of his country.

The common vision shared by these Independence heroes was thievery. They stole from Africa with complete abandon. They brooked no opposition and they killed all those bright minds that could offer alternative leadership. They had no economic vision that would take Africa to the next level, but they had all the economic vision that would make them and their families multi-billionaires.

They had no vision for the education of the African Child, but they had that vision of taking all their children to the Western Capitals for further education. It did not matter what further education meant. The child of the African leader had to be taken to some Ivy League school; just for prestige, not academic excellence.

They took themselves and their families to the best medical facilities in the Western Capitals as Africa suffered the worst cases of medical neglect. They saw no sense in improving or building medical facilities for us here in Africa. It is sad that some even had their water imported from France! They had their clothes ironed in Paris and all their laundry was done away from Africa.

The Independence hero was a hero unto darkness. They inherited a rich continent and immediately started a massive rape campaign. They competed in amassing wealth at the expense of service delivery. Sadly, those who inherited their thrones became weaned on this line of visionless leadership.

The current crops of leaders consider themselves as demi-gods, not servant leaders. In cases where some talk of servant leadership, it is clearly not evident. They are inaccessible and they operate from the ozone layer- where they have all answers to our problems in Africa. Yet, 46 years into Independence, this knowledge can now be questioned.

Did they know the right things for Africa? Did they have a clear path for leadership? Did they have a vision even on how these issues could be solved.

As we celebrate this International Day of the African Child, we must have hope. Hope not in the current leadership for they have failed the African Child so miserably. We must have hope at the resilience of the African Child. With no services at his service, he is left to the Donor Community and people who feel sufficiently philanthropic. In cases where the government proffers service to the child, it is in most cases stolen; stolen by the same service providers! Or, it is given to the child who is less deserving.

In Kenya, we have started to see some vision coming into shape. Under pressure, the Government has realized the wasted years and has come up with programmes that tend to be Child friendly. By creating a Ministry dealing with issues of the Children, we must have hope that 46 years into Independence, the wheels have started to move at long last.

We must hence put the past behind us and think anew. We must start focusing on the African Child by giving him equitable access to education, educational facilities, and medication. We must feed the African Child less politics. We cannot be a country on campaign throughout the year.

We must have a clear cut path; a time to campaign and a time to work. The African Child will grow knowing that campaigns are a daily issue. The African leader must give the African Child the kind of leadership that gives hope; hope for a secure future where poverty is addressed; where quality education is given the best shot; where medication is accessible and affordable.

In Kenya, the Government must look at the school curriculum and tell us which the education guides in schools are. We have a situation where teachers change the educational texts every year to an extent where if you have 3 children in school, they will be instructed on different books in the same class in the 3 year period.

The Government must have standards; they must maintain the textbooks for instruction just like we used to have Safari Books and Primary Mathematics series in the 70s. We now have all manner of instruction manuals in the school, most of which are not based on academic excellence.

We must put pressure on our current leaders to have a clear vision for the African Child and Africa. This must not include stealing the resources of Africa and stashing it in the Western World.

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi.

| 29157|2009-06-16 08:52:24|Jabari Osaze|Udjat Blog: Egyptian President Promises Better Treatment of the Nub|

I must say that I am always amazed when media outlets in the United States fail to cover key international news events. Unfortunately this is routinely the case when Africans are involved. Thankfully this item was covered by the Asian news outlet, Taiwan News.

After touring the current home of the Nubians in Aswan province, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak publicly pledged better treatment of them. You may recall approximately 60,000 Nubians were relocated from their villages as a result of Aswan High Dam project during the 1960's. The dam project created the world's largest man-made reservoir, Lake Nasser, and flooded the Nubian villages and 18 ancient temples. Only the magnificent dual temple of the Pharaoh Ramses II, known as Abu Simbel, remains. Under a UNESCO plan, the monuments were moved to a higher elevation on an artificial hill overlooking the lake.

The Nubians were very skeptical of the Egyptian government's promises concerning their relocation. "The government promised us paradise, but we thought we were leaving the Garden of Eden," states outspoken activist and author Haggag Oddoul. In fact, the settlements were a poorly built ramshackle of 30 camps named for each of the flooded villages situated five miles east of the Nile. Within a short period, many of the one-story cinder block houses cracked or collapsed completely from their inferior construction. To make matters worse, the relocated inhabitants were not able to cultivate date fields or fish as they were accustomed. Their cotton and sugar cane crops were poor replacements.

For several years now the Nubians have been slowly returning to their traditional homeland along the Nile. "The settlements are false Nubia," explains Oddoul. "To restore our character and community, we need to be rerooted. We need to return." Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak's pledge comes as the Egyptian government is poised to once again remove the Nubians from their homes. Several media outlets have begun to report a large scale agricultural, commercial, and residential development plan along approximately 300,000 acres. The plan even included large swaths of land set aside for foreign developers, but of course ... no allotment of land for the Nubians.

Who are these Africans who today struggle to maintain their cultural identity? The Nubian people were responsible for the world's oldest monarchy (more on this in future posts), the progenitors of the Dynasties of Ancient Egypt, and also stood as one the world's most powerful nations.

The Nubians have also served as humble caretakers of ancient African culture. As the Ancient Egyptian empire sat in tatters besieged by foreign rulers, the Nubian King Piye wrested control of Kemet to form the 25th dynasty. The Nubian Pharaohs of Kemet did not seek to remake the nation in their own image, but rather to re-establish the order of Kemet by returning it to its ancient ways. This approach is best described by Pharaoh Shabaka's restoration of "Memphite Theology" by ordering the re-writing of a decrepit papyrus on what is now called the Shabaka Stone. Today the Nubians still maintain their culture by retaining their own non-Arabic language. Interestingly, they will not teach their language to outsiders.

TO READ THE REST OF THIS POST AND DISCUSS THE ISSUE. CLICK HERE:

<http://blog.centerformaat.com/2009/06/egyptian-president-promises-better.html>

Sign up for email delivery of the Udjat! Shem em Hetep!

| 29158|2009-06-16 08:52:56|Tafari khumbaka|Re: South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,|

there is lots of info: too show that homo-sapien-sapien has be living communally and tracking across the globe for over 300,000 yrs the dna testifies to it as well as skeletal remains .

human developement from an African Ancestry

Gerhard Kraus

the wisdom of the bones

Alan Walker, P. Shipman

journey of man

Spencer Wells

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 6/14/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,000 years ago

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Sunday, June 14, 2009, 9:35 AM

Engraved pigments point to ancient symbolic tradition

Incisions on ochre from a South African cave suggest modern human behavior emerged around 100,000 years ago

By Bruce Bower

Web edition : Friday, June 12th, 2009

Text Size

Enlarge

Line designsGeometric patterns incised on pieces of ancient pigment, such as these 100,000-year- old finds, may reveal the surprisingly ancient origins of modern human behavior. Courtesy of C. Henshilwood and F. d'Errico

Scientists excavating a Stone Age cave on South Africa's southern coast have followed a trail of engraved pigments to what they suspect are the ancient roots of modern human behavior.

Analyses of 13 chunks of decorated red ochre (an iron oxide pigment) from Blombos Cave indicate that a cultural tradition of creating meaningful geometric designs stretched from around 100,000 to 75,000 years ago in southern Africa, say anthropologist Christopher Henshilwood of the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg and his colleagues. Their report appears online and in an upcoming Journal of Human Evolution.

Much debate surrounds the issue of when and where language, religion, symbolic decorations and other facets of modern human behavior originated. Researchers such as Henshilwood hypothesize that modern human behavior developed gradually in Africa, beginning more than 100,000 years ago. Others posit that a brain-boosting genetic mutation around 50,000 years ago fostered modern behavior in Africa. Some researchers suspect that behavioral advances first appeared in Europe, Asia and Africa at that later time.

Possible examples of symbolic behavior from around 100,000 years ago such as proposed human burials in the Middle East and pigment use in Africa have been controversial.

"What makes the Blombos engravings different is that some of them appear to represent a deliberate will to produce a complex abstract design," Henshilwood says. "We have not before seen well-dated and unambiguous traces of this kind of behavior at 100,000 years ago."

Further studies need to confirm that the ancient incisions were not the result of, say, slicing into ochre with stone tools in order to remove powder quickly, cautions anthropologist Curtis Marean of Arizona State University in Tempe, who studies ancient human behavior at another South African cave (SN: 10/20/07, p. 243).

Even if the Blombos pigments contain intentional designs, fully modern human behavior such as the use of figurative art (SN: 6/20/09, p. 11) didn't emerge until tens of thousands of years later, contends archaeologist Nicholas Conard of the University of Tuebingen, Germany.

Henshilwood and study coauthor Francesco d'Errico of the University of Bordeaux I in Talence, France, disagree. In their view, the Blombos pigments bear intentionally fashioned designs that held some sort of meaning and were passed down the generations for 25,000 years. Thus, the two researchers say, it's likely that a 100,000-year-old society already steeped in symbolic behavior originally produced the ochre engravings.

In 2002, Henshilwood's team described evidence of symbolic engravings on two other ochre pieces from Blombos Cave. Those 77,000-year-old finds were excavated in 1999 and 2000.

Engraved chunks of pigment in the new analysis were unearthed during the same excavations. Specimens came from either of three sediment levels with estimated ages of 72,000 years, 77,000 years and 100,000 years.

A microscopic analysis indicates that ochre designs were made by holding a piece of pigment with one hand while impressing lines into the pigment with the tip of a stone tool. On several pieces, patterns covered areas that had first been ground down.

Geometric patterns on the ochre pieces include cross-hatched designs, branching lines, parallel lines and right angles.

Pigment powder had also been removed from many of the recovered ochre chunks. Incised patterns may have served as models for pigment designs applied to animal skins or other material, the scientists speculate.

Excavations of Blombos Cave sediment from before 100,000 years ago have begun. "The discovery of more, and perhaps even more striking, engravings is very possible," Henshilwood says.

| 29159|2009-06-16 11:55:02|Asar Imhotep|Re: South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,|

This reinforces the article published some years ago which I introduced to Ta-Seti when we were discussing the meaning of the name KM.t. Here is the link to that article again:

<http://home.entouch.net/dmd/mining.htm>

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Tue, 6/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,000 years ago

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Tuesday, June 16, 2009, 10:51 AM

there is lots of info: too show that homo-sapien- sapien has be living communally and tracking across the globe for over 300,000 yrs the dna testifies to it as well as skeletal remains .

human developement from an African Ancestry

Gerhard Kraus

the wisdom of the bones

Alan Walker, P. Shipman

journey of man

Spencer Wells

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 6/14/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,000 years ago

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, June 14, 2009, 9:35 AM

Engraved pigments point to ancient symbolic tradition

Incisions on ochre from a South African cave suggest modern human behavior emerged around 100,000 years ago

By Bruce Bower

Web edition : Friday, June 12th, 2009

Line designsGeometric patterns incised on pieces of ancient pigment, such as these 100,000-year- old finds, may reveal the surprisingly ancient origins of modern human behavior.Courtesy of C. Henshilwood and F. d'Errico

Scientists excavating a Stone Age cave on South Africa's southern coast have followed a trail of engraved pigments to what they suspect are the ancient roots of modern human behavior.

Analyses of 13 chunks of decorated red ochre (an iron oxide pigment) from Blombos Cave indicate that a cultural tradition of creating meaningful geometric designs stretched from around 100,000 to 75,000 years ago in southern Africa, say anthropologist Christopher Henshilwood of the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg and his colleagues. Their report appears online and in an upcoming Journal of Human Evolution.

Much debate surrounds the issue of when and where language, religion, symbolic decorations and other facets of modern human behavior originated. Researchers such as Henshilwood hypothesize that modern human behavior developed gradually in Africa, beginning more than 100,000 years ago. Others posit that a brain-boosting genetic mutation around 50,000 years ago fostered modern behavior in Africa. Some researchers suspect that behavioral advances first appeared in Europe, Asia and Africa at that later time.

Possible examples of symbolic behavior from around 100,000 years ago such as proposed human burials in the Middle East and pigment use in Africa have been controversial.

"What makes the Blombos engravings different is that some of them appear to represent a deliberate will to produce a complex abstract design," Henshilwood says. "We have not before seen well-dated and unambiguous traces of this kind of behavior at 100,000 years ago."

Further studies need to confirm that the ancient incisions were not the result of, say, slicing into ochre with stone tools in order to remove powder quickly, cautions anthropologist Curtis Marean of Arizona State University in Tempe, who studies ancient human behavior at another South African cave (SN: 10/20/07, p. 243).

Even if the Blombos pigments contain intentional designs, fully modern human behavior such as the use of figurative art (SN: 6/20/09, p. 11) didn't emerge until tens of thousands of years later, contends archaeologist Nicholas Conard of the University of Tuebingen, Germany.

Henshilwood and study coauthor Francesco d'Errico of the University of Bordeaux I in Talence, France, disagree. In their view, the Blombos pigments bear intentionally fashioned designs that held some sort of meaning and were passed down the generations for 25,000 years. Thus, the two researchers say, it's likely that a 100,000-year-old society already steeped in symbolic behavior originally produced the ochre engravings.

In 2002, Henshilwood's team described evidence of symbolic engravings on two other ochre pieces from Blombos Cave. Those 77,000-year-old finds were excavated in 1999 and 2000. Engraved chunks of pigment in the new analysis were unearthed during the same excavations. Specimens came from either of three sediment levels with estimated ages of 72,000 years, 77,000 years and 100,000 years.

A microscopic analysis indicates that ochre designs were made by holding a piece of pigment with one hand while impressing lines into the pigment with the tip of a stone tool. On several pieces, patterns covered areas that had first been ground down.

Geometric patterns on the ochre pieces include cross-hatched designs, branching lines, parallel lines and right angles.

Pigment powder had also been removed from many of the recovered ochre chunks. Incised patterns may have served as models for pigment designs applied to animal skins or other material, the scientists speculate.

Excavations of Blombos Cave sediment from before 100,000 years ago have begun. "The discovery of more, and perhaps even more striking, engravings is very possible," Henshilwood says.

| 29160|2009-06-16 22:14:27|nathaniel x vance|Please Sign this Scott Sisters PETITION!|

Dear Group Members,

I have just completed a FREE THE SCOTT SISTERS PETITION! I do hope that everyone will sign it as soon as you can as we need to show support for those who have been wrongfully convicted. If nothing more, it is the least that we can do to help end this Scott Sisters nightmare!

Please click the link below to sign.

< <http://scottsisters.petitionhost.com/>>

Peace.

<<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Free-the-Scott-Sisters-Committee/>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29161|2009-06-16 22:14:32|neocush@yahoo.com|www.newschannel5.com : Democrats Express Outrage Over Racist Obama E|

Maurice (neocush@yahoo.com) has sent you an item from <http://www.newschannel5.com>.

Here we go again!

Democrats Express Outrage Over Racist Obama E-Mail

Tennessee Democratic legislators are expressing outrage over a racist e-mail about President Barack Obama that was sent by a state employee who works for a Republican lawmaker.
<http://www.newschannel5.com/global/story.asp?s=10537651>

Find more items like this at <http://www.newschannel5.com>

Copyright 2009 WTVF

| 29162|2009-06-16 22:14:36|Lamar Perryman|Re: South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,|

Greetings,

Bro Asar Imhotep. Earlier on this site I gave a opinion that in studying the various paleontological and anthropological sources from a wide variety of researchers that South Africa ( The Real Nubia ) and Dravidian India were the first two and oldest two organized societies on the planet.

I stated that both of these nations were at least 100, 000 ( possibly 150, 000; taking into account Kenya ) and that they pre-dated all other african-asiatic societies by tens of millenia.

Mr. RobinWalker and Bro. Fari Supiya took me to good ol scholarly task for giving the fist six nations/organized societies as South Africa ( Nubia), India (Dravidian IndusValley ), Egypt ( Kemet ), Libya, Sumeria and Canaan and in that order. I believe that Nubia and India alone predates the other four by at least 100,000 years apeice.

AlsoI aware that all paleontology,archaeology and anthropology studies are not published by the usual suspects and a sincere researcher( especially a concerned layperson ) might have to find them by other means.

Add to this the fact that Indian/Dravidian anthropologists and their several schools of thought date the Indo-Asian world way back farther than American-European Scholars and this adds to the dilemma. I am still hoping that at some point the fact emerges in the common fields of science that the Nubian/Wolly-Haired and The Dravidian/Straight-Haired Africoids are the First Original Humans and all others are simply descended from those two.

MLP.,

MAFN, The Nationalists.

--- On Tue, 6/16/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged

~100,000 years ago

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Tuesday, June 16, 2009, 6:55 PM

This reinforces the article published some years ago which I introduced to Ta-Seti when we were discussing the meaning of the name KM.t. Here is the link to that article again:

<http://home.entouch.net/dmd/mining.htm>

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Tue, 6/16/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,000 years ago

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 16, 2009, 10:51 AM

there is lots of info: too show that homo-sapien- sapien has be living communally and tracking across the globe for over 300,000 yrs the dna testifies to it as well as skeletal remains . human developement from an African Ancestry

Gerhard Kraus

the wisdom of the bones

Alan Walker, P. Shipman

journey of man

Spencer Wells

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 6/14/09, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] South African cave suggests modern human behavior emerged ~100,000 years ago

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Sunday, June 14, 2009, 9:35 AM

Engraved pigments point to ancient symbolic tradition

Incisions on ochre from a South African cave suggest modern human behavior emerged around 100,000 years ago

By Bruce Bower

Web edition : Friday, June 12th, 2009

Text Size

Enlarge

Line designsGeometric patterns incised on pieces of ancient pigment, such as these 100,000-year-old finds, may reveal the surprisingly ancient origins of modern human behavior. Courtesy of C. Henshilwood and F. d'Errico

Scientists excavating a Stone Age cave on South Africa's southern coast have followed a trail of engraved pigments to what they suspect are the ancient roots of modern human behavior.

Analyses of 13 chunks of decorated red ochre (an iron oxide pigment) from Blombos Cave indicate that a cultural tradition of creating meaningful geometric designs stretched from around 100,000 to 75,000 years ago in southern Africa, say anthropologist Christopher Henshilwood of the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg and his colleagues. Their report appears online and in an upcoming Journal of Human Evolution.

Much debate surrounds the issue of when and where language, religion, symbolic decorations and other facets of modern human behavior originated. Researchers such as Henshilwood hypothesize that modern human behavior developed gradually in Africa, beginning more than 100,000 years ago. Others posit that a brain-boosting genetic mutation around 50,000 years ago fostered modern behavior in Africa. Some researchers suspect that behavioral advances first appeared in Europe, Asia and Africa at that later time.

Possible examples of symbolic behavior from around 100,000 years ago such as proposed human burials in the Middle East and pigment use in Africa have been controversial.

"What makes the Blombos engravings different is that some of them appear to represent a deliberate will to produce a complex abstract design," Henshilwood says. "We have not before seen well-dated and unambiguous traces of this kind of behavior at 100,000 years ago."

Further studies need to confirm that the ancient incisions were not the result of, say, slicing into ochre with stone tools in order to remove powder quickly, cautions anthropologist Curtis Marean of Arizona State University in Tempe, who studies ancient human behavior at another South African cave (SN: 10/20/07, p. 243).

Even if the Blombos pigments contain intentional designs, fully modern human behavior such as the use of figurative art (SN: 6/20/09, p. 11) didn't emerge until tens of thousands of years later, contends archaeologist Nicholas Conard of the University of Tuebingen, Germany.

Henshilwood and study coauthor Francesco d'Errico of the University of Bordeaux I in Talence, France, disagree. In their view, the Blombos pigments bear intentionally fashioned designs that held some sort of meaning and were passed down the generations for 25,000 years. Thus, the two researchers say, it's likely that a 100,000-year-old society already steeped in symbolic behavior originally produced the ochre engravings.

In 2002, Henshilwood's team described evidence of symbolic engravings on two other ochre pieces from Blombos Cave. Those 77,000-year-old finds were excavated in 1999 and 2000. Engraved chunks of pigment in the new analysis were unearthed during the same excavations. Specimens came from either of three sediment levels with estimated ages of 72,000 years, 77,000 years and 100,000 years.

A microscopic analysis indicates that ochre designs were made by holding a piece of pigment with one hand while impressing lines into the pigment with the tip of a stone tool. On several pieces, patterns covered areas that had first been ground down.

Geometric patterns on the ochre pieces include cross-hatched designs, branching lines, parallel lines and right angles.

Pigment powder had also been removed from many of the recovered ochre chunks. Incised patterns may have served as models for pigment designs applied to animal skins or other material, the scientists speculate.

Excavations of Blombos Cave sediment from before 100,000 years ago have begun. "The discovery of more, and perhaps even more striking, engravings is very possible," Henshilwood says.

| 29163|2009-06-16 23:29:11|asar_imhotep@yahoo.com|Could Heru be the original name for the Zulu?|

Peace Phamily

I am writing to explore a hypothesis that I have had over a year now and wanted to get feedback. My hypothesis is that the iKami (Egyptian) name for HRW survives today in South Africa in the name of Zulu which means the heavens or sky.

We know that Hrw is the name for he who is above or in other words the sky. I assume that the initial H in HRW is actually closer to an SH sound. When I listen to Zulu speakers talk, some words that have an H in it is pronounced with a SH sound. For instance, the Zulu word UKUHLANGANA which means meeting is pronounced UKU-SHLAN-GAN. The final A is not pronounced or is not really audible to the foreign speaker. It reminds me of French in a way. We see this happen in another Zulu word KAHLE which means well (as in to be well or I hear well). KAHLE is pronounced GA-SHE (with a hard G as in GEKO) when spoken. What seems to be at play is that when the H is preceded by a vowel, the H becomes SH.

This is not always the case. For instance, the Zulu word UKUKHULUMA is pronounced UKU-KHU-LUM: again the final A is faint. It seems that the H retains its sound when preceded by a hard consonant. We see this at play in the Zulu word UKHONA meaning is there. The H retains its sound (as in the word chord). When the H is preceded by another H, the H sounds like an English H. So the Zulu transposition of the English word HOTEL is EHHOTELA (EH-HO-TELA). When you say ZASEHOTEL (at the hotel) however, the H sound is not pronounced like SH but as a regular H.

I am leaning towards the H in the ancient kiKami language having an SH sound initially because when we examine the Twi word for sky, OSORO or SORO, we see that the initial consonant is indeed an S. OSORO is the spirit in the sky among the Akan. Here we see that the initial S is preceded by a vowel and thus we have OSORO instead of OHURU or OHORO. I think the word HRW had a vowel in front of it and the Zulu convention of pronouncing the H as SH when preceded by a vowel is at play.

If this is so, then HRW may have been pronounced something like OSHURU with final R being a rolling R. If this is so, then OSHURU over time as the Nguni Bantu moved south became ZULU ( SH > Z, R > L ). Zulu means sky or heavens. In former Rhodesia there is a group of people called MaZezuru which means, the people who belonged to the heavens. So we know we can associate the last R with L with no loss in meaning.

According to Jordan Ngubane there was a prince by the name of Malandela who ruled over a tiny nome called Zulu which means, The people who belong to the heavens or the universes. At this time in history when the Bantu moved from north and central Africa, there was a fight for space and resources so there was a lot of conflict in southern Africa between certain Bantu tribes. Nomarch Mandela nursed the idea that he would have a son who would lead his people to the heavens who would restore order in Natal.

This was to play out with his great grandson Shaka Zulu who united the southern Bantu tribes and made them Zulus. Although we know this as history, it has the same themes expressed in ancient Egyptian mythology. For the force of Isft took over the land of Egypt because of Sets usurp of the throne from Wasiri. Isft is the iKami word for evil, entropy or conflict. In the Zulu language this force of conflict is called IZIBUTHE. Here the S in kiKami becomes Z in isiZulu. The kiKami F becomes the isiZulu B. The TH in Zulu is pronounced as a regular T (as the H is aspirated and weak). So ISFT = IZIBUTHE.

If our examination is right, then I think we know why the hawk was chosen to represent HRW, because it is the master or owner of the sky (the lion of the sky if you will). So we have the following:

Hrw = iKami

Osoro = Akan

Zeru = Mazezeru

Zulu = Nguni-Zulu

All meaning the heavens, sky or universes.

If the works of Ngunane, Mutwa, MMImanyara and Welmers are correct when they say that the BATU were in the Sudan and the Nile Valley during pharaonic times, and the oral traditions of the Zulu coming from the Nile Valley are correct, would it be safe to assume that HRW is a Zulu deity? A deity that is faint now because of the revolution of Shaka Zulu who was killing priests to get rid of the peoples superstitions? Remember that the Heru kings came from the South, the deep interior of Africa. Could they have been Zulu kings?

Also, we may flirt with the idea that SHRU is where we get the Latin name for Sun (Sol). What could have happened is that the Romans dropped the aspired H and of course with our rolling R it became L. We know that Hrw is associated with the sun as well and this is why we can speculate.

Indo-European Cognates:

Dutch zool, English sole, German Sohle, Icelandic sól/a>, Italian suolo, Spanish suelo, Swedish sula

An interesting thing is that Sula in the Swedish is close to another rendering of Zulu which is Zula. I need to investigate that further.

We know that Asar and HRW are really the same person personified in different forms. Asar or Asaru (Osoro in Akan) could also possibly be render as Zulu as well.

What do you think?

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29164|2009-06-17 08:22:41|Bradenqp@aol.com|Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet|
This article is a decade old, but I could use some help from members of this forum regarding the origins of alphabetic writing.....to debunk the contentions, below, of the author.....insisting on an eastern origin for alphabetic scripts. Any suggestions for sources for further investigation would be appreciated, particularly an authoritative text on the origins of alphabetic writing.

Thanks,
Paul Braden

Discovery of Egyptian Inscriptions Indicates an Earlier Date for Origin of the Alphabet

---

Forum Join a Discussion on Science in the News

---

By JOHN NOBLE WILFORD

n the track of an ancient road in the desert west of the Nile, where soldiers, couriers and traders once traveled from Thebes to Abydos, Egyptologists have found limestone inscriptions that they say are the earliest known examples of alphabetic writing.

Their discovery is expected to help fix the time and place for the origin of the alphabet, one of the foremost innovations of civilization.

Carved in the cliffs of soft stone, the writing, in a Semitic script with Egyptian influences, has been dated to somewhere between 1900 and 1800 B.C., two or three centuries earlier than previously recognized uses of a nascent alphabet. The first experiments with alphabet thus appeared to be the work of Semitic people living deep in Egypt, not in their homelands in the Syria-Palestine region, as had been thought.

Although the two inscriptions have yet to be translated, other evidence at the discovery site supports the idea of the alphabet as an invention by workaday people that simplified and democratized writing, freeing it from the elite hands of official scribes. As such, alphabetic writing was revolutionary in a sense comparable to the invention of the printing press much later.

Alphabetic writing emerged as a kind of shorthand by which fewer than 30 symbols, each one representing a single sound, could be combined to form words for a wide variety of ideas and things. This eventually replaced writing systems like Egyptian hieroglyphics in which hundreds of pictographs, or idea pictures, had to be mastered.

"These are the earliest alphabetic inscriptions, considerably earlier than anyone had thought likely," Dr. John Coleman Darnell, an Egyptologist at Yale University, said last week in an interview about the discovery.

"They seem to provide us with evidence to tell us when the alphabet itself was invented, and just how."

Dr. Darnell and his wife, Deborah, a Ph.D. student in Egyptology, made the find while conducting a survey of ancient travel routes in the desert of southern Egypt, across from the royal city of Thebes and beyond the pharaohs' tombs in the Valley of the Kings. In the 1993-94 season, they came upon walls of limestone marked with graffiti at the forlorn Wadi el-Hol, roughly translated as Gulch of Terror.

Last summer, the Darnells returned to the wadi with several specialists in early writing. A report on their findings will be given in Boston on Nov. 22 at a meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature.

Working in the baking June heat "about as far out in the middle of nowhere as I ever want to be," Dr.

Bruce Zuckerman, director of the West Semitic Research Project at the University of Southern California, assisted the investigation by taking detailed pictures of the inscriptions for analysis using computerized photointerpretation techniques. "This is fresh meat for the alphabet people," he said.

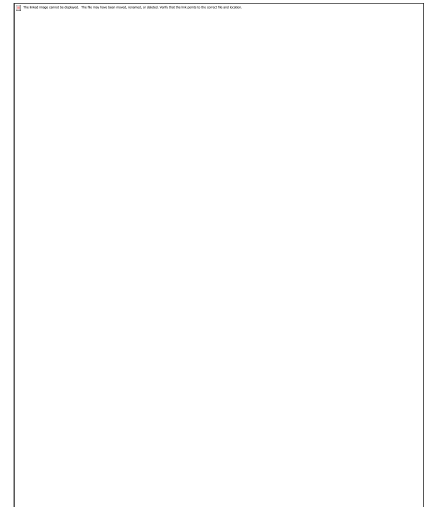

"Because of the early date of the two inscriptions and the place they were found," said Dr. P. Kyle McCarter Jr., a professor of Near Eastern studies at Johns Hopkins University. "it forces us to reconsider a lot of questions having to do with the early history of the alphabet. Things I wrote only two years ago I now consider out of date."

Dr. Frank M. Cross, an emeritus professor of Near Eastern languages and culture at Harvard University, who was not a member of the research team but who has examined the evidence, judged the inscriptions "clearly the oldest of alphabetic writing and very important." He said that enough of the symbols in the inscriptions were identical or similar to later Semitic alphabetic writing to conclude that "this belongs to a single evolution of the alphabet."

The previously oldest evidence for an alphabet, dated about 1600 B.C., was found near or in Semitic-speaking territory, in the Sinai Peninsula and farther north in the Syria-Palestine region occupied by the ancient Canaanites. These examples, known as Proto-Sinaitic and Proto-Canaanite alphabetic inscriptions, were the basis for scholars' assuming that Semites developed the alphabet by borrowing and simplifying Egyptian hieroglyphs, but doing this in their own lands and not in Egypt itself.

From other, nonalphabetic writing at the site, the Egyptologists determined that the inscriptions were made during Egypt's Middle Kingdom in the first two centuries of the second millennium B.C. And another discovery in June by the Darnells seemed to establish the presence of Semitic people at the wadi at the time of the inscriptions.

Surveying a few hundred yards from the site, the Darnells found an inscription in nonalphabetic Egyptian that started with the name of a certain Bebi, who called himself "general of the Asiatics." This was a term used for nearly all foreigners, most of whom were Semites, and many of them served as mercenary

The New York Times

The limestone walls at Wadi el-Hol told a story of early writing.

soldiers for Egyptian rulers at a time of raging civil strife or came as miners and merchants. Another reference to this Bebi has been found in papyrus records.

"This gives us 99.9 percent certainty," Dr. Darnell said of the conclusion that early alphabetic writing was developed by Semitic-speaking people in an Egyptian context. He surmised that scribes in the troops of mercenaries probably developed the simplified writing along the lines of a semicursive form of Egyptian commonly used in the Middle Kingdom in graffiti. Working with Semitic speakers, the scribes simplified the pictographs of formal writing and modified the symbols into an early form of alphabet.

"It was the accidental genius of these Semitic people who were at first illiterate, living in a very literate society," Dr. McCarter said, interpreting how the alphabet may have arisen. "Only a scribe trained over a lifetime could handle the many different types of signs in the formal writing. So these people adopted a crude system of writing within the Egyptian system, something they could learn in hours, instead of a lifetime. It was a utilitarian invention for soldiers, traders, merchants."

The scholars who have examined the short Wadi el-Hol inscriptions are having trouble deciphering the messages, though they think they are close to understanding some letters and words. "A few of these signs just jump out at you, at anyone familiar with proto-Sinaitic material," said Dr. F. W. Dobbs-Allsopp, who teaches at the Princeton Theological Seminary in New Jersey and is a specialist in the languages and history of the Middle East. "They look just like one would expect."

The symbol for M in the inscriptions, for example, is a wavy line derived from the hieroglyphic sign for water and almost identical to the symbol for M in later Semitic writing. The meaning of some signs is less certain. The figure of a stick man, with arms raised, appears to have developed into an H in the alphabet, for reasons unknown.

Scholars said they could identify shapes of letters that eventually evolved from the image of an ox head into A and from a house, which looks more like a 9 here, into the Semitic B, or bayt. The origins and transitions of A and B are particularly interesting because the Egyptian-influenced Semitic alphabet as further developed by the Phoenicians, latter-day Canaanites, was passed to the Greeks, probably as early as the 12th century B.C. and certainly by the 9th century B.C. From the Greeks the simplified writing system entered Western culture by the name alphabet, a combination word for the Greek A and B, alpha and beta.

The only words in the inscriptions the researchers think they understand are, reading right to left, the title for a chief in the beginning and a reference to a god at the end.

If the early date for the inscriptions is correct, this puts the origins of alphabetic writing well before the probable time of the biblical story of Joseph being delivered by his brothers into Egyptian bondage, the scholars said. The Semites involved in the alphabet invention would have been part of an earlier population of alien workers in Egypt.

Although it is still possible that the Semites took the alphabet idea with them to Egypt, Dr. McCarter of Johns Hopkins said that the considerable evidence of Egyptian symbols and the absence of any contemporary writing of a similar nature anywhere in the Syria-Palestine lands made this unlikely.

The other earliest primitive writing, the cuneiform developed by Sumerians in the Tigris and Euphrates Valley of present-day Iraq, remained entirely pictographic until about 1400 B.C. The Sumerians are generally credited with the first invention of writing, around 3200 B.C., but some recent findings at Abydos in Egypt suggest a possibly earlier origin there. The issue is still controversial.

For Dr. Darnell, though, it is exciting enough to learn that in a forsaken place like Wadi el-Hol, along an old desert road, people showed they had taken a major step in written communication. He is returning to the site next month for further exploration.

---

Dell Days of Deals! June 15-24 - A New Deal Everyday!

| 29165|2009-06-17 10:54:43|Asar Imhotep|Re: Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet|

Attachments :

t\_obenga Africa

---

Peace

I have included in this email an article written by Dr. Theophile Obenga on the origin of writing. It may be instructive of your quest. I am also including the link to an old book titled: The Alphabet by Isaac Taylor. It may prove to be helpful. To download the book, look for the download link on the right.

http://books.google.com/books?id=T\_8sAAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA70&lpg=PA70&dq=origin+of+the+alphabet&source=bl&ots=INSBmmz5v7&sig=oi7f7hXG2\_7w2Vgg9jYynwo69bM&hl=en&ei=-Cs5SpjAHcOptgfQsKHnDA&sa=X&oi=book\_result&ct=result&resnum=3#PPA139,M1

I don't see how this is the case that "semetic" people came all the way to Egypt to create their script and then leave and not use it in Egypt. Secondly, although the kiKami script was mainly ideographic in its inception, since the beginning they had glyphs representing singular phonemes. To say that the Semites invented an Alphabet a thousand years after the ancient iKami people invented their alphabet, while still holding on to their ideogramness, is illogical.

This is especially true when even in the article they admit it derived from the Egyptian script. I hope I have given you a starting point for research. Also check some of Dr. Clyde Winter's works on early proto-Saharan writing. They may be helpful as well.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Bradenqp@aol.com wrote:

From: Bradenqp@aol.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 10:21 AM

This article is a decade old, but I could use some help from members of this forum regarding the origins of alphabetic writing.....to debunk the contentions, below, of the author.....insisting on an eastern origin for alphabetic scripts. Any suggestions for sources for further investigation would be appreciated, particularly an authoritative text on the origins of alphabetic writing.

Thanks,
Paul Braden

| 29166|2009-06-17 11:21:10|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: Afrikan Revival: Resurgence Of Our Culture (Please Fwd)|

--- On Wed, 6/17/09,

From: Felicia Carroll feferachelle227@yahoo.com

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, musicatp@comcast.net wrote:

From: musicatp@comcast.net

Subject: Fwd: Afrikan Revival: Resurgence Of Our Culture (Please Fwd)

To: "Carroll, Felicia" , "carroll, felicia" , "Crystal, Emma" , "Griffin, Yunna L." , "Deva, The Hair" , "Harris, Dwayne" , "Johnson, Jamie" , "Rouse, Elizabeth" , "Smith, LYDIA" , "Sullivan, John"

Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 1:44 AM

Check it out and forward if possible

Afrikan Revival Resurgence Of Our Culture

The Bantaba Dance Company Of Memphis

Sankofa Drum
Company

Afrikan Revival: Resurgence Of Our Culture

African Dance Troupes Unite With A Common Purpose To Celebrate Life, Culture, and Unity

Memphis Dance Troupes, The Bantaba Dance Company of Memphis and Sankofa Drum & Dance Company, Abule Fan Dance Ensemble will unite for the first time on stage for the production, Afrikan Revival: The Resurgence of Our Culture. This concert will feature breath taking dances, toe-tapping drumming , and soul stirring songs from all regions of African It will also includes dances from regions of the Caribbean. This will be movement in its raw element and a great family event for all ages, races, and religions. Afrikan Revival: Resurgence of Our Culture will take you on a journey through the day and life of the African Diasporas, telling tales of love, harmony, war, and unity. This is an excellent event for families and children of all ages.

How Could I Be A Part Of This Event?

When: Friday June 26 & Saturday June 27, 2009
 Time: 7:30pm
 Where: The New Ballet School located at 2157 York Avenue in Memphis, TN 38104.
 Tickets: $15 in advance --- $20 at the door.
www.NewBallet.org
 Box Office: 901.726.9225

The Bantaba Dance Company of Memphis, 3453 gadden ave, memphis, tn 38128. You can modify/update your subscription via the link below.

Email Marketing by iContact®
 TRY IT FOR FREE ►

 Manage your subscription

| 29167|2009-06-17 13:45:25|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: [Ta_Seti] Could Heru be the original name for the Zulu?|

i think you are on the right track especially in the particular instance of the rise of the Shemsu-Heru.

The ancient Egyptian term Har-sem-tawy/Heru-Smai-Tau is Heru of the two lands uniter of the lands a ancient telling of Heru born of Het-Heru by Heru born of Auset.

The Heru-Smai-tau in my view of the history are the Shemsu-Heru the ones who follow the hero as Heru who is the uniter ,.

egyptologist translate the city of The Scepter as thebes a greek word and occasionally according too judeo-christian view they translate it On and call the northern On/Annu , few ever for perhaps white supremacist reasoning translate it as Annu-Sheme/Iwnu-shem since the word shem of the term semite is so apparent;,,,,,,,,, and the Annu-Shema will show the Shemsu-Heru came from the south (some translate shma as south) the shma is the followers just like in the term Shemsu-Heru and the word Iwn-shem is a term that in history was first used by southerners of the Nile valley when the Scepter city (Thebes) was all black by anyones account of the lategerzean culture.

as one who knows little of modern african languages I dont know if one can make a ironclad impervious argument for the aspirated s as a prefix for Hrw/Hor/Har/Heru since especially the modern day zulu language should have changed and they were not a supremely vast and encompassing people before Shaka (only read little on their history).

If the punt/Ba-ntu people of Monomotapa/Shona(had a falcon as their temple pillars)and if its predessors's the swahili and Kush/ethiopia people use the s as a prefix to h words that would be very significant. also especially if its in their ancient liturgical chants coupling more peoples ,i think could be a hard argument especially Dogon sacred liturgy.

Uaset/Waset the great temple of Annu-Shme was the home "probaly" of the Shemsu-Heru or some southern city-state of the Hapi Valley and seems to me the Shemsu-Heru could be translated Shrw very easily and could be carried thru time by the people of Tangyniyka and southern Africa.

Also a egyptologist by the name of Hilary Wilson says the most ancient name of Het-Heru is Bat and her temple is west of dendera/Tanith tara .

also check out:

Metu-Neter vol1 pgs. 23- 37

by Ra-unnefer Amen

African origin of civilization pgs. 87-89

Cheikh Anta Diop

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, asar_imhotep@yahoo.com wrote:

From: asar_imhotep@yahoo.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Could Heru be the original name for the Zulu?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 1:29 AM

Peace Phamily

I am writing to explore a hypothesis that I have had over a year now and wanted to get feedback on. My hypothesis is that the iKami (Egyptian) name for HRW survives today in South Africa as the name of Zulu which means the heavens or sky.

We know that Hrw is the name for he who is above or in other words the sky. I assume that the initial H in HRW is actually closer to an SH sound. When I listen to Zulu speakers talk, so many words that have an H in it are pronounced with a SH sound. For instance, the Zulu word UKUHLANGANA which means meeting is pronounced UKU-SHLAN-GAN. The final /l/ is not really audible to the foreign speaker. It reminds me of French in a way where we see this happen in another Zulu word KAHLE which means well (as in to be well or I hear you). KAHLE is pronounced GA-SHE (with a hard G as in GEKO) when spoken. What seems to be at play is that when the H is preceded by a vowel, the H becomes SH.

This is not always the case. For instance, the Zulu word UKUKHULUMA is pronounced UKHU-LUM: again the final A is faint. It seems that the H retains its sound when preceded by a hard consonant. We see this at play in the Zulu word UKHONA meaning is there. The H retains its sound (as in the word chord). When the H is preceded by another H, the H sounds like an English H. So the Zulu transposition of the English word HOTEL is EHHOTELA (EH-HOTELA). When you say ZASEHOTEL (at the hotel) however, the H sound is not pronounced SH but as a regular H.

I am leaning towards the H in the ancient kiKami language having an SH sound initially but when we examine the Twi word for sky, OSORO or SORO, we see that the initial consonant is indeed an S. OSORO is the spirit in the sky among the Akan. Here we see that the initial S is preceded by a vowel and thus we have OSORO instead of OHURU or OHORO. I think the word HRW had a vowel in front of it and the Zulu convention of pronouncing the H as SH when preceded by a vowel is at play.

If this is so, then HRW may have been pronounced something like OSHURU with final R as a rolling R. If this is so, then OSHURU over time as the Nguni Bantu moved south became ZULU (SH > Z, R > L). Zulu means sky or heavens. In former Rhodesia there is a group of people called MaZezuru which means, the people who belonged to the heavens. So we know we can associate the last R with L with no loss in meaning.

According to Jordan Ngubane there was a prince by the name of Malandela who ruled over a tiny nome called Zulu which means, The people who belong to the heavens or the universe. At this time in history when the Bantu moved from north and central Africa, there was a fight for space and resources so there was a lot of conflict in southern Africa between certain Bantu groups. Nomarch Malandela nursed the idea that he would have a son who would lead his people to the heavens who would restore order in Natal.

This was to play out with his great grandson Shaka Zulu who united the southern Bantu tribes and made them Zulus. Although we know this as history, it has the same themes expressed in ancient Egyptian mythology. For the force of Isfet took over the land of Egypt because of Set.

usurp of the throne from Wasiri. Isft is the iKami word for evil, entropy or conflict. In the Zulu language this force of conflict is called IZIBUTHE. Here the S in kiKami becomes Z in isiZulu. The kiKami F becomes the isiZulu B. The TH in Zulu is pronounced as a regular T (as the H is aspirated and weak). So ISFT = IZIBUTHE.

If our examination is right, then I think we know why the hawk was chosen to represent HRW, because it is the master or owner of the sky (the lion of the sky if you will). So we have the following:

Hrw = iKami

Osoro = Akan

Zeru = Mazezeru

Zulu = Nguni-Zulu

All meaning the heavens, sky or universes.

If the works of Ngunane, Mutwa, MMImanyara and Welmers are correct when they say that the BATU were in the Sudan and the Nile Valley during pharaonic times, and the oral traditions of the Zulu coming from the Nile Valley are correct, would it be safe to assume that HRW is a Zulu deity? A deity that is faint now because of the revolution of Shaka Zulu who was killing priests to get rid of the peoples superstitions? Remember that the Heru kings came from the South, the deep interior of Africa. Could they have been Zulu kings?

Also, we may flirt with the idea that SHRU is where we get the Latin name for Sun (Sol). What could have happened is that the Romans dropped the aspired H and of course with our rolling R it became L. We know that Hrw is associated with the sun as well and this is why we can speculate.

Indo-European Cognates:

Dutch zool, English sole, German Sohle, Icelandic súl/a>, Italian suolo, Spanish suelo, Swedish sula

An interesting thing is that Sula in the Swedish is close to another rendering of Zulu which is Zula. I need to investigate that further.

We know that Asar and HRW are really the same person personified in different forms. Asar or Asaru (Osoro in Akan) could also possibly be render as Zulu as well.

What do you think?

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimho tep.com>

| 29168|2009-06-17 19:06:45|Paul Kekai Manansala|Africans in Roman-era York (Britain)|

American Journal of Physical Anthropology

Published Online: 15Jun2009

Migration and diversity in Roman Britain: A multidisciplinary approach to the identification of immigrants in Roman York, England

Stephany Leach, Mary Lewis *, Carolyn Chenery, Gundula Mldner, Hella Eckardt

Department of Archaeology, School of Human and Environmental Sciences, University of Reading, Whiteknights, Reading RG6 6AB, UK

email: Mary Lewis (m.e.lewis@reading.ac.uk)

*Correspondence to Mary Lewis, Department of Archaeology, School of Human and Environmental Sciences, University of Reading, Whiteknights, Reading RG6 6AB, United Kingdom

Funded by:

AHRC; Grant Number: AH/E58758 (

Diasporas, migrations and identities research programme)

Keywords

migration ? craniometrics ? ancestry ? FORDISC 3.0 ? chemical analysis

Abstract

Previous anthropological investigations at Trentholme Drive, in Roman York identified an unusual amount of cranial variation amongst the inhabitants, with some individuals suggested as having originated from the Middle East or North Africa. The current study investigates the validity of this assessment using modern anthropological methods to assess cranial variation in two groups: The Railway and Trentholme Drive. Strontium and oxygen isotope evidence derived from the dentition of 43 of these individuals was combined with the craniometric data to provide information on possible levels of migration and the range of homelands that may be represented. The results of the craniometric analysis indicated that the majority of the York population had European origins, but that 11% of the Trentholme Drive and 12% of The Railway study samples were likely of African de[s]cent. Oxygen analysis identified four incomers, three from areas warmer than the UK and one from a cooler or more continental climate. Although based on a relatively small sample of the overall population at York, this multidisciplinary approach made it possible to identify incomers, both men and women, from across the Empire. Evidence for possible second generation migrants was also suggested. The results confirm the presence of a heterogeneous population resident in York and highlight the diversity, rather than the uniformity, of the population in Roman Britain. Am J Phys Anthropol 2009. 2009 Wiley-Liss, Inc.

| 29169|2009-06-17 19:07:30|cristofori whitakara|Re: Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet [1 Attachment]|

I can't recall the book i saw this in, however , speaking on pictographs becoming letters this book showed howan Egyptian word for a bird Akhome rendered the picture of the bird as an 'A'

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet [1 Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 1:54 PM

Peace

I have included in this email an article written by Dr. Theophile Obenga on the origin of writing. It may be instructive of your quest. I am also including the link to an old book titled: The Alphabet by Isaac Taylor. It may prove to be helpful. To download the book, look for the download link on the right.

http://books.google.com/books?id=T\_8sAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA70&lpg=PA70&dq=origin+of+the+alphabet&source=bl&ots=INSBmmz5v7&sig=oi7f7hXG2\_7w2Vgg9jYynwo69bM&hl=en&ei=-Cs5SpjAHcOptgfQsKHnDA&sa=X&oi=book\_result&ct=result&resnum=3#PPA139,M1

I don't see how this is the case that "semetic" people came all the way to Egypt to create their script and then leave and not use it in Egypt. Secondly, although the kiKami script was mainly ideographic in its inception, since the beginning they had glyphs representing singular phonemes. To say that the Semites invented an Alphabet a thousand years after the ancient iKami people invented their alphabet, while still holding on to their ideogramness, is illogical.

This is especially true when even in the article they admit it derived from the Egyptian script. I hope I have given you a starting point for research. Also check some of Dr. Clyde Winter's works on early proto-Saharan writing. They may be helpful as well.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Bradenqp@aol.com wrote:

From: Bradenqp@aol. com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet
To: Ta_Seti@yahooogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 10:21 AM

This article is a decade old, but I could use some help from members of this forum regarding the origins of alphabetic writing.....to debunk the contentions, below, of the author.....insisting on an eastern origin for alphabetic scripts. Any suggestions for sources for further investigation would be appreciated, particularly an authoritative text on the origins of alphabetic writing.

Thanks,
Paul Braden

| 29170|2009-06-18 08:36:00|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|congo .....|
.....this was taken from a press release today ,,scroll down to see another press release where soldiers have not recieved their pay (tiny amt. of money) for months!, Yet foreigners not indegenious to the land reap/rape billions from the congolese people.

.....
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian gold-exploration company Banro Corp. says it will issue more than 43 million of its common shares for total gross proceeds of C$100 million to help fund its gold projects in the Democratic Republic of Congo.

The equity offering would increase the number of Banro shares outstanding by nearly 70 per cent.

The company set the price at $2.30 per common share following an overnight marketing effort. Banro's underwriters will have an option to buy an additional 6.5 million shares to cover overallotments, increasing the potential size of the offering to 49.5 million shares, representing nearly 80 per cent of the current outstanding stock.

The publicly traded shares fell 30 cents or $2.30 after a trading halt was lifted at the Toronto Stock Exchange.

.....
.....
.....

DR Congo soldiers fire shots at UN base over no pay

AFP via Yahoo! Canada News Wed, 17 Jun 2009 11:50 AM PDT

KINSHASA (AFP) - Some Congolese soldiers, apparently disgruntled over months with no pay, fired shots at a UN base in the restive east of the Democratic Republic of Congo, UN officials said Wednesday.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

| 29171|2009-06-18 11:21:51|cristofori whitakara|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 |
thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'genetic alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be some type of 'genetic alteration' occuring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyen Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been

decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the po: earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa at that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approxin BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migr you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that ap more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa

<http://alchemyguild ofdc.ning. com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been dec

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy people. A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pgymy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent. The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty. By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Aman worship, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29172|2009-06-18 12:51:07|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Fw: (*) 30 Faces in Early Indus Valley: 4600 BC - 1600 AD|

thank you, for your great research!, tua-u

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, Marc Washington wrote:

From: Marc Washington
Subject: (*) 30 Faces in Early Indus Valley: 4600 BC - 1600 AD
To: "'Tafari khumbaka"
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:05 PM

Brother Tafari. I never realized that (as you say and it is true) that the original hair of the African must have been straight; for the reasons you give. Furthermore, that curly hair must have been selective to the point that it became all but universal amongst our ancestors with the exceptions you make. Great thinking you have.

Thanks for sharing!

Marc

---

From: Tafari khumbaka [mailto: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com ]
Sent: Thursday, June 18, 2009 11:18 AM
To: Marc Washington
Subject: Re: (*) 30 Faces in Early Indus Valley : 4600 BC - 1600 AD

Perhaps we can also take into acct. that wooly hair is a feature that probaly arised from a distinct group in africa as did straight and curly especially the curly and curly to straight hair was probaly the norm, until a dominate group saw wooly as sexual more attractive or it as a survival mechanism creeped into the population and was also a matter of sexual selection bio-psychologically because of it unique diversity and survival capability( retaining water/moisture and allowing a breeze to cool the cranium.

The oldest people on earth may be the afar( from the word rastafari) and the somali's and they still in the physiogyny retain the curly to straight hair, and probaly trekked out of Africa at a very early date when the shore lines could be seen one island or continent from each other..... making the sailing adventure across the melanesian and indonesian islands a little less adventurous and the continent of sundaland (if it was a continent or island) also allowed more access to exploration.

in the mammalian kingdom wooly hair is unique to the homosapien-sapien of the african continent and its diaspora . the earliest people may have had hair that is similiar or exactly like the oldest family of people that have been in isolation from the rest of the world the aboriginees of australia (curly to straightand some wooly)the tasmanians{ tasmanians being mostly wooly to curly).

The whole of melanesia has this diversity and the oldest isolated peoples of the melanesian islands are the australians.

All of what said above predates the aryan and african mergers around 10.000 bce and culminating around 4,500 bce when the wooly to curly/straight hair Africans/draavidians/Dysyus finally were warred upon around 2,000 or 1500 bc ending in the destruction of their Black civilization.

The Straight haired indo-european dark to light skinnedand thestraight haired pale skinned europeanblue eyed european ale drinking heavily meat based diet whites and "indoeuropean"(arab/late persian type in physiogyny) put the blacks Tamils.Toba's in servitude and slavery and sat up the caste/karma system that to this day exploits black people in the hindu world.

p.s.

all said above should correlate with your info:

tua-u great info and pics!

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Marc Washington < best@mail.datanet.hu > wrote:

From: Marc Washington < best@mail.datanet.hu >
Subject: (*) 30 Faces in Early Indus Valley : 4600 BC - 1600 AD
To: Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 2:12 PM

Page title: (*) 30 Faces in Early Indus

Valley : 4600 BC - 1600 AD

The page below gives evidence that the earliest population was (by physical feature) African. Meaning to say, full facial featured with woolly hair. The Aryan or Indo-European, entering India near 1800 BC were straight haired. When one parent is woolly haired and the second straight-haired, the offspring is often straight-haired: see this link for proof:

<http://www.beforebc.de/Made.by.Humankind/Real.People/02-17Mx-02.html> .

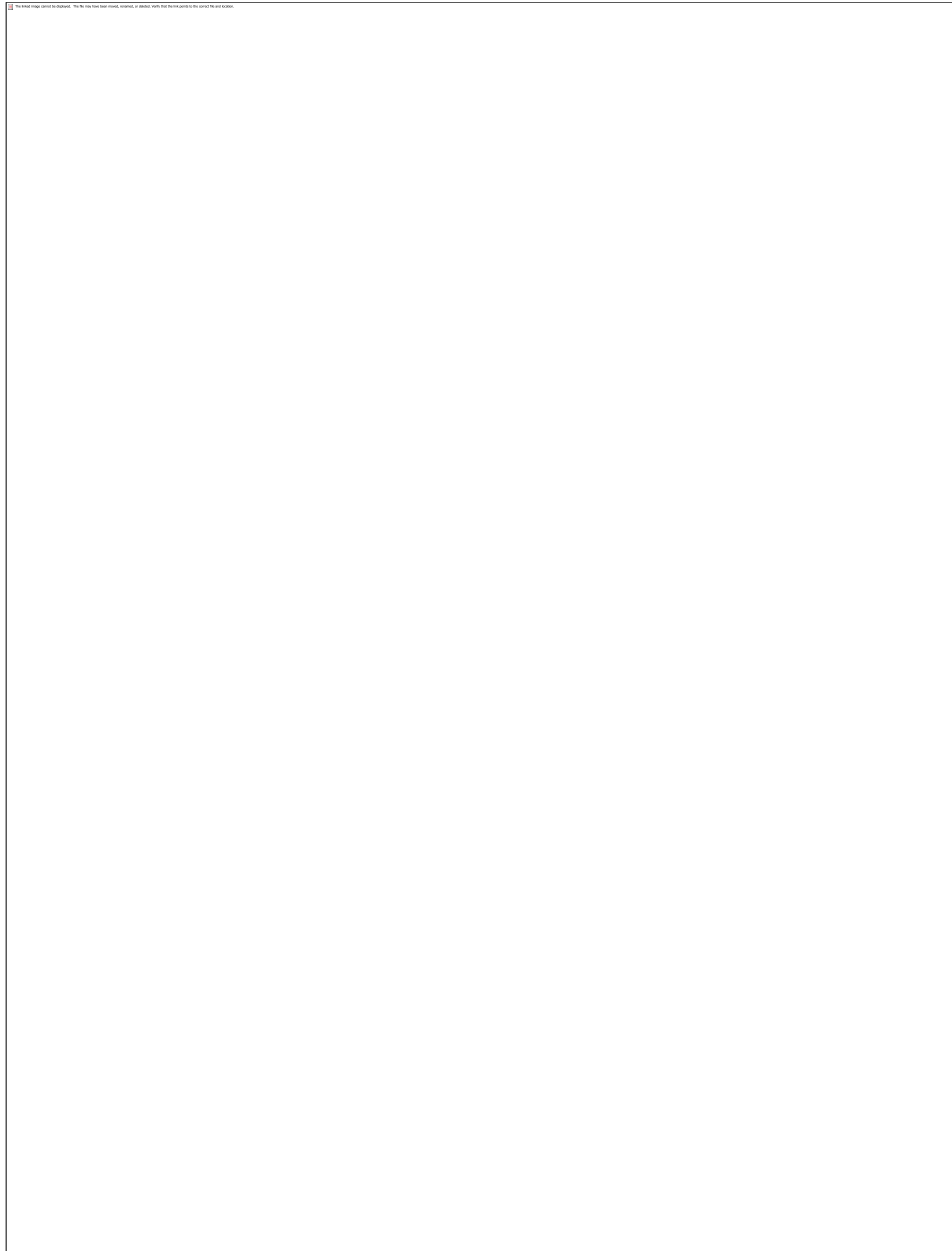

Meaning? Todays straight-haired Indians would have emerged from the intermarriage of African and Aryan physical types. Below is

India s negroid / African population from 4600 BC to 1600 AD. This type diminishes in number as the decades and centuries pass by.

If you cannot see web magazine article below, click the following link:

http://www.beforebc.de/400\_neareast/02-16-400-05.html

Marc Washington

AFRICANA WEB MAGAZINE: numerous topics and over 300 pages like the above, www.BeforeBC.de

MAGAZINE PURPOSE AND NAVIGATION: based on physical artefacts (hard evidence) to present a pictorial image of Africa's Golden Age; a time before Columbus, before Christ, and before

_____ Information from ESET NOD32 Antivirus, version of virus signature database 4163
(20090617) _____

The message was checked by ESET NOD32 Antivirus.

<http://www.eset.com>

_____ Information from ESET NOD32 Antivirus, version of virus signature database 4163
(20090617) _____

The message was checked by ESET NOD32 Antivirus.

<http://www.eset.com>

_____ Information from ESET NOD32 Antivirus, version of virus signature database 4168
(20090618) _____

The message was checked by ESET NOD32 Antivirus.

<http://www.eset.com>

| 29173|2009-06-18 13:45:46|Bradenqp@aol.com|Re: Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet|
Asar and Cristofori,

Thanks very much. That is very helpful indeed. I'm unable to track down Dr. Winters' articles relating to this topic. Any links would be appreciated.

Thanks.

Paul Braden

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Wed, Jun 17, 2009 4:15 pm

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet

I can't recall the book i saw this in, however , speaking on pictographs becoming letters this book showed howan Egyptian word for a bird Akhome rendered the picture of the bird as an 'A'

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 1:54 PM

Peace

I have included in this email an article written by Dr. Theophile Obenga on the origin of writing. It may be instructive of your quest. I am also including the link to an old book titled: The Alphabet by Isaac Taylor. It may prove to be helpful. To download the book, look for the download link on the right.

http://books.google.com/books?id=T\_8sAAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA70&lpg=PA70&dq=origin+of+the+alphabet&source=bl&ots=INSBmmz5v7&sig=oi7f7hXG2\_7w2Vgg9jYynwo69bM&hl=en&ei=-Cs5SpjAHcOptgfQsKHnDA&sa=X&oi=book\_result&ct=result&resnum=3#PPA139,M1

I don't see how this is the case that "semetic" people came all the way to Egypt to create their script and then leave and not use it in Egypt. Secondly, although the kiKami script was mainly ideographic in its inception, since the beginning they had glyphs representing singular phonemes. To say that the Semites invented an Alphabet a thousand years after the ancient iKami people invented their alphabet, while still holding on to their ideogramness, is illogical.

This is especially true when even in the article they admit it derived from the Egyptian script. I hope I have given you a starting point for research. Also check some of Dr. Clyde Winter's works on early proto-Saharan writing. They may be helpful as well.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Bradenqp@aol.com wrote:

From: Bradenqp@aol.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 10:21 AM

This article is a decade old, but I could use some help from members of this forum regarding the origins of alphabetic writing.....to debunk the contentions, below, of the author.....insisting on an eastern origin for alphabetic scripts. Any suggestions for sources for further investigation would be appreciated, particularly an authoritative text on the origins of alphabetic writing.

Thanks,
Paul Braden

---

Dell Days of Deals! June 15-24 - A New Deal Everyday!

| 29174|2009-06-18 19:38:16|clyde winters|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Hi Roger

I think I need to explain to you several things. First of all the Dravidians are not related to the pygmies. The pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people of India.

I agree that the pygmies may have formerly lived on Lemuria. But I don't believe they were there between 78kya (kya=thousand years ago)and 28kya. It appears to me that the first people to leave Africa were the Australians 60kya. After the Australians left Africa, we see the Bushman people moving into Europe from Africa via Spain. They are called Cro-Magnon or Grimaldi people.

The pygmies probably left Africa between 15kya and 10kya. They ruled the world until the great flood around 6kya. After 6kya they were replaced by the contemporary Blacks in Asia,Africa and Europe.

I agree with you that many Africans entered Asia via Lemuria but the Dravidian people are quite recent migrants to India. The archaeological evidence for the Megalithic culture of South India, and the Indus Vallley indicate that the Dravidians were part of the C-Group people of Nubia and Egypt. This is why their language is genetically related to the Niger-Congo Group.

The Dravidians call this landmass Kumari Nadu or Kumari Kandam.

Kumarinadu

The Naga were defeated by another group of Dravidian speaking people from Kumarinadu. Kamarinadu is supposed to have formerly existed as a large island in the Indian Ocean which connected India with East Africa. This landmass is mentioned in the Silappadikaram, which said that Kamarinadu was made up of seven nadus or regions. The Dravidian scholars Adiyarkunallar and Nachinaar wrote about the ancient principalities of Tamilaham, which existed on Kamarinadu.

Kumarinadu was ruled by the Pandians/Pandians at Madurai before it sunk beneath the sea. The greatest king of Kumarinadu was Sengoon. According to Dravidian scholars the Pandians worshipped the goddess Kumari Amman. This Amman, probably corresponds to the ancient god Amon of the Kushites. The Kalittokai 104, makes it clear that after the Pandians were forced to migrate off their island home into South India, "to compensate for the area lost to the great waves of the sea, King Pandia without tiresome moved to the other countries and won them. Removing the emblems of tiger (Cholas) and bow (Cheras) he, in their place inscribed his reputed emblem fish (Pandian's) and valiantly made his enemies bow to him".

The mention of the fish emblem indicates the African origin of the Pandians. The Proto-Saharans claimed that their great ancestor was Ma and that they belonged to the Ma (fish) clan. Fish tails were a common feature of the Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians and Dravidians.

The common god of the fish cult was the man-fish (of Eridu) in Mesopotamia and Syria , and the ithyphallic forms of Min, a proto-type of Amon (Amman) in Egypt, the goddess Minaaksi of Madura, Amma of the Dogon, the goddess of the fish eyes, the Malabar fish bearer of Maana ; and the sacred fishes of the Maapilla of the West coast of the Dekkan. At ancient Adulis, the Greeks claimed that the fish worshippers were called Ichthyophagi or Poseidon.

In fact the first kings of these people used the consonants MNS, in the term used for king: Menes, King Aha of Egypt, Mannan of the Dravidians, and the Mansa of the Mande speaking people. The descendants of Ma, include this name in their ethnonyms: Mande= "the children of Ma". And in Kannada, Telugu and Tulu, the word Mandi= "people".

The Pandians who probably spoke Malayalam, were worshippers of Posidon or Potidan of the Greeks. Just as the Kalittokai, mentioned that the totem of Pandia was the Fish, we find that Africans in areas adjoining the former lands associated with Kumarinadu also worshipped the Fish.

As a result in ancient times

Nubia and modern Ethiopia was called Poseidonia due to their worship of Poseidon the god of the sea and the mountains.

The major god worshipped by the Pandians and East Africans is Murugan, the god of the mountains. This mountain god of the Dravidians: Murugan, has the name among 25 east African ethnic groups.

The Greek god Posidon of the East Africans parallels the Dravidian god Siva. The god Siva is sometimes referred to as the "Great Fish" and represented by Fish signs. In addition, throughout Tamilnadu, tridents are associated with temples dedicated to the worship of Siva. The trident was also associated with Siva.

The final Dravidian speaking people to enter South India were the Tamil. The Tamil, who were early Kings of Shang China, were forced out of China by the Zhou dynast and other contemporary mongoloid groups, across Southeast Asia and Tibet into India. These people defeated the Pandians , Cholas and Cheras and became the dominant group in South India.

In Summary , Dravidian literature makes it clear that the Dravidian people came to South India from the North, South and East. These people took away the South from the Naga (Puntites and Kushites), who along with the Dravidians worshipped the gods Amon and Murugan. Moreover, it was the Ethiopians who probably introduced Sanskrit writing to the Indians. It is due to this history of Dravidian speaking people that explains the close, genetic unity between the language and cultures of the people.

I hope this clarifies my thoughts on Lemuria/Kumari Nadu from a Dravidian perspective.
Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'genetic alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be some type of 'genetic alteration' occuring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyan Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the possible earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants from Atlantis and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world.

there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from southeast Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis is claimed to have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately 17,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration pattern you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears to span more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy people.

A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pgymy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent.

The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty.

By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Aman worship, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind.I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala L.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29175|2009-06-18 19:47:20|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|
kamari-nadu is called by some modern archaeologist sundaland.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 9:37 PM

Hi Roger

I think I need to explain to you several things. First of all the Dravidians are not related to pygmies. The pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people of India.

I agree that the pygmies may have formerly lived on Lemuria. But I don't believe they were between 78kya (kya=thousand years ago)and 28kya. It appears to me that the first people to leave Africa were the Australians 60kya. After the Australians left Africa, we see the Bush people moving into Europe from Africa via Spain. They are called Cro-Magnon or Grimal people.

The pygmies probably left Africa between 15kya and 10kya. They ruled the world until the great flood around 6kya. After 6kya they were replaced by the contemporary Blacks in Asia, Africa and Europe.

I agree with you that many Africans entered Asia via Lemuria but the Dravidian people are quite recent migrants to India. The archaeological evidence for the Megalithic culture of South India, and the Indus Valley indicate that the Dravidians were part of the C-Group people of Nubia and Egypt. This is why their language is genetically related to the Niger-Congo Group. The Dravidians call this landmass Kumari Nadu or Kumari Kandalam.

Kumarinadu

The Naga were defeated by another group of Dravidian speaking people from Kumarinadu. Kamarinadu is supposed to have formerly existed as a large island in the Indian ocean which connected India with East Africa. This landmass is mentioned in the Silappadikaram, which said that Kamarinadu was made up of seven nadus or regions. The Dravidian scholars Adiyarkunallar and Nachinaar wrote about the ancient principalities of Tamilaham, which existed on Kamarinadu.

Kumarinadu was ruled by the Pandians/Pandians at Madurai before it sunk beneath the sea. The greatest king of Kumarinadu was Sengoon. According to Dravidian scholars the Pandians worshipped the goddess Kumari Amman. This Amman, probably corresponds to the ancient god Amon of the Kushites. The Kalittokai 104, makes it clear that after the Pandians were forced to migrate off their Island home into South India, "to compensate for the area lost to the great waves of the sea, King Pandia without tiresome moved to the other countries and won them. Removing the emblems of tiger (Cholas) and bow (Cheras) he, in their place inscribed his reputed emblem fish (Pandia's) and valiantly made his enemies bow to him".

The mention of the fish emblem indicates the African origin of the Pandians. The Proto-Saharans claimed that their great ancestor was Ma and that they belonged to the Ma (fish) clan. Fish tails were a common feature of the Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians and Dravidians.

The common god of the fish cult was the man-fish (of Eridu) in Mesopotamia and Syria , and the ithyphallic forms of Min, a proto-type of Amon (Amman) in Egypt, the goddess Minaaksi of Madura, Amma of the Dogon, the goddess of the fish eyes, the Malabar fish bearer of Maana ; and the sacred fishes of the Maapilla of the West coast of the Dekkan. At ancient Adulis, the Greeks claimed that the fish worshippers were called Ichthyophagi or Poseidon.

In fact the first kings of these people used the consonants MNS, in the term used for king: Menes, King Aha of Egypt, Mannan of the Dravidians, and the Mansa of the Mande speaking people. The descendants of Ma, include this name in their ethnonyms: Mande= "the children of Ma". And in Kannada, Telugu and Tulu, the word Mandi= "people".

The Pandians who probably spoke Malayalam, were worshippers of Posidon or Potidan of the Greeks. Just as the Kalittokai, mentioned that the totem of Pandia was the Fish, we find that Africans in areas adjoining the former lands associated with Kumarinadu also worshipped the Fish.

As a result in ancient times

Nubia and modern Ethiopia was called Poseidonia due to their worship of Poseidon the god of the sea and the mountains.

The major god worshipped by the Pandians and East Africans is Murugan, the god of the mountains. This mountain god of the Dravidians: Murugan, has the name among 25 east African ethnic groups.

The Greek god Posidon of the East Africans parallels the Dravidian god Siva. The god Siva is sometimes referred to as the "Great Fish" and represented by Fish signs. In addition, throughout Tamilnadu, tridents are associated with temples dedicated to the worship of Siva. The trident was also associated with Siva.

The final Dravidian speaking people to enter South India were the Tamil. The Tamil, who were early Kings of Shang China, were forced out of China by the Zhou dynast and other contemporary mongoloid groups, across Southeast Asia and Tibet into India. These people defeated the Pandians , Cholas and Cheras and became the dominant group in South India.

In Summary , Dravidian literature makes it clear that the Dravidian people came to

South India from the North, South and East. These people took away the South from the Naga (Puntites and Kushites), who along with the Dravidians worshipped the gods Amon and Murugan. Moreover, it was the Ethiopians who probably introduced Sanskrit writing to the Indians. It is due to this history of Dravidian speaking people that explains the close, genetic unity between the language and cultures of the people.

I hope this clarifies my thoughts on Lemuria/Kumari Nadu from a Dravidian perspective.

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'ge alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be some type of 'genetic alteration' occuring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyan Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the po earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Sciences: Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world where there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy people

A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pre-civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pygmies living on every continent. The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From there they migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty. By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Amun, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into East Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is in line with the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, direct comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs could be used to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharans' you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastward into the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from the west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been
decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction
Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29176|2009-06-19 06:31:56|clyde winters|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Hi

Sundaland is further north around southeast Asia.

Kumari Nadu connected India and Africa

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 9:47 PM

kamari-nadu is called by some modern archaeologist sundaland.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 9:37 PM

Hi Roger

I think I need to explain to you several things. First of all the Dravidians are not related to the pygmies. The pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people of India.

I agree that the pygmies may have formerly lived on Lemuria. But I don't believe they were there between 78kya (kya=thousand years ago)and 28kya. It appears to me that the first people to leave Africa were the Australians 60kya. After the Australians left Africa, we see the Bushman people moving into Europe from Africa via Spain. They are called Cro-Magnon or Grimaldi people.

The pygmies probably left Africa between 15kya and 10kya. They ruled the world until the great flood around 6kya. After 6kya they were replaced by the contemporary Blacks in Asia, Africa and Europe.

I agree with you that many Africans entered Asia via Lemuria but the Dravidian people are quite recent migrants to India. The archaeological evidence for the Megalithic culture of South India, and the Indus Valley indicate that the Dravidians were part of the C-Group people of Nubia and Egypt. This is why their language is genetically related to the Niger-Congo Group.

The Dravidians call this landmass Kumari Nadu or Kumari Kandam.

Kumarinadu

The Naga were defeated by another group of Dravidian speaking people from Kumarinadu. Kamarinadu is supposed to have formerly existed as a large island in the Indian ocean which connected India with East Africa. This landmass is mentioned in the Silappadikaram, which said that Kamarinadu was made up of seven nadus or regions. The Dravidian scholars Adiyarkunallar and Nachinaar wrote about the ancient principalities of Tamilaham, which existed on Kamarinadu.

Kumarinadu was ruled by the Pandians/Pandians at Madurai before it sunk beneath the sea. The greatest king of Kumarinadu was Sengoon. According to Dravidian scholars the Pandians worshipped the goddess Kumari Amman. This Amman, probably corresponds to the ancient god Amon of the Kushites. The Kalittokai 104, makes it clear that after the Pandians were forced to migrate off their Island home into South India, "to compensate for the area lost to the great waves of the sea, King Pandia without tiresome moved to the other countries and won them. Removing the emblems of tiger (Cholas) and bow (Cheras) he, in their place inscribed his reputed emblem fish (Pandia's) and valiantly made his enemies bow to him".

The mention of the fish emblem indicates the African origin of the Pandians. The Proto-Saharans claimed that their great ancestor was Ma and that they belonged to the Ma (fish) clan. Fish tails were a common feature of the Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians and Dravidians.

The common god of the fish cult was the man-fish (of Eridu) in Mesopotamia and Syria , and the ithyphallic forms of Min, a proto-type of Amon (Amman) in Egypt, the goddess Minaaksi of Madura, Amma of the Dogon, the goddess of the fish eyes, the Malabar fish bearer of Maana ; and the sacred fishes of the Maapilla of the West coast of the Dekkan. At ancient Adulis, the Greeks claimed that the fish worshippers were called Ichthyophagi or Poseidon.

In fact the first kings of these people used the consonants MNS, in the term used for king: Menes, King Aha of Egypt, Mannan of the Dravidians, and the Mansa of the Mande speaking people. The descendants of Ma, include this name in their ethnonyms: Mande= "the children of Ma". And in Kannada, Telugu and Tulu, the word Mandi= "people".

The Pandians who probably spoke Malayalam, were worshippers of Posidon or Potidan of the Greeks. Just as the Kalittokai, mentioned that the totem of Pandia was the Fish, we find that Africans in areas adjoining the former lands associated with Kumarinadu also worshipped the Fish.

As a result in ancient times

Nubia and modern Ethiopia was called Poseidonia due to their worship of Poseidon the god of the sea and the mountains.

The major god worshipped by the Pandians and East Africans is Murugan, the god of the mountains. This mountain god of the Dravidians: Murugan, has the name among 25 east African ethnic groups.

The Greek god Posidon of the East Africans parallels the Dravidian god Siva. The god Siva is sometimes referred to as the "Great Fish" and represented by Fish signs. In addition, throughout Tamilnadu, tridents are associated with temples dedicated to the worship of Siva. The trident was also associated with Siva.

The final Dravidian speaking people to enter South India were the Tamil. The Tamil, who were early Kings of Shang China, were forced out of China by the Zhou dynast and other contemporary mongoloid groups, across Southeast Asia and Tibet into India. These people defeated the Pandians , Cholas and Cheras and became the dominant group in South India.

In Summary , Dravidian literature makes it clear that the Dravidian people came to

South India from the North, South and East. These people took away the South from the Naga (Puntites and Kushites), who along with the Dravidians worshipped the gods Amon and Murugan. Moreover, it was the Ethiopians who probably introduced Sanskrit writing to the Indians. It is due to this history of Dravidian speaking people that explains the close, genetic unity between the language and cultures of the people.

I hope this clarifies my thoughts on Lemuria/Kumari Nadu from a Dravidian perspective.

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'ge alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be some type of 'genetic alteration' occurring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyen Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from west (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the possibility of an earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and have concluded that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants from Lemuria and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: The Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world, as you would like to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history is needed. Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world was Lemuria. There appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from southern Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis is claimed to have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately 12,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration pattern you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears to be more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pygmy people.

A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pgymy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent. The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty. By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Amen, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Begin you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been
decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29177|2009-06-19 07:41:52|clyde winters|Re: Origin of African and Classical Mongoloid People|

I accept the fact there were ancient Blacks in Asia. These Blacks were the Australian type people who mainly live in Australia and the Hill regions of Oceania.

The coastal Melanesians on the otherhand, are descendants of recent Africans who settled the area after being forced from Asia. The Polynesians/Filipinos and etc., who are known as the original Mongoloid people and called Classical Mongoloid in the literature probably originated in Anatolia or Mesopotamia.

The Australians are the original settlers of Asia (around 60kybp), and may represent members of the first out of Africa migrants. I never refer to these people as Africans, although I do recognize them as Blacks.

The Anu or Black pygmies probably represent the second African migration of homo sapiens out of Africa. I would class these people with the CroMagnon/Grimaldi group who entered Iberia after 34kybp. Remnants of this great people were found on every continent when Europeans first explored the world.

The Bushman(/Proto-Bantu) type may represent the Natufians who began to migrate out of Africa after 20,000 and settled in the Levant which was first settled by Cro Magnon people who early replaced the Neanderthal folk. The Natufians would represent the fourth African migration into Eurasia.

By the time the Bushmen entered Eurasia the Classical mongoloid people who are the ancestors of the Indonesians/Vietnamese/Filipinos and etc. were probably already settled in Anatolia. The classical mongoloids probably constructed Catal Huyuk. The close relationship between Sumerian and the AustroAsiatic languages suggest that the classical Mongoloid people may have also inhabited Mesopotamia by the time the Sumerians entered the area.

It appears to have been a natural catastrophe which caused the classical mongoloids to migrate eastward. We know this because many of the former sites of the Classical mongoloids in Anatolia were occupied by the Kushites (Kaska) people after 2500 BC.

By 1200 BC the clasical mongoloids had become well established in India. Around this time they conquered the Dravidian people who founded the first Shang empire, and set up a new Shang Empire at Anyang.

By 1000 BC the Hau/Han tribes came down from the mountains and pushed the classical mongoloids southward into Yunnan and eventually Southeast Asia. The Han began to make the Yueh and li min people their slaves. The Han often used the Qiang (another Black tribe) as sacrifice victims.

The Han killed off as many Black tribes as they could. The only thing that saved the pygmies in East Asia, was the fact that they moved into the mountains in areas they could easily defend from Han attacks.

This movement of Han and classical mongoloid people southward forced the Kushite/African (Qiang, li min and other African) tribes onto the Pacific Islands. It is these Africans who represent the coastal Melanesians.

The Sumerians, Elamites, Xia (of China), Harappans of the Indus Valley and coastal Melanoids are the Proto-Saharan people known in History as the Kushites. These people originated in the Highland regions of Middle Africa, and began to occupy the former trade centers of the Anu in Eurasia and the Americas. It is for this reason that we find West African placenames in the Pacific and India.

Given the origin of the classical mongoloids in Anatolia, and the Han Chinese somewhere in North China or Central Asia, the Southeast Asians are not descendants of the first African migration to Eurasia. This is why the Chinese and Classical mongoloid people share few if any genes with the Australians. The Classical mongoloids share genes mainly with the coastal Melanesians who are of African origin, but few genes with the Chinese of East Asia.

. Clyde

| 29178|2009-06-19 07:47:48|clyde winters|Re: Nubian-Kametic-Sumerian-Dravidian 1|
To understand the Nubian Kametic Sumerian and Dravidian (NKSD) civilization you have to understand that Afrocentric researchers are falsificationist. We either confirm or disconfirm a theory.

Linguistic evidence suggest that there is a Sumero- Tamil connection. Yet Eurocentrists reject this evidence without comment and counter eduttukkaadu (evidences). This makes their discussion of ancient history in my opinion untrue.

I am a product of Western Civilization. As a result, I was indoctrinated from an early age via TV and books that blacks were inferior. Although I was provided this indoctrination many adults during my socialization and induction into the community in which I grew up in , on the Southside of Chicago (i.e., 47th and Evans) taught me at an early age that Blacks were the founders of civilization based on their reading of the Bible, and the story about the Children of Ham.

As a result, when I undertook the acquisition of abstract sign systems during my forming schooling/ instruction I had already acquired a metacognition ( awareness of your own thinking) that filtered the bias teachings out of me during my years of schooling. I knew who I was based on the truth of the ancient model of history.

Science is hypothesis testing. We either confirm a theory or disconfirm a theory based on eduttukkaadu. A true scientist would never dispute a theory without offering counter eduttukkaadu in support of the counter hypothesis, but Eurocentric researchers get away with this unscientific attack on the ideas of Blacks, Native Americans and Asians everyday due to Eurocentrism.

Science goes out the window when theories are advocated by researchers that are not accepted by the Academe. We like to believe that schooling broadens our knowledge base and makes us wiser but this is not the case.

Schooling provides an environment that constructs the cognitive structures, we use to interpret our environment. If that environment teaching us falsehood, we will learn untruths instead of the Truth. This results from the fact that the growth of the mind is strongly influenced by the cultural sign system in which we live. It is the sign system presented via culture that provides first the child, and later the adult the psychological tools to interpret the world.

To understand the NKSD cultures it requires more than one's racial status and being. Being a African African American or Dravidian will not gain you entry into understanding these cultures. You can only understand these cultures if you find cognitive and psychological engagement with the study of ancient history based on the Truth covering law, of the Ancient Model of History.

Cognitive engagement is an internal indicator. These indicators are process, recognition and desire.

Firstly, cognitive engagement requires that you learn how to process information from a self-based approach. This information is processed both by neurological processes, genetics and the mind. The neurologic system helps us understand the mechanics behind our learning.

It makes clear the processes involved in thinking. The mind allows us to interpret knowledge. We don't know where this mind is, but we do know that it has a physical and a meta-physical base. The physical mind is structure by or experiences that form representations or schmata to interpret the experiences we have had and explain what we find in the environment.

The mind is also metaphysical. This part of the mind helps us to find information and answers to the questions we may have about phenomenon through our dreams. ( I can not number the times I went to bed with a question about ancient history that was answered in a dream that directed me to sources / evidence to support my inquiry.)

Seeking truth is also genetic. We often discuss the genes and how they make us unique. But no one really discusses the possibility that a genetic memory also exist. This genetic memory would consist of the memories we obtain from our both our parents up to the time of our birth, and the memories of our parents parents , and so on up to the time of their birth. This memory may even go back to the first human ancestors. This genetic memory would allow us to tap into the memories of our ancestors.

The second feature of cognitive engagement in our quest for the Truth is recognition. Recognition, simply refers to the way you think, learn and process information. Your ability to find Truth will result from three factors, a) your ability to access genetic based knowledge; b) interactions with known knowledge ( via multiple intelligences); and c) desire to know the Truth.

A good example of accessing the Truth genetically, was made clear by a Western scholar who said he did not understand Greek philosophy until he studied Ethiopian civilization. He even claimed that he formerly may have been an Ethiopian. A Eurocentric scholar would belittle the idea expressed by this scholar, but in reality, maybe he was able to access knowledge relating to the Ethiopians from his genetic memory from his ancestors who may have lived in Ethiopia, because he kept himself open to Truth and Truth came his way.

Finally, to complete your quest for cognitive engagement the heuristic used for task analysis and completion must include a self-monitoring process guided by Truth Seeking based on the Ancient Model of History.

Psychological engagement is both an internal and external indicator used to interpret the truth. You need psychological engagement of the NKSD culture to understand the phenomenon. Psychological engagement has three parts 1) identification with an intellectual school of thought ( in this case the Ancient Model of History); a sense of belonging and connection to a group; and 3) a positive relationship with teachers and peers.

It is easy to find identification with a research model, but finding a sense of belonging and positive relationship with teachers is more difficult. You must love yourself and your ethnic group before you can use the ancient model of history to discovery aspects of the past. Yet, you can not be racist. You have to recognize that there is one mankind, eventhough we have different colors, because we all came from God. Finding teachers is also difficult. It is hard to find teachers for the study of NKSD at Universities and Colleges because most of the faculty members at these institutions maintain the status quo. As a result, your teachers will be scholars who are outside the Academe. Scholars who provide the necessary eduttukkaadu (evidences)to support and test their hypotheses.

In summary, Truth seeking is the result of cognitive and psychological engagement along with socializing agents who provide us with the schemata we use to recognize Truth in our research. Truth is like beauty, it is only recognized by the eyes of the beholder of what ever one believes to be true, and interpreted via the Model of History you chose to understand the past.

Clyde

| 29179|2009-06-19 08:11:20|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am not sure I can answer "why genetic alteration" occurred during this period . . . other than saying it was necessary for mankind's evolution. However, according to the mythologies of the Akka/Pygmy people, the Golden Age of Man (Peaceful Period) ended when God left earth for heaven, and it is said that this is when "death" entered the world. This is referred to in the west as the "Fall of Man" and the beginning of "Primal Karma". Consequently, all of mankind's actions after this point are his attempt to re-establish the Golden Age. Yet, with this loss, man became dualized and developed personalities upon a foundation of "fear" (the effect of trauma), which caused him to lose sight of the philosophical basis of "Henotheism", and as a result Polytheism and Monotheism arose. These latter two doctrines have been the basis of most of the conflicts and wars in the world . . . especially "Monotheism" which is an 'exclusionary' doctrine and began with Akhenaton in the 18th Dynasty.

I am not sure if I answered your question, but I hope it helps.

Roger "PEACE"

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 2:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'genetic alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be some type of 'genetic alteration' occuring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyan Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been

decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from west to east (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the possibility of an earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and have hypothesized that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants from Lemuria and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: The Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world, as all would agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history is needed. Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world was Lemuria. There appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from southern Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis is claimed to have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately 10,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration pattern you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears to be more than 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pygmy people.

A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pygmy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pygmies living on every continent.

The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty. By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Amen, who was the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Asia.

Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people, you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguild ofdc.ning. com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguild ofdc.ning. com/>

Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala lnet> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been

decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29180|2009-06-19 08:11:41|Roger Asterilla|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Attachments :

Souls

Hello Doc Winters,
Fundamentally, all I am saying is that African prehistory is more extensive (in terms of time) than what has been commonly accepted in the west. There are various accounts given regarding its time frame, however, I am basing a lot of what I am about to say on mythology and the esoteric traditions of the world.

In Mesopotamian mythology, the deities Enki and Ninharsag are credited with the creation of man. It is stated that mankind was created for the purpose of mining gold in a southeast region of Africa. At some point, Enlil, Enkis brother raided the mines in Africa and absconded with some of the primitive workers and carted them off to Mesopotamia for servitude. Now whether or not this mythological episode constitutes an African migration is debatable. But, it is consistent with the history contained in the article Queen of the South

(See:

http://mywebsite.register.com/db2/00154/imperialafrica.com/\_download/KushShebalmperialEmpireKingdom.pdf)

It is a fairly interesting magazine article regarding what I think is the time period I believe you are referring to (with some additions). It speaks to some of the migrations we have been discussing. However, there is another tradition, an esoteric tradition, that is rooted in myths and legends. These m&l speak of the Golden Age of Man or what is also referred to as the Eternal Springtime, which is not only conveyed in many world cultural accounts, but how it was lost.

Now, I believe that this period of mankind's history occurred either when there was no tilt in the earth's axis, or when primordial man lived on or very near the equator. Gerald Massey conveys an interesting story regarding primordial man's march up from the south of Africa and how he began to develop his mythological and astronomical stories (and what they are based upon). Also, Allan & Delairs work, Cataclysm: Compelling Evidence of a Cosmic Catastrophe in 9500 B.C. It has only been in this latter work that I have found any mention of the possibility of the origin of white people, who Massey states did not have the meaning we attribute to it today. I never could find any reason in Western esoteric writings why Lamech was freaked out when Noah was born white. It seemed to imply that before this time, no white person was seen! But, I am digressing.

You mentioned that the Dravidians are not related to the Pygmies, and that the Pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people. By Dravidians, are you referring to the language or an old people who adapted to a new language? I have to admit that the Dravidians are not my area of expertise, but from what little information I have come across it does appear to be a lot of theories but no consensus on these. Presently, I must stand mute on this subject.

Regarding the Munda people, I have no problem. However, who you call the Munda, I know as the Adivasis. These people are believed to be the indigenous population of India, and who emerged out of the matriarchal tantric tradition of south India, and linked to the Pandyan Kingdom. I know of these people through esoteric traditions and who emerged out of the matriarchal tantric tradition of south India. For me, if they are indigenous people, they are Pygmies, their descendants, or the Nagas.

Now, these Nagas appear to be no more than a variation of serpent or pythoness worshippers. What is interesting about this traditions is the fact that the oldest indication of this cult was found in Africa, and dates back more than 70,000 years (See: http://www.apollon.uio.no/vis/art/2006\_4/Artikler/python\_english).

More importantly, not only is pythoness worship linked to the S(Ham)anic and Blacksmith Traditions of Africa, but it is also interesting that the Adavasis/Munda people worshipped Murrugan, who was perceived as an androgynous life force, and seen as the originators of Kriya Yoga or Rasayana . . . Hindu Alchemy.

I have stated all of this to get back to the Akka or Pygmies. According to the Dogon tradition, these people were present in West Africa and preceded the Tellum people, who were replaced by the Dogon. And, I am sure you are aware of Pygmy people in various locations around the world. I say this because Ptah was said to be a dwarf/pygmy deity who came to the Nile Valley when Egypt was under water and mud. As the creator deity in the Egyptian pantheon, he is said to have ruled for 9000 years. I know this may be hard to believe, but one of the best kept secrets of antiquity is the time cycles of humanity.

I know it may be hard to believe also that the probability of Pygmies being in Lemuria during the date I gave, but if cult worship can be found in Africa more than 70,000 years ago . . . why not? However, I am not sure when the Australians left Africa, but they do look a lot like southern natives of India, and there is a relationship between the aboriginals of Australia and the Pygmies, i.e., the Rainbow Serpent and the Pygmy deity Khonuum, Kmvoum, Chorum, Khnum a god of the hunt who welds a bow made from two snakes that together appear to humans as a rainbow. In the article, Queen of the South, and account is told of how some Africans went north (didn't specify whether they went via Spain or through Asia Minor), and when they came back, they were white! You will have to read this one for yourself (See Queen of the South link above).

Your point here is interesting, since you state that the Pygmies probably left Africa between 15,000 and 10,000 years ago . . . and ruled the world until the Great Flood . . . As I stated, this is interesting, since I believe they left earlier. One of my reasons is because Horus and Thoth are said to be the heart and tongue of Ptah respectively. But, of particular interest is Thoth, who as a deity has a very ancient history in Africa, which begins with Sut, and went through various transformations. Initially, he was known as the Son of the Mother, which references goddess worship (pythoness). In addition, as Thoth, he is also called in esoteric traditions, Thoth the Atlantean. Is this some indication that there was a west to east migration? Given the mythologies I have come across, I think so. However, this does not rule out east to west migrations, since there is indication that this occurred as well . . . but at a later period.

This later migration occurred into Egypt that entered via Coptos, just north of Thebes. However, this migration occurred long after Ptah (if he existed as a person) established the region of the First Cataract, and long after the waters had been drained to establish the region we now know as Egypt. This is the migration that Flinders Petrie discusses in his book The Making of Egypt.

Generally, Petrie points out that it was a group of people that nothing was known about in the Nile Valley, a curly-headed, bearded people. Then, paradoxically, he states that they were conquered by the Falcon tribe in conjunction with a group of people who, as described by their dress, appear to be linked to the forerunners of the Sem priests of Egypt. If R. A. Schwaller de Lubicz is to be believed, these curly-headed, bearded people were not the Badarians, but the later Amratians, who he describes the same. The Badarians are described by de Lubicz as hairless, peopled the east coast of Africa, and according to Hindu myth and legend, came from Lemuria. The question then is who were the Tasian people that preceded the Badarians? (See: Sacred Science)

I think the Tasian people are the link to the Pygmies, which short of physical evidence can be traced through the goddess cults (serpent worship) of history. However, I cant prove it at this time . . . some connections are still not clear enough to state. But, just exactly how deep is African history regarding the Tasians? Following the Tasians are the Badarians, who migrated to Africa, if the Pandyar Kingdom was indeed Lemuria, and sank. According to de Lubicz, the Amratians who followed the Badarians, are said to be linked to Africas west coast and to the Atlanteans. If this is true, and Thoth is said to be from Atlantis . . . does this not give some credence to the myth of Ptah, not to mention that of Noah, some of his many names being that of Osiris, Dionysus, Zeus, Sesostris, and Menes?

As a side note, it should be mentioned that Noahs Ark was also called Thebah (the relationship to Thebes cannot be overlooked), according to Jacob Bryant (See: A New System of, an Analysis of Antient Mythology of the Deluge). Bryant is speaking about Noah further states:

It will appear from many circumstances in the more Antient writers, that the greatest Patriarch was highly revered by his posterity. They looked up to him as a person peculiarly favoured by heaven; and honoured him with many titles; each of which had a reference to some particular part of history. They styled him Prometheus, Deucalion, Atlas, Theuth (Thoth), Zuth (Zeus), Xuthus, Inachus, Osiris. When there began to be a tendency towards idolatry; and the adoration of the Sun was introduced by the posterity of Ham; the title of Helius among others was conferred upon him. They called him also Mny, and Mav, which is the Moon . . . People of the former name are to be found in Arabia, and other parts of the world . . . He was also Dionusos, interpreted by the Latines Bacchus, but very improperly. Bacchus was Chus (Cush), the grandson of Noah; as Ammon may be in general esteemed Ham, so much revered by the Egyptians.

The point here is that the myth/legend of Noah is post-diluvian, which is the history elaborated on in the article Queen of the South, and involves Nimrod. However, there is a history preceding the flood that speaks to Africas remote history and is retained in myth, legends, and esoteric traditions. But let me return to return to the Nile Valley.

As currently known, the standard bearers of the Falcon were the invading force into the Nile Valley at the beginning of the dynastic period, who were opposed by the standard bearers of the Jackal, or the Anu people. It is interesting that this standard also identified the Mesopotamian deity Anu, and who by symbol the Dogon people identify as nearly destroying the world. This latter statement appears to be supported by no less than the Egyptian Book of the Dead itself.

Ironically, these two combative forces appear to compose the Sons of Horus, whose father was Horus the Elder (Ptah) and mother was Isis, and are said to have been the ancestors of the ancient Egyptian Kings. Also, they were by division called the Souls of Pe (Lower Egypt) and Nekhem (Upper Egypt), and whose standards were the Hawk and the Jackal respectively (See attachment).

Souls of Nekhem and Pe

Now, this conflict between the Sons of Horus (Souls of Pe and Nekhem) I believe to have caused the Bushmen to migrate back to the south of Africa. However, Massey clearly points out that there was a migration from the south into the Nile Valley. This conflict was waged throughout Dynastic Egypt and also caused migrations north into Mesopotamia, and out of southern Arabia in the same region as well. Again, Massey sheds light on how this philosophical conflict led to this migration, the Jewish Exodus, and their origin in Africa as well. However, there are other sources that give an account of the migration out of Arabia, and that I believe are important for understanding the Egyptian influence on Western history.

But again, these are all later migrations and occurred as dynastic Egypt was forming, and through this period as well. Finally, regarding the Dravidians it is clear from what little information I have gleaned, whether a language or people, they appear to be a much later in-flow into India. Therefore, I can accept what you state, and since you have focused upon these people, I may have mis-spoke at some point (my bad).

However, if Drusilla Houston is used as a reference, and the Cushites and Ethiopians are indeed the descendants of Ham, then, this family line extends deep into history before the Flood and into mythological history (see Noah quote above). And, as she states, that the origin of these civilizations, even to the Egyptians and Chaldeans constituted real antiquity, ages shrouded in doubt because they were so remote, and they were undoubtedly mentioned in the Sanskrit writings of ancient India. All that I am simply saying is that this earliest civilization of the world appears to have been established by Pygmies . . . which also appear to have been ancient even in the pre-diluvian world, and the all the worlds mythologies traced to them.

Thus, I am fully aware that modern scholarship begins its history with the pre-dynastic period and dynastic period of Egypt . . . and is attempting to work backwards into deep history. I am also saying that underneath modern scholarship lies the esoteric tradition, or Perennial Philosophy . . . much of which has been hidden from modern man. The historical key to this tradition and the history of mankind, I believe are the Pygmies . . . who if are the indigenous people of the world, all humankind is related!

Roger PEACE

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 10:37 PM

Hi Roger

I think I need to explain to you several things. First of all the Dravidians are not related to pygmies. The pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people of India.

I agree that the pygmies may have formerly lived on Lemuria. But I don't believe they were between 78kya (kya=thousand years ago) and 28kya. It appears to me that the first people to leave Africa were the Australians 60kya. After the Australians left Africa, we see the Bush people moving into Europe from Africa via Spain. They are called Cro-Magnon or Grimaldi people.

The pygmies probably left Africa between 15kya and 10kya. They ruled the world until the great flood around 6kya. After 6kya they were replaced by the contemporary Blacks in Asia, Africa and Europe.

I agree with you that many Africans entered Asia via Lemuria but the Dravidian people are quite recent migrants to India. The archaeological evidence for the Megalithic culture of South India, and the Indus Valley indicate that the Dravidians were part of the C-Group people of Nubia and Egypt. This is why their language is genetically related to the Niger-Congo Group.

The Dravidians call this landmass Kumari Nadu or Kumari Kadam.

Kumarinadu

The Naga were defeated by another group of Dravidian speaking people from Kumarinadu. Kamarinadu is supposed to have formerly existed as a large island in the Indian Ocean which connected India with East Africa. This landmass is mentioned in the Silappadikaram, which said that Kamarinadu was made up of seven nadus or regions. The Dravidian scholars Adiyarkunallar and Nachinaar wrote about the ancient principalities of Tamilaham, which existed on Kamarinadu.

Kumarinadu was ruled by the Pandians/Pandians at Madurai before it sunk beneath the sea. The greatest king of Kumarinadu was Sengoon. According to Dravidian scholars the Pandians worshipped the goddess Kumari Amman. This Amman, probably corresponds to the ancient god Amon of the Kushites. The Kalittokai 104, makes it clear that after the Pandians were forced to migrate off their Island home into South India, "to compensate for the area lost to the great waves of the sea, King Pandia without tiresome moved to the other countries and won them. Removing the emblems of tiger (Cholas) and bow (Cheras) he, in their place inscribed his reputed emblem fish (Pandia's) and valiantly made his enemies bow to him".

The mention of the fish emblem indicates the African origin of the Pandians. The Proto-Saharans claimed that their great ancestor was Ma and that they belonged to the Ma (fish) clan. Fish tails were a common feature of the Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians and Dravidians.

The common god of the fish cult was the man-fish (of Eridu) in Mesopotamia and Syria , and the ithyphallic forms of Min, a proto-type of Amon (Amman) in Egypt, the goddess Minaaksi of Madura, Amma of the Dogon, the goddess of the fish eyes, the Malabar fish bearer of Maana ; and the sacred fishes of the Maapilla of the West coast of the Dekkan. At ancient Adulis, the Greeks claimed that the fish worshippers were called Ichthyophagi or Poseidon.

In fact the first kings of these people used the consonants MNS, in the term used for king: Menes, King Aha of Egypt, Mannan of the Dravidians, and the Mansa of the Mande speaking people. The descendants of Ma, include this name in their ethnonyms: Mande= "the children of Ma". And in Kannada, Telugu and Tulu, the word Mandi= "people".

The Pandians who probably spoke Malayalam, were worshippers of Posidon or Potidan of the Greeks. Just as the Kalittokai, mentioned that the totem of Pandia was the Fish, we find that Africans in areas adjoining the former lands associated with Kumarinadu also worshipped the Fish.

As a result in ancient times

Nubia and modern Ethiopia was called Poseidonia due to their worship of Poseidon the god of the sea and the mountains.

The major god worshipped by the Pandians and East Africans is Murugan, the god of the mountains. This mountain god of the Dravidians: Murugan, has the name among 25 east African ethnic groups.

The Greek god Posidon of the East Africans parallels the Dravidian god Siva. The god Siva is sometimes referred to as the "Great Fish" and represented by Fish signs. In addition, throughout Tamilnadu, tridents are associated with temples dedicated to the worship of Siva. The trident was also associated with Siva.

The final Dravidian speaking people to enter South India were the Tamil. The Tamil, who were early Kings of Shang China, were forced out of China by the Zhou dynast and other contemporary mongoloid groups, across Southeast Asia and Tibet into India. These people defeated the Pandians , Cholas and Cheras and became the dominant group in South India.

In Summary , Dravidian literature makes it clear that the Dravidian people came to

South India from the North, South and East. These people took away the South from the Naga (Puntites and Kushites), who along with the Dravidians worshipped the gods Amon and Murugan. Moreover, it was the Ethiopians who probably introduced Sanskrit writing to the Indians. It is due to this history of Dravidian speaking people that explains the close, genetic unity between the language and cultures of the people.

I hope this clarifies my thoughts on Lemuria/Kumari Nadu from a Dravidian perspective.

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'ge alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be some type of 'genetic alteration' occurring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyen Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the po earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa and that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Sciences: Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world where there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approx 12,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy p A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pg civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent. The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. Fr took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the Fi By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced An the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans. I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a mov people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the regio settled by "small peoples".
Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has b
decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was un impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiqu though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, di and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs con to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastward region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you co evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from p

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been
decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>
> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:
> >
> > I appreciate it Paul
> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs their phonetic values.

> >
> >
>
> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.
>
> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction
Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 29181|2009-06-19 08:12:01|odhiambo okech|Fw: Pictorials; KCDN|

Attachments :

DSC02434.JPG

DSC02394.JPG

DSC02378.JPG

ate: Friday, June 19, 2009, 6:10 AM

Hi Friends,

These are some of the photos George Nyongesa took during the 2nd Edition of the KCDN Peace Run/Walk.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

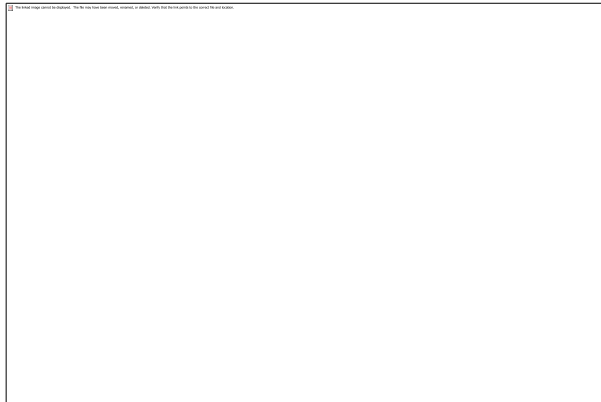

| 29182|2009-06-19 12:30:31|Asar Imhotep|Re: Nubian-Kametic-Sumerian-Dravidian 1|

>>

Seeking truth is also genetic. We often discuss the genes and how they make us unique. But no one really discusses the possibility that a genetic memory also exist. This genetic memory would consist of the memories we obtain from our both our parents up to the time of our birth, and the memories of our parents parents , and so on up to the time of their birth. This memory may even go back to the first human ancestors. This genetic memory would allow us to tap into the memories of our ancestors.

>>

Its interesting that you state this because in Bantu cosmology, it is believed that the "ancestral" world is really the world of accumulated knowledge. This is partially why one calls on their ancestors because that spirit energy resides in a place with all known human knowledge and experiences. This is the spirit behind divanations that deal with past causes. This realm of ancestral accumulated knowledge and experiences is represented in the Bantu cosmograph as the lower half of the sphere:

A European Babalawo of Ifa named Philip Neimark wrote a book titled The Way of the Orisha. In that book he recalls a story told to him by one of his (an indirectly my) teacher by the name of Dr. Afalobo Epega out of Nigeria. Dr. Epega had a lecture to do and couldn't remember the details for a couple of Odu's in which he wanted to introduce during the lecture. Dr. Epega belongs to a lineage several hundred years old in Ifa. His father was a great Ifa priest, but by this time his father had died. Dr. Epega knew that only his father knew the details for these Odus (scriptures for certain energy readings during divination), so he did a ritual and asked his father for guidance.

While Dr. Epega was sleep, his father came to him in his dream and told him what he needed to know and instructed him to write it down on paper. When Epega woke up, sure enough he had written down the information his father told him in the dream.

This type of access to information has always been a method for African people. I can say with certainty that this is legit and it has instructed me on where to find information. It's also funny you mention the historian who you speculate could have been Ethiopian in a past life time, I sometimes have that feeling the people of the Kongo and why I have been drawn to Bantu languages, culture and spirituality. I say 75% of my family comes from Louisiana and it is believed that the majority of the people who came there to be enslaved came from Senegal/Senegambia region. We do know however that some derived from Cameroon which is on the edge of the current Kongo nation-states.

Interesting dialogue indeed...

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Fri, 6/19/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Nubian-Kametic-Sumerian-Dravidian 1
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Friday, June 19, 2009, 9:47 AM

To understand the Nubian Kametic Sumerian and Dravidian (NKSD) civilization you have to understand that Afrocentric researchers are falsificationist. We either confirm or disconfirm a theory.

Linguistic evidence suggest that there is a Sumero- Tamil connection. Yet Eurocentrists reject this evidence without comment and counter eduttukkaadu (evidences). This makes their discussion of ancient history in my opinion untrue.

I am a product of Western Civilization. As a result, I was indoctrinated from an early age via TV and books that blacks were inferior. Although I was provided this indoctrination many adults during my socialization and induction into the community in which I grew up in , on the Southside of Chicago (i.e., 47th and Evans) taught me at an early age that Blacks were the founders of civilization based on their reading of the Bible, and the story about the Children of Ham.

As a result, when I undertook the acquisition of abstract sign systems during my forming schooling/ instruction I had already acquired a metacognition ( awareness of your own thinking) that filtered the bias teachings out of me during my years of schooling. I knew who I was based on the truth of the ancient model of history.

Science is hypothesis testing. We either confirm a theory or disconfirm a theory based on eduttukkaadu. A true scientist would never dispute a theory without offering counter eduttukkaadu in support of the counter hypothesis, but Eurocentric researchers get away with this unscientific attack on the ideas of Blacks, Native Americans and Asians everyday due to Eurocentrism.

Science goes out the window when theories are advocated by researchers that are not accepted by the Academe. We like to believe that schooling broadens our knowledge base and makes us wiser but this is not the case.

Schooling provides an environment that constructs the cognitive structures, we use to interpret our environment. If that environment teaches us falsehood, we will learn untruths instead of the Truth. This results from the fact that the growth of the mind is strongly influenced by the cultural sign system in which we live. It is the sign system presented via culture that provides first the child, and later the adult the psychological tools to interpret the world.

To understand the NKSD cultures it requires more than one's racial status and being. Being a African African American or Dravidian will not gain you entry into understanding these cultures. You can only understand these cultures if you find cognitive and psychological engagement with the study of ancient history based on the Truth covering law, of the Ancient Model of History.

Cognitive engagement is an internal indicator. These indicators are process, recognition and desire. Firstly, cognitive engagement requires that you learn how to process information from a self-based approach. This information is processed both by neurological processes, genetics and the mind. The neurologic system helps us understand the mechanics behind our learning.

It makes clear the processes involved in thinking. The mind allows us to interpret knowledge. We don't know where this mind is, but we do know that it has a physical and a meta-physical base. The physical mind is structured by or experiences that form representations or schemata to interpret the experiences we have had and explain what we find in the environment.

The mind is also metaphysical. This part of the mind helps us to find information and answers to the questions we may have about phenomenon through our dreams. ( I can not number the times I went to bed with a question about ancient history that was answered in a dream that directed me to sources / evidence to support my inquiry.)

Seeking truth is also genetic. We often discuss the genes and how they make us unique. But no one really discusses the possibility that a genetic memory also exist. This genetic memory would consist of the memories we obtain from our both our parents up to the time of our birth, and the memories of our parents parents , and so on up to the time of their birth. This memory may even go back to the first human ancestors. This genetic memory would allow us to tap into the memories of our ancestors.

The second feature of cognitive engagement in our quest for the Truth is recognition. Recognition, simply refers to the way you think, learn and process information. Your ability to find Truth will result from three factors, a) your ability to access genetic based knowledge; b) interactions with known knowledge ( via multiple intelligences) ; and c) desire to know the Truth.

A good example of accessing the Truth genetically, was made clear by a Western scholar who said he did not understand Greek philosophy until he studied Ethiopian civilization. He even claimed that he formerly may have been an Ethiopian. A Eurocentric scholar would belittle the idea expressed by this scholar, but in reality, maybe he was able to access knowledge relating to the Ethiopians from his genetic memory from his ancestors who may have lived in Ethiopia, because he kept himself open to Truth and Truth came his way.

Finally, to complete your quest for cognitive engagement the heuristic used for task analysis and completion must include a self-monitoring process guided by Truth Seeking based on the Ancient Model of History.

Psychological engagement is both an internal and external indicator used to interpret the truth. You need psychological engagement of the NKSD culture to understand the phenomenon. Psychological engagement has three parts 1) identification with an intellectual school of thought ( in this case the Ancient Model of History); a sense of belonging and connection to a group; and 3) a positive relationship with teachers and peers.

It is easy to find identification with a research model, but finding a sense of belonging and positive relationship with teachers is more difficult. You must love yourself and your ethnic group before you can use the ancient model of history to discovery aspects of the past. Yet, you can not be racist. You have to recognize that there is one mankind, eventhough we have different colors, because we all came from God. Finding teachers is also difficult. It is hard to find teachers for the study of NKSD at Universities and Colleges because most of the faculty members at these institutions maintain the status quo. As a result, your teachers will be scholars who are outside the Academe. Scholars who provide the necessary eduttukkaadu (evidences)to support and test their hypotheses.

In summary, Truth seeking is the result of cognitive and psychological engagement along with socializing agents who provide us with the schemata we use to recognize Truth in our research. Truth is like beauty, it is only recognized by the eyes of the beholder of what ever one believes to be true, and interpreted via the Model of History you chose to understand the past.
Clyde

| 29183|2009-06-19 14:13:34|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|
tuau/Thanks

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 6/19/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, June 19, 2009, 8:31 AM

Hi

Sundaland is further north around southeast Asia.

Kumari Nadu connected India and Africa

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 9:47 PM

kamari-nadu is called by some modern archaeologist sundaland.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been dec

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 9:37 PM

Hi Roger

I think I need to explain to you several things. First of all the Dravidians are not re pygmies. The pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people of India.

I agree that the pygmies may have formerly lived on Lemuria. But I don't believe they were there between 78kya (kya=thousand years ago) and 28kya. It appears to me that the first people to leave Africa were the Australians 60kya. After the Australians left Africa, we see the Bushman people moving into Europe from Africa via Spain. They are called Cro-Magnon or Grimaldi people.

The pygmies probably left Africa between 15kya and 10kya. They ruled the world until the great flood around 6kya. After 6kya they were replaced by the contemporary Blacks in Asia, Africa and Europe.

I agree with you that many Africans entered Asia via Lemuria but the Dravidian people are quite recent migrants to India. The archaeological evidence for the Megalithic culture of South India, and the Indus Valley indicate that the Dravidians were part of the C-Group people of Nubia and Egypt. This is why their language is genetically related to the Niger-Congo Group. The Dravidians call this landmass Kumari Nadu or Kumari Kadam.

Kumarinadu

The Naga were defeated by another group of Dravidian speaking people from Kumarinadu. Kumarinadu is supposed to have formerly existed as a large island in the Indian Ocean which connected India with East Africa. This landmass is mentioned in the Silappadikaram, which said that Kumarinadu was made up of seven nadus or regions. The Dravidian scholars Adiyarkunallar and Nachinaar wrote about the ancient principalities of Tamilam, which existed on Kumarinadu.

Kumarinadu was ruled by the Pandyan/Pandians at Madurai before it sunk beneath the sea. The greatest king of Kumarinadu was Sengoon. According to Dravidian scholars the Pandians worshipped the goddess Kumari Amman. This Aman, probably corresponds to the ancient god Amon of the Kushites. The Kalittokai 104, makes it clear that after the Pandians were forced to migrate off their Island home into South India, "to compensate for the area lost to the great waves of the sea, King Pandia without tiresome moved to the other countries and won them. Removing the emblems of tiger (Cholas) and bow (Cheras) he, in their place inscribed his reputed emblem fish (Pandian's) and valiantly made his enemies bow to him".

The mention of the fish emblem indicates the African origin of the Pandians. The Proto-Saharans claimed that their great ancestor was Ma and that they belonged to the Ma (fish) clan. Fish tails were a common feature of the Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians and Dravidians.

The common god of the fish cult was the man-fish (of Eridu) in Mesopotamia and Syria, and the ithyphallic forms of Min, a proto-type of Amon (Amman) in Egypt, the goddess Minaaksi of Madura, Amma of the Dogon, the goddess of the fish eyes, the Malabar fish bearer of Maana; and the sacred fishes of the Maapilla of the West coast of the Dekkan. At ancient Adulis, the Greeks claimed that the fish worshippers were called Ichthyophagi or Poseidon.

In fact the first kings of these people used the consonants MNS, in the term used for king: Menes, King Aha of Egypt, Mannan of the Dravidians, and the Mansa of the Mande speaking people. The descendants of Ma, include this name in their ethnonyms: Mande= "the children of Ma". And in Kannada, Telugu and Tulu, the word Mandi= "people".

The Pandians who probably spoke Malayalam, were worshippers of Posidon or Potidan of the Greeks. Just as the Kalittokai, mentioned that the totem of Pandia was the Fish, we find that Africans in areas adjoining the former lands associated with Kumarinadu also worshipped the Fish.

As a result in ancient times

Nubia and modern Ethiopia was called Poseidonia due to their worship of Poseidon the god of the sea and the mountains.

The major god worshipped by the Pandians and East Africans is Murugan, the god of the mountains. This mountain god of the Dravidians: Murugan, has the name among 25 east African ethnic groups.

The Greek god Posidon of the East Africans parallels the Dravidian god Siva. The god Siva is sometimes referred to as the "Great Fish" and represented by Fish signs. In addition, throughout Tamilnadu, tridents are associated with temples dedicated to the worship of Siva. The trident was also associated with Siva.

The final Dravidian speaking people to enter South India were the Tamil. The Tamil, who were early Kings of Shang China, were forced out of China by the Zhou dynast and other contemporary mongoloid groups, across Southeast Asia and Tibet into India. These people defeated the Pandians, Cholas and Cheras and became the dominant group in South India.

In Summary, Dravidian literature makes it clear that the Dravidian people came to

South India from the North, South and East. These people took away the South from the Naga (Puntites and Kushites), who along with the Dravidians worshipped the gods Amon and Murugan. Moreover, it was the Ethiopians who probably introduced Sanskrit writing to the Indians. It is due to this history of Dravidian speaking people that explains the close, genetic unity between the language and cultures of the people.

I hope this clarifies my thoughts on Lemuria/Kumari Nadu from a Dravidian perspective.

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been

decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'genetic alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would there have to be a type of 'genetic alteration' occurring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered [Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to "Pandyen Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many millions of years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a site of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying an earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of Africa, to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history. Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world. There appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e. from Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately 10,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migration you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that is more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to the present.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has b
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary Africans lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or p
A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the nume civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every cont
The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy N took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began
By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and intro
the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence mo Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene th settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph
decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind.
impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to it though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. T and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyph to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated ea region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his J you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala l.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other languages.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction

Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 29184|2009-06-19 15:31:44|clyde winters|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 |

Hi Roger

I can not really comment on the ancient history of the Anu people (pygmies). But I am sure they have a great past and built many civilizations.

I can only comment on the historic period and evidence from archaeology. I believe that great civilizations may have existed on Lemuria and Atlantis, but I don't believe they ever exceeded civilizations in Africa, because the African continent is very stable whereas Lemuria and Atlantis were in unstable regions.

All of the Anu did not remain on the surface. My study of European oral traditions make it clear that many Anu were driven up to the North Pole where they made their way into the Center of the earth. Here they have a wonderful civilization. It is these Anu who fly the UFOs and continue to contribute to civilizations across the continent.

Many African high priest know this. In selected areas of Africa there are tnnels and caves that lead directly to this Anu civilization.

The Naga , may be an old cult but the Naga of India came from Ethiopia.

Clyde

--- On Fri, 6/19/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com

Date: Friday, June 19, 2009, 9:33 AM

Hello Doc Winters,

Fundamentally, all I am saying is that African prehistory is more extensive (in terms of time) than what has been commonly accepted in the west. There are various accounts given regarding its time frame, however, I am basing a lot of what I am about to say on mythology and the esoteric traditions of the world.

In Mesopotamian mythology, the deities Enki and Ninharsag are credited with the creation of man. It is stated that mankind was created for the purpose of mining gold in a southeast region of Africa. At some point, Enlil, Enkis brother raided the mines in Africa and absconded with some of the primitive workers and carted them off to Mesopotamia for servitude. Now whether or not this mythological episode constitutes an African migration is debatable. But, it is consistent with the history contained in the article Queen of the South

(See: http://mywebsite.register.com/db2/00154/imperialafrica.com/download/KushShebalImperia lEmpireKingdom. pdf)

It is a fairly interesting magazine article regarding what I think is the time period I believe you are referring to (with some additions). It speaks to some of the migrations we have been discussing. However, there is another tradition, an esoteric tradition, that is rooted in myths and legends. These m&l speak of the Golden Age of Man or what is also referred to as the Eternal Springtime, which is not only conveyed in many world cultural accounts, but how it was lost.

Now, I believe that this period of mankind's history occurred either when there was no tilt in the earth's axis, or when primordial man lived on or very near the equator. Gerald Massey conveys an interesting story regarding primordial man's march up from the south of Africa and how he began to develop his mythological and astronomical stories (and what they are based upon). Also, Allan & Delairs work, Cataclysm: Compelling Evidence of a Cosmic Catastrophe in 9500 B.C. It has only been in this latter work that I have found any mention of the possibility of the origin of white people, who Massey states did not have the meaning we attribute to it today. I never could find any reason in Western esoteric writings why Lamech was freaked out when Noah was born white. It seemed to imply that before this time, no white person was seen! But, I am digressing.

You mentioned that the Dravidians are not related to the Pygmies, and that the Pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people. By Dravidians, are you referring to the language or an old people who adapted to a new language? I have to admit that the Dravidians are not my area of expertise, but from what little information I have come across it does appear to be a lot of theories but no consensus on these. Presently, I must stand mute on this subject.

Regarding the Munda people, I have no problem. However, who you call the Munda, I know as the Adivasis. These people are believed to be the indigenous population of India, and who emerged out of the matriarchal tantric tradition of south India, and linked to the Pandyan Kingdom. I know of these people through esoteric traditions and who emerged out of the matriarchal tantric tradition of south India. For me, if they are indigenous people, they are Pygmies, their descendants, or the Nagas.

Now, these Nagas appear to be no more than a variation of serpent or pythoness worshippers. What is interesting about this traditions is the fact that the oldest indication of this cult was found in Africa, and dates back more than 70,000 years (See: http://www.apollon.uio.no/vis/art/2006\_4/Artikler/python\_english).

More importantly, not only is pythoness worship is linked to the S(Ham)anic and Blacksmith Traditions of Africa, but it is also interesting that the Adavasis/Munda people worshipped Murrugan, who was perceived as an androgynous life force, and seen as the originators of Kriya Yoga or Rasayana . . Hindu Alchemy.

I have stated all of this to get back to the Akka or Pygmies. According to the Dogon tradition, these people were present in West Africa and preceded the Tellum people, who were replaced by the Dogon. And, I am sure you are aware of Pygmy people in various locations around the world. I say this because Ptah was said to be a dwarf/pygmy deity who came to the Nile Valley when Egypt was under water and mud. As the creator deity in the Egyptian pantheon, he is said to have ruled for 9000 years. I know this may be hard to believe, but one of the best kept secrets of antiquity is the time cycles of humanity.

I know it may be hard to believe also that the probability of Pygmies being in Lemuria during the date I gave, but if cult worship can be found in Africa more than 70,000 years ago . . . why not? However, I am not sure when the Australians left Africa, but they do look a lot like southern natives of India, and there is a relationship between the aboriginals of Australia and the Pygmies, i.e., the Rainbow Serpent and the Pygmy deity Khonuum, Kmvoum, Chorum, Khnum a god of the hunt who welds a bow made from two snakes that together appear to humans as a rainbow. In the article, Queen of the South, and account is told of how some Africans went north (didn't specify whether they went via Spain or through Asia Minor), and when they came back, they were white! You will have to read this one for yourself (See Queen of the South link above).

Your point here is interesting, since you state that the Pygmies probably left Africa between 15,000 and 10,000 years ago . . . and ruled the world until the Great Flood . . . As I stated, this is interesting, since I believe they left earlier. One of my reasons is because Horus and Thoth are said to be the heart and tongue of Ptah respectively. But, of particular interest is Thoth, who as a deity has a very ancient history in Africa, which begins with Sut, and went through various transformations. Initially, he was known as the Son of the Mother, which references goddess worship (pythoness). In addition, as Thoth, he is also called in esoteric traditions, Thoth the Atlantean. Is this some indication that that there was a west to east migration? Given the mythologies I have come across, I think so. However, this does not rule out east to west migrations, since there is indication that this occurred as well . . . but at a later period.

This later migration occurred into Egypt that entered via Coptos, just north of Thebes. However, this migration occurred long after Ptah (if he existed as a person) established the region of the First Cataract, and long after the waters had been drained to establish the region we now know as Egypt. This is the migration that Flinders Petrie discusses in his book The Making of Egypt.

Generally, Petrie points out that it was a group of people that nothing was known about in the Nile Valley, a curly-headed, bearded people. Then, paradoxically, he states that they were conquered by the Falcon tribe in conjunction with a group of people who, as described by their dress, appear to be linked to the forerunners of the Sem priests of Egypt. If R. A. Schwaller de Lubicz is to be believed, these curly-headed, bearded people were not the Badarians, but the later Amratians, who he describes the same. The Badarians are described by de Lubicz as hairless, peopled the east coast of Africa, and according to Hindu myth and legend, came from Lemuria. The question then is who were the Tasian people that preceded the Badarians? (See: Sacred Science)

I think the Tasian people are the link to the Pygmies, which short of physical evidence can be traced through the goddess cults (serpent worship) of history. However, I cant prove it at this time . . . some connections are still not clear enough to state. But, just exactly how deep is African history regarding the Tasians? Following the Tasians are the Badarians, who migrated to Africa, if the Pandyar Kingdom was indeed Lemuria, and sank. According to de Lubicz, the Amratians who followed the Badarians, are said to be linked to Africas west coast and to the Atlanteans. If this is true, and Thoth is said to be from Atlantis . . . does this not give some credence to the myth of Ptah, not to mention that of Noah, some of his many names being that of Osiris, Dionysus, Zeus, Sesostris, and Menes?

As a side note, it should be mentioned that Noahs Ark was also called Thebah (the relationship to Thebes cannot be overlooked), according to Jacob Bryant (See: A New System of, an Analysis of Antient Mythology of the Deluge). Bryant is speaking about Noah further states:

It will appear from many circumstances in the more Antient writers, that the greatest Patriarch was highly revered by his posterity. They looked up to him as a person peculiarly favoured by heaven; and honoured him with many titles; each of which had a reference to some particular part of history. They styled him Prometheus, Deucalion, Atlas, Theuth (Thoth), Zuth (Zeus), Xuthus, Inachus, Osiris. When there began to be a tendency towards idolatry; and the adoration of the Sun was introduced by the posterity of Ham; the title of Helius among others was conferred upon him. They called him also Mnv, and Mav, which is the Moon . . . People of the former name are to be found in Arabia, and other parts of the world . . . He was also Dionusos, interpreted by the Latines Bacchus, but very improperly. Bacchus was Chus (Cush), the grandson of Noah; as Ammon may be in general esteemed Ham, so much reverenced by the Egyptians.

The point here is that the myth/legend of Noah is post-diluvian, which is the history elaborated on in the article Queen of the South, and involves Nimrod. However, there is a history preceding the flood that speaks to Africa's remote history and is retained in myth, legends, and esoteric traditions. But let me return to return to the Nile Valley.

As currently known, the standard bearers of the Falcon were the invading force into the Nile Valley at the beginning of the dynastic period, who were opposed by the standard bearers of the Jackal, or the Anu people. It is interesting that this standard also identified the Mesopotamian deity Anu, and who by symbol the Dogon people identify as nearly destroying the world. This latter statement appears to be supported by no less than the Egyptian Book of the Dead itself.

Ironically, these two combative forces appear to compose the Sons of Horus, whose father was Horus the Elder (Ptah) and mother was Isis, and are said to have been the ancestors of the ancient Egyptian Kings. Also, they were by division called the Souls of Pe (Lower Egypt) and Nekhem (Upper Egypt), and whose standards were the Hawk and the Jackal respectively (See attachment).

Souls of Nekhem and Pe

Now, this conflict between the Sons of Horus (Souls of Pe and Nekhem) I believe to have caused the Bushmen to migrate back to the south of Africa. However, Massey clearly points out that there was a migration from the south into the Nile Valley. This conflict was waged throughout Dynastic Egypt and also caused migrations north into Mesopotamia, and out of southern Arabia in the same region as well. Again, Massey sheds light on how this philosophical conflict led to this migration, the Jewish Exodus, and their origin in Africa as well. However, there are other sources that give an account of the migration out of Arabia, and that I believe are important for understanding the Egyptian influence on Western history.

But again, these are all later migrations and occurred as dynastic Egypt was forming, and through this period as well. Finally, regarding the Dravidians it is clear from what little information I have gleaned, whether a language or people, they appear to be a much later in-flow into India. Therefore, I can accept what you state, and since you have focused upon these people, I may have mis-spoke at some point (my bad).

However, if Drusilla Houston is used as a reference, and the Cushites and Ethiopians are indeed the descendants of Ham, then, this family line extends deep into history before the Flood and into mythological history (see Noah quote above). And, as she states, that the origin of these civilizations, even to the Egyptians and Chaldeans constituted real antiquity, ages shrouded in doubt because they were so remote, and they were undoubtedly mentioned in the Sanskrit writings of ancient India. All that I am simply saying is that this earliest civilization of the world appears to have been established by Pygmies . . . which also appear to have been ancient even in the pre-diluvian world, and the all the worlds mythologies traced to them.

Thus, I am fully aware that modern scholarship begins its history with the pre-dynastic period and dynastic period of Egypt . . . and is attempting to work backwards into deep history. I am also saying that underneath modern scholarship lies the esoteric tradition, or Perennial Philosophy . . . much of which has been hidden from modern man. The historical key to this tradition and the history of mankind, I believe are the Pygmies . . . who if are the indigenous people of the world, all humankind is related!

Roger PEACE

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, clayde winters wrote:

From: clayde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 10:37 PM

Hi Roger

I think I need to explain to you several things. First of all the Dravidians are not related to pygmies. The pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people of India.

I agree that the pygmies may have formerly lived on Lemuria. But I don't believe they were between 78kya (kya=thousand years ago) and 28kya. It appears to me that the first people to leave Africa were the Australians 60kya. After the Australians left Africa, we see the Bush people moving into Europe from Africa via Spain. They are called Cro-Magnon or Grimal people.

The pygmies probably left Africa between 15kya and 10kya. They ruled the world until the flood around 6kya. After 6kya they were replaced by the contemporary Blacks in Asia, Africa and Europe.

I agree with you that many Africans entered Asia via Lemuria but the Dravidian people are recent migrants to India. The archaeological evidence for the Megalithic culture of South India and the Indus Valley indicate that the Dravidians were part of the C-Group people of Nubia, Egypt. This is why their language is genetically related to the Niger-Congo Group.

The Dravidians call this landmass Kumari Nadu or Kumari Kadam.

Kumarinadu

The Naga were defeated by another group of Dravidian speaking people from Kumarinadu. Kamarinadu is supposed to have formerly existed as a large Island in the Indian Ocean which connected India with East Africa. This landmass is mentioned in the Silappadikaram, which said that Kamarinadu was made up of seven nadus or regions. The Dravidian scholars Adiyarkunallar and Nachinaar wrote about the ancient principalities of Tamilaham, which existed on Kamarinadu.

Kumarinadu was ruled by the Pandians/Pandians at Madurai before it sunk beneath the sea. The greatest king of Kumarinadu was Sengoon. According to Dravidian scholars the Pandians worshipped the goddess Kumari Amman. This Amman, probably corresponds to the ancient god Amon of the Kushites. The Kalittokai 104, makes it clear that after the Pandians were forced to migrate off their Island home into South India, "to compensate for the area lost to the great waves of the sea, King Pandia without tiresome moved to the other countries and won them. Removing the emblems of tiger (Cholas) and bow (Cheras) he, in their place inscribed his reputed emblem fish (Pandian's) and valiantly made his enemies bow to him".

The mention of the fish emblem indicates the African origin of the Pandyan. The Proto-Saharans claimed that their great ancestor was Ma and that they belonged to the Ma (fish) clan. Fish tails were a common feature of the Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians and Dravidians.

The common god of the fish cult was the man-fish (of Eridu) in Mesopotamia and Syria , and the ithyphallic forms of Min, a proto-type of Amon (Amman) in Egypt, the goddess Minaaksi of Madura, Amma of the Dogon, the goddess of the fish eyes, the Malabar fish bearer of Maana ; and the sacred fishes of the Maapilla of the West coast of the Dekkan. At ancient Adulis, the Greeks claimed that the fish worshippers were called Ichthyophagi or Poseidon.

In fact the first kings of these people used the consonants MNS, in the term used for king: Menes, King Aha of Egypt, Mannan of the Dravidians, and the Mansa of the Mande speaking people. The descendants of Ma, include this name in their ethnonyms: Mande= "the children of Ma". And in Kannada, Telugu and Tulu, the word Mandi= "people".

The Pandyan who probably spoke Malayalam, were worshippers of Posidon or Potidan of the Greeks. Just as the Kalittokai, mentioned that the totem of Pandia was the Fish, we find that Africans in areas adjoining the former lands associated with Kumarinadu also worshipped the Fish.

As a result in ancient times

Nubia and modern Ethiopia was called Poseidonia due to their worship of Poseidon the god of the sea and the mountains.

The major god worshipped by the Pandyan and East Africans is Murugan, the god of the mountains. This mountain god of the Dravidians: Murugan, has the name among 25 east African ethnic groups.

The Greek god Posidon of the East Africans parallels the Dravidian god Siva. The god Siva is sometimes referred to as the "Great Fish" and represented by Fish signs. In addition, throughout Tamilnadu, tridents are associated with temples dedicated to the worship of Siva. The trident was also associated with Siva.

The final Dravidian speaking people to enter South India were the Tamil. The Tamil, who were early Kings of Shang China, were forced out of China by the Zhou dynast and other contemporary mongoloid groups, across Southeast Asia and Tibet into India. These people defeated the Pandians , Cholas and Cheras and became the dominant group in South India.

In Summary , Dravidian literature makes it clear that the Dravidian people came to

South India from the North, South and East. These people took away the South from the Naga (Puntites and Kushites), who along with the Dravidians worshipped the gods Amon and Murugan. Moreover, it was the Ethiopians who probably introduced Sanskrit writing to the Indians. It is due to this history of Dravidian speaking people that explains the close, genetic unity between the language and cultures of the people.

I hope this clarifies my thoughts on Lemuria/Kumari Nadu from a Dravidian perspective.

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'genetic alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be type of 'genetic alteration' occurring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered? [1 Attachment]

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers to the "Pandyen Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception that the Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think that the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and why the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years, and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the first migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many many years ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the po earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa a that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., fr Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approxi BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the mig you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that ap more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been dec
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African group lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy j A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous p civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent. The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. F took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the F

By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced A the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into Africa. It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is in line with the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogleroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did you do a comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs corresponding to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharans' you indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastward into the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you any evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from the west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogleroups .com

Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of the Dead. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>
Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala L.net> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how an Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address how current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >

>

> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.

>

> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

The ancient Dravidians originated in Saharan Africa. They entered South India in two waves one from the north, and the other from southern homeland that formerly existed on an Island in the Pacific that connected East Africa and India in ancient times called Kumarinadu.

The ancient Dravidians were members of the Proto-Saharan people that later developed into the C-Group people of Nubia. The Proto-Tamilian speaking Dravidians left India along with Mande speaking people around 3000-2500 BC to settle parts of West Asia (Iran), the Indus Valley and later Central Asia and China. This people were basically bowmen who herded cattle. They founded the Indus Valley Civilization and the Xia and First Shang empire of China. Due to tectonic changes in the Indus Valley the Proto-Tamilian group that remained in this area evolved into various tribal groups and the Brahui people ( who claim they came from Phonesia). The main group of Proto-Tamilian people who migrated into India moved Southward and evolved into the Kanarese/Kannada. These Dravidian people spread neo-Harappan culture into much of Northern India. These Dravidians worshiped the god Amma. The Dravidians could not immediately conquer South India because it was already under the control of the Naga. In Indian tradition the Naga won central India from the Villavar (bowmen) and Minavar (fishermen). The Naga were great seamen who ruled much of India, Sri Lanka and Burma. To the Aryans they described as half man and snake. The Tamil knew them as warlike people who used the bow and noose. The earliest mention of the Naga, appear in the Ramayana , they are also mentioned in the Mahabharata. In the Mahabharata we discover that the Naga had the capital city in the Dekkan, and other cities spread between the Jumna and Ganges as early as 1300 BC. The Dravidian classic, the Chilappathikaran made it clear that the first great kingdom of India was Naganadu. The Naga probably came from Kush-Punt/Ethiopia.

The Puntites were the greatest sailors of the ancient world. In the Egyptian inscriptions there is mention of the Puntite ports of Outculit, Hamesu and Tekaru, which corresponds to Adulis, Hamasen and Tigre.

In Sumerian text, it is claimed that the Ountites traded with the people of the Indus Valley or Dilmun. According to S.N. Kramer in The Sumerians, Punt was probably called Meluhha, and Dilmun was probably the ancient name of the Indus Valley. (Today some scholars maintain that Oman, where we find no ancient cities was Dilmun and the Indus Valley may have been Meluhha).

Ancient Ethiopian traditions support the rule of Puntites or Ethiopians of India. In the Kebra Nagast, we find mention of the Arwe kings who ruled India. The founder of the dynasty was Za Besi Angabo. This dynasty according to the Kebra Nagast began around 1370 BC. These rulers of India and Ethiopia were called Nagas. The Kebra Nagast claims that "Queen Makeda "had servants and merchants; they traded for her at sea and on land in the Indies and Aswan". It also says that her son Ebna Hakim or Menelik I, made a campaign in the Indian Sea; the king of India made gifts and donations and prostrated himself before him". It is also said that Manalik ruled an empire that extended from the rivers of Egypt (Blue Nile) to the west and from the south Shoa to eastern India", according to the Kebra Nagast. The Kebra Nagast identification of an eastern Indian empire ruled by the Naga, corresponds to the Naga colonies in the Dekkan, and on the East coast between the Kaviri and Vaigai rivers.

The presence of Meluhhaites/ Puntites in India may explain the Greek tradition of Kusites ruling India up to the Ganges. It would also explain the Aryan traditions of Mlechchas ( Sanskrit name for some of the non-Aryan people) as one of the aboriginal groups of India. Many scholars associate the name Mlechchas with Meluhha.

The major Naga tribes were the Maravar, Eyinar, Oliyar, Oviyar, Aru-Valur and Parathavar. The Nagas resisted the invasion of the Cholas . In the Kalittokai IV,1-5, the Naga are described as being "of strong limbs and hardy frames and fierce looking tigers wearing long and curled locks of hair." The Naga kings of Sri Lanka are mentioned in the:

Mahawanso, and are said to have later become Dravidians, as testified to by the names of these people: Naganathan, Nagaratnam, Nagaraja and etc. The major gift of the Naga to India was the writing system: Nagari. Nagari is the name for the Sanskrit script. Over a hundred years ago Sir William Jones, pointed out that the ancient Ethiopic and Sanskrit writing are one and the same. He explained that this was supported by the fact that both writing systems the writing went from left to right and the vowels were annexed to the consonants. Today Eurocentric scholars teach that the Indians taught writing to the Ethiopians, yet the name Nagari for Sanskrit betrays the Ethiopia origin of this form of writing. Moreover, it is interesting to note that Sanskrit vowels: a,aa,'I,u,e,o, virama etc., are in the same order as Geez. Y.M. Kobishnor, in the Unesco History of Africa, maintains that Ethiopic was used as the model for Armenian writing, as was many of the Transcaucasian scripts.

The Naga introduced worship of Kali, the Serpent, Murugan and the Sun or Krishna. It is interesting that Krishna, who was associated with the Sun, means Black, this is analogous to the meaning of Khons of the Kushites. Homer, described Hercules as follows: "Black he stood as night his bow uncased, his arrow string for flight". This mention of arrows identifies the Kushites as warriors who used the bow, a common weapon of the Kushites and the Naga. Clyde

| 29186|2009-06-19 16:26:22|Asar Imhotep|IS THE CHINESE A COUSIN-OF THE KAFIR (Bantus)?|

Attachments :

wakwak\_bantu.pdf

Here is an excerpt that has an excerpt from the Chinese Review on the Wakwak people of South East Africa that may be of interest to this forum.

There is also a brief discussion on Sumerian and it seems to back up some things Dr. Winters talks about with the NKSD societies concerning MAA and its relationship to greatness. They provide the Sumerian terms mah, and mahhu which means supreme and then traces it to the English words magnify, magnitude, magnate. Here the ma- prefix signalling greatness.

Another interesting feature of this story is a possible connection between the Ma-gog of the Bible, Chinese and Bantu speakers. Would love feedback on that as well

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29187|2009-06-19 17:41:34|clyde winters|Re: Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet|

Hi

Here is the paper:

<http://www.geocities.com/Tokyo/Bay/7051/anwrite.htm>

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, Bradenqp@aol.com wrote:

From: Bradenqp@aol.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 5:19 AM

Asar and Cristofori,

Thanks very much. That is very helpful indeed. I'm unable to track down Dr. Winters' articles relating to this topic. Any links would be appreciated.

Thanks.

Paul Braden

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Wed, Jun 17, 2009 4:15 pm
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet

I can't recall the book i saw this in, however , speaking on pictographs becoming letters this book showed howan Egyptian word for a bird Akhome rendered the picture of the bird as an 'A'

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 1:54 PM

Peace

I have included in this email an article written by Dr. Theophile Obenga on the origin of writing. It may be instructive of your quest. I am also including the link to an old book titled: The Alphabet by Isaac Taylor. It may prove to be helpful. To download the book, look for the download link on the right.

http://books.google.com/books?id=T\_8sAAAYAAJ&pg=PA70&lpg=PA70&dq=origin+of+the+alphabet&source=bl&ots=INSBmmz5v7&sig=oi7f7hXG2\_7w2Vgg9jYynwo69bM&hl=en&ei=-Cs5SpjAHcOptgfQsKHnDA&sa=X&oi=book\_result&ct=result&resnum=3#PPA139,M1

I don't see how this is the case that "semetic" people came all the way to Egypt to create their script and then leave and not use it in Egypt. Secondly, although the kiKami script was mainly ideographic in its inception, since the beginning they had glyphs representing singular phonemes. To say that the Semites invented an Alphabet a thousand years after the ancient iKami people invented their alphabet, while still holding on to their ideogrammess, is illogical.

This is especially true when even in the article they admit it derived from the Egyptian script. I hope I have given you a starting point for research. Also check some of Dr. Clyde Winter's works on early proto-Saharan writing. They may be helpful as well.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Bradenqp@aol.com wrote:

From: Bradenqp@aol.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 10:21 AM

This article is a decade old, but I could use some help from members of this forum regarding the origins of alphabetic writing.....to debunk the contentions, below, of the author.....insisting on an eastern origin for alphabetic scripts. Any suggestions for sources for further investigation would be appreciated, particularly an authoritative text on the origins of alphabetic writing.

Thanks,

Paul Braden

---

Dell Days of Deals! June 15-24 - A New Deal Everyday!

| 29188|2009-06-19 17:41:43|clyde winters|Re: Kushites in Asia|

The Blacks who founded the Historic civilizations in Mesopotamia came from the Proto-Sahara.

These ancient Proto-Saharans as noted in earlier chapters were called Kushites. The Greco-Roman writers made it clear that there were two Kushite empires one in Asia and the other group in the area we call the Sudan, Nubia, and parts of southern Egypt. The Greek writer Homer alluded to the two Kushite empires, when he wrote "a race divided, whom the sloping rays; the rising and the setting sun surveys". The Greek traveler/historian Herodotus claimed that he derived this information from the Egyptians.

The Asian Proto-Saharans were also called Kushites or Ethiopians. The term Ethiopian comes from two Greek terms: Ethios 'burnt' and ops 'face', as a result Ethiopian means the 'burnt faces'. Herodotus and Homer, described these Ethiopians as "the most just of men; the favorites of the gods". The classical literature makes it clear that the region from Egypt to India was called by the name Ethiopia.

For example, the Elamites called themselves KHATAM, and their capital Susa: KUSI. In addition, the Kassites, who occupied the central part of the Zagros mountains were called KASHSHU. The Kushana, who helped invent the Meroitic writing, formerly occupied Chinese Turkistan (Xinjiang) and the Gansu province of China.

The Kushites in Asia, as in Africa were known for their skill as bowmen: Steu, the name of the people of Ta-Seti.

The decipherer of the cuneiform writing of Mesopotamia, Rawlinson, said Puntites and Kushites were established in Asia. He found mention of Kushiya and Puntiya in the inscriptions of Darius. He also made it clear that the name Kush was also applied to southern Persia, India, Elam, Arabia, and Colchis (a part of southern Russia/Turkistan) in ancient times.

The Armenians made it clear that the ancients called Persia, Media, Elam, Aria, and the entire area between the Tigris and Indus rivers

Kush.Bardeson, writing in his Book of the Laws of Countries, in the 2nd Century said that the "Bactrians who we called Qushani (or Kushans)".The Armenians, called the earlier Parthian: Kushan and acknowledged their connection with them. Homer, Herodotus, and the Roman scholar Strabo called southern Persia AETHIOPIA. The Greeks and Romans called the country east of Kerma: Kusan.

From Iran the Kushites used the natural entry point into China along the path running from the Zagros to the Altai mountains, and the Dzungarian gate. There is archaeological evidence indicating that farming communities village sites were established along this path of similar origin, which date back to 3500 BC. The archaeological data indicate that this agricultural economy spread from west to east.

Can these numerous Blacks in this area in ancient times explain the presense of R1 in this region today?

Concomitant Replacement of Language and mtDNA in South Caspian Populations of Iran - all 6 versions

I Nasidze, D Quinque, M Rahmani, SA Alemohamad, M - Current Biology, 2006 - Elsevier ... Haplogroup J2 (M172) was found at high frequency in both groups, as was haplogroup R1 (M173); together, these two haplogroups account for more than 50% of ...

It is interesting that the Levels of R1* from Cruciani et al. 2002 indicate that many Africans/ Blacks carry this haplogroup (language group & country in parentheses):

Ouldeme - 95% (Cameroon)
Mixed Chadic - 67%
Mixed Adamawa - 56%
Daba - 44% (C)
Fali - 23% (C)
Fulbe (Cameroon) - 12%* (also 5% K2)
Mixed Nilo-Saharan - 11%
Tali - 7% (C)

Rawlinson and the Classical authors was sure that the Kushite Nations in Asia, were founded by Africans. The genetic evidence may offer considerable support and proof to their proposition.

Black Eurasians

William Leo Hansberry gives a great discussion of the evidence of African Kushites ruling in Asia and Africa. Some ancient scholars noted that the first rulers of Elam were of Kushite ( Kerma ? ) origin. According to Strabo, the first Elamite colony at Susa was founded by Tithnus, a King of Kush. Strabo in Book 15, Chapter 3728 wrote that in fact it is claimed that Susa was founded by Tithonus Memnon's father, and his citadel bore the name Memnonium. The Susians are also called Cissians. Aeschylus, calls Memnon's mother Cissia.

William Leo Hansberry, African History Notebook, (1981) Volume 2 noted that:

In Persia the old Negroid element seems indeed to have been sufficiently powerful to maintain the overlord of the land. For the Negritic strain is clearly evident in statuary depicting members of the royal family ruling in the second millenium B.C.

Hundreds of years later, when Xerxes invaded Greece, the type was well represented in the Persian army. In the remote mountain regions bordering on Persia and Baluchistan, there is to be found at the present time a Negroid element which bears a remarkable resemblance to the type represented on the ancient mounments. Hence the Negritic or Ethiopian type has proved persistent in this area, and in ancient times it seems to have constituted numerically and socially an important factor in the population" (p.52) .

King Xerxes and other Persian Brothers

---

Here is the real Cyrus

Clyde

| 29189|2009-06-19 17:41:52|clyde winters|Re: Nubian-Kametic-Sumerian-Dravidian Civilization|

What is the character of the soul among the Kametians, Sumerians, Olmecs and Dravidians. For purposes of this paper we will call the Sumerians, Olmecs and Dravidians Kushites, since the ancestors of these people lived in the Highland Areas of Middle Africa: the Proto-Sahara, and practiced a culture and civilization as typified by the rock art in the region--similar to that of the C-Group people. Below we discover the ultimate objective of the Kushite for the soul to become pure or white.

If this is correct in this interpretation of the Kametian-Sumerian- Kushite-Dravidian view of mans soul it should be present in the languages of these people. To test this hypothesis we will discuss the culture terms from these languages related to the term soul.

In most of these languages the basic ideas about purity and the soul is indicated by two words ba/pa and or bo/po, with the possible addition of an / l / or /r/ as a final element to these monosyllabic terms.

We learn from the seals of the Dravidian speaking Harappans that they sought righteousness and a spotlessly pure mind, for purity of mind was the sine quo non for happiness within. You can find out more about Harappan religion and writing at the following sites:

<http://www.geocities.com/olmec982000/Indus.html>

<http://geocities.com/olmec982000/grammar1.pdf>

<http://geocities.com/olmec982000/IndusInspiration.pdf>

Tolkappiyam makes it clear that in Tamil pa(l), denoted Karma. In Sangam times pal was considered the sum and the consequences of a persons action, i.e., his Fate or destiny. Tiruvallur used pal to denote Fate or the Law of Nature. K. Appadurai, in the Mind and Thoughts of Tiruvallur, noted that pal in its external form is the veda, or word of God that makes everything perfect, undying, everlasting and that forever grows, and is growing internal Bliss. The fact that pal represents that undying and perfect aspect of man corresponds to Logas interpretation of the Kushite view of the soul reflected that this aspect of man was both eternal and perfect.

In Dravidian we also find that in addition to pal meaning Fate, it also meant distribution, while pala in Tamil means many and diverse.

The Tamil concept of pal corresponds to that of the Sumerians. In Sumerian we find the word bar . Bar has several meanings including soul and white. The view here that the bar is both the soul and also something that is white or pure corresponds favorably to pal the Tamil conception of that aspect of man which is both everlasting and pure.

The Dravidians and Mande people who founded the Shang and Xia civilizations, respectively in China, also took the concept that the soul was pure to the Mongoloid Chinese people. We know very little about the sounds of ancient Chinese because Ancient Chinese was different from Old Chinese and Middle Chinese and the modern Chinese dialects. (Ramsey 1987, pp.137-138) This results from the fact that the Chinese dynasties were founded by diverse ethnic groups e.g., Xia and Shang li (i.e., Black Shang) were founded by Dravidian and Manding speakers. Shang-Yin was founded by classical mongoloids, and the Zhou by the contemporary Chinese. ) This explains the difference in pronunciation for Ancient Chinese spoken by the Xia and Shang peoples who were Africans and Dravidians formerly belonging to the C-Group people of Middle Africa, and Old and Middle Chinese or a variant thereof, which was probably spoken by the Zhou and later Mongoloid Chinese people. See:

<http://geocities.com/olmec982000/xia.htm>

<http://www.geocities.com/Tokyo/Bay/7051/DRAVIDIANS.html>

<http://geocities.com/olmec982000/blshang2.htm>

<http://clyde.winters.tripod.com/junezine/id1.html>

The Shang characters compare favorably to the ancient Proto- Saharan script used by the Harappans in the Indus Valley and the Manding script used in the ancient Sahara and Crete . Winters (1985c) outlined the spread of the Proto-Saharan script to Harappa, and throughout Saharan Africa and Asia by the Dravidians and Manding.

<http://www.geocities.com/Tokyo/Bay/7051/anwrite.htm>

Evidence of Chinese writing first appears around 2000 B.C. as pottery marks. The shell-and-bone characters represented writing they were not pictures. The Shang symbols compare favorably with ancient Manding symbols.

In Chinese the term for white is bai, while the term for soul is bo. Because the pronunciation of Chinese has changed over the centuries because of the frequent conquest of the country by diverse people since the fall of the Xia and Shang civilizations Chinese researchers have developed many theories to explain the origin of bai in Chinese for the terms white (and soul). Some scholars believe that bai , may have got its meaning for white, from bo soul, through the idea that soul, represents emptiness . I believe that this view for the origin of bai , may be wrong. This results from the fact that many people have attempted to use bai, in relation to its association with humans and ethnic groups to describe these people as literally white. Thus they may translate bai ren as white men/man.

During Zhou, times many Dravidians (Shang) and Xia (Mande) people were sacrificed by the Mongoloid Chinese. Theses people were later called li Qiang Black Qiang by the Zhou. In many of the oral bone inscriptions of the Zhou we see the phrase bai Qiang, some Chinese researchers have translated this phrase as white Qiang. This interpretation is probably wrong. The fact that bai, is related to soul and white suggest that bai Qiang, may be interpreted as holy Qiang or Pure Qiang, in reference to the sacrifice of Qiang religious men during Zhou rituals.

This belief in sacrificing Qiang (Dravidians and Mande) by the Zhou to obtain blessing from their gods, may correspond to the popularity during the lated 19th Century and first half of the 20th Century of burning and lynching blacks by the KKK as a form of ritual sacrifice of Blacks to purify the white racists of the American South and Midwest. This suggest that just as bar in Sumerian meant both soul and white, bai and bo had similar meanings because they entered the Chinese language via the Dravidians and Mande who founded Chinese civilization.

The view that the soul is pure, appears to have also been the belief of the Olmec people. The Olmec people of Mexico are considered to be the Mother Civilization of all Meso-American civilizations. The Olmec called themselves Xi (Shi), they spoke a language similar to Malinke-Bambara which is a member of the Mande family of languages. It is interesting to note that the symbol for bai in Chinese, is a box.

Among the Olmec the box shaped symbol is pronounced po pure, superlative of white and clean, just as in the Mande languages. Among the Olmec the term bo meant spirit, principal of life, great, moral gradeur and ghost. The identification of the Olmec representation of white, pure and spirit (which may denote an aspect of man akin to soul) as po/ bo highlights Logas identification of the Kushite concept of this aspect of man as both the soul and purity/ white.

In conclusion, although their are different contemporary pronunciations ba/pa and bo/po , along with the symbols used to represent these words in Chinese and Olmec writing, they have the same meaning and shape. This suggest a genetic relationship between the idea of the soul as pure among the Kametians-Dravidians-Olmecs-Mande-Sumerians. The present pronunciation of the Chinese symbols probably has little relationship to the ancient pronunciation of Chinese spoken in Xia and Shang times when these characters were first used, but the recovery of the actual meaning of these words from looking at Olmec and Tamil, make it clear that Chinese bai did not come from emptiness, it obtained its meaning from the recognition that bo represents the souls migration to attain purity.

This cognation of specialized terms for soul, and white; and the writing systems supports the proposed Dravidian and Manding migration and settlement of ancient Sumer, Mexico , China during Xia times and the Indus Valley. It was in these diverse geographical areas that the Kushites left their recognition that the soul is pure.
Clyde

| 29190|2009-06-19 17:52:27|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Check out YouTube - Intro to Black Magic; Khemistry Alchemy GAGU|

In light of the fact that we are in the summer solstice of the gregorian year 2009 here is a nice vid.

<http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-9157350247036207927>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 6/19/09, AUSAR65@aol.com wrote:

From: AUSAR65@aol.com
Subject: Check out YouTube - Intro to Black Magic; Khemistry Alchemy GAGUT 2/5
To: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com, Afrikannubian@aol.com
Date: Friday, June 19, 2009, 6:22 PM

YouTube - Intro to Black Magic; Khemistry Alchemy GAGUT 2/5

---

Dell Inspiron 15: Now starting at \$349

| 29191|2009-06-19 17:52:49|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: IS THE CHINESE A COUSIN-OF THE KAFIR (Bantus)?|

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Here is an excerpt that has an excerpt from the Chinese Review on the Wakwak people of South East Africa that may be of interest to this forum.

>

>

Muslim writers used "Wakwak" to refer generally to a location in Southeast Asia, but also sometimes to Madagascar or other locations SE Africa.

The idea that Wakwak referred to Japan seems to rest solely on the Chinese name for Japan, which was Wa. However, the geographical, physical and cultural description clearly indicate insular SE Asia.

There was a similar confusion concerning the terms Zang, Zanj, etc. and Zani, Zabag, Zabaj, etc.

One reason for this is probably that the Muslims had learned Ptolemaic geography, which they absorbed from conquered Christian territory. Ptolemy believed that southern Africa was connected by land with SE Asia.

This confusion was heightened by the fact that a good part of the spice trade from Southeast and East Asia flowed directly into southern Africa before heading to northern ports.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29192|2009-06-19 20:04:28|Tafari khumbaka|Obama's groomer, mentor|

<http://www.exacteditions.com/exact/browse/432/532/3469/3/72>

zbignew brezinski, man behind pesident Obama.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29193|2009-06-20 03:24:21|Shri Sa Hetep|Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?|

Attachments :

Lemuria.docx

Excellent Info on Lemuria. Please also see attached another map by James Churchward. It shows the migration pattern of the people escaping Lemuria.

Peace-n-Blessings,

Shri Sa Hetep

--- On Fri, 6/19/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, June 19, 2009, 8:31 AM

Hi

Sundaland is further north around southeast Asia.

Kumari Nadu connected India and Africa

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 9:47 PM

kamari-nadu is called by some modern archaeologist sundaland.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 9:37 PM

Hi Roger

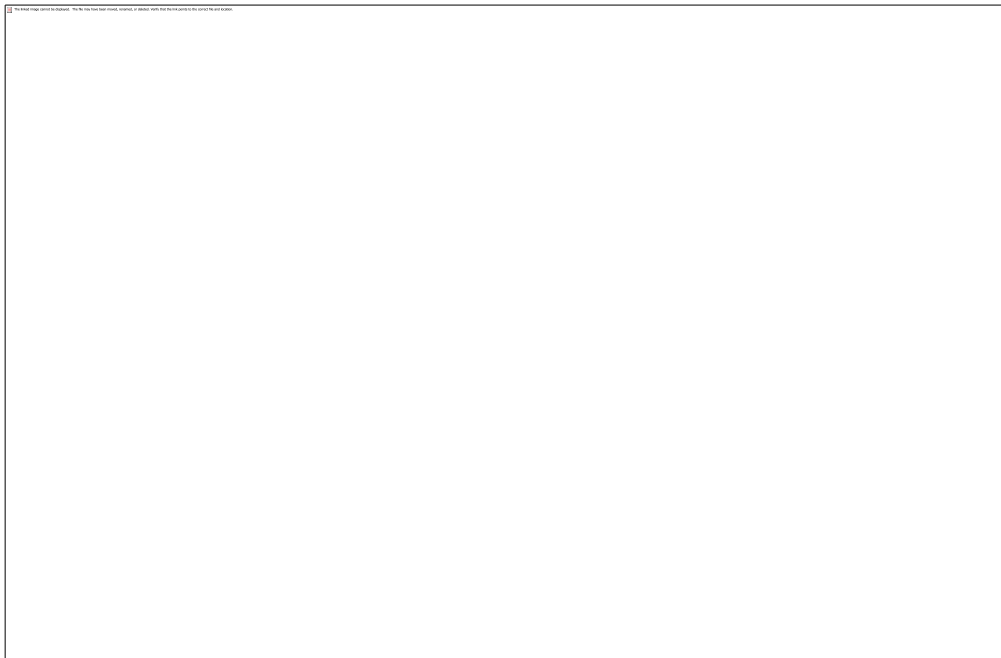

I think I need to explain to you several things. First of all the Dravidians are not related to the pygmies. The pygmies appear to be related to the Munda people of India.

I agree that the pygmies may have formerly lived on Lemuria. But I don't believe they were there between 78kya (kya=thousand years ago)and 28kya. It appears to me that the first people to leave Africa were the Australians 60kya. After the Australians left Africa, we see the Bushman people moving into Europe from Africa via Spain. They are called Cro-Magnon or Grimaldi people.

The pygmies probably left Africa between 15kya and 10kya. They ruled the world until the great flood around 6kya. After 6kya they were replaced by the contemporary Blacks in Asia,Africa and Europe.

I agree with you that many Africans entered Asia via Lemuria but the Dravidian people are quite recent migrants to India. The archaeological evidence for the Megalithic culture of South India, and the Indus Vallley indicate that the Dravidians were part of the C-Group people of Nubia and Egypt. This is why their language is genetically related to the Niger-Congo Group.

The Dravidians call this landmass Kumari Nadu or Kumari Kandan.

Kumarinadu

The Naga were defeated by another group of Dravidian speaking people from Kumarinadu. Kamarinadu is supposed to have formerly existed as a large Island in the India ocean which connected India with East Africa. This landmass is mentioned in the Silappadikaram, which said that Kamarinadu was made up of seven nadus or regions. The Dravidian scholars Adiyarkunallar and Nachinaar wrote about the ancient principalities of Tamilaham, which existed on Kamarinadu.

Kumarinadu was ruled by the Pandians/Pandians at Madurai before it sunk beneath the sea. The greatest king of Kumarinadu was Sengoon. According to Dravidian scholars the Pandians worshipped the goddess Kumari Amman. This Aman, probably corresponds to the ancient god Amon of the Kushites. The Kalittokai 104, makes it clear that after the Pandians were forced to migrate off their Island home into South India, "to compensate for the area lost to the great waves of the sea, King Pandia without tiresome moved to the other countries and won them. Removing the emblems of tiger (Cholas) and bow (Cheras) he, in their place inscribed his reputed emblem fish (Pandian's) and valiantly made his enemies bow to him".

The mention of the fish emblem indicates the African origin of the Pandians. The Proto-Saharans claimed that their great ancestor was Ma and that they belonged to the Ma (fish) clan. Fish tails were a common feature of the Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians and Dravidians.

The common god of the fish cult was the man-fish (of Eridu) in Mesopotamia and Syria, and the ithyphallic forms of Min, a proto-type of Amon (Amman) in Egypt, the goddess Minaaksi of Madura, Amma of the Dogon, the goddess of the fish eyes, the Malabar fish bearer of Maana; and the sacred fishes of the Maapilla of the West coast of the Dekkan. At ancient Adulis, the Greeks claimed that the fish worshippers were called Ichthyophagi or Poseidon.

In fact the first kings of these people used the consonants MNS, in the term used for king: Menes, King Aha of Egypt, Mannan of the Dravidians, and the Mansa of the Mande speaking people. The descendants of Ma, include this name in their ethnonyms: Mande= "the children of Ma". And in Kannada, Telugu and Tulu, the word Mandi= "people".

The Pandyans who probably spoke Malayalam, were worshippers of Posidon or Potidan of the Greeks. Just as the Kalittokai, mentioned that the totem of Pandia was the Fish, we find that Africans in areas adjoining the former lands associated with Kumarinadu also worshipped the Fish.

As a result in ancient times

Nubia and modern Ethiopia was called Poseidonia due to their worship of Poseidon the god of the sea and the mountains.

The major god worshipped by the Pandyans and East Africans is Murugan, the god of the mountains. This mountain god of the Dravidians: Murugan, has the name among 25 east African ethnic groups.

The Greek god Posidon of the East Africans parallels the Dravidian god Siva. The god Siva is sometimes referred to as the "Great Fish" and represented by Fish signs. In addition, throughout Tamilnadu, tridents are associated with temples dedicated to the worship of Siva. The trident was also associated with Siva.

The final Dravidian speaking people to enter South India were the Tamil. The Tamil, who were early Kings of Shang China, were forced out of China by the Zhou dynast and other contemporary mongoloid groups, across Southeast Asia and Tibet into India. These people defeated the Pandyans , Cholas and Cheras and became the dominant group in South India.

In Summary , Dravidian literature makes it clear that the Dravidian people came to

South India from the North, South and East. These people took away the South from the Naga (Puntites and Kushites), who along with the Dravidians worshipped the gods Amon and Murugan. Moreover, it was the Ethiopians who probably introduced Sanskrit writing to the Indians. It is due to this history of Dravidian speaking people that explains the close, genetic unity between the language and cultures of the people.

I hope this clarifies my thoughts on Lemuria/Kumari Nadu from a Dravidian perspective.

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 1:21 PM

thanks for your reply. what i found to be interesting in the reply was your statement on 'ge alteration'; seems as though some fascinating happenings were going on with our earliest ancestors. if the earliest populations were 'peaceful inhabitants' why would their have to be type of 'genetic alteration' occurring?

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered [Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 4:59 PM

Hello Brother Whitakara,

I am aware of this map and there are some others as well. For example, the one that refers "Pandyen Kindom" (see attachment). My interest in this topic is because of the perception Badarian and Amratian people are said to be the descendants of the Lemurian and Atlantean people respectively. Based on a reference attributed to the Hindu Tradition, it is further stated that the Lemurian descendants populated the east coast of Africa; while the Atlantean descendants populated Africa's west coast. If true, this may explain the Wolof's relationship to the Olmec people.

In this light, I think Doc Winter's previous response to me carried validity, but his response was confined solely to the Taurean Age, I was referring to earlier periods. Simply, I think the Pygmies migrated out of Africa to points east and basically circumnavigated the globe, and the Tamils of India are linked to the Pygmies as well. According to at least one account, the Lemurian civilization rose approximately 78,000 years ago, lasted as an empire for 52,000 years and was destroyed by earthquakes 26,000 years ago. The question for me what initiated the migration? Was it the need for food, get away from the searing heat of the equator, or in the aftermath of the first catastrophic event?

Researchers say they have evidence that a very large meteor hit just east of Africa many m yeast ago, and in the region close to great lakes. Could this be the event remembered regarding the 'flood' in Pygmy mythology? The bottomline, I am thinking that the some Pygmies migrated out of Africa for whatever reason, established Lemuria, then other parts of the world and Atlantis, and then returned home via the west and north coasts of Africa. However, by the time they had done so, and reached the Nile Valley, at least two instances of 'genetic alteration' had occurred. But what appeared to be a Valley of peaceful inhabitants soon evolved into a situation of philosophical conflict in the region, and lay at the foundation of the myth regarding the "Contention of Horus and Seth".

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Mon, 6/8/09, cristofori whitakara wrote:

From: cristofori whitakara

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 8, 2009, 2:42 PM

--- On Fri, 6/5/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Friday, June 5, 2009, 3:59 PM

Hello Doc, and Thanks for Responding,

I cant dispute what you are saying, but as it pertain to a migration from (even to the southeast from North Africa), I am however implying the po earlier time frame. I am interested in the Sacred Sciences of Africa at that the east coast of Africa (also India) was populated with inhabitants and the west coast with the inhabitants from Atlantis (Sacred Science: Pharaonic Theocracy de Lubicz).

Thus, if this is so, and the Pygmies are the indigenous people of the world to agree, then, a major adjustment in the time frame of African history Africa is the cradle of humanity and the first civilization of the world there appeared to be overall an easterly migration pattern, i.e., from Africa to Mesopotamia, India, Australia, the Islands, etc. Then, Atlantis have ascended with the sinking of Lemuria, which in turn sank approximately 10,000 BC., leading to the population of North & West Africa . . . then the migr you have given. All in all, I am referring to a pattern of migration that appears to be more 60,000 years, and linking the high civilizations of antiquity to Africa.

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

--- On Wed, 6/3/09, clyde winters wrote:

From: clyde winters

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 3, 2009, 10:12 PM

Hi

Good questions. It appears from my research that the contemporary African groups formerly lived in the highland regions. The low-lands were civilized by the Anu or pgymy people.

A cataclysm occurred around 4000 BC or earlier which separated the numerous pgymy civilizations. This is why we find evidence of pgymies living on every continent.

The Proto-Saharans came down from the highlands and began to occupy Nubia. From here they took migrated up the Nile and conquered the Anu rulers of Egypt and began the First Dynasty.

By the 12 and 18th Dynasties other "Nubians" came up the Nile and introduced Amen, the traditional god of the Proto-Saharans.

I don't see a migration from West to East because the archaeology indicates a movement of people from the highlands, down into Nubia and the Fezzan and thence movement into West Africa.

It appears that the major group in West Africa were the Anu people. This is supported by the traditions of many West Africans that when they arrived on the scene the region was already settled by "small peoples".

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/2/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Tuesday, June 2, 2009, 12:26 PM

This post is for Doc Winters,

I have a follow-up question to your response to Asar . . . if you don't mind. I was under the impression that "no one" knew how to 'speak' the Egyptian dialect due to its antiquity, even though the hieroglyphs were compared initially with Greek phonic values. Thus, did the study and comparison of the phonic values of the Coptic alphabet to the hieroglyphs confer the ability to 'speak' the Egyptian language?

A second question, if you please: It appears that in your work of the 'proto-Saharan' people indicate that from the fertile crescent of Africa, they (language) migrated eastwards from the region becoming the Dravidians, Egyptians, Elamites, Sumerians, etc. Have you come across evidence that these people may have migrated to the fertile African crescent from points west?

Roger Asterilla

<http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

---

From: Roger Asterilla

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Sent: Tuesday, June 2, 2009 1:53:49 AM

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

You might want to check out Massey's "Egyptian Origin of Words" in his Book of Beginnings. If you have time also check out the: <http://alchemyguildofdc.ning.com/>

Roger

--- On Mon, 6/1/09, Paul Kekai Manansala lnet> wrote:

From: Paul Kekai Manansala

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Has a study been done on how each glyph has been decyphered?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Monday, June 1, 2009, 8:51 PM

Bernal in "Black Athena" also has a nice discussion of the reconstruction of the Egyptian sound system from Coptic and Egyptian words found in other ancient languages.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

> >

> > I appreciate it Paul

> > However, I am familiar with this bit of history and it doesn't tell me how an Egyptologist decided on what glyphs meant what as certain values have changed since the time of Champollion. Even some of Budge's renderings have been disputed in the early 1900s. So I am looking for a study that would address why current Egyptologists have issues with certain earlier renderings of the glyphs and their phonetic values.

> >

> >
>
> The Gardiner or Gardiner-derived pronunciation probably.
>
> Check out: Antonio Loprieno, Ancient Egyptian, A linguistic introduction, Cambridge University Press, 1995.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 29194|2009-06-20 12:37:34|Asar Imhotep|The Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis|

Attachments :

The Union of the Two Lands.pdf

Peace Phamily

I had some thoughts that I put in journal form that I want the list to review concerning clarity on the unification of the two lands as espoused in ancient Egyptian literature. I have a hypothesis that may or may not lead somewhere. So tell me what you think. I put it in a pdf document because I included some Mdw Ntr script and wanted to ensure everyone gets it.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29195|2009-06-20 12:43:10|Obadele (abibitumikasa.com)|Akom Songs Workshop; Repatriation Course; Afrikan Martial Arts Class|

All Abibitumi Kasa members, please be sure to forward emails about upcoming classes. Even if you can't make it, there are Afrikans you may know whose very lives may be saved by the vital information that Abibitumi Kasa teachers are going out of their way to make available to the Afrikan world. Please support in this small way...!

Link to Baba Balogun's Afrikan Martial Arts class online:

<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/balogun.htm>

Link to all Abibitumi Kasa Classes

<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/classes.html>

Link to Ras AriEl's repatriation class:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/ariel.htm>

Link to FREE Surviving Yurugu Insanity workshop:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/afrikan-events-happenings/39963-surviving-yurugu-insanity-open-discussion-workshop-saturday-june-27th.html>

Link to Obadele Kwame Kambon's Akom Songs Workshop:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/afrikan-events-happenings/40091-2-day-akom-songs-workshop.html>

Live Interactive Online and Accra, Ghana Afrikan Language Classes

Register for Free Afrikan Liberation Institute

Sign Up for AKALI Mailing List

Abibitumi Kasa Fundraiser

| 29196|2009-06-20 12:53:50|Asar Imhotep|Can Yoruba help us understand ancient Egyptian?|
Peace Phamily

I thought I would include for the forum the intro to a working Dictionary of Ifa terminology as understood by priests, and not the layman. It is created by Awo Fatumbi out of Louisiana. What's interesting about this passage is he suggests something that I have always thought about the ancient Egyptian language, and that the language of the iKami was a created language, a purposeful language and the construction of some words can attest to. I might create a document that supports that theory for the list when I have time in the future. It will have you wondering what came first, the chicken or the egg?

I also present this passage to inform readers a method in which African people interpret reality and their own languages: how words come to be and how to read into them. I like this passage because it provides a method (unintentionally) on how to possibly read the M-Du Njora (Mdw Ntr) script. I leave that up for the forum to catch.

AWO YORUBA
THE LANGUAGE OF IF|br>GLOSSARY OF TERMS
USED IN IF`DIVINATION

Introduction

In order to understand the oral tradition of Ifa it is necessary to have some grasp of the language of Ifa. The rituals, invocations, incantations and recitations of traditional Yoruba religion are not expressed through conversational Yoruba. The language of Ifa is liturgical Yoruba (ofo ase), a language used among diviners to express transcendent ideas. Many of the words used in Ifa have a tonal resonance used to access the power of Spirit. Physics teaches the idea that all power in the universe is part of a sign wave which is the full spectrum of light. Every segment of the sign wave manifests as both color and pitch. The tonal quality of words used in liturgical Yoruba places the diviner in harmonic resonance with the tonal essence of a wide range of Spiritual Forces (Orisa). The remarkable quality of liturgical Yoruba is that the words used for invocation also carry meaning that reveals the inner essence of the Spiritual Force itself.

For example, the word Obatala is used to describe the Force in Nature science calls white light. Ifa teaches that everything in the universe has some form of consciousness (ori). Saying the word Obatala places human consciousness in alignment with the consciousness of white light. It does while telling us something about the quality of white light. The word Obatala is an elysian of the phrase; O (Spirit) ba (power of expansion or male energy ie; Baba) ota (stone) ala (light). The word Obatala in the context of Odu Ifa (Yoruba Scripture) means; the Spirit of the expansive quality of light that comes from the eternal stone of Creation (center point of the universe).

Olatunde Sproye in his book Yoruba without Tears states there are one hundred and twenty-six combinations of vowels and consonants used as the basis for the Yoruba Language.

ba be bi bo bu da de di do du fa fe fi fo fo fu ga ge gi go gu gba gbe gbi gbo gbu ha he hi ho hu ja je ji jo ju ka ke ki ko ku la le li lo lu ma me mi mo mu na ne ne ni no nu pa pe pi po pu ra re ri ro ru sa se si so su ta te ti to tu wa we wi wo wo wu ya ye yi yo yu

All Yoruba words are a combination of these fundamental sounds. One of the rules of Yoruba language construction is that portions of a word can be doubled for a change in emphasis, for example; ba (expansive power) baba (father) babagba or baba baba (grandfather). Doubling a word refers to its source or parent, for example Dada (Spirit of Vegetation) would be the parent of da (create). Repeating the word da (create) suggests recreation or the power of vegetation to continuously go throw the process of birth, growth, death and rebirth.

If we double each of the one hundred and twenty-six combinations used as the basis for Yoruba language we get two hundred and fifty-two fundamental linguistic building blocks. Ifa scripture is based on two hundred and fifty six fundamental principles. The first four principles represent the cycle of birth, life, death and rebirth. These four principles support the rest of Creation. The rest of Creation comes into being through the manifestation of two hundred and fifty two Forces in Nature. This suggests to me the foundation of Yoruba language has been linked to Odu Ifa from its inception.

The first Yoruba English dictionaries were prepared by Christian missionaries who had no understanding or desire to learn the spiritual mysteries preserved in the Yoruba language. When Ifa and Orisa spread through the Diaspora it was influenced by non African religions concepts. I believe the best way to uncover the fundamental principles of Ifa as it was originally envisioned is through a study of the liturgical language.

When I wrote the book Iwa-pele I looked up the word Ifayabale in the Yoruba English dictionary in an effort to better understand a metaphysical concept. The dictionary defined Ifayabale as the ascension of our Lord and Master Jesus Christ. I believe the word predates Christianity and this definition is in error. To me the word Ifayabale is an elysian of Ifa (wisdom) iya (mother) baba (father) ile (earth), meaning; the wisdom of the fathers and mothers found on earth. This glossary is a preliminary attempt to understand Ifa theology through an understanding of Yoruba language. The words were taken from Odu Ifa as it is recited in Ile Ife and most of the vocabulary reflects the dialect of that particular region. I am sure many of my definitions will change as my understanding of Ifa and Yoruba language grows. This should not be considered a definitive study. Hopefully it will serve as a point of departure for theological linguistic analysis. Bit by bit we eat the head of the rat.

Ase o
Awo Falokun Fatunmbi

Ancestrally,

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29197|2009-06-20 19:16:38|asar_imhotep@yahoo.com|Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis|

Attachments :

The

Peace pham

I originally sent the wrong one. That was before my edits and additional pictures. Here's the correct one.

Peace Phamily

I had some thoughts that I put in journal form that I want the list to review concerning clarity on the unification of the two lands as espoused in ancient Egyptian literature. I have a hypothesis that may or may not lead somewhere. So tell me what you think. I put it in a pdf document because I included some Mdw Ntr script and wanted to ensure everyone gets it.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29198|2009-06-21 20:07:03|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis [1 Att|

Good work.....

manetho's list makes the time of the God's and demigod's very apparent.

<http://ascendingpassage.com/Pharaoh-List-1.htm> not in every detail but definately with the substance,.. my simple understanding would agree with you.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Sat, 6/20/09, asar_imhotep@yahoo.com wrote:

From: asar_imhotep@yahoo.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis [1 Attachment]
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com
Date: Saturday, June 20, 2009, 9:15 PM

Peace pham

I originally sent the wrong one. That was before my edits and additional pictures. Here's the correct one.

---

Peace Phamily

I had some thoughts that I put in journal form that I want the list to review concerning clarification of the unification of the two lands as espoused in ancient Egyptian literature. I have a hypothesis that may or may not lead somewhere. So tell me what you think. I put it in a pdf document because I included some Mdw Ntr script and wanted to ensure everyone gets it.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29199|2009-06-21 20:57:54|druwinan|Re: The brain as a phisic|
The great broadening of the perceptios possibilities...
By help of this you can to reach anybody (even the aliens) in theyr "stay"
...<http://royal-magic.webs.com/>

But usually ... It is the perfect trainig system for practioners of many religions... especialy suits for pagans, druids, shintoists and so one.

| 29200|2009-06-21 20:57:57|nathaniel x vance|Petition to Free the Wrongfully Convicted Mississippi Scott Sisters|

To whom it may concern:

For over 14 miserable years, these two falsely accused incarcerated sisters (Jamie and Gladys Scott) have languished in a gruesome Mississippi prison for a trumped up $11.00 dollars crime that neither of them committed, in which they both received DOUBLE LIFE! Neither of them had any previous criminal records, no one was hurt, and the entire judiciary process from start to finish was heavily tainted by racial malpractice, witness coercion, threats, and harassment.

This travesty of injustice began in 1993 in Scott County Mississippi. It is alleged that two county Sheriffs had a beef with the sisters' father over him refusing to pay cash payoffs to the Sheriffs, whereas the Sheriffs threatened to wreck havoc upon the entire family if payment did not continue. The father refused, and soon thereafter, the Sheriffs succeeded in carrying out their threat, as Jamie and Gladys were falsely charged with armed robbery and later subsequently convicted. During the trial however, there were numerous inconsistencies and contradictions, and to make matters worst, both of the sisters lawyers were at best incompetent in their legal representation. As of this writing, the States three witnesses have all recanted their coerced statements implicating Jamie and Gladys by a signed affidavit, but no court has seen fit to either reopen their case or seriously consider the sister's request for a retrial.

We are asking every person to sign this Free the Scott Sisters petition. Both Jamie and Gladys Scott need to be immediately exonerated and released. Your help is also needed and urged.

Thank you all.

<<http://scottsisters.petitionhost.com/>>

<<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Free-the-Scott-Sisters-Committee/>>

Sincerely,

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29201|2009-06-21 20:58:23|odhiambo okech|Fw: [madaraka-kenya] More photos; 2nd Edition KCDN Peace Run/Walk [3]

--- On Sun, 6/21/09, odhiambo okech wrote:

Date: Sunday, June 21, 2009, 5:06 AM

These are some of the photos we took on 13th June.

Odhiambo

| 29202|2009-06-21 20:58:52|nattyreb|Re: Scott Sisters Petition|

Peace all,

The Petition, Yahoo Group, Press Release, and every and anything else emanating from Nathaniel X Vance as regards the Scott Sisters is of his own*independent*creation.

Nathaniel X Vance doesNOTrepresent the family of the Scott Sisters or the campaign to Free the Scott Sisters in any way, shape or form. Mrs. Evelyn Rasco, the mother of the Scott Sisters, has appointed Nancy Lockhart as the representative for her daughters. Mrs. Rasco is enormously upset at the actions of this man operating under false pretenses in an already painfully traumatic case.

The petition for the Scott Sisters is at:

<http://www.ipetitions.com/petition/Free-Jamie-Gladys/index.html>

The website for the Scott Sisters is at:<http://www.freethescottsisters.com>

There is also a blogspot for the Scott Sisters at:

<http://www.freejami eandgladyscott.blogspot. com/>

Contact person is: Nancy Lockhart at thewrongfulconviction@gmail.com

Forward ever!

Sis. Marpessa,nattyreb@verizon.net

| 29203|2009-06-21 21:00:04|Bradenqp@aol.com|Re: Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet|

Thank you very much, Prof. Winters.

Regards,
Paul Braden

-----Original Message-----

From: clyde winters

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Thu, Jun 18, 2009 9:12 pm

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet

Hi

Here is the paper:

<http://www.geocities.com/Tokyo/Bay/7051/anwrite.htm>

Clyde

--- On Thu, 6/18/09, Bradenqp@aol. com wrote:

From: Bradenqp@aol. com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Thursday, June 18, 2009, 5:19 AM

Asar and Cristofori,

Thanks very much. That is very helpful indeed. I'm unable to track down Dr. Winters' articles relating to this topic. Any links would be appreciated.

Thanks.

Paul Braden

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Sent: Wed, Jun 17, 2009 4:15 pm
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet

I can't recall the book i saw this in, however , speaking on pictographs becoming letters th showed howan Egyptian word for a bird Akhome rendered the picture of the bird as an 'A'

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet [1 Attachment]
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 1:54 PM

Peace

I have included in this email an article written by Dr. Theophile Obenga on the origin of w It may be instructive of your quest. I am also including the link to an old book titled: The Alphabet by Isaac Taylor. It may prove to be helpful. To download the book, look for the download link on the right.

http://books.google.com/books?id=T\_8sAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA70&lpg=PA70&dq=origi+the+alphabet&source=bl&ots=INSBmmz5v7&sig=oi7f7hXG2\_7w2Vgg9jYynwo69bM&hl=en&ei=-Cs5SpjAHcOptgfQsKHnDA&sa=X&oi=book\_result&ct=result&resnum=3#PPA139,M1

I don't see how this is the case that "semetic" people came all the way to Egypt to create their script and then leave and not use it in Egypt. Secondly, although the kiKami script was mainly ideographic in its inception, since the beginning they had glyphs representing singular phonemes. To say that the Semites invented an Alphabet a thousand years after the ancient iKami people invented their alphabet, while still holding on to their ideogrammess, is illogical.

This is especially true when even in the article they admit it derived from the Egyptian script. I hope I have given you a starting point for research. Also check some of Dr. Clyde Winter's works on early proto-Saharan writing. They may be helpful as well.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Wed, 6/17/09, Bradenqp@aol. com wrote:

From: Bradenqp@aol. com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Question re: The Origin of the Alphabet

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2009, 10:21 AM

This article is a decade old, but I could use some help from members of this forum regarding the origins of alphabetic writing.....to debunk the contentions, below, of the author.....insisting on an eastern origin for alphabetic scripts. Any suggestions for sources for further investigation would be appreciated, particularly an authoritative text on the origins of alphabetic writing.

Thanks,
Paul Braden

---

Dell Days of Deals! June 15-24 - A New Deal Everyday!

---

An Excellent Credit Score is 750. See Yours in Just 2 Easy Steps!

| 29204|2009-06-21 21:08:12|nathaniel x vance|UFOs or Hoaxes? [6-21-09]|

UFOs or Hoaxes? [6-21-09]

This month has been a godsend to say the least in UFO sightings from all over the world! There has been UFO Sightings in Australia, Amsterdam, Virginia, NW Missouri, Britain, and Mexico to name just a few. Even the space astronauts have reported strange unidentified objects with CNN Larry King chiming in on the many recent occurrences! He concluded that we are not being told the truth about UFOs.

Please do yourself a favor, and click these links below. Your conclusion about the reality of UFOs - if you have any doubts should be henceforth dispelled.

<<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nPI5SbQPr1Y&eurl=http%3A%2F%2F> Zeta approved as legit!

<<http://www.cnn.com/video/#/video/us/2009/06/16/dnt.va.ufo.sighting.wavy>>

<<http://bumpshack.com/2009/06/19/ufo-seen-for-10-minutes-over-virginia-video/>>

<<http://www.examiner.com/x-2363-UFO-Examiner~y2009m6d13-Multiple-UFO-Sightings-in-Northwest-Missouri-spark-MUFON-investigations>>

<<http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-1193126/Campers-treated-night-time-display-sky-UFO-lights-them.html>>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-Qr\_uG0tQLU&feature=fvw>

<<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7WYRyuL4Z5I&NR=1>>

<<http://www.examiner.com/x-6495-US-Intelligence-Examiner~y2009m6d15-Larry-King-presents-UFO-evidence-witnesses-on-CNN>>

Fireballs (Bible: There will be signs in the sky!)

What was this that recently fell from out of the tranquil Australian skies? Was it another fiery Fireball from PX? And, why would NASA all of a sudden now start to tell the news media that they are restricted (National Security) from reporting on any fireball in the future? Can you or someone please explain? Next, will the increase in Crop circles also be put on the do-not-report list?

<<http://www.news.com.au/couriermail/story/0,23739,25658803-952,00.html>>

<http://fireball.meteorite.free.fr/index\_en.html>

More Mystery Crop Circles

<<http://www.cropcircleconnector.com/2009/westkennettavenue/westkennettavenue2009.html>>

The Zeta space angels explain:

^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^

Coming Soon! An Endtime Movies (Will we survive 2012?)

Watch a trailer here by clicking below!

<<http://www.whowillsurvive2012.com/?hs308=email>>

You are the Judge!

[According to the STO Zeta space angels, planet earth can expect an increase in many more UFO/ET sightings]

<<http://www.zetatalk.com/index/blog0928.htm>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29205|2009-06-22 08:51:44|Tafari khumbaka|(no subject)|

<http://www.egyptcx.netfirms.com/>.

click above

this site was given on another yahoo group site, my person only scanned a little of it ,but it looks really good.....

njoy,

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29206|2009-06-22 10:15:25|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|good vid|

graham hancock interview speaking on charles hapgood and earth crust displacement , and probable civilizations lost to coastline being submerged and a civilization beneath antartica(atlantis).

<http://www.veoh.com/search/videos/q/robert+bauval#watch%3Dv18376886Rj4sxdDE>

u may need to upload their player to see full 1hr 5min. vid

<http://www.veoh.com/search/videos/q/dr.+ben#watch%3Dv13310277ycy6Hb8k>

the above movie is about the fall of the old kingdom, andalthough it does not speak of the anc. people of Akkad as black it may have info why as the blacks of Akkad and the blacks of Hitti and all the Tigris-eupharets were so easily displaced.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29207|2009-06-22 10:39:22|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis [1 Att|

my person was just watching a interview with Graham Hancock and was thinking about his book "mirror of heaven" and thought about this two lands hypothesis.

perhaps the emphasis of the upperworld as a mirror of ancient Egypt is a Very significant quality that was the purveyance of our anc. ancestors a mood of thinking outdated due to modern urban living.

If the above is so.....

than the people when speaking about the unique cultures of north and south were perhaps at times and especially among the astrology-priest and those responsible for the management of the people, The per-Ah would be speaking of imitating and flowin with the Hapi/Nile in the sky the milky way.....

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Sat, 6/20/09, asar_imhotep@yahoo.com wrote:

From: asar_imhotep@yahoo.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis [1 Attachment]
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com
Date: Saturday, June 20, 2009, 9:15 PM

Peace pham

I originally sent the wrong one. That was before my edits and additional pictures. Here's the correct one.

---

Peace Phamily

I had some thoughts that I put in journal form that I want the list to review concerning the unification of the two lands as espoused in ancient Egyptian literature. I have a hypothesis that may or may not lead somewhere. So tell me what you think. I put it in a pdf document because I included some Mdw Ntr script and wanted to ensure everyone gets it.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29208|2009-06-23 07:35:26|odhiambo okech|The KCDN Calender of events|

Dear Friends,

We have 2 major events remaining in our calendar of events this year;

1] Greening the Nairobi East; A KCDN Initiative. We will host this on 5th September 2009 in Komarock and on this day, the pupils, the youth and their parents will plant 15,000 seedlings.....

Follow us here; <http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

Blessings as we also count on your blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,

| 29209|2009-06-23 07:35:29|Brandon Pilcher|An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing|

This is only a first draft; I will include my references later. Critiques and suggestions are desired.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians.

The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. After Sumer in what is now southern Iraq, Egypt is the world's oldest civilization, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians' achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. Demilles The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa:

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls. Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners from Europe and Asia. By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Studies measuring ancient Egyptians' limbs find their proportions more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians. One study found the Egyptians' limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process. Damage to hair's chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair is by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index. Populations vary in the indices of their hairs cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans. However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study by German scientists did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being pack with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countrys far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to Englands Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC.

Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there.

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III. Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypt's Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history.

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the country's south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south.

Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous---and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC. Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin.

Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypts Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development

throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the worlds oldest civilizations, one which help lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by Africans.

| 29210|2009-06-23 07:35:55|Ginger Daniels|FW: "We Need Fathers to Step Up" by Pres. Obama|

Attachments :

---

1 of 1

'We Need Fathers To Step Up'

by President Barack Obama

published: 06/21/2009

As the father of two young girls who have shown such poise, humor, and patience in the unconventional life into which they have been thrust, I mark this Fathers Dayour first in the White Housewith a deep sense of gratitude. One of the greatest benefits of being President is that I now live right above the office. I see my girls off to school nearly every morning and have dinner with them nearly every night. It is a welcome change after so many years out on the campaign trail and commuting between Chicago and Capitol Hill.

But I observe this Fathers Day not just as a father grateful to be present in my daughters lives but also as a son who grew up without a father in my own life. My father left my family when I was 2 years old, and I knew him mainly from the letters he wrote and the stories my family told. And while I was lucky to have two wonderful grandparents who poured everything they had into helping my mother raise my sister and me, I still felt the weight of his absence throughout my childhood.

As an adult, working as a community organizer and later as a legislator, I would often walk through the streets of Chicagos South Side and see boys marked by that same absenceboys without supervision or direction or anyone to help them as they struggled to grow into men. I identified with their frustration and disengagementwith their sense of having been let down.

In many ways, I came to understand the importance of fatherhood through its absenceboth in my life and in the lives of others. I came to understand that the hole a man leaves when he abandons his responsibility to his children is one that no government can fill. We can do everything possible to provide good jobs and good schools and safe streets for our kids, but it will never be enough to fully make up the difference.

That is why we need fathers to step up, to realize that their job does not end at conception; that what makes you a man is not the ability to have a child but the courage to raise one.

See family photos of Obama and his daughters

As fathers, we need to be involved in our childrens lives not just when its convenient or easy, and not just when theyre doing wellbut when its difficult and thankless, and theyre struggling. That is when they need us most.

And its not enough to just be physically present. Too often, especially during tough economic times like these, we are emotionally absent: distracted, consumed by whats happening in our own lives, worried about keeping our jobs and paying our bills, unsure if well be able to give our kids the same opportunities we had.

Our children can tell. They know when were not fully there. And that disengagement sends a clear messagewhether we mean it or notabout where among our priorities they fall.

So we need to step out of our own heads and tune in. We need to turn off the television and start talking with our kids, and listening to them, and understanding whats going on in their lives.

We need to set limits and expectations. We need to replace that video game with a book and make sure that homework gets done. We need to say to our daughters, Dont ever let images on TV tell you what you are worth, because I expect you to dream without limit and reach for your goals. We need to tell our sons, Those songs on the radio may glorify violence, but in our house, we find glory in achievement, self-respect, and hard work.

We need to realize that we are our childrens first and best teachers. When we are selfish or inconsiderate, when we mistreat our wives or girlfriends, when we cut corners or fail to control our tempers, our children learn from thatand its no surprise when we see those behaviors in our schools or on our streets.

But it also works the other way around. When we work hard, treat others with respect, spend within our means, and contribute to our communities, those are the lessons our children learn. And that is what so many fathers are doing every daycoaching soccer and Little League, going to those school assemblies and parent-teacher conferences, scrimping and saving and working that extra shift so their kids can go to college. They are fulfilling their most fundamental duty as fathers: to show their children, by example, the kind of people they want them to become.

It is rarely easy. There are plenty of days of struggle and heartache when, despite our best efforts, we fail to live up to our responsibilities. I know I have been an imperfect father. I know I have made mistakes. I have lost count of all the times, over the years, when the demands of work have taken me from the duties of fatherhood. There were many days out on the campaign trail when I felt like my family was a million miles away, and I knew I was missing moments of my daughters lives that Id never get back. It is a loss I will never fully accept.

But on this Fathers Day, I think back to the day I drove Michelle and a newborn Malia home from the hospital nearly 11 years ago crawling along, miles under the speed limit, feeling the weight of my daughters future resting in my hands. I think about the pledge I made to her that day: that I would give her what I never had that if I could be anything in life, I would be a good father. I knew that day that my own life wouldnt count for much unless she had every opportunity in hers. And I knew I had an obligation, as we all do, to help create those opportunities and leave a better world for her and all our children.

On this Fathers Day, I am recommitting myself to that work, to those duties that all parents share: to build a foundation for our childrens dreams, to give them the love and support they need to fulfill them, and to stick with them the whole way through, no matter what doubts we may feel or difficulties we may face. That is my prayer for all of us on this Fathers Day, and that is my hope for this nation in the months and years ahead.

--

---

Bing brings you maps, menus, and reviews organized in one place. Try it now.

| 29211|2009-06-23 07:36:04|Roger Asterilla|Re: The Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis [1 Attachment]|

If you want to examine the kingdoms composing the Maa Confederation, a historical account is found at this web address:

<http://mywebsite.register.com/db2/00154/imperialafrica.com/download/KushShebalImperiaLEmpireKingdom.pdf>

If you want to further understand the linguistic connection of the concept of the Two Lands, look to the underlying meaning of the term Maa, you can check out Gerald Maseys Natural Genesis. The short version is as follows:

The origin of the term Maa is linked to the Egyptian root terms Ma/Mak, i.e., measure, to measure, the measurer who in the dual character is M□.

M□ (Egyptian) may denote water and breath, decay and renewal, a pair of feet, the two waters, the two solstices, the double lunation, the twin lion-gods, light and shade, menstruation and gestation, wet and heat, the circle and cross (in the knot or ankh), the collar and counterpoise, the house of the Two Truths, or any other type of twinship in which the beginning at first bifurcated.

Mata in Sanskrit is the mother, and the moon as the measurer of time; time being measured and reckoned both by the mother and the moon. The mother measured time in the two phases of feminine pubescence and gestation. These are signified by the double serpent.

Matoti in Lithuanian, is to measure.

Muthi, in Toda, is the new moon.

Mata signifies ten fishes in Fiji, that is a total equal to two hands or the two feet, which are also; M in Egyptian; and

ᲙᲗ᲏ is no. 10 in Coptic.

Taht and Maat then are two personified forms of the measurer and the utterer of truth.

For an even deeper understanding, look to the Serpent Traditions of the ancient and modern world, who are also represented in myth by Typhon, Dragons, and Crocodiles, etc . . . in addition to Serpents. A few of them are:

1. The Kumari Nadu of Lemuria
2. The Itzamana of Atlantis
3. The Nagas of India
4. The Lung Dragons of China
5. The Amarus of Peru
6. The Quetzlcoatl and Kukulcans of Mesoamerica
7. The Serpent Clans & Tribes of North America
8. The Mesopotamian Annunaki
9. The Djedhi of Egypt
10. The Greek and Aegean Children of the Serpent Goddess
11. The Levites of Palestine
12. The Naaseni and Ophite Gnostics
13. The Druid Adders of Britain

--- On Sat, 6/20/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis [1 Attachment]

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com

Date: Saturday, June 20, 2009, 3:37 PM

Peace Phamily

I had some thoughts that I put in journal form that I want the list to review concerning the unification of the two lands as espoused in ancient Egyptian literature. I have a hypothesis that may or may not lead somewhere. So tell me what you think. I put it in a pdf document because I included some Mdw Ntr script and wanted to ensure everyone gets it.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29212|2009-06-23 07:41:39|Manu Ampim|Re: Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis|
Peace pham

I originally sent the wrong one. That was before my edits and additional pictures. Here's the correct one.

Peace Phamily

I had some thoughts that I put in journal form that I want the list to review concerning clarity on the unification of the two lands as espoused in ancient Egyptian literature. I have a hypothesis that may or may not lead somewhere. So tell me what you think. I put it in a pdf document because I included some Mdw Ntr script and wanted to ensure everyone gets it.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

Attachment(s) from asar_imhotep@yahoo.com

---

Greetings Asar,

The final unification of Kemet by Narmer is an actual historical event which is proven by the numerous tombs, large structures, small artifacts, inscriptions, and images of the 1st and 2nd dynasty kings in the Abdju, Nekheb, and Nekhen regions, and more recently from the rock art at Gebel Tjauti. The evidence and artifacts from these regions are consistent in showing that Narmer completed the process of unifying Kemet and thereby ending military action to unite a vast region into one country. After Narmer, all kings from the early dynasties onward are presented as ruling over the North and the South, as the evidence indicates.

The Narmer Palette found at Nekhen by Quibell and Green in the late 1890s is a slab commemorating Narmer's historic unification of the two great regions from Aswan to the Delta. The local districts (along with their totems) that he unified are clearly indicated. However, a few mainstream scholars argue that the scene is only symbolic, but all agree that there was one united Kemet beginning with Narmer.

After unification, the Kemetian leadership had an effective process of incorporating the various regions and ethnic groups into the national culture, and thus the leadership always recognized the local totemic images, regional symbols of kingship, and even the names of the regional deities. Keeping this in mind, it is not difficult to see why the leadership continued to use the term sema-tawi ("united two lands"), because it appears certain that the two regions had developed different African identities, but they were effectively incorporated into one single government after unification.

Also, another point to consider is that the public works projects, such as building pyramids, working in temples, and performing the maintenance of mortuary cults were performed by a Za, which was a unit of employees who would provide work on these projects for several months before rotating back into their local villages and towns. It is interesting and even eye-opening that the later Greeks called each Za by the word /phyle/, which literally means "ethnic group" or "tribe."

I would argue that no ancient or modern government would be successful if the various groups had to lose their ethnic identity to be a part of the larger group. No group willingly gives up its identity, and thus the task of effective leadership is to find ways to genuinely incorporate the constituent groups into a national unity, and in Kemet they did this by acknowledging the local and regional African variations. This acknowledgement of the two regions allowed Kemet to last for almost 3,000 years. Thus, the two separate kingdoms of the North and South were united under the central rulership of Narmer, but the idea of the "two lands" continued to be used mainly as a convention. Other conventional depictions included the symbols of a bound captive and the king smiting an enemy with his mace, even during times of peace when there is absolutely no evidence of warfare or conflict.

One last point on this issue is that there were non-African foreigners in the north (lower Kemet) who were never expelled from the country, even after unification and it is not clear why, because this group had no military strength to resist expulsion. These foreigners were identified by separate names and they were often depicted with the image of a subdued lapwing bird ("Rkhyt" in Mdw Ntr). Most Egyptologists misunderstand the representation of this bird and they assume that its presence in the scenes is to merely represent the common people of Kemet. However, this makes no sense because the Rkhyt bird is always shown subdued with its wings tied, decapitated, and as an enemy of the state. Narmer is shown as a bull on his palette in the North destroying their fortification. Dr. Chancellor Williams in his work, The Destruction of Black Civilization, understood the presence of this foreign group in Kemet probably better than anyone else. Lastly, on the other point you raise there are indeed more distant time periods before the unification by Narmer that are part of the mythical history of Kemet. These periods are referred to in texts but there is no physical evidence of these rulers from distant times. The Royal Turin Papyrus, for example, indicates that there were periods when the gods ruled before there were dynasties of men, etc. Other original king lists give a chronology of united rulership beginning with Narmer (or Mena), and this is consistent with the archaeological evidence.

-----

Short list of resources:

Emile Amelineau was the first to excavate Umm el-Gaab

Walter Emery, Great Tombs of the First Dynasty

Flinders Petrie, Abydos

Flinders Petrie, Royal Tombs of the First Dynasty

German Archaeological Institute in Cairo (Gunter Dreyer on Um el-Gaab, Abydos)

John & Deborah Darnell research at Gebel Tjauti (various Oriental Institute field reports)

Ann Macy Roth, Egyptian Phyles in the Old Kingdom

Royal Turin Papyrus

Abydos King's List (Seti I temple)

Palermo Stone

Also see longer bibliography

<http://www.digitalegypt.ucl.ac.uk/bibliography.html#Wilkinson1999>

Advancing the work,
Manu Ampim

"Primary research is the greatest weapon against the distortion of African culture & history." -
MA

| 29213|2009-06-23 11:26:04|Tafari khumbaka|Re: An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing|
thankz, good work,.....

i would argue that anc. egypt preceeds Sumer/Ur and i would not encapsulate the religion of Voodun to workin voodoo dolls a minor tool/chemistry of the martial art of a low initiate.
of course the above stated can be argued.....

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/22/09, Brandon Pilcher wrote:

From: Brandon Pilcher

Subject: [Ta_Seti] An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 22, 2009, 11:36 PM

This is only a first draft; I will include myreferences later. Critiques and suggestions are desired.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians. The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. After Sumer in what is now southern Iraq, Egypt is the worlds oldest civilization, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. Demilles The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa:

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls. Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners from Europe and Asia. By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Studies measuring ancient Egyptians' limbs find their proportions more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians. One study found the Egyptians' limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process. Damage to hair's chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair is by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index.

Populations vary in the indices of their hair's cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans. However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study by German scientists did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being packed with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countrys far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to Englands Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC. Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there.

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III. Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypt's Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history.

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the country's south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south. Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous--and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC. Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin. Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypt's Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the world's oldest civilizations, one which helped lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by Africans.

| 29214|2009-06-23 13:42:29|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: female circumcision|

Tua/thanx this is a subject in need of exploration of Africans and African am. returning to their ancestral path, my person/i got into study of pharonic mutilation of women in the early 90's and wrote a paper and distributed a lecture cassette to all i could influence.

These days it bears a little to heavy for me to go into it all again,, But if one has specific questions i am open to share what i have learned about the subject.

i scanned thru document u sent and it looks like someone did their homework.

The lecture tape i made is called The spiritual significance of circumcision by, Tafari-sudra, khumbaka 1991c

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Felicia Carroll <

<http://www.dhushara.com/book/zulu/islamp/nakface/naked.htm#anchor207144>

click above

| 29215|2009-06-23 14:17:33|Dexter Harper|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
Udjahee,

I realize that I am late in regards to this topic and perhaps have missed out on this opportunity,
but I must ask, is this information still available?

Thanks in advance.

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, asar_imhotep@... wrote:

>

>

> Peace Family

>

> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about learning how to read Mdw Ntr as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar, the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here is what's included in the zip file:

>

>

> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words . A good way to use this dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the MdC notation. □

> Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian Calligraphy

> Gardiner Sign List Images

> Egyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fonts

> And the Jsesh windows software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read.

> I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsesh software.

> You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to the my website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to exceed my download limit.

>

> NOTE:

>

> The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total

>

> You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:

>

> [http://www.7-zip.org/download.html%
c3%82%c2%a0](http://www.7-zip.org/download.html%c3%82%c2%a0)

>

>

>

> Download zip software first

> Open the 7-zip software

> Find location on computer where you downloaded the files from Ta-Seti

> Open the file with extension .001 FIRST

> Extract to desired location

> Enjoy

>

>

>

>

>

> Here is the link (right click and save as):

>

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.001

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.002

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.003

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.004

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.005

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.006

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.007

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.008

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.009

>

>

> Ancestrally,

>

but I must ask, is this information still available?

Thanks in advance.

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, asar_imhotep@ ... wrote:

>

>

> Peace Family

>

> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about learning how to read Mdw Ntr as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar, the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here is what's included in the zip file:

>

>

> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words. A good way to use this dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the MdC notation.

> Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian Calligraphy

> Gardiner Sign List Images

> Egyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fonts

> And the Jsesh windows software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read.

> I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsesh software.

> You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to their website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to exceed my download limit.

>

> NOTE:

>

> The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total

>

> You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:

$$>$$

> <http://www.7-zip.org/download.html>

 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$

> Download zip software first

> Open the 7-zip software

> Find location on computer where you downloaded the files from Ta-Seti

> Open the file with extension .001 FIRST

> Extract to desired location

> Enjoy

 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$

> Here is the link (right click and save as):

$$>$$

> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.001](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.001)

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.zip.002

> <http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/> Egypt Resources. zip.003

> <http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/> Egypt Resources. zip.004

> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.005](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.005)

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/> Egypt_Resources.zip.006

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/> Egypt_Resources.zip.007

> <http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/> Egypt_Resources. zip.008

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/> Egypt_Resources.zip.009

$$>$$
$$>$$

- > Ancestrally,

$$>$$
$$>$$

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimho tep.com>

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
 $\succ$  $\geq$  $\succ$  $\succ$

| 29217|2009-06-23 14:21:21|Dexter Harper|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
Thanks.....but for whatever reason, I am unable to open the links w/ 7-zip and extract the files.

 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\geq$  $\succ$  $\geq$  $\succ$  $\angle$  $\angle$  $\angle$

✓

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Udjahee,

>

>

>

> I realize that I am late in regards to this topic and perhaps have missed out on this opportunity, but I must ask, is this information still available?

>

>

>

> Thanks in advance.

>

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, asar_imhotep@ ... wrote:

>

>>

>

>>

>

>> Peace Family

>

>>

>

>> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about learning how to read Mdw Ntr as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar, the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here is what's included in the zip file:

>

>>

>

>>

>

>> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words . A good way to use this dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the MdC notation. □

>

>> Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian Calligraphy

>

>> Gardiner Sign List Images

>

>> Egyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fonts

>

>> And the Jsh software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read.

>

>> I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsh software.

>

>> You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to the my website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to exceed my download limit.

>

>>

>

>> NOTE:

>

>>

>

>> The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total

>

>>

>

>> You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:

>

>>

>

>> <http://www.7-zip.org/download.html>

>

>>

>

>>

>

>>
>
>> Download zip software first
>
>> Open the 7-zip software
>
>> Find location on computer where you downloaded the files from Ta-Seti
>
>> Open the file with extension .001 FIRST
>
>> Extract to desired location
>
>> Enjoy
>
>>
>
>>
>
>>
>
>>
>
>>
>
>> Here is the link (right click and save as):
>
>>
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.001](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.001)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.002](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.002)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.003](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.003)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.004](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.004)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.005](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.005)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.006](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.006)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.007](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.007)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.008](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.008)
>
>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.009](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.009)
>

>>
>
>>
>
>>
>
>>
>
>>
>
>>
>

| 29218|2009-06-23 14:26:31|Asar Imhotep|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
Here is the initial email again

Peace Family

I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about learning how to read Mdw Ntr as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar, the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here is what's included in the zip file:

- 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words. A good way to use this dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the MdC notation.
- Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian Calligraphy
- Gardiner Sign List Images
- Egyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fonts
- And the Jsh software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read.
- I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsh software.

You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to the my website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to exceed my download limit.

NOTE:

The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total

You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:

<http://www.7-zip.org/download.html>

1. Download zip software first
2. Open the 7-zip software
3. Find location on computer where you downloaded the files from Ta-Seti
4. Open the file with extension .001 FIRST
5. Extract to desired location
6. Enjoy

Here is the link (right click and save as):

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.001

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.002

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.003

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.004

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.005

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.006

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.007

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.008

http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.009

Ancestrally,

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

-

| 29219|2009-06-23 14:28:54|clyde winters|Re: An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing|

Hi

This is a great paper. Run it past a faculty member at your institution and get feedback.

I know you want to be professional archaeologist one day. You don't want to publish a paper that others may use later to attack you.

The academy is very tight and you don't want someone to stop you from getting tenure based on what you wrote before you begin your career.

What you could do is write a fictional account of ancient Egypt in which you have a researcher discover the points you know to be "true". In this way you get out the knowledge you hope to spread but not building up enemies today which may sidetrack your access to a professional career as an archaeologist.

Clyde

--- On Mon, 6/22/09, Brandon Pilcher wrote:

From: Brandon Pilcher

Subject: [Ta_Seti] An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 22, 2009, 11:36 PM

This is only a first draft; I will include my references later. Critiques and suggestions are desired.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians. The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. After Sumer in what is now southern Iraq, Egypt is the world's oldest civilization, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians' achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. Demille's The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in

The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa:

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls. Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners from Europe and Asia. By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Studies measuring ancient Egyptians' limbs find their proportions more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians. One study found the Egyptians' limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process. Damage to hair's chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair is by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index.

Populations vary in the indices of their hair's cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans. However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians' skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study by German scientists did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being pack with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countrys far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to Englands Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC. Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there.

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III. Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypts Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history.

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the country's south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south. Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous--and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC. Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers' fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin. Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypts Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the worlds oldest civilizations, one which help lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by Africans.

| 29220|2009-06-23 14:30:45|Dexter Harper|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list| Thanks but that's the email I was using and i was (and still am) unable to open and extract the files using 7-zip.

I thought maybe the files were removed.

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>
> Here is the initial email again
>
> Peace Family
>
> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the > list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about > learning how to read Mdw Ntr
> as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many > items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of > charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it > was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar, > the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out > on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here > is what's included in the zip file:
>
> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words . A good way to use this > dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer > as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of > your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the MdC notation. □Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian CalligraphyGardiner Sign List ImagesEgyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fontsAnd the Jsesh windows software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on > your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the > website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read. I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsh software.

> You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I > did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to > the my website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to > exceed my download limit.

>

> NOTE:

>

> The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will > need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They > are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file > and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it
> "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total

>

> You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it.
So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:

>

> <http://www.7-zip.org/download.html%3%82%2%a0>

>

>

> Download zip software first
> Open the 7-zip software
> Find location on computer where you
downloaded the files from Ta-Seti
> Open the file with extension .001
> FIRST
> Extract to desired
location
> Enjoy

>

>

>

>

>

> Here is the link (right click and save as):

>

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.001

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.002

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.003

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.004

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.005

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.006

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.007

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.008

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.009

>

>

> Ancestrally,
>
> Asar Imhotep
> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>
>
>
>
> -
>

| 29221|2009-06-23 14:35:16|Asar Imhotep|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
Peace

You have to follow the instructions as I gave them. It will not open if you click on the files once downloaded. You have to open your zip utility first and open it from within the program. I provided a link for a program I tested it on before sending the links to the forum. There are several links and all have to be in the same spot in order for the full document to extract properly.

You open from within your zip utility the file that ends with .001. The program will take it from there as all of the files are really ONE file broken up. So you need all of them to open them.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Dexter Harper wrote:

From: Dexter Harper
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 4:30 PM

Thanks but that's the email I was using and i was (and still am) unable to open and extract the files using 7-zip.

I thought maybe the files were removed.

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>
> Here is the initial email again
>

> Peace Family

>

> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the > list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about

> learning how to read Mdw Ntr

> as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many > items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of > charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it > was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar,

> the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out > on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here > is what's included in the zip file:

>

> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words. A good way to use this > dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer

> as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of > your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the Mdc notation. Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr

glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian Calligraphy Gardiner Sign List Images Egyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fonts And the Jsh windows

software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on > your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the > website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read. I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsh software.

> You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I > did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to > themy website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to > exceed my download limit.

>

> NOTE:

>

> The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will > need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They > are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file > and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it

> "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total

>

> You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:

>

> <http://www.7-zip.org/download.html>

>

>

> Download zip software first Open the 7-zip software Find location on computer where you downloaded the files from Ta-SetiOpen the file with extension .001 FIRSTExtract to desired locationEnjoy

>

>

>

>

>

> Here is the link (right click and save as):

>

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.001

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.002

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.003

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.004

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.005

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.006

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.007

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.008

> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.009

>

>

> Ancestrally,

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

>

>

>

> -

>

| 29222|2009-06-23 14:42:10|Dexter Harper|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
With all due respect, I followed the directions exactly as you indicated. I am not clicking on the files after they have been downloaded. It's just not working.

Thanks anyways.....

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace

>

> You have to follow the instructions as I gave them. It will not open if you click on the files once downloaded. You have to open your zip utility first and open it from within the program. I provided a link for a program I tested it on before sending the links to the forum. There are several links and all have to be in the same spot in order for the full document to extract properly.

>
> You open from within your zip utility the file that ends with .001. The program will take it from there as all of the files are really ONE file broken up. So you need all of them to open them.

>

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

>

>

>

> --- On Tue, 6/23/09, Dexter Harper wrote:

>

> From: Dexter Harper

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 4:30 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Thanks but that's the email I was using and i was (and still am) unable to open and extract the files using 7-zip.

>

>

>

> I thought maybe the files were removed.

>

>

>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:
>
>>
>
>> Here is the initial email again
>
>>
>
>> Peace Family
>
>>
>
>> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the
>
>> list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about
>
>> learning how to read Mdw Ntr
>
>> as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many
>
>> items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of >> charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it
>
>
>> was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar,
>
>> the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out
>
>> on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here
>
>> is what's included in the zip file:
>
>>
>
>> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words . A good way to use this
>
>> dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer
>
>> as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of
>
>> your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the MdC notation. □Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr
glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian CalligraphyGardiner Sign List ImagesEgyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fontsAnd the Jsh windows

software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on >> your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the >> website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read. I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsh software.

>

>

>

>> You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I >> did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to

>

>

>> the my website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to

>

>> exceed my download limit.

>

>>

>

>> NOTE:

>

>>

>

>> The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will >> need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They >> are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file

>

>

>

>> and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it

>

>> "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total

>

>>

>

>> You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:

>

>>

>

>> <http://www.7-zip.org/download.html>

>

>>

>

>>

>

> > Download zip software first
> Open the 7-zip software
> Find location on computer where you
> downloaded the files from Ta-Seti
> Open the file with extension .001 FIRST > Extract to desired
> location
> Enjoy

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > Here is the link (right click and save as):

>

> >

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.001](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.001)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.002](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.002)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.003](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.003)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.004](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.004)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.005](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.005)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.006](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.006)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.007](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.007)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.008](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.008)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.009](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.009)

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > Ancestrally,

>

> >

>

> > Asar Imhotep

>

> > http://www.asarimhotep.com

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > -

>

> >

>

| 29223|2009-06-23 14:46:28|Asar Imhotep|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
That's strange because it works perfectly for me clicking on the links below.

A few trouble shooting questions:

Are you able to click a link and it prompts you to save to your computer?

If you are able to do that, what zip utility are you using to try and open the file?

Are you opening the one with file extension .001 first?

From here I should be able to help you

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Dexter Harper wrote:

From: Dexter Harper

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 4:42 PM

With all due respect, I followed the directions exactly as you indicated. I am not clicking on the files after they have been downloaded. It's just not working.

Thanks anyways.....

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Peace

>

> You have to follow the instructions as I gave them. It will not open if you click on the files once downloaded. You have to open your zip utility first and open it from within the program. I provided a link for a program I tested it on before sending the links to the forum. There are several links and all have to be in the same spot in order for the full document to extract properly.

>

> You open from within your zip utility the file that ends with .001. The program will take it from there as all of the files are really ONE file broken up. So you need all of them to open them.

>

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

>

>

>

> --- On Tue, 6/23/09, Dexter Harper wrote:

>

> From: Dexter Harper

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 4:30 PM

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Thanks but that's the email I was using and i was (and still am) unable to open and extract the files using 7-zip.

>

>

>

> I thought maybe the files were removed.

>

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

>>

>

>> Here is the initial email again

>

>>

>

>> Peace Family

>

>>

>

>> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the

>

>> list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about

>

>> learning how to read Mdw Ntr

>

>> as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many >> items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of >> charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it >> was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar,

>

>

>

>

>> the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out

>

>> on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here >> is what's included in the zip file:

>

>

>>

>

>> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words. A good way to use this

>

>> dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer

>

> > as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of
>
> > your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the MdC notation. Ebook on how to draw the Mdw Ntr
glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian Calligraphy Gardiner Sign List Images Egyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fonts And the Jsh windows software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on
>
> > your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the
>
> > website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read. I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsh software.
>
> > You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I
>
> > did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to
>
> > themy website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to
>
> > exceed my download limit.
>
> >
>
> > NOTE:
>
> >
>
> > The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will
>
> > need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They
>
> > are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file
>
> > and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it
>
> > "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total
>
> >
>
> > You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:
>
> >
>

> > <http://www.7-zip.org/download.html>

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > Download zip software first Open the 7-zip software Find location on computer where you downloaded the files from Ta-Seti Open the file with extension .001 FIRST Extract to desired location Enjoy

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > Here is the link (right click and save as):

>

> >

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.001](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.001)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.002](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.002)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.003](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.003)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.004](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.004)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.005](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.005)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.006](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.006)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.007](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.007)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.008](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.008)

>

> > [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.009](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.009)

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > Ancestrally,
>
> >
>
> > Asar Imhotep
>
> > <http://www.asarimhotep.com>
>
> >
>
> >
>
> >
>
> >
>
> >
>
> > -
>
> >
>

| 29224|2009-06-23 14:52:01|Dexter Harper|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
Udjahee,

Ok, I finally got it to work. What I was doing was trying to save one link at a time and extract it, instead of saving all 9 links and re-memembering them. :-)

Everything is everything. Thanks for the material. I'll be using it with Ankh Mi Ra's papyrus.

Hetep

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>
> That's strange because it works perfectly for me clicking on the links below.
>
> A few trouble shooting questions:
>
> Are you able to click a link and it prompts you to save to your computer?
>
> If you are able to do that, what zip utility are you using to try and open the file?
>
> Are you opening the one with file extension .001 first?
>
> From here I should be able to help you

$$>$$

> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\triangleright$
$$>$$

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list

> Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 4:42 PM

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$  $\succ$  $\geq$  $\geq$  $\angle$  $\angle$  $\angle$  $\angle$  $\angle$

✓

1

1

1

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 $\succ$
$$>$$
$$>$$

> >

$$>$$

> > Peace

>

> >

>

> > You have to follow the instructions as I gave them. It will not open if you click on the files once downloaded. You have to open your zip utility first and open it from within the program. I provided a link for a program I tested it on before sending the links to the forum. There are several links and all have to be in the same spot in order for the full document to extract properly.

>

> >

>

> > You open from within your zip utility the file that ends with .001. The program will take it from there as all of the files are really ONE file broken up. So you need all of them to open them.

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > Asar Imhotep

>

> > <http://www.asarimhotep.com>

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > --- On Tue, 6/23/09, Dexter Harper wrote:

>

> >

>

> > From: Dexter Harper

>

> > Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list

>

> > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

>

> > Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 4:30 PM

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > Thanks but that's the email I was using and i was (and still am) unable to open and extract the files using 7-zip.

>

> >

>

> >

>

> >

>

> > I thought maybe the files were removed.

>

> >

>

>>
>
>>
>
>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Asar Imhotep wrote:
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> Here is the initial email again
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> Peace Family
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> I hope all is well. I am providing, for a limited time, for the
>
>>
>
>>> list a good set of resources for the person who is serious about
>
>>
>
>>> learning how to read Mdw Ntr
>
>>
>
>>> as a writing script. I am providing a .zip file that contains many
>
>>
>
>>> items you might enjoy. All of these items I am providing are Free of
>

>>
>
>>> charge and do not infringe on any copyrights. I know as a beginner it >>> was hard trying to find resources so that I could learn the grammar,
>
>>
>
>
>>
>
>>> the signs and the language. So to help the person who is starting out
>
>>
>
>>> on their journey, I felt it necessary to compile these resources. Here
>
>>
>
>>> is what's included in the zip file:
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> 600 page Dictionary with over 17000 words . A good way to use this
>
>>
>
>>> dictionary is not to print it on paper but to leave it in your computer
>
>>
>
>>> as a PDF file so that you have the full use of the SEARCH facilities of
>
>>
>
>>> your PDF reader. With that you can look for words in the English definitions, or in the phonetic pronunciation guides. For the latter it helps to check the box for case-sensitive searching, since case is important in the Mdw Ntr glyphs. - Ancient Egyptian CalligraphyGardiner Sign List ImagesEgyptian and Coptic fonts for your computer (windows and mac), includes a KEY to the gardiner fontsAnd the Jsh windows software that allows you to code Mdw Ntr on
>
>>

>
>>> your computer to create text. It is the latest version from the
>
>>
>
>>> website. It comes with its own guide I'd advise you all to read. I also included 3 webpages with Egyptian names, nomes, and the Manuel de Codage for the Jsh software.
>
>>
>
>>> You can find many sources and tutorials for the grammar which I
>
>>
>
>>> did not include. The file is already 40MB. I have uploaded the files to
>
>>
>
>>> the my website so it will only be up for a limited time. Don't want to
>
>>
>
>>> exceed my download limit.
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> NOTE:
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> The file has been broken up into 5MB files (total 42MB). You will
>
>>
>
>>> need a program that can unarchive all of the files in sequence. They > > > are numbered file.001, file.002, etc. You need to open the first file
>
>>
>

>
> >
>
> > > and the software will do the rest. It will create one file, so it
>
> >
>
> > > "re-members" the files together. There are 9 files total
>
> >
>
> > >
>
> >
>
> > > You may not be able to click the file directly for your software utility might not recognize it. So what I suggest is that you open up the first file.001 file from the program itself. It will recognize it then. I recommend 7-zip because it's free. Here is the link to download unarchival software:
>
> >
>
> > >
>
> >
>
> > > <http://www.7-zip.org/download.html>
>
> >
>
> > >
>
> >
>
> > >
>
> >
>
> > > Download zip software first Open the 7-zip software Find location on computer where you downloaded the files from Ta-Seti Open the file with extension .001 FIRST Extract to desired location Enjoy
>
> >
>
> > >

>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> Here is the link (right click and save as):
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.001](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.001)
>
>>
>
>>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.002](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.002)
>
>>
>
>>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.003](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.003)
>
>>
>
>>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.004](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.004)
>
>>
>
>>> [http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt\_Resources. zip.005](http://www.asarimho tep.com/egypt/ Egypt_Resources. zip.005)
>
>>

>
>>> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.006
>
>>
>
>>> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.007
>
>>
>
>>> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.008
>
>>
>
>>> http://www.asarimhotep.com/egypt/Egypt\_Resources.zip.009
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> Ancestrally,
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>> Asar Imhotep
>
>>
>
>>> <http://www.asarimhotep.com>
>
>>
>
>>>
>
>>
>
>>>

>
> >
>
> > >
>
> >
>
> > >
>
> >
>
> > > -
>
> >
>
> > >
>
> >
>

| 29225|2009-06-23 17:03:44|Tafari khumbaka|70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa|

http://www.telegraph.co.uk/scienceandtechnology/science/sciencenews/5299351/African-tribe-populated-rest-of-the-world.html

click above

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

From The Washington Post May 1, 2009

Africans Have World's Highest Genetic Diversity, Study Finds

Peace, Bliss & Blessings
Shquestra

Don't talk about it...be about it.

"The people, who were trying to make this world worse... are not taking a day off. How can I? Light up the darkness."

Bob Marley

---

Hotmail goes with you. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

American Guns Fuel Jamaican Violence

By Associated Press June 22, 2009 10:56 am

Ships from Miami steam into Jamaica's main harbor loaded with TV sets and blue jeans. But some of the most popular U.S. imports never appear on the manifests: handguns, rifles and bullets that stoke one of the world's highest murder rates.

The volume is much less than the flow of U.S. guns into Mexico that end up in the hands of drug cartels. Jamaican authorities recover fewer than 1,000 firearms a year. But of those whose origin can be traced, 80 percent come from the U.S., Jamaican law enforcement officials have said in interviews with The Associated Press.

And as the Obama administration cracks down on smuggling into Mexico, Jamaicans fear even more firearms will reach the gangs whose turf wars plague the island of 2.8 million people.

It's going to push a lot of that trade back toward the Caribbean like it was back in the 80s, said Vance Callender, an attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Kingston for Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE).

U.S. authorities are beginning to target the Jamaican gun-smuggling network as part of a broad effort to boost security in the Caribbean.

But they have a long way to go. Jamaican authorities have confiscated only 100 guns coming into ports in the last five years, along with 6,000 rounds of ammunition. That in turn is just a fraction of the 700 or so weapons confiscated on the streets each year.

Authorities know they're only seeing the tip of the iceberg, said Mark Shields, Jamaica's deputy police commissioner.

With arsenals to rival police firepower, the gangs are blamed for 90 percent of the homicides in Jamaica. 1,611 last year, about 10 times more than the U.S. rate, relative to population.

Unlike in Mexico, the vast majority of Jamaican guns seized are submitted for tracing. Jamaica and the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives find most of the seized weapons come from three Florida counties: Orange, Dade and Broward, all with large Jamaican populations, according to Shields.

X-ray scanners were installed two years ago at Jamaican ports, but the gangs use bribery and intimidation to get their shipments past inspectors.

In April, a newly hired customs supervisor had his tires slashed and days later was shot at on his way home from work, authorities say. The man was known for his strict scrutiny of cargo coming into a gang-infiltrated warehouse on the Kingston wharf.

When the gangs apply pressure, no one says no, said Danville Walker, Jamaica's commissioner of customs.

It's a massive problem, said Leslie Green, a Jamaican assistant police commissioner. There aren't any checks or any controls on goods leaving the United States. Yet anything leaving here, we have to make sure it's double-checked and triple-checked for drugs.

This complaint that Americans care only what comes in, not what goes out echoes that of Mexican authorities, who say cars going from the U.S. into Mexico aren't searched for weapons or cash.

Now hundreds of agents are participating in a $95 million outbound inspection program, stopping suspicious-looking cars and trucks as they cross the border into Mexico. Authorities don't know how many firearms get through, but more than 12,000 guns used in crimes in Mexico last year were sent to U.S. authorities for tracing, a number that grows as more agencies in Mexico are trained to submit traces.

The U.S. and Jamaica both prohibit the unlicensed transport of guns. But like Mexican smugglers, Jamaican ones depend on lax U.S. gun laws, corrupt customs inspectors and front men acting as buyers.

Florida gun laws make it relatively easy to buy a legal firearm, and much of the smuggling is done by family and friends, said Shields, the Jamaican police official. The guns are concealed in container loads of blue plastic and cardboard barrels, the kind Jamaicans use to send household goods to their families on the island.

Some shipping companies advertise a no-questions-asked policy in soliciting customers, said Walker, the customs commissioner. He declined to single out individual companies. In one of the few Jamaican gun-smuggling cases prosecuted in the U.S., Tawanna Banton, 36, of Florida was convicted of buying a Glock handgun later used in the gang killings of four island police officers. She said her Jamaican boyfriend arranged the purchase, and she was paid $15,000 to buy the handgun and a .50 caliber Grizzly rifle with a tripod mount, according to court documents.

She told ATF agents the guns were then hidden inside kitchen appliances and driven to Miami for shipment to Kingston.

Banton pleaded guilty to making false statements to the gun dealer in 2006 and served a month in prison.

Besides coming in on freighters, authorities say, guns are stolen or purchased from crooked police or in guns-for-ganja deals by fishermen, who bring homegrown marijuana to nearby Haiti and return with pistols, revolvers and submachine guns many of them believed to be from the U.S. as well.

Callender's ICE unit began investigations in Jamaica last year with a focus on guns. He said agents in Miami and New York have been working to interject themselves into the shipping networks. Indictments are imminent in two or three cases involving suspected Jamaican traffickers inside the U.S., he said, without elaborating.

Then theres the $45 million Caribbean Basin Security Initiative on regional security, announced by U.S. President Barack Obama in April, which is designed to help the islands counter any spillover of violence from Mexico.

Meanwhile, at the ports, Jamaican customs officials are training more spotters to patrol the warehouses, including five in Kingston who process an average of 10 shipping containers daily.

But inspectors feel the odds are still stacked against them.

The guys were up against, they have time, they have money, and they are very resourceful, said Andrew Lamb, a supervisor with Jamaica customs Contraband Enforcement Team. Theyre pretty good at what they do.

---

Bing brings you maps, menus, and reviews organized in one place. Try it now.
| 29227|2009-06-23 18:41:05|Asar Imhotep|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
Cool. I'm glad it worked. I hope it is of value to you.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Dexter Harper wrote:

From: Dexter Harper
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 4:51 PM

Udjahee,

Ok, I finally got it to work. What I was doing was trying to save one link at a time and extract it, instead of saving all 9 links and re-memembering them. :-)

Everything is everything. Thanks for the material. I'll be using it with Ankh Mi Ra's papyrus.

Hetep

-

| 29228|2009-06-23 19:36:16|Asar Imhotep|Re: An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing|

Mbote Brandon

I agree with Dr. Winters that this is good work. May I ask what type of publication this is for? Newspaper? Online eZine? Journal?

My only gripe would be with Sumer being older. There is enough evidence out now that it shouldn't be a question at this point. For a detailed analysis review Charles S. Finch's A Star of Deep Beginnings the first chapter. But otherwise good summary. I would challenge you to think of ways in which the classical civilization would inform and benefit the present in regards to your last segment on the importance of the Africinity of the ancient iKani civilization.

And this juncture we have to look beyond Ta-Meri being a Black civilization but to grab possible solutions for contemporary problems using classical methods if they are applicable. That's why African people cherish history and its accuracy. I recommend the article by Amadou Hampate Ba titled The Living Tradition in UNESCO's General History of Africa Vol.1

I am so adimate about this focus of classical civilizations because modern day Europeans are using our classical frame of thought and practices to enhance their civilizations. What we called M-du Njora (Medu Netcher) is now called "Bio-Mimicry." It's amazing what their doing with this ancient African practice. Here is a link to a 20 minute lecture on TED.com discussing Bio Mimicry. For those familiar with African cultural practices, philosophy and spirituality (which is evident in the society of Ta-Meri), will immediately connect this practice with the Yoruba ODU and the Ta-Merian practice of M-DU NJORA which is how they achieved architectually, mathematically and health wise. It is truly amazing when you think about it.

http://www.ted.com/talks/janine\_benyus\_shares\_nature\_s\_designs.html

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Mon, 6/22/09, Brandon Pilcher wrote:

From: Brandon Pilcher

Subject: [Ta_Seti] An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 22, 2009, 11:36 PM

This is only a first draft; I will include my references later. Critiques and suggestions are desired.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians. The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. After Sumer in what is now southern Iraq, Egypt is the world's oldest civilization, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians' achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. DeMille's The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa:

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls. Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners from Europe and Asia. By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Studies measuring ancient Egyptians' limbs find their proportions more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians. One study found the Egyptians' limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process. Damage to hairs chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair is by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index.

Populations vary in the indices of their hairs cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans. However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study by German scientists did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being pack with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countrys far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to England's Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC. Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there.

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III. Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypt's Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history.

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the country's south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south. Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous--and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC. Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin. Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypt's Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the worlds oldest civilizations, one which help lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by Africans.

| 29229|2009-06-23 20:18:30|Tafari khumbaka|FW: New Book and software by Ra Un Nefer Amen|

Attachments :

Kamitic

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Alandas Dobbins wrote:

From: Alandas Dobbins
Subject: FW: New Book and software by Ra Un Nefer Amen
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 9:49 PM

How interesting, the title.

Alandas Dobbins
Nsight Communication
"Your Telecom Success is our Vision"
901-481-3748 (o)
901-521-9464 (f)
alandas@nsightmemphis.com

NOTE: This is considered proprietary and confidential information.

---

From: Ra Un Nefer Amen [mailto:nefera@nilevalley.com]
Sent: Tuesday, June 23, 2009 5:11 PM
To: ranefer@nilevalley.com
Subject: New Book and software by Ra Un Nefer Amen

Dont miss out on the opportunity to save by ordering your bundle (book and software)
by Sunday, June 28, 2009.

| 29230|2009-06-23 22:01:14|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Fw: Check out YouTube - The African Origins of Voodoo|

Attachments :

nkondi

Voodoo Dolls.....

The whole of Voodun society is about healing; the use of the torched one statue at the entrance to voodun villages nails hammered into its body was a way thru sympathetic magic/psychology to lead disease and all matters of vice out from the people a method of depositing filth outside the wholsomeness of the village/city-state.

the use of carving mandrake and making likeness's (ushabiti) of patients and activating meridians wekedu/energy passages for healing fell from its use in everyday African life to a malicious necessity with the Arab, portugese, spanish english etc. committed to genocidal war on Africa. A practice similar to acupuncture from China was used by voodun healers it was more like melanisian tattooing but unique to the African since it was only done by very advanced masters who actually used their blood in the needling or scarification hence the root of the modern vaccination technique.

This method due to the need of the High spiritual advance state of the Sramani/Hogon took the healing act out of the hands of a low initiate or immoral person but what happened during the slave trade is the knowledge passed down was left in the hands of the diaspora left among people that the slave traders made sure they could not talk among each other (babel story) and killed all that had a distinguished unbending character of righteousness and justice. young and neophytes left to remembering their ancestral ways took to killing and socially, physically making illness for their masters fell to the two-edged sword of filthiness begetting filthiness as they did not have a initiation system raising themselves up from their animal nature/human nature so as not to become a killer of evil using evil becoming Evil., using figurines and condombles'.

How maniacal and Sinister to give those who are creating great fear and worry in you (plantation owners) a religion that allows no initiation; (moral making system) just say some words and the plantation owner and/or slave is forgiven for any sin.....

this christian system fostered by rice bowl negro preachers has left the children of Ole Africa in a state of spiritual degradation and stagnation at its best.

The slave forgives the plantation owner instead of demanding justice and the plantation owner is forgiven for his sins against the slave by saying words to a false legend..... Unless he/Masser was a high freemason and then he knew he was martyring his life for to give his progeny a foot up in the world .

A foot of great wealth and innocent ignorance, In christian bliss blind to the foundation of Seth/Typhoon they have inherited.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, AUSAR65

YouTube - The African Origins of Voodoo

click above, nice vid

---

A Good Credit Score is 700 or Above. See yours in just 2 easy steps!

| 29231|2009-06-24 08:31:03|Divine Allah|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
DWH-W (Dua-u). That dictionary is HEAT!!!! ShM HTP.

Divine Ruler Equality Allah

| 29232|2009-06-24 09:44:36|Asar Imhotep|Re: Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list|
You're welcome

Ancestrally,

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Wed, 6/24/09, Divine Allah wrote:

From: Divine Allah

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Mdw Ntr Resources I have compiled for this list

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Wednesday, June 24, 2009, 10:30 AM

DWH-W (Dua-u). That dictionary is HEAT!!!! ShM HTP.

Divine Ruler Equality Allah

| 29233|2009-06-24 12:13:14|cristofori whitakara|cairo...|

--- On Wed, 6/24/09, boogie x wrote:

From: boogie x

Subject: Story from NYPOST.COM from boogie x

To: boogie_down_black@yahoo.com

Cc: boogie_down_black@yahoo.com

Date: Wednesday, June 24, 2009, 11:45 AM

boogie thought you would find this story from NYPOST.COM interesting:

BETTER THAN CAIROPRACTY

By REUVEN FENTON and JEREMY OLSHAN

Getting a CT scan can leave you a bit claustrophobic, but not if you've spent the past 2,700 years in a sarcophagus. Four Egyptian mummies from the Brooklyn Museum made the trip to North Shore University Hospital on Long Island yesterday so radiologists could scan the ancient remains. The mummies stank of body odor, having not showered in three millennia, but doctors said they treated the specimens much as they would living patients. And though it will take some time to study the 3-D images, researchers instantly made a startling conclusion: One of the mummies is really a man. "You can actually see the penis is still intact," said Dr. Jessie Chusid, after looking at Lady Hor's scan. Gender can be hard to determine given the layers of linen bandages and thousands of years of decomposition, but Egyptologists assumed Lady Hor was female because of decorations on the coffin. "We thought it was a woman because it had no beard," said Dr. Edward Bleiberg, curator of Egyptian Art at the Brooklyn Museum. "We generally assume that male coffins will be decorated with beards." The mummies were transported to the museum by flatbed truck, each housed in a wooden crate and cushioned with Styrofoam pads. Bleiberg said he was hoping "to discover such things as the history of disease, to verify the gender of the mummies that have not been unwrapped and perhaps find the cause of death and also the age of death." Lady Hor, now to be known simply as "Hor," had not been scanned since 1937, when primitive X-rays revealed nothing of his true sex. Aside from Hor, believed to be 2,700 years old, the other mummies are Pasebakhaienipet, Count of Thebes (1,188-909 BC); Thothirdes, a female, (791-418 BC); and a mystery male from 419-244 BC. A CT scan divides the body into 64 slices to produce high-resolution images, and the scans look not unlike that of living patients. "Where the mummies are better preserved, they look very much like the living folks that we image here all the time," Chusid said. The hospital agreed to cover the cost of the scans and the doctors, officials said. Bleiberg said that Hor and Thothirdes will be put back on public display June 30, and curators hope to put the images from the scans in the gallery and on the museum's Web site. jeremy.olschan@nypost.com

To sign up for Daily Newsletter Alerts, please visit

http://www.nypost.com/php/newsletter/classify\_newsletter\_clicks.php

| 29234|2009-06-25 07:26:52|nathaniel x vance|New PayPal Account to aid The Scott Sisters|

Dear Group,

I have just created a PAYPAL account which is now available for anyone who choose to donate to the cause of aiding and assisting us in helping Jamie and Gladys Scott. If any funds or donations are donated to this account, I promise that starting in July, and every month thereafter, a FULL and COMPLETE monthly accounting of all receipts and expenditures will be submitted to the group for your perusal. This way, no one will have a cause to say that we are hiding, misappropriating, or mismanaging the funds for personal reasons or gain!

To view the PayPal account, please click the link below.

<<http://zetaheaven.org/>>

Please sign our PETITION by clicking the link below.

< <http://scottsisisters.petitionhost.com/>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29235|2009-06-25 07:27:05|Roger Asterilla|Re: 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa|

This article definitely pushes the African timeline back and implies an initial "east-to-west" migration early in her history.

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: [Ta_Seti] 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa

To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com

Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 8:03 PM

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/science/andtechnology/science/science/5299351/African-tribe-populated-rest-of-the-world.html>

click above

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

From The Washington Post May 1, 2009

Africans Have World's Highest Genetic Diversity, Study Finds

Peace, Bliss & Blessings
Shquestra

Don't talk about it...be about it.

"The people, who were trying to make this world worse... are not taking a day off.

How can I? Light up the darkness."

Bob Marley

---

Hotmail goes with you. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29236|2009-06-25 07:27:27|Art Vandalay|(Free) Film to help Black Boys/Young Black Men|

| 29237|2009-06-25 07:27:29|Brandon Pilcher|Second draft of my essay|

This time, references have been included.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians.

The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. Egypt is one of the worlds oldest civilizations, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. Demilles The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa (Hiernaux 1975):

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls (Kemp 2005). Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt) (Keita 1990, 2005), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners (Zakrzewski 2004). By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Ancient Egyptians limb proportions are more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians (Zakrzewski 2003). One study found the Egyptians' limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process (Bertrand 2003). Damage to hair's chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair is by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index.

Populations vary in the indices of their hairs cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans (MBantu and Supia 2001). However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study (Mekota and Vermehren 2005) did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being pack with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countrys far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to Englands Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC.

Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there (Wendorf and Schild 1998).

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III (Dollinger 2009). Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypt's Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history (Bard 1994).

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the country's south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south.

Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous---and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC (Ehert 1996). Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin.

Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypts Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development

throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the worlds oldest civilizations, one which help lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by Africans.

Works Cited

- Bard, Kathryn A. "The Egyptian Predynastic: A Review of the Evidence." Journal of Field Archaeology 21.3 (1994): 265-288.
- Bertrand, L., et al. "Microbeam synchrotron imaging of hairs from Ancient Egyptian mummies." Journal of Synchrotron Radiation (2003).
- Dollinger, Andre. "Farmed and Domesticated Animals." An introduction to the history and culture of Pharaonic Egypt. 24 June 2009
- Ehert, Christopher. "Ancient Egyptian as an African Language, Egypt as an African Culture." Egypt in Africa. Comp. Theodore Celenko. Indianapolis: Indianapolis Museum of Art and Indiana University Press, 1996. 25-27.
- Hiernaux, Jean. The People of Africa. N.p.: Encore Editions, 1975.
- Keita, S.O.Y. "Early Nile Valley Farmers, From El-Badari, Aborigines or European Agro-Nostratic Immigrants? Craniometric Affinities Considered With Other Data." Journal of Black Studies 36.2 (2005): 191-208.
- Keita, S.O.Y. "Studies of Ancient Crania from Northern Africa." American Journal of Physical Anthropology 83 (1990): 35-48.

Kemp, Barry J. Ancient Egypt: Anatomy of a Civilization. 1989. 2nd ed.

N.p.: Routledge, 2005. 53.

M'bantu, Anu, and Fari Supia. "Egyptology: Hanging in the Hair." Ancient Africa's Black Kingdoms. Ed. Myra Wysinger. 8 July 2001. 24 June 2009 .

Mekota, A.M., and M. Vermehren. "Determination of optimal rehydration, fixation and staining methods for histological and immunohistochemical analysis of mummified soft tissues." Biotechnic & Histochemistry 80.1 (2005): 7-13.

Robins, G., and C.C.D. Shute. "Predynastic Egyptian stature and physical proportions." Human Evolution 1 (1986): 313-324.

Wendorf, Fred, and Romuald Schild. "Late Neolithic megalithic structures at Nabta Playa (Sahara), southwestern Egypt." The Comparative Archaeology Web.. Mar. 1998. 24 June 2009 .

Zakrzewski, Sonia R. "Intra-population and temporal variation in ancient Egyptian crania." Program of the Seventy-Third Annual Meeting of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists. The Hyatt Regency Hotel, Tampa, FL. 14 Apr. 2004.

Zakrzewski, Sonia R. "Variation in Ancient Egyptian Stature and Body Proportions." American Journal of Physical Anthropology 121 (2003): 219-229.

| 29238|2009-06-25 07:27:46|clyde winters|Re: An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing|
Hi

You are right Sumer can not be older than Egypt, because the Sumerians originated in Africa.
What are the radio-carbon dates for Sumer material?

Clyde

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 9:35 PM

Mbote Brandon

I agree with Dr. Winters that this is good work. May I ask what type of publication this is for? Newspaper? Online eZine? Journal?

My only gripe would be with Sumer being older. There is enough evidence out now that it shouldn't be a question at this point. For a detailed analysis review Charles S. Finch's A Star of Deep Beginnings the first chapter. But otherwise good summary. I would challenge you to think of ways in which the classical civilization would inform and benefit the present in regards to your last segment on the importance of the Africanity of the ancient iKamii civilization.

And this juncture we have to look beyond Ta-Meri being a Black civilization but to grab possible solutions for contemporary problems using classical methods if they are applicable. That's why African people cherish history and its accuracy. I recommend the article by Amadou Hampate Ba titled The Living Tradition in UNESCO's General History of Africa Vol.1

I am so adimate about this focus of classical civilizations because modern day Europeans are using our classical frame of thought and practices to enhance their civilizations. What we called M-du Njora (Medu Netcher) is now called "Bio-Mimicry. " It's amazing what their doing with this ancient African practice. Here is a link to a 20 minute lecture on TED.com discussing Bio Mimicry. For those familiar with African cultural practices, philosophy and spirituality (which is evident in the society of Ta-Meri), will immediately connect this practice with the Yoruba ODU and the Ta-Merian practice of M-DU NJORA which is how they achieved architectually, mathematically and health wise. It is truly amazing when you think about it.

http://www.ted.com/talks/janine\_benyus\_shares\_nature\_s\_designs.html

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Mon, 6/22/09, Brandon Pilcher wrote:

From: Brandon Pilcher

Subject: [Ta_Seti] An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyon d@yahoogroups. com

Date: Monday, June 22, 2009, 11:36 PM

This is only a first draft; I will include my references later. Critiques and suggestions are desired.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians. The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. After Sumer in what is now southern Iraq, Egypt is the world's oldest civilization, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians' achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. Demille's The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa:

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls. Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners from Europe and Asia. By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Studies measuring ancient Egyptians limbs find their proportions more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians. One study found the Egyptians limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process. Damage to hairs chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair is by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index.

Populations vary in the indices of their hairs cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans. However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study by German scientists did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being pack with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countrys far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to Englands Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC. Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there.

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III. Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypts Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history.

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the countrys south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south. Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous-- -and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC. Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers' fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin. Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypt's Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the worlds oldest civilizations, one which help lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by Africans.

| 29239|2009-06-25 08:01:11|Peter Gray|Re: Second draft of my essay|
Mr. Pilcher,

You are to be congratulated for this concise and eloquent summary representing the case for the African origin of AE civilization, without resorting either to excessive technical detail or desperate romanticism. Indeed, your objective elaboration of the analysis of hair texture, skin color and archaeological tools/comparators is a welcome breath of fresh air. It seems you have the makings of a serious journal publication or even a book. Well done.

Peter Gray

---

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com
From: bioegyptiansgreeks@yahoo.com
Date: Wed, 24 Jun 2009 23:12:05 -0700
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Second draft of my essay

This time, references have been included.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians. The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. Egypt is one of the world's oldest civilizations, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians' achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. Demilles The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa (Hiernaux 1975):

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls (Kemp 2005). Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt) (Keita 1990, 2005), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners (Zakrzewski 2004). By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Ancient Egyptians limb proportions are more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians (Zakrzewski 2003). One study found the Egyptians' limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process (Bertrand 2003). Damage to hair's chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair: by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index.

Populations vary in the indices of their hair's cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out with indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans (M'Bantu and Supia 2001). However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians' skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects' skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study (Mekota and Vermehren 2005) did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being packed with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countrys far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to Englands Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC. Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there (Wendorf and Schild 1998).

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III (Dollinger 2009). Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypts Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history (Bard 1994).

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the countrys south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south. Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous--and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC (Ehert 1996). Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers' fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin. Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypt's Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the worlds oldest civilizations, one which help lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by Africans.

Works Cited

Bard, Kathryn A. "The Egyptian Predynastic: A Review of the Evidence." Journal of Field Archaeology 21.3 (1994): 265-288.

Bertrand, L., et al. "Microbeam synchrotron imaging of hairs from Ancient Egyptian mummies." Journal of Synchrotron Radiation (2003).

Dollinger, Andre. "Farmed and Domesticated Animals." An introduction to the history and culture of Pharaonic Egypt. 24 June 2009

Ehert, Christopher. "Ancient Egyptian as an African Language, Egypt as an African Culture." Egypt in Africa. Comp. Theodore Celenko. Indianapolis: Indianapolis Museum of Art and Indiana University Press, 1996. 25-27.

Hiernaux, Jean. The People of Africa. N.p.: Encore Editions, 1975.

Keita, S.O.Y. "Early Nile Valley Farmers, From El-Badari, Aborigines or European Agro-Nostratic Immigrants? Craniometric Affinities Considered With Other Data." Journal of Black Studies 36.2 (2005): 191-208.

Keita, S.O.Y. "Studies of Ancient Crania from Northern Africa." American Journal of Physical Anthropology 83 (1990): 35-48.

Kemp, Barry J. Ancient Egypt: Anatomy of a Civilization. 1989. 2nd ed. N.p.: Routledge, 2005. 53.

M'bantu, Anu, and Fari Supia. "Egyptology: Hanging in the Hair." Ancient Africa's Black Kingdoms. Ed. Myra Wysinger. 8 July 2001. 24 June 2009 .

Mekota, A.M., and M. Vermehren. "Determination of optimal rehydration, fixation and staining methods for histological and immunohistochemical analysis of mummified soft tissues." Biotechnic & Histochemistry 80.1 (2005): 7-13.

Robins, G., and C.C.D. Shute. "Predynastic Egyptian stature and physical proportions. " Human Evolution 1 (1986): 313-324.

Wendorf, Fred, and Romuald Schild. "Late Neolithic megalithic structures at Nabta Playa (Sahara), southwestern Egypt." The Comparative Archaeology Web.. Mar. 1998. 24 June 2009 .

Zakrzewski, Sonia R. "Intra-population and temporal variation in ancient Egyptian crania." Program of the Seventy-Third Annual Meeting of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists. The Hyatt Regency Hotel, Tampa, FL. 14 Apr. 2004.

Zakrzewski, Sonia R. "Variation in Ancient Egyptian Stature and Body Proportions. " American Journal of Physical Anthropology 121 (2003): 219-229.

Hello Dr. Winters,

I believe Ivan van Sertima once expressed regret at having written They Came Before Columbus in a narrative/fictional style, saying that that is what his publishers advised. If Mr. Pilcher can preserve his clarity of expression while expanding the themes already outlined, I think it will be a great paper/book.

Peter Gray

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: olmec982000@yahoo.com
Date: Tue, 23 Jun 2009 14:28:49 -0700
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing

Hi

This is a great paper. Run it past a faculty member at your institution and get feedback. I know you want to be professional archaeologist one day. You don't want to publish a paper that others may use later to attack you.

The academy is very tight and you don't want someone to stop you from getting tenure based on what you wrote before you begin your career.

What you could do is write a fictional account of ancient Egypt in which you have a researcher discover the points you know to be "true". In this way you get out the knowledge you hope to spread but not building up enemies today which may sidetrack your access to a professional career as an archaeologist.

Clyde

--- On Mon, 6/22/09, Brandon Pilcher wrote:

From: Brandon Pilcher
Subject: [Ta_Seti] An essay on ancient Egypt that I am writing
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com, FromtheNileandBeyond@yahoo .com
Date: Monday, June 22, 2009, 11:36 PM

This is only a first draft; I will include my references later. Critiques and suggestions are desired.

The African Origin of Ancient Egyptian Civilization

By Brandon Pilcher

Few bygone civilizations fascinate us as much as that of the ancient Egyptians. The kingdom along the Nile River has been the subject of countless books, magazine articles, movies, and television shows and documentaries. There is even a hotel in Las Vegas with an ancient Egyptian theme! Museums all over the world dedicate entire galleries to excavated Egyptian artifacts, and Egypt itself receives millions of tourists flocking to photograph its ruins each year.

There are many reasons behind our infatuation with ancient Egypt. One is its sheer antiquity. After Sumer in what is now southern Iraq, Egypt is the world's oldest civilization, blossoming at a time when most of the rest of the world (including the ancestors of the Greeks, Chinese, and Maya) had yet to build anything more impressive than stick huts. Another reason is that we are amazed by the Egyptians' achievements: their colossal temples and tombs, their uncannily well-preserved mummies, their art, and their glittering jewelry. A third reason is that despite more than two centuries of study by Egyptologists, much about ancient Egypt still remains mysterious. Many questions about the Egyptians still have their answers buried by the sands of time. For instance, how were the pyramids built? What was responsible for the early death of the boy pharaoh Tutankhamun? And how did the Egyptians influence later civilizations such as Greece and Rome?

However, the most contentious question concerning ancient Egypt, the one that has inspired the most emotionally charged arguments, concerns their ethnic identity. Egypt lies on the African continent, specifically in its northeastern region, yet traditionally historians have classified it as part of the Near Eastern (alongside Sumer, Babylon, and Israel) or Mediterranean (alongside Greece and Rome) cultural blocs. Whenever anyone makes a movie or television show set in Egypt, white rather than black actors are chosen to play the Egyptians; for instance, Yul Brynner as the pharaoh Rameses in C.B. DeMille's The Ten Commandments, or Arnold Vosloo as Imhotep in The Mummy. The implication here is that despite being in Africa, ancient Egypt was really a white civilization of European or Asian origin rather than being truly African.

This view is wrong. The best evidence we have suggests that the civilization of ancient Egypt was established in the main by indigenous Africans. This is not to say that there was no influence, biological or cultural, from Asia or Europe on Egypt, but any such influence was slight. The ancient Egyptians, biologically and culturally, were fundamentally Africans.

Biologically African

Before we begin, we need to clarify on what it means to be biologically African. Most people think they know what African (or Negroid) features look like: for instance, broad noses and thick lips. While many Africans do have those features, there are many who do not. According to the physical anthropologist Jean

Hiernaux in his 1975 book The People of Africa:

In sub-Saharan Africa, many anthropological characters show a wide range of population means or frequencies. In some of them, the whole world range is covered in the sub-continent. Here live the shortest and the tallest human populations, the one with the highest and the one with the lowest nose, the one with the thickest and the one with the thinnest lips in the world. In this area, the range of the average nose widths covers 92 per cent of the world range: only a narrow range of extremely low means are absent from the African record.

Narrower noses and thinner lips, so-called Caucasian features, are particularly common in northeastern African countries not far from Egypt, such as Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and northern Sudan. Why this is so remains unknown, although some anthropologists have noted a correlation between nose width in humans and air moisture, with narrower noses predominating among peoples living in drier climates. The point is that native African facial features are diverse and are not limited to the stereotypical broad-nosed, full-lipped Negroid type.

With that in mind, how can we tell whether the Egyptians skeletal structure was more African or European/Asian?

One way physical anthropologists can tell how closely related certain populations are is by studying the overall shape of their skulls, because skull shape varies from population to population. Populations with the most similar-looking skulls are considered more closely related.

Analyzed this way, ancient Egyptian skulls in general turn out to be more similar to skulls from northeastern African countries such as Ethiopia or northern Sudan than to European or Asian skulls. Sub-Saharan traits are especially strong in skulls from southern Egypt (also known as Upper Egypt), although they are less pronounced in northern Egyptian (or Lower Egyptian) skulls.

However, there is some evidence implying that Egyptians did eventually mix with Asians and Europeans. Comparison of Egyptian skulls across time shows continuity for most of Egyptian history, but there is a degree of change in later periods, when Egypt experienced increased infiltration from foreigners from Europe and Asia. By then, however, Egyptian civilization was in decline. Any foreign admixture during Egypt's golden years was small in scale.

Ancient Egyptians also appear to be more closely related to Africans than to Europeans or Asians when we take into account the shape of their skeletons beyond their skulls. Particularly important here is the length of the limbs. People from Africa have proportionately longer limbs than people from Europe or Asia, because longer limbs more easily dissipate heat. Studies measuring ancient Egyptians' limbs find their proportions more similar to those of Africans than Europeans or Asians. One study found the Egyptians limbs to be even longer than those of most Africans, calling them super-Negroid!

Another line of evidence concerns hair morphology. One might think that all one has to do to tell what hair texture the ancient Egyptians had is to simply look at their mummies, but this can be misleading. Analysis of hair from Egyptian mummies shows that the proteins in it have been damaged, possibly by chemicals used in the mummification process. Damage to hairs chemical structure can change texture. Fortunately, there is a more reliable way to tell the original texture of a hair is by measuring the cross-section with a special instrument called a trichometer. Using this, one can get the minimum and maximum diameter of a hair. Then, one divides the minimum measurement by the maximum and multiplies the product by a hundred, producing an index.

Populations vary in the indices of their hairs cross-section. Curly-haired populations, such as Africans and Melanesians, have indices between 55 and 70. On the other hand, straight-haired populations, such as Europeans, Asians, and Native Americans, have indices above 70.

When ancient Egyptian hair samples are subjected to trichometer measurements, they typically turn out indices between 35 and 66.5. This indicates that most ancient Egyptians had naturally curly hair, as do most Africans. However, it must be noted that Egyptians usually shaved their heads to rid themselves of hair lice and wore wigs most of the time (often the hair used to make the wigs was imported from surrounding nations). Thus ancient Egyptian artwork does not usually depict Egyptians with their natural hair.

Finally, there is the question of the Egyptians skin color. You might think that looking at Egyptian paintings would easily answer this, but the problem is that Egyptian art was symbolic rather than realistic. Characters in Egyptian murals may be brown, yellow, gold, green, white, or black depending on the symbolism. The most common convention in earlier Egyptian art is to paint men brown and women yellow, but in later dynasties both sexes are portrayed as brown-skinned. Whatever caused this change in convention remains a mystery, but the point is that Egyptian art is not meant to accurately portray its subjects skin tones.

If we wanted to more accurately determine the skin color of the ancient Egyptians, we should look at the skin cells in their mummies and take note of the amount of melanin, the pigment that determines skin tone. One study by German scientists did just that when analyzing Egyptian mummies soft tissue. They described the skin cells as being pack with melanin, as expected for specimens of Negroid [African] origin. Unfortunately, they did not go into depth or specify exactly how much melanin was in the skin cells, but by choosing the word Negroid, they implied that the ancient Egyptians skin tones were within the range we call black.

In conclusion, the ancient Egyptians were, by and large, not white people like Yul Brynner or Arnold Vosloo. In fact, if we saw them today, we would probably call them black.

Physical anthropology is not the only discipline which provides evidence for the African origin of ancient Egypt. Archaeology also shows us that ancient Egyptian civilization was fundamentally rooted in Africa as well.

Archaeologically African

The oldest evidence of an organized society in Egypt comes from the countryside far south, in a basin called Nabta Playa out in the Sahara Desert. In this barren environment, archaeologists have found the remains of villages with huts built in straight rows, wells, stone-roofed chambers with the bones of dead cattle (most likely sacrificed) buried within, and even a circle of megaliths similar to England's Stonehenge. These ruins date back to between the 10th and 7th millennia BC. Back then, the Sahara was grassland, and there was a lake within the basin, allowing people to live there.

The Nabta Playa proto-civilization may represent the earliest stage of Egyptian civilization. One reason to think so is the evidence for cattle sacrifice there. Cattle sacrifice was also practiced by ancient Egyptians; as many as 16,000 cattle were sacrificed in one year to the god Amun during the reign of pharaoh Rameses III. Perhaps this Egyptian tradition had its roots in Nabta Playa.

Around 5,500 years ago, the Sahara dried up, forcing the people living there into Egypt's Nile Valley, where they adopted farming. Soon, two early civilizations developed, one in northern Egypt and another in southern Egypt. Of these two cultures, it was the southern Egyptians who developed what we think of as ancient Egyptian civilization. It is in southern Egypt that we first find evidence of social and economic differentiation among people, indicating the establishment of a social hierarchy similar to that of later Egyptian culture. The institution of the pharaoh also appears to be southern in origin; the oldest artifact with pharaonic iconography on it is an incense burner found in Qustul, just north of the modern Egypt/Sudan border. In time, the culture of Upper Egypt dominated that of Lower Egypt and even conquered it by 3100 BC, making Egypt a single country for the first time in history.

The genesis of ancient Egyptian culture in the countryside south is inconsistent with any argument that Egyptian civilization is part of the Near Eastern or Mediterranean cultural bloc. If civilization in Egypt was indeed an import from Asia, we would expect the north to dominate and conquer the south. Instead, the reverse was the case, which shows that Egyptian culture was essentially an indigenous-- and therefore African---development.

Linguistically African

The Ancient Egyptian language is classified by most linguists as one of a phylum of languages called Afroasiatic or Afrasian. This language phylum is believed to have originated in the Horn of Africa (the region encompassing Ethiopia, Somalia, and Eritrea) between 15,000 and 13,000 BC and spread to Egypt between 12,000 and 10,000 BC. Other examples of Afrasian languages include Hausa (spoken in Nigeria), Tuareg (spoken throughout the southern Sahara), and Oromo (spoken in Ethiopia).

Culturally African

Before I begin, I will admit that Africans do not belong to a single culture. In fact African cultures have always been diverse. Among the different types of cultures that have developed in Africa are urban civilizations, rural chiefdoms, pastoralist tribes, and hunter-gatherer bands. Broad generalizations about African cultures are therefore difficult to make.

With that said, the ancient Egyptians did share many customs with several other societies in Africa. Among these customs:

Divine Kingship: Unlike in Mesopotamia, where the king was an intermediary between the gods and the mortal population, in Egypt the pharaoh was a god who had the power to make the Nile flood and inundate farmers fields. In other African societies, the king is also thought to be a god with control over the weather; his duty is to make it rain.

Circumcision: In both ancient Egypt and some African societies, children would be circumcised as a coming-of-age rite.

Animal Worship: Egyptians thought that certain animals were living representations of their gods. For instance, cats represented the goddess Bast, cattle the goddess Hathor or the god Apis, and crocodiles the god Sobek.. Many African societies also practice this type of animal worship.

Ancestor Worship/Veneration: The Egyptians believed in honoring their deceased ancestors and would hold feasts in their honor. Ancestor veneration is also widespread in the rest of Africa.

Voodoo: The Egyptians believed that if you made an image of your enemies and damaged it, the enemies would be hurt as well. A similar belief is found in the voodoo religions of Africa.

The above is far from a complete list of shared cultural practices between ancient Egypt and the rest of Africa, but it should suffice to show that the Egyptians had at least a little in common with other African peoples.

Why is Egypt not recognized as African?

The ancient Egyptians were Africans. Their biology, language, and culture all evolved within Africa, not in Asia or Europe. Yet most people do not realize this and continue to think of Egypt as part of the Near East or Mediterranean.

This reason for this should be obvious: it is a legacy of racism. When Westerners began studying the remains of ancient Egypt in the 18th and 19th centuries, they could not admit that native Africans built this civilization. After all, many Western economies depended on the subjugation and exploitation of Africans, whether as slaves or colonial subjects. The justification for this was that Africans were dim-witted savages that needed to be dominated by the white man. If one of the worlds earliest and most influential civilizations was built by Africans, that justification for exploitation would be refuted. Therefore, early Egyptologists argued that the Egyptians were really invaders from Europe or Asia rather than native Africans.

Fortunately, modern science has marched on since those prejudiced beginnings, and has shown us that the ancient Egyptians were indeed of African origin. Unfortunately, most people are unaware of the evidence connecting Egypt to the rest of Africa, so popular culture continues to depict it as non-African.

Why Egypt's Africanity must be recognized

Acknowledging the African roots of ancient Egypt is important for two reasons. The first reason is that it will make our reconstructions of ancient Egypt more accurate. When recreating the past we must strive to be as accurate as possible. Failure to be accurate would lead to the propagation of misconceptions that distort our view of the past.

The second reason is that denying Egypt its Africanity in spite of the facts does a disservice to people of African descent. It denies them their heritage and sends the message that people of their stock could not have accomplished a civilization as powerful or influential as Egypt. It therefore perpetuates racism against Africans and people with African ancestry.

If we are to challenge racism and come together as one species, we must admit the fact that people of all skin tones have contributed to human development throughout history. We should stop pretending that only the light-skinned peoples of Europe and Asia matter in history. To continue to do so is to perpetuate a harmful lie.

It is time to accept the truth. One of the worlds oldest civilizations, one which help lay the foundations for our own modern civilization, was established by |Africans.

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29241|2009-06-25 13:35:27|Obadele (abibitumikasa.com)|AFRIKAN MARTIAL ARTS:
Discovering the Warrior Within Live Interactiv|

To register for class, go to <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

AFRIKAN MARTIAL ARTS:
Discovering the Warrior Within
(Course Description)

When: Class begins June 28th, 2009 at 6:00PM EST

How much: $160

How long: 8 weeks

Who: All Afrikan people who are interested in Afrikan Martial Arts and Self-Defense

Where: <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

How: To access the online member classroom, you must register for the Abibitumi Kasa site at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/register.php>

You'll need to do this if you don't have an account already.

If you already have an account at the site, login at this link:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/login.php>

From there click on the link to member classroom on any page at the site at class time or visit the link to the member classroom here directly at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

Learn to hook up your audio and/or webcam for class and more at:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/video-tutorials-how-abibitumi-kasa/>

Join author of the ground-breaking book Afrikan Martial Arts: Discovering the Warrior Within and Master Instructor, Balogun Oyabode Abeegunde assisted by the Full Instructors and students of the Afrikan Martial Arts Institute in learning the Traditional Afrikan Martial Arts System of Egbe Ogun, a holistic system of techniques and principles from Wolof Laamb, Yoruba Ijakadi and Mandinka Kilijawaaro.

Taught in eight-week sessions, this dynamic, interactive and exciting class teaches students effective and efficient methods of self-defense, as well as traditional Afrikan martial principles and strategies.

Traditional Afrikan martial arts stress common sense, efficiency, and improvisation in the application of self-defense and combat techniques. Students learn to quickly and effectively defend themselves against strikes, chokes, throws, bear-hugs and headlocks, attacks while they are prone on the ground, knives, clubs and firearms. Students also learn to apply powerful strikes, throws, chokes, joint-locks and weapon disarms.

Dont be a victim! Discover the Warrior Within!!

AFRIKAN MARTIAL ARTS:
Discovering the Warrior Within
(Syllabus)

1. WEEK 1
2. Salute
3. Basic Footwork
4. Subu (Falls & Rolls)
5. High Cover vs. Hook / Straight Punches
6. Low Cover vs. Low Hook / Straight Punches
7. Executing a proper punch
8. Student Creed

1. WEEK 2 Q & A

1. WEEK 3
2. Salute
3. Basic Footwork
4. Subu
5. High Cover vs. Hook / Straight Punches
6. Low Cover vs. Low Hook / Straight Punches
7. Defense vs. Jab □Cross □Hook Combo
8. Defense vs. Hook □Hook □Low Hook
9. Student Creed

1. WEEK 4 Q & A

1. WEEK 5 As Week 3, with further refinement of technique

1. WEEK 6 Q & A

1. WEEK 7
2. As weeks 3 and 5
3. Exposing & Refuting Myths

1. WEEK 8 Q & A

To register for class, go to
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

Live Interactive Online and Accra, Ghana Afrikan Language Classes

Register for Free Afrikan Liberation Institute

Sign Up for AKALI Mailing List

Abibitumi Kasa Fundraiser

| 29242|2009-06-25 14:14:59|Obadele (abibitumikasa.com)|Repatriation Course 101 Live
Interactive Online Class @ Abibitumi Ka|

To register for class, go to <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/register.html>

Repatriation Course, 101

When: Class Begins June 28th at 2:00PM EST

Who: All Afrikan people who are interested in repatriation

Where: <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

How: To access the online member classroom, you must register for the Abibitumi Kasa site at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/register.php>

You'll need to do this if you don't have an account already.

If you already have an account at the site, login at this link:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/login.php>

From there click on the link to member classroom on any page at the site at class time or visit the link to the member classroom here directly at <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/chat/flashchat.php>

Learn to hook up your audio and/or webcam for class and more at:
<http://www.abibitumikasa.com/forums/video-tutorials-how-abibitumi-kasa/>

How Much: $95

Why: Repatriation, Visit, Interacting with Family, and more.

The topic of Repatriation has been relegated to the poets, revolutionaries and the players of instrument, but rarely has it been broken down in terms of the practical movement of a nation of dispersed African families, men and women, forward into Africa.

Repatriation Courses 101 & 102 eliminates the questions, misconceived notions and fears about returning to Africa. In their place we provide logical answers and a direct link, in a no holds barred setting, minus the limitations we face providing crucial information via our web-site. The course will be taught by yours truly, a Repatriate in the field for 10 years. I am determined to demystify repatriation for all interested.

The first course will begin on Sunday June 28, 2009 at 2 p.m., eastern standard time. It will continue, at the same time for the next 5 weeks and costs $95.00. To register: <http://www.abibitumikasa.com/ariel.htm> for questions call: +233-20-946-6408

Course Outlines:

Repatriation Course 101

Introductory Lesson:

- Brief autobiography of course instructor
  - Redefine repatriation
  - Explain course objectives
- Entertain general questions and concerns

Lesson 1: Logistics of moving to Ghana

- Costs (airfare, shipping, duties, etc.)
- What to bring and why (cars, furniture, tools, etc.)
  - Dealing with the ports and clearing of goods
    - Banking

Lesson 2: Buying, leasing or renting property in Ghana

- Terms of renting
- Terms of buying, limitations and ways around them
  - Benefits and disadvantages of each
  - Building headaches and solutions
- Practical management of in-house help (servants)
  - Security issues

Lesson 3: Doing Business in Ghana

- Ghana Investment Promotions Center: requirements and bylaws
- Industries most complimentary to our experience and know how

- Profit margins, earning the local currency against ridiculous inflation rates and still staying ahead
  - Exporting & Importing
- Non Government (profit) Organizations

Lesson 4: Residence permits and citizenship in Ghana

- Immigrations
- Right of Abode: legally & realistically
  - Naturalizing
  - Marriage
- Passport & other I.D.s

Lesson 5: Health and Wellness in Ghana

- Hygiene
- Buying & preparing food
- Malaria, typhoid & A.I.D.S.
  - Children & Elders
  - Giving birth

Repatriation Course 102

Lesson 1: Concerning the Youth & the Elders

- Varied options available for education and recreation of youth
- Issues at the schools (cutting hair, spanking, hygiene, etc.)
  - Other concerns: school fees, uniforms, curriculum, etc.
    - Challenges faced by the Elders
    - Options available to Elders

Lesson 2: Culture Shock!

- Our expectations vs. reality
- Pan African rhetoric & uninviting policies
  - Religion vs. Tradition
  - Who do voodoo?

Lesson 3: Adjusting to Ghana

- Humility as an asset
- Acceptance as a tool
- Overcoming as a necessity

- Various ways one humbles, accepts, overcomes and yet remains in their own realm of high frequency

Lesson 4: Socializing/acclimating in Ghana

- Family
- Men
- Women
- Children
- Marrying

Lesson 5: Successful Repatriate

- Find that peace of mind in a sometimes crazy society
- Learn to cohabit with brothers and sisters that have very little in common with you
- Self sustenance & prosperity in an environment that is designed to cause failure
  - Victory!
-
-

To register for class, go to <http://www.abitumikasa.com/register.html>

Live Interactive Online and Accra, Ghana Afrikan Language Classes

Register for Free Afrikan Liberation Institute

Sign Up for AKALI Mailing List

Abitumi Kasa Fundraiser

| 29243|2009-06-25 16:08:40|Asar Imhotep|The Moon is Dancing - In Honor of MJ|
Peace Phamily

I know this usually isn't the correct forum for this type of email, but as a man of the arts, I had to honor the legend of Pop music somehow. So I ask that everyone visit the following link in honor of Michael Jackson as this truly captures the essence of his talent. So with that said, and keeping with the tradition of this forum dealing with African culture, I present Ladysmith Black Mambazo of South Africa singing Lindelani from the Smooth Criminal movie at the end of

Moonwalker

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=faXBr5H9QMc>

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29244|2009-06-25 18:13:31|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: youtube lecture|

Subject: youtube lecture

To: "tafari sudra khumbaka" <tafari_sudra@yahoo.com>

Date: Thursday, June 25, 2009, 7:44 PM

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ILddzYAPgk0>

click above

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=87c9zaM3A7E&feature=related>

click above

may need headphones to hear some vids of Dr.Finch

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29245|2009-06-25 21:14:13|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Obama is a sign in the heavens|

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-8ItE6Tkems&feature=related>

Dr.Finch

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2kotK9FNEYU&feature=related> music of the age

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29246|2009-06-26 09:38:36|Ginger Daniels|G.M., Detroit and the Fall of the Black Middle Class|

Magazine Preview

G.M., Detroit and the Fall of the Black Middle Class

Damon Winter/The New York Times

Marvin Powell with his wife, children and parents at his home in Southfield, Mich.

By JONATHAN MAHLER

Published: June 24, 2009

The Pontiac Assembly Center in Pontiac, Mich., is a massive, low-slung structure of concrete and corrugated green steel that squats conspicuously among the many strip malls that line one of the city's main thoroughfares, South Opdyke Road. Locals refer to the three-million-square-foot factory, which makes Chevrolet Silverado and GMC Sierra pickup trucks, as Plant 6, because when it opened in 1972, it was the sixth General Motors manufacturing facility in this city, 25 miles north of downtown Detroit. At the time, General Motors was the world's largest automaker. It dominated the American market, manufacturing half of the vehicles sold in the U.S. As recently as 2003, Plant 6 was running three consecutive eight-hour shifts, employing 3,000 people and making 1,300 trucks a day.

The Packard plant in Detroit closed in 1956. G.M. expects to shut as many as seven factories in Michigan by the end of next year.

Today, Pontiac Assembly is the city's last working auto-assembly plant, and like many of America's car factories, it is operating at a greatly diminished capacity. By last summer, the plant was running just one shift from 6 in the morning to 2:30 in the afternoon having shed nearly two-thirds of its workers through a combination of layoffs, buyouts and early retirements. A few months ago, Plant 6 slowed down its assembly line and laid off another 600 employees, bringing the total number of remaining workers to fewer than 600. The factory now produces only about 230 vehicles a day.

On a clear, mild Thursday afternoon in April, I stood among the smattering of cars, mostly American-made pickup trucks and sport-utility vehicles, clustered together in a small section of Pontiac Assembly's vast parking lot as the plant's single shift ended and its employees trickled out. Among them was Marvin Powell, a tall, heavyset, African-American man in blue jeans, a green sweatshirt and a baseball cap that read All-Star Dad. We were going to throw horseshoes with some of his co-workers in a park next to their union hall, Local 594, but as Powell climbed into his Chevy Equinox, he told me he wanted to grab something to eat first.

You didn't have lunch? I asked.

I did, but that was at 10 o'clock, Powell said.

Powell wakes up every morning at 4, showers, eats breakfast and watches SportsCenter before setting out for the plant at 5:30. He is stationed at the very end of what's known as the final line, the last stage of the vehicle-assembly process. By the time a truck arrives at his position, its frame has been attached to the chassis and the engine is in place. Powell has 1 minute 40 seconds to perform his routine on each vehicle, a series of tasks that includes attaching cables to batteries, tightening nuts and bolts and installing a transmission dipstick.

Barack Obama has called the dying U.S. auto industry an emblem of the American spirit, but Powell speaks about what he does without romance or nostalgia. It's not a glamorous job, to say the least, he told me as we settled into a booth at a nearby Arbys. Still, Powell derives at least a little satisfaction from his work. Do I feel a sense of pride when I spot a Silverado or Sierra on the road? he said. Yeah. I do.

More to the point, he is grateful for the life the job has afforded him. There are the little things: the Saturday-night takeout, the flat-screen TV, the Caribbean cruise he and his wife took before they had kids, the trip to Disney World after, the high-end educational toys for his precocious 5-year-old son, Marvin II and the bigger ones. Most notably, Powell was able to leave the city of Detroit, where he was born and raised, for Kingsley Estates, a quiet subdivision in Southfield, a racially integrated suburb of modest middle-class homes just north of the city. And his wife, Shirese, was able to quit her job to spend more time with their children and start a small day-care center in their house.

When Powell and I met outside Pontiac Assembly, the mood inside the plant was especially tense. Just a day before, the line was stopped early for a plantwide meeting on the factory floor. A G.M. executive had recently spent a day touring the plant to determine its future, and the guys wanted to know if any decisions had been made. Would they be bringing back any of the laid-off workers? Were there going to be more layoffs? Was the plant going to close?

Click here for the rest of the story -

http://www.nytimes.com/2009/06/28/magazine/28detroit-t.html?pagewanted=1&\_r=2&hp

---

Insert movie times and more without leaving Hotmail. See how.

| 29247|2009-06-26 09:44:40|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Re: 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa|

it is my deep(ancestral,akashic) belief (and there is a lot of fact to investigate) THAT homosapine-sapien was here at a much earlier time around 3million yrs. and died out only too re-emerge around 500,000 too 300,000 yrs. ago.

and the pre-hominid substrate that make-up today's hominids had distinct different physiology that allowed adaptation in multi-dynamic ways.....

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti: Africa
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 11:01 PM

This article definitely pushes the African timeline back and implies an initial "east-to-west" migration early in her history.

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: [Ta_Seti] 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti: Africa
To: maatcollective@ yahooogroups. com
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 8:03 PM

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/science/andtechnology/science/science/5299351/African-tribe-populated-rest-of-the-world.html>
click above

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

From The Washington Post May 1, 2009

Africans Have World's Highest Genetic Diversity, Study Finds

Peace, Bliss & Blessings
Shquestra

Don't talk about it...be about it.

"The people, who were trying to make this world worse... are not taking a day off.
How can I? Light up the darkness."

Bob Marley

---

Hotmail goes with you. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29248|2009-06-26 16:06:46|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: BlackReignForever sent you a video: "Robert Mugabe's Harlem Spee|
TuaU/thanx

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 6/26/09, YouTube Service wrote:

From: YouTube Service

Subject: BlackReignForever sent you a video: "Robert Mugabe's Harlem Speech On Land Reform Pt 1"

To: "yonitree"

Date: Friday, June 26, 2009, 5:35 PM

help center | e-mail o
repo

BlackReignForever has shared a video with you on YouTube:

Great addendum to my own latest vid.

Robert Mugabe's Harlem Speech On Land Reform Pt 1

Part 1 - President Robert Mugabe's speech on how Ronald Reagan and Tony Blair ren on their obligation to fund land reform in Zimbabwe.

Claire Short made Britain's reneging on it's obligation to fund land purchase in Zimba official, when in November 1997, she wrote to the then Zimbabwean minister of Agriculture and Land:

"5 November 1997

From the Secretary of State

Hon Kumbirai Kangai MP
Minister of Agriculture and Land

Dear Minister

I should make it clear that we do not accept that Britain has a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in Zimbabwe. We are a new Government from diverse backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. My own origins are Irish and as you know we were colonised not colonisers.

Source: Swans, <http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>

From Amy Goodman's Democracy Now!

You can respond to BlackReignForever by visiting your

2009 YouTube, LLC
901 Cherry Ave, San Bruno, CA 94066

| 29249|2009-06-26 17:54:14|Tafari khumbaka|Axisis Amunde,(axis bold as Love)|

Djeddjedu

- Posted by tafari-sudra, khumbaka

- Add

Osiris, in his earliest Axis Munde form of a tamarisk tree trunk, was called Djed. His later mummy wrappings were symbolic of his having been encased inside a tree trunk. His mummy was therefore an Axis Munde as indeed were all future mummies. Over time the tree trunk was replaced by the imagery of a pillar which became known as the Djed Pillar, the Pillar of Stability.

When Osiris was enclosed in the trunk of a tamarisk tree, which was later cut down and used as a pillar in the palace of the King of Byblos, he metaphorically became as one with the Tree of Life. Osiris became the Axis Munde around which the heavens appear to revolve; he became the World Pillar, the link between the terrestrial and celestial worlds. He held the heavens in his outstretched arms, and he soaked up the word of God from the waters of the Netherworld. In Ancient Egypt the Netherworld was called the "Netterworld" meaning the "World of the gods". The gods had their home among the stars.

<http://ancientegypt.hypermart.net/treeoflife/>

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

| 29250|2009-06-27 06:40:43|Alex van Deelen|Fw: BlackReignForever sent you a video: "Robert Mugabe's Harlem Spee|

That is great. In the end, the truth will come out.

The Zimbabwean currency was destroyed by sanctions, imposed by the Bush Administration. Specifically, Bill Frist and Jesse Helms, but Hillary Clinton, Joe Biden and Russ Feingold put their names to it too.

This is not even about Republican versus Democrat, but Corporatocracy versus Democracy.

Together, they bled the country of Zimbabwe of foreign currency, by eliminating the country's credit lines and demanding the continued payment of IMF induced debt.

In their typical racist and white supremacist way, the MDC insists that the currency collapsed because of 'Mugabe's mismanagement' (see, Africans should not be running their own country is their rhodesian message), even though the MDC helped draft these laws. These are the sanctions these lying racist hypocrites swore high and low didn't exist:

Text of S. 494 [107th]: Zimbabwe Democracy and Economic Recovery Act of 2001

SEC. 4. SUPPORT FOR DEMOCRATIC TRANSITION AND ECONOMIC RECOVERY

(c) MULTILATERAL FINANCING RESTRICTION-

... the Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States executive director to each international financial institution to oppose and vote against--

(1) any extension by the respective institution of any loan, credit, or guarantee to the Government of Zimbabwe; or

(2) any cancellation or reduction of indebtedness owed by the Government of Zimbabwe to the United States or any international financial institution.

<http://www.govtrack.us/congress/billtext.xpd?bill=s107-494&version=enr&nid=t0%3Aenr%3A30>

The BBC, the mainstream corporate media have been on an 8 year lying spree about Zimbabwe.

Let the people know the truth.

Alex

Posted by: "Tafari khumbaka" tafari\_sudra@yahoo.com tafari_sudra
Fri Jun 26, 2009 4:06 pm (PDT)

TuaU/thanx

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 6/26/09, YouTube Service <service@youtube.com> wrote:

From: YouTube Service <service@youtube.com>

Subject: BlackReignForever sent you a video: "Robert Mugabe's Harlem Speech On Land Reform Pt 1"

To: "yonitree" <tafari\_sudra@yahoo.com>

Date: Friday, June 26, 2009, 5:35 PM

help center | e-mail options | report spam

BlackReignForever has shared a video with you on YouTube:

Great addendum to my own latest vid.

Robert Mugabe's Harlem Speech On Land Reform Pt 1
Part 1 - President Robert Mugabe's speech on how Ronald Reagan and Tony Blair reneged on their obligation to fund land reform in Zimbabwe.

Claire Short made Britain's reneging on it's obligation to fund land purchase in Zimbabwe official, when in November 1997, she wrote to the then Zimbabwean minister of Agriculture and Land:

"5 November 1997
From the Secretary of State

Hon Kumbirai Kangai MP
Minister of Agriculture and Land

Dear Minister

I should make it clear that we do not accept that Britain has a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in Zimbabwe. We are a new Government from diverse backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. My own origins are Irish and as you know we were colonised not colonisers.

Source: Swans, <http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>

From Amy Goodman's Democracy Now!

You can respond to BlackReignForever by visiting your

2009 YouTube, LLC
901 Cherry Ave, San Bruno, CA 94066
| 29251|2009-06-27 07:36:07|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Our ancient homeland/inheirittance|
Civilians face "double danger" in Congo, U.N. says

The Star Fri, 26 Jun 2009 10:18 AM PDT

GENEVA (Reuters) - Civilians in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo are caught between men in uniform who rape with impunity and Rwandan Hutu rebels who commit brutal reprisal killings, the top U.N. aid official there said on Friday.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29252|2009-06-27 20:21:06|Tafari khumbaka|Abtu|

Attachments :

djed2.bmp

Died.jpg

http://www.world-mysteries.com/sar\_sage1.htm

click above

A interesting article on the flower of life design on 3 columns at the Abtu Temple .
Considering all the new info: on fractals and geometry of the ancients.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29253|2009-06-27 22:58:57|nathaniel x vance|Reconciliation by NBPP National Min. of Information|

Reconciliation by NBPP National Min. of Information

Dear Group,

To those of you who are aware of some infighting that I and certain group members (namely Ms. Nancy Lockhart and nattyreb) have been having in the last two months, I wish to inform you that I have agreed to honor the request of Bro. Jamarhl Crawford ( NBPP National Min. of Information) to allow him to arbitrate our dispute. Below is a letter that I emailed Bro. Jamarhl after we have a 20 minute talk on the phone a few days ago.

Dear Bro. Jamarhl Crawford, National Minister of Information for the New Black Panther Party, I thank you for having the heart and concern to act as a arbiter/mediator between Ms. Nancy and myself. Of course, I did not start this petty senseless confusion. To be clear, so that you will not be wasting any of your time, I wish to state or reiterate these points:

- 1.) Our groups shall remain separate distinct entities. This is non-negotiable at this time. Later, a coalition may be possible.
- 2.) Ms. Nancy and all of her members must promise to refrain from any and all criticism or derogatory comments or statements of either me and my group, and I shall promise to do the same. This shall include all postings or emails by her or me and by any other member of our groups in either group or in any group on the internet.
- 3.) Any violation of the above shall be subject to your arbitration and an agreed fined of $ XX.XX dollars levied according to your stipulation.

If you take a look at my group postings, and compare them to Ms. Nancy groups' postings , you will see who is doing all (and I do mean all) the criticism!

As they say, the PROOF IS IN THE PUDDING!

I have removed the Donate button from my Zetaheaven.org website per your request. We agreed that in one week [7-3-09] you will get back with me to let me know if some truce deal has been arranged. Hopefully, Ms. Nancy, nattyreb and her group will see the light!

<<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Free-the-Scott-Sisters-Committee/>> My group - 45 members in less than 3 months. There is NO Criticism of Ms. Nancy in my group ? zero!

<<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/FreeTheScottSisters/>> Ms. Nancy group ? 18 members after working five years. You can count many criticisms and innuendo of me in her group! Also: note the message history please at the bottom compared to my group.

Lastly, I must state that Ms. Nancy has made every effort to get Jamie and Gladys to dissociate themselves from having anything to do with me. Gladys has refused to do so. Ms. Nancy has spread many lies against me, such as that I was selling tee-shirts, and pocketing the money, etc, etc, etc. Gladys is supposed to be keeping a log of what lies Ms. Nancy is telling Jamie.

I leave you brother with many thanks for getting involved. Again, I want to say that I did not start this mess! I hope your effort is successful and peace! Amen.

| 29254|2009-06-27 22:59:17|Ginger Daniels|Valentino's school in Sudan is open!|

Attachments :

---

This man, Valentino Deng is one of the Sudanese lost boys. He has made a success of his life, after his tragic beginnings... and now he has gone back to try and make strides to repair his homeland and the children there. If you can, please make a donation to help him out. Also, his book, What is the What, is a serious page turner and gives great insight into the plight of the children in many countries in Africa who are caught in between civil wars, and the serious problems facing these young people. Donations are from $9 - $500.

Please help out if you can.

Ginger

---

Date: Thu, 25 Jun 2009 23:26:46 -0700
From: gingerd2007@yahoo.com
Subject: Valentino's school in Sudan is open!
To: gingerd2007@hotmail.com

--- On Thu, 6/25/09, The Valentino Achak Deng Foundation wrote:

From: The Valentino Achak Deng Foundation
Subject: Valentino's school in Sudan is open!
To: gingerd2007@yahoo.com
Date: Thursday, June 25, 2009, 11:15 PM

MARIAL BAI SECONDARY SCHOOL
The Valentino Achak Deng Foundation's new school
in Southern Sudan is open!

Classes at the school started in May 2009.
Construction is still underway on the library, teacher-training college, girls' dormitory, sports fields, school farm, and community center.

Click here to support the school!

www.valentinoachakdeng.org

---

A MESSAGE FROM VALENTINO

Dear Friends,

I am deeply honored to thank you for your kind words and your humble prayers that have rejuvenated our project in Southern Sudan. You have truly uplifted my faith and spirit in humanity. Only a few years ago, I was not the kind of person many of you may have had the opportunity to think about. Neither was Southern Sudan, or Marial Bai for that matter, a place you would have had the chance to read about.

But owing to ever-increasing global awareness and my friendship and brotherly collaboration with author Dave Eggers I like to refer to him as my brother Dave we now have words, and a book that brought us a sense of reckoning. I believe that we are the same in many more ways than we are able to understand. Thanks again for supporting and spreading our words. Keep the faith, for you represent the very hope that has brought us this far.

Most importantly, I am privileged to inform you that the V.A.D. Foundation has completed construction on a large portion of the Marial Bai Secondary School complex in Northern Bahr al-Ghazal, Southern Sudan. The M.B.S.S. was opened in May and is currently serving eighty-five students. We at the Foundation will not abnegate our responsibilities in supporting and providing tangible education to the people of Southern Sudan. Please be our goodwill ambassadors out there.

Finally, but never the least, allow me to inform you that your various efforts have helped us bring sweet smiles to the faces of students and people in Southern Sudan at their very crucial time of need. I and my people of Southern Sudan will always remember you for your good deeds.

May almighty God bless you,

Valentino Achak Deng

---

THE NEW SCHOOL IN MARIAL BAI

We are happy to report that construction has finished on our secondary school, which completes the first phase of our plans to create an educational center in Valentinos hometown of Marial Bai, Southern Sudan. Classes at the school began in early May!

We opened the secondary school with a pilot class of eighty-five first-year students. More students will be admitted later this year, and higher-level classes will be added as the school grows and develops capacity.

The Marial Bai Secondary School is the first fully-functional secondary school in a region where the educational system was devastated after decades of civil war. After finishing primary school, most students have nowhere to go, and girls especially have very few opportunities to continue their education.

GIRLS' EDUCATION

Girls education is our major focus at the Marial Bai Secondary School. Less than 1% of girls attend secondary school in Southern Sudan, because many are forced into early marriage or kept to work at home. Our new girl students are thrilled to be part of the Marial Bai Secondary School, and they're incredibly determined to succeed.

More than fifty girls applied to attend the school, but cultural and family pressures and the issue of early marriage prevented many of them from actually registering. We opened the school with nine girl students, and were currently working with the local community and womens groups to help increase girls enrollment. The Foundation is also raising funds to construct a girls dormitory, to provide a safe learning environment and an alternative to early marriage.

Above, from left to right:

- Elizabeth Alekiir Akoon, 17, wants to go on to medical school and become a doctor after graduating from Marial Bai.
- Veronica Toch Mapiu, 16, grew up going to Arabic schools in northern Sudan, and is now taking intensive English language lessons each morning from our English teacher.
- Angelina Adior Akueny, 17, wants to be a pilot for Southern Sudan or for a commercial airline in Eastern Africa.

If you'd like to support Elizabeth, Veronica, Angelina, and our other girl students, please click here.

A CENTER FOR EDUCATION

The Marial Bai Secondary School is part of the Foundations plan to create a center for education in Marial Bai, including a library, a teacher-training college, and sports facilities.

Construction is underway on the library, which will provide a study space for our secondary school students as well as the many primary school students in Marial Bai. The library will also offer adult literacy classes for members of the Marial Bai community.

The Foundations teacher-training college is currently being developed: we have constructed teacher houses and a meeting hall, and this summer a team of volunteer teachers from the United States, Canada, and Europe will conduct teacher-training workshops and symposia with our faculty and aspiring teachers in the region.

Here is a computer rendering of the future completed campus, showing the school, library, teacher-training college, boys' and girls' dormitories, and administrative offices:

---

HOW YOU CAN HELP

SUPPORT OUR STUDENTS

Now that the Marial Bai Secondary School is open, the Foundation needs your support to keep it running!

All donations are 100% tax-deductible. Here are a few ideas of how you can help:

$9 provides one student with a backpack full of school supplies for a year

$30 provides one student with a full set of textbooks

$75 provides one laboratory set of science equipment

$150 provides the school with meals for one week

$500 provides the school with one energy-efficient laptop computer

We also need your support to finish construction on the library, teacher-training college and sports facilities, and to build our girls dormitory by the end of the summer.

You can also send a tax-deductible check to The Valentino Achak Deng Foundation, 849 Valencia Street, San Francisco, CA 94110. We are a registered non-profit tax-exempt 501(c)(3) organization.

ORGANIZE YOUR OWN FUNDRAISER

Become an ambassador for our school in Southern Sudan by starting your own fundraisers: We'll send you brochures, DVDs, and everything you'll need to host a house party with your friends and family, organize a bake sale at your school or church, run a marathon to benefit the Foundation, or start your own fundraising blog.

To become an ambassador for the Valentino Achak Deng Foundation, email info@valentinoachakdeng.org.

DONATE SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Now that classes are up and running at the Marial Bai Secondary School, our students need a lot of materials. If you'd like to donate school supplies, a great idea is to send backpacks each filled with materials for one student: a few notebooks, pencils, pens, a ruler, a calculator, and a dictionary. You can even include a personal note for the student who receives your backpack gift!

We also need encyclopedias, dictionaries, thesauruses, teaching books, maps and charts, and new or lightly-used laptop computers. You can send them to our San Francisco office (see below), or directly to our mailbox in Kenya!

The Valentino Achak Deng Foundation
P.O. Box 42530 00100
Nairobi Kenya

For any questions about in-kind donations, or to receive tax-exempt receipts, email info@valentinoachakdeng.org.

VOLUNTEER

The Foundation is a very small organization and we're always looking for volunteers. There are many ways you can get involved to help support the Marial Bai Secondary School, either by interning at our San Francisco office, helping remotely from your hometown, or volunteering in Southern Sudan. For more information, email volunteer@valentinoachakdeng.org.

Thanks for reading, and thank you very much for your support.

The Valentino Achak Deng Foundation
849 Valencia St.
San Francisco, CA 94110

www.valentinoachakdeng.org

If you have questions or would like to unsubscribe from this newsletter, please email info@valentinoachakdeng.org.

---

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.
| 29255|2009-06-27 22:59:29|Ginger Daniels|Black youth under attack|

WHO REALLY CARES?

Here are a few, caught on camera, THIS YEAR. Imagine what happens when no cameras are around. The lengths that this so-called justice system goes to in order to hide this madness... thereby enabling these savages. But we are so consumed with our own lives, while our children are being brutalized... hope you can take a few minutes to at least see a small taste of what is going on in this country.

Cop Arrests Teen For Sagging Pants Then Assaults Him

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MnHiwuT85EY&feature=player\_embedded

Police Shoot Man At Birthday Party In L.A.

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=fRW9bMkdvcg&eurl=http%3A%2F%2Fnewsone.blackplanet.com%2Fnation%2Fnation%2Fnation%2Fpolice-shoot-man-at-birthday-party-in-la%2F&feature=player\_embedded

Leroy Barnes Jr Executed by Pasadena Police

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6BfRvAHuRdE>

Toledo Police Brutally Beat 14 Year Old

<http://newsone.blackplanet.com/nation/video-toledo-police-brutally-beat-14-year-old/>

Police Beat Teenage Black Girl For Riding Bike

<http://newsone.blackplanet.com/nation/nation/nation/nation/police-beat-teenage-black-girl-for-riding-bike/>

Police Kick Man On The Ground In The Head

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4tyellNfdPE&eurl=http%3A%2F%2Fnewsone.blackplanet.com%2Fnation%2Fnation%2Fnation%2Fnation%2Fvideo-police-kick-man-on-the-ground-in-the-head%2F&feature=player\_embedded

Seattle Girl Speaks About Police Beating

<http://newsone.blackplanet.com/nation/nation/nation/nation/seattle-police-beat-15-year-old-girl/>

---

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29256|2009-06-27 22:59:34|Roger Asterilla|Re: 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa|

I don't dispute your beliefs . . . after all, you can't negate an assumption with another. However, I would be interested in hearing more about your beliefs.

Roger "PEACE"

--- On Fri, 6/26/09, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, June 26, 2009, 12:44 PM

it is my deep(ancestral, akashic) belief (and there is a lot of fact to investigate) THAT homosapine-sapien was here at a much earlier time around 3million yrs. and died out only too re emerge around 500,000 too 300,000 yrs. ago.

and the pre-hominid substrate that make-up todays homosapien-sapien had distinct different physiology that allowed adaptation in multi-dynamic ways..... ...

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Roger Asterilla wrote:

From: Roger Asterilla
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 11:01 PM

This article definitely pushes the African timeline back and implies an initial "east-to-west" migration early in her history.

--- On Tue, 6/23/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: [Ta_Seti] 70,000 yrs.ago african populated world outside conti:Africa
To: maatcollective@ yahoogroups. com
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 2009, 8:03 PM

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/science/andtechnology/science/science/5299351/African-tribe-populated-rest-of-the-world.html>
click above

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

From The Washington Post May 1, 2009

Africans Have World's Highest Genetic Diversity, Study Finds

Peace, Bliss & Blessings
Shquestra

Don't talk about it...be about it.

"The people, who were trying to make this world worse... are not taking a day off.

How can I? Light up the darkness."

Bob Marley

---

Hotmail goes with you. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29257|2009-06-27 22:59:50|odhiambo okech|Army ready to defend Kenya|
Sungu,

I remember those kind of days when as young boys, we could tout each other. In most cases, the one who bragged the most was in most cases the loser.

I want to look at your posting about Ethiopia having moved into Somali and scattered the war lords as other countries were still doing what Kenya is currently doing; boasting about their arsenal and might.

I also want to look at what Mwalimu Nyerere [RIP] did to Idi Amin Dada [also RIP]. Amin was busy folding his sleeves, shorts and all, spoiling for war while Mwalimu was very silent, stealthily silent. When he had seen enough of Amins sleeves, he moved in swiftly and chased him out of Uganda.

Kenya has suffered tremendously in the hands of terrorists as we roll our sleeves about our military might. And I now want to ask; Where was our military might when Norfolk Hotel was bombed?

Where was our military might when OTC got bombed?

Where was this military might when the US Embassy in Nairobi was brought down?

Where was this military might when Kikambala Hotel was brought down?

No. We have had enough of this.

Our forces are a force unto darkness. They are never there when they are needed. Kenya is now under the mercy of thugs, car jarkers, rapists, sadists and all sorts of charlatans as we boast of our military might.

I would have been comfortable if our forces would have been on top of the petty crime we have around. That is when we can face the insurgents in Somali.

By the way, do you remember that Uganda has taken Migingo as we roll our sleeves and boast of our military might?

Blessings,

oto

--- On Fri, 6/26/09, otieno sungu wrote:

From: otieno sungu

Subject: Re: Army ready to defend Kenyans from attacks by Somali extremist warlords!!

To: bidiafrika@googlegroups.com, NewVisionKenya@yahoogroups.com, "progressiveminds" , youngprofessionals_ke@googlegroups.com, "kol" , "odhiambo okech"

Cc: "IGNATIUS SIMIYUH"

Date: Friday, June 26, 2009, 4:21 AM

Oto,

That is true, but in most of our cultures, before you beat up some fool fooling around with you, it is imperative that you tell them the "I will beat you!" (abiro goyi matek!!).

If they persist, they should see you folding your sleeves which is a good sign that something drastic is about to happen if they do not change their foolishness (some people remove even shoes while others prefer not to mess their trousers!!)

We are at that stage now with some people who have been fooling around with us for some time, our sleeves are being folded to protect our borders. When you threaten to bomb Nairobi (and we have been bombed here before and we know how painful it is, we cannot massage you and say, you are just kidding right?)

Sungu.

Juba.

--- On Fri, 6/26/09, odhiambo okeeth wrote:

From: odhiambo okeeth

Subject: Re: Army ready to defend Kenyans from attacks by Somali extremist warlords!!

To: bidiafrika@googlegroups.com, NewVisionKenya@yahoogroups.com, "progressiveminds", youngprofessionals_ke@googlegroups.com, "kol"

Cc: "IGNATIUS SIMIYUH", "Sungu"

Date: Friday, June 26, 2009, 6:04 AM

A tiger does not proclaim its tigritude....so would Moluor Wole Soyinka say.

Oto

--- On Fri, 6/26/09, IGNATIUS SIMIYUH wrote:

From: IGNATIUS SIMIYUH

Subject: Re: Army ready to defend Kenyans from attacks by Somali extremist warlords!!

To: bidiafrika@googlegroups.com

Date: Friday, June 26, 2009, 2:45 AM

Sungu,

Interesting Pics. It might be a time when Majority of Kenyans are Realizing the country head such Military Hardware. This might include Museveni. In Nairobi Streets, Majority Kenyans were Baffled by the Pictures on the Daily Nation. They never thought such was within the country's reach.

On Fri, Jun 26, 2009 at 10:05 AM, otieno sungu <sunoti@yahoo.com> wrote:

| 29258|2009-06-27 23:00:24|Terry|Re: New PayPal Account to aid The Scott Sisters|
King Vance,

I'm not clear if this is deliberate, or if you're just missing the boat but you are re-framing this dispute so that your foe seems less powerful, less significant.

Your dispute is with the Scott Sister's Mother.

Now that Mrs. Rasco, the Scott Sister's Mother has made her concerns and frustrations publicly known, perhaps you should pause to reconsider your plans.

The Scott Sisters can't be unlike most of us. We can assume that more than anything - and I do mean anything - these imprisoned women want their Mom to be comfortable. They want her to feel as if she has a handle on their situation.

You could send the grieving Michael Jackson family money tomorrow. That doesn't mean they'll allow you to involve yourself in the making of his arrangements.

Ms. Rasco as the Matriarch of the family has expressed her pain, her opposition to your petition, and your setting up of accounts in the name of her daughters. Whether or not you approve of Nancy Lockhart's work, Ms. Rasco has been pleased with her for a very long time - so the message could not be plainer.

Even if you believe for some odd reason that you don't like how the case is being handled (from observing from a distance), it is unreasonable that you would insert yourself as if you were their long lost Uncle or hired staff without this family's permission. Had you been on your game, you would have reached out directly to the Mother, explained your concerns and suggested she take a different route.

Instead, you seek to build a complete new course, including opening an account in the name of these women without their familial support which is at least disconcerting, and probably even suspicious. The first law of any public work is to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.

These Sisters are struggling and they are scared. So, your attempting to sway them in a different direction from their Mother's wishes in their fragile state is a pretty wild thing to do.

You have mentioned having contacted "attorneys" to assist you. I can't imagine a thoughtful attorney involving him or herself with your aims unless they were not appraised of all the facts. I am also pretty sure that the Panthers, the brilliant thinkers that they are, would never insert themselves in a dispute with a woman whose daughters are political prisoners and whose health could be in jeopardy by the sheer nature of her compounded stress.

Further, I doubt that if this were for example the Troy Davis situation, or some other Brother you would fix your lips to suggest opening a Paypal account in his name. So, the question is - do you believe you can take these kinds of arbitrary, independent actions on behalf of this family because the decision-maker in this instance is a Queen.

For my part, I stand on the side of the parent. I stand by her right to make good decisions and I stand by her right to make mistakes. If I agree with her, I shout it out. If I think she's mistaken, given these are her daughters, I'd likely shut my mouth and offer my assistance directly with her if she would receive it.

So, of course you don't have to listen to me. But, I urge you to at least take a behind the scenes poll before you continue, and weigh the situation out for yourself.

In the meantime, I am slowly but surely putting together a piece on these women, and I myself will include information in support of the Scott Sisters that their Mother deems appropriate.

I admire that courageous, hard-working woman. and to the extent that I am capable - I have her back. The Scott Sisters Mother "shall not be mocked."

Terry Howcott

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, nathaniel x vance wrote:

>

> ❖

> Dear Group,

> I have just created a PAYPAL account which is now available for anyone who choose to donate to the cause of aiding and assisting us in helping ❖ Jamie and Gladys Scott. If any funds or donations are donated to this account, I promise that starting in July, and every month thereafter, a FULL and COMPLETE monthly accounting of all receipts and expenditures will be submitted to the group for your perusal. This way, no one will have a cause to say that we are hiding, misappropriating, or mismanaging the funds for personal reasons or gain!

> To view the PayPal account, please click the link below.

>

> Please sign our PETITION by clicking the link below.

> < <http://scottsisters.petitionhost.com/> > ❖

>

>

> The earthly ❖ ENDTIME ❖ of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

> salaam ❖ akwaaba ❖ jambo ❖ ashogee

>

> <http://zetaheaven.org>

>

| 29259|2009-06-27 23:00:40|Brian|Support efforts of brothers & sisters to spread the truth on Youtub|

Support Black channels on Youtube. These channels get neglect and are hard to find. Lets show these artist some love.

I found some interesting channels and videos on Youtube some of you might like. I will leave links to them so you can check them out.

<http://www.youtube.com/user/NubianTribesman>

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Hz6akT7Ff9w&feature=channel\_page

<http://www.youtube.com/user/Villagetalk4u>

<http://www.youtube.com/user/AfricansArise>

<http://www.youtube.com/user/HiddenBlackHistory>

<http://www.youtube.com/user/tommyb2624>

These are my favorite channels Check them I have a feeling you will like what you find.

| 29260|2009-06-27 23:01:07|Ginger Daniels|BET awards to pay tribute to Jackson|

BET Awards to pay tribute to Jackson

- Story Highlights
- BET Awards are scheduled for Sunday night
- Many of the planned attendees expected to pay tribute to Michael Jackson
- Network CEO: "Michael's influence is felt every day in so many ways" updated 3:40 p.m. EDT, Fri June 26, 2009

- Next Article in Entertainment

By Lisa Respers France

CNN

TEXT SIZE

(CNN) -- In 2003, the BET Awards had a priceless moment when Michael Jackson surprised his idol, James Brown, by showing up on stage where the duo thrilled the audience with an electrifying performance.

Michael Jackson performed with James Brown at the BET Awards in 2003. This year's show is dedicated to Jackson.

Now, both the King of Pop and the Godfather of Soul are gone.

Sunday night's 9th Annual BET Awards is sure to be filled with tributes to Jackson, whose videos and performances were a staple for the network in his heyday. BET has already paid tribute to the singer, going wall-to-wall with Jackson videos Thursday night.

Many of the celebrities scheduled to attend the show were also fans of the singer and it is expected that the night will provide an opportunity for them to salute the star.

"Words cannot capture the impact Michael Jackson has had on pop culture around the world," said Debra L. Lee, chairman and chief executive officer of BET Networks. "He changed the way we hear and feel and move to music; he epitomized what true musical talent and star power really mean. He is and always will be the King of Pop."

Academy Award-winning actor and R&B singer Jamie Foxx is set to host the show.

Don't Miss

- **Commentary: Michael Jackson, the greatest star**
- **Michael Jackson tributes appear all over U.S.**
- **In Depth: Michael Jackson**

Several of the scheduled performers include artists, such as Ne-Yo and Beyonce, who have acknowledged the influence of Jackson on their music and careers.

The annual event is a premier one for the network and this year's plan was to recognize the musical legacy and longstanding career of the legendary soul trio, the O'Jays, with the presentation of the Lifetime Achievement Award.

Artists Alicia Keys and Wyclef Jean are to be honored with the Humanitarian Award for their respective charitable work.

BET CEO Lee said Sunday's show will be dedicated to Jackson and will also pay tribute to his legacy.

Lee reflected on Jackson's career and his importance to BET -- which stands for Black Entertainment Television -- in a prepared statement after his death, while also offering heartfelt prayers for the singer's family and friends.

"Michael's influence is felt every day in so many ways at BET Networks, and it's been that way throughout our network's entire 29-year history," she said. "We watched him grow up and, like everyone around the world, he feels like he is a member of our family.

"He will be missed more than we can say ... but his legend and memory live on in the artists, musicians, producers, dancers, fans and everyone else who looks to him for inspiration."

The BET Awards is scheduled to run live on the cable network Sunday at 8 p.m.

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29261|2009-06-28 02:34:39|Peter Gray|Re: New PayPal Account to aid The Scott Sisters|

Thank you, thankyou one hundres times, Terry. I wanted to respond too, but failed to do so. It's so easy for charlatans to highjack legitimate issues towards their own ends, and we must be wary of them. And you have made the case without personally lambasting Vance.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: terrylynnh@yahoo.com

Date: Sat, 27 Jun 2009 14:37:31 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: New PayPal Account to aid The Scott Sisters

King Vance,

I'm not clear if this is deliberate, or if you're just missing the boat but you are re-framing this dispute so that your foe seems less powerful, less significant.

Your dispute is with the Scott Sister's Mother.

Now that Mrs. Rasco, the Scott Sister's Mother has made her concerns and frustrations publicly known, perhaps you should pause to reconsider your plans.

The Scott Sisters can't be unlike most of us. We can assume that more than anything - and I do mean anything - these imprisoned women want their Mom to be comfortable. They want her to feel as if she has a handle on their situation.

You could send the grieving Michael Jackson family money tomorrow. That doesn't mean they'll allow you to involve yourself in the making of his arrangements.

Ms. Rasco as the Matriarch of the family has expressed her pain, her opposition to your petition, and your setting up of accounts in the name of her daughters. Whether or not you approve of Nancy Lockhart's work, Ms. Rasco has been pleased with her for a very long time - so the message could not be plainer.

Even if you believe for some odd reason that you don't like how the case is being handled (from observing from a distance), it is unreasonable that you would insert yourself as if you were their long lost Uncle or hired staff without this family's permission. Had you been on your game, you would have reached out directly to the Mother, explained your concerns and suggested she take a different route.

Instead, you seek to build a complete new course, including opening an account in the name of these women without their familial support which is at least disconcerting, and probably even suspicious. The first law of any public work is to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.

These Sisters are struggling and they are scared. So, your attempting to sway them in a different direction from their Mother's wishes in their fragile state is a pretty wild thing to do.

You have mentioned having contacted "attorneys" to assist you. I can't imagine a thoughtful attorney involving him or herself with your aims unless they were not appraised of all the facts. I am also pretty sure that the Panthers, the brilliant thinkers that they are, would never insert themselves in a dispute with a woman whose daughters are political prisoners and whose health could be in jeopardy by the sheer nature of her compounded stress.

Further, I doubt that if this were for example the Troy Davis situation, or some other Brother you would fix your lips to suggest opening a Paypal account in his name. So, the question is - do you believe you can take these kinds of arbitrary, independent actions on behalf of this family because the decision-maker in this instance is a Queen.

For my part, I stand on the side of the parent. I stand by her right to make good decisions and I stand by her right to make mistakes. If I agree with her, I shout it out. If I think she's mistaken, given these are her daughters, I'd likely shut my mouth and offer my assistance directly with her if she would receive it.

So, of course you don't have to listen to me. But, I urge you to at least take a behind the scenes poll before you continue, and weigh the situation out for yourself.

In the meantime, I am slowly but surely putting together a piece on these women, and I myself will include information in support of the Scott Sisters that their Mother deems appropriate.

I admire that courageous, hard-working woman. and to the extent that I am capable - I have her back. The Scott Sisters Mother "shall not be mocked."

Terry Howcott

--- In Ta_Seti@yahooogroups .com, nathaniel x vance wrote:

>

> ❖

> Dear Group,

> I have just created a PAYPAL account which is now available for anyone who choose to donate to the cause of aiding and assisting us in helping❖ Jamie and Gladys Scott. If any funds or donations are donated to this account, I promise that starting in July, and every month thereafter, a FULL and COMPLETE monthly accounting of all receipts and expenditures will be submitted to the group for your perusal. This way, no one will have a cause to say that we are hiding, misappropriating, or mismanaging the funds for personal reasons or gain!

> To view the PayPal account, please click the link below.

>

> Please sign our PETITION by clicking the link below.

> < http://scottsisisters .petitionhost. com/> ❖

>

>

> The earthly❖ ENDTIME❖ of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

> salaam❖ akwaaba❖ jambo❖ ashogee

>

> http://zetaheaven. org

>

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.
| 29262|2009-06-29 10:30:19|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Useful info|

thanx/tua

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Sun, 6/28/09, Robert Dowie wrote:

From: Robert Dowie

Subject: Useful info

To:

Date: Sunday, June 28, 2009, 9:17 AM

Subject:FW: Very Good To KNow!!!

Good to know....

Please do not turn on A/C immediately as soon as you enter the car.
Open

the windows after you enter your car and turn ON the air-conditioning after a couple of minutes.

Here's why:

According to a research, the car dashboard, sofa, air freshener emit Benzene, a Cancer causing toxin (carcinogen - take time to observe the smell of heated plastic in your car). In addition to causing cancer, Benzene poisons your bones, causes anemia and reduces white blood cells.

Prolonged exposure will cause Leukemia, increasing the risk of cancer. May also cause miscarriage. Acceptable Benzene level indoors is 50 mg per sq.

ft..A car parked indoors with windows closed will contain 400-800 mg of Benzene. If parked outdoors under the sun at a temperature above 60 degrees

F, the Benzene level goes up to 2000-4000mg, 40 times the acceptable level... People who get into the car, keeping windows closed will inevitably inhale, in quick succession excessive amounts of the toxin.

Benzene is a toxin that affects your kidney and liver. What's worse, it is extremely difficult for your body to expel this toxic stuff.

So friends, please open the windows and door of your car - give time for interior to air out -dispel the deadly stuff - before you enter.

Thought

'When someone shares something of value with you and you benefit from it, you have a moral obligation to share it with others.'

Sent from my iPhone

| 29263|2009-06-29 10:57:32|Asar Imhotep|Bantu Origins of Menes?|

Attachments :

The Bantu Origins of the Name MENES.pdf

Peace Phamily

In a previous discussion on Menes, I associated the name MN with Amen. I don't subscribe to that association any longer. I have put forth a hypothesis in a brief 3 page paper and would like your ideas. Please tell me what you think.

Ancestrally,

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29264|2009-06-29 11:05:16|nathaniel x vance|UFOs or Hoaxes? [6-28-09]|

UFOs or Hoaxes? [6-28-09]

Could Minister Farrakhan be wrong about the presence of UFOs? In 1994, did 62 Zimbabwe schoolchildren really see a UFO land, and then watch as several space beings emerge from a spacecraft? And, why now are UFO sightings and crop circles becoming ever on the increase? Please check out these links. Maybe you can explain.

<<http://www.dailymotion.com/swf/hy5WO1YzSMZQj6io>> Minister Farrakhan on UFOs/Mothership

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=79\_tSPAczic&feature=related> 62 African school children see UFO land + ETs!

<<http://www.avimoas.com/ufo-news-and-videos/133-astounding-45-min.-video-footage-of-a-ufo-in-switzerland.html>>_Switzerland UFO

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HqZm3kYSBn0&feature=player\_embedded> Bibiana Bryson

More Mystery Crop Circles

< <http://www.cropcircleconnector.com/2009/roughhill/roughhill2009.html>>

<http://www.cropcircleconnector.com/2009/MartinsellHill/MartinsellHill2009.html>

<<http://www.cropcircleconnector.com/2009/southfield2/southfield2009b.html>>

Fireballs (Bible: There will be signs in the sky!)

What was this that recently fell from out of the tranquil Australian skies? Was it another fiery Fireball from PX? And, why would NASA all of a sudden now start to tell the news media that they are restricted (National Security) from reporting on any fireball in the future? Can you or someone please explain? Next, will the increase in Crop circles also be put on the do-not-report list?

<<http://www.news.com.au/couriermail/story/0,23739,25658803-952,00.html>>

http://fireball.meteorite.free.fr/index\_en.html

Coming November - An Endtime Movies! (Will we survive 2012?)

Watch a trailer here by clicking below!

<http://www.whowillsurvive2012.com/?hs308=email>

[According to the STO Zeta space angels, planet earth can expect an increase in many more UFO/ET sightings]

<http://www.zetatalk.com/index/blog0928.htm>

AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA

George A. Filer - MUFON Eastern Region Director

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/The\_Zetaheaven\_Group/message/3813>

You are the Judge!

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29265|2009-06-29 11:05:23|Joseph Wright|Fw: Re: [Ta_Seti] Abtu [2 Attachments]

Corrections|

Attachments :

Sacred

06/29/2009

Sorry garbled message sent before spell check by accident.

Good to see such data.

These three books may shed some light on the subject... Hope they help.

I will monitor communications on subject; as I have some mild interest.

jew

--- On Mon, 6/29/09, Joseph Wright wrote:

From: Joseph Wright

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Abtu [2 Attachments]

To: "Tafari khumbaka" , Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 29, 2009, 12:52 AM

Thanks, Good to see suc data.

These three books may shed some light on the subject... Hope they help. I will Monitor as some mils interest

jew

--- On Sat, 6/27/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Abtu [2 Attachments]

To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com

Date: Saturday, June 27, 2009, 10:20 PM

http://www.world-mysteries.com/sar\_sage1.htm

click above

A interesting article on the flower of life design on 3 columns at the Abtu Temple .

Considering all the new info: on fractals and geometry of the ancients.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

| 29266|2009-06-29 11:05:26|Joseph Wright|Re: Abtu [2 Attachments]|

Attachments :

Sacred-29266

Thanks, Good to see suc data.

These three books may shed some light on the subject... Hope they help. I will Monitor as I have some mils interest

jew

--- On Sat, 6/27/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Abtu [2 Attachments]

To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com

Date: Saturday, June 27, 2009, 10:20 PM

http://www.world-mysteries.com/sar\_sage1.htm

click above

A interesting article on the flower of life design on 3 columns at the Abtu Temple .
Considering all the new info: on fractals and geometry of the ancients.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

| 29267|2009-06-29 11:05:30|odhiambo okechth|Fw: Re: [africa-oped] KCDN doing a good job [1 Attachment]|

Attachments :

newspaper.jpg

Mr.Njuguna,

Thanks for the compliments.

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi.

--- On Sun, 6/28/09, Kamau J Njuguna wrote:

From: Kamau J Njuguna

Subject: [africa-oped] KCDN doing a good job [1 Attachment]

To: "dick aduonga" , "africa-oped" , africa.journal@reuters.com, africare-newspublications@yahoogroups.com, afrocentrikworld@yahoogroups.com, akipkemboi@eastandard.net, annah_sidigu@yahoo.com, "bbc" , "BBC" , "bidii" , bob_arunga@yahoo.com, "ccr" , "cnn" , editor@nation.co.ke, editors@newsweek.com, "An East African Online Forum Dedicated to Information Exchange." , "George Omburo" , "colin macbeth" , "David Ndolo" , "Dave Ndolo" , "David ochwangi" , "Elly Omondi Odhiambo" , "bobby okoth" , "Catherine Omondi" , "apostle petros" , "Robert Alai" , "Tavia Nyongo" , "sam Odera" , "Raila Odinga" , "panafricanist" , paul.nyandoto@phsotey.fi, publiceet@aol.com, "Send an Instant Message TINA SALEH" , samokello@sahelpublishing.net, "otieno sungu" , "White House U.S.A." , africativ@voanews.com, peoplespeak@people.co.ke, info@people.co.ke, kalamkanews@yahoo.com

Cc: grono007@yahoo.com, "jalu" , jop3upc@aol.com, "Jairus K'Onyiego" , kenyaclub@yahoo.com, "ketta" , "kol" , letters@eastandard.net, madaraka-kenya@yahoo.com, mailbox@nation.co.ke, "Judy Miriga" , mugi1_2000@yahoo.com, "mulembe" , "mwananchi" , "Hon Ababu Namwamba" , net-kenya@yahoo.com, news@ktnkenya.com, next_kenya@yahoo.com, "Kamau J Njuguna" , "Hon Prof Anyang' Nyong'o" , "martin o" , "Oscar Obonyo" , "Oketch Odhiambo" , ojwangf@yahoo.com, "Lameck Siage" , "Paul Nyandoto" , "symo ochola" , "sam odera" , "Raila Odinga" , "Raila Odinga" , "Rose Oloo" , "Sebastian Onyango" , "othieno_n" , "Philister Sidigu" , "ugandacom" , "youthagenda"

Date: Sunday, June 28, 2009, 9:40 PM

On page 2 of the People Daily on Tyesday,16th June 2009,I came across this picture and I was impressed.

I have been reading about KCDN allalong and the kind of work they are doing. I bet we need many more Kenyans to put words into action.

Keep the good work,Kenyans are watching.

Kamau J Njuguna

| 29268|2009-06-29 11:05:32|nathaniel x vance|ZetaTalk: GodlikeProduction Live [6-28-09]|

ZetaTalk: GodlikeProduction Live

Written on the June 27, 09 GodlikeProduction live chat

DC Metro crash, Brooklyn building collapse, Rotation Stoppage crop circle, Mediums, Cool summer, Distance crop circle, Moon swirl crop circle, Conjoined twins, Michael Jackson, Positive/Negative thoughts, Obama administration, Electro-magnetic pulse, Alien travel protocol, Obama birth certificate, Neptune's mass, Awakening, Suggestible contactees, Food additives, Governor Sanford, Final trimester, ISS view, Pole shift timeline, Unsparked souls, Inland survival, Dumbing down, 6 on 1-10 scale, Clean sweep, Rescue expectations, Good wishes, Swine flu, Stoner sightings,

<<http://zetatalk.com/index/zeta518.htm>> Page 1: DC Metro Crash

<<http://zetatalk.com/index/zeta519.htm>> Page 2

The ZetaTalk Newsletter

Issue 139 Weekly news and views from around the world and beyond.

Sunday Jun 28, 2009 Bombing the Moon; Classified Bolides; Brooklyn Building Collapse; DC Metro Crash

<<http://zetatalk.com/newsletr/issue139.htm>>

*****[According to the STO ZetaTalk space angels, planet earth can expect an increase in many more UFO/ET sightings]

<<http://www.zetatalk.com/index/blog0928.htm>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29269|2009-06-29 11:53:28|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|luo, orisha, alusi|

<http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?as=35927&w=125219&d=265025&ac=EDIT&d-1169404-p=1>

click above

A good discussion about man and deity.....

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29270|2009-06-30 09:50:10|Terry|Re: New PayPal Account to aid The Scott Sisters|

Thank you Peter,

Sometimes things can get so hot until people can't hear. The environmental noise is just too loud.

Also, sometimes we dig in our heels - even when there's really no logical or legal way to continue along the same path.

I think Mr. Vance needs the kind of peaceful space to be able to say, "I realize I was off track - took this a bit too far."

We have all run off track from time for time, even if not in this way.

I do know one thing. It would be awful to see yahoogroups folk in court over this - particularly these women's Mother at this time in her life when the outcome is pretty obvious.

Terry

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Thank you, thank you one hundred times, Terry. I wanted to respond too, but failed to do so. It's so easy for charlatans to hijack legitimate issues towards their own ends, and we must be wary of them. And you have made the case without personally lambasting Vance.

>

>

>

> Peter

>

>

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> From: terrylynnh@...

> Date: Sat, 27 Jun 2009 14:37:31 +0000

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: New PayPal Account to aid The Scott Sisters

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> King Vance,

>

> I'm not clear if this is deliberate, or if you're just missing the boat but you are re-framing this dispute so that your foe seems less powerful, less significant.

>

> Your dispute is with the Scott Sister's Mother.

>

> Now that Mrs. Rasco, the Scott Sister's Mother has made her concerns and frustrations publicly known, perhaps you should pause to reconsider your plans.

>

> The Scott Sisters can't be unlike most of us. We can assume that more than anything - and I do mean anything - these imprisoned women want their Mom to be comfortable. They want her to feel as if she has a handle on their situation.

>

> You could send the grieving Michael Jackson family money tomorrow. That doesn't mean they'll allow you to involve yourself in the making of his arrangements.

>

> Ms. Rasco as the Matriarch of the family has expressed her pain, her opposition to your petition, and your setting up of accounts in the name of her daughters. Whether or not you approve of Nancy Lockhart's work, Ms. Rasco has been pleased with her for a very long time - so the message could not be plainer.

>

> Even if you believe for some odd reason that you don't like how the case is being handled (from observing from a distance), it is unreasonable that you would insert yourself as if you were their long lost Uncle or hired staff without this family's permission. Had you been on your game, you would have reached out directly to the Mother, explained your concerns and suggested she take a different route.

>

> Instead, you seek to build a complete new course, including opening an account in the name of these women without their familial support which is at least disconcerting, and probably even suspicious. The first law of any public work is to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.

>

> These Sisters are struggling and they are scared. So, your attempting to sway them in a different direction from their Mother's wishes in their fragile state is a pretty wild thing to do.

>

> You have mentioned having contacted "attorneys" to assist you. I can't imagine a thoughtful attorney involving him or herself with your aims unless they were not appraised of all the facts. I am also pretty sure that the Panthers, the brilliant thinkers that they are, would never insert themselves in a dispute with a woman whose daughters are political prisoners and whose health could be in jeopardy by the sheer nature of her compounded stress.

>

> Further, I doubt that if this were for example the Troy Davis situation, or some other Brother you would fix your lips to suggest opening a Paypal account in his name. So, the question is - do you believe you can take these kinds of arbitrary, independent actions on behalf of this family because the decision-maker in this instance is a Queen.

>

> For my part, I stand on the side of the parent. I stand by her right to make good decisions and I stand by her right to make mistakes. If I agree with her, I shout it out. If I think she's mistaken, given these are her daughters, I'd likely shut my mouth and offer my assistance directly with her if she would receive it.

>

> So, of course you don't have to listen to me. But, I urge you to at least take a behind the scenes poll before you continue, and weigh the situation out for yourself.

>

> In the meantime, I am slowly but surely putting together a piece on these women, and I myself will include information in support of the Scott Sisters that their Mother deems appropriate.

>

> I admire that courageous, hard-working woman. and to the extent that I am capable - I have her back. The Scott Sisters Mother "shall not be mocked."

>

>

> Terry Howcott

>

>

>

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, nathaniel x vance broali4xa@ wrote:

>>

>> ❖

>> Dear Group,

>> I have just created a PAYPAL account which is now available for anyone who choose to donate to the cause of aiding and assisting us in helping ❖ Jamie and Gladys Scott. If any funds or donations are donated to this account, I promise that starting in July, and every month thereafter, a FULL and COMPLETE monthly accounting of all receipts and expenditures will be submitted to the group for your perusal. This way, no one will have a cause to say that we are hiding, misappropriating, or mismanaging the funds for personal reasons or gain!

>> To view the PayPal account, please click the link below.

>>

>> Please sign our PETITION by clicking the link below.

>> < <http://scottsisters.petitionhost.com/> > ❖

>>

>>

>> The earthly ❖ ENDTIME ❖ of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS.
Is GOD MOCKED?

>> salaam ❖ akwaaba ❖ jambo ❖ ashogee

>>

> > <http://zetaheaven.org>

> >

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

---

> Windows Live  SkyDrive : Get 25 GB of free online storage.

>

http://windowslive.com/online/skydrive?ocid=TXT\_TAGLM\_WL\_SD\_25GB\_062009

>

| 29271|2009-06-30 11:10:37|Tafari khumbaka|Alusi, Luhoa , Orisha , Neteru|

<http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?as=35927&w=125219&d=265025&ac=new>

good discussion , log on and add a commentary

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29272|2009-06-30 11:41:02|Sekmet|TEN STRATEGIES OF WAR|

LECTURE OF THE MONTH: June 15th to July 15, 09

"TEN STRATEGIES OF WAR"

by Dr. Anthony Browder

run time: 1:30

<http://www.blackconsciousness.com/sshop/browder.html>

One of Tony Browder's best & most colorful lectures, recorded at the Slave Theater. Deals a lot with personal enhancement and getting the mind and body right for the battles that are yet to come.

<http://www.blackconsciousness.com/sshop/browder.html>

Books to his credit include:

Nile Valley Contributions to Civilization

From The Browder Files

Egypt On The Potomac

My First Trip To Africa

Africa On My Mind

If you know something about African World Music:

Check out the WHO AM I? CONTEST

<http://www.blackconsciousness.com/WhoAmI.html>

You could win a Egyptian Jewelry Box.

Must have warrior skills and know how to use your computer!

This is World Music, not neighborhood music.

Give it a try if only to broaden your horizon.

DO WE REALLY KNOW OURSELVES OR DO EGO WE TRIP A BIT TOO MUCH?

<http://www.blackconsciousness.com/WhoAmI.html>

| 29273|2009-06-30 12:09:01|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Check out YouTube - Poor Whites - South Africa|

the journalist actually wants to take whites side for them losing hold on slavery and genocide.....

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 6/29/09, AUSAR65@aol.com wrote:

From: AUSAR65@aol.com

Subject: Check out YouTube - Poor Whites - South Africa

To: Afrikannubian@aol.com, alandas@nsightmemphis.com,

sailizenzele@yahoo.com, audreyd@greenwayllc.com,

godyehealingheart@hotmail.com, feferachelle227@yahoo.com, loveiris@hotmail.com, sadio.butterfly@yahoo.com, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Monday, June 29, 2009, 2:57 PM

YouTube - Poor Whites - South Africa

---

Make your summer sizzle with fast and easy recipes for the grill.

| 29274|2009-06-30 13:30:49|Asar Imhotep|Re: Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis|

Greetings Professor Manu

I am sorry for responding late as I am just now seeing this.

In response, I think there are some more facts to consider for considering the unification of Egypt either a myth or legend. The first is the excavations done by Petrie in which he noted that the evidence for predynastic times favors an already unified community across the Nile valley. He found found no indications of war and is why there is still confusion as to whether Menes united the kingdom from war or through marriage. If a unified cultural complex already existed, a war is not necessary to bring a people together that are already unified culturally.

What the public may not be aware of is there is much controversy in Egyptological circles concerning the unification of Egypt. Although Herodotus, Manetho and two dynastic kings attribute the unification to Menes, Min and Meni respectively, the Narmer palette cast doubt on that bit of history. On this palette you see Narmer wielding the signs of a unified upper and lower Egypt; not Menes. This has caused some to speculate whether Narmer and Menes are the same person. Other's speculate that Narmer started the job but Menes finished it as Nr-Mr and Mn are alternated on several clay jar seals from Abdu. Others suspect that Narmer, Menes and Aha are in fact the same person and that these are alternative names for the same person.

Another thing that lends support to it being a myth is that according to Manetho, Menes ruled in a city called Tjny (Thinis). This is believed to be a mythical city because to this date it has never been found. [I wonder if present-day Djenne is named after this city]

Not finding the city doesn't mean it didn't exist. What we should be asking is if this was such a significant event, if Menes was such an important person to the history of Ta-Meri, why are there no shrines at the place he ruled from? All Egyptian kings have monuments in the place that they ruled. There is a tomb in Abdu that Egyptologists "think" is the tomb of Menes. They are not sure so we can't definitively attribute it to him.

What can be said for sure is that the picture is not clear and no definitive statement can be made. One thing we have to understand is that Myth in African ontology is not necessarily false. Just because there are artifacts to provide evidence that a certain person existed, doesn't mean that the stories applied to the figures happened in the manner they are told. If we believe that The ancient Ta-Merians were/are indeed African people, and they in essence share the same cultural practices with modern African people, then you have to assume that stories that we regard as history are in fact rooted in myth as this is essentially the African way of telling their history.

- If Asar is the "founder" of Ta-Meri according to the myth, then why would Narmer, or Menes be considered the "unifier" of Upper and Lower Egypt?
- For their to be a "lower" and "upper" Egypt, implies there was a unified Egypt to begin with in protodynastic times. What would seem more plausible is that there was once a unified Nile valley and then it split into two kingdoms (just like Northern and Southern Judiah). If anything, Narmer and/or Menes REunited ta-merri, in which his story is not unique since there has been several unifications in its history.
- We know from the Qustal incense burner that Pharaohs existed prior to Narmer. So Narmer or Menes could not have started "Dynastic" Egypt.
- If in fact Menes is not a title and he indeed is the successor of Narmer (as some allege) then Menes could not have started Dynastic Egypt: he inherited an already established tradition.
- If that is true, then the unification is a myth and probably refers to something only those literate in the sacred history of Egypt can interpret.

These simple logical anomalies need to be addressed. They all can't be right.

What the Narmer palette seems to be is a story of order over chaos. What could be inferred is that there was some political unrest in which Narmer/Menes/Aha brought stability back to the kingdom. This would make more sense given that according to Petrie and Bruce Williams that there was an already unified Nile valley. Namer's event or series of events would simply be a REunification or the establishment of order back to Nile Valley civilization.

Again a thorough kings list with the meanings of the names will clear up this controversy. As stated in the previous article, in all of the major African societies in which I'm aware, the initial kings list are concepts, not people. Or they represent "a people" and not a person. A modern example can be seen in the Hotel Rwanda movie. The military general in which Don Cheadle's character engaged throughout the whole movie was a single personification of several generals that the real Paul Rusesbaginda dealt with during the Rwanda crisis in the early 90's.

You find this practice in African stories and the world over. For instance, the St. Patrick story of driving of the "snakes" is not a myth. It is a historical event in which St. Patrick helped to drive out the "pagan" Druids who still worship Egyptian deities and whose symbolism was the snake. Post glacial Ireland never had snakes.

I use this as an example to demonstrate that it is indeed possible for this same tradition to exist in the story of the "Catfish" driving out the "Scorpion" in predynastic times.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Mon, 6/22/09, Manu Ampim wrote:

From: Manu Ampim

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Correction - Union of the Two Lands: A working hypothesis

To: ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, June 22, 2009, 11:36 AM

| 29275|2009-06-30 13:31:35|Asar Imhotep|Myth in the Context of African Traditional Histories:|

Myth in the Context of African Traditional Histories:

Can It Be Called "Applied History"?

by S.A. Shokpeka

University of Benin

Journal: History in Africa 32 (2005) 485-491

I

For the reconstruction of history from oral sources, four broad types are usually distinguishable. These are myth, legend, songs, and what Phillips Stevens calls "popular history." All of them fall under the generic heading of "folklore" a term which is so broad in its application that it could include nearly all expressive aspects of culture. The only type that we will concern ourselves with in this study is myth. A comprehensive examination of the issue in question in the study requires a definition of the word myth; an examination of the characteristics of "applied history;" and the application of these characteristics to myth with a view to finding out any point of agreement between them, before a final answer will be given to the question whether "myth in the context of African traditional histories," can be called applied history.

II

The Advanced Learner's Dictionary of Current English defines myth as a "story handed down from olden time, containing the early beliefs of a race." Vansina identifies myths by their subject matter and talks about them as those stories which "deal with and interpret the relations between the natural and the supernatural and are concerned with all that part of religious life that lies beyond the moral order." He says that they "attempt to explain the world, the culture, the society . . . in terms of [End Page 485] religious causes."<sup>2</sup> McCall, for his part, refers to myths as "stories concerning the supernatural, the activities of deities, spirits and semi-divine heroes on the origin of the world, mankind and cultural artifacts and institutions which usually are said to have been achieved through the instrumentality of these sacred beings."<sup>3</sup> Afigbo, in turn, considers myths as having the "tendency to explain historical institutions and development by appeal to non-historic factors and forces" as stories that see "the supernatural acting at times through the agency of man, at times through the agency of the lower animals and other times even through the agency of inanimate object, as the original and continuing causes of motion in a society."<sup>4</sup>

The religious or supernatural character of myths is also emphasized by Bascom, who considers that they are accepted as faith and that "they can be cited as authority in answer to ignorance, doubt, or disbelief." He says that "[m]yths are the embodiments of dogma; they are usually sacred; and they are often associated with theology and rituals."<sup>5</sup> Pender-Cudlip, however, in reply to such definitions of myths that tend to emphasize such terms as "supernatural," "religious," "sacred," and "theology," reminds users that such terms are differently defined in different cultures. Therefore, the "native and alien ideas of what is and is not supernatural and therefore of "myth" are likely to be rather different.<sup>6</sup>

While one can agree that some myths have an element of the supernatural in them, it is reasonable in the African historical context to define myth as those stories about the very earliest past that explain the origin of the societies, their institutions and culture, the activities of some noteworthy men in those societies, and their relationship with one another, in the absence of any written evidence. Like any other raw materials, myths are either historical or otherwise, and are often described as crude until they are refined to produce a fine and clean product.

So far I have attempted a definition of the word "myth." I now turn to the term "applied history" and see what it entails. The initial step here is to find out what it is and for this I refer once again to the dictionary and then attempt a working definition of "applied history" by analyzing the word "applied" and the word "history." [End Page 486]

The first dictionary meaning of the word "apply" is to "put (something) into use; into position to serve its purpose." Coining the word "applied" from it and applying to it "arts," thus becoming

"applied arts," it gives its meaning to be "as used in textile designs; for pottery etc." In the same manner, if it is applied to history (thus "applied history") it will be logically defined as "serving the same purpose as history."

What then, is the purpose of history? History, we all know, has the purpose of making the past as intelligible as possible in order to make the present meaningful. Although from this working definition of "applied history" it can be agreed that it serves the same purpose as history, although it is not pure history. What then are the characteristics of "applied history" as distinct from pure history? I shall answer this question by first identifying the resemblances between history and applied history. Applied history, like history generally, entails a narration of events. The events narrated are always, like history, events of the past. It aims at explaining the present through stories about the past. It differs from history, however, in the sense that history not only seeks to explain the present through the past, but also places much value on the use the historian makes of the scientific method of checking and selecting his materials from primary and secondary sources, analyzing and interpreting his findings as objectively as possible.

How far do myths warrant the name "applied history?" Using the Yoruba creation myths as examples, let us try an answer to this question. The first of the myths tells of Olorun (god of heaven) letting a chain down to earth, then covered with water. Down this chain came Oduduwa, holding some earth, a cock, and a palm nut. With the aid of the cock, Oduduwa spread out the earth to produce solid land and planted the palm nut which produced a tree with sixteen branches which represent the sixteen Yoruba crowned obas. The point at which this took place was Ile-Ife. Another myth tells of Oduduwa, originating from the east and moving to Ile-Ife and later sending one of his sons Oranmiyan to found Oyo. In this version the seven children of Oduduwa became the first Yoruba obas.<sup>7</sup>

A sympathetic and cautious historian presented with these stories will see that an attempt is being made to explain the Yoruba past or history of origins. As P.C. Lloyd sees them in all their present variations, "[t]hey create a genealogy whereby the Yoruba are descended from one man," to [End Page 487] wit, Oduduwa. They also stress the fact that "the children of the man became the founders of the sub-groups and their rulers."<sup>8</sup> These myths tell us that the Yoruba are one people, and their original point of dispersal was Ile-Ife. "Perhaps" says Lloyd, "they relate [also] to an earlier time during which the Yoruba kingdoms did in fact acknowledge one ruler."<sup>9</sup>

Taking another example, this time from Asante, we find that the myth of the Golden Stool, which was said to have been conjured by Okomfo Anokye from a cloud onto the lap of the Asantehene, and which the Asante believe their sunsum (soul) is associated with, merely symbolizes the unification of the erstwhile scattered and disunited city-states of the Kwaman forest by Osei Tutu, during whose reign this myth was probably formulated.<sup>10</sup> It could also be telling of the beginning of the use of the golden stool by the Asantehenes and sub-rulers of the Asante Union and the establishment of the divine and centralized kingship in Asante.

Many other African traditional myths help the people of a kingdom to establish their relationship with neighboring kingdoms. This is exactly what the Oranmiyan myth among the Yoruba and the Bini has done for these people. This myth, of course, has also helped to establish the fact that an earlier dynasty, purely Bini, existed in Benin before the relationship which that myth is positing.<sup>11</sup> Among the Hausa-speaking peoples of northern Nigeria, there is a popular myth that has helped establish some facts about their origin. The myth states that in the remote times a certain Bayajidda fled from the east to Kanem-Borno, which was already an important state in the Chad basin. There the mai of Bornu gave him his daughter in marriage, but deprived him of his followers. This and subsequent events caused Bayajidda to flee the country. Traveling westward, Bayajidda left his wife at Biramta-Gabas to bear him a son. At Gaya he met some blacksmiths, who made him a knife according to specifications. As he continued his journey, he came to a town whose inhabitants were deprived of water from a well by a sacred snake called sarki or king. Bayajidda killed the snake and in gratitude Daura, the queen of the town, married him and also gave him a Gwari concubine. By Daura Bayajidda had a son, Bawo. Various accounts exist as to what happened after this, but one of them states that Bawo had seven children, who became [End Page 488] founders of the seven Hausa states referred to as Hausa Bakwai or legitimate Hausa states.<sup>12</sup>

From this legend three basic inferences can be made: that the Hausa-speaking people had existed long before the formation of states like the celebrated Hausa Bakwai; that successive infiltration of newcomers into Hausaland took place; or that there was an invasion of the area from Kanem-Borno. It is also possible to infer a change in the people's religious beliefs and practices from the killing of the snake, while the marriage of Daura after which the people of Daura spoke no more of queen Daura, but Mai Kashim Sarki seems to suggest a change from a matrilineal to a patrilineal system of inheritance.

We have seen so far that these myths are narrative, have a sense of the past, and explain the present by their stories of the past, and so can be regarded as "applied history." Pender-Cudlip tells us that "the narrative form and the location of mythical events in the past are essential because . . . a narrative has a beginning, a moment of time in which a series of events is anchored. . . . One of the important functions of myth is that it anchors the present in the past."<sup>13</sup> Quoting an anthropologist, Pender-Cudlip continues that "myth by establishing a narrative locks a set of circumstances in an original set of events. And the effect and perhaps the unconscious motive for this is to provide a point of reference in the past beyond which one needs not go."<sup>14</sup>

Some mythical traditions, it is true, contain accounts that Lewis refers to as "tradition plainly relating events that could not have occurred and including grotesque situation and action that are travesties of approved customary behaviour."<sup>15</sup> For him such accounts, because of their nature, should be dismissed. Such accounts as the Yoruba myth of creation fall into this category. They have religious and supernatural nature, but that does not remove them from within the context of the history of man. McCall tells us that from at least two considerations the religious myths of a people are pertinent to their history. First, he says, "religion tend to sacredotalize the most important institutions in a society. Authority is sanctified by godhead and priesthood."<sup>16</sup>

This is certainly so in Africa, where "divine kings" are common. Hence in Yorubaland, where the kingdom and kingship were mythically said to have been derived from Olodumare (supreme god), the divine [End Page 489] kingship concept is very strong. The Wolof myth about the mysterious man who intervened in a quarrel between two different village states and later became the ancestor of the buurba Jolof, also explains the concept of divine kingship held there. Traditions of this nature are ubiquitous in the traditional histories of Africa, and since most of the African past, especially the precolonial period, depends for its history on traditions of this nature, it is not safe to dismiss them on the grounds that they contain the "supernatural" and the impossible, for some vital evidence might be disregarded in such a way. As Pender-Cudlip has warned, "an unhistorical story or myth . . . is not necessarily an untrue story but simply a story which is regarded as untrue." According to him, no story "has an inherent quality which makes it historical; it becomes historical not by being true but by being accepted as true."<sup>17</sup>

This is affected by the norms of the societies and the aims of the different historians reconstructing the history. They distinguish between facts and fiction according to criteria that are a product of their cultural environment. A traditional story that is clearly impossible, and so mythical, may be regarded by others as truly and indubitably historical, and our dismissing it as myth does not help us to understand what it means to the custodians. As Leach puts it, "[t]he distinction that history is true and myth is false is quite arbitrary," and Pender-Cudlip makes an interesting imitation of a popular saying that "one man's myth is another man's history."<sup>18</sup> With particular reference to African traditional histories therefore, myth is applied history.

III

Myths are indispensable in the reconstruction of the African past. It is through the study of these African traditional myths that the early history of the political and social structures of most of the African kingdoms are explained. For instance, the establishment of the second most important institution of government in Benin kingdom the Uzama is explained in the Edionise myth, the five courtiers who were sent by the Ogo to negotiate with the Edionwere of Udo. McCall argues that sometimes the deities in those religious myths "may be ancestors or heroes who have been elevated into the supernatural and their exploits may indicate human action of historical significance."<sup>19</sup> Some stories about military expeditions [End Page 490] of kingdoms, of overlordship of one over the other, accounts about men of courage and villainy, African warlords or heroes, are cast as mythical traditions. Such people are sometimes represented in those myths as possessing superhuman features and qualities in most cases they are called magicians. Such is Afigbo's story about the Igala military expedition into Nsukka, which is cast in the Onoju Oboni myth, in which Oboni is depicted as a giant with six fingers and six toes. This myth establishes the conquest of Nsukka by Igala, and talks about the valor of Onoju Oboni as a warlord and leader of the expedition, to whom descent by some of the villages in Nsukka is presently traced.<sup>20</sup>

In the African context therefore, myth, like history, uses the past to explain the present. There might be inconsistencies in these accounts, but that is not exclusive to myth; inconsistencies are also found aplenty in historical accounts. Therefore, if a mythical tradition is discredited by their inconsistencies, then many "orthodox" historical sources, and some of what has been written and read as finished "history" should also be called myth. In many ways, as seen from the various African mythical tradition cited here, myth and history are similar.

Both consist of supposedly authentic narratives of past events; both express and explain truth about the present through stories about the past and both use the present to reconstruct the past. The only basic difference between them is a technical one. "History," says Pender-Cudlip, "has its own peculiar scientific (in the sense of rational and methodical) procedures, methods and rules such as rules of evidence, method of proof, standard of objectivity, procedures of historical explanation, the use of absolute chronology and the identification of primary and secondary sources of information."21 It is only in the light of these basic differences that myth cannot be regarded as "history," but "applied history." As Barnes puts it, in the light of this difference "history is myth with dates," while for Pender-Cudlip, "myth is technically imperfect history."22

Footnotes

1. Phillips Stevens, "The Uses of Oral Traditions in the Writing of African History," Tarikh 6/1(1978), 2.
2. Jan Vansina, Oral Tradition (Chicago, 1965), 157.
3. Daniel F. McCall, Africa in Time-Perspective (New York, 1969), 41.
4. A.E. Afigbo, "Facts and Myths in Nigerian Historiography," Nigeria Magazine 122/23(1977), 83-84.
5. Patrick Pender-Cudlip, "Oral Tradition and Anthropological Analysis," Azania 7(1972), 6.
6. Ibid.
7. P.C. Lloyd, "Yoruba Myths: a Sociologist's Interpretation," Od 2(1955), 22. See also Noel Q. King, African Cosmos: An Introduction to Religion in Africa (Belmont, CA, 1986), 8-9, for other versions of this myth of creation.
8. Lloyd, "Yoruba Myths," 22.
9. Ibid.
10. King, African Cosmos, 27-28.
11. G.T. Strides and C. Ifeka, Peoples and Empires of West Africa: West Africa in History, 1000-1800 (New York, 1971), 311; J.U. Egharevba, A Short History of Benin (Ibadan, 1968), 6.
12. Pender-Cudlip, "Oral Tradition," 12.
13. Ibid.
14. Ibid.
15. Ibid.
16. McCall, Africa in Time-Perspective, 43.
17. Pender-Cudlip, "Oral Tradition," 12.

18. Ibid., 13.
19. McCall, Africa in Time-Perspective, 43.
20. Afigbo, "Facts and Myths," 86.
21. Pender-Cudlip "Oral Tradition," 13.
22. H.E. Barnes and Howard Becker, Social Thought from Lore to Science, quoted in Pender-Cudlip, "Oral Tradition," 14.

Copyright 2005 African Studies Association

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29276|2009-06-30 18:41:08|Asar Imhotep|Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden|
What do you think?

*****

<http://ggreenberg.tripod.com/ancientne/gener.html>

The Generations of the Heavens and of the Earth: Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden

Presented at the annual meeting of the American Research Center in Egypt, St. Louis 1996

ABSTRACT

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens . . . Gen. 2:4

*The above quote from Gen. 2:4 introduces us to the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Many biblical scholars believe that the next few verses contain a slightly different version of Creation than that contained earlier in Gen. 1. What is especially unusual is the reference to the generations of the heavens and the earth. In the several other instances when Genesis says These are the generations of . . ., it refers to information about a parent and their children. This would imply that Genesis 2 is about the Children of the Heavens and Earth, a polytheistic throwback to an earlier cosmogony. But whose cosmogony?*

This paper examines some of the verses and images associated with the story of Adam and Eve and compares them with elements in the Heliopolitan Creation myths. It will be suggested that Adam and Eve correspond in part to Geb and Nut and in part to Osiris and Isis. Additionally, it will be suggested that the three male sons of Adam and Eve Cain, Abel and Seth correspond to the three male sons of Geb and Nut Osiris, Seth, and Horus.

Although the main thrust of the paper will be on the Adam and Eve story, the paper will also look at the first Genesis Creation account as well as the story of Noah's Flood, originally, perhaps, a third Creation story, and suggest that the series of Creation stories in Genesis draws upon the Theban doctrine of Creation in which Amen appears in a series of forms representing the Memphite, Heliopolitan and Hermopolitan cosmogonies.

The paper will examine such common themes as the stirring of the primeval waters, creation by word, the separation of heaven and earth, the rising of a firmament between the heaven and earth, problems of childbirth as a punishment for disobeying God, the bruising of the serpent from the tree, the enmity between the child and the serpent, the killing of a brother as an agricultural myth, the introduction of civilization, the building of the first city, and the relationship between the husband/brother and wife/sister with the serpent.

---

This paper attempts to introduce the idea that the biblical Creation stories, from the dawn of Creation through Noah's Flood, derive from Egyptian cosmogony, more specifically, the Theban doctrine of Creation. Thebes came late to the political scene in Egypt and its view of Creation attempted to incorporate the ideas of Memphis, Heliopolis and Hermopolis into a new cosmology that subordinated the chief deities of those cults to Amen, chief deity of Thebes.

The Theban doctrine holds that in the beginning there was the great primeval flood known as Nu or the Nun. The god Amen then appeared in a series of forms, first as an Ogdoad, then as Tatenen (a Memphite name for Ptah identified with the primeval hill), then as Atum, who created the first gods, then as Re. After this he created humanity, organized the Ennead, appointed the four male members of the Hermopolitan Ogdoad as his divine fathers and priests, and appointed Shu as their leader. Another Theban tradition holds that Osiris built the first city at Thebes.

To equate all these ideas with the biblical Creation stories would be a massive undertaking, far beyond the scope of this short paper. Therefore I will deal only with a small piece of this very large subject. In this paper I will just compare some elements of the Heliopolitan cycle with the biblical account of Adam and Eve and the second day of Creation.

My point of departure is Genesis 2:4-5, which serves as a preamble to the story of Adam and Eve. Coming immediately after the account of the seven days of Creation, the text reads as follows.

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

The phrase generations of appears eleven times in the Book of Genesis, but in the other ten instances it refers to stories about members of a family, such as in the generations of Noah or the generations of Jacob. This indicates that the noun or nouns following after the words generations of refer to a parent or parents. Genesis 2:4, therefore, implies that the heavens and the earth are anthropomorphic beings with children, and that what follows is about the family of these two entities.

This formulation clearly implies a pagan throwback to the idea of Heaven and Earth as deities, but biblical scholars, determined to preserve the monotheistic view of biblical history, are reluctant to accept such an interpretation. Instead, they wrench the phrase out of context and assert that it simply means things that are to follow or the history of.

A second major difficulty with Gen. 2:4-5 is the time frame in question. The passage indicates that the stories we are about to read take place in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens, and before the appearance of plant life. When is that day?

Biblical scholars tell us that the preamble refers to stories that take place after the seven days of Creation. But reading the passage literally and in context, it quite explicitly states that the stories we are about to read occurred on the day that God made the earth and the heavens and before the appearance of plant life. That time frame is clearly defined in the account of the seven days of Creation.

On the second day of Creation, a firmament arises out of the primeval waters and separates the waters above from the waters below. The biblical text says that the firmament came to be called heaven. On the third day of Creation, the waters below gathered in one place to create the dry land, which was then called earth, after which, plant life appeared. So the preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the upcoming stories in the period between the division of the waters and the appearance of plant life, in the middle of the third day of creation.

Biblical scholars, however, note an interesting problem with this division between the second and third day. The second day is the only day in the sequence that isn't blessed by God. Instead, the third day receives two blessings, one after dry land or Earth appears, and one after the arrival of plant life. As many of these scholars have recognized, the gathering of the waters to create dry land continues the second day's process of rearranging and dividing the primeval waters. For this reason, they argue that the second day's blessing is held off to the middle of the third day because that is when the task of rearranging the primeval waters is finished. I would propose instead that the biblical redactor simply made an editing error, and the first half of Day Three actually belongs with Day Two and the associated blessing belongs at the end of Day Two. This would be consistent with the text of Genesis 2:4, which says that heaven and earth were created on the same day.

To summarize briefly, so far: On the second day of Creation, God placed a firmament in the primeval waters, separating the waters above from the waters below. The firmament was called Heaven. Then he gathered the waters below into a single place and created dry land. The dry land was called Earth. The preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the starting point for the biblical stories on the second day of Creation, before the appearance of plant life on Day Three.

The arrangement of events on Day Two seems to closely parallel the Heliopolitan Creation myth. A great hill arose out of the primeval flood. This hill would obviously constitute a form of firmament. In some traditions that hill was Atum, the Heliopolitan Creator deity. In other traditions, Atum appeared at the top of the hill.

Atum, through act of masturbatory sex, brought forth two deities, Shu and Tefnut, representing air and moisture. These two deities gave birth to the male deity Geb, who represented the earth, and the female deity Nut, who represented the heavens.

Several Egyptian pictures portray Shu as lifting Nut into the air and separating her from Geb. Sequentially, then, Atum appears as a firmament in the middle of the Nun and creates Shu who ultimately separates heaven and earth and symbolizes the space in between. Shu, therefore, becomes the firmament between Heaven and Earth.

Consider now how Genesis says the waters were divided. First, the waters above were divided from the waters below. Next, the waters below were gathered into a single place. The waters above is an Egyptian concept signifying the sky. We see it most clearly in images of the solar bark sailing through the heavens. Although Genesis says the firmament was called Heaven, I believe this was a late gloss by the biblical redactors. The firmament stands below the waters above. It is the waters above that would correspond to heaven. The firmament would be the space in between heaven and earth, corresponding first to the primeval mountain and then to Shu.

This brings us to the question of where in all the middle east would any people have such a concept as all the waters gathering in a single place, leaving fertile land behind in its retreat. The most logical location is the Nile River in Egypt. The gathering of the waters in one place is the primary Egyptian agricultural phenomenon. It derives from the annual overflowing of the Nile, which fertilizes the land and then withdraws, leaving the dry land in its place. For Egyptians, the Nile was the one and only great water way. Even the Mediterranean Sea attaches to the Nile.

Elsewhere, throughout Canaan and Mesopotamia, there were numerous large unconnected bodies of waters that were well known to the inhabitants of those lands. They include the Mediterranean Sea, Persian Gulf, Reed Sea, Dead Sea, The Jordan River, the Tigris and The Euphrates. It is unlikely that the people of those lands would think of all these waters as gathering in a single place.

Returning to Genesis 2:4-5, we are told that when dry land was formed, no plant life existed because no man existed to till the ground. The next Genesis verses in sequence tell us: a mist rose up to water the dry land, God created the Adam out of the dust, (note that the bible says the Adam, not Adam), then he planted a Garden and put the Adam in it. Observe here 1) Adam appears before the plant life on Day Three and 2) that woman has not yet appeared. This is contrary to the sequence in the seven days of Creation, which places man and woman on the sixth day. Eve, or the woman, which is how she is described until after the expulsion from the Garden of Eden, appears later in the sequence, after plants and after other animal life.

This arrangement strongly suggests that the man and woman created on Day Six were other than Adam and Eve, who appear earlier. The confusion arises from the fact that Adam and Eve originally represented Heliopolitan deities, the most important of whom was named Atum, a name virtually identical in pronunciation to the Semitic word Adam, which was used to describe the human male. The later biblical redactors, unable to conceive of Adam and Eve as deities, thought of them instead as the first humans, and equated them with the man and woman created on Day Six, who actually are the first humans in the Genesis Creation story.

Chronologically and contextually, we see that Genesis introduces Adam and Eve as the anthropomorphic beings referred to in Genesis 2:4 as heaven and earth, and since Adam is created out of the dust of the earth, we can equate him with the Egyptian deity Geb or Earth and we can equate Eve with the Egyptian deity Nut or heaven.

Eve enters the story, however, only after she is physically ripped from the body of Adam. This separation of Adam (the earth) from Eve (the Heaven) closely parallels the Egyptian account in which Shu physically pulls Heaven from the Earth. It also incorporates the Heliopolitan idea that a male and female deity were created from a single male deity.

There are some other interesting parallels between Geb and Nut and Adam and Eve. According to Plutarch's account of the Osiris myth, Re, the chief deity, ordered Geb and Nut not to couple. They disobeyed his injunction and were punished. Re ordered Shu to separate the two bodies and declared that Nut would not be able to give birth on any day of the year. Thoth, sympathetic to Nut's plight, won some light from the Moon and created five new days. Since these days were not yet part of the year, Nut could give birth on these five days. She had five children, one on each day, born in the following order: Osiris, Horus, Set, Isis and Nephthys, the three males first and then two females. The Egyptians memorialized this sequence in their calendar, which names the last five days of the year after these five deities in the order of their births. Because of the role of Geb and Nut in birthing these deities, they were often known as the father and mother of the gods.

Observe the sequence of events: The chief deity gives a direct command to Heaven and Earth. They violate the order and as a penalty the chief deity makes child birth a difficult act for the female. Subsequently she gives birth to three sons. As we know from other Egyptian myths, one of those three sons, Set, kills one of the other sons, Osiris.

Genesis has a similar plot. God gives Adam and Eve (or Earth and Heaven) a direct order. They disobey that order and one of the punishments inflicted includes difficulties with child birth. Subsequently, Eve gives birth to three named sons, Cain, Abel, and Seth, one of whom kills one of the other brothers. Also, Eve is identified in the bible as the mother of all living, an identification similar to Nut's designation as mother of the gods. So, as with Nut, Eve disobeys God, is punished with difficulty in childbirth, has three male sons, one of whom kills one of the others, and she is thought of as the first mother.

Interestingly, the Hebrew name Seth and the Egyptian name Set are philologically identical and both children are born third in sequence. However, as some will note, in the biblical sequence it is not Seth who kills his brother. Instead, Cain does the killing. Cain, as the oldest brother, should correspond to Osiris and his killing of another brother is inconsistent with the Egyptian story. Why that occurs is too complex an issue to be resolved in this paper and we will let it pass. However, a little further below, we will see that Cain and Osiris share some other characteristics.

Although Adam and Eve start out as Geb and Nut they also share some aspects of Osiris and Isis. In this regard, we should observe that the Egyptians recognized a deity known as Geb-Osiris who was thought to have created the cosmic egg in Hermopolitan creation myths. Therefore, a merging of Geb and Osiris into a single character involved with Creation does not undermine the theme of this paper. However, I should observe that I believe the biblical character of Adam initially corresponds to the Egyptian god Atum and that Genesis incorporates within Adam all the members of the Ennead. This is consistent with the Egyptian view of Atum, who was also thought of as including within himself all the members of the Ennead.

The connection between Adam and Eve and Osiris and Isis is most apparent in the story of the serpent and the forbidden fruit. Osiris, as ruler of the afterlife, had to make two decisions with regards to the people who appeared before him. First he had to decide if the person lived a moral life; then he had to determine whether to grant that individual eternal life.

In Genesis, we learn that the Garden of Eden had two special trees. The fruit of one gave knowledge of good and evil; the fruit of the other gave eternal life. Thus, the ability of Adam to have control over the fruit of these tree would give him the same status as Osiris, but the biblical theology can not allow an Osiris to exist, so access to those fruits was forbidden by the one true deity. The nature of this conflict is even noted in the bible when God says to one of his angels, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

I suppose almost everyone who reads the story of Adam and Eve has at one time or another questioned why it was such a terrible thing for these two people to learn about the difference between good and evil. I suggest that to ask this question is to misunderstand what the story was really about. The story was not about good and evil. It was about the need to diminish the role of Osiris as a cult figure.

As a consequence of Adam and Eve eating the fruit, God administered some punishments. We have already mentioned the problem of childbirth. In addition, Adam lost his kingdom and was banished from the Garden. He journeyed to a new land where he became a farmer who had to suffer hard labor in order to produce food. As to the serpent who tricked Adam into losing his kingdom, God declared that there should be enmity between the woman and the serpent and between her seed and his seed. Furthermore, the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent and the serpent shall bruise the heel of the womans seed.

Again, these themes seem to be drawn from the Osiris cycle. In the Osiris myth, especially as related by Plutarch, Osiris and Isis ruled in a golden age. Osiris traveled far and wide teaching the people what he knew and Isis ruled in his absence. But the god Set, whom the Egyptians frequently identified with the serpent Apep, enemy of Re, conspired to take the throne for himself. Through trickery, he trapped Osiris in a chest, killed him, and hid the box away. Subsequently, Set hacked the body into pieces and buried them around the land of Egypt. Isis, fearing for the safety of Horus, her child, hid him away from Set. Still, Set managed to sneak up on Horus, and in the form of a serpent bit at his heel. But for the intervention of the gods, Horus would have died. When Horus grew up he avenged his fathers murder and defeated Set in battle.

In Genesis, the Osiris role is shared between Adam and Cain. For comparisons, we begin with the observation that the key scene in the Garden of Eden involves a serpent in a tree trying to kill Adam by tricking him into eating the forbidden fruit. The trick worked. Where Adam was essentially a fertile agricultural deity in the Garden of Eden, he has now been figuratively killed in that he now lives as a mortal and he must sweat out agricultural growth. He no longer rules as king in a golden age.

Indeed, the bible implicitly recognizes that the serpent killed Adam. The text explicitly says that if Adam ate from the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil he would surely die. Since the serpent tricked Adam into committing this life extinguishing act, he has, like Set, killed the king. That Adam didnt actually die in accord with the warning is no doubt due to the confusion of identities in later times between Adam and Eve and the first man and woman created on Day Six.

As to the serpent who tricked Adam, just as Set tricked Osiris, he and Eve became enemies, just as Set and Isis became enemies. Also, just as Set bit the heel of Horus, Genesis said that the serpent would bruise the heel of Eves children. And just as Horus avenged Set by beating him in battle, Genesis says that the seed of Eve will bruise the head of the serpent.

With regard to this last matter, let me call your attention to a well-known Egyptian scene generally identified as The Great Cat of Heliopolis. It shows a cat with a stick bruising the head of a serpent who is sitting in a tree. Egyptologists usually identify the Cat as Re and the serpent as Apep his enemy. Iconographically, while the Great Cat scene no doubt derives from the conflict between Re and Apep, the image portrayed seems remarkably consistent with the biblical story of Adam and Eve. I suspect that if we replaced the Cat with a more human image of one of the sun Gods, Re, Atum, or Horus, and left out the identifying words, many persons unfamiliar with the origin of the picture might consider it an illustration for the story of Adam and Eve.

As noted above Cain as the oldest of Eves three children should correspond to Osiris, and many such correspondences exist. To begin with, like Osiris, Cain is an agricultural figure associated with fruit farming. Osiris wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. Cain also wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. In fact, Cains name is Semitic for smith, a craft figure, and Cains descendants, according to Genesis, are the founders of all the creative arts and sciences.

In Theban tradition, Osiris built Thebes, which was the first city. According to Genesis, Cain also built the first city. He built it in a land called Nod. Curiously, the bible refers to the city of Thebes by the name No, a rather close philological fit with Nod.

Finally, although we noted the anomaly of having Cain, the Osiris character, kill his brother instead of having the brother corresponding to Set do the killing, we do note that in both the Egyptian and biblical stories, we appear to have the story of the first murder and in each instance the killer buries the body and hides it from view, in the hope that no one will discover it.

Summary

In conclusion, I note that the bible places Israels formative years as a cultural entity in Egypt, and its leading figures, Joseph and Moses, were educated in Egypts traditions. What they new about the origins of the world they learned in Egypt, and what they wrote about those origins should surely have had an Egyptian influence.

Yet, while scholars are willing to admit all sorts of Semitic pagan influences on early Hebrew historical beliefs, they treat the idea of Egyptian influence as far too profane for intense examination. I hope in this paper I have been able to at least raise some interest in more closely examining the idea that Egyptian ideas greatly influenced the writing of early biblical history.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29277|2009-07-01 08:36:07|Lamar Perryman|Fw: [P-U-T-T] Nigerians: The Happiest People And The Most StupidNige|

--- On Tue, 6/30/09, Manny Otiko wrote:

From: Manny Otiko

Subject: [P-U-T-T] Nigerians: The Happiest People And The Most StupidNigerians: The Happiest People And The Most Stupid

To: "Black Free thinkers"

Date: Tuesday, June 30, 2009, 4:28 PM

I found this article on Facebook. It's a damning indictment of how religion is holding Nigeria back.

---

Nigerians: The Happiest People And The Most Stupid

Share

Yesterday at 5:07pm

---

Dr. Olusola Osineye

The festival of life (FOL) is Londons equivalent of Holy Ghost night - the monthly gathering of Christians in Nigeria, irrespective of denominations, at the redeemed Christian church camp to offer prayers and praises to God. Although the FOL is held twice a year at the Excel centre in East London, it is already turning into a ritual similar to the one at home. The turnout is always massive and the passion generated at the event is just typical of any gathering of devoted Nigerian Christians.

Politicians, clergymen from the Church of England, and other non-governmental organizations have started to associate very closely with this event. This somehow underscores the socio-political significance of the gathering. The former mayor of London, Ken Livingstone, once used the occasion to campaign during an election period and was given a tacit endorsement by the Nigerian churches but still lost anyway. Yes, he lost, partly because the Nigerian population in London is hardly significant to guarantee him any success at the polls. Besides that, the British electorate are not as dumb as those in Nigeria. That statement is actually my own hypothesis.

According to official statistics released in US, Nigerians are rated amongst the most highly educated foreigners. It is likely to be the same in the United Kingdom. But we are easily one of the most stupid also. We might be one of the most educated but the level of ignorance on display by even the educated lot is so amazing that I don't think anything can salvage the country from her destined self-destruction. The horrible smell of our collective stupidity has reached high heavens and I think God can no longer stand the stench and that probably explains the type of leadership in every sphere of our lives. I know I have a lot of explanations to give for this generalization.

Wait! I don't think I need to go far before getting evidence to back up my hypothesis on our collective stupidity. For example, if less than one million rogues are able to suppress the will and aspirations of over one hundred and forty-nine million people, what better explanation can one give for such a scenario? Well, I trust Nigerians they will give loads of reasons. But, I don't really care about the reasons. I am only stating a fact.

For a start, my intention is not to discuss why the few stupid rogues are able to overwhelm the huge majority and push them into a state of unbelievable docility. Other people can talk about that. I am more concerned about the stupid one hundred and forty-nine million who believed that it is God's will for the majority to live in abject poverty in the midst of plenty.

There was even a poll conducted not too long ago that gave justification to our stupidity, which gave further credence to my hypothesis. The poll claimed that we are the happiest people on earth. Jesus Christ! There is nothing more sinister than such ridicule. How could any group of people stay happy when they are in pitch darkness for twenty out of twenty-four hours in a day? Infant and maternal mortality rate is continuously one of the highest in the world. And of course life expectancy is about forty-five years for male. This means that if you are forty-five, male and reading this article, you are one of the lucky few who are still alive because most of your mates who could not leave the country are already dead, and you are likely to be dead before the end of the week either through a ghastly motor accident on those death-traps called roads, or through ingestion of fake drugs or one equally stupid and mad police man would simply blow your brains out and nothing will happen. Anyway, never mind; just be happy, you are just another stupid Nigerian.

As I mentioned briefly earlier, one of the most compelling evidence of our level of stupidity can be seen in our attitude to religion. It is always God's will. If YaArdia suddenly drops dead tomorrow, as he likely would eventually anyway, (renal failure is a terminal ailment, and only transplant and not his stupid faith in some miracle can save him) and a few morons decided that Good-luck Jonathan is not from the North and therefore cannot become the next president, it would simply be God's will. We would all write articles and scream on the pages of newspaper about the unconstitutionality of the decision but nothing would happen. We are clowns in Nigeria and the whole world is laughing at us. We all know that clowns act stupidly to make children laugh. So you can see that my hypothesis will eventually take shape.

Therefore, I daresay that religion will remain one of the greatest impediments to our greatness in Nigeria. Alternatively, if the influence of religion is effectively utilized it can actually be a useful tool for development.

Take a look at the North where Islam is the dominant religion. The wretched religious clerics in that part of the country can easily mobilize more than five million street urchins to wreck havoc on all Igbo traders because an unidentified person used a torn page from the Quran to wipe his bum after defecating. Has anyone ever wondered why it was always the Igbos? Meanwhile, they have never ever organised a peaceful rally to express their displeasure at the lack of development in the area.

The North is probably only second to the Stone Age in terms of human capital development. Even those in that age used their brains to fabricate sophisticated tools for hunting purposes. And then the joke of the century is when Forbes magazine suddenly came up with the story that the only billionaire from Nigeria is actually from that part of the country. Well, he is not the government so what is he supposed to do? I beg to differ. This guy has one of the most potent clouts in any government in Nigeria. He can advocate and strive to see that something is done. Bill Gates has used billions of dollars of his money to fight malaria. There is no malaria in America but it kills millions of children in Africa every year.

Christianity is the fastest growing industry in the southern part of the country. The pastors are growing fat while the congregation are burdened by the harsh economic conditions. All the rogues in government are elders in one church or the other. The churches are like second homes to looters of the treasury. They are chairmen or chairpersons of one church building committee or the other. The pastors are always saying special prayers for them and have no scruples about taking their stolen money.

The churches now buy private jets for their chief executive officers (oh sorry, pastor) and are shameless enough to claim that it is for evangelism. Meanwhile, half the congregation of those churches live on less than $1,000 in a year while most of the youth are jobless. Yes, the pastors are not the ones to provide jobs; but how many times have they criticised the government for not creating those jobs? How many times have they told them that they cannot continue to loot the treasuries and then come around to the house of God to make some bogus claims of Gods blessings in their lives?

During the last American election, religious leaders were very vocal in their criticism of one government policy or the other. They do not keep quiet and say it is Gods will. Barack Obamas pastor, Reverend Wright, was so vocal about his criticism of Americas racial divide that he became a big threat to his election prospect. That is the job of a pastor- saying the truth as it is, and not only collecting tithes and junketing about in private jets in the name of evangelism.

Pastor Tunde Bakare is the only pastor that I respect in Nigeria. He told Obasanjo to his face that he is evil. That is a real man of God. I worship with RCCG but not impressed that all manner of past and present rogue governors and ministers tend to associate with the overseer. They are always present at the Holy Ghost nights. They have probably repented and God has forgiven them and they are free to enjoy the loot till they die. A thief is a thief. I dont care if God has forgiven them. What manner of forgiveness is that anyway? How about the thousands that died on the roads that he refused to tar? How about the thousands of kids that died because there was no free Medicare?

The Yorubas of South-West are the most pathetic. They are quick to boast of their education and sophistication. Meanwhile, Adedibu and Obasanjo were the best they could come up with as national leaders. The former was the head of street urchins while the latter has a reputation for sleeping with his childrens wives.

I am actually fed up discussing and writing articles about our thieving leaders. They will never change anyway, at least not through our lengthy articles or criticism. If you believed that YaAdua and his PDP cohorts will not rig 2011 election, then you are even more stupid than an average Nigerian. Your own stupidity is extra-terrestrial. If you believed that the electoral reform would lead anywhere, I despise your sense of reasoning. If anyone believes that Nigeria will wobble and fumble (a la Fanny Amun!) into greatness, then I leave you alone to perish as a nonentity who only came to this world to look at Eko Bridge. (Or London bridge)

The Igbos and the Ijaws are probably the ones that have been most rebellious, the least religious and hence the least stupid. Maybe that is where the hopes of Nigeria lie. They would never accept that something is the will of God simply because somebody said so. They are difficult to subjugate and that is one of the reasons there was a civil war in the first place. Ojukwu remains a true hero. Why would some group of murderers continue to kill your people over some flimsy excuses? If I was an Igbo, I would be a low-life not to fight under those circumstances. He fought for what he believed in and the Igbo people followed him because they are not stupid like my people, the Yorubas. Although they lost the war and millions of lives were lost, but I know that they live to fight another day as long as some people continue to deter the progress of others.

The Ijaws have taken over the struggle and though there have been some criminality in the struggle, that is not unexpected, but by and large they have shown that peoples destiny is in their own hands and Gods will has nothing to do with it.

YarAdua and the looters of the treasury, both at the federal and state level, have started to panic as MEND cripples the oil industry. MEND, a ragtag bunch of militias have exposed the weakness of the Nigerian government. They quickly and with lightening speed offered them amnesty. They knew if there is no more oil, there wouldnt be any Nigeria. They planned to kill twenty million Ijaws to satisfy the lust and cravings of those vampires in Abuja.

Nigeria cannot continue to be the butt of jokes in the world. We cannot continue to believe that everything is the will of God. It is not Gods will to lack the basic things of life, and certainly not his will that our children should still be dying from malaria because there are no good hospitals. Untimely death from accident on death traps called road is not the will of God. All these things are the creations of the rogues amongst us and we have aided and abetted their actions because we have kept silent and didnt act. Our lack of action is construed as acceptability; we are therefore very stupid collectively.

Manny Otiko
PR Specialist
Founder
Soccer Universe

<http://socceruniverse.ning.com/>

Click here <http://tinyurl.com/oo3j8qt> to choose a laptop, write a review for us and you get to keep the laptop!

Submit your email to get it. Details Inside!

| 29278|2009-07-01 08:36:38|Roger Asterilla|Re: Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden|
Since it has already been established that Egyptian mythology and philosophy lay at the root of all existing cultural religions, would it not be easier to examine the de-evolution of the Egyptian "Stellar" period through the Lunar and Solar periods?

In this manner, not only would you understand the foundation of Egyptian philosophy, you would be able to note the changes that occurred across history as well. The primary mistake that keeps occurring is that for the last two thousand years, we have been conditioned in Monotheistic cultures, the doctrine of which is traced to Akhenaton in the 18th dynasty. Ask yourself, how or why did Atenism arise? What came before it, and what was before even that. All of the mythologies you are discussing are solar myths linked to their lunar foundation, i.e., Osiris. The question that should be asked is what is the meaning of the term myth? This simple feat will bring you closer to an understanding than you could imagine.
Roger "PEACE"

--- On Tue, 6/30/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Tuesday, June 30, 2009, 9:41 PM

What do you think?

*****

<http://gggreenberg.tripod.com/ancientne/gener.html>

The Generations of the Heavens and of the Earth: Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden

Presented at the annual meeting of the American Research Center in Egypt, St. Louis 1996

ABSTRACT

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens . . . Gen. 2:4

The above quote from Gen. 2:4 introduces us to the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Many biblical scholars believe that the next few verses contain a slightly different version of Creation than that contained earlier in Gen. 1. What is especially unusual is the reference to the generations of the heavens and the earth. In the several other instances when Genesis says These are the generations of . . . , it refers to information about a parent and their children. This would imply that Genesis 2 is about the Children of the Heavens and Earth, a polytheistic throwback to an earlier cosmogony. But whose cosmogony?

This paper examines some of the verses and images associated with the story of Adam and Eve and compares them with elements in the Heliopolitan Creation myths. It will be suggested that Adam and Eve correspond in part to Geb and Nut and in part to Osiris and Isis. Additionally, it will be suggested that the three male sons of Adam and Eve Cain, Abel and Seth correspond to the three male sons of Geb and Nut Osiris, Seth, and Horus.

Although the main thrust of the paper will be on the Adam and Eve story, the paper will also look at the first Genesis Creation account as well as the story of Noahs Flood, originally, perhaps, a third Creation story, and suggest that the series of Creation stories in Genesis draws upon the Theban doctrine of Creation in which Amen appears in a series of forms representing the Memphite, Heliopolitan and Hermopolitan cosmogonies.

The paper will examine such common themes as the stirring of the primeval waters, creation by word, the separation of heaven and earth, the rising of a firmament between the heaven and earth, problems of childbirth as a punishment for disobeying God, the bruising of the serpent from the tree, the enmity between the child and the serpent, the killing of a brother as an agricultural myth, the introduction of civilization, the building of the first city, and the relationship between the husband/brother and wife/sister with the serpent.

---

This paper attempts to introduce the idea that the biblical Creation stories, from the dawn of Creation through Noahs Flood, derive from Egyptian cosmogony, more specifically, the Theban doctrine of Creation. Thebes came late to the political scene in Egypt and its view of Creation attempted to incorporate the ideas of Memphis, Heliopolis and Hermopolis into a new cosmology that subordinated the chief deities of those cults to Amen, chief deity of Thebes.

The Theban doctrine holds that in the beginning there was the great primeval flood known as Nu or the Nun. The god Amen then appeared in a series of forms, first as an Ogdoad, then as Tatenen (a Memphite name for Ptah identified with the primeval hill), then as Atum, who created the first gods, then as Re. After this he created humanity, organized the Ennead, appointed the four male members of the Hermopolitan Ogdoad as his divine fathers and priests, and appointed Shu as their leader. Another Theban tradition holds that Osiris built the first city at Thebes.

To equate all these ideas with the biblical Creation stories would be a massive undertaking, far beyond the scope of this short paper. Therefore I will deal only with a small piece of this very large subject. In this paper I will just compare some elements of the Heliopolitan cycle with the biblical account of Adam and Eve and the second day of Creation.

My point of departure is Genesis 2:4-5, which serves as a preamble to the story of Adam and Eve. Coming immediately after the account of the seven days of Creation, the text reads as follows.

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

The phrase generations of appears eleven times in the Book of Genesis, but in the other ten instances it refers to stories about members of a family, such as in the generations of Noah or the generations of Jacob. This indicates that the noun or nouns following after the words generations of refer to a parent or parents. Genesis 2:4, therefore, implies that the heavens and the earth are anthropomorphic beings with children, and that what follows is about the family of these two entities.

This formulation clearly implies a pagan throwback to the idea of Heaven and Earth as deities, but biblical scholars, determined to preserve the monotheistic view of biblical history, are reluctant to accept such an interpretation. Instead, they wrench the phrase out of context and assert that it simply means things that are to follow or the history of.

A second major difficulty with Gen. 2:4-5 is the time frame in question. The passage indicates that the stories we are about to read take place in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens, and before the appearance of plant life. When is that day?

Biblical scholars tell us that the preamble refers to stories that take place after the seven days of Creation. But reading the passage literally and in context, it quite explicitly states that the stories we are about to read occurred on the day that God made the earth and the heavens and before the appearance of plant life. That time frame is clearly defined in the account of the seven days of Creation.

On the second day of Creation, a firmament arises out of the primeval waters and separates the waters above from the waters below. The biblical text says that the firmament came to be called heaven. On the third day of Creation, the waters below gathered in one place to create the dry land, which was then called earth, after which, plant life appeared. So the preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the upcoming stories in the period between the division of the waters and the appearance of plant life, in the middle of the third day of creation.

Biblical scholars, however, note an interesting problem with this division between the second and third day. The second day is the only day in the sequence that isn't blessed by God. Instead, the third day receives two blessings, one after dry land or Earth appears, and one after the arrival of plant life. As many of these scholars have recognized, the gathering of the waters to create dry land continues the second day's process of rearranging and dividing the primeval waters. For this reason, they argue that the second day's blessing is held off to the middle of the third day because that is when the task of rearranging the primeval waters is finished. I would propose instead that the biblical redactor simply made an editing error, and the first half of Day Three actually belongs with Day Two and the associated blessing belongs at the end of Day Two. This would be consistent with the text of Genesis 2:4, which says that heaven and earth were created on the same day.

To summarize briefly, so far: On the second day of Creation, God placed a firmament in the primeval waters, separating the waters above from the waters below. The firmament was called Heaven. Then He gathered the waters below into a single place and created dry land. The dry land was called Earth. The preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the starting point for the biblical stories on the second day of Creation, before the appearance of plant life on Day Three.

The arrangement of events on Day Two seems to closely parallel the Heliopolitan Creation myth. A great hill arose out of the primeval flood. This hill would obviously constitute a form of firmament. In some traditions that hill was Atum, the Heliopolitan Creator deity. In other traditions, Atum appeared at the top of the hill.

Atum, through act of masturbatory sex, brought forth two deities, Shu and Tefnut, representing air and moisture. These two deities gave birth to the male deity Geb, who represented the earth, and the female deity Nut, who represented the heavens.

Several Egyptian pictures portray Shu as lifting Nut into the air and separating her from Geb. Sequentially, then, Atum appears as a firmament in the middle of the Nun and creates Shu who ultimately separates heaven and earth and symbolizes the space in between. Shu, therefore, becomes the firmament between Heaven and Earth.

Consider now how Genesis says the waters were divided. First, the waters above were divided from the waters below. Next, the waters below were gathered into a single place. The waters above is an Egyptian concept signifying the sky. We see it most clearly in images of the solar bark sailing through the heavens. Although Genesis says the firmament was called Heaven, I believe this was a late gloss by the biblical redactors. The firmament stands below the waters above. It is the waters above that would correspond to heaven. The firmament would be the space in between heaven and earth, corresponding first to the primeval mountain and then to Shu.

This brings us to the question of where in all the middle east would any people have such a concept as all the waters gathering in a single place, leaving fertile land behind in its retreat. The most logical location is the Nile River in Egypt. The gathering of the waters in one place is the primary Egyptian agricultural phenomenon. It derives from the annual overflowing of the Nile, which fertilizes the land and then withdraws, leaving the dry land in its place. For Egyptians, the Nile was the one and only great water way. Even the Mediterranean Sea attaches to the Nile.

Elsewhere, throughout Canaan and Mesopotamia, there were numerous large unconnected bodies of waters that were well known to the inhabitants of those lands. They include the Mediterranean Sea, Persian Gulf, Reed Sea, Dead Sea, The Jordan River, the Tigris and The Euphrates. It is unlikely that the people of those lands would think of all these waters as gathering in a single place.

Returning to Genesis 2:4-5, we are told that when dry land was formed, no plant life existed because no man existed to till the ground. The next Genesis verses in sequence tell us: a mist rose up to water the dry land, God created the Adam out of the dust, (note that the bible says the Adam, not Adam), then he planted a Garden and put the Adam in it. Observe here 1) Adam appears before the plant life on Day Three and 2) that woman has not yet appeared. This is contrary to the sequence in the seven days of Creation, which places man and woman on the sixth day. Eve, or the woman, which is how she is described until after the expulsion from the Garden of Eden, appears later in the sequence, after plants and after other animal life.

This arrangement strongly suggests that the man and woman created on Day Six were other than Adam and Eve, who appear earlier. The confusion arises from the fact that Adam and Eve originally represented Heliopolitan deities, the most important of whom was named Atum, a name virtually identical in pronunciation to the Semitic word Adam, which was used to describe the human male. The later biblical redactors, unable to conceive of Adam and Eve as deities, thought of them instead as the first humans, and equated them with the man and woman created on Day Six, who actually are the first humans in the Genesis Creation story.

Chronologically and contextually, we see that Genesis introduces Adam and Eve as the anthropomorphic beings referred to in Genesis 2:4 as heaven and earth, and since Adam is created out of the dust of the earth, we can equate him with the Egyptian deity Geb or Earth and we can equate Eve with the Egyptian deity Nut or heaven.

Eve enters the story, however, only after she is physically ripped from the body of Adam. This separation of Adam (the earth) from Eve (the Heaven) closely parallels the Egyptian account in which Shu physically pulls Heaven from the Earth. It also incorporates the Heliopolitan idea that a male and female deity were created from a single male deity.

There are some other interesting parallels between Geb and Nut and Adam and Eve. According to Plutarch's account of the Osiris myth, Re, the chief deity, ordered Geb and Nut not to couple. They disobeyed his injunction and were punished. Re ordered Shu to separate the two bodies and declared that Nut would not be able to give birth on any day of the year. Thoth, sympathetic to Nut's plight, won some light from the Moon and created five new days. Since these days were not yet part of the year, Nut could give birth on these five days. She had five children, one on each day, born in the following order: Osiris, Horus, Set, Isis and Nephthys, the three males first and then two females. The Egyptians memorialized this sequence in their calendar, which names the last five days of the year after these five deities in the order of their births. Because of the role of Geb and Nut in birthing these deities, they were often known as the father and mother of the gods.

Observe the sequence of events: The chief deity gives a direct command to Heaven and Earth. They violate the order and as a penalty the chief deity makes child birth a difficult act for the female. Subsequently she gives birth to three sons. As we know from other Egyptian myths, one of those three sons, Set, kills one of the other sons, Osiris.

Genesis has a similar plot. God gives Adam and Eve (or Earth and Heaven) a direct order. They disobey that order and one of the punishments inflicted includes difficulties with child birth. Subsequently, Eve gives birth to three named sons, Cain, Abel, and Seth, one of whom kills one of the other brothers. Also, Eve is identified in the bible as the mother of all living, an identification similar to Nut's designation as mother of the gods. So, as with Nut, Eve disobeys God, is punished with difficulty in childbirth, has three male sons, one of whom kills one of the others, and she is thought of as the first mother.

Interestingly, the Hebrew name Seth and the Egyptian name Set are philologically identical and both children are born third in sequence. However, as some will note, in the biblical sequence it is not Seth who kills his brother. Instead, Cain does the killing. Cain, as the oldest brother, should correspond to Osiris and his killing of another brother is inconsistent with the Egyptian story. Why that occurs is too complex an issue to be resolved in this paper and we will let it pass. However, a little further below, we will see that Cain and Osiris share some other characteristics.

Although Adam and Eve start out as Geb and Nut they also share some aspects of Osiris and Isis. In this regard, we should observe that the Egyptians recognized a deity known as Geb-Osiris who was thought to have created the cosmic egg in Hermopolitan creation myths. Therefore, a merging of Geb and Osiris into a single character involved with Creation does not undermine the theme of this paper. However, I should observe that I believe the biblical character of Adam initially corresponds to the Egyptian god Atum and that Genesis incorporates within Adam all the members of the Ennead. This is consistent with the Egyptian view of Atum, who was also thought of as including within himself all the members of the Ennead.

The connection between Adam and Eve and Osiris and Isis is most apparent in the story of the serpent and the forbidden fruit. Osiris, as ruler of the afterlife, had to make two decisions with regards to the people who appeared before him. First he had to decide if the person lived a moral life; then he had to determine whether to grant that individual eternal life.

In Genesis, we learn that the Garden of Eden had two special trees. The fruit of one gave knowledge of good and evil; the fruit of the other gave eternal life. Thus, the ability of Adam to have control over the fruit of these trees would give him the same status as Osiris, but the biblical theology can not allow an Osiris to exist, so access to those fruits was forbidden by the one true deity. The nature of this conflict is even noted in the bible when God says to one of his angels, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

I suppose almost everyone who reads the story of Adam and Eve has at one time or another questioned why it was such a terrible thing for these two people to learn about the difference between good and evil. I suggest that to ask this question is to misunderstand what the story was really about. The story was not about good and evil. It was about the need to diminish the role of Osiris as a cult figure.

As a consequence of Adam and Eve eating the fruit, God administered some punishments. We have already mentioned the problem of childbirth. In addition, Adam lost his kingdom and was banished from the Garden. He journeyed to a new land where he became a farmer who had to suffer hard labor in order to produce food. As to the serpent who tricked Adam into losing his kingdom, God declared that there should be enmity between the woman and the serpent and between her seed and his seed. Furthermore, the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent and the serpent shall bruise the heel of the woman's seed.

Again, these themes seem to be drawn from the Osiris cycle. In the Osiris myth, especially as related by Plutarch, Osiris and Isis ruled in a golden age. Osiris traveled far and wide teaching the people what he knew and Isis ruled in his absence. But the god Set, whom the Egyptians frequently identified with the serpent Apep, enemy of Re, conspired to take the throne for himself. Through trickery, he trapped Osiris in a chest, killed him, and hid the box away. Subsequently, Set hacked the body into pieces and buried them around the land of Egypt. Isis, fearing for the safety of Horus, her child, hid him away from Set. Still, Set managed to sneak up on Horus, and in the form of a serpent bit at his heel. But for the intervention of the gods, Horus would have died. When Horus grew up he avenged his father's murder and defeated Set in battle.

In Genesis, the Osiris role is shared between Adam and Cain. For comparisons, we begin with the observation that the key scene in the Garden of Eden involves a serpent in a tree trying to kill Adam by tricking him into eating the forbidden fruit. The trick worked. Where Adam was essentially a fertile agricultural deity in the Garden of Eden, he has now been figuratively killed in that he now lives as a mortal and he must sweat out agricultural growth. He no longer rules as king in a golden age.

Indeed, the bible implicitly recognizes that the serpent killed Adam. The text explicitly says that if Adam ate from the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil he would surely die. Since the serpent tricked Adam into committing this life extinguishing act, he has, like Set, killed the king. That Adam didn't actually die in accord with the warning is no doubt due to the confusion of identities in later times between Adam and Eve and the first man and woman created on Day Six.

As to the serpent who tricked Adam, just as Set tricked Osiris, he and Eve became enemies, just as Set and Isis became enemies. Also, just as Set bit the heel of Horus, Genesis said that the serpent would bruise the heel of Eves children. And just as Horus avenged Set by beating him in battle, Genesis says that the seed of Eve will bruise the head of the serpent.

With regard to this last matter, let me call your attention to a well-known Egyptian scene generally identified as The Great Cat of Heliopolis. It shows a cat with a stick bruising the head of a serpent who is sitting in a tree. Egyptologists usually identify the Cat as Re and the serpent as Apep his enemy. Iconographically, while the Great Cat scene no doubt derives from the conflict between Re and Apep, the image portrayed seems remarkably consistent with the biblical story of Adam and Eve. I suspect that if we replaced the Cat with a more human image of one of the sun Gods, Re, Atum, or Horus, and left out the identifying words, many persons unfamiliar with the origin of the picture might consider it an illustration for the story of Adam and Eve.

As noted above Cain as the oldest of Eves three children should correspond to Osiris, and many such correspondences exist. To begin with, like Osiris, Cain is an agricultural figure associated with fruit farming. Osiris wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. Cain also wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. In fact, Cains name is Semitic for smith, a craft figure, and Cains descendants, according to Genesis, are the founders of all the creative arts and sciences.

In Theban tradition, Osiris built Thebes, which was the first city. According to Genesis, Cain also built the first city. He built it in a land called Nod. Curiously, the bible refers to the city of Thebes by the name No, a rather close philological fit with Nod.

Finally, although we noted the anomaly of having Cain, the Osiris character, kill his brother instead of having the brother corresponding to Set do the killing, we do note that in both the Egyptian and biblical stories, we appear to have the story of the first murder and in each instance the killer buries the body and hides it from view, in the hope that no one will discover it.

Summary

In conclusion, I note that the bible places Israels formative years as a cultural entity in Egypt, and its leading figures, Joseph and Moses, were educated in Egypts traditions.

What they new about the origins of the world they learned in Egypt, and what they wrote about those origins should surely have had an Egyptian influence.

Yet, while scholars are willing to admit all sorts of Semitic pagan influences on early Hebrew historical beliefs, they treat the idea of Egyptian influence as far too profane for intense examination. I hope in this paper I have been able to at least raise some interest in more closely examining the idea that Egyptian ideas greatly influenced the writing of early biblical history.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29279|2009-07-01 16:05:53|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: Check out YouTube - The Last Bite - China|

--- On Wed, 7/1/09, AUSAR65@aol.com wrote:

From: AUSAR65@aol.com

Subject: Check out YouTube - The Last Bite - China

To: Afrikannubian@aol.com, alandas@nsightmemphis.com, feferachelle227@yahoo.com, godlyu productions@yahoo.com, nfrimpong@tampabay.rr.com, sadio.butterfly@yahoo.com,
tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009, 5:44 PM

YouTube - The Last Bite - China

click above

also check out what cynthia McKinney is going thru:

<http://in.reuters.com/article/worldNews/idINIndia-40707020090630>

click above

---

Make your summer sizzle with fast and easy recipes for the grill.

| 29280|2009-07-01 20:37:26|Lamar Perryman|Re: [africanclassicalhistory] Re: Fw: [P-U-T-T] Nigerians: The Happy|

This whole issue here makes the average person of good principled nature do some serious and heavy thinking. The issue is not as simple as it is stated and is more complex than anything. Politics, Sciences, Religions, Economics, Industry, Military-Police, Gender, Tribalism, Racism and Organized Criminal Groups have been used to control Nations, Tribes and Ethnic groups since the beginning of Organized Societies or Human Civilizations. I am not saying All Societies have been Bad or Evil either but enough of them have.

On every continent of Africa, Asia, Europe, Australia, North America, South America and The Sub-Continents and Island Nations and Among Every Race, Ethnic Group and Tribe of Peoples someone is going to rule and possess the power of life and society for short-term and long-term purposes.

In what is now the more Modern Industrial, Mechanical, Scientific Technological Age the issue has Boiled Down Now to the Common Group ( Say Black/African-American; Moorish-American ) that one is a part of Rather than a Continental Racial/Tribal/Ethnic Issue but that matter still looms Large in The background believe you me.!

The point of the matter is that among the many different Whites ( Anglo-Saxon, German, Irish, French, Italian etc ) , The Asian Races and their Many Tribes and Ethnic groups, among The Indian and Oriental peoples, The Black Peoples on The different Continents as Black Africans, Black Asians, Black Europeans, Black South Americans and Black North Americans ( We Are NOT All The Same even Though We Belong To The Same Race ; Just as ALL Whites/Nordic Europeans are not the same, All Indian Asians and Indian Americans are Not the same and ALL Orientals and Their different Ethnic groups are not the same even though they All belong to The Same RACE that theirTribe and EthnicGroup are a Part Of generally speaking ).!

It is just that Whites/Caucasians have done a much, much better job of managing their internal differences among themselves while simultaneaously exploting the differences and divisions among the other racial groups and their various tribes and ethnicities. This is something that other Groups such as The Indian Asians, The Hispanic-Latino/Native Indian American groups of North and South America and The Oriental Asian Tribes and ethnicities have realized and are beginnin to work on overall among themselves but everyone realizes that there is a ways to go yet.

Add to that THE FACT that The Most Vital Threat To A Tribal or Ethnic Group's Evolution, Stability and Spirituality May Not Come From The Outside (for the Black American;Afro-Americans you know the Old Excuses :the White Man, or The Hispanics, Or The Asian-Americans ) BUT MAY BE AND IS COMING FROM THE INSIDE.!!!

Again We as Black/African-Americans, Moorish-Americans must realize our Evolution and that of the world's peoples and societies as a whole. ! We must Realize That WE ARE A NEW TRIBAL AND SOCIO-ETHNIC GROUP OF PEOPLES OURSELVES ON OWN AMONGALL THE WORLD'S PEOPLES NOW.!

We have Political and Religious Blacks, Military and Police Blacks, Street-Gangs ( Jails, Prisons ) /Organized Crime Oriented Blacks and WE have a Internal Situation on hand that is worse than any other any generation has faced and the future of the next generation (s)is actually hanging in the balance. Now there are many reasons for this, Old and New, from Outside and Inside the Community, but The Question for us as a Tribal/Socio-Ethnic Group is Best Posed by Brother Nadra Enzi, a.k.a. Capt. Black ( Public Now ) :

What Tribe, Ethnic Group, Society or Nation Anywhere In history that has Survived, Excelled and Prospered by letting The Most Negative Elements Within it Take Charge of Its Life , Society and Destiny. !!! ??????????????

MLP,

MAFN, The Nationalists.

--- On Wed, 7/1/09, Fari Supiya wrote:

|

From: Fari Supiya
Subject: Re: [africanclassicalhistory] Re: Fw: [P-U-T-T] Nigerians: The Happiest People And The Most Stupid
To: africanclassicalhistory@yahoogroups.co.uk
Date: Wednesday, July 1, 2009, 10:41 PM

"Wait! I don't think I need to go far before getting evidence to back up my hypothesis on collective stupidity. For example, if less than one million rogues are able to suppress the aspirations of over one hundred and forty-nine million people, what better explanation can give for such a scenario? Well, I trust Nigerians they will give loads of reasons. But, I don't really care about the reasons. I am only stating a fact".

GORE: Can the same not be said for every nation on earth? Do not a hand full of 'rogues' control the masses? What is so different about Nigeria that they need to be earmarked and repeatedly called stupid?

G.O.R.E

--- On Wed, 1/7/09, Mahari Mengistu wrote:

From: Mahari Mengistu
Subject: [africanclassicalhistory] Re: Fw: [P-U-T-T] Nigerians: The Happiest People And The Most Stupid
To: africanclassicalhistory@yahoogroups.co.uk
Date: Wednesday, 1 July, 2009, 6:31 PM

Amen, Amun, Amin!!!

And the same thing criticism can and should be leveled at American black pastors as a whole. Although, there are some exceptions, I find them to be nearly as pathetic as the Nigerian ministers/people - corruption et al.

Just a couple of examples are the black pastoral responses to the AIDS crisis and their support of the Bush administration. Anyone who supported a loving, intelligent God or who was loving and intelligent themselves could not have responded to either of these "crises" as they did.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In africanclassicalhistory@yahoogroups.co.uk, Lamar Perryman wrote:

>
>
>

> --- On Tue, 6/30/09, Manny Otiko wrote:

>
>

> From: Manny Otiko

turning into a ritual similar to the one at home. The turnout is always massive and the passion generated at the event is just typical of any gathering of devoted Nigerian Christians.

>

> Politicians, clergymen from the Church of England, and other non-governmental organizations have started to associate very closely with this event. This somehow underscores the socio-political significance of the gathering. The former mayor of London, Ken Livingstone, once used the occasion to campaign during an election period and was given a tacit endorsement by the Nigerian churches but still lost anyway. Yes, he lost, partly because the Nigerian population in London is hardly significant to guarantee him any success at the polls. Besides that, the British electorate are not as dumb as those in Nigeria. That statement is actually my own hypothesis.

>

> According to official statistics released in US, Nigerians are rated amongst the most highly educated foreigners. It is likely to be the same in the United Kingdom. But we are easily one of the most stupid also. We might be one of the most educated but the level of ignorance on display by even the educated lot is so amazing that I don't think anything can salvage the country from her destined self-destruction. The horrible smell of our collective stupidity has reached high heavens and I think God can no longer stand the stench and that probably explains the type of leadership in every sphere of our lives. I know I have a lot of explanations to give for this generalization.

>

> Wait! I don't think I need to go far before getting evidence to back up my hypothesis on our collective stupidity. For example, if less than one million rogues are able to suppress the will and aspirations of over one hundred and forty-nine million people, what better explanation can one give for such a scenario? Well, I trust Nigerians they will give loads of reasons. But, I don't really care about the reasons. I am only stating a fact.

>

> For a start, my intention is not to discuss why the few stupid rogues are able to overwhelm the huge majority and push them into a state of unbelievable docility. Other people can talk about that. I am more concerned about the stupid one hundred and forty-nine million who believed that it is God's will for the majority to live in abject poverty in the midst of plenty.

>

> There was even a poll conducted not too long ago that gave justification to our stupidity, which gave further credence to my hypothesis. The poll claimed that we are the happiest people on earth. Jesus Christ! There is nothing more sinister than such ridicule. How could any group of people stay happy when they are in pitch darkness for twenty out of twenty-four hours in a day? Infant and maternal mortality rate is continuously one of the highest in the world. And of course life expectancy is about forty-five years for male. This means that if you are forty five, male and reading this article, you are one of the lucky few who are still alive because most of your mates who could not leave the country are already dead, and you are likely to be dead before the end of the week either through a ghastly motor accident on those death-traps called roads, or through ingestion of fake drugs or one equally stupid and mad police man would simply blow your brains out > and nothing will happen. Anyway, never mind; just be happy, you are just another stupid Nigerian.

>

> As I mentioned briefly earlier, one of the most compelling evidence of our level of stupidity can be seen in our attitude to religion. It is always God's will. If Ya'Ardua suddenly drops dead tomorrow, as he likely would eventually anyway, (renal failure is a terminal ailment, and only transplant and not his stupid faith in some miracle can save him) and a few morons decided that Good-luck Jonathan is not from the North and therefore cannot become the next president, it would simply be God's will. We would all write articles and scream on the pages of newspaper about the unconstitutionality of the decision but nothing would happen. We are clowns in Nigeria and the whole world is laughing at us. We all know that clowns act stupidly to make children laugh. So you can see that my hypothesis will eventually take shape.

>

> Therefore, I daresay that religion will remain one of the greatest impediments to our greatness in Nigeria. Alternatively, if the influence of religion is effectively utilized it can actually be a useful tool for development.

>

> Take a look at the North where Islam is the dominant religion. The wretched religious clerics in that part of the country can easily mobilize more than five million street urchins to wreck havoc on all Igbo traders because an unidentified person used a torn page from the Quran to wipe his bum after defecating. Has anyone ever wondered why it was always the Igbos? Meanwhile, they have never ever organised a peaceful rally to express their displeasure at the lack of development in the area.

>

> The North is probably only second to the Stone Age in terms of human capital development. Even those in that age used their brains to fabricate sophisticated tools for hunting purposes. And then the joke of the century is when Forbes magazine suddenly came up with the story that the only billionaire from Nigeria is actually from that part of the country. Well, he is not the government so what is he supposed to do? I beg to differ. This guy has one of the most potent clouts in any government in Nigeria. He can advocate and strive to see that something is done. Bill Gates has used billions of dollars of his money to fight malaria. There is no malaria in America but it kills millions of children in Africa every year.

>

> Christianity is the fastest growing industry in the southern part of the country. The pastors are growing fat while the congregation are burdened by the harsh economic conditions. All the rogues in government are elders in one church or the other. The churches are like second homes to looters of the treasury. They are chairmen or chairpersons of one church building committee or the other. The pastors are always saying special prayers for them and have no scruples about taking their stolen money.

>

> The churches now buy private jets for their chief executive officers (oh sorry, pastor) and are shameless enough to claim that it is for evangelism. Meanwhile, half the congregation of those churches live on less than $1,000 in a year while most of the youth are jobless. Yes, the pastors are not the ones to provide jobs; but how many times have they criticised the government for not creating those jobs? How many times have they told them that they cannot continue to loot the treasuries and then come around to the house of God to make some bogus claims of God's blessings in their lives?

>

> During the last American election, religious leaders were very vocal in their criticism of one government policy or the other. They do not keep quiet and say it is God's will. Barack Obama's pastor, Reverend Wright, was so vocal about his criticism of America's racial divide that he became a big threat to his election prospect. That is the job of a pastor- saying the truth as it is, and not only collecting tithes and junketing about in private jets in the name of evangelism.

>

> Pastor Tunde Bakare is the only pastor that I respect in Nigeria. He told Obasanjo to his face that he is evil. That is a real man of God. I worship with RCCG but not impressed that all manner of past and present rogue governors and ministers tend to associate with the overseer. They are always present at the Holy Ghost nights. They have probably repented and God has forgiven them and they are free to enjoy the loot till they die. A thief is a thief. I don't care if God has forgiven them. What manner of forgiveness is that anyway? How about the thousands that died on the roads that he refused to tar? How about the thousands of kids that died because there was no free Medicare?

>

> The Yorubas of South-West are the most pathetic. They are quick to boast of their education and sophistication. Meanwhile, Adedibu and Obasanjo were the best they could come up with as national leaders. The former was the head of street urchins while the latter has a reputation for sleeping with his children's wives.

>

> I am actually fed up discussing and writing articles about our thieving leaders. They will never change anyway, at least not through our lengthy articles or criticism. If you believed that Ya' Ardua and his PDP cohorts will not rig 2011 election, then you are even more stupid than an average Nigerian. Your own stupidity is extra-terrestrial. If you believed that the electoral reform would lead anywhere, I despise your sense of reasoning. If anyone believes that Nigeria will wobble and fumble (a la Fanny Amun!) into greatness, then I leave you alone to perish as a nonentity who only came to this world to look at Eko Bridge. (Or London bridge)

>

> The Igbos and the Ijaws are probably the ones that have been most rebellious, the least religious and hence the least stupid. Maybe that is where the hopes of Nigeria lie. They would never accept that something is the will of God simply because somebody said so. They are difficult to subjugate and that is one of the reasons there was a civil war in the first place. Ojukwu remains a true hero. Why would some group of murderers continue to kill your people over some flimsy excuses? If I was an Igbo, I would be a low-life not to fight under those circumstances. He fought for what he believed in and the Igbo people followed him because they are not stupid like my people, the Yorubas. Although they lost the war and millions of lives were lost, but I know that they live to fight another day as long as some people continue to deter the progress of others.

>

> The Ijaws have taken over the struggle and though there have been some criminality in the struggle, that is not unexpected, but by and large they have shown that people's destiny is in their own hands and God's will has nothing to do with it.

>

> Yar'Adua and the looters of the treasury, both at the federal and state level, have started to panic as MEND cripples the oil industry. MEND, a ragtag bunch of militias have exposed the weakness of the Nigerian government. They quickly and with lightening speed offered them amnesty. They knew if there is no more oil, there wouldn't be any Nigeria. They planned to kill twenty million Ijaws to satisfy the lust and cravings of those vampires in Abuja.

>

> Nigeria cannot continue to be the butt of jokes in the world. We cannot continue to believe that everything is the will of God. It is not God's will to lack the basic things of life, and certainly not his will that our children should still be dying from malaria because there are no good hospitals. Untimely death from accident on death traps called road is not the will of God. All these things are the creations of the rogues amongst us and we have aided and abetted their actions because we have kept silent and didn't act. Our lack of action is construed as acceptability; we are therefore very stupid collectively.

>

>

> Manny Otiko

>

> PR Specialist

> Founder

> Soccer Universe

> <http://socceruniverse.ning.com/>

>

> Click here <http://tinyurl.com/oo3j8q> to choose a laptop, write a review for us and you get to keep the laptop!

>

> Submit your email to get it. Details Inside!

>

| 29281|2009-07-01 20:38:20|nathaniel x vance|Petition RELEASE GAZA AID SHIP SPIRIT and Cynthia McKinney!|

Posted by: "Peoples' Movement" ricoism@gmail.com sunstarrico
Tue Jun30,2009 8:18pm (PDT)

I have just sent messages to President Obama, Vice President Biden, Secretary of State Clinton, Congressional leaders, the U.N. Secretary General, Security Council and member states, the Israeli President, Prime Minister and Cabinet, the International Red Cross and members of the world media saying RELEASE GAZA AID SHIP SPIRIT OF HUMANITY AND END SIEGE OF GAZA NOW!

Please take the time to do the same by clicking on the link at the bottom of this email message.

Thanks!

<<http://www.iacenter.org/palestine/gazashippetition>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29282|2009-07-02 04:27:27|Tafari khumbaka|(no subject)|
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=m129fV\_h9pk&eurl=http%3A%2F%2Fwww%2Eyoutube%2Ecom%2Fuser%2FLeMelon21&feature=player\_profilepage cell regeneration, click above

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29283|2009-07-02 07:51:46|Tafari khumbaka|is the congo the worst place on earth?|
over 130 homes torched in congo village.....
<http://news.iafrica.com/worldnews/1775540.htm>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29284|2009-07-02 13:18:34|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden|
Great paper,,,, G.Greenberg is an excellent researcher his book hebrew mythe is good stuff!!, .. only if i remember correctly he does not give any credit to gerald massey or Dr.Ben .
He has/had a very high ranking in jewish historical and archaelogical studies so ,, i really admire is stand for truth.

If (i=my person) i may i would like to say that since such a prominent jewish scholar is laying out truth.....A great truth that is the(from ancient times) the mystical/mystery system of jewish/hebrew studies is Kabala/Quabala/Cabaland they teach the whole of kabala is in the book of Genesis,..... an that the crown prince of ancient Egypt their moes wrote the secret doctrine of kabala in asecret language of mythe and numerology in the book genesis.

and that Kabala the teachings of Admon Cadmon is from the temple teachings of ancient Egypt and truly tell the accurate formation and creation ofthe world and man/woman.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/30/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Tuesday, June 30, 2009, 8:41 PM

What do you think?

*****

<http://ggreenberg.tripod.com/ancientne/gener.html>

The Generations of the Heavens and of the Earth: Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden

Presented at the annual meeting of the American Research Center in Egypt, S Louis 1996

ABSTRACT

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens . . . Gen. 2:4

The above quote from Gen. 2:4 introduces us to the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Many biblical scholars believe that the next few verses contain a slightly different version of Creation than that contained earlier in Gen. 1. What is especially unusual is the reference to the generations of the heavens and the earth. In the several other instances when Genesis says These are the generations of . . . , it refers to information about a parent and their children. This would imply that Genesis 2 is about the Children of the Heavens and Earth, a polytheistic throwback to an earlier cosmogony. But whose cosmogony?

This paper examines some of the verses and images associated with the story of Adam and Eve and compares them with elements in the Heliopolitan Creation myths. It will be suggested that Adam and Eve correspond in part to Geb and Nut and in part to Osiris and Isis. Additionally, it will be suggested that the three male sons of Adam and Eve Cain, Abel and Seth correspond to the three male sons of Geb and Nut Osiris, Seth, and Horus.

Although the main thrust of the paper will be on the Adam and Eve story, the paper will also look at the first Genesis Creation account as well as the story of Noahs Flood, originally, perhaps, a third Creation story, and suggest that the series of Creation stories in Genesis draws upon the Theban doctrine of Creation in which Amen appears in a series of forms representing the Memphite, Heliopolitan and Hermopolitan cosmogonies.

The paper will examine such common themes as the stirring of the primeval waters, creation by word, the separation of heaven and earth, the rising of a firmament between the heaven and earth, problems of childbirth as a punishment for disobeying God, the bruising of the serpent from the tree, the enmity between the child and the serpent, the killing of a brother as an agricultural myth, the introduction of civilization, the building of the first city, and the relationship between the husband/brother and wife/sister with the serpent.

---

This paper attempts to introduce the idea that the biblical Creation stories, from the dawn of Creation through Noahs Flood, derive from Egyptian cosmogony, more specifically, the Theban doctrine of Creation. Thebes came late to the political scene in Egypt and its view of Creation attempted to incorporate the ideas of Memphis, Heliopolis and Hermopolis into a new cosmology that subordinated the chief deities of those cults to Amen, chief deity of Thebes.

The Theban doctrine holds that in the beginning there was the great primeval flood known as Nu or the Nun. The god Amen then appeared in a series of forms, first as an Ogdoad, then as Tatenen (a Memphite name for Ptah identified with the primeval hill), then as Atum, who created the first gods, then as Re. After this he created humanity, organized the Ennead, appointed the four male members of the Hermopolitan Ogdoad as his divine fathers and priests, and appointed Shu as their leader. Another Theban tradition holds that Osiris built the first city at Thebes.

To equate all these ideas with the biblical Creation stories would be a massive undertaking, far beyond the scope of this short paper. Therefore I will deal only with a small piece of this very large subject. In this paper I will just compare some elements of the Heliopolitan cycle with the biblical account of Adam and Eve and the second day of Creation.

My point of departure is Genesis 2:4-5, which serves as a preamble to the story of Adam and Eve. Coming immediately after the account of the seven days of Creation, the text reads as follows.

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

The phrase generations of appears eleven times in the Book of Genesis, but in the other ten instances it refers to stories about members of a family, such as in the generations of Noah or the generations of Jacob. This indicates that the noun or nouns following after the words generations of refer to a parent or parents. Genesis 2:4, therefore, implies that the heavens and the earth are anthropomorphic beings with children, and that what follows is about the family of these two entities.

This formulation clearly implies a pagan throwback to the idea of Heaven and Earth as deities, but biblical scholars, determined to preserve the monotheistic view of biblical history, are reluctant to accept such an interpretation. Instead, they wrench the phrase out of context and assert that it simply means things that are to follow or the history of.

A second major difficulty with Gen. 2:4-5 is the time frame in question. The passage indicates that the stories we are about to read take place in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens, and before the appearance of plant life. When is that day?

Biblical scholars tell us that the preamble refers to stories that take place after the seven days of Creation. But reading the passage literally and in context, it quite explicitly states that the stories we are about to read occurred on the day that God made the earth and the heavens and before the appearance of plant life. That time frame is clearly defined in the account of the seven days of Creation.

On the second day of Creation, a firmament arises out of the primeval waters and separates the waters above from the waters below. The biblical text says that the firmament came to be called heaven. On the third day of Creation, the waters below gathered in one place to create the dry land, which was then called earth, after which, plant life appeared. So the preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the upcoming stories in the period between the division of the waters and the appearance of plant life, in the middle of the third day of creation.

Biblical scholars, however, note an interesting problem with this division between the second and third day. The second day is the only day in the sequence that isn't blessed by God. Instead, the third day receives two blessings, one after dry land or Earth appears, and one after the arrival of plant life. As many of these scholars have recognized, the gathering of the waters to create dry land continues the second day's process of rearranging and dividing the primeval waters. For this reason, they argue that the second day's blessing is held off to the middle of the third day because that is when the task of rearranging the primeval waters is finished. I would propose instead that the biblical redactor simply made an editing error, and the first half of Day Three actually belongs with Day Two and the associated blessing belongs at the end of Day Two. This would be consistent with the text of Genesis 2:4, which says that heaven and earth were created on the same day.

To summarize briefly, so far: On the second day of Creation, God placed a firmament in the primeval waters, separating the waters above from the waters below. The firmament was called Heaven. Then He gathered the waters below into a single place and created dry land. The dry land was called Earth. The preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the starting point for the biblical stories on the second day of Creation, before the appearance of plant life on Day Three.

The arrangement of events on Day Two seems to closely parallel the Heliopolitan Creation myth. A great hill arose out of the primeval flood. This hill would obviously constitute a form of firmament. In some traditions that hill was Atum, the Heliopolitan Creator deity. In other traditions, Atum appeared at the top of the hill.

Atum, through act of masturbatory sex, brought forth two deities, Shu and Tefnut, representing air and moisture. These two deities gave birth to the male deity Geb, who represented the earth, and the female deity Nut, who represented the heavens.

Several Egyptian pictures portray Shu as lifting Nut into the air and separating her from Geb. Sequentially, then, Atum appears as a firmament in the middle of the Nun and creates Shu who ultimately separates heaven and earth and symbolizes the space in between. Shu, therefore, becomes the firmament between Heaven and Earth.

Consider now how Genesis says the waters were divided. First, the waters above were divided from the waters below. Next, the waters below were gathered into a single place. The waters above is an Egyptian concept signifying the sky. We see it most clearly in images of the solar bark sailing through the heavens. Although Genesis says the firmament was called Heaven, I believe this was a late gloss by the biblical redactors. The firmament stands below the waters above. It is the waters above that would correspond to heaven. The firmament would be the space in between heaven and earth, corresponding first to the primeval mountain and then to Shu.

This brings us to the question of where in all the middle east would any people have such a concept as all the waters gathering in a single place, leaving fertile land behind in its retreat. The most logical location is the Nile River in Egypt. The gathering of the waters in one place is the primary Egyptian agricultural phenomenon. It derives from the annual overflowing of the Nile, which fertilizes the land and then withdraws, leaving the dry land in its place. For Egyptians, the Nile was the one and only great water way. Even the Mediterranean Sea attaches to the Nile.

Elsewhere, throughout Canaan and Mesopotamia, there were numerous large unconnected bodies of waters that were well known to the inhabitants of those lands. They include the Mediterranean Sea, Persian Gulf, Reed Sea, Dead Sea, The Jordan River, the Tigris and The Euphrates. It is unlikely that the people of those lands would think of all these waters as gathering in a single place.

Returning to Genesis 2:4-5, we are told that when dry land was formed, no plant life existed because no man existed to till the ground. The next Genesis verses in sequence tell us: a mist rose up to water the dry land, God created the Adam out of the dust, (note that the bible says the Adam, not Adam), then he planted a Garden and put the Adam in it. Observe here 1) Adam appears before the plant life on Day Three and 2) that woman has not yet appeared. This is contrary to the sequence in the seven days of Creation, which places man and woman on the sixth day. Eve, or the woman, which is how she is described until after the expulsion from the Garden of Eden, appears later in the sequence, after plants and after other animal life.

This arrangement strongly suggests that the man and woman created on Day Six were other than Adam and Eve, who appear earlier. The confusion arises from the fact that Adam and Eve originally represented Heliopolitan deities, the most important of whom was named Atum, a name virtually identical in pronunciation to the Semitic word Adam, which was used to describe the human male. The later biblical redactors, unable to conceive of Adam and Eve as deities, thought of them instead as the first humans, and equated them with the man and woman created on Day Six, who actually are the first humans in the Genesis Creation story.

Chronologically and contextually, we see that Genesis introduces Adam and Eve as the anthropomorphic beings referred to in Genesis 2:4 as heaven and earth, and since Adam is created out of the dust of the earth, we can equate him with the Egyptian deity Geb or Earth and we can equate Eve with the Egyptian deity Nut or heaven.

Eve enters the story, however, only after she is physically ripped from the body of Adam. This separation of Adam (the earth) from Eve (the Heaven) closely parallels the Egyptian account in which Shu physically pulls Heaven from the Earth. It also incorporates the Heliopolitan idea that a male and female deity were created from a single male deity.

There are some other interesting parallels between Geb and Nut and Adam and Eve. According to Plutarch's account of the Osiris myth, Re, the chief deity, ordered Geb and Nut not to couple. They disobeyed his injunction and were punished. Re ordered Shu to separate the two bodies and declared that Nut would not be able to give birth on any day of the year. Thoth, sympathetic to Nut's plight, won some light from the Moon and created five new days. Since these days were not yet part of the year, Nut could give birth on these five days. She had five children, one on each day, born in the following order: Osiris, Horus, Set, Isis and Nephthys, the three males first and then two females. The Egyptians memorialized this sequence in their calendar, which names the last five days of the year after these five deities in the order of their births. Because of the role of Geb and Nut in birthing these deities, they were often known as the father and mother of the gods.

Observe the sequence of events: The chief deity gives a direct command to Heaven and Earth. They violate the order and as a penalty the chief deity makes child birth a difficult act for the female. Subsequently she gives birth to three sons. As we know from other Egyptian myths, one of those three sons, Set, kills one of the other sons, Osiris.

Genesis has a similar plot. God gives Adam and Eve (or Earth and Heaven) a direct order. They disobey that order and one of the punishments inflicted includes difficulties with child birth. Subsequently, Eve gives birth to three named sons, Cain, Abel, and Seth, one of whom kills one of the other brothers. Also, Eve is identified in the bible as the mother of all living, an identification similar to Nut's designation as mother of the gods. So, as with Nut, Eve disobeys God, is punished with difficulty in childbirth, has three male sons, one of whom kills one of the others, and she is thought of as the first mother.

Interestingly, the Hebrew name Seth and the Egyptian name Set are philologically identical and both children are born third in sequence. However, as some will note, in the biblical sequence it is not Seth who kills his brother. Instead, Cain does the killing. Cain, as the oldest brother, should correspond to Osiris and his killing of another brother is inconsistent with the Egyptian story. Why that occurs is too complex an issue to be resolved in this paper and we will let it pass. However, a little further below, we will see that Cain and Osiris share some other characteristics.

Although Adam and Eve start out as Geb and Nut they also share some aspects of Osiris and Isis. In this regard, we should observe that the Egyptians recognized a deity known as Geb-Osiris who was thought to have created the cosmic egg in Hermopolitan creation myths. Therefore, a merging of Geb and Osiris into a single character involved with Creation does not undermine the theme of this paper. However, I should observe that I believe the biblical character of Adam initially corresponds to the Egyptian god Atum and that Genesis incorporates within Adam all the members of the Ennead. This is consistent with the Egyptian view of Atum, who was also thought of as including within himself all the members of the Ennead.

The connection between Adam and Eve and Osiris and Isis is most apparent in the story of the serpent and the forbidden fruit. Osiris, as ruler of the afterlife, had to make two decisions with regards to the people who appeared before him. First he had to decide if the person lived a moral life; then he had to determine whether to grant that individual eternal life.

In Genesis, we learn that the Garden of Eden had two special trees. The fruit of one gave knowledge of good and evil; the fruit of the other gave eternal life. Thus, the ability of Adam to have control over the fruit of these tree would give him the same status as Osiris, but the biblical theology can not allow an Osiris to exist, so access to those fruits was forbidden by the one true deity. The nature of this conflict is even noted in the bible when God says to one of his angels, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

I suppose almost everyone who reads the story of Adam and Eve has at one time or another questioned why it was such a terrible thing for these two people to learn about the difference between good and evil. I suggest that to ask this question is to misunderstand what the story was really about. The story was not about good and evil. It was about the need to diminish the role of Osiris as a cult figure.

As a consequence of Adam and Eve eating the fruit, God administered some punishments. We have already mentioned the problem of childbirth. In addition, Adam lost his kingdom and was banished from the Garden. He journeyed to a new land where he became a farmer who had to suffer hard labor in order to produce food. As to the serpent who tricked Adam into losing his kingdom, God declared that there should be enmity between the woman and the serpent and between her seed and his seed. Furthermore, the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent and the serpent shall bruise the heel of the womans seed.

Again, these themes seem to be drawn from the Osiris cycle. In the Osiris myth, especially as related by Plutarch, Osiris and Isis ruled in a golden age. Osiris traveled far and wide teaching the people what he knew and Isis ruled in his absence. But the god Set, whom the Egyptians frequently identified with the serpent Apep, enemy of Re, conspired to take the throne for himself. Through trickery, he trapped Osiris in a chest, killed him, and hid the box away. Subsequently, Set hacked the body into pieces and buried them around the land of Egypt. Isis, fearing for the safety of Horus, her child, hid him away from Set. Still, Set managed to sneak up on Horus, and in the form of a serpent bit at his heel. But for the intervention of the gods, Horus would have died. When Horus grew up he avenged his fathers murder and defeated Set in battle.

In Genesis, the Osiris role is shared between Adam and Cain. For comparisons, we begin with the observation that the key scene in the Garden of Eden involves a serpent in a tree trying to kill Adam by tricking him into eating the forbidden fruit. The trick worked. Where Adam was essentially a fertile agricultural deity in the Garden of Eden, he has now been figuratively killed in that he now lives as a mortal and he must sweat out agricultural growth. He no longer rules as king in a golden age.

Indeed, the bible implicitly recognizes that the serpent killed Adam. The text explicitly says that if Adam ate from the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil he would surely die. Since the serpent tricked Adam into committing this life extinguishing act, he has, like Set, killed the king. That Adam didn't actually die in accord with the warning is no doubt due to the confusion of identities in later times between Adam and Eve and the first man and woman created on Day Six.

As to the serpent who tricked Adam, just as Set tricked Osiris, he and Eve became enemies, just as Set and Isis became enemies. Also, just as Set bit the heel of Horus, Genesis said that the serpent would bruise the heel of Eves children. And just as Horus avenged Set by beating him in battle, Genesis says that the seed of Eve will bruise the head of the serpent.

With regard to this last matter, let me call your attention to a well-known Egyptian scene generally identified as The Great Cat of Heliopolis. It shows a cat with a stick bruising the head of a serpent who is sitting in a tree. Egyptologists usually identify the Cat as Re and the serpent as Apep his enemy. Iconographically, while the Great Cat scene no doubt derives from the conflict between Re and Apep, the image portrayed seems remarkably consistent with the biblical story of Adam and Eve. I suspect that if we replaced the Cat with a more human image of one of the sun Gods, Re, Atum, or Horus, and left out the identifying words, many persons unfamiliar with the origin of the picture might consider it an illustration for the story of Adam and Eve.

As noted above Cain as the oldest of Eves three children should correspond to Osiris, and many such correspondences exist. To begin with, like Osiris, Cain is an agricultural figure associated with fruit farming. Osiris wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. Cain also wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. In fact, Cains name is Semitic for smith, a craft figure, and Cains descendants, according to Genesis, are the founders of all the creative arts and sciences.

In Theban tradition, Osiris built Thebes, which was the first city. According to Genesis, Cain also built the first city. He built it in a land called Nod. Curiously, the bible refers to the city of Thebes by the name No, a rather close philological fit with Nod.

Finally, although we noted the anomaly of having Cain, the Osiris character, kill his brother instead of having the brother corresponding to Set do the killing, we do note that in both the Egyptian and biblical stories, we appear to have the story of the first murder and in each instance the killer buries the body and hides it from view, in the hope that no one will discover it.

Summary

In conclusion, I note that the bible places Israels formative years as a cultural entity in Egypt, and its leading figures, Joseph and Moses, were educated in Egypts traditions. What they new about the origins of the world they learned in Egypt, and what they wrote about those origins should surely have had an Egyptian influence.

Yet, while scholars are willing to admit all sorts of Semitic pagan influences on early Hebrew historical beliefs, they treat the idea of Egyptian influence as far too profane for intense examination. I hope in this paper I have been able to at least raise some interest in more closely examining the idea that Egyptian ideas greatly influenced the writing of early biblical history.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29285|2009-07-03 04:52:26|Shri Sa Hetep|Will the US Rescue Cynthia McKinney from Israeli Piracy?|

Israel's Act Of Piracy

By Paul Craig Roberts

02 July, 2009

Vdare.com

On June 30, the government of Israel committed an act of piracy when the Israeli Navy in international waters illegally boarded the "Spirit of Humanity," kidnapped its 21-person crew from 11 countries, including former US Congresswoman Cynthia McKinney and Nobel Laureate Mairead McGuire, and confiscated the cargo of medical supplies, olive trees, reconstruction materials, and childrens toys that were on the way to the Mediterranean coast of Gaza. The "Spirit of Humanity," along with the kidnapped 21 persons is being towed to Israel as I write.

Gaza has been described as the "world's largest concentration camp." It is home to 1.5 million Palestinians who were driven by force of American-supplied Israeli arms out of their homes, off their farms, and out of their villages so that Israel could steal their land and make the Palestinian land available to Israeli settlers.

What we have been witnessing for 60 years is a replay in modern times, despite the United Nations and laws strictly preventing Israel's theft of Palestine, of the 17th, 18th, and 19th century theft of American Indian lands by US settlers. An Israeli government spokesman recently rebuked the President of the United States, a country, the Israeli said, who stole all of its land from Indians, for complaining about Israel's theft of Palestine.

I knew the "Spirit of Humanity" would fall to Israeli piracy the minute I received on June 25 from an official of an Israeli peace organization a "public advisory" that the government of Cyprus had withheld permission for the "Spirit of Humanity" to leave for Gaza. The US State Department had advised that "The Israeli Foreign Ministry informed U.S. officials at the American Embassy in Tel Aviv that Israel still considers Gaza an area of conflict and that any boats attempting to sail to Gaza will not be permitted to reach its destination." The "Spirit of Humanity" obtained permission to leave Cyprus when all aboard signed a waiver absolving Cyprus of all responsibility for the crew's safety at the hands of the Israelis.

As President Obama has called for humanitarian aid to be sent to Gaza, and as the International Red Cross has damned the inhumanity of Israel's blockade of Gaza, the question that immediately comes to mind is why did not the United States send sufficient US Navy escort to see the "Spirit of Humanity" safely through international waters to Gaza? We send ships against Somali pirates, why not against Israeli ones?

We all know the answer. The US talks a good "human rights" game, but never delivers--especially if the human rights abuser is Israel. After all, Israel owns the US Congress and President Obama. Israel even has an Israeli citizen and former member of the Israeli Defense Forces as the Chief-of-Staff in Obama's White House. Israel owns millions of American "Christian Zionists" and "rapture evangelicals." When it comes to Israel, the American government is a puppet state. It does what it is told.

Macho Americans might stand tall, but not when Israel snaps its fingers.

Israel, of course, will get away with a mere act of piracy. After all, Israel has been getting away with its war crimes and violations of international law for 60 years. If the UN tries to do anything, the US will veto it, as the US has done for decades.

What will happen to the kidnapped foreign nationals? Most likely they will be released and sent back to their respective countries. Israel, of course, will keep the stolen "Spirit of Humanity" to foreclose any further attempts by human rights activists to run Israel's inhumane blockade of Gaza.

On the other hand, Israel might declare its captives to be terrorists on the ground that the Gazans elected in a free election Hamas as their government. Hamas, unlike Israel, is declared to be a terrorist organization by the puppet American State Department in Washington. Thus the human rights activists onboard the "Spirit of Humanity" are aiding and abetting terrorists by delivering goods to them. The US Department of Justice (sic) prosecutes American citizens and charities for sending aid to Palestinians on the grounds that Palestinians, if not everyone a terrorist, are governed by terrorists.

I wouldn't be surprised if a Nobel Laureate and a former member of the US House of Representatives, along with the rest of the crew, are handed over to the Americans for indefinite detention and for torturing and waterboarding in the American torture facility at Bagram. I am certain that "Homeland Security" and the US Government are desperate to be rid of all of critics, and knocking off a Nobel Laureate and a member of the House sets a precedent for getting rid of the rest of us.

Meanwhile, California, which has become a failed state, has been denied bailout money from Washington. Israel, which has been a failed state for 60 years, can, unlike the American state of California, always count on Washington to deliver the money and the weapons to keep Israel going.

The same week that "our" government in Washington told the Governor of California "not one red cent," President Barak Obama handed over $2.775 billion to Israel.

Online Journal (June 29) reported that the handover to Israel of the unemployed Americans tax dollars took place in a "tiny Capitol room" to which members of the press were denied access. I mean, really, who wants the media writing about US taxpayer dollars for Israel's nuclear weapons while Americans are being kicked out of their homes. Not that, of course, the "Christian" supporters of Israel would mind.

Unlike every other recipient of US military largesse, Israel is permitted to bypass the Pentagon and to deal directly with US suppliers. Consequently, the Israel Lobby's influence multiplies, because military suppliers fight for Israel in congressional committees in order to get Israel's business. This lets Israel turn the screws on Iran. According to Grant F. Smith writing in Online Journal, Republican US Representative Mark Steven from Illinois has received $221,000 in campaign contributions from Israel political action committees (PACs). Therefore, it was a sure thing that he would introduce legislation preventing the Import-Export bank from providing loan guarantees to countries doing business with Iran.

Americans think that they are a superpower, but in fact they are a stupor-power. A puppet state if truth be known.

There is a great deal of evidence, even in Time magazine that Israel is a child abuser. "God's Chosen People" routinely abuses captured Palestinian children. The Israelis also abuse Palestinian children by shooting them down in the streets.

Don't take my word for it. The Geneva-based Defense for Children International says, according to Time Magazine, that "the ill-treatment and torture of Palestinian child prisoners appears to be widespread, systematic and institutionalized, suggesting complicity at all levels of the political and military chain of command."

According to Time Magazine, "Often, children suffer lasting traumas from jail. Says Saleh Nazzal from the Palestinian Ministry of Prisoner Affairs, When soldiers burst into a house and drag away a child, he loses his feeling of being protected by his family. He comes back from prison alienated from his family, his friends. They don't like going back to school or even leaving the house. They start wetting their beds. Says Mona Zaghrou, a YMCA counselor who helps kids returning from prison: They come out of prison thinking and acting like they are men. Their childhood is gone. And they often turn to another father figure--the armed militant groups fighting the Israeli occupation."

And so it goes. There's no money for California, or for Americans health care, or for the several million Americans who have lost their homes and are homeless, because Israel needs it. Israel needs the Americans taxpayers money so that it can create even more enemies, and, therefore, need more American money to spend with the American armament industries to oppress more Palestinians and to make more enemies, requiring more American money to protect Israel from its folly and its evil.

And the brainwashed American public goes along year after year.

Paul Craig Roberts was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury during President Reagan's first term. He was Associate Editor of the Wall Street Journal.

| 29286|2009-07-03 07:40:52|Alex van Deelen|{Spam?} Re:is the congo the worst place on earth?|

" is the congo the worst place on earth? "

Is there a competition going?

If you want to know more about the DRC,
follow the money, and read:

<http://dissidentvoice.org/2008/02/gertlers-bling-bang-torah-gang/>

Gertler's Bling Bang Torah Gang

Israel and the Ongoing Holocaust in Congo (Part 1)

by Keith Harmon Snow / February 9th, 2008

Maurice Tempelsman is one of the top funders of the Democratic Party who has funded Barack Obama and Hillary Clinton. Tempelsman was the unofficial ambassador to the Congo (Zaire) for years, but a new Israeli-American tycoon has replaced him. In the world of bling bling and bling bang, some things change, some stay the same. The CIA, the MOSSAD, the big mining companies, the offshore accounts and weapons deals--all hidden by the Western media. The holocaust in Central Africa has claimed some six to ten million people in Congo since 1996, with 1500 people dying daily.<sup>1</sup> But while the Africans are the victims of perpetual Holocaust, the persecutors hide behind history, complaining that they are the persecuted, or pretending they are the saviors. Who is responsible?

For Israeli-American Dan Gertler, business in blood drenched Congo is not merely business, it is a quest for the Holy Grail. Young Dan Gertler goes nowhere-does nothing-without the spiritual guidance of Brooklyn-born Rabbi Chaim Yaakov Leibovitch, a personal friend of Condoleeza Rice.<sup>2</sup> Gertler and Leibovitch are two of the principals behind a diamond mining company, Emaxon Finance Corporation, involved in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). Gertler and gang won the majority rights to the diamonds from the state mining company, Soci  Mini  de Bakwange, MIBA, found near the government-controlled town of Mbuji-Mayi, the rough diamond capital of the world.

Emaxon Finance Corp. has apparently out-manuevered diamond competitors, especially the big rivals Energem and De Beers. Energem is one of the many shady mining companies connected to Anthony Teixeira, a Portuguese born businessman now residing in South Africa whose daughter married Congolese warlord Jean-Pierre Bemba. The warlord's deadly battle in Congo in March 2007 was a bid between rival agents-Jean-Pierre Bemba and Joseph Kabila-to be the black gatekeeper for the mining cartels run by dynastic families like Templeman, Oppenheimer, Mendell, Forrest, Blattner, Hertzov, Gertler and Steinmetz, and for companies like NIKANOR, whose stock prices rose early in July 2006 in expectation of a July 30th "win" for Joseph Kabila.<sup>3</sup> Africa Confidential called President Kabila's 2003 visit to the Bush White House a "coup" for the Israeli diamond magnates Dan Gertler and Beny Steinmetz.

Canadian-based Energem, formerly DiamondWorks, is owned by British mercenary Tony Buckingham and its director/shareholders include Mario and Tony Teixeira, J.P. Morgan, and Gertler's partner Israeli-American Beny Steinmetz (50%).<sup>4</sup> Through subsidiary Branch Energy, the Energem-DiamondWorks gang has perpetuated war in 11 African countries.<sup>5</sup> In December 2007, Energem re-launched itself on the London Stock Market with the newly laundered image of a renewable energy company. Regarding diamonds, it said only it "had decided to give up exploration rights in the Central African Republic."<sup>6</sup> The Energem spokesman explained that Tony Teixeira "had a clean bill of health" etc., etc. Of course, Energem "quit" the C.A.R. because Jean-Pierre Bemba marched his troops into C.A.R., where they raped and pillaged widely.<sup>7</sup> Energem is still operating in Congo, but Dan Gertler is the new, unofficial ambassador to the Congo for the George W. Bush gang.

Gertler and partners like Beny and Danny Steinmetz, Nir Livnat, Chaim Leibovitz and Yaakov Neeman run a hornet's nest of companies involved in African hotspots, including: Dan Gertler International (DGI), Steinmetz Global Resources, International Diamond Industries, NIKANOR and Global Enterprises Corporate.

"Dan Gertler is 'the new kid on the block,'" writes Yossi Melman in Israel's Haaretz news. "Bold, sophisticated, brutal, he is an adventurer with a short fuse." Haaretz confirmed that Dan Gertler owns a complex network of interconnected companies, often registered in offshore tax havens and involved in India, Russia, Belgium and the United States, and that Dan Gertler is looking to God for guidance.<sup>8</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT STEAL

"In the diamond industry," Melman wrote, "Gertler is considered something of an odd bird. He maintains few ties with the other merchants and is not very sociable. Alongside his business affairs, most of his energy is channeled into matters of faith. He is a donor to religious institutions and from time to time makes a pilgrimage to the rabbi he most admires, Rabbi David Abuhatzera, from Nahariya, in order to consult with him and receive his blessing. Gertler is surrounded mostly by religious people and laces his speech liberally with praise to God."<sup>8</sup>

In 2003, Condoleezza Rice, then Assistant to President Bush for National Security Affairs, introduced Dan Gertler and Chaim Leibovitch to U.S. official Jendayi Frazer, a Harvard Kennedy School affiliate and former National Security Council agent focused on Africa. On December 6, 2006, Frazer, then Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, was one of seven special Bush delegates sent to the inauguration of Congo's newly installed President Joseph Kabila in Kinshasa.<sup>9</sup>

When Dan Gertler and Chaim Leibovitch and their friends visit the luxury Gertler villa in Lumumbashi, the capital of Katanga, Congo's large southern province, their kosher meals arrive by private plane from Kinshasa. The special executive jet that flies their kosher meals a few hundred miles over the roadless Congo costs some $US 23,000 per trip.<sup>10</sup>

The average income for Congolese citizens each year-if they survive it-is about $95. Shootings at mining facilities and diamond mines are common, land is stolen from Congolese people, strikes are crushed by security forces that companies are partnered with, and black overseers of state terror routinely arrest and torture any vocal opposition-and sometimes disappear them-in support of white bosses. The Soci 鴉 Mini 航 de Bakwange-MIBA- and the diamond fields of Mbuji-Mayi in Congo have a long history of bloodshed backed by Western powers, including Israel, from the beginning.<sup>11</sup> Amnesty International points out that not a single state agent has ever been prosecuted for the extrajudicial executions of suspected "illegal" miners in Mbuji-Mayi.<sup>12</sup>

After a century of exploitation and slavery, we find MIBA consistently withholding payment of salaries to starving Congolese laborers and middle managers for months at a time. April and May 2007 saw strikes and protests leading to the Kabila government's arbitrary arrest, detention and torture of trade union organizers like Leon Ngoy Bululu; police have also shot protestors.<sup>13</sup> So-called 'illegal' diamond workers-disenfranchised local Congolese people forced into "criminal" activities to survive-were summarily executed on MIBA concessions in Mbuji-Mayi. MIBA security guards have also been sniping unemployed diamond miners.<sup>14</sup>

Meanwhile, Dan Gertler's kosher meals depart Kinshasa, the capital of the big Congo, through the arrangements of Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila, high priest of the Chabad of Central Africa. Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila has been a Kinshasa Rabbi since 1991, and he was a spiritual force who survived the terrorism of the old dinosaur, Mobutu Sese Seko, the way most elites did: by working with him. Rabbi Bentolila is a member of the Chabad Lubavitch Global Emissary Network, headquartered in Brooklyn, New York, and his wife Miriam is the sister of Rabbi Mena'hem Hadad, a high priest in Brussels.<sup>15</sup>

"Kosher does not mean that a Rabbi blesses the food," Rabbi Betolila corrected me, "but rather that the food was supervised by a Rabbinical Thora [sic] authority who sees that the ingredients were in accordance with the laws of Kashrut expressed in the Bible (Leviticus and Deuteronomy)."<sup>16</sup>

Dan Gertler often flies people into Congo, on his private jet, for sacred Jewish rituals. For the Bar Mitzvah of Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila's son Binyamin Avraham in June 2005, guests included eminent Rabbis, Hassidic singer Yoni Shlomo and special orchestra Yossef Brami, all arriving in "special flights" from Israel, New York and Brussels. The reception was held at the luxurious and exclusive Memling Hotel. Joseph Kabila sent a sizeable delegation but did not attend: his closest advisers provided a blessing on his behalf.<sup>17</sup>

The Gertler, Steinmetz and Templesman interests are advanced in part through the support of the Committee of the Jewish Community of Kinshasa-le Comit~~é~~<sup>é</sup> de la Communaut~~é~~<sup>é</sup> Isra~~é~~<sup>é</sup>l~~é~~<sup>é</sup>te-that is tightly coordinated with the power structure in Kinshasa to exert influence and assure control of Israeli-Belgian-Anglo-American interests over the geopolitical arena.

From June 26-30, 2007, the Communaute Israelite de Kinshasa received a visit from the Israeli Ambassador Yaakov Revah, director of the Africa Department of the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Revah also flew to Lumumbashi for meetings with Dan Gertler and his agents, including Moishe (Moses) Katumbi, the Governor of Katanga, and they most likely enjoyed a lovely, $23,000 kosher meal sent from the Chabad in Kinshasa.<sup>18</sup> The Communaute Israelite de Kinshasa maintains very intimate political relations with President Joseph Kabila's PPRD party, the People's Party for Reconstruction and Democracy. On March 1, 2006, in a formal ceremony, the President of the Communaute Israelite de Kinshasa, Ashlan Piha, was awarded the Congo's Medal of Civil Merit.

THOU SHALT NOT COVET

Before his assassination on January 16, 2001, Laurent Desire Kabila-the President of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC)-made a deal with the Gertler gang that would play out in favor of the current President Joseph Kabila and, it seems, be a central factor in relation to both Congo's ongoing war and the bloody warlord's battle in Kinshasa in March 2007.<sup>19</sup>

Back in 2000, former Congolese president Laurent Kabila offered a monopoly on Congolese diamonds, and 88% of the proceeds, to Gertler's International Diamond Industries (IDI) in exchange for Israeli military assistance to his new government.<sup>20</sup> Top Congolese military officials apparently flew to Israel in 2000 to negotiate the deal. Gertler pledged military assistance to President Laurent Kabila through top Israeli officials.<sup>21</sup>

The original Gertler-Kabila deal fell through after Laurent Kabila was assassinated for not cooperating with the Great White Fathers of industry (January 2001), but Gertler and Leibovitch and their disciples formed another company, Dan Gertler International, and advanced their Congo plan.<sup>22</sup> By 2002 Gertler's company was the leading exporter of Congolese gems, controlling a diamond mining franchise worth about $US 1 billion annually.<sup>23</sup>

In 2003, the mighty Congolese diamond parastatal Societe Miniere De Bakwanga (MIBA)-which has been forever controlled by the Great White Fathers in Belgium, Israel and America-signed an exclusive contract with Gertler's startup company, Emaxon Finance International. The deal involved Israeli's Foreign Defense Assistance and Defense Export Organization (SIBAT), and high-level Israeli defense and intelligence officials. Gertler and his buddies reportedly bribed Congolese officials and Angolan generals who, on and off, have commanded Angolan Army troops protecting Kinshasa, Congo's capital.<sup>21,24</sup>

Security for mining operations in Congo is provided by exclusive security companies like Overseas Security Services (OSS) one of the many DRC interests of Belgian billionaire tycoon Philippe de Moerlose. A member of the Kinshasa elite, de Moerlose supplies jets and other presidential toys to DRC President Kabila. In 2006, President Joseph Kabila's campaign helicopter was at the centre of a legal battle involving Philippe de Moerlose.<sup>25</sup> De Moerlose's companies operated in Mobutu's Zaire from at least 1991, backing state terrorism and Western corporate plunder that was rendered invisible by the Western media. De Moerlose is also an adviser to European Union (EU) Commissioner-and diamantaire-Louis Michel.

Dan Gertler and Philippe de Moerloose were, reportedly, the only two white men who attended the wedding of Joseph Kabila and the two clearly share interests in "security" provided by OSS at MIBA and elsewhere in Congo. The April 2003 secret agreement signed between the Gertler/Steinmetz company Emaxon Finance and the Kabila government involved MIBA and two de Moerloose companies, OSS-Congo and Demimpex, and other firms.

Overseas Security Services (OSS) operations are apparently grounded in the experience of top expatriate security operatives formerly involved with the biggest security firm in Mobutu's Zaire.<sup>26</sup> According to OSS public relations materials, "these persons have a not unimportant experience in the safety of this country."<sup>26</sup> Providing mine security, body-guard and protection services, OSS operates in Burundi, Ivory Coast, Rwanda, Dubai, South Africa, Republic of Congo (Brazzaville) and Belgium, placing them in cahoots with all sides warring and plundering eastern Congo today.<sup>27</sup>

Emaxon Finance International is a real gem, one of these octopuses of mining tangled up with interlocking companies and subsidiaries based in specious geographical offshore "tax havens" that work to shield from prosecution people who are responsible for money laundering, weapons and drugs operations, assassinations and other terrorism.

NIKANOR is registered as an Isle of Man (UK) company, an offshore tax haven that helps to conceal criminal activities and maximize profits. NIKANOR directors include Dan Kurtzer, former U.S. ambassador to Israel (2001-2005) and Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Intelligence and Research under Madeleine Albright. NIKANOR partners include Mende and Moshe Gertner [sic], Israeli property tycoons with vast holdings in London who control 22 percent of NIKANOR. Another partner is Israeli-born Nir Livnat, managing director of Johannesburg-based Ascot Diamonds, a member of the Steinmetz Group of Diamond Companies, and a principal involved in numerous U.S.-based businesses from Miami to New York.<sup>28</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT BEAR FALSE WITNESS

Back in 2001, when the Gertler enterprises surfaced in dirty diamond deals, public relations was handled by Lior Chorev, the "Special Strategic and Communications Consultant" to International Diamond Industries (IDI), and Chorev continued in this role to support Dan Gertler businesses.<sup>29</sup> Today, Lior Chorev is partnered with the brothers Yuval and Eyal Arad as director-owners of the Israeli marketing and public relations firm, ARAD Communications.<sup>30</sup>

"We do work for Mr. Gertler on some of his business issues," said Lior Chorev.<sup>31</sup> ARAD's many clients include Dan Gertler companies, Los Angeles-based Coral Diamonds and an Israeli aeronautics weaponry manufacturer producing Unmanned Aerospace Vehicles (UAVs)-robotic weapons and intelligence platforms like those being used against the people of Congo today.<sup>32</sup> As a political strategist, Lior Chorev has worked for Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and current Prime Minister Ehud Olmert.<sup>33</sup> He has also participated in Israel-NATO defense planning conferences.<sup>34</sup>

Dan Gertler is close to Israeli politicians, especially Avigdor Lieberman, head of the right-wing Yisrael Beiteinu party, and he is very close to diamondaire Beny Steinmetz, a good friend of Prime Minister Ehud Olmert. Gertler's inseparable friend, Chaim Leibovitz, is also very close to Lieberman, and was "a regular fixture" in Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's offices.<sup>35</sup>

Beny Steinmetz is considered to be one of the richest billionaires in Israel. The Steinmetz Group, controlled with his brother Daniel, is one of the biggest clients of the de Beers diamond syndicate. Steinmetz is also involved in an Israeli real estate group that purchased the assets of the British Haslemere real estate company for $1.46 billion. Steinmetz's real estate partners include the billionaire Israeli investors David and Simon Reuben, and the Saudi Arabian Olayan Group, an investment company that is deeply connected with Bechtel Corporation.<sup>36</sup> The Steinmetz web site map of operations hides their involvement in war-torn Congo.<sup>37</sup>

Seems Dan Gertler's land grabs and exclusion in Congo have a lot in common with the current crimes against humanity being committed by Israel through its illegal partition in the Middle East. On January 3, 2008, the Jerusalem Post reported that Lior Chorev was an integral part of past Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's advisers, and he was recently quoted to say that even though Sharon did not get to finalize Israel's final borders (he suffered a debilitating stroke in 2006), the route of the security fence-which he decided-would ultimately serve as the basis for the border and as Sharon's lasting legacy.<sup>38</sup>

"He felt he needed to set the border because he didn't trust the younger generations," Chorev was quoted to say. "He knew the fence route by heart and the reason for every stretch of land being on one side or the other."<sup>38</sup>

In 2003, the U.N. Panel of Experts on war in Congo revealed that Emaxon Finance International is controlled by Israeli diamond traders Chaim Leibovitz and Dan Gertler.<sup>39</sup> Emaxon lists as its address an office in Montreal, Canada, but Emaxon's majority shareholder is listed as FTS Worldwide, a nebulous global corporation whose business address is that of a firm of lawyers, Mossack Fonseca & Company, in Panama City. FTS Worldwide is registered with the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission to lawyer Andre Zolty of Geneva Switzerland. A copy of the MIBA-Emaxon contract was signed on 13 April 2003 by Israeli-Americans Yaakov Neeman and Chaim Leibovitz.<sup>40</sup>

Yaakov Neeman is a founding partner of Herzog, Fox and Neeman, Tel Aviv, one of Israel's top law firms, and he has held Israeli government cabinet and ministerial positions.<sup>41</sup> Neeman is on the Advisory Board of Markstone Capital Group, a very influential group of investment bankers, with Eli Hurvitz. On the board of Israel's Teva Pharmaceutical Industries with Eli Hurvitz is Northrup-Grumman director Philip Frost.<sup>42</sup> Both Philip Frost and Maurice Templesman are top-level councilors for the American Stock Exchange. Eli Hurvitz sat on the International Advisory Counsel of Harvard University's Belfer Center, 2002-2005, during the period when the Belfer Center and their intelligence operative Robert Rotberg formalized the "Kimberley Process" to officially whitewash blood diamonds.<sup>43</sup> Yakov Neeman is also a governor of the World Zionist Organization and Jewish Agency for Israel.

One of the main objectives of the Kimberley Process, and the Harvard Belfer Center's role, was to protect the South African Oppenheimer and De Beers diamond cartels and their leading buyers and agents like Maurice Templesman and Beny Steinmetz.<sup>44</sup> Added to those diamond industry firms whitewashed by the Kimberley Process are all the Zionist diamond dealers and cartels that have risen like a phoenix out of the ashes of the Holocaust.

The Israeli-American enterprises of the Gertler/Steinmetz gang have proliferated and today are major shareholders or owners of diamond concessions in Congo's Kasai province and copperbelt concessions in Katanga. The copperbelt is the big money in Congo. Copper prices recently hit an all time high due to monopoly control by corporations and new applications in transportation, aerospace and weaponry. Cobalt is used in dye and paint processes for manufacturing. More importantly, it is elemental to superalloys used for tank armor, spacecraft, turbines, ship hulls, ship hulls, blast furnaces, refineries, petroleum drilling rigs, nuclear reactors and nuclear weapons. Like coltan, or columbium-tantalite, cobalt is also used in cell phone batteries. The Katanga copperbelt is also rich in germanium, a rare metal used in optical fibers, infrared lenses and telecommunication satellites.<sup>45</sup>

The entire military-industrial-prisons complex revolves around minerals like cobalt, niobium and heterogenite (cobalt oxide), yet the truth about what happens to African people in lands taken over by these mining companies is hidden by the corporate media. More and more land is being stolen, more and more atrocities committed, with less and less transparency, and less and less accountability, and fewer and fewer voices for the voiceless. And, as usual, there are always a lot of empty promises.

THOUGH SHALT HAVE NO OTHER GODS

Over the past fifty years, elite Israeli nationals have perpetrated conflict and injustice in Africa, fueled by and for minerals. Operatives associated with the Israeli military or intelligence services-the Mossad-maintain strategic criminal syndicates in competition and in partnership with other syndicates involving men like Philippe De Moerloose, Louis Michel, Viscount Etienne Davignon, John Bredenkamp and Tony Buckingham.

Israeli trained shock troops became Mobutu's bodyguards, with Mossad advisers. According to a report by the American Jewish Committee: after 1980 "Mossad agents, military emissaries, and a small group of private businessmen. replaced diplomats as Israel's main interlocutors with African leaders and political (mainly opposition) groups." The report cites rising involvement of private defense and security interests, especially in Angola, DRC and Central Africa Republic, since 1992.<sup>46</sup>

Israeli operatives and "businessmen" appear everywhere there is egregious suffering and dispossession. Dan Gertler's forays into the bloody world of diamonds involve Israeli arms dealers Yair Klein, who is reportedly wanted by the U.S. for training Medellin drug-cartel militias in Colombia, and Dov Katz.<sup>47</sup> Klein was convicted by Israel (1991) for his involvement with groups that targeted and assassinated Colombian politicians, journalists, and police. Jailed in Sierra Leone in 1999, Klein was a field representative for Gertler in war-torn Sierra Leone and Liberia. Gertler also mingles with the Russian Military Brotherhood, a group of "retired Russian generals whom Gertler describes as good friends."<sup>48,49</sup>

Retired Israeli Defense Forces Colonel Yair Klein reportedly organized arms for diamonds networks in Sierra Leone and Liberia after President Charles Taylor was deposed. In 1999, Klein was arrested in Sierra Leone on charges of smuggling arms to the rebel Revolutionary United Front.<sup>50</sup> The U.N. also documented collaborations between Sierra Leone' rebels and Lazare Kaplan agent Damian Gagnon; Lazare Kaplan International is one of the organized crime syndicates of Jewish American Maurice Templesman.<sup>51</sup>

The Steinmetz Group of companies are also involved in the bloody diamond fields of Sierra Leone, along with Energem (formerly DiamondWorks), the company described above that is connected to the white mercenaries depicted in Hollywood's Blood Diamond propaganda film.<sup>52</sup> In December 2007, local people in Sierra Leone struggling to gain the smallest livelihood from their own resources were shot by police during peaceful protests against the Steinmetz-controlled Koidu Holdings site. It's the same old local people's story happening everywhere. These were people from communities driven off their own land by mining companies that promised the world, cajoled the trusting people, and gave nothing after. The Steinmetz gang called in the local paramilitary, a curfew was imposed and people were shot; the police, as usual, falsely claimed that protesters were armed.<sup>53</sup>

Like most mining mafias in Africa, the Israeli octopus-organized crime syndicates, offshore subsidiaries, interlocking directorships and affiliated mercenaries-has gripped the very heart of Congo like an octopus grips and stuns its prey. Mining regulates the pulse of Congo, and foreign mining companies with their black sell-out agents are sucking the blood out of the people and the wealth out of the land.

THOU SHALT NOT KILL

Beyond the intriguing Jewish rivalry for diamonds in the heart of darkness, this tale takes a chilling turn with the involvement of certain German firms and New York City lawyers. NIKANOR, another Gertler/Steinmetz company of dubious origins operating in DRC, has a subcontract with the notorious ThyssenKrupp conglomerate, a company comprised of two former Nazi weapons manufacturers linked to the New York law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, to Brown Brothers Harriman & Co., Lehman Brothers, Chase Manhattan Bank, J.P. Morgan, DuPont and IBM, in the great Nazi-American money plot.<sup>54</sup>

These companies were all behind the Jewish Holocaust. The infamous German Krupp firm is the industrial corporation that collaborated with former CIA director Allen Dulles and former U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Clients of the Dulles brothers' law firm Sullivan and Cromwell included Adolph Hitler.<sup>54</sup> Ted Terry, one of the senior counselors of the law firm Sullivan and Cromwell today, is also a director of a philanthropy called the Harold K. Hochschild (HKH) Foundation, named for the mining magnate behind AMAX, a company operating in the copperbelt in Zambia, but whose parent company, Phelps Dodge, operates in Katanga, Congo. Harold K. Hochschild was close to the CIA, and he appears to have backed the Katanga succession in the 1960's just as Dan Gertler in recent years backed the reorganization of power in Congo by force. Sullivan and Cromwell was also the law firm for AMAX. <sup>55,56</sup>

Brown Brothers Harriman & Company (BBH) was the primary Wall Street connection for German companies and the U.S. financial interests of Fritz Thyssen, an early financial backer of the Nazi party. BBH bought and shipped millions of dollars of gold, steel, fuel, coal, and U.S. treasury bonds to Germany. These were used to build Hitler's war machine, and the ties proliferated even after the Nazi concentration camps began churning out skeletons. The horrors of the concentration camps at Auschwitz, Birkenau and Buckenwald became public knowledge long before they became public outrage. It is the same story for Congo.

A PRAYER FOR THE DEAD

There are no records or statistics of the numbers of people brutalized or killed in the diamond or cobalt mining areas, like Kolwezi, Mbuji Mayi, Tshikapa, Banalia, or Kananga in DRC, or Ndola in Zambia, and many of the victims of security abuses will never be known.

When Gertler and Steinmetz and their buddies came to Congo it was soon clear that they had to challenge Zimbabwean tycoons John Bredenkamp and Billy Rautenbach-two cronies of dictator Robert Mugabe involved in pillaging Congo and Zimbabwe for decades. The United Nations Panel of Experts on DRC named both men for plundering copper and cobalt from Katanga, and both deal globally in weapons. Bredenkamp is one of the fifty richest men in England and he reportedly owns a mansion several doors down from Margaret Thatcher's residence in London.

On November 7, 2007 it was reported that Dan Gertler was instrumental in putting together a deal in which Katanga Mining Ltd. would buy rival NIKANOR for $2.1 billion and merge their adjacent mine projects in Congo to form the world's largest cobalt company. Also announced was a joint venture between the Central African Mining & Exploration Company (CAMEC) and another Gertler-controlled firm called Prairie International Limited.

The CAMEC/Prairie joint venture will exploit DRC's Luita copper processing facility, develop the Mukondo Mountain cobalt mine-called the world's richest cobalt mine-and work on "other" exploration properties. Prairie is majority owned by the family of Dan Gertler. CAMEC is connected to Zimbabwean/South African/British tycoon Billy Rautenbach.<sup>57</sup> The DRC government effectively banned controversial Zimbabwean businessman Billy Rautenbach from the country by declaring him persona non grata in July 2007, but this doesn't seem to stop him from getting what he wants. Rautenbach is also wanted in South Africa on 300 charges of fraud, corruption and theft.

Rautenbach is a former motor car rally driver who controls a business empire in Southern and Central Africa through a British Virgin Islands company called Ridgepoint Overseas Development Limited. In 1998, the short-lived President of Congo, Laurent Kabila, named Rautenbach the managing director of La Générale des Carrières et des Mines (Gécamines), one of Africa's biggest cobalt mines, the Katanga properties of the Union Minière de Haut Katanga formerly developed by the Belgian colonial government. Rautenbach today is one of the Africa's largest exporters of heterogenite (cobalt ore) from the DRC through his Congo Cobalt Company (CoCoCo), but he also has shares in two other lucrative DRC mining firms-Boss and Mukondo-which reportedly earn over US$100 million a month.<sup>58</sup>

While there has been a lot of Western media fanfare over the Kabila governments' supposed "independent" review of mining contracts, little substantive change can be expected.<sup>59</sup> Structural factors exploit the Congolese people and lands and benefit white businessmen, arms dealers, bankers, and their embraceable black agents. Big business benefits from perception management articles well-placed in media to give the impression that the international system is just, that there are watchdogs, checks and balances.

However, while the DRC and the World Bank present a propaganda front about their ostensible attention to mining reform and the new mining code, NIKANOR-Mining Journal reports-"is in the advantageous position of having entered into a post mining-code contract, 'which makes us [NIKANOR] relatively comfortable'"<sup>60</sup> In other words, the mining review is a sham, it may force some changes, but it will be cosmetic at best.

Dan Gertler and the Steinmetz Group's partner Jewish-American Nir Livnat is also a director of Anglovaal Mining with Rick and Brian Menell and Basil Hersov of the South African Menell and Hersov dynasties.<sup>61</sup> Hersov has been named as a beneficiary of fraud and racketeering involving British BAE Systems weapons deals with shady offshore companies.<sup>62</sup>

The octopus of South African connections is a story in itself, with links to top officials from Britain to Canada, like Canadian Senator J. Trevor Eyton, and offshore mining companies involved in all the big money (diamonds, gold, petroleum, cobalt) and big corporations with interlocking directorships: Coca Cola, Nestlé, General Motors, and the Bush-connected Barrick Gold Corporation. Barrick, of course, is partnered up with the Oppenheimer/De Beers firm Anglo-American Corporation at six sites in Africa, including Congo.

Rick Menell is a director of Bateman Engineering-owned by Benny Steinmetz-the junior partner of the NIKANOR projects in Katanga. Britain's Earl of Balfour is a director of both Bateman and NIKANOR. Menell is also the director of Teal Exploration and Mining, whose directors include Joaquim Chissano, former President of Mozambique; Murray Hitzman, a Clinton administration official with the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy (1994-1996); Hannes Meyer, who worked with Anglo-Gold Ashanti in Congo, 1999-2006, when militias in Ituri were funded to get the gold out. Teal Exploration also has ties to Anvil Mining and Anglo-American Corporation.<sup>63</sup>

Brian Menell, Nir Livnat's associate on the board of Anglovaal, is on the board of Energem (formerly DiamondWorks) with Tony and Mario Teixeira. The Livnat connection ties Teixeira into networks that have supported both Joseph Kabila and Jean-Pierre Bemba in Congo's bloody wars. Energem is also involved in the trans-Uganda-Kenya pipeline, along with Nexant, a subsidiary of the deep intelligence and defense insider Bechtel Corporation.<sup>64</sup>

Brian Menell is also on the board of First Africa Oil, which operates in seven African countries, and First Africa Oil director John Bentley is a director of Osprey Oil and Gas, whose directors include Carol Bell, a director of the Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank. Bentley is also on the board of Adastr Minerals-formerly America Mineral Fields (AMF, AMFI, AMX), a company based in 1995 in Hope, Arkansas-and set up by Robert Friedland and Max and Jean-Raymond Boulle, notable "friends of Bill" Clinton. Since 1995, American Mineral Fields has been involved in Brazil, Russia, Norway, Zambia, Angola and the DRC. A criminal backer of the war in DRC, Jean-Raymond Boulle, who holds 36.4 % of the company stock, was the former General Director of De Beers in Zaire, part of the Templesman alliance of terrorism under the Mobutu regime.<sup>65,66</sup>

The Gertler/Steinmetz interests apparently curry huge favors with Congo's number two most powerful man, Augustine Katumba Mwanke, one of Joseph Kabila's closest allies and financiers, former Governor of Katanga (1998-2001) and director of Australia's Anvil Mining. The UN Panel of Experts (2002) cited Mwanke for illegal arms deals and plunder of Congo: Mwanke negotiated arms purchases through Belgian banks and the DRC mining company MIBA.<sup>67</sup> Reportedly, Mwanke personally clears $US 1,000,000 a day through his interests in Katanga mining deals.<sup>68</sup>

Anvil Mining has been involved in massacres in DRC.<sup>69</sup> Anvil directors include former U.S. Ambassador Kenneth L. Brown, who served at U.S. embassies in Brussels, Kinshasa, Congo-Brazzaville and South Africa. Brown was Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Africa (1987-1989) under George Schultz and George H.W. Bush and Director of Central African Affairs (1980-1981). The former top internal intelligence and security chief of the United Nations Observer's Mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC) has been worked for Anvil mining in Katanga since 2006.<sup>70</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT RAPE AND PLUNDER

Gertler/Steinmetz interests have also been jostling for copper and cobalt concessions with Kinross-Forrest Group. Gertler has bought up or invested heavily in companies just to close them down. George Forrest also made the UN hit list of Congo's looters and Forrest and his three sons helped bankroll Joseph Kabila's 2006 election "victory".<sup>71</sup> George Forrest's daughter is reportedly married to the son of Louis Michel. Malta and George Forrest are controlling directors in Katanga Mining Limited.

Born as Entreprise G~~鮚~~rale Malta Forrest, the Belgian Forrest interests have been pillars of exploitation in Congo since at least 1922, when they launched mining operations in Katanga. Forrest's Katanga Mining directors include: three Canadians; Congo's Jean-Claude Masangu Mulongo, a former Governor of DRC and high official at the IMF and World Bank; and the current Governor of the Central Bank of DRC. The Forrest dynasty has munitions factories in Belgium and Kenya, and has partnered with OM-Group, in Ohio [USA], dealing in Congo's cobalt and coltan. Forrest International also operates in Europe, Burundi-involving him on both sides of Congo's bloody war-and the Middle East.<sup>72</sup> Forrest interests in DRC include aviation, foods, plantations, construction, logging, copper and cobalt mining. Forrest companies are enmeshed in the coltan plunder in eastern Congo.

Katanga is the world's richest mining metropolis, part of the vast copper belt that stretches across northern Zambia and southern Congo-and the home to unprecedented human misery due to state orchestrated repression and communities overrun with toxic mining, tuberculosis, cancers, immune disorders, racial discrimination and slavery. The Zambian copperbelt concessions over the border involve many of the same companies and interests mentioned above, and others.<sup>73</sup>

Workers and communities in and around these mines suffer all the standard treatable maladies (typhoid, malaria, tetanus, polio, malnutrition) as well. However, such stories are off the agenda for the North American, European, Japanese, Australian and Israeli media corporations providing the mainstay of English language indoctrination meant to instill racial superiority and a vast ignorance and obliviousness that leaves westerns populations shaking their heads and wringing their hands and clicking their tongues, while all the while wondering "what is to be done?" It does not cross people's minds that their own hands are dirty, that their own consciousness has been falsified, as all the raw materials from Congo enrich the lives of people in the United States, Canada, Europe and Israel.

The immediate capital investment required for just one Gertler project in Katanga-the Komoto Oliveira Virgule (KOV) project-is reportedly $US 1.8 billion dollars, income to kick start billions of dollars of unused equipment mothballed in the middle Mobutu era. There are rumors that Bechtel is involved, but the KOV project involves ThyssenKrupp AG as a minor player.<sup>74</sup>

The Krupp firm is one of several German firms involved in the plunder in eastern Congo, exploitation which involves the DeutscheGesellschaft für technische Zusammenarbeit-GTZ-a "German technological cooperation agency" whose Supervisory Board has representatives of four Federal [German] Ministries.<sup>75</sup> Krupp industries use coltan and cobalt for superalloys.<sup>76</sup> Dr.-Ing. Ekkehard D. Schultz, a ThyssenKrupp director, is also a director of Bayer AG, the Germany firm whose subsidiary H.C. Starck was named for its involvement in the ongoing illegal plunder of coltan and cassiterite (tin) in eastern Congo. NIKANOR director Jay Pomrenze is also a consultant for the Deutsche Bank.<sup>77</sup> Certain German and U.S. firms benefit from the military occupation of Rwandan-backed warlord Laurent Nkunda in North Kivu, DRC, where Nkunda controls the Lueshe niobium mine "owned" by Gesellschaft fuer

Elektrometallurgie GmbH, a subsidiary of New York-based Mettallurg Group.<sup>78,79</sup>

HONOR THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER

Dan Gertler's grandfather, Moshe Schnitzer (d. November 2007), was known in Israel as "Mr. Diamond;" in youth he joined the pre-state underground organization Etzel (Irgoun), an Israeli military cell self-defined as an "untra-nationalist Jewish militia," but one that committed acts of terrorism in service to the Israeli cause.<sup>8</sup> Moshe Schnitzer assumed a major role in the Africa-Israeli diamond trade in the 1950's in a partnership business called Schnitzer-Greenstein. Schnitzer later founded the Israel Diamond Exchange in Tel Aviv in 1960, which today brings Israel $14 billion annually in blood business, and is the country's second-largest industry, but Israel's top export. King Leopold III of Belgium decorated Schnitzer in recognition of his activities favoring the close relationship of Belgium, Israel and the DeBeers diamond cartels, and Schnitzer was also President of the Harry Oppenheimer Diamond Museum in Israel.<sup>80</sup>

The diamond jewelry trade in the United States is more than $30 billion annually, and 99%-everything that is not synthetic or artificial diamonds-involves blood diamonds and the above organized crime syndicates. Israel buys more than 50% of the world's rough diamonds, and the U.S. buys two-thirds of these. The diamond factories are located in Nethanya, Petach Tikvah, Tel Aviv, Ramat Gan, Jerusalem, and other cities around the country, but most of the offices were in Tel Aviv in the financial district on Ahad Ha'am Street.<sup>81</sup> Dan Gertler's father, Asher Gertler, and his uncle, Shmuel Schnitzer, manage the original family business, and Shmuel is Vice-Chairman of the Belgian-based World Diamond Council-the entity that spends more money promoting the false image of "conflict-free" diamonds than it does helping any of the people dispossessed or brutalized by the diamond industry.<sup>48</sup>

On August 16, 2007, Rabbi Bentolila in Kinshasa received a communication asking: "What does the Torah say about men exploiting other men for vast profits while other men are starving and dying all around them? Is there some hierarchy to the Torah that suggests, for example, that black people or Africans are lesser beings, and therefore not to be a concern where profound profits are being made?"

There was no reply from Rabbi Bentolila, he was apparently busy readying for another Bar Mitzvah in Belgium. Unfortunately for Dan Gertler and his spiritual advisers, the Torah says that a Jew can keep a slave, but a Jew kept as a slave must be redeemed, and that-an empty, foolish justification for exploiting innocent people-is how religion falsifies spirituality.

1. In January 2008 the International Rescue Committee, who is also discussed in this article, released its second survey of mortality in the Democratic Republic of Congo, estimating that 5,400,000 people have died, or some 1500 people every day. Mortality in the Democratic Republic of Congo: an Ongoing Crisis, International Rescue Committee, January 2008. However, IRC statistics are highly biased and politicized. See: keith harmon snow, "Over Five Million Dead in Congo?" Dissident Voice, February 4, 2008. [?]

2. Personal interview, Democratic Republic of Congo, August 2006. [?]

3. keith harmon snow, "Warlord's Deadly Battle, Toward Freedom, 2007. [?]

4. Officers: Antonio Teixeira, President & CEO; Robert G. Rainey, CFO; Brett Thompson, COO, Mining; Dimitri (Jimmy) Kanakakis, Vice President, Corporate & Legal Affairs; Bernard Poznanski, Corporate Secretary; Board Members: Brian Menell, Richard Dorfman, Bruce Holmes, Robert Rainey, Antonio Teixeira. [?]

5. See: "Africa/Diamonds: Rough diamonds," Africa Confidential, 5 March 2004, Vol. 45, No. 5; and "Equatorial Guinea: All Theft is Property," Africa Confidential, 17 Nov. 2006, Vol. 47, No. 23: p. 12. [?]

6. Tim Hoare, the head of the advisers that launched it, Canaccord Adams, sits alongside rock star and champion of Africa Bob Geldof on the board of the television-production company Ten Alps. See: Ben Laurance, "Energy firm link to blood diamonds," The Sunday Times, December 30, 2007. [?]

7. See: keith harmon snow, "A People's History of Congo's Jean-Pierre Bemba," Toward Freedom, September 18, 2007. [?]

8. Yossi Melman and Asaf Carmel, "Diamond in the rough," Haaretz, March 24, 2005. [?] [?] [?]

9. See: keith harmon snow, "Congo's President Joseph Kabila: Dynasty or Travesty?" Toward Freedom, November 13, 2007. [?]

10. Private interview, Kinshasa, August 2006. [?]

11. See: "Terror in the Diamond Fields: Excessive Force and Impunity in the DRC," Amnesty International Canada; Democratic Republic of Congo: Government should investigate human rights violations in the Mbuji Mayi diamond fields, Amnesty International, October 22, 2002. [?]

12. Making a Killing: The Diamond Trade in Government Controlled DRC, Amnesty International, 2002, AFR 62/017/2002 22/10/2002. [?]

13. See: "ICEM protests Congo's Transport, Diamond Injustices," International Federation of Chemical, Energy, Mine and General Worker's Union, May 7, 2007. [?]

14. "Diamond miners killed in DR Congo," BBC News, 7 August 2006. [?]

15. See: Jewish Africa and Chabad. [?]

16. Private communication, Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila, August 16, 2007. [?]

17. "Lag Baomer in Kinshasa," June 2005. [?]

18. "Visite de l'Ambassadeur Revah a' Kinshasa," Kadima 010, June-September 2007. [?]

19. See: keith harmon snow, "Behind the Scenes: Warlord's Deadly Battle in Congo," Toward Freedom, August 9, 2007. [?]

20. Nicole Gaouette, "Inside Israel's diamond trade: a family affair," Christian Science Monitor, 21 February 2002. [?]

21. Yitzhak Danon, "Top Israelis accused of illegal diamond deals: Israel: Lawsuit claims corruption in Congo diamonds for arms deal," Globes (Israel), 18 February 2004. See also: "Column One: What Lieberman Wants," Jerusalem Post, October 20, 2006. [?] [?]
22. Christian Dietrich, "Blood Diamonds: Effective African-Based Monopolies," African Security Review, Vol. 10, No 3., 2001. [?]
23. Yitzhak Danon, "Top Israelis accused of illegal diamond deals: Israel: Lawsuit claims corruption in Congo diamonds for arms deal," Globes (Israel), 18 February 2004. [?]
24. See: Keith Harmon Snow, "Behind the Scenes: Warlord's Deadly Battle in Congo," Toward Freedom, August 9, 2007. The Angolan military protected Kinshasa during the so-called "rebellion" involving Rwanda and Uganda. The Angolans do not like the Rwandans or Ugandans due to their military and commercial relations with Angolan rebels, the União Nacional para a Independência Total de Angola (UNITA), and because Rwandan and Ugandan soldiers invaded Angola after their failed bid to control the Congo's strategic Inga Dam power station and Matadi port between 1998 and 2001. Angola sent troops to Congo in July and August 2006, and there were black Angolan troops amongst the European Union mercenary forces-EUFOR-sent to quell any possible rebellions during the "historic national elections." Angola also sent troops to Congo to back Kabila during the warlord's deadly battle of March 2007. [?]
25. "Presidential Chopper," Africa Confidential, Vol. 47 Number 23, November 17, 2006. [?]
26. See: Overseas Security Services Congo sprl web site. [?] [?]
27. OSS-Congo owner Philippe de Moerloose communicated with this author after his name appeared in a prior story mentioning OSS-Congo and offered to meet in Europe and provide the author with the "correct" information about his companies operations in Congo. Repeated communications with De Moerloose seeking clarifications and information for this story were not answered. [?]
28. See e.g., SEC info on Lenorth Holdings and SDG Marketing. [?]
29. Lior Chorev, The First [DRC] Diamond Polishing Plant to Move into Full Production, Press Release, DGI Group of Companies, January 11, 2005. [?]
30. ARAD Communications web site. [?]
31. Private communication, Lior Chorev, January 19, 2008. [?]
32. See: Keith Harmon Snow, "Over Five Million Dead in Congo?" Dissident Voice, February 4, 2008. [?]
33. Private email communication, Lior Chorev, January 19, 2008. See also: Gil Hoffman, "Olmert, Netanyahu Rivalry Gets Personal," Israel.jpost.com, March 26, 2006; "Sharon allies and foes joust over new party as March 28 elections are set," Associated Press, November 22, 2005. [?]
34. NATO Transformation, the Mediterranean Dialog, and NATO-Israel Relations, October 23, 2006. [?]
35. Yossi Melman and Asaf Carmel, "Diamond in the Rough," Haaretz, March 24, 2005. [?]
36. The Olayan Group web site. [?]

37. The Steinmetz Group. [?]
38. Gil Hoffman, "Politics; Unconscious Legacy," Jerusalem Post, features.jpost.com, January 3, 2008. [?] [?]
39. United Nations Panel of Experts Confidential Report. [?]
40. Under the contract Emaxon granted Miba loans totaling $5-million in 2003, and a further $10-million subsequently. In exchange, Emaxon gained rights to 88% of Miba's production at a discount, formally, of 5%. [?]
41. Herzog, Fox and Neeman web site. [?]
42. Tevapharm. [?]
43. See: keith harmon snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]
44. On Neeman and Hurvitz, see Markstone Capital Group; on Robert Rotberg, Maurice Templesman and the Harvard Belfer Center, see: keith harmon snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]
45. Criminal rackets known to the United Nations security were or some time illegally shipping uranium and cobalt out of Katanga by road to Zimbabwe and Tanzania (private interview, U.N. Official, 2006). [?]
46. Israel and Africa: Assessing the Past, Envisioning the Future, The Africa Institute American Jewish Committee and The Harold Hartog School Tel Aviv University, May 2006. [?]
47. Ron Ben-Yishai and Molly Camprier-Kritz, "The Murder Request Went to the Wrong Address," Yediot Aharonot weekend supplement on 19 September 1999. [?]
48. Nicole Gaouette, "Inside Israel's diamond trade: a family affair," Christian Science Monitor, 21 February 2002. [?] [?]
49. For a discussion of the veracity of these facts and more on the "Russian Military Brotherhood" see: Central Africa Minerals and Arms Research Bulletin, Edition 2, International Peace Information Service, June 18, 2001. [?]
50. Jimmy Johnson, "Israelis and Hezbollah Haven't Always Been Enemies," Appearing in Israeli Committee Against House Demolitions USA, 6 September 2006. [?]
51. Report of the Panel of Experts Appointed Pursuant to UN Security Council Resolution 1306 (2000), Paragraph 19, in Relation to Sierra Leone, December 2000. [?]
52. Energem web site; and also: keith harmon snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]
53. Mineweb. [?]
54. Charles Higham, Trading With The Enemy: The Nazi-American Money Plot, 1933-1949, Delacorte Press, 1983. [?] [?]
55. Susan Mazur, "Deeper Into the Dillon-Euphronios Nexus with David N. Gibbs," SCOOP, April 26, 2006. [?]
56. David Gibbs, The Political Economy of Third World Intervention: Mines,

- Money and U.S. Policy in the Congo Crises, University of Chicago Press, 1991. [?]
57. Eric Onstad, "UPDATE 2-CAMEC shares soar after agrees Congo joint venture," Reuters, Nov. 7, 2007. [?]
58. Brenna Chigonga, "Zimbabwe: Meet Country's Richest People," The Herald, July 14, 2007. [?]
59. See: Maurice Carney, "Congo's Contract Review," Pambazuka News, January 17, 2008. [?]
60. Martin Creamer, "Funded NIKANOR presses on with $1,8bn copper mine, refinery," Mining Weekly, September 21, 2007. [?]
61. Julie Walker, "Hersovs and Menells are in no hurry to yield control of Anglovaal," Sunday Times. [?]
62. Evelyn Groenink, "Arms deal: Who got R1bn in pay-offs?" Mail & Guardian, January 12, 2007. [?]
63. Teal Exploration & Mining web site. [?]
64. Press Release: Kenya-Uganda Oil Products Pipeline, Kenya-Uganda Joint Co-coordinating Commission for Extension of Oil Pipeline, August 17, 2005; see also: Energem web site. [?]
65. Fran  s Misser and Olivier Vall   "Des mati  res premi  res toujours convoit  es. Les nouveaux acteurs du secteur minier Africain," Le Monde Diplomatique, May 1998, p.24-25; also Wayne Madsen, Genocide and Covert Operations in Africa, 1993-1999, Mellon Press, 1999. [?]
66. Diamond Fields International Management. [?]
67. 'Inculpations □a Belgolaise', Le Libre Belgique, 4 June 2004. [?]
68. Private interview, Kinshasa, DRC, April 2007. [?]
69. Norm Dixon, "Congo Massacre: Australian mining company's managers indicted," Green Left Review, November 4, 2006. [?]
70. His name is known, but he threatened to track down and break the author's legs if he is revealed. [?]
71. See: Barry Sergeant, "NIKANOR's Quandry: Meet Dan the Man, King of the Congo," MoneyWeb, 4 April 2007; "Congo Kinshasa: After the Election" Africa Confidential, Vol. 47, No. 23, 17 Nov. 2006; and United Nations Security Council Report to the Secretary General, S/2003/1027, 23 October 2003. [?]
72. George Forrest International. [?]
73. Personal investigation, Ndola, Zambia copperbelt mines, 2000. [?]
74. Nikanor. [?]
75. These are: the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ); Federal Foreign Office; Federal Ministry of Finance; and Federal Ministry of Economics and Labor. Since 1998 the Supervisory Board Chairman has been State Secretary Erich Stather from the BMZ. [?]
76. Karen Hayes and Richard Burge, Coltan Mining in the Democratic Republic of Congo: How tantalum-using industries can commit to the reconstruction of the DRC, Fauna & Flora Int'l, 2003. [?]
77. NIKANOR web site. [?]
78. Metallurg Group. [?]
79. See keith harmon snow, "Three Cheers for Eve Ensler? Propaganda, White Collar Crime, and Sexual Violence in Eastern Congo," Z Magazine on-line (Z-Net), October 24, 2007. [?]

80. "Moshe Schnitzer: Un Legende s'en est Allee," Kadima 010, June-September 2007. [?]

81. "The Israel Diamond Exchange - Kiryat Moshe Schnitzer", Diamond Key, 2002. [?]

| 29287|2009-07-03 09:33:35|Peter Gray|Re: {Spam?} Re:is the congo the worst place on earth?| Thanks, Alex.

As also documented in King Leopold's Ghost, there was the slaughter of an estimated 10 million Congolese during and after the Scramble for Africa (1888 - ...). Highly recommended reading. Let's not be misled by the ongoing mischaracterisation of terrorism to suit current geopolitics.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: avdeelen@ziggo.nl

Date: Fri, 3 Jul 2009 16:39:02 +0200

Subject: [Ta_Seti] {Spam?} Re:is the congo the worst place on earth?

" is the congo the worst place on earth? "

Is there a competition going?

If you want to know more about the DRC,
follow the money, and read:

<http://dissidentvoice.org/2008/02/gertlers-bling-bang-torah-gang/>

Gertler's Bling Bang Torah Gang

Israel and the Ongoing Holocaust in Congo (Part 1)

by Keith Harmon Snow / February 9th, 2008

Maurice Tempelsman is one of the top funders of the Democratic Party who has funded Barack Obama and Hillary Clinton. Tempelsman was the unofficial ambassador to the Congo (Zaire) for years, but a new Israeli-American tycoon has replaced him. In the world of bling bling and bling bang, some things change, some stay the same. The CIA, the MOSSAD, the big mining companies, the offshore accounts and weapons deals-all hidden by the Western media. The holocaust in Central Africa has claimed some six to ten million people in Congo since 1996, with 1500 people dying daily.<sup>1</sup> But while the Africans are the victims of perpetual Holocaust, the persecutors hide behind history, complaining that they are the persecuted, or pretending they are the saviors. Who is responsible?

For Israeli-American Dan Gertler, business in blood drenched Congo is not merely business, it is a quest for the Holy Grail. Young Dan Gertler goes nowhere-does nothing-without the spiritual guidance of Brooklyn-born Rabbi Chaim Yaakov Leibovitch, a personal friend of Condoleeza Rice.<sup>2</sup> Gertler and Leibovitch are two of the principals behind a diamond mining company, Emaxon Finance Corporation, involved in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). Gertler and gang won the majority rights to the diamonds from the state mining company, Soci   Mini   de Bakwange, MIBA, found near the government-controlled town of Mbuji-Mayi, the rough diamond capital of the world.

Emaxon Finance Corp. has apparently out-maneuvered diamond competitors, especially the big rivals Energem and De Beers. Energem is one of the many shady mining companies connected to Anthony Teixeira, a Portuguese born businessman now residing in South Africa whose daughter married Congolese warlord Jean-Pierre Bemba. The warlord's deadly battle in Congo in March 2007 was a bid between rival agents-Jean- Pierre Bemba and Joseph Kabila-to be the black gatekeeper for the mining cartels run by dynastic families like Templesman, Oppenheimer, Mendell, Forrest, Blattner, Hertzov, Gertler and Steinmetz, and for companies like NIKANOR, whose stock prices rose early in July 2006 in expectation of a July 30th "win" for Joseph Kabila.<sup>3</sup> Africa Confidential called President Kabila's 2003 visit to the Bush White House a "coup" for the Israeli diamond magnates Dan Gertler and Beny Steinmetz.

Canadian-based Energem, formerly DiamondWorks, is owned by British mercenary Tony Buckingham and its director/shareholders include Mario and Tony Teixeira, J.P. Morgan, and Gertler's partner Israeli-American Beny Steinmetz (50%).<sup>4</sup> Through subsidiary Branch Energy, the Energem-DiamondWorks gang has perpetuated war in 11 African countries.<sup>5</sup> In December 2007, Energem re-launched itself on the London Stock Market with the newly laundered image of a renewable energy company. Regarding diamonds, it said only it "had decided to give up exploration rights in the Central African Republic."<sup>6</sup> The Energem spokesman explained that Tony Teixeira "had a clean bill of health" etc., etc. Of course, Energem "quit" the C.A.R. because Jean-Pierre Bemba marched his troops into C.A.R., where they raped and pillaged widely.<sup>7</sup> Energem is still operating in Congo, but Dan Gertler is the new, unofficial ambassador to the Congo for the George W. Bush gang.

Gertler and partners like Beny and Danny Steinmetz, Nir Livnat, Chaim Leibovitz and Yaakov Neeman run a hornet's nest of companies involved in African hotspots, including: Dan Gertler International (DGI), Steinmetz Global Resources, International Diamond Industries, NIKANOR and Global Enterprises Corporate.

"Dan Gertler is 'the new kid on the block,'" writes Yossi Melman in Israel's Haaretz news. "Bold, sophisticated, brutal, he is an adventurer with a short fuse." Haaretz confirmed that Dan Gertler owns a complex network of interconnected companies, often registered in offshore tax havens and involved in India, Russia, Belgium and the United States, and that Dan Gertler is looking to God for guidance.<sup>8</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT STEAL

"In the diamond industry," Melman wrote, "Gertler is considered something of an odd bird. He maintains few ties with the other merchants and is not very sociable. Alongside his business affairs, most of his energy is channeled into matters of faith. He is a donor to religious institutions and from time to time makes a pilgrimage to the rabbi he most admires, Rabbi David Abuhatzera, from Nahariya, in order to consult with him and receive his blessing. Gertler is surrounded mostly by religious people and laces his speech liberally with praise to God."<sup>8</sup>

In 2003, Condoleezza Rice, then Assistant to President Bush for National Security Affairs, introduced Dan Gertler and Chaim Leibovitch to U.S. official Jendayi Frazer, a Harvard Kennedy School affiliate and former National Security Council agent focused on Africa. On December 6, 2006, Frazer, then Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, was one of seven special Bush delegates sent to the inauguration of Congo's newly installed President Joseph Kabila in Kinshasa.<sup>9</sup>

When Dan Gertler and Chaim Leibovitch and their friends visit the luxury Gertler villa in Lumumbashi, the capital of Katanga, Congo's large southern province, their kosher meals arrive by private plane from Kinshasa. The special executive jet that flies their kosher meals a few hundred miles over the roadless Congo costs some $US 23,000 per trip.<sup>10</sup>

The average income for Congolese citizens each year-if they survive it-is about $95. Shootings at mining facilities and diamond mines are common, land is stolen from Congolese people, strikes are crushed by security forces that companies are partnered with, and black overseers of state terror routinely arrest and torture any vocal opposition-and sometimes disappear them-in support of white bosses. The Sociéte Minière de Bakwange-MIBA- and the diamond fields of Mbuji-Mayi in Congo have a long history of bloodshed backed by Western powers, including Israel, from the beginning.<sup>11</sup> Amnesty International points out that not a single state agent has ever been prosecuted for the extrajudicial executions of suspected "illegal" miners in Mbuji-Mayi.<sup>12</sup>

After a century of exploitation and slavery, we find MIBA consistently withholding payment of salaries to starving Congolese laborers and middle

managers for months at a time. April and May 2007 saw strikes and protests leading to the Kabila government's arbitrary arrest, detention and torture of trade union organizers like Leon Ngoy Bululu; police have also shot protestors.<sup>13</sup> So-called 'illegal' diamond workers-disenfranchised local Congolese people forced into "criminal" activities to survive-were summarily executed on MIBA concessions in Mbuji-Mayi. MIBA security guards have also been sniping unemployed diamond miners.<sup>14</sup>

Meanwhile, Dan Gertler's kosher meals depart Kinshasa, the capital of the big Congo, through the arrangements of Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila, high priest of the Chabad of Central Africa. Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila has been a Kinshasa Rabbi since 1991, and he was a spiritual force who survived the terrorism of the old dinosaur, Mobutu Sese Seko, the way most elites did: by working with him. Rabbi Bentolila is a member of the Chabad Lubavitch Global Emissary Network, headquartered in Brooklyn, New York, and his wife Miriam is the sister of Rabbi Mena'hem Hadad, a high priest in Brussels.<sup>15</sup>

"Kosher does not mean that a Rabbi blesses the food," Rabbi Betolila corrected me, "but rather that the food was supervised by a Rabbinical Thora [sic] authority who sees that the ingredients were in accordance with the laws of Kashrut expressed in the Bible (Leviticus and Deuteronomy) ." <sup>16</sup>

Dan Gertler often flies people into Congo, on his private jet, for sacred Jewish rituals. For the Bar Mitzvah of Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila's son Binyamin Avraham in June 2005, guests included eminent Rabbis, Hassidic singer Yoni Shlomo and special orchestra Yossef Bami, all arriving in "special flights" from Israel, New York and Brussels. The reception was held at the luxurious and exclusive Memling Hotel. Joseph Kabila sent a sizeable delegation but did not attend: his closest advisers provided a blessing on his behalf.<sup>17</sup>

The Gertler, Steinmetz and Templesman interests are advanced in part through the support of the Committee of the Jewish Community of Kinshasa-le Comittee de la Communauté Israelite-that is tightly coordinated with the power structure in Kinshasa to exert influence and assure control of Israeli-Belgian- Anglo-American interests over the geopolitical arena.

From June 26-30, 2007, the Communauté Israelite de Kinshasa received a visit from the Israeli Ambassador Yaakov Revah, director of the Africa Department of the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Revah also flew to Lumumbashi for meetings with Dan Gertler and his agents, including Moishe (Moses) Katumbi, the Governor of Katanga, and they most likely enjoyed a lovely, $23,000 kosher meal sent from the Chabad in Kinshasa.<sup>18</sup> The Communauté Israelite de Kinshasa maintains very intimate political relations with President Joseph Kabila's PPRD party, the People's Party for Reconstruction and Democracy. On March 1, 2006, in a formal ceremony, the President of the Communauté Israelite de Kinshasa, Ashlan Piha, was awarded the Congo's Medal of Civil Merit.

THOU SHALT NOT COVET

Before his assassination on January 16, 2001, Laurent Desire Kabila-the President of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC)-made a deal with the Gertler gang that would play out in favor of the current President Joseph Kabila and, it seems, be a central factor in relation to both Congo's ongoing war and the bloody warlord's battle in Kinshasa in March 2007.<sup>19</sup>

Back in 2000, former Congolese president Laurent Kabila offered a monopoly on Congolese diamonds, and 88% of the proceeds, to Gertler's International Diamond Industries (IDI) in exchange for Israeli military assistance to his new government.<sup>20</sup> Top Congolese military officials apparently flew to Israel in 2000 to negotiate the deal. Gertler pledged military assistance to President Laurent Kabila through top Israeli officials.<sup>21</sup>

The original Gertler-Kabila deal fell through after Laurent Kabila was assassinated for not cooperating with the Great White Fathers of industry (January 2001), but Gertler and Leibovitch and their disciples formed another company, Dan Gertler International, and advanced their Congo plan.<sup>22</sup> By 2002 Gertler's company was the leading exporter of Congolese gems, controlling a diamond mining franchise worth about $US 1 billion annually.<sup>23</sup>

In 2003, the mighty Congolese diamond parastatal Societe Miniere De Bakwanga (MIBA)-which has been forever controlled by the Great White Fathers in Belgium, Israel and America-signed an exclusive contract with Gertler's startup company, Emaxon Finance International. The deal involved Israeli's Foreign Defense Assistance and Defense Export Organization (SIBAT), and high-level Israeli defense and intelligence officials. Gertler and his buddies reportedly bribed Congolese officials and Angolan generals who, on and off, have commanded Angolan Army troops protecting Kinshasa, Congo's capital.<sup>21,24</sup>

Security for mining operations in Congo is provided by exclusive security companies like Overseas Security Services (OSS) one of the many DRC interests of Belgian billionaire tycoon Philippe de Moerloose. A member of the Kinshasa elite, de Moerloose supplies jets and other presidential toys to DRC President Kabila. In 2006, President Joseph Kabila's campaign helicopter was at the centre of a legal battle involving Philippe de Moerloose.<sup>25</sup> De Moerloose's companies operated in Mobutu's Zaire from at least 1991, backing state terrorism and Western corporate plunder that was rendered invisible by the Western media. De Moerloose is also an adviser to European Union (EU) Commissioner- and diamantaire- Louis Michel.

Dan Gertler and Philippe de Moerloose were, reportedly, the only two white men who attended the wedding of Joseph Kabila and the two clearly share interests in "security" provided by OSS at MIBA and elsewhere in Congo. The April 2003 secret agreement signed between the Gertler/Steinmetz company Emaxon Finance and the Kabila government involved MIBA and two de Moerloose companies, OSS-Congo and Demimpex, and other firms.

Overseas Security Services (OSS) operations are apparently grounded in the experience of top expatriate security operatives formerly involved with the biggest security firm in Mobutu's Zaire.<sup>26</sup> According to OSS public relations materials, "these persons have a not unimportant experience in the safety of this country."<sup>26</sup> Providing mine security, body-guard and protection services, OSS operates in Burundi, Ivory Coast, Rwanda, Dubai, South Africa, Republic of Congo (Brazzaville) and Belgium, placing them in cahoots with all sides warring and plundering eastern Congo today.<sup>27</sup>

Emaxon Finance International is a real gem, one of these octopuses of mining tangled up with interlocking companies and subsidiaries based in specious geographical offshore "tax havens" that work to shield from prosecution people who are responsible for money laundering, weapons and drugs operations, assassinations and other terrorism.

NIKANOR is registered as an Isle of Man (UK) company, an offshore tax haven that helps to conceal criminal activities and maximize profits. NIKANOR directors include Dan Kurtzer, former U.S. ambassador to Israel (2001-2005) and Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Intelligence and Research under Madeleine Albright. NIKANOR partners include Mende and Moshe Gertner [sic], Israeli property tycoons with vast holdings in London who control 22 percent of NIKANOR. Another partner is Israeli-born Nir Livnat, managing director of Johannesburg-based Ascot Diamonds, a member of the Steinmetz Group of Diamond Companies, and a principal involved in numerous U.S.-based businesses from Miami to New York.<sup>28</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT BEAR FALSE WITNESS

Back in 2001, when the Gertler enterprises surfaced in dirty diamond deals, public relations was handled by Lior Chorev, the "Special Strategic and Communications Consultant" to International Diamond Industries (IDI), and Chorev continued in this role to support Dan Gertler businesses.<sup>29</sup> Today, Lior Chorev is partnered with the brothers Yuval and Eyal Arad as director-owners of the Israeli marketing and public relations firm, ARAD Communications.<sup>30</sup>

"We do work for Mr. Gertler on some of his business issues," said Lior Chorev.<sup>31</sup> ARAD's many clients include Dan Gertler companies, Los Angeles-based Coral Diamonds and an Israeli aeronautics weaponry manufacturer producing Unmanned Aerospace Vehicles (UAVs)-robotic weapons and intelligence platforms like those being used against the people of Congo today.<sup>32</sup> As a political strategist, Lior Chorev has worked for Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and current Prime Minister Ehud Olmert.<sup>33</sup> He has also participated in Israel-NATO defense planning conferences. <sup>34</sup>

Dan Gertler is close to Israeli politicians, especially Avigdor Lieberman, head of the right-wing Yisrael Beiteinu party, and he is very close to diamondaire Beny Steinmetz, a good friend of Prime Minister Ehud Olmert. Gertler's inseparable friend, Chaim Leibovitz, is also very close to Lieberman, and was "a regular fixture" in Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's offices.<sup>35</sup>

Beny Steinmetz is considered to be one of the richest billionaires in Israel. The Steinmetz Group, controlled with his brother Daniel, is one of the biggest clients of the de Beers diamond syndicate. Steinmetz is also involved in an Israeli real estate group that purchased the assets of the British Haslemere real estate company for $1.46 billion. Steinmetz's real estate partners include the billionaire Israeli investors David and Simon Reuben, and the Saudi Arabian Olayan Group, an investment company that is deeply connected with Bechtel Corporation. <sup>36</sup> The Steinmetz web site map of operations hides their involvement in war-torn Congo.<sup>37</sup>

Seems Dan Gertler's land grabs and exclusion in Congo have a lot in common with the current crimes against humanity being committed by Israel through its illegal partition in the Middle East. On January 3, 2008, the Jerusalem Post reported that Lior Chorev was an integral part of past Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's advisers, and he was recently quoted to say that even though Sharon did not get to finalize Israel's final borders (he suffered a debilitating stroke in 2006), the route of the security fence-which he decided-would ultimately serve as the basis for the border and as Sharon's lasting legacy.<sup>38</sup>

"He felt he needed to set the border because he didn't trust the younger generations, " Chorev was quoted to say. "He knew the fence route by heart and the reason for every stretch of land being on one side or the other."<sup>38</sup>

In 2003, the U.N. Panel of Experts on war in Congo revealed that Emaxon Finance International is controlled by Israeli diamond traders Chaim Leibovitz and Dan Gertler.<sup>39</sup> Emaxon lists as its address an office in Montreal, Canada, but Emaxon's majority shareholder is listed as FTS Worldwide, a nebulous global corporation whose business address is that of a firm of lawyers, Mossack Fonseca & Company, in Panama City. FTS Worldwide is registered with the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission to lawyer Andre Zolty of Geneva Switzerland. A copy of the MIBA-Emaxon contract was signed on 13 April 2003 by Israeli-Americans Yaakov Neeman and Chaim Leibovitz.<sup>40</sup>

Yaakov Neeman is a founding partner of Herzog, Fox and Neeman, Tel Aviv, one of Israel's top law firms, and he has held Israeli government cabinet and ministerial positions.<sup>41</sup> Neeman is on the Advisory Board of Markstone Capital Group, a very influential group of investment bankers, with Eli Hurvitz. On the board of Israel's Teva Pharmaceutical Industries with Eli Hurvitz is Northrup-Grumman director Philip Frost.<sup>42</sup> Both Philip Frost and Maurice Templesman are top-level councilors for the American Stock Exchange. Eli Hurvitz sat on the International Advisory Counsel of Harvard University's Belfer Center, 2002-2005, during the period when the Belfer Center and their intelligence operative Robert Rotberg formalized the "Kimberley Process" to officially whitewash blood diamonds.<sup>43</sup> Yakov Neeman is also a governor of the World Zionist Organization and Jewish Agency for Israel.

One of the main objectives of the Kimberley Process, and the Harvard Belfer Center's role, was to protect the South African Oppenheimer and De Beers diamond cartels and their leading buyers and agents like Maurice Templesman and Beny Steinmetz.<sup>44</sup> Added to those diamond industry firms whitewashed by the Kimberley Process are all the Zionist diamond dealers and cartels that have risen like a phoenix out of the ashes of the Holocaust.

The Israeli-American enterprises of the Gertler/Steinmetz gang have proliferated and today are major shareholders or owners of diamond concessions in Congo's Kasai province and copperbelt concessions in Katanga. The copperbelt is the big money in Congo. Copper prices recently hit an all time high due to monopoly control by corporations and new applications in transportation, aerospace and weaponry. Cobalt is used in dye and paint processes for manufacturing. More importantly, it is elemental to superalloys used for tank armor, spacecraft, turbines, ship hulls, ship hulls, blast furnaces, refineries, petroleum drilling rigs, nuclear reactors and nuclear weapons. Like coltan, or columbium-tantalite, cobalt is also used in cell phone batteries. The Katanga copperbelt is also rich in germanium, a rare metal used in optical fibers, infrared lenses and telecommunication satellites.<sup>45</sup>

The entire military-industrial-prisons complex revolves around minerals like cobalt, niobium and heterogenite (cobalt oxide), yet the truth about what happens to African people in lands taken over by these mining companies is hidden by the corporate media. More and more land is being stolen, more and more atrocities committed, with less and less transparency, and less and less accountability, and fewer and fewer voices for the voiceless. And, as usual, there are always a lot of empty promises.

THOUGH SHALT HAVE NO OTHER GODS

Over the past fifty years, elite Israeli nationals have perpetrated conflict and injustice in Africa, fueled by and for minerals. Operatives associated with the Israeli military or intelligence services-the Mossad-maintain strategic criminal syndicates in competition and in partnership with other syndicates involving men like Philippe De Moerloose, Louis Michel, Viscount Etienne Davignon, John Bredenkamp and Tony Buckingham.

Israeli trained shock troops became Mobutu's bodyguards, with Mossad advisers. According to a report by the American Jewish Committee: after 1980 "Mossad agents, military emissaries, and a small group of private businessmen. replaced diplomats as Israel's main interlocutors with African leaders and political (mainly opposition) groups." The report cites rising involvement of private defense and security interests, especially in Angola, DRC and Central Africa Republic, since 1992.<sup>46</sup>

Israeli operatives and "businessmen" appear everywhere there is egregious suffering and dispossession. Dan Gertler's forays into the bloody world of diamonds involve Israeli arms dealers Yair Klein, who is reportedly wanted by the U.S. for training Medellin drug-cartel militias in Colombia, and Dov Katz.<sup>47</sup> Klein was convicted by Israel (1991) for his involvement with groups that targeted and assassinated Colombian politicians, journalists, and police. Jailed in Sierra Leone in 1999, Klein was a field representative for Gertler in war-torn Sierra Leone and Liberia. Gertler also mingles with the Russian Military Brotherhood, a group of "retired Russian generals whom Gertler describes as good friends."<sup>48, 49</sup>

Retired Israeli Defense Forces Colonel Yair Klein reportedly organized arms for diamonds networks in Sierra Leone and Liberia after President Charles Taylor was deposed. In 1999, Klein was arrested in Sierra Leone on charges of smuggling arms to the rebel Revolutionary United Front.<sup>50</sup> The U.N. also documented collaborations between Sierra Leone' rebels and Lazare Kaplan agent Damian Gagnon; Lazare Kaplan International is one of the organized crime syndicates of Jewish American Maurice Templesman.<sup>51</sup>

The Steinmetz Group of companies are also involved in the bloody diamond fields of Sierra Leone, along with Energem (formerly DiamondWorks) , the company described above that is connected to the white mercenaries depicted in Hollywood's Blood Diamond propaganda film.<sup>52</sup> In December 2007, local people in Sierra Leone struggling to gain the smallest livelihood from their own resources were shot by police during peaceful protests against the Steinmetz-controlled Koidu Holdings site. It's the same old local people's story happening everywhere. These were people from communities driven off their own land by mining companies that promised the world, cajoled the trusting people, and gave nothing after. The Steinmetz gang called in the local paramilitary, a curfew was imposed and people were shot; the police, as usual, falsely claimed that protesters were armed.<sup>53</sup>

Like most mining mafias in Africa, the Israeli octopus-organized crime syndicates, offshore subsidiaries, interlocking directorships and affiliated mercenaries- has gripped the very heart of Congo like an octopus grips and stuns its prey. Mining regulates the pulse of Congo, and foreign mining companies with their black sell-out agents are sucking the blood out of the people and the wealth out of the land.

THOU SHALT NOT KILL

Beyond the intriguing Jewish rivalry for diamonds in the heart of darkness, this tale takes a chilling turn with the involvement of certain German firms and New York City lawyers. NIKANOR, another Gertler/Steinmetz company of dubious origins operating in DRC, has a subcontract with the notorious ThyssenKrupp conglomerate, a company comprised of two former Nazi weapons manufacturers linked to the New York law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, to Brown Brothers Harriman & Co., Lehman Brothers, Chase Manhattan Bank, J.P. Morgan, DuPont and IBM, in the great Nazi-American money plot.<sup>54</sup>

These companies were all behind the Jewish Holocaust. The infamous German Krupp firm is the industrial corporation that collaborated with former CIA director Allen Dulles and former U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Clients of the Dulles brothers' law firm Sullivan and Cromwell included Adolph Hitler.<sup>54</sup> Ted Terry, one of the senior counselors of the law firm Sullivan and Cromwell today, is also a director of a philanthropy called the Harold K. Hochschild (HKH) Foundation, named for the mining magnate behind AMAX, a company operating in the copperbelt in Zambia, but whose parent company, Phelps Dodge, operates in Katanga, Congo. Harold K. Hochschild was close to the CIA, and he appears to have backed the Katanga succession in the 1960's just as Dan Gertler in recent years backed the reorganization of power in Congo by force. Sullivan and Cromwell was also the law firm for AMAX. <sup>55,56</sup>

Brown Brothers Harriman & Company (BBH) was the primary Wall Street connection for German companies and the U.S. financial interests of Fritz Thyssen, an early financial backer of the Nazi party. BBH bought and shipped millions of dollars of gold, steel, fuel, coal, and U.S. treasury bonds to Germany. These were used to build Hitler's war machine, and the ties proliferated even after the Nazi concentration camps began churning out skeletons. The horrors of the concentration camps at Auschwitz, Birkenau and Buckenwald became public knowledge long before they became public outrage. It is the same story for Congo.

A PRAYER FOR THE DEAD

There are no records or statistics of the numbers of people brutalized or killed in the diamond or cobalt mining areas, like Kolwezi, Mbuji Mayi, Tshikapa, Banalia, or Kananga in DRC, or Ndola in Zambia, and many of the victims of security abuses will never be known.

When Gertler and Steinmetz and their buddies came to Congo it was soon clear that they had to challenge Zimbabwean tycoons John Bredenkamp and Billy Rautenbach-two cronies of dictator Robert Mugabe involved in pillaging Congo and Zimbabwe for decades. The United Nations Panel of Experts on DRC named both men for plundering copper and cobalt from Katanga, and both deal globally in weapons. Bredenkamp is one of the fifty richest men in England and he reportedly owns a mansion several doors down from Margaret Thatcher's residence in London.

On November 7, 2007 it was reported that Dan Gertler was instrumental in putting together a deal in which Katanga Mining Ltd. would buy rival NIKANOR for $2.1 billion and merge their adjacent mine projects in Congo to form the world's largest cobalt company. Also announced was a joint venture between the Central African Mining & Exploration Company (CAMEC) and another Gertler-controlled firm called Prairie International Limited.

The CAMEC/Prairie joint venture will exploit DRC's Luita copper processing facility, develop the Mukondo Mountain cobalt mine-called the world's richest cobalt mine-and work on "other" exploration properties. Prairie is majority owned by the family of Dan Gertler. CAMEC is connected to Zimbabwean/South African/British tycoon Billy Rautenbach.<sup>57</sup> The DRC government effectively banned controversial Zimbabwean businessman Billy Rautenbach from the country by declaring him persona non grata in July 2007, but this doesn't seem to stop him from getting what he wants. Rautenbach is also wanted in South Africa on 300 charges of fraud, corruption and theft.

Rautenbach is a former motor car rally driver who controls a business empire in Southern and Central Africa through a British Virgin Islands company called Ridgepoint Overseas Development Limited. In 1998, the short-lived President of Congo, Laurent Kabila, named Rautenbach the managing director of La Générale des Carrières et des Mines (Gécamines), one of Africa's biggest cobalt mines, the Katanga properties of the Union Minière de Haut Katanga formerly developed by the Belgian colonial government. Rautenbach today is one of the Africa's largest exporters of heterogenite (cobalt ore) from the DRC through his Congo Cobalt Company (CoCoCo), but he also has shares in two other lucrative DRC mining firms-Boss and Mukondo-which reportedly earn over US$100 million a month.<sup>58</sup>

While there has been a lot of Western media fanfare over the Kabila governments' supposed "independent" review of mining contracts, little substantive change can be expected.<sup>59</sup> Structural factors exploit the Congolese people and lands and benefit white businessmen, arms dealers, bankers, and their embraceable black agents. Big business benefits from perception management articles well-placed in media to give the impression that the international system is just, that there are watchdogs, checks and balances.

However, while the DRC and the World Bank present a propaganda front about their ostensible attention to mining reform and the new mining code, NIKANOR-Mining Journal reports-"is in the advantageous position of having entered into a post mining-code contract, 'which makes us [NIKANOR] relatively comfortable' "60 In other words, the mining review is a sham, it may force some changes, but it will be cosmetic at best.

Dan Gertler and the Steinmetz Group's partner Jewish-American Nir Livnat is also a director of Anglovaal Mining with Rick and Brian Menell and Basil Hersov of the South African Menell and Hersov dynasties.<sup>61</sup> Hersov has been named as a beneficiary of fraud and racketeering involving British BAE Systems weapons deals with shady offshore companies.<sup>62</sup>

The octopus of South African connections is a story in itself, with links to top officials from Britain to Canada, like Canadian Senator J. Trevor Eyton, and offshore mining companies involved in all the big money (diamonds, gold, petroleum, cobalt) and big corporations with interlocking directorships: Coca Cola, Nestlé, General Motors, and the Bush-connected Barrick Gold Corporation. Barrick, of course, is partnered up with the Oppenheimer/ De Beers firm Anglo-American Corporation at six sites in Africa, including Congo.

Rick Menell is a director of Bateman Engineering- owned by Benny Steinmetz-the junior partner of the NIKANOR projects in Katanga. Britain's Earl of Balfour is a director of both Bateman and NIKANOR. Menell is also the director of Teal Exploration and Mining, whose directors include Joaquim Chissano, former President of Mozambique; Murray Hitzman, a Clinton administration official with the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy (1994-1996); Hannes Meyer, who worked with Anglo-Gold Ashanti in Congo, 1999-2006, when militias in Ituri were funded to get the gold out. Teal Exploration also has ties to Anvil Mining and Anglo-American Corporation. <sup>63</sup>

Brian Menell, Nir Livnat's associate on the board of Anglovaal, is on the board of Energem (formerly DiamondWorks) with Tony and Mario Teixeira. The Livnat connection ties Teixeira into networks that have supported both Joseph Kabila and Jean-Pierre Bemba in Congo's bloody wars. Energem is also involved in the trans-Uganda- Kenya pipeline, along with Nexant, a subsidiary of the deep intelligence and defense insider Bechtel Corporation. <sup>64</sup>

Brian Menell is also on the board of First Africa Oil, which operates in seven African countries, and First Africa Oil director John Bentley is a director of Osprey Oil and Gas, whose directors include Carol Bell, a director of the Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank. Bentley is also on the board of Adastra Minerals-formerly America Mineral Fields (AMF, AMFI, AMX), a company based in 1995 in Hope, Arkansas-and set up by Robert Friedland and Max and Jean-Raymond Boulle, notable "friends of Bill" Clinton. Since 1995, American Mineral Fields has been involved in Brazil, Russia, Norway, Zambia, Angola and the DRC. A criminal backer of the war in DRC, Jean-Raymond Boulle, who holds 36.4 % of the company stock, was the former General Director of De Beers in Zaire, part of the Templesman alliance of terrorism under the Mobutu regime.<sup>65,66</sup>

The Gertler/Steinmetz interests apparently curry huge favors with Congo's number two most powerful man, Augustine Katumba Mwanke, one of Joseph Kabila's closest allies and financiers, former Governor of Katanga (1998-2001) and director of Australia's Anvil Mining. The UN Panel of Experts (2002) cited Mwanke for illegal arms deals and plunder of Congo: Mwanke negotiated arms purchases through Belgian banks and the DRC mining company MIBA.<sup>67</sup> Reportedly, Mwanke personally clears $US 1,000,000 a day through his interests in Katanga mining deals.<sup>68</sup>

Anvil Mining has been involved in massacres in DRC.<sup>69</sup> Anvil directors include former U.S. Ambassador Kenneth L. Brown, who served at U.S. embassies in Brussels, Kinshasa, Congo-Brazzaville and South Africa. Brown was Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Africa (1987-1989) under George Schultz and George H.W. Bush and Director of Central African Affairs (1980-1981). The former top internal intelligence and security chief of the United Nations Observer's Mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC) has been worked for Anvil mining in Katanga since 2006.<sup>70</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT RAPE AND PLUNDER

Gertler/Steinmetz interests have also been jostling for copper and cobalt concessions with Kinross-Forrest Group. Gertler has bought up or invested heavily in companies just to close them down. George Forrest also made the UN hit list of Congo's looters and Forrest and his three sons helped bankroll Joseph Kabila's 2006 election "victory".<sup>71</sup> George Forrest's daughter is reportedly married to the son of Louis Michel. Malta and George Forrest are controlling directors in Katanga Mining Limited.

Born as Enterprise Générale Malta Forrest, the Belgian Forrest interests have been pillars of exploitation in Congo since at least 1922, when they launched mining operations in Katanga. Forrest's Katanga Mining directors include: three Canadians; Congo's Jean-Claude Masangu Mulongo, a former Governor of DRC and high official at the IMF and World Bank; and the current Governor of the Central Bank of DRC. The Forrest dynasty has munitions factories in Belgium and Kenya, and has partnered with OM-Group, in Ohio [USA], dealing in Congo's cobalt and coltan. Forrest International also operates in Europe, Burundi-involving him on both sides of Congo's bloody war-and the Middle East.<sup>72</sup> Forrest interests in DRC include aviation, foods, plantations, construction, logging, copper and cobalt mining. Forrest companies are enmeshed in the coltan plunder in eastern Congo.

Katanga is the world's richest mining metropolis, part of the vast copper belt that stretches across northern Zambia and southern Congo-and the home to unprecedented human misery due to state orchestrated repression and communities overrun with toxic mining, tuberculosis, cancers, immune disorders, racial discrimination and slavery. The Zambian copperbelt concessions over the border involve many of the same companies and interests mentioned above, and others.<sup>73</sup>

Workers and communities in and around these mines suffer all the standard treatable maladies (typhoid, malaria, tetanus, polio, malnutrition) as well. However, such stories are off the agenda for the North American, European, Japanese, Australian and Israeli media corporations providing the mainstay of English language indoctrination meant to instill racial superiority and a vast ignorance and obliviousness that leaves westerns populations shaking their heads and wringing their hands and clicking their tongues, while all the while wondering "what is to be done?" It does not cross people's minds that their own hands are dirty, that their own consciousness has been falsified, as all the raw materials from Congo enrich the lives of people in the United States, Canada, Europe and Israel.

The immediate capital investment required for just one Gertler project in Katanga-the Komoto Oliveira Virgule (KOV) project-is reportedly $US 1.8 billion dollars, income to kick start billions of dollars of unused equipment mothballed in the middle Mobutu era. There are rumors that Bechtel is involved, but the KOV project involves ThyssenKrupp AG as a minor player.<sup>74</sup>

The Krupp firm is one of several German firms involved in the plunder in eastern Congo, exploitation which involves the DeutscheGesellschaft für technische Zusammenarbeit- GTZ-a "German technological cooperation agency" whose Supervisory Board has representatives of four Federal [German] Ministries.<sup>75</sup> Krupp industries use coltan and cobalt for superalloys. <sup>76</sup> Dr.-Ing. Ekkehard D. Schultz, a ThyssenKrupp director, is also a director of Bayer AG, the Germany firm whose subsidiary H.C. Starck was named for its involvement in the ongoing illegal plunder of coltan and cassiterite (tin) in eastern Congo. NIKANOR director Jay Pomrenze is also a consultant for the Deutsche Bank.<sup>77</sup> Certain German and U.S. firms benefit from the military occupation of Rwandan-backed warlord Laurent Nkunda in North Kivu, DRC, where Nkunda controls the Lueshe niobium mine "owned" by Gesellschaft fuer Elektrometallurgie GmbH, a subsidiary of New York-based Mettallurg Group.<sup>78,79</sup>

HONOR THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER

Dan Gertler's grandfather, Moshe Schnitzer (d. November 2007), was known in Israel as "Mr. Diamond;" in youth he joined the pre-state underground organization Etzel (Irgoun), an Israeli military cell self-defined as an "ultra-nationalist Jewish militia," but one that committed acts of terrorism in service to the Israeli cause.<sup>8</sup> Moshe Schnitzer assumed a major role in the Africa-Israeli diamond trade in the 1950's in a partnership business called Schnitzer-Greenstein. Schnitzer later founded the Israel Diamond Exchange in Tel Aviv in 1960, which today brings Israel $14 billion annually in blood business, and is the country's second-largest industry, but Israel's top export. King Leopold III of Belgium decorated Schnitzer in recognition of his activities favoring the close relationship of Belgium, Israel and the DeBeers diamond cartels, and Schnitzer was also President of the Harry Oppenheimer Diamond Museum in Israel.<sup>80</sup>

The diamond jewelry trade in the United States is more than $30 billion annually, and 99%-everything that is not synthetic or artificial diamonds-involves blood diamonds and the above organized crime syndicates. Israel buys more than 50% of the world's rough diamonds, and the U.S. buys two-thirds of these. The diamond factories are located in Nethanya, Petach Tikvah, Tel Aviv, Ramat Gan, Jerusalem, and other cities around the country, but most of the offices were in Tel Aviv in the financial district on Ahad Ha'am Street.<sup>81</sup> Dan Gertler's father, Asher Gertler, and his uncle, Shmuel Schnitzer, manage the original family business, and Shmuel is Vice-Chairman of the Belgian-based World Diamond Council-the entity that spends more money promoting the false image of "conflict-free" diamonds than it does helping any of the people dispossessed or brutalized by the diamond industry.<sup>48</sup>

On August 16, 2007, Rabbi Bentolila in Kinshasa received a communication asking: "What does the Torah say about men exploiting other men for vast profits while other men are starving and dying all around them? Is there some hierarchy to the Torah that suggests, for example, that black people or Africans are lesser beings, and therefore not to be a concern where profound profits are being made?"

There was no reply from Rabbi Bentolila, he was apparently busy readying for another Bar Mitzvah in Belgium. Unfortunately for Dan Gertler and his spiritual advisers, the Torah says that a Jew can keep a slave, but a Jew kept as a slave must be redeemed, and that-an empty, foolish justification for exploiting innocent people-is how religion falsifies spirituality.

1. In January 2008 the International Rescue Committee, who is also discussed in this article, released its second survey of mortality in the Democratic Republic of Congo, estimating that 5,400,000 people have died, or some 1500 people every day. Mortality in the Democratic Republic of Congo: an Ongoing Crisis, International Rescue Committee, January 2008. However, IRC statistics are highly biased and politicized. See: keith harmon snow, "Over Five Million Dead in Congo?" Dissident Voice, February 4, 2008. [?]

2. Personal interview, Democratic Republic of Congo, August 2006. [?]

3. keith harmon snow, "Warlord's Deadly Battle, Toward Freedom, 2007. [?]

4. Officers: Antonio Teixeira, President & CEO; Robert G. Rainey, CFO; Brett Thompson, COO, Mining; Dimitri (Jimmy) Kanakakis, Vice President, Corporate & Legal Affairs; Bernard Poznanski, Corporate Secretary; Board Members: Brian Menell, Richard Dorfman, Bruce Holmes, Robert Rainey, Antonio Teixeira. [?]

5. See: "Africa/Diamonds: Rough diamonds," Africa Confidential, 5 March 2004, Vol. 45, No. 5; and "Equatorial Guinea: All Theft is Property," Africa Confidential, 17 Nov. 2006, Vol. 47, No. 23: p. 12. [?]

6. Tim Hoare, the head of the advisers that launched it, Canaccord Adams, sits alongside rock star and champion of Africa Bob Geldof on the board of the television-producti on company Ten Alps. See: Ben Laurance, "Energy firm link to blood diamonds," The Sunday Times, December 30, 2007. [?]

7. See: keith harmon snow, "A People's History of Congo's Jean-Pierre Bemba," Toward Freedom, September 18, 2007. [?]

8. Yossi Melman and Asaf Carmel, "Diamond in the rough," Haaretz, March 24, 2005. [?] [?] [?]

9. See: keith harmon snow, "Congo's President Joseph Kabila: Dynasty or Travesty?" Toward Freedom, November 13, 2007. [?]

10. Private interview, Kinshasa, August 2006. [?]

11. See: "Terror in the Diamond Fields: Excessive Force and Impunity in the DRC," Amnesty International Canada; Democratic Republic of Congo: Government should investigate human rights violations in the Mbuji Mayi diamond fields, Amnesty International, October 22, 2002. [?]

12. Making a Killing: The Diamond Trade in Government Controlled DRC, Amnesty International, 2002, AFR 62/017/2002 22/10/2002. [?]

13. See: "ICEM protests Congo's Transport, Diamond Injustices," International Federation of Chemical, Energy, Mine and General Worker's Union, May 7, 2007. [?]

14. "Diamond miners killed in DR Congo," BBC News, 7 August 2006. [?]

15. See: Jewish Africa and Chabad. [?]

16. Private communication, Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila, August 16, 2007. [?]

17. "Lag Baomer in Kinshasa," June 2005. [?]

18. "Visite de l'Ambassadeur Revah a' Kinshasa," Kadima 010, June-September 2007. [?]

19. See: keith harmon snow, "Behind the Scenes: Warlord's Deadly Battle in Congo," Toward Freedom, August 9, 2007. [?]

20. Nicole Gaouette, "Inside Israel's diamond trade: a family affair," Christian Science Monitor, 21 February 2002. [?]

21. Yitzhak Danon, "Top Israelis accused of illegal diamond deals: Israel: Lawsuit claims corruption in Congo diamonds for arms deal," Globes (Israel),

18 February 2004. See also: "Column One: What Lieberman Wants," Jerusalem Post, October 20, 2006. [?] [?]

22. Christian Dietrich, "Blood Diamonds: Effective African-Based Monopolies," African Security Review, Vol. 10, No 3., 2001. [?]

23. Yitzhak Danon, "Top Israelis accused of illegal diamond deals: Israel: Lawsuit claims corruption in Congo diamonds for arms deal," Globes (Israel), 18 February 2004. [?]

24. See: Keith Harmon Snow, "Behind the Scenes: Warlord's Deadly Battle in Congo," Toward Freedom, August 9, 2007. The Angolan military protected Kinshasa during the so-called "rebellion" involving Rwanda and Uganda. The Angolans do not like the Rwandans or Ugandans due to their military and commercial relations with Angolan rebels, the Unipol Nacional para a Independência Total de Angola (UNITA), and because Rwandan and Ugandan soldiers invaded Angola after their failed bid to control the Congo's strategic Inga Dam power station and Matadi port between 1998 and 2001. Angola sent troops to Congo in July and August 2006, and there were black Angolan troops amongst the European Union mercenary forces-EUFOR- sent to quell any possible rebellions during the "historic national elections." Angola also sent troops to Congo to back Kabila during the warlord's deadly battle of March 2007. [?]

25. "Presidential Chopper," Africa Confidential, Vol. 47 Number 23, November 17, 2006. [?]

26. See: Overseas Security Services Congo sprl web site. [?] [?]

27. OSS-Congo owner Philippe de Moerloose communicated with this author after his name appeared in a prior story mentioning OSS-Congo and offered to meet in Europe and provide the author with the "correct" information about his companies operations in Congo. Repeated communications with De Moerloose seeking clarifications and information for this story were not answered. [?]

28. See e.g., SEC info on Lenorth Holdings and SDG Marketing. [?]

29. Lior Chorev, The First [DRC] Diamond Polishing Plant to Move into Full Production, Press Release, DGI Group of Companies, January 11, 2005. [?]

30. ARAD Communications web site. [?]

31. Private communication, Lior Chorev, January 19, 2008. [?]

32. See: Keith Harmon Snow, "Over Five Million Dead in Congo?" Dissident Voice, February 4, 2008. [?]

33. Private email communication, Lior Chorev, January 19, 2008. See also: Gil Hoffman, "Olmert, Netanyahu Rivalry Gets Personal," Israel.jpost.com, March 26, 2006; "Sharon allies and foes joust over new party as March 28 elections are set," Associated Press, November 22, 2005. [?]

34. NATO Transformation, the Mediterranean Dialog, and NATO-Israel Relations, October 23, 2006. [?]

35. Yossi Melman and Asaf Carmel, "Diamond in the Rough," Haaretz, March 24, 2005. [?]

36. The Olayan Group web site. [?]

37. The Steinmetz Group. [?]

38. Gil Hoffman, "Politics; Unconscious Legacy," Jerusalem Post, features.jpost. com, January 3, 2008. [?] [?]

39. United Nations Panel of Experts Confidential Report. [?]

40. Under the contract Emaxon granted Miba loans totaling $5-million in 2003, and a further $10-million subsequently. In exchange, Emaxon gained rights to 88% of Miba's production at a discount, formally, of 5%. [?]

41. Herzog, Fox and Neeman web site. [?]

42. Tevapharm. [?]

43. See: keith harmon snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]

44. On Neeman and Hurvitz, see Markstone Capital Group; on Robert Rotberg, Maurice Templesman and the Harvard Belfer Center, see: keith harmon snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]

45. Criminal rackets known to the United Nations security were or some time illegally shipping uranium and cobalt out of Katanga by road to Zimbabwe and Tanzania (private interview, U.N. Official, 2006). [?]

46. Israel and Africa: Assessing the Past, Envisioning the Future, The Africa Institute American Jewish Committee and The Harold Hartog School Tel Aviv University, May 2006. [?]

47. Ron Ben-Yishai and Molly Camprier-Kritz, "The Murder Request Went to the Wrong Address," Yediot Aharonot weekend supplement on 19 September 1999. [?]

48. Nicole Gaouette, "Inside Israel's diamond trade: a family affair," Christian Science Monitor, 21 February 2002. [?] [?]

49. For a discussion of the veracity of these facts and more on the "Russian Military Brotherhood" see: Central Africa Minerals and Arms Research Bulletin, Edition 2, International Peace Information Service, June 18, 2001. [?]

50. Jimmy Johnson, "Israelis and Hezbollah Haven't Always Been Enemies," Appearing in Israeli Committee Against House Demolitions USA, 6 September 2006. [?]

51. Report of the Panel of Experts Appointed Pursuant to UN Security Council Resolution 1306 (2000), Paragraph 19, in Relation to Sierra Leone, December 2000. [?]

52. Energem web site; and also: keith harmon snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]

53. Mineweb. [?]

54. Charles Higham, Trading With The Enemy: The Nazi-American Money Plot, 1933-1949, Delacorte Press, 1983. [?] [?]

55. Susan Mazur, "Deeper Into the Dillon-Euphronios Nexus with David N. Gibbs," SCOOP, April 26, 2006. [?]

56. David Gibbs, The Political Economy of Third World Intervention: Mines, Money and U.S. Policy in the Congo Crises, University of Chicago Press, 1991. [?]

57. Eric Onstad, "UPDATE 2-CAMEC shares soar after agrees Congo joint venture," Reuters, Nov. 7, 2007. [?]
58. Brenna Chigonga, "Zimbabwe: Meet Country's Richest People," The Herald, July 14, 2007. [?]
59. See: Maurice Carney, "Congo's Contract Review," Pambazuka News, January 17, 2008. [?]
60. Martin Creamer, "Funded NIKANOR presses on with $1,8bn copper mine, refinery," Mining Weekly, September 21, 2007. [?]
61. Julie Walker, "Hersovs and Menells are in no hurry to yield control of Anglovaal," Sunday Times. [?]
62. Evelyn Groenink, "Arms deal: Who got R1bn in pay-offs?" Mail & Guardian, January 12, 2007. [?]
63. Teal Exploration & Mining web site. [?]
64. Press Release: Kenya-Uganda Oil Products Pipeline, Kenya-Uganda Joint Co-coordinating Commission for Extension of Oil Pipeline, August 17, 2005; see also: Energem web site. [?]
65. François Misser and Olivier Vallée "Des matières premières toujours convoitées. Les nouveaux acteurs du secteur minier Africain," Le Monde Diplomatique, May 1998, p.24-25; also Wayne Madsen, Genocide and Covert Operations in Africa, 1993-1999, Mellon Press, 1999. [?]
66. Diamond Fields International Management. [?]
67. 'Inculpations d'un Belgoise', Le Libre Belgique, 4 June 2004. [?]
68. Private interview, Kinshasa, DRC, April 2007. [?]
69. Norm Dixon, "Congo Massacre: Australian mining company's managers indicted," Green Left Review, November 4, 2006. [?]
70. His name is known, but he threatened to track down and break the author's legs if he is revealed. [?]
71. See: Barry Sergeant, "NIKANOR's Quandry: Meet Dan the Man, King of the Congo," MoneyWeb, 4 April 2007; "Congo Kinshasa: After the Election" Africa Confidential, Vol. 47, No. 23, 17 Nov. 2006; and United Nations Security Council Report to the Secretary General, S/2003/1027, 23 October 2003. [?]
72. George Forrest International. [?]
73. Personal investigation, Ndola, Zambia copperbelt mines, 2000. [?]
74. Nikanor. [?]
75. These are: the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ); Federal Foreign Office; Federal Ministry of Finance; and Federal Ministry of Economics and Labor. Since 1998 the Supervisory Board Chairman has been State Secretary Erich Stather from the BMZ. [?]
76. Karen Hayes and Richard Burge, Coltan Mining in the Democratic Republic of Congo: How tantalum-using industries can commit to the reconstruction of the DRC, Fauna & Flora Int'l, 2003. [?]
77. NIKANOR web site. [?]
78. Metallurg Group. [?]
79. See Keith Harmon Snow, "Three Cheers for Eve Ensler? Propaganda, White Collar Crime, and Sexual Violence in Eastern Congo," Z Magazine on-line (Z-Net), October 24, 2007. [?]

80. "Moshe Schnitzer: Un Legende s'en est Allee," Kadima 010, June-September 2007. [?]

81. "The Israel Diamond Exchange - Kiryat Moshe Schnitzer", Diamond Key, 2002. [?]

---

Windows Live: Keep your life in sync. Check it out.

| 29288|2009-07-04 07:41:41|odhiambo okech|SOS Thank you Dr Matunda, Dr Ochuodho & Friends of KCDN|

Dear Friends,

We just made a special and urgent request for support this morning, and I am happy that Mr. Lenny Amolo [3k], Dr Shem Ochuodho [2.5k], Mr Maurice Odenyo [2k], Mr Sam Olendo [2k], Dr Matunda Nyanchama [$100], have responded immediately. I have also received positive response from Arinolah, Sungu, Elijah Kombo and 2 friends in US who requests that they not named.

That makes the received pledges at Kshs 15.500.00. We are counting on your generous support to save KCDN from being evicted. And with your support, we are paying this bill tomorrow.

Kindly follow our request and also view the pictures on our blogspot;
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

We will always appreciate your support, and truly I believe, Yes we can.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi,
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,
Email; komarockswatch@yahoo.com,
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29289|2009-07-04 07:42:09|odhiambo okech|Appreciation from KCDN|

3rd July 2009

Dear Friends of KCDN,

For God said, Ask, and you will be given; knock and the door shall be opened unto you.

Those words are very true. At our darkest hour, or so we thought, we asked and knocked on doors. We were astonished at how swift the response was.

Many Friends of KCDN, people whom we have never met with, but Friends who believe in and support the kind of work we are struggling with, responded by promising and sending help. This is how we stand as at now;

- 1] Mr. Lenny Amolo; Kshs 3,000.00 cash
- 2] Dr. Shem Ochuodho; Kshs 2,500.00 sending
- 3] Mr. Maurice Odenyo; Kshs 2,000.00 cash
- 4] Mr. Sam Olendo; Kshs 2,000.00 cash
- 5] Dr. Matunda Nyanchama; $100 sending
- 6] Mr. David Ochwangi; $100 sending
- 7] Mr. Oduor Ongwen; Kshs 3,000.00 Mpesa
- 8] Ms Janet Feldman; $50 sent already via MoneyGram

We have also received communication from 2 Friends of KCDN in the US , and also from Ms Arinolah, Mr. Otieno Sungu, Mr. Elijah Kombo, Ms Pamela Butalanyi, Mr. George Nyongesa and Oloo Janak of their support. We will communicate all the details by end of day.

Our target is raising Kshs 53,730.00 and we have all the confidence that many more persons and institutions will come forward to give as support.

On behalf of KCDN, I want to extend our sincere thanks and appreciation to all Friends of KCDN. You have been there for us all the times. We draw our strength from your support.

Many thanks and blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,

CEO KCDN Nairobi.

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,

Email; komarockswatch@yahoo.com

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29290|2009-07-04 07:42:32|Lamar Perryman|Fw: [SOA] Re: HIV / AIDS Possible CURE
www.baariz.com|

--- On Thu, 7/2/09, Dr. Asim Awan wrote:

From: Dr. Asim Awan

Subject: [SOA] Re: HIV / AIDS Possible CURE www.baariz.com

To: oradeauniversity@yahoogroups.co.uk, OSSG_Off_track@yahoogroups.com, ourtanzania@yahoogroups.com, OurWorldView@yahoogroups.com, PanamaCityFreecycle@yahoogroups.com, panamaforum@yahoogroups.com,
panamas_net_free_cyber_cards@egroups.com,
Penpal_China@yahoogroups.com, People_to_People_Forum@yahoogroups.com, pepfar-nairobi@yahoogroups.com, petespond@yahoogroups.com, PhuLam@yahoogroups.com,
practisingestatedoctorsassociationlimited@yahoogroups.com.hk, pridefest_2006@yahoogroups.com, princessjane00@yahoogroups.co.uk, procedimientospoliciales@yahoogroups.com, raisa-net@egroups.com,
RETIEnPANAMA@yahoogroups.com,
Ryan_Carnes_photo_group@yahoogroups.com, safarie@yahoogroups.com, samsa-general@egroups.com, SanghaOnline@yahoogroups.com, Sexuales-Fantasias@yahoogroups.com, sichange@yahoogroups.com,
SilvaMethod@yahoogroups.com, SINNewYorkCity@yahoogroups.com, SixSigmaHR-subscribe@yahoogroups.com, SOA@yahoogroups.com, somatiko@yahoogroups.co.uk, southafricanthrillergirls@yahoogroups.com,
SouthBayFreeSharing@yahoogroups.com, Southern-Africa-
English@yahoogroups.com, southwestcasting@yahoogroups.com, spiritualdigest2003@yahoogroups.com, stormthewomanofthex@yahoogroups.com, Sudan_Sexy999-subscribe@yahoogroups.com, sudan-online@yahoogroups.com, sudannews@yahoogroups.com, Sudokuworld@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009, 6:22 PM

Dear All

Thanks for your over whelming response on Baariz, those who have expressed th desire to meet us during the International AIDS Conference in Cape Town , kindly note our itinerary as follows;

Check in : July 17 (Evening)

Check out July 27 (Noon)

For appointment please send email on drasim@baariz.com, our international roaming cell number would be +92300 8230798

Thanks & Regards

Dr. Asim Awan

+92301 8265 665

--- On Sun, 14/6/09, Dr. Asim Awan wrote:

From: Dr. Asim Awan

Subject: HIV / AIDS - Can We Called It CURE

To: biofeedback@ yahoogroups. com, candlemakingsurviva l@yahoogroups. com

Date: Sunday, 14 June, 2009, 12:07 PM

Greetings,

Iam pleased to share with the group, some of very interesting finding of our research on HIV / AIDS, (the objective was to find out CURE for HIV/AIDS).We were working on this project since 1994 and alhamdolillahresults are amazing.

Laboratory studies (in vitro) of this project were carried out in Nagoya University , Japan and clinical trials were conducted in Pakistan .

Thirty one HIV / AIDS +ve patients were treatedwith the test compound, 17 of them were cured(post treatment PCR negative) and in 9 patients mean viral load decreased by more then (72%). p value

I have posted alldetails with lab reports on the following web site, kindly spare sometime to visit the web, and share your thoughts as how the patientsin your part of the world can be benefited with this treatment success.

www.baariz.com

Should you need further information / clarifications please feel free to contact me any time.

Thanks & Regards

Dr. Asim Awan

M. D., M. Sc, D.P.A.

Co-Investigator

Mailing Address:

Office # 5, 5th Floor

Clinic Tower , Rimpa Plaza

M. A. Jinnah Road

Karachi, Pakistan.

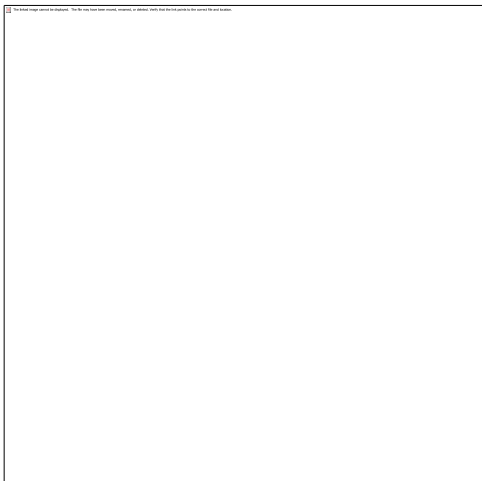

Tel: (Off) +9221 272 11 66

+9221 273 72 66

Fax: +9221 273 72 66

Cell: +92301 8265 665

SONS OF AFRIKA IS NOW A

JOIN AND SUPPORT

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD

of SOA * SONS OF AFRIKA

SUNDAYS @ 1 PM - 3 PM ET

6 PM UT / NOON CENTRAL / 10 AM PACIFIC

NATIONAL

HOLLAH~BLACK

a/k/a YOUR TWO CENTS

STREAMING LIVE WORLDWIDE FROM

BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM RADIO

SOA SUPPORTS THE REAL INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY

WATCH THE WORLD CONFERENCE AGAINST RACISM - REVIEW - APRIL 20-23, 2009

GET DISH NETWORK TV and SUPPORT SOA

THERE'S GOTTA BE A WAY FOR YOU TO ENDOW YOUR OWN EVERY DAY yo !***

BE THE BOSS !

WHAT IS BOSTON DOING WITH OUR STIMULUS ?

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD ~ OUR MINISTER OF INFORMATION

THANKS YOU BROTHER AMBASSADOR

AKBAR MUHAMMAD, INTERNATIONAL REP

THE NATION OF ISLAM
FOR JOINING HIM SUNDAY MARCH 15th, 2009

FOR A DISCUSSION OF

THE SO-CALLED INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT

ITS ILLEGITIMACY FOR BLACK PEOPLE ~ WHAT INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY yo ?

AND THE INDICTMENTS of PRESIDENT OMAR AL BASHIR

JEAN PIERRE BEMBA

and

CHARLES TAYLOR and others all over AFRIKA

JOIN AND SUPPORT

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD

of SOA * SONS OF AFRIKA

SUNDAYS @ 1 PM - 3 PM ET

5 PM UT / NOON CENTRAL / 10 AM PACIFIC

NATIONAL

HOLLAH~BLACK

a/k/a YOUR TWO CENTS

STREAMING LIVE WORLDWIDE FROM

BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM RADIO

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD

of SOA * SONS OF AFRIKA

THANKS YOU BRO. GARY LOSTER, CEO of

THE MOTHERLAND GROUP, LLC and

FOR CALLING LIVE FROM DETROIT MI USA on

THE PROPOSED SLAVERY MUSEUM and RESORT

ON NIGERIA'S COAST

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD

of SOA * SONS OF AFRIKA

THANKS YOU

SAMYOON

BOSTON CITY COUNCILOR and 2009 MAYORAL CANDIDATE

and

TOP MALE N.E. URBAN MUSIC AWARDS NOMINEE

L PRODUCT

FOR JOINING HIM on

THE *NEW

NATIONAL HOLLAH~BLACK

SUNDAY FEBRUARY 22nd, 2009

FEB 19, 1999 - FEB 18th, 2009 !

INFORMING and BRINGING

OUR PEOPLE TOGETHER

GOING ON 11 YEARS !

SUPPORT of SONS OF AFRIKA

NOW WILL YOU HOLLAH~BLACK?

SUNDAY FEBRUARY 15th at 1 PM - 3 PM ET

617-373-2657 617-373-2658

1 PM ~ 3 PM ET USA
(6 PM Universal Time 10 AM PAC Time)

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD LIVE

SUNDAY ON THE NEW
NATIONAL

HOLLAH~BLACK

a/k/a YOUR TWO CENTS

THANK YOU

BOSTON NEEDS A NEW MAYOR ?

BOSTON CITY COUNCILOR-AT- LARGE MIKE FLAHERTY

FOR JOINING MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD LIVE IN THE WRBB STUDIOS

on THE REAL STATE OF THE CITY OF BOSTON

SUNDAY FEBRUARY 8th, 2009

LIVE WORLDWIDE ON LINE FROM

BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM RADIO

SUPPORT SONS OF AFRIKA TODAY !

THE NATIONAL HOLLAH~BLACK

SUNDAYS at 1:00 PM ET LIVE WORLDWIDE ON LINE FROM BOSTON

*** ( ^

~ ~ ~ ~ ~ YO !

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD of SONS OF AFRIKA
THANKS YOU

SISTER AKUA NJERI, WIDOW OF FRED HAMPTON SR and CHAIR OF DECEMBER 4th, COMMITTEE

and

BROTHER FRED HAMPTON JR, SON OF CHAIRMAN FRED AND CHAIR OF PRISONERS OF CONSCIENCE COMMITTEE FOR CALLING TO BLACK BOSTON LIVE FROM CHICAGO IL USA

WITH

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD

of SOA * SONS OF AFRIKA

SUNDAY NOVEMBER 30th, 2008

on the NEW

NATIONAL HOLLAH~BLACK

STREAMING LIVE FROM BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD of SONS OF AFRIKA
THANKS YOU

BROTHER KAMBALE MUSAVULI, STUDENT COORDINATOR FOR

FRIENDS OF THE CONGO

on

SAVE D R CONGO !

SUNDAY NOVEMBER 23rd, 2008 @ 1 PM ET

on the NEW

THE NATIONAL HOLLAH~BLACK

STREAMING LIVE WORLDWIDE ON LINE FROM

BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM RADIO

CALLING ON COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES SONS OF AFRIKA CALLS UPON ALL OF YOU TO

SPONSOR A 'BREAK THE SILENCE WEEK WHERE YOU ARE

CAN BROTHER~PRESIDENT SAVE D R CONGO ?

CAN YOU AND I yo ?

THE MOST VALUABLE RESOURCE OF OUR PEOPLE !

YOU AND YOUR TWO CENTS -

617-373-2657 and 617-373-2658

**~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD of SONS OF AFRIKA

THANKS YOU ALL

BROTHER JESSE MUHAMMAD, Independent Blogger

and FINAL CALL CONTRIBUTING WRITER

SISTER KRYSTAL MUHAMMAD OF

NEW BLACK PANTHER PARTY - HOUSTON CHAPTER

and

MOTHER JACQUELINE MCLELLAN, MOTHER OF BRANDON MCLELLAN - LIVE FROM PARIS TEXAS
FOR CALLING IN TO BLACK BOSTON
FOR

NO COUNTRY FOR 'BLACK MEN' !

SUNDAY OCT. 19th, 2008 @ 1 PM ET

5 PM UT or GMT / NOON CENTRAL / 10 AM PACIFIC

on

THE NATIONAL HOLLAH~BLACK

WE MUST ACT ON

THE SEPTEMBER 16th, 2008 DRAGGING DEATH OF

24 y.o. BRANDON MCLELLAND in PARIS TEXAS

TEN YEARS AFTER THE SAME HAPPENED TO JAMES BYRD JR
ON JUNE 7th, 1998

LIVE WORLDWIDE ON LINE FROM

BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM RADIO

**~ ~ ~ ~ ^ ~ ~ ~ ~

JOIN

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD OF

SOA \* SONS OF AFRIKA

SUNDAYS @ 1 PM ET USA

5 pm ut or gmt / noon central / 10 am pac

on THE NEW NATIONAL HOLLAH~BLACK

BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM RADIO

STREAMING LIVE WORLDWIDE ON LINE !

MAKES YA WANNA HOLLAH~BLACK

LIVE WORLDWIDE ON LINE !

from BOSTON'S WRBB 104.9 FM RADIO

STREAMING LIVE WORLDWIDE ON LINE !

MAKING BOSTON RESIDENTS GRADUATES OF

READ~I~NESS ..... U

ESCAPE FROM BOSTON !

The culmination of Minister~General Ahmad's
2006 Year-Long FM Radio Coverage of Boston's EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS PLAN ~

READY BOSTON

which aired on BOSTON NEIGHBORHOOD NETWORK TV on Thurs October 12, 2006 - after a plane crashed into a New York apartment building STREAMING NOW ON DEMAND ! ON

HARAMBEE ~on demand~ TV

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD of WATOTO AFRIKA ~ BOSTON

SAYS FLOOD THEM WITH CALLS AND E MAILS

THE U.S. SENATE ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE

DEMANDING JUSTICE FOR OUR SISTER IN !

THE RAPE AND MURDER OF LAVENA JOHNSON of STL

our 19 year old black sistah

WHILE SERVING THE ENEMIES OF BLACK PEOPLE IN IRAQ

JULY 2005 ~ HER DEATH COVERED UP BY THE U.S.
MILITARY !

MUHAMMAD WALKS .....too

secure e check or credit card donation to Sons Of Afrika

AND YOU DIDN'T SUPPORT SOA YET YO !

FEBRUARY 19th, 2008 - 10 YEARS OF

EDUCATING, INFORMING, INSPIRING AND BRINGING

OUR PEOPLE TOGETHER ACROSS 33 COUNTRIES .....

ALL DAY, EVERY DAY - SINGLE-HANDEDLY BY

MINISTER~GENERAL AHMAD of SONS OF AFRIKA ~
BOSTON

NIGGA~TIVITY MUST END

LYNCH THE 'N' ~ WORD

Conscious Hip Hop - by KAMAL SUPREME

DONATE DIRECTLY

SUPPORT SOA * SONS OF AFRIKA

YOU CONTROL YOUR SUBSCRIPTION - IT'S EASY !

IF YOU FIND MORE
MAIL THAN YOU CAN HANDLE,

GO TO YOUR SPACE ON YAHOO!GROUPS

AND CLICK SOA or SONS OF AFRIKA

THEN CHANGE THE WAY YOU GET MESSAGES,

E MAILS (20 - 30 per day)

DAILY DIGEST ( 1 per day)

NO E MAIL (TO YOUR BOX - READ 'EM ON THE WEB)

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE LOST/FOUND SONS OF AFRIKA BLACK PLANET NEWS ARCHIVE

DISCLAIMER

Articles posted on this list are shared with subscribers who expressed prior interest in SONS OF AFRIKA, and/or the advancement and survival of Black and oppressed people, and information and feedback for charitable research and educational purposes
pursuant to:

Program and Position of Sons Of Afrika of 1971

and

UNITED STATES CODE TITLE 17

check it here !

courtesy of CORNELL U

WARNING !
BIG BROTHER IS COMIN'

SONS OF AFRIKA DOES NOT "SPAM" Instructions for Unsubscribing from SOA are IN
ALL welcome and invitation messages and are attached to most outgoing messages
SOME PEOPLE JUST DON'T READ THEM

Washington Commercial Electronic Mail Act

WHAT IS SPAM AND JUNK MAIL

AND

WHAT ARE YOUR RIGHTS AND OURS

Further transmissions to you from the group may be stopped by sending a BLANK MESSAGE to

soa-unsubscribe@ yahooogroups. com

Easy UnSubscribe From SOA GLOBAL COMMUNITY - IF ON SONS OF AFRIKA - USE THAT AS LISTNAME-UNSUBSCRIBE
....

Kwa Jina La Mwenyezi Mungu
Mwingi wa Rahema Mwenye Kurahemu Swahili

Au Nom d'ALLAH
le Tout Misericordeux
Le Tres Misericordeux
French

En El Nombre De ALA,
El Compasivo
El Misericordisio
Spanish

Egameni likALLAH
Onomusa
Onesihawu
Zulu

In Names ALLAHS
des Gnadigen
des Barmherzigen
German

In The Name Of ALLAH
The Beneficent
The Merciful English

bIsmiLLAHir
Rahmanir
Rahim Arabic

SOA CENTCOM
Ahmad Mubarak Abdulibad
Minister General RAS

BLACK in Men

GO THERE YO !

Click to subscribe to Sons Of Afrika

ENDOW OUR OWN ~ EVERY DAY

| 29291|2009-07-04 07:42:34|Ginger Daniels|Climate change skeptics swelling everywhere|
Wall St. Journal
JUNE 29, 2009

The Climate Change Climate Change
The number of skeptics is swelling everywhere.

By KIMBERLEY A. STRASSEL

Steve Fielding recently asked the Obama administration to reassure him on the science of man-made global warming. When the administration proved unhelpful, Mr. Fielding decided to vote against climate-change legislation.

If you haven't heard of this politician, it's because he's a member of the Australian Senate. As the U.S. House of Representatives prepares to pass a climate-change bill, the Australian Parliament is preparing to kill its own country's carbon-emissions scheme. Why? A growing number of Australian politicians, scientists and citizens once again doubt the science of human-caused global warming.

Among the many reasons President Barack Obama and the Democratic majority are so intent on quickly jamming a cap-and-trade system through Congress is because the global warming tide is again shifting. It turns out Al Gore and the United Nations (with an assist from the media), did a little too vociferous a job smearing anyone who disagreed with them as "deniers." The backlash has brought the scientific debate roaring back to life in Australia , Europe, Japan and even, if less reported, the U.S.

In April, the Polish Academy of Sciences published a document challenging man-made global warming. In the Czech Republic , where President Vaclav Klaus remains a leading skeptic, today only 11% of the population believes humans play a role. In France , President Nicolas Sarkozy wants to tap Claude Allegre to lead the country's new ministry of industry and innovation. Twenty years ago Mr. Allegre was among the first to trill about man-made global warming, but the geochemist has since recanted. New Zealand last year elected a new government, which immediately suspended the country's weeks-old cap-and-trade program.

The number of skeptics, far from shrinking, is swelling. Oklahoma Sen. Jim Inhofe now counts more than 700 scientists who disagree with the U.N. -- 13 times the number who authored the U.N.'s 2007 climate summary for policymakers. Joanne Simpson, the world's first woman to receive a Ph.D. in meteorology, expressed relief upon her retirement last year that she was finally free to speak "frankly" of her nonbelief. Dr. Kiminori Itoh, a Japanese environmental physical chemist who contributed to a U.N. climate report, dubs man-made warming "the worst scientific scandal in history." Norway's Ivar Giaever, Nobel Prize winner for physics, decries it as the "new religion." A group of 54 noted physicists, led by Princeton's Will Happer, is demanding the American Physical Society revise its position that the science is settled. (Both Nature and Science magazines have refused to run the physicists' open letter.)

The collapse of the "consensus" has been driven by reality. The inconvenient truth is that the earth's temperatures have flat-lined since 2001, despite growing concentrations of CO<sub>2</sub>. Peer-reviewed research has debunked doomsday scenarios about the polar ice caps, hurricanes, malaria, extinctions, rising oceans. A global financial crisis has politicians taking a harder look at the science that would require them to hamstring their economies to rein in carbon.

Credit for Australia's own era of renewed enlightenment goes to Dr. Ian Plimer, a well-known Australian geologist. Earlier this year he published "Heaven and Earth," a damning critique of the "evidence" underpinning man-made global warming. The book is already in its fifth printing. So compelling is it that Paul Sheehan, a noted Australian columnist -- and ardent global warming believer -- in April humbly pronounced it "an evidence-based attack on conformity and orthodoxy, including my own, and a reminder to respect informed dissent and beware of ideology subverting evidence." Australian polls have shown a sharp uptick in public skepticism; the press is back to questioning scientific dogma; blogs are having a field day.

The rise in skepticism also came as Prime Minister Kevin Rudd, elected like Mr. Obama on promises to combat global warming, was attempting his own emissions-reduction scheme. His administration was forced to delay the implementation of the program until at least 2011, just to get the legislation through Australia's House. The Senate was not so easily swayed.

Mr. Fielding, a crucial vote on the bill, was so alarmed by the renewed science debate that he made a fact-finding trip to the U.S., attending the Heartland Institute's annual conference for climate skeptics. He also visited with Joseph Aldy, Mr. Obama's special assistant on energy and the environment, where he challenged the Obama team to address his doubts. They apparently didn't.

This week Mr. Fielding issued a statement: He would not be voting for the bill. He would not risk job losses on "unconvincing green science." The bill is set to founder as the Australian parliament breaks for the winter.

Republicans in the U.S. have, in recent years, turned ever more to the cost arguments against climate legislation. That's made sense in light of the economic crisis. If Speaker Nancy Pelosi fails to push through her bill, it will be because rural and Blue Dog Democrats fret about the economic ramifications. Yet if the rest of the world is any indication, now might be the time for U.S. politicians to re-engage on the science. One thing for sure: They won't be alone.

Write to kim@wsj.com

Printed in The Wall Street Journal, page A15

---

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.
| 29292|2009-07-04 07:42:40|Shu Tefnut|A RUDE AWAKENING: Dr Ray Higgins YouTube video!|

Sent: Friday, July 3, 2009 3:20:47 PM
Subject: Dr Ray Higgins You have received a YouTube video!

Check this out. Click on below.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=qsZ7z2AveUw>

| 29293|2009-07-04 07:42:56|Pearl Jr|My Finale with Michael Jackson|

My Finale with Michael Jackson

When Lois Lane died, Supermans greatest sorrow lead to the use of his immense power to circle the world counter clock-wise, at top speed over and over again, to turn back time to bring his love back to life. That lead to the most popular movie ending . . the happily ever after.

After days of wishing I was Superman, reality MUST set in that my lifelong love, Michael Jackson, has transitioned to a place of peace and non-judgment.

For you, the thousands on my email list that have written expressing your deepest concerns, THANK YOU from the bottom of my heart. Now, I must explain how I was able to be the first to signal that something was terribly wrong at Michael Jacksons compoundan ambulance had arrived . . . left with sirens sounding.

It was 12:24 pm, when my phone rang. It was Linda, the owner of Hot Star Maps, who has been selling maps to stars homes for decades. And as of November 2008, her greatest dream came true, Michael Jackson moved into the house where she has been stationed on the street corner, for more than 10 years, selling maps. Lindas voice was rattling while she managed to tell me that an ambulance just went into Michaels home.

She had no idea why, for what, or for whom the ambulance was intended. She continued to give me details that the fire trucks had also arrived and then the fire chief. The only response, an activist like myself, could do was ACT, Im on my way was all that came out my mouth and encompassed a nervous energy from deep inside.

While in the shower, the pondering of whether or not, I should alert the press, my MJ fan list, and all my wonderful subscribers what was happening at Michael Jacksons house, I had to tell myself to use discretion. So I prepared a short email and scheduled it to be sent out in about one hour, hoping it was nothing but, perhaps, the gardener cut his hand while manicuring the beautiful bushes that surrounded Michaels rented mansion in Holmby Hills, California.

As my mind and body raced with fear that perhaps the ambulance was there for Michael, I decided to call Joe Jacksons home and alert him, but his messages were full. Immediately after, I called Michaels brother, Randy, and left a message that an ambulance was at MJs compound it was only 12:34 pm at this point.

After pondering for a few more moments, at 12:43 pm, I posted this message on my tiny www.twitter.com/pearljr page, which was then posted on several Michael Jackson websites, An insider just told me that an ambulance just went into the compound of Michael Jackson's home. No details why or for what reason or who.

By 12:44, I was out of the house with camera in tow, heading to Michaels house in comfortable jeans, flip flops and wearing absolutely no make-up. While driving, my cell phone rang. It was Lindas assistant, Shae, stating that the ambulance had just left with sirens sounding. She furthered explained that she asked one of Michaels bodyguards, Will Michael be O.K.? He responded by putting his head down and didnt speak a word. We continued to talk for a few more moments and hung up.

That was the first time, I thought, that maybe, the paramedics were there for MJ. Using my voice command, yelling call home, my fianc<sup>韻</sup>nd business partner, Cecil, answered the phone. I asked him to add this to the pre-scheduled email, Minutes ago, the ambulance just left Michael's home with sirens sounding. He did and pressed the SEND button.

While on the 101 freeway heading to the always crowded 405, my driving accelerated in cautionary speed. The phone rang again, it was Linda frantically telling me she asked a fireman on the scene, Do you think Michaels gonna be O.K.? He replied, I dont know, it doesnt look good. I screamed and we started to cry. Now, weaving through traffic finding any empty space to move myself closer to Michaels house, my speaker phone would lose its signal, giving me more anxiety that was needed under the circumstances, so we decided to hang up.

A few moments later, the phone rang again. It was Shae, telling me she believes they took Michael to UCLA Medical Center. Since I hadnt yet reached Michaels home, I drove directly to UCLA. Now, finding the hospital on that massive campus was another feat that had to be worked out. I rolled down the window and asked unsuspecting students where is the hospitals emergency room? Their directions lead me there without making one wrong turn.

At arrival, the first thing I saw was Michaels two dark blue SUVs, one with the emergency blinkers still on but both were empty. I put my car in valet and looked for any familiar face. Talithia, a dedicated fan was alone on the phone. I ran to her and we immediately hugged and started to cry together. We were trying to reassure each other that Michael would be O.K.

Then I tried to get inside the hospital, but to no avail, security was already guarding the door asking to whom I was there to see. For whatever reason, I couldnt say Michael Jackson, so I just cried and walked away not knowing what to do next.

Since I hadnt heard back from Randy, I tried to get a hold of my emotion and called him back at about 1:30 pm and left another message updating him about what the fireman said, but surely he could hear the fear and trembling in my voice. From then on, fan after fan arrived hugging, updating, and crying with one another. Then the valet closed down, soon after, the entry into the emergency parking lot was bordered off, and more and more cameramen started to arrive. By then, my phone started to ring off the hook asking me what I knew. Id give them whatever information I had.

At 2:30 pm, Jackson family members arrived. I only saw Katherine walk into the hospital, but found out that Jermaine, Randy and sister Latoya were also in the hospital. The street quickly filled with more and more people with and without cameras.

My friends would continue to call and tell me that the news is reporting that Michael Jackson had died. I couldnt believe it and wouldnt believe it until the hospital confirmed it or a Jackson family member said it was true.

Then it seemed out of nowhere, there was Linda running up to me crying hysterically and introduced me to a woman named Christy. We all hugged and then called Angel, the Jackson Family publicist, who told us to wait for official confirmation from the family before giving up all hope. Then a slim glimmer of hope, an upgrade that maybe Michael was in a coma was being reported by the LA Times. I thought that is better than dead, but soon after that, a woman asked if she could interview me and the woman I had just met and cried with. We agreed and refused to admit that Michael was gone. We praised MJ with the most love and admiration we could muster, making statements like, he was not only the greatest entertainer that ever lived but also the greatest humanitarian as well.

Now, the entire street is blocked off and hundreds of people filled the area. Eventually, MJ's song, Heal the World was blasting. It was hard to first find out where the music was coming from. I followed the sound and discovered, it was coming from some college students apartment from across the street. It sounded like an ode to Michael's life, which was highly offensive because I just didn't want to believe that Michael had passed.

Confirmation confirmation was all that rummaged through my mind, but my cell phone lost its charge, therefore, I lost my connection to the latest news reports.

Then, I saw former Jackson Family attorney, Brian Oxman, to whom I recognized while I was a reporter at the 2005 child molestation trial. I ran up to him and asked him on camera, was Michael O.K.? He quickly started telling me that he wouldn't report on Michael's condition but that Randy and Jermaine were crying in the hospital. Soon cameras were everywhere following us and asking him question after question.

Less than one hour later, Jermaine Jackson confirmed that Michael had passed away at 2:26 pm on June 25, 2009.

Michael is Gone Too Soon.

As a 5 year old little girl, I first saw little Michael Jackson on the Ed Sullivan Show and Ive loved him ever since. I had the pleasure of being a reporter and supporting plus continuously defending Michael during and after his 2005 full acquittal of child molestation. We, Elbow Grease Productions, produced the documentary, Michael Jackson The Trial and Triumph of the King of Pop that tells the TRUE facts.

We have ALWAYS believed the world deserves to know the TRUTH! The documentary features interviews with Tom Mesereau, Jermaine Jackson, and many other celebrities, and details the happenings of the King of Pop up until March 5, 2009--the announcement of his This Is It sold-out performances at Londons O2 Arena that were scheduled to begin on July 13, 2009.

The DVD documentary will be available in the United Kingdom and Ireland on July 1, 2009 (ASDA (supermarket chain), WH Smiths, HMV, Bertrams) and in the USA on July 14, 2009. Pre-orders are available on amazon.com

www.MichaelJacksonInsider.com

Our Mission Continues . . .

DVD- "Michael Jackson The Trial and Triumph of the King of Pop" Documentary (amazon.com)

| 29294|2009-07-04 08:07:23|Shu Tefnut|Fw: Reminder AFRICA / EGYPT / NUBIA:
EDUCATIONAL TOUR|

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Shu Tefnut

To: afrikanunity_ofharlem@yahoo.com; HERU BENNU AMEN RA ; Eugene Bennett ;
bnyee@googlegroups.com; dr.garaia@africanidea.org; friends@templehealing.com;
GatherTheFires@yahooogroups.com; happilynaturalday@yahooogroups.com; hndsupport@gmail.com;
luv4self_network@yahooogroups.com; mwananchi@yahooogroups.com; NABSE@yahooogroups.com;
nnabakyaala.afrika@gmail.com; openyourthirdeye@yahoo.com; smaitawi@yahooogroups.com;
Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com; thanubian2@yahoo.com; trueblackness@yahooogroups.com

Sent: Friday, June 12, 2009 7:00:12 PM

Subject: Reminder AFRICA / EGYPT / NUBIA: EDUCATIONAL TOUR

Africa / Egypt / Nubia Educational Tour.

August 15th through August 24th

Starting at $2379.00 P.P Double Room

Join Us As We Return to the Motherland.

Join us on our annual tour, as we return to the motherland. Lets experience the great works and wonders of our ancestors, who were

the builders of the Great Pyramids, Sphinx, and many temples. You will enjoy the historical sites from Nubia to the Giza Plateau. Experience the beginning of world civilization which was influenced by ancient Egypt. Experience Nubia, which is the foundation and beginning of the Nile Valley civilization which is called Ancient Egypt. We will visit the Nubian Museum which boasts the antiquity of Ancient Egypt with artifacts going back 90,000 years. You will witness and see stone pictographs, tools made of metal (copper) and ancient sites, before there was an Egyptian Dynasty. Learn the history of Egypt and come back to the beginning of knowledge with Bro. Heru Bennu Amen Ra. (aka George Bennett M.F.A.) African Art historian, Archeologist Researcher/Lecturer, From Paleolithic (Kush) to (kemet) Egypt.

Day 1: - Departure from USA

Board your international flight to Cairo and begin your journey back in time to Egypt, and Nubia the holy land.

Day 02 - Cairo

Arrival in the Land of the Pharaohs. At Cairo International airport you will be welcomed and assisted through immigration and customs by our representative, then escorted to Hotel.

Day 03: - Cairo, Aswan

After breakfast, you will begin a full day of sight seeing in Cairo which include the Pyramids, Sphinx, Egyptian Museum, and the bazaar. Camel ride opportunity-overnight in Cairo.

Transfer to Railway Station to board night train to Aswan. Overnight on board.

The Pyramids of Giza:

The only present-day survivors of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World, The Pyramids of Giza are among the world's greatest tourist attractions and never lose their ability to inspire and overwhelm visitors. The largest and oldest of the Pyramids of Giza is that of Cheops (Khufu). The Pyramids of Khafre the Great and Menkaure the Divine may not be as large in size as the Great Pyramid, but they are no less imposing in fascination.

Sphinx

The Sphinx remains a symbol of strength, wisdom and mystery for eons. Partially buried several times over the years by the shifting desert sands, the Sphinx now stands fully exposed with its impressive dimensions visible to all. The body of a lion with the head of a king or god, the Sphinx lines up with the Pyramid of Khafre. After visiting the Pyramids of Giza, proceed to visit the Egyptian Museum.

The Egyptian Museum

The Egyptian Museum was built during the reign of Khedive Abbas Helmi II in 1897, and opened its doors on November 15, 1902. Today, the museum contains the most important collection of Egyptian antiquities in the world. Exhibited are over 120,000 objects from the Pharaonic and Greco-Roman periods, including the celebrated mummies of ancient Egyptian kings and the treasures of King Tutankhamen. After Lunch, drive to Old Cairo, where early Judaism and Christianity flourished in Egypt. Visit the Ben Ezra Synagogue and Saint Sergious Church

Day 04: Aswan, Abu Simbel, Aswan

transferred to your hotel. The next morning

After breakfast you will be transferred to airport

for your flight to Abu Simbel visit the colossal Temple of Ramses II and the temple of his beloved Queen Nefertari, both temples carved out of a hillside beside the Nile in the 13th century BC. Transfer back to the airport for your flight back to Aswan. Upon arrival you will be escorted to your 4D/3N cruise.

Accommodation aboard your cruise ship will consist of a cabin with private facilities. In the afternoon, you will be escorted to visit the Nubian Museum, Temple of Philae, and the Broken Obelisk

The Nubian Museum

Located in the city of Aswan, on the eastern bank of the Nile, 899 kilometers south of Cairo. The museum is a three-story building with an outdoor exhibition area. It houses the main finds of the UNESCO salvage campaign carried out at the time of the building of the High Dam, which eventually flooded that whole region. Another major exhibit is a diorama which shows the daily life of Nubian villagers. Dinner & overnight on board.

Day 05 : Aswan - Kom Ombo Edfu

Philae Temple

On a small island in the Nile near Aswan stands the amazing Temple of Isis at Philae. This monument is possibly best known for the international effort which moved it in its entirety to the island when its original location was threatened by the change in water level caused by the High Dam. The temple has been completely dismantled and rebuilt to the original orientation on the nearby island of Agilika which rises higher from the water and has been reshaped and landscaped to resemble the original Philae. Sail to Komombo. Visit the temple shared by the two Gods Sobek and Haroeris

Temple of Kom Ombo:

The temple is actually made up of two temples: that of Sobek and that of Haroeris. In ancient time, crocodiles waded in the river. There are two entrances, two courts, two colonnades, two hypostyle halls and two sanctuaries. There were probably even two sets of priests for the two temples. Despite being badly damaged, the temple is a beautiful sight as one approaches from either direction on the river, particularly as sunset nears and the colors change. Overnight in Edfu.

Day 06: Edfu - Esna - Luxor

After breakfast, visit the temple of Horus in Edfu

The Temple of Horus:

Of all the temples of ancient Egypt, the one at Edfu is the most complete and best preserved. The reason is that the temple had been totally submerged under the desert except for the very top of the pylon entrance. A small amount of stone had been removed from the exposed part, but when excavated it was found to be in near perfect condition. Sail to Esna, cross the lock, then sail to Luxor and overnight.

Day 07: Luxor

Disembarkation after breakfast. Cross to the west bank. And visit Valley of the Kings, the Temple of Queen Hatshepsut and the Colossi of Memnon.

Valley of the Kings & Queens:

A vast City of the Dead where magnificent tombs were carved into the desert rocks, decorated richly, and filled with treasures for the afterlife by generations of Pharaohs. You will also see the Valley of the Queens.

Temple of Queen Hatshepsut:

The temple built in El Deir El Bahari on the west bank of the Nile in Luxor by queen

Hatshepsut, who ruled Egypt for almost 20 years. She chose a very well protected location as it is surrounded by the mountains

Colossi of Memnon:

Two large colossal sculptures of Amenhotep III also foundation of temple.

On the way back to the river Nile, your road passes by the famed Colossi of Memnon, known in Ancient Greek times for their haunting voices at dawn. Transfer to the railway station to board your first class sleeping train to Cairo. Overnight on board.

Day 08: Cairo

Upon arrival you will be escorted to Hotel in Cairo. Rest of your day at leisure.

Suggested Tour Visit the pyramids of Saqqara, and the tombs of Kagemeni and Ptah hotep

Day 09: Day of leisure suggested tour

Old Cairo:

Is so named because it is the oldest part of Cairo, and in fact, predates what is now Cairo. Later, the Romans built a fortress here which we call Babylon. Some of these Roman walls still exist. Later, it became a Christian stronghold, with as many as 20 churches built within an area of one square mile. There are only five remaining from which is the Church of St. Sergius (Abu Serga), which legend has it is built atop one of the sites where the Holy Family rested on their flight from Herod. Overnight at hotel.

Day 10: Sun Departure

After breakfast, transfer to Cairo International Airport for your flight back to the USA.

Great trip.

Contact info: For more details contact Dr. Bennett ( 347-495-4289 ) or Egyptian Connections at ( 800-334-4477 )

Itinerary subject to change

Day

1 Depart from JFK

Day

2 Upon arrival to Cairo, you will be met and escorted to your Cairo Hotel -

Overnight

Day

3

After your breakfast, you will begin your full day of sight-seeing in Cairo, which will include the Egyptian Museum, Bazaar, Pyramids and Sphinx. Camel ride Opportunity -

- Transfer to train station for trip to Aswan. Overnight on train
- Day 4 Upon arrival, transfer to your Hotel for Check in. Afternoon visit of the Nubian Museum.
Overnight in Hotel.
- Day 5 After Breakfast, transfer to your deluxe Nile Cruise (Optional Abu Simbel Tour). After Orientation, enjoy your tour to the Temple of Philae, which is dedicated to the goddess Isis. Sail to Kom Ombo
- Day 6 Visit the Temple of Kom Ombo, shared by the two Gods Sobek & Haroeris. Sail to Edfu. Upon Arrival to Edfu, visit the Temple of Horus. Sail to Luxor
- Day 7 Cross the Nile to visit the Valley of the Kings and Queens, the Temple of Hatshepsut and the Colossi of Memnon. In the afternoon, visit the Temple of Karnack, the largest religious complex in the world, and the Temple of Luxor with its elegant colonnaded hall, Evening Captain's Dinner party Overnight on Board.
- Day 8 Disembark, rest of the day at Leisure in Luxor, 7 PM. Transfer to the train station for a trip to Cairo Overnight on train
- Day 9 Day Free at leisure.
- Day 10 After your breakfast, you will transfer to the airport for your homebound flight

Africa/Egypt Reservation Form

Please print this Form and e-mail, fax to 201-678-0077, or mail to our address:

Name of Traveler:

Name of Companion:

Phone:

Mailing Address:

(Separate forms should be completed in case more than two are joining the trip)

Payment Information: (Please check the appropriate boxes)

Basic Package

$2379.00

Single Supplement $239.00

Abu Simbel ( Optional) $230.00

All above are per person Total

Reservation and deposits:

A $200.00 per person deposit by check only is required to initiate the booking.

Full amount is requested 45 days prior to departure date.

Full payment is requested for any booking made less than 45 days before departure.

Note: Payments made by check received less than 30 days prior to departure must be certified.

Cancellation and Refunds:

All cancellations should be received in writing.

$75.00 per person administration fees will apply on all cancellations 45 days prior to departure.

20% cancellation fee will apply 44-30 days prior to departure|50% for 29-7days|100% for less than 7 days

No refund for any unused service while on tour.

No refund can be made for intangible items such as hardship, unpleasantness, or the like.

Travel Insurance is strongly recommended, please call & inquire within.

235 Main St. Suite 202
Hackensack, NJ 07601

www.EgyptOnTheWeb.com

| 29295|2009-07-04 11:28:21|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Climate change skeptics swelling everywhere|

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Ginger Daniels wrote:

>

>

> Wall St. Journal

> JUNE 29, 2009

>

>

> The Climate Change Climate Change

> The number of skeptics is swelling everywhere.

>
>

The article did not provide any evidence that the number of skeptics is "swelling everywhere."

That type of information would have to come through some kind of tracking poll.

Regards,

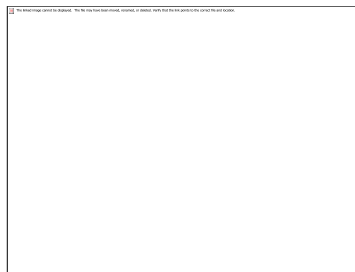

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29296|2009-07-04 12:08:17|Paul Kekai Manansala|Tomb of Amen-Em-Epet, Supervisor of Hunters|

Eu-eke-a!

During excavation work at the Tombs of the Nobles on Luxor's West Bank an Egyptian archaeological mission has stumbled upon what it believes is the tomb of Amen-Em-Epet, Supervisor of Hunters during the reign of the monotheistic Pharaoh Akhnaten, reports Nevine El-Aref

The rock hewn 18th Dynasty tomb consists of an open courtyard and two halls, one square, the other rectangular. It has a deep shaft where the mission unearthed the remains of mummies, funerary seals and fragments of pottery vessels. In the court, says Mustafa Waziri, director-general of Luxor's West Bank inspectorate, another shaft was discovered containing a well preserved mummy that may belong to the tomb's owner.

Click to view caption

The walls of the tomb had been covered with a black substance, and it had clearly been reused on a number of occasions. Yet when a section of the wall was cleaned, says Waziri, it revealed beautiful decorations.

Zahi Hawass, the secretary-general of the Supreme Council of Antiquities (SCA), told Al-Ahram Weekly that the mission had located two further undecorated tombs at the north western side of Epet's tomb, one containing seven funerary seals bearing the name Amenhotep-Ben-Nefer, the Supervisor of the Cattle of Amun, the other seals with the name of Eke, Royal Messenger and Supervisor of the Palace. Fragmentary remains of unidentified mummies have

- Front Page
- Egypt
- Special
- Focus
- Region
- Economy
- International
- Opinion
- Press review
- Reader's corner
- Culture
- Features
- Living
- Sports
- Cartoons
- People
- Listings
- BOOKS
- TRAVEL
- Site map

also been found, as well as a collection of Ushabti figures.

Copyright Al-Ahram Weekly. All rights reserved

| 29297|2009-07-04 13:51:44|Tafari khumbaka|Re: {Spam?} Re:is the congo the worst place on earth?|

tua/thanks for info!

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 7/3/09, Alex van Deelen wrote:

From: Alex van Deelen

Subject: [Ta_Seti] {Spam?} Re:is the congo the worst place on earth?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, July 3, 2009, 9:39 AM

" is the congo the worst place on earth? "

Is there a competition going?

If you want to know more about the DRC,
follow the money, and read:

<http://dissidentvoice.org/2008/02/gertlers-bling-bang-torah-gang/>

Gertler's Bling Bang Torah Gang

Israel and the Ongoing Holocaust in Congo (Part 1)

by Keith Harmon Snow / February 9th, 2008

Maurice Tempelsman is one of the top funders of the Democratic Party who has funded Barrack Obama and Hillary Clinton. Templesman was the unofficial ambassador to the Congo (Zaire) for years, but a new Israeli-American tycoon has replaced him. In the world of bling bling and bling bang, some things change, some stay the same. The CIA, the MOSSAD, the big mining companies, the offshore accounts and weapons deals-all hidden by the Western media. The holocaust in Central Africa has claimed some six to ten million people in Congo since 1996, with 1500 people dying daily.<sup>1</sup> But while the Africans are the victims of perpetual Holocaust, the persecutors hide behind history, complaining that they are the persecuted, or pretending they are the saviors. Who is responsible?

For Israeli-American Dan Gertler, business in blood drenched Congo is not merely business, it is a quest for the Holy Grail. Young Dan Gertler goes nowhere-does nothing-without the spiritual guidance of Brooklyn-born Rabbi Chaim Yaakov Leibovitch, a personal friend of Condoleeza Rice.<sup>2</sup> Gertler and Leibovitch are two of the principals behind a diamond mining company, Emaxon Finance Corporation, involved in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). Gertler and gang won the majority rights to the diamonds from the state mining company, Sociéte Minière de Bakwange, MIBA, found near the government-controlled town of Mbuji-Mayi, the rough diamond capital of the world.

Emaxon Finance Corp. has apparently out-manuevered diamond competitors, especially the big rivals Energem and De Beers. Energem is one of the many shady mining companies connected to Anthony Teixeira, a Portuguese born businessman now residing in South Africa whose daughter married Congolese warlord Jean-Pierre Bemba. The warlord's deadly battle in Congo in March 2007 was a bid between rival agents-Jean- Pierre Bemba and Joseph Kabila-to be the black gatekeeper for the mining cartels run by dynastic families like Templesman, Oppenheimer, Mendell, Forrest, Blattner, Hertzov, Gertler and Steinmetz, and for companies like NIKANOR, whose stock prices rose early in July 2006 in expectation of a July 30th "win" for Joseph Kabila.<sup>3</sup> Africa Confidential called President Kabila's 2003 visit to the Bush White House a "coup" for the Israeli diamond magnates Dan Gertler and Beny Steinmetz.

Canadian-based Energem, formerly DiamondWorks, is owned by British mercenary

Tony Buckingham and its director/shareholders include Mario and Tony Teixeira, J.P. Morgan, and Gertler's partner Israeli-American Beny Steinmetz (50%).<sup>4</sup> Through subsidiary Branch Energy, the Energem-DiamondWorks gang has perpetuated war in 11 African countries.<sup>5</sup> In December 2007, Energem re-launched itself on the London Stock Market with the newly laundered image of a renewable energy company. Regarding diamonds, it said only it "had decided to give up exploration rights in the Central African Republic."<sup>6</sup> The Energem spokesman explained that Tony Teixeira "had a clean bill of health" etc., etc. Of course, Energem "quit" the C.A.R. because Jean-Pierre Bemba marched his troops into C.A.R., where they raped and pillaged widely.<sup>7</sup> Energem is still operating in Congo, but Dan Gertler is the new, unofficial ambassador to the Congo for the George W. Bush gang.

Gertler and partners like Beny and Danny Steinmetz, Nir Livnat, Chaim Leibovitz and Yaakov Neeman run a hornet's nest of companies involved in African hotspots, including: Dan Gertler International (DGI), Steinmetz Global Resources, International Diamond Industries, NIKANOR and Global Enterprises Corporate.

"Dan Gertler is 'the new kid on the block,'" writes Yossi Melman in Israel's Haaretz news. "Bold, sophisticated, brutal, he is an adventurer with a short fuse." Haartz confirmed that Dan Gertler owns a complex network of interconnected companies, often registered in offshore tax havens and involved in India, Russia, Belgium and the United States, and that Dan Gertler is looking to God for guidance.<sup>8</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT STEAL

"In the diamond industry," Melman wrote, "Gertler is considered something of an odd bird. He maintains few ties with the other merchants and is not very sociable. Alongside his business affairs, most of his energy is channeled into matters of faith. He is a donor to religious institutions and from time to time makes a pilgrimage to the rabbi he most admires, Rabbi David Abuhatzera, from Nahariya, in order to consult with him and receive his blessing. Gertler is surrounded mostly by religious people and laces his speech liberally with praise to God."<sup>8</sup>

In 2003, Condoleezza Rice, then Assistant to President Bush for National Security Affairs, introduced Dan Gertler and Chaim Leibovitch to U.S. official Jendayi Frazer, a Harvard Kennedy School affiliate and former National Security Council agent focused on Africa. On December 6, 2006, Frazer, then Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, was one of seven special Bush delegates sent to the inauguration of Congo's newly installed President Joseph Kabila in Kinshasa.<sup>9</sup>

When Dan Gertler and Chaim Leibovitch and their friends visit the luxury Gertler villa in Lumumbashi, the capital of Katanga, Congo's large southern province, their kosher meals arrive by private plane from Kinshasa. The special executive jet that flies their kosher meals a few hundred miles over the roadless Congo costs some $US 23,000 per trip.<sup>10</sup>

The average income for Congolese citizens each year-if they survive it-is about $95. Shootings at mining facilities and diamond mines are common, land is stolen from Congolese people, strikes are crushed by security forces that companies are partnered with, and black overseers of state terror routinely arrest and torture any vocal opposition-and sometimes disappear them-in support of white bosses. The Socié Minière de Bakwange-MIBA- and the diamond fields of Mbuji-Mayi in Congo have a long history of bloodshed backed by Western powers, including Israel, from the beginning.<sup>11</sup> Amnesty International points out that not a single state agent has ever been prosecuted for the extrajudicial executions of suspected "illegal" miners in Mbuji-Mayi.<sup>12</sup>

After a century of exploitation and slavery, we find MIBA consistently withholding payment of salaries to starving Congolese laborers and middle managers for months at a time. April and May 2007 saw strikes and protests leading to the Kabila government's arbitrary arrest, detention and torture of trade union organizers like Leon Ngoy Bululu; police have also shot protestors.<sup>13</sup> So-called 'illegal' diamond workers-disenfranchised local Congolese people forced into "criminal" activities to survive-were summarily executed on MIBA concessions in Mbuji-Mayi. MIBA security guards have also been sniping unemployed diamond miners.<sup>14</sup>

Meanwhile, Dan Gertler's kosher meals depart Kinshasa, the capital of the big Congo, through the arrangements of Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila, high priest of the Chabad of Central Africa. Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila has been a Kinshasa Rabbi since 1991, and he was a spiritual force who survived the terrorism of the old dinosaur, Mobutu Sese Seko, the way most elites did: by working with him. Rabbi Bentolila is a member of the Chabad Lubavitch Global Emissary Network, headquartered in Brooklyn, New York, and his wife Miriam is the sister of Rabbi Mena'hem Hadad, a high priest in Brussels.<sup>15</sup>

"Kosher does not mean that a Rabbi blesses the food," Rabbi Betolila corrected me, "but rather that the food was supervised by a Rabbinical Thora [sic] authority who sees that the ingredients were in accordance with the laws of Kashrut expressed in the Bible (Leviticus and Deuteronomy) ." <sup>16</sup>

Dan Gertler often flies people into Congo, on his private jet, for sacred Jewish rituals. For the Bar Mitzvah of Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila's son Binyamin Avraham in June 2005, guests included eminent Rabbis, Hassidic singer Yoni Shlomo and special orchestra Yossef Bami, all arriving in "special flights" from Israel, New York and Brussels. The reception was held at the luxurious and exclusive Memling Hotel. Joseph Kabila sent a sizeable delegation but did not attend: his closest advisers provided a blessing on his behalf.<sup>17</sup>

The Gertler, Steinmetz and Templesman interests are advanced in part through the support of the Committee of the Jewish Community of Kinshasa-le Comit   de la Communaut   Isra  l  te-that is tightly coordinated with the power structure in Kinshasa to exert influence and assure control of Israeli-Belgian- Anglo-American interests over the geopolitical arena.

From June 26-30, 2007, the Communaute Israelite de Kinshasa received a visit from the Israeli Ambassador Yaakov Revah, director of the Africa Department of the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Revah also flew to Lumumbashi for meetings with Dan Gertler and his agents, including Moishe (Moses) Katumbi, the Governor of Katanga, and they most likely enjoyed a lovely, $23,000 kosher meal sent from the Chabad in Kinshasa.<sup>18</sup> The Communaute Israelite de Kinshasa maintains very intimate political relations with President Joseph Kabila's PPRD party, the People's Party for Reconstruction and Democracy. On March 1, 2006, in a formal ceremony, the President of the Communaute Israelite de Kinshasa, Ashlan Piha, was awarded the Congo's Medal of Civil Merit.

THOU SHALT NOT COVET

Before his assassination on January 16, 2001, Laurent Desire Kabila-the President of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC)-made a deal with the Gertler gang that would play out in favor of the current President Joseph Kabila and, it seems, be a central factor in relation to both Congo's ongoing war and the bloody warlord's battle in Kinshasa in March 2007.<sup>19</sup>

Back in 2000, former Congolese president Laurent Kabila offered a monopoly on Congolese diamonds, and 88% of the proceeds, to Gertler's International Diamond Industries (IDI) in exchange for Israeli military assistance to his new government.<sup>20</sup> Top Congolese military officials apparently flew to Israel in 2000 to negotiate the deal. Gertler pledged military assistance to President Laurent Kabila through top Israeli officials.<sup>21</sup>

The original Gertler-Kabila deal fell through after Laurent Kabila was assassinated for not cooperating with the Great White Fathers of industry (January 2001), but Gertler and Leibovitch and their disciples formed another company, Dan Gertler International, and advanced their Congo plan.<sup>22</sup> By 2002 Gertler's company was the leading exporter of Congolese gems, controlling a diamond mining franchise worth about $US 1 billion annually.<sup>23</sup>

In 2003, the mighty Congolese diamond parastatal Societe Miniere De Bakwanga (MIBA)-which has been forever controlled by the Great White Fathers in Belgium, Israel and America-signed an exclusive contract with Gertler's startup company, Emaxon Finance International. The deal involved Israeli's Foreign Defense Assistance and Defense Export Organization (SIBAT), and high-level Israeli defense and intelligence officials. Gertler and his buddies reportedly bribed Congolese officials and Angolan generals who, on and off, have commanded Angolan Army troops protecting Kinshasa, Congo's capital.<sup>21,24</sup>

Security for mining operations in Congo is provided by exclusive security companies like Overseas Security Services (OSS) one of the many DRC interests of Belgian billionaire tycoon Philippe de Moerloose. A member of the Kinshasa elite, de Moerloose supplies jets and other presidential toys to DRC President Kabila. In 2006, President Joseph Kabila's campaign helicopter was at the centre of a legal battle involving Philippe de Moerloose.<sup>25</sup> De Moerloose's companies operated in Mobutu's Zaire from at least 1991, backing state terrorism and Western corporate plunder that was rendered invisible by the Western media. De Moerloose is also an adviser to European Union (EU) Commissioner- and diamantaire- Louis Michel.

Dan Gertler and Philippe de Moerloose were, reportedly, the only two white men who attended the wedding of Joseph Kabila and the two clearly share interests in "security" provided by OSS at MIBA and elsewhere in Congo. The

April 2003 secret agreement signed between the Gertler/Steinmetz company Emaxon Finance and the Kabila government involved MIBA and two de Moerloose companies, OSS-Congo and Demimpex, and other firms.

Overseas Security Services (OSS) operations are apparently grounded in the experience of top expatriate security operatives formerly involved with the biggest security firm in Mobutu's Zaire.<sup>26</sup> According to OSS public relations materials, "these persons have a not unimportant experience in the safety of this country."<sup>26</sup> Providing mine security, body-guard and protection services, OSS operates in Burundi, Ivory Coast, Rwanda, Dubai, South Africa, Republic of Congo (Brazzaville) and Belgium, placing them in cahoots with all sides warring and plundering eastern Congo today.<sup>27</sup>

Emaxon Finance International is a real gem, one of these octopuses of mining tangled up with interlocking companies and subsidiaries based in specious geographical offshore "tax havens" that work to shield from prosecution people who are responsible for money laundering, weapons and drugs operations, assassinations and other terrorism.

NIKANOR is registered as an Isle of Man (UK) company, an offshore tax haven that helps to conceal criminal activities and maximize profits. NIKANOR directors include Dan Kurtzer, former U.S. ambassador to Israel (2001-2005) and Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Intelligence and Research under Madeleine Albright. NIKANOR partners include Mende and Moshe

Gertner [sic], Israeli property tycoons with vast holdings in London who control 22 percent of NIKANOR. Another partner is Israeli-born Nir Livnat, managing director of Johannesburg-based Ascot Diamonds, a member of the Steinmetz Group of Diamond Companies, and a principal involved in numerous U.S.-based businesses from Miami to New York.<sup>28</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT BEAR FALSE WITNESS

Back in 2001, when the Gertler enterprises surfaced in dirty diamond deals, public relations was handled by Lior Chorev, the "Special Strategic and Communications Consultant" to International Diamond Industries (IDI), and Chorev continued in this role to support Dan Gertler businesses.<sup>29</sup> Today, Lior Chorev is partnered with the brothers Yuval and Eyal Arad as director-owners of the Israeli marketing and public relations firm, ARAD Communications.<sup>30</sup>

"We do work for Mr. Gertler on some of his business issues," said Lior Chorev.<sup>31</sup> ARAD's many clients include Dan Gertler companies, Los Angeles-based Coral Diamonds and an Israeli aeronautics weaponry manufacturer producing Unmanned Aerospace Vehicles (UAVs)-robotic weapons and intelligence platforms like those being used against the people of Congo today.<sup>32</sup> As a political strategist, Lior Chorev has worked for Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and current Prime Minister Ehud Olmert.<sup>33</sup> He has also participated in Israel-NATO defense planning conferences. <sup>34</sup>

Dan Gertler is close to Israeli politicians, especially Avigdor Lieberman, head of the right-wing Yisrael Beiteinu party, and he is very close to diamondaire Beny Steinmetz, a good friend of Prime Minister Ehud Olmert. Gertler's inseparable friend, Chaim Leibovitz, is also very close to Lieberman, and was "a regular fixture" in Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's offices.<sup>35</sup>

Beny Steinmetz is considered to be one of the richest billionaires in Israel. The Steinmetz Group, controlled with his brother Daniel, is one of the biggest clients of the de Beers diamond syndicate. Steinmetz is also involved in an Israeli real estate group that purchased the assets of the British Haslemere real estate company for $1.46 billion. Steinmetz's real estate partners include the billionaire Israeli investors David and Simon Reuben, and the Saudi Arabian Olayan Group, an investment company that is deeply connected with Bechtel Corporation. <sup>36</sup> The Steinmetz web site map of operations hides their involvement in war-torn Congo.<sup>37</sup>

Seems Dan Gertler's land grabs and exclusion in Congo have a lot in common with the current crimes against humanity being committed by Israel through its illegal partition in the Middle East. On January 3, 2008, the Jerusalem Post reported that Lior Chorev was an integral part of past Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's advisers, and he was recently quoted to say that even though Sharon did not get to finalize Israel's final borders (he suffered a debilitating stroke in 2006), the route of the security fence-which he decided-would ultimately serve as the basis for the border and as Sharon's lasting legacy.<sup>38</sup>

"He felt he needed to set the border because he didn't trust the younger generations, " Chorev was quoted to say. "He knew the fence route by heart and the reason for every stretch of land being on one side or the other."<sup>38</sup>

In 2003, the U.N. Panel of Experts on war in Congo revealed that Emaxon Finance International is controlled by Israeli diamond traders Chaim Leibovitz and Dan Gertler.<sup>39</sup> Emaxon lists as its address an office in Montreal, Canada, but Emaxon's majority shareholder is listed as FTS Worldwide, a nebulous global corporation whose business address is that of a firm of lawyers, Mossack Fonseca & Company, in Panama City. FTS Worldwide is registered with the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission to lawyer Andre Zolty of Geneva Switzerland. A copy of the MIBA-Emaxon contract was signed on 13 April 2003 by Israeli-Americans Yaakov Neeman and Chaim Leibovitz.<sup>40</sup>

Yaakov Neeman is a founding partner of Herzog, Fox and Neeman, Tel Aviv, one of Israel's top law firms, and he has held Israeli government cabinet and ministerial positions.<sup>41</sup> Neeman is on the Advisory Board of Markstone Capital Group, a very influential group of investment bankers, with Eli Hurvitz. On the board of Israel's Teva Pharmaceutical Industries with Eli Hurvitz is Northrup-Grumman director Philip Frost.<sup>42</sup> Both Philip Frost and Maurice Templesman are top-level councilors for the American Stock Exchange. Eli Hurvitz sat on the International Advisory Counsel of Harvard University's Belfer Center, 2002-2005, during the period when the Belfer Center and their intelligence operative Robert Rotberg formalized the "Kimberley Process" to officially whitewash blood diamonds.<sup>43</sup> Yakov Neeman is also a governor of the World Zionist Organization and Jewish Agency for Israel.

One of the main objectives of the Kimberley Process, and the Harvard Belfer Center's role, was to protect the South African Oppenheimer and De Beers diamond cartels and their leading buyers and agents like Maurice Templesman and Beny Steinmetz.<sup>44</sup> Added to those diamond industry firms whitewashed by the Kimberley Process are all the Zionist diamond dealers and cartels that have risen like a phoenix out of the ashes of the Holocaust.

The Israeli-American enterprises of the Gertler/Steinmetz gang have proliferated and today are major shareholders or owners of diamond concessions in Congo's Kasai province and copperbelt concessions in Katanga. The copperbelt is the big money in Congo. Copper prices recently hit an all time high due to monopoly control by corporations and new applications in transportation, aerospace and weaponry. Cobalt is used in dye and paint processes for manufacturing. More importantly, it is elemental to superalloys used for tank armor, spacecraft, turbines, ship hulls, ship hulls, blast furnaces, refineries, petroleum drilling rigs, nuclear reactors and nuclear weapons. Like coltan, or columbium-tantalite, cobalt is also used in cell phone batteries. The Katanga copperbelt is also rich in germanium, a rare metal used in optical fibers, infrared lenses and telecommunication satellites.<sup>45</sup>

The entire military-industrial-prisons complex revolves around minerals like cobalt, niobium and heterogenite (cobalt oxide), yet the truth about what happens to African people in lands taken over by these mining companies is hidden by the corporate media. More and more land is being stolen, more and more atrocities committed, with less and less transparency, and less and less accountability, and fewer and fewer voices for the voiceless. And, as usual, there are always a lot of empty promises.

THOUGH SHALT HAVE NO OTHER GODS

Over the past fifty years, elite Israeli nationals have perpetrated conflict and injustice in Africa, fueled by and for minerals. Operatives associated with the Israeli military or intelligence services-the Mossad-maintain strategic criminal syndicates in competition and in partnership with other syndicates involving men like Philippe De Moerloose, Louis Michel, Viscount Etienne Davignon, John Bredenkamp and Tony Buckingham.

Israeli trained shock troops became Mobutu's bodyguards, with Mossad advisers. According to a report by the American Jewish Committee: after 1980 "Mossad agents, military emissaries, and a small group of private businessmen. replaced diplomats as Israel's main interlocutors with African leaders and political (mainly opposition) groups." The report cites rising involvement of private defense and security interests, especially in Angola, DRC and Central Africa Republic, since 1992.<sup>46</sup>

Israeli operatives and "businessmen" appear everywhere there is egregious suffering and dispossession. Dan Gertler's forays into the bloody world of diamonds involve Israeli arms dealers Yair Klein, who is reportedly wanted by the U.S. for training Medellin drug-cartel militias in Colombia, and Dov Katz.<sup>47</sup> Klein was convicted by Israel (1991) for his involvement with groups that targeted and assassinated Colombian politicians, journalists, and police. Jailed in Sierra Leone in 1999, Klein was a field representative for Gertler in war-torn Sierra Leone and Liberia. Gertler also mingles with the Russian Military Brotherhood, a group of "retired Russian generals whom Gertler describes as good friends."<sup>48, 49</sup>

Retired Israeli Defense Forces Colonel Yair Klein reportedly organized arms for diamonds networks in Sierra Leone and Liberia after President Charles Taylor was deposed. In 1999, Klein was arrested in Sierra Leone on charges of smuggling arms to the rebel Revolutionary United Front.<sup>50</sup> The U.N. also documented collaborations between Sierra Leone' rebels and Lazare Kaplan agent Damian Gagnon; Lazare Kaplan International is one of the organized crime syndicates of Jewish American Maurice Templesman.<sup>51</sup>

The Steinmetz Group of companies are also involved in the bloody diamond fields of Sierra Leone, along with Energem (formerly DiamondWorks) , the company described above that is connected to the white mercenaries depicted in Hollywood's Blood Diamond propaganda film.<sup>52</sup> In December 2007, local people in Sierra Leone struggling to gain the smallest livelihood from their own resources were shot by police during peaceful protests against the Steinmetz-controlled Koidu Holdings site. It's the same old local people's story happening everywhere. These were people from communities driven off their own land by mining companies that promised the world, cajoled the trusting people, and gave nothing after. The Steinmetz gang called in the local paramilitary, a curfew was imposed and people were shot; the police, as usual, falsely claimed that protesters were armed.<sup>53</sup>

Like most mining mafias in Africa, the Israeli octopus-organized crime syndicates, offshore subsidiaries, interlocking directorships and affiliated mercenaries- has gripped the very heart of Congo like an octopus grips and stuns its prey. Mining regulates the pulse of Congo, and foreign mining companies with their black sell-out agents are sucking the blood out of the people and the wealth out of the land.

THOU SHALT NOT KILL

Beyond the intriguing Jewish rivalry for diamonds in the heart of darkness, this tale takes a chilling turn with the involvement of certain German firms and New York City lawyers. NIKANOR, another Gertler/Steinmetz company of dubious origins operating in DRC, has a subcontract with the notorious ThyssenKrupp conglomerate, a company comprised of two former Nazi weapons manufacturers linked to the New York law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, to Brown Brothers Harriman & Co., Lehman Brothers, Chase Manhattan Bank, J.P. Morgan, DuPont and IBM, in the great Nazi-American money plot.<sup>54</sup>

These companies were all behind the Jewish Holocaust. The infamous German Krupp firm is the industrial corporation that collaborated with former CIA director Allen Dulles and former U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Clients of the Dulles brothers' law firm Sullivan and Cromwell included Adolph Hitler.<sup>54</sup> Ted Terry, one of the senior counselors of the law firm Sullivan and Cromwell today, is also a director of a philanthropy called the Harold K. Hochschild (HKH) Foundation, named for the mining magnate behind AMAX, a company operating in the copperbelt in Zambia, but whose parent company, Phelps Dodge, operates in Katanga, Congo. Harold K. Hochschild was close to the CIA, and he appears to have backed the Katanga succession in the 1960's just as Dan Gertler in recent years backed the reorganization of power in Congo by force. Sullivan and Cromwell was also the law firm for AMAX. <sup>55,56</sup>

Brown Brothers Harriman & Company (BBH) was the primary Wall Street connection for German companies and the U.S. financial interests of Fritz Thyssen, an early financial backer of the Nazi party. BBH bought and shipped millions of dollars of gold, steel, fuel, coal, and U.S. treasury bonds to Germany. These were used to build Hitler's war machine, and the ties proliferated even after the Nazi concentration camps began churning out skeletons. The horrors of the concentration camps at Auschwitz, Birkenau and Buckenwald became public knowledge long before they became public outrage. It is the same story for Congo.

A PRAYER FOR THE DEAD

There are no records or statistics of the numbers of people brutalized or killed in the diamond or cobalt mining areas, like Kolwezi, Mbuji Mayi, Tshikapa, Banalia, or Kananga in DRC, or Ndola in Zambia, and many of the victims of security abuses will never be known.

When Gertler and Steinmetz and their buddies came to Congo it was soon clear that they had to challenge Zimbabwean tycoons John Bredenkamp and Billy Rautenbach-two cronies of dictator Robert Mugabe involved in pillaging Congo and Zimbabwe for decades. The United Nations Panel of Experts on DRC named both men for plundering copper and cobalt from Katanga, and both deal globally in weapons. Bredenkamp is one of the fifty richest men in England and he reportedly owns a mansion several doors down from Margaret Thatcher's residence in London.

On November 7, 2007 it was reported that Dan Gertler was instrumental in putting together a deal in which Katanga Mining Ltd. would buy rival NIKANOR for $2.1 billion and merge their adjacent mine projects in Congo to form the world's largest cobalt company. Also announced was a joint venture between the Central African Mining & Exploration Company (CAMEC) and another Gertler-controlled firm called Prairie International Limited.

The CAMEC/Prairie joint venture will exploit DRC's Luita copper processing facility, develop the Mukondo Mountain cobalt mine-called the world's richest cobalt mine-and work on "other" exploration properties. Prairie is majority owned by the family of Dan Gertler. CAMEC is connected to Zimbabwean/South African/British tycoon Billy Rautenbach.<sup>57</sup> The DRC government effectively banned controversial Zimbabwean businessman Billy Rautenbach from the country by declaring him persona non grata in July 2007, but this doesn't seem to stop him from getting what he wants. Rautenbach is also wanted in South Africa on 300 charges of fraud, corruption and theft.

Rautenbach is a former motor car rally driver who controls a business empire in Southern and Central Africa through a British Virgin Islands company called Ridgepoint Overseas Development Limited. In 1998, the short-lived President of Congo, Laurent Kabila, named Rautenbach the managing director of La Générale des Carrières et des Mines (Gécamines), one of Africa's biggest cobalt mines, the Katanga properties of the Union Minière de Haut Katanga formerly developed by the Belgian colonial government. Rautenbach today is one of the Africa's largest exporters of heterogenite (cobalt ore) from the DRC through his Congo Cobalt Company (CoCoCo), but he also has shares in two other lucrative DRC mining firms-Boss and Mukondo-which reportedly earn over US$100 million a month.<sup>58</sup>

While there has been a lot of Western media fanfare over the Kabila governments' supposed "independent" review of mining contracts, little substantive change can be expected.<sup>59</sup> Structural factors exploit the Congolese people and lands and benefit white businessmen, arms dealers, bankers, and their embraceable black agents. Big business benefits from perception management articles well-placed in media to give the impression that the international system is just, that there are watchdogs, checks and balances.

However, while the DRC and the World Bank present a propaganda front about their ostensible attention to mining reform and the new mining code, NIKANOR-Mining Journal reports-"is in the advantageous position of having entered into a post mining-code contract, 'which makes us [NIKANOR] relatively comfortable' "60 In other words, the mining review is a sham, it may force some changes, but it will be cosmetic at best.

Dan Gertler and the Steinmetz Group's partner Jewish-American Nir Livnat is also a director of Anglovaal Mining with Rick and Brian Menell and Basil Hersov of the South African Menell and Hersov dynasties.<sup>61</sup> Hersov has been named as a beneficiary of fraud and racketeering involving British BAE Systems weapons deals with shady offshore companies.<sup>62</sup>

The octopus of South African connections is a story in itself, with links to top officials from Britain to Canada, like Canadian Senator J. Trevor Eyton, and offshore mining companies involved in all the big money (diamonds, gold, petroleum, cobalt) and big corporations with interlocking directorships: Coca Cola, Nestl , General Motors, and the Bush-connected Barrick Gold Corporation. Barrick, of course, is partnered up with the Oppenheimer/ De Beers firm Anglo-American Corporation at six sites in Africa, including Congo.

Rick Menell is a director of Bateman Engineering- owned by Benny Steinmetz-the junior partner of the NIKANOR projects in Katanga. Britain's Earl of Balfour is a director of both Bateman and NIKANOR. Menell is also the director of Teal Exploration and Mining, whose directors include Joaquim Chissano, former President of Mozambique; Murray Hitzman, a Clinton administration official with the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy (1994-1996); Hannes Meyer, who worked with Anglo-Gold Ashanti in Congo, 1999-2006, when militias in Ituri were funded to get the gold out. Teal Exploration also has ties to Anvil Mining and Anglo-American Corporation. <sup>63</sup>

Brian Menell, Nir Livnat's associate on the board of Anglovaal, is on the board of Energem (formerly DiamondWorks) with Tony and Mario Teixeira. The Livnat connection ties Teixeira into networks that have supported both Joseph Kabila and Jean-Pierre Bemba in Congo's bloody wars. Energem is also involved in the trans-Uganda- Kenya pipeline, along with Nexant, a subsidiary of the deep intelligence and defense insider Bechtel Corporation. <sup>64</sup>

Brian Menell is also on the board of First Africa Oil, which operates in seven African countries, and First Africa Oil director John Bentley is a director of Osprey Oil and Gas, whose directors include Carol Bell, a director of the Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan Bank. Bentley is also on the board of Adastra Minerals-formerly America Mineral Fields (AMF, AMFI, AMX), a company based in 1995 in Hope, Arkansas-and set up by Robert Friedland and Max and Jean-Raymond Boulle, notable "friends of Bill" Clinton. Since 1995, American Mineral Fields has been involved in Brazil, Russia, Norway, Zambia, Angola and the DRC. A criminal backer of the war in DRC, Jean-Raymond Boulle, who holds 36.4 % of the company stock, was the former General Director of De Beers in Zaire, part of the Templesman alliance of terrorism under the Mobutu regime.<sup>65,66</sup>

The Gertler/Steinmetz interests apparently curry huge favors with Congo's number two most powerful man, Augustine Katumba Mwanke, one of Joseph Kabila's closest allies and financiers, former Governor of Katanga (1998-2001) and director of Australia's Anvil Mining. The UN Panel of Experts (2002) cited Mwanke for illegal arms deals and plunder of Congo: Mwanke negotiated arms purchases through Belgian banks and the DRC mining company MIBA.<sup>67</sup> Reportedly, Mwanke personally clears $US 1,000,000 a day through his interests in Katanga mining deals.<sup>68</sup>

Anvil Mining has been involved in massacres in DRC.<sup>69</sup> Anvil directors include former U.S. Ambassador Kenneth L. Brown, who served at U.S. embassies in Brussels, Kinshasa, Congo-Brazzaville and South Africa. Brown was Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Africa (1987-1989) under George Schultz and George H.W. Bush and Director of Central African Affairs (1980-1981). The former top internal intelligence and security chief of the United Nations Observer's Mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUC) has been worked for Anvil mining in Katanga since 2006.<sup>70</sup>

THOU SHALT NOT RAPE AND PLUNDER

Gertler/Steinmetz interests have also been jostling for copper and cobalt concessions with Kinross-Forrest Group. Gertler has bought up or invested heavily in companies just to close them down. George Forrest also made the UN hit list of Congo's looters and Forrest and his three sons helped bankroll Joseph Kabila's 2006 election "victory".<sup>71</sup> George Forrest's daughter is reportedly married to the son of Louis Michel. Malta and George Forrest are controlling directors in Katanga Mining Limited.

Born as Entreprise Générale Malta Forrest, the Belgian Forrest interests have been pillars of exploitation in Congo since at least 1922, when they launched mining operations in Katanga. Forrest's Katanga Mining directors include: three Canadians; Congo's Jean-Claude Masangu Mulongo, a former Governor of DRC and high official at the IMF and World Bank; and the current

Governor of the Central Bank of DRC. The Forrest dynasty has munitions factories in Belgium and Kenya, and has partnered with OM-Group, in Ohio [USA], dealing in Congo's cobalt and coltan. Forrest International also operates in Europe, Burundi-involving him on both sides of Congo's bloody war-and the Middle East.<sup>72</sup> Forrest interests in DRC include aviation, foods, plantations, construction, logging, copper and cobalt mining. Forrest companies are enmeshed in the coltan plunder in eastern Congo.

Katanga is the world's richest mining metropolis, part of the vast copper belt that stretches across northern Zambia and southern Congo-and the home to unprecedented human misery due to state orchestrated repression and communities overrun with toxic mining, tuberculosis, cancers, immune disorders, racial discrimination and slavery. The Zambian copperbelt concessions over the border involve many of the same companies and interests mentioned above, and others.<sup>73</sup>

Workers and communities in and around these mines suffer all the standard treatable maladies (typhoid, malaria, tetanus, polio, malnutrition) as well. However, such stories are off the agenda for the North American, European, Japanese, Australian and Israeli media corporations providing the mainstay of English language indoctrination meant to instill racial superiority and a vast ignorance and obliviousness that leaves westerns populations shaking their heads and wringing their hands and clicking their tongues, while all the while wondering "what is to be done?" It does not cross people's minds that their own hands are dirty, that their own consciousness has been falsified, as all the raw materials from Congo enrich the lives of people in the United States, Canada, Europe and Israel.

The immediate capital investment required for just one Gertler project in Katanga-the Komoto Oliveira Virgule (KOV) project-is reportedly $US 1.8 billion dollars, income to kick start billions of dollars of unused equipment mothballed in the middle Mobutu era. There are rumors that Bechtel is involved, but the KOV project involves ThyssenKrupp AG as a minor player.<sup>74</sup>

The Krupp firm is one of several German firms involved in the plunder in eastern Congo, exploitation which involves the Deutsche Gesellschaft für technische Zusammenarbeit- GTZ-a "German technological cooperation agency" whose Supervisory Board has representatives of four Federal [German] Ministries.<sup>75</sup> Krupp industries use coltan and cobalt for superalloys. <sup>76</sup> Dr.-Ing. Ekkehard D. Schultz, a ThyssenKrupp director, is also a director of Bayer AG, the Germany firm whose subsidiary H.C. Starck was named for its involvement in the ongoing illegal plunder of coltan and cassiterite (tin) in eastern Congo. NIKANOR director Jay Pomrenze is also a consultant for the Deutsche Bank.<sup>77</sup> Certain German and U.S. firms benefit from the military occupation of Rwandan-backed warlord Laurent Nkunda in North Kivu, DRC, where Nkunda controls the Lueshe niobium mine "owned" by Gesellschaft fuer Elektrometallurgie GmbH, a subsidiary of New York-based Mettallurg Group.<sup>78,79</sup>

HONOR THY FATHER AND THY MOTHER

Dan Gertler's grandfather, Moshe Schnitzer (d. November 2007), was known in Israel as "Mr. Diamond;" in youth he joined the pre-state underground organization Etzel (Irgoun), an Israeli military cell self-defined as an "untra-nationalist Jewish militia," but one that committed acts of terrorism in service to the Israeli cause.<sup>8</sup> Moshe Schnitzer assumed a major role in the Africa-Israeli diamond trade in the 1950's in a partnership business called Schnitzer-Greenstein. Schnitzer later founded the Israel Diamond Exchange in Tel Aviv in 1960, which today brings Israel $14 billion annually in blood business, and is the country's second-largest industry, but Israel's top export. King Leopold III of Belgium decorated Schnitzer in recognition of his activities favoring the close relationship of Belgium, Israel and the DeBeers diamond cartels, and Schnitzer was also President of the Harry Oppenheimer Diamond Museum in Israel.<sup>80</sup>

The diamond jewelry trade in the United States is more than $30 billion annually, and 99%-everything that is not synthetic or artificial diamonds-involves blood diamonds and the above organized crime syndicates. Israel buys more than 50% of the world's rough diamonds, and the U.S. buys two-thirds of these. The diamond factories are located in Nethanya, Petach Tikvah, Tel Aviv, Ramat Gan, Jerusalem, and other cities around the country, but most of the offices were in Tel Aviv in the financial district on Ahad Ha'am Street.<sup>81</sup> Dan Gertler's father, Asher Gertler, and his uncle, Shmuel Schnitzer, manage the original family business, and Shmuel is Vice-Chairman of the Belgian-based World Diamond Council-the entity that spends more money promoting the false image of "conflict-free" diamonds than it does helping any of the people dispossessed or brutalized by the diamond industry.<sup>48</sup>

On August 16, 2007, Rabbi Bentolila in Kinshasa received a communication asking: "What does the Torah say about men exploiting other men for vast profits while other men are starving and dying all around them? Is there some hierarchy to the Torah that suggests, for example, that black people or Africans are lesser beings, and therefore not to be a concern where profound profits are being made?"

There was no reply from Rabbi Bentolila, he was apparently busy readying for another Bar Mitzvah in Belgium. Unfortunately for Dan Gertler and his spiritual advisers, the Torah says that a Jew can keep a slave, but a Jew kept as a slave must be redeemed, and that-an empty, foolish justification for exploiting innocent people-is how religion falsifies spirituality.

1. In January 2008 the International Rescue Committee, who is also discussed in this article, released its second survey of mortality in the Democratic Republic of Congo, estimating that 5,400,000 people have died, or some 1500 people every day. Mortality in the Democratic Republic of Congo: an Ongoing Crisis, International Rescue Committee, January 2008. However, IRC statistics are highly biased and politicized. See: keith harmon snow, "Over Five Million Dead in Congo?" Dissident Voice, February 4, 2008. [?]
2. Personal interview, Democratic Republic of Congo, August 2006. [?]
3. keith harmon snow, "Warlord's Deadly Battle, Toward Freedom, 2007. [?]
4. Officers: Antonio Teixeira, President & CEO; Robert G. Rainey, CFO; Brett Thompson, COO, Mining; Dimitri (Jimmy) Kanakakis, Vice President, Corporate & Legal Affairs; Bernard Poznanski, Corporate Secretary; Board Members: Brian Menell, Richard Dorfman, Bruce Holmes, Robert Rainey, Antonio Teixeira. [?]
5. See: "Africa/Diamonds: Rough diamonds," Africa Confidential, 5 March 2004, Vol. 45, No. 5; and "Equatorial Guinea: All Theft is Property," Africa Confidential, 17 Nov. 2006, Vol. 47, No. 23: p. 12. [?]
6. Tim Hoare, the head of the advisers that launched it, Canaccord Adams, sits alongside rock star and champion of Africa Bob Geldof on the board of the television-producti on company Ten Alps. See: Ben Laurance, "Energy firm link to blood diamonds," The Sunday Times, December 30, 2007. [?]
7. See: keith harmon snow, "A People's History of Congo's Jean-Pierre Bemba," Toward Freedom, September 18, 2007. [?]
8. Yossi Melman and Asaf Carmel, "Diamond in the rough," Haaretz, March 24, 2005. [?] [?] [?]
9. See: keith harmon snow, "Congo's President Joseph Kabila: Dynasty or Travesty?" Toward Freedom, November 13, 2007. [?]
10. Private interview, Kinshasa, August 2006. [?]
11. See: "Terror in the Diamond Fields: Excessive Force and Impunity in the DRC," Amnesty International Canada; Democratic Republic of Congo: Government should investigate human rights violations in the Mbuji Mayi diamond fields, Amnesty International, October 22, 2002. [?]
12. Making a Killing: The Diamond Trade in Government Controlled DRC, Amnesty International, 2002, AFR 62/017/2002 22/10/2002. [?]
13. See: "ICEM protests Congo's Transport, Diamond Injustices," International Federation of Chemical, Energy, Mine and General Worker's Union, May 7, 2007. [?]
14. "Diamond miners killed in DR Congo," BBC News, 7 August 2006. [?]
15. See: Jewish Africa and Chabad. [?]
16. Private communication, Rabbi Chlomo Bentolila, August 16, 2007. [?]
17. "Lag Baomer in Kinshasa," June 2005. [?]
18. "Visite de l'Ambassadeur Revah a' Kinshasa," Kadima 010, June-September 2007. [?]
19. See: keith harmon snow, "Behind the Scenes: Warlord's Deadly Battle in Congo," Toward Freedom, August 9, 2007. [?]

20. Nicole Gaouette, "Inside Israel's diamond trade: a family affair," Christian Science Monitor, 21 February 2002. [?]
21. Yitzhak Danon, "Top Israelis accused of illegal diamond deals: Israel: Lawsuit claims corruption in Congo diamonds for arms deal," Globes (Israel), 18 February 2004. See also: "Column One: What Lieberman Wants," Jerusalem Post, October 20, 2006. [?] [?]
22. Christian Dietrich, "Blood Diamonds: Effective African-Based Monopolies," African Security Review, Vol. 10, No 3., 2001. [?]
23. Yitzhak Danon, "Top Israelis accused of illegal diamond deals: Israel: Lawsuit claims corruption in Congo diamonds for arms deal," Globes (Israel), 18 February 2004. [?]
24. See: Keith Harmon Snow, "Behind the Scenes: Warlord's Deadly Battle in Congo," Toward Freedom, August 9, 2007. The Angolan military protected Kinshasa during the so-called "rebellion" involving Rwanda and Uganda. The Angolans do not like the Rwandans or Ugandans due to their military and commercial relations with Angolan rebels, the Unió Nacional para a Independência Total de Angola (UNITA), and because Rwandan and Ugandan soldiers invaded Angola after their failed bid to control the Congo's strategic Inga Dam power station and Matadi port between 1998 and 2001. Angola sent troops to Congo in July and August 2006, and there were black Angolan troops amongst the European Union mercenary forces-EUFOR- sent to quell any possible rebellions during the "historic national elections." Angola also sent troops to Congo to back Kabila during the warlord's deadly battle of March 2007. [?]
25. "Presidential Chopper," Africa Confidential, Vol. 47 Number 23, November 17, 2006. [?]
26. See: Overseas Security Services Congo sprl web site. [?] [?]
27. OSS-Congo owner Philippe de Moerloose communicated with this author after his name appeared in a prior story mentioning OSS-Congo and offered to meet in Europe and provide the author with the "correct" information about his companies operations in Congo. Repeated communications with De Moerloose seeking clarifications and information for this story were not answered. [?]
28. See e.g., SEC info on Lenorth Holdings and SDG Marketing. [?]
29. Lior Chorev, The First [DRC] Diamond Polishing Plant to Move into Full Production, Press Release, DGI Group of Companies, January 11, 2005. [?]
30. ARAD Communications web site. [?]
31. Private communication, Lior Chorev, January 19, 2008. [?]
32. See: Keith Harmon Snow, "Over Five Million Dead in Congo?" Dissident Voice, February 4, 2008. [?]
33. Private email communication, Lior Chorev, January 19, 2008. See also: Gil Hoffman, "Olmert, Netanyahu Rivalry Gets Personal," Israel.jpost. com, March 26, 2006; "Sharon allies and foes joust over new party as March 28 elections are set," Associated Press, November 22, 2005. [?]
34. NATO Transformation, the Mediterranean Dialog, and NATO-Israel Relations, October 23, 2006. [?]

35. Yossi Melman and Asaf Carmel, "Diamond in the Rough," Haaretz, March 24, 2005. [?]
36. The Olayan Group web site. [?]
37. The Steinmetz Group. [?]
38. Gil Hoffman, "Politics; Unconscious Legacy," Jerusalem Post, features.jpost.com, January 3, 2008. [?] [?]
39. United Nations Panel of Experts Confidential Report. [?]
40. Under the contract Emaxon granted Miba loans totaling $5-million in 2003, and a further $10-million subsequently. In exchange, Emaxon gained rights to 88% of Miba's production at a discount, formally, of 5%. [?]
41. Herzog, Fox and Neeman web site. [?]
42. Tevapharm. [?]
43. See: Keith Harmon Snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]
44. On Neeman and Hurvitz, see Markstone Capital Group; on Robert Rotberg, Maurice Templesman and the Harvard Belfer Center, see: Keith Harmon Snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]
45. Criminal rackets known to the United Nations security were or some time illegally shipping uranium and cobalt out of Katanga by road to Zimbabwe and Tanzania (private interview, U.N. Official, 2006). [?]
46. Israel and Africa: Assessing the Past, Envisioning the Future, The Africa Institute American Jewish Committee and The Harold Hartog School Tel Aviv University, May 2006. [?]
47. Ron Ben-Yishai and Molly Camprier-Kritz, "The Murder Request Went to the Wrong Address," Yediot Aharonot weekend supplement on 19 September 1999. [?]
48. Nicole Gaouette, "Inside Israel's diamond trade: a family affair," Christian Science Monitor, 21 February 2002. [?] [?]
49. For a discussion of the veracity of these facts and more on the "Russian Military Brotherhood" see: Central Africa Minerals and Arms Research Bulletin, Edition 2, International Peace Information Service, June 18, 2001. [?]
50. Jimmy Johnson, "Israelis and Hezbollah Haven't Always Been Enemies," Appearing in Israeli Committee Against House Demolitions USA, 6 September 2006. [?]
51. Report of the Panel of Experts Appointed Pursuant to UN Security Council Resolution 1306 (2000), Paragraph 19, in Relation to Sierra Leone, December 2000. [?]
52. Energem web site; and also: Keith Harmon Snow and Rick Hines, "Blood Diamond: Doublethink and Deception About those Worthless Little Rocks of Desire," Z Magazine, June and July, 2007. [?]
53. Mineweb. [?]
54. Charles Higham, Trading With The Enemy: The Nazi-American Money Plot,

- 1933-1949, Delacorte Press, 1983. [?] [?]
55. Susan Mazur, "Deeper Into the Dillon-Euphronios Nexus with David N. Gibbs," SCOOP, April 26, 2006. [?]
56. David Gibbs, The Political Economy of Third World Intervention: Mines, Money and U.S. Policy in the Congo Crises, University of Chicago Press, 1991. [?]
57. Eric Onstad, "UPDATE 2-CAMEC shares soar after agrees Congo joint venture," Reuters, Nov. 7, 2007. [?]
58. Brenna Chigonga, "Zimbabwe: Meet Country's Richest People," The Herald, July 14, 2007. [?]
59. See: Maurice Carney, "Congo's Contract Review," Pambazuka News, January 17, 2008. [?]
60. Martin Creamer, "Funded NIKANOR presses on with $1,8bn copper mine, refinery," Mining Weekly, September 21, 2007. [?]
61. Julie Walker, "Hersovs and Menells are in no hurry to yield control of Anglovaal," Sunday Times. [?]
62. Evelyn Groenink, "Arms deal: Who got R1bn in pay-offs?" Mail & Guardian, January 12, 2007. [?]
63. Teal Exploration & Mining web site. [?]
64. Press Release: Kenya-Uganda Oil Products Pipeline, Kenya-Uganda Joint Co-coordinating Commission for Extension of Oil Pipeline, August 17, 2005; see also: Energem web site. [?]
65. François Misser and Olivier Vallée "Des matières premières toujours convoitées. Les nouveaux acteurs du secteur minier Africain," Le Monde Diplomatique, May 1998, p.24-25; also Wayne Madsen, Genocide and Covert Operations in Africa, 1993-1999, Mellon Press, 1999. [?]
66. Diamond Fields International Management. [?]
67. 'Inculpations à la Belgo-laise', Le Libre Belgique, 4 June 2004. [?]
68. Private interview, Kinshasa, DRC, April 2007. [?]
69. Norm Dixon, "Congo Massacre: Australian mining company's managers indicted," Green Left Review, November 4, 2006. [?]
70. His name is known, but he threatened to track down and break the author's legs if he is revealed. [?]
71. See: Barry Sergeant, "NIKANOR's Quandry: Meet Dan the Man, King of the Congo," MoneyWeb, 4 April 2007; "Congo Kinshasa: After the Election" Africa Confidential, Vol. 47, No. 23, 17 Nov. 2006; and United Nations Security Council Report to the Secretary General, S/2003/1027, 23 October 2003. [?]
72. George Forrest International. [?]
73. Personal investigation, Ndola, Zambia copperbelt mines, 2000. [?]
74. Nikanor. [?]
75. These are: the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ); Federal Foreign Office; Federal Ministry of Finance; and Federal Ministry of Economics and Labor. Since 1998 the Supervisory Board Chairman has been State Secretary Erich Stather from the BMZ. [?]
76. Karen Hayes and Richard Burge, Coltan Mining in the Democratic Republic of Congo: How tantalum-using industries can commit to the

George A. Filer - MUFON Eastern Region Director

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/The\_Zetaheaven\_Group/message/3851> July 1 2009

AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA

You Are The Judge>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

|29300|2009-07-06 06:24:14|Tafari khumbaka|the chosen & caste supremicist|

Source: www.njjewishnews.com

USA, July 2, 2009: Recent studies have found that, on average, Jews and Hindus are the most educated religious groups in the United States, with similar economic structures and the highest retention rate of believers. Both are ancient civilizations, both are diaspora religions and both emphasize the importance of scripture and ritual. On June 14, these two faith groups became better acquainted at a Hindu-Jewish interfaith meeting sponsored by the World Council of Religious Leaders and hosted by the American Jewish Committee, the Hindu American Foundation, and the Hindu Dharma Acharya Sabha.

The first Jewish-Hindu Summit was held in February, 2007, in Delhi, India, with both sides affirming that their respective traditions teach that there is One Supreme Being who has communicated Divine ways of action for humanity, for different peoples in different times and places. The second took place in Jerusalem in February 2008, when the Jewish delegation accepted that Hindus accept One Supreme Being and do not regard the representations used in worship as idols.

At the 2009 meeting, the Hindu religious leaders representing a variety of paths shared their concerns about unethical Christian proselytizing, receiving support from the Jewish leaders.

The Hindu representatives spoke of the imminent arrival to the United States of 60,000 Hindu refugees from Bhutan and wanted to learn from the Jews how to build community as a diaspora minority and set up an immigrant aid society. They also expressed the need to fight anti-Hinduism and change the derogatory descriptions of Hinduism in textbooks.

Rabbi David Rosen mentioned the rapid growth of political, economic, and military connections between Israel and India and emphasized the need for religious encounters.

Unanimous applause greeted one speakers statement that in 2000 years there has been no indigenous anti-Semitism in India.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29301|2009-07-06 07:53:59|Tafari

khumbaka|Cobalt,Titanium,Uranium,gold,oil,etc.....|

<http://www.bloomberg.com/apps/news?pid=20601116&sid=a2njAvA.mN5E>

click above, The resources of the people of the Congo are up for grabs and benefiting everyone except the people of the Congo, Whats New?

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29302|2009-07-06 07:59:13|odhiambo okech|Reflections with old men|

I was in discussions with some 3 old men in Kisii yesterday morning and I learnt a lot. These were men who had been employed and are now in retirement, tending to their affairs and projects.

We normally take our parents for granted. In most cases, we think that it is us who know everything, more so, our politicians think they know everything.

One asked me; Do you know that the Nile perch was introduced into Lake Victoria because the white man did not want our Lake to be the single major source of Tilapia in the world?

The other one weighed in; What about the water hyacinth? That was also introduced into the lake to clog it and render our people captives to the dictates of the white man and his projects; the post colonial government.

They then gave the example of the Mathenge weed in Baringo and talked of how the herds of the Kalenjin are targetted with this.

I asked; How about HIV/AIDS? They had all the answers and I was left silent. They talked about the origins of AIDS and how it was an experiment on Africans, to reduce the population of Africans.

I asked about Loans and grants that the white man has given to Africa. And they knew that the loans and grants have been given to the post colonial projects of the white man. They asked how come we have nothing in Africa and in Kenya to show for all that massive aid and loan. They know that the African signs for the loan and promptly steals the same for banking in the white mans bank and the white man does not complain.

And I was convinced. If the old men, our parents know all this, then, where is the problem?

Odhiambo T Oketch

Komarock Nairobi

| 29303|2009-07-06 16:39:31|Alex van Deelen|Nubia the forgotten kingdom|

Nubia the forgotten kingdom 1

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=CmGKU4TGS70>

Nubia the forgotten kingdom 2

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hGyipHMQhIg>

| 29304|2009-07-07 06:11:43|Tafari khumbaka|NgCongo|

<http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?w=125219&as=35927&d=264778&ac=new>

click above.

whats happening in the Congo?.....

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29305|2009-07-08 11:14:07|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Ngkongsa, Do Afr.am's want a homeland|

<http://news.iafrica.com/worldnews/1786537.htm>

click above

cobalt

m/p has been told that no where on earth has large amt.s of cobalt been found but in the congo.....
..... .., so,,, all the great house's of investors have set/pun intended to take cobalt and titanium and uranium etc. from the congo(Ngco ngo my emphasis) without any regulation s or purchase's benefiting the people,... . once you know human nature you can manipulate the human animal only divinity can subdue Seth_TYpho on.

| 29306|2009-07-09 08:36:17|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|cobalt, uranium , titanium, oil ,platinum
,rich black top soil, serv|

High expectations ahead of historic trip to Africa

The Hill Wed, 08 Jul 2009 18:35 PM PDT

Great expectations will surround President Obama when he makes his first visit to sub-Saharan Africa in a trip to Ghana that...

click above

http://www.africanews.com/site/list\_messages/22572

click above

the scramble for the resources of Africa continues

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29307|2009-07-09 12:53:21|nathaniel x vance|Petition to Free the Wrongfully Convicted

Mississippi Scott Sisters|

ASA: To whom it may concern:

For over 14 miserable years, these two falsely accused incarcerated sisters (Jamie and Gladys Scott) have languished in a gruesome Mississippi prison for a trumped up $11.00 dollars crime that neither of them committed, in which they both received DOUBLE LIFE! Neither of them had any previous criminal records, no one was hurt, and the entire judiciary process from start to finish was heavily tainted by racial malpractice, witness coercion, threats, and harassment.

This travesty of injustice began in 1993 in Scott County Mississippi. It is alleged that two county Sheriffs had a beef with the sisters' father over him refusing to pay cash payoffs to the Sheriffs, whereas the Sheriffs threatened to wreck havoc upon the entire family if payment did not continue. The father refused, and soon thereafter, the Sheriffs succeeded in carrying out their threat, as Jamie and Gladys were falsely charged with armed robbery and later subsequently convicted. During the trial however, there were numerous inconsistencies and contradictions, and to make matters worst, both of the sisters lawyers were at best incompetent in their legal representation. As of this writing, the States three witnesses have all recanted their coerced statements implicating Jamie and Gladys by a signed affidavit, but no court has seen fit to either reopen their case or seriously consider the sister's request for a retrial.

We are asking every person to sign this Free the Scott Sisters petition. Both Jamie and Gladys Scott need to be immediately exonerated and released. Your help is also needed and urged.

Thank you all.

<<http://scottsisisters.petitionhost.com/>>

<<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Free-the-Scott-Sisters-Committee/>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?
salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29308|2009-07-09 12:53:22|odhiambo okechth|Friends of KCDN|

7th July 2009

Friends of KCDN

Today as we celebrate the Saba Saba day, at KCDN we want to appreciate our Friends. You have been there for us. You have made us move our Initiatives with all the confidence that we need.

It is you people who have given us the strength that we need to soldier on. When it appeared dark for us, you came with light. When it looked like it could not be done, you stood firm and it was done.

You are the rock upon which KCDN rests.

Friends of KCDN; Thank you very much. In this list of honour we have;

- 1] Mr. Lenny Amolo; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 2] Dr. Shem Ochuodho; Kshs 2,500.00 sending
- 3] Mr. Maurice Odenyo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 4] Mr. Sam Olendo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 5] Dr. Matunda Nyanchama; $100 sending
- 6] Mr. David Ochwangi; $100 sending
- 7] Mr. Oduor Ongwen; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 8] Ms Janet Feldman; $50 [Kshs 3,693.00] received
- 9] Mr. Elijah Kombo; Kshs 6,000.00 received
- 10] Ms Arinolah EN; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 11] Mr. John Maina; Kshs 1,500.00 sending
- 12] Mr. Otieno Sungu; Kshs 1,500.00 received
- 13] Mr. Reginald Okumu; Kshs 2,000.00 sending

14] Mr. George Nyongesa; Kshs 2,000.00 received

15] Mr. William Oloo Janak

16] Ms Jeanette M Khaoya

17] Mr. Okumba Miruka

18] Ms Pamela Butalanyi

19] Mr. Cosmos Omondi.....

And many more Friends of KCDN.....

We are almost sorting our rent issues in full. We will also tackle the issue of our furniture and move into the future with all the confidence.

Peace and blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch

Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,

Email; komarockswatch@yahoo.com

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29309|2009-07-09 12:53:23|Sam|Debunking the Hyksos Hoax|

ESSENTIAL QUESTIONS

044b From the time the Hyksos entered Egypt until the time they were driven out, what are the names of all of the Egyptian Pharaohs?

044c During the reign of these Egyptian Pharaohs, how far north (where) are text and statues of these Pharaohs (who ruled when the Hyksos were there)?

044d During the time the Hyksos were there, what Empires to the North East did the Pharaohs in this time line interact with?

044e Using the time stamp of BC, when did the Hyksos enter and leave Egypt?

If you are into Hyksos stories, I need some info

| 29310|2009-07-09 12:53:28|odhiambo okech|Thank you Janet; From KCDN|
This afternoon, Ms Janet Khaoya responded to our call for support. She sent KCDN CHF100 [Kshs 6,823.50].

On behalf of KCDN, I appreciate this positive gesture. It means that what we are doing at KCDN touches on the hearts of most people.

We are truly humbled and honoured by these Friends of KCDN;

- 1] Mr. Lenny Amolo; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 2] Dr. Shem Ochuodho; Kshs 2,500.00 sending
- 3] Mr. Maurice Odenyo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 4] Mr. Sam Olendo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 5] Dr. Matunda Nyanchama; $100 sending
- 6] Mr. David Ochwangi; $100 sending
- 7] Mr. Oduor Ongwen; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 8] Ms Janet Feldman; $50 [Kshs 3,693.00] received
- 9] Mr. Elijah Kombo; Kshs 6,000.00 received
- 10] Ms Arinolah EN; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 11] Mr. John Maina; Kshs 1,500.00 received
- 12] Mr. Otieno Sungu; Kshs 1,500.00 received
- 13] Mr. Reginald Okumu; Kshs 2,000.00 sending
- 14] Mr. George Nyongesa; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 15] Ms Jeanette M Khaoya; CHF100 [Kshs 6,823.50] received.
- 16] Mr. William Oloo Janak
- 17] Mr. Okumba Miruka
- 18] Ms Pamela Butalanyi
- 19] Mr. Cosmos Omondi.....And many more Friends of KCDN.....

We are sure that by this Friday we shall clear all our bills.

Many thanks and blessings.

Odhiambo T Oketch,
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29311|2009-07-09 12:53:30|Jabari Osaze|The Udjat: Transformers Sequel - Pyramids Built by Aliens|

Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen - Pyramids Built by Aliens

Doesn't everyone deserve a bit of mindless summer action? Sure! After a long day at work last week, I decided to take in Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen with my two best friends in the whole world. We had a great time. The movie was certainly entertaining. I have to say the great thing about hanging out with guys that have known you virtually your entire life is that you can be yourself. I didn't have to just cheer at explosions and drool at women running in slow motion. I could actually tell them that in the midst of a $200,000,000 special effects orgy, I was having a cerebral experience. I couldn't just enjoy mindless summer action without questioning the premise. I wager most of our readers would probably feel similarly.

What is the vaulted premise of the anxiously awaited Transformers sequel? The movie picks up 2 years after the end of the first film. The heroic Transformers known as the Autobots have been working with Nest, a secret military unit charged with finding and rooting out the remaining Decepticons. The Decepticons have been without their leader since Megatron's "death", however they are being directed by Megatron's mentor, The Fallen, who is one of the original Transformers. We soon learn that the Transformers have actually been on Earth since the beginnings of humanity. The war which raged between the opposing camps of Transformers was precipitated by finding the largest source of energon, the energy source which powers the large robots. During the final battle, The Fallen was defeated by the original 7 Autobot "Prime" models, and the source the Earthly energon is hidden. In the time of the sequel, The Fallen has been restored and is hiding on an asteroid in Earth's orbit. As he guides the Decepticons to finding and restoring Megatron he refuses to return to Earth because only a "Prime can kill" him. He believes that Megatron can kill Optimus Prime allowing his return. Together with Megatron, The Fallen believes that he can find the missing key to a machine which will harvest the energon from the core of the Earth. The energon will allow the Decepticons to rebuild their home planet, Cybertron, but will destroy the Earth. The movie's final battle takes place on a fictional Egyptian Giza Plateau, as the energon harvesting machine is hidden within the core of Khufu's Great Pyramid. I bet you were wondering why I was reviewing Transformers: The Revenge of The Fallen on The Udjat, right!

To read the rest of this post, visit The Udjat, the blog of the Center for the Restoration of Ma'at by clicking the following link:

<http://blog.centerformaat.com/2009/07/transformers-revenge-of-fallen-pyramids.html>

| 29312|2009-07-09 12:54:09|Paul Kekai Manansala|UN nuclear agency helps unlock secrets buried with Egyptian mummies|

UN nuclear agency helps unlock secrets buried with Egyptian mummies

Inside an ancient Egyptian tomb

6 July 2009 ? The United Nations nuclear agency is using its expertise to help archaeologists unearth millennia-old secrets, from the supposed murder of King Tutankhamun to the mysterious death of Great Pharaoh Ramesses II, from Egyptian mummies.

Paleoradiology is a type of science using nuclear technologies ? including x-rays and neutron activation analysis ? to study artifacts, skeletons, mummies and fossils.

Rethy Chhem, Director of the Division of Human Health at the UN International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), is an expert in that field and said that science allows radiologists to uncover details about mummies, such as their sex, age of death and illnesses.

X-rays found that Pharaoh Ramesses II did not, contrary to popular belief, have arthritis of the spine, which Mr. Chhem said is in line with his depiction as a great warrior.

The IAEA is helping countries apply nuclear technologies to archaeological study and cultural preservation.

The technologies can also be applied to monitoring pesticides in milk and finding answers to a series of sudden deaths of males in north-eastern Thailand, the IAEA said in a press release.

| 29313|2009-07-09 12:55:09|Paul Kekai Manansala|Fish on the menu of our ancestors|

Fish on the menu of our ancestors

EUREKALERT

Contact: Sandra Jacob

jacob@eva.mpg.de

49-341-355-0122

Max-Planck-Gesellschaft

This release is available in German.

The isotopic analysis of a bone from one of the earliest modern humans in Asia, the 40,000 year old skeleton from Tianyuan Cave in the Zhoukoudian region of China (near Beijing), by an international team of researchers from the Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology in Leipzig, the Graduate University of Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Institute of Vertebrate Paleontology and Paleoanthropology in Beijing, the University of British Columbia in Vancouver and Washington University in Saint Louis has shown that this individual was a regular fish consumer (PNAS, 07.07.2009).

extracted from this bone prove that this...

Click here for more information.

Freshwater fish are a major part of the diet of many peoples around the world, but it has been unclear when fish became a significant part of the year-round diet for early humans. Chemical analysis of the protein collagen, using ratios of the isotopes of nitrogen and sulphur in particular, can show whether such fish consumption was an occasional treat or part of the staple diet.

The isotopic analysis of the diet of one of the earliest modern humans in Asia, the 40,000 year old skeleton from Tianyuan Cave near Beijing, has shown that at least this individual was a regular fish consumer. Michael Richards of the Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology explains "Carbon and nitrogen isotope analysis of the human and associated faunal remains indicate a diet high in animal protein, and the high nitrogen isotope values suggest the consumption of freshwater fish." To confirm this inference the researchers measured the sulphur isotope values of terrestrial and freshwater animals around the Zhoukoudian area and of the Tianyuan human.

Since fish appeared on the menu of modern humans before consistent evidence for effective fishing gear appeared, fishing at this level must have involved considerable effort. This shift to more fish in the diet likely reflects greater pressure from an expanding population at the time of modern human emergence across Eurasia. "This analysis provides the first direct evidence for the consumption of aquatic resources by early modern humans in China and has implications for early modern human subsistence and demography", says Richards.

###

Original work:

Yaowu Hu, Hong Shang, Haowen Tong, Olaf Nehlich, Wu Liu, Chaohong Zhao, Jincheng Yu, Changsui Wang, Erik Trinkaus, Michael P. Richards Stable Isotope Dietary Analysis of the Tianyuan 1 Early Modern Human
PNAS. July 7, 2009. Vol. 106, No. 27

| 29314|2009-07-09 12:59:19|Paul Kekai Manansala|Copernicus blue-eyed?|

Yeah right, I think I'll stick with the contemporary portraits rather than trusting modern Aryanist anthropologists!

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

---

Copernicus Had Blue Eyes

Rossella Lorenzi, Discovery News

| 29315|2009-07-10 08:37:16|Tafari khumbaka|Extreme suffering continues.....|

<http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?as=35927&w=125219&d=264778&ac=new>

click above , discussions about NgCongo.....

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29316|2009-07-10 10:15:31|Asar Imhotep|Re: Debunking the Hyksos Hoax|
Great questions.

I would also add, "If they were foreign invaders, how were they writing in the native Egyptian language?" Also, if they ruled only in the delta area, how did they rule ALL of Egypt? Did the people really accept them as foreign rulers? How did foreign rulers who became kings receive legitimate shenus (cartouches) with their names in it? If these were illegitimate rulers, then why would future generations count them as legitimate and give them legitimate titles? Conquered people don't recognize invaders as legitimate rulers.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

--- On Mon, 7/6/09, Sam wrote:

From: Sam

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Debunking the Hyksos Hoax

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Monday, July 6, 2009, 12:44 PM

ESSENTIAL QUESTIONS

044b From the time the Hyksos entered Egypt until the time they were driven out, what are the names of all of the Egyptian Pharaohs?

044c During the reign of these Egyptian Pharaohs, how far north (where) are text and statues of these Pharaohs (who ruled when the Hyksos were there)?

044d During the time the Hyksos were there, what Empires to the North East did the Pharaohs in this time line interact with?

044e Using the time stamp of BC, when did the Hyksos enter and leave Egypt?

If you are into Hyksos stories, I need some info

| 29317|2009-07-12 10:38:38|odhiambo okech|Invitation from KCDN|

Dear Friends of KCDN,

We are indeed indebted to you all.

Many thanks for those supportive words Elijah, George Nyongesa, Dr Shem Ochuodho, Dr Matunda Nyanchama, Ms Jamet Feldman, Dr John Maina and to the many Friends of KCDN; Lenny Amolo, Arinolah EN, Maurice Odenyo, Jeanette M Khaoya, Oduor Ong'wen, Dr Otieno SE, Pamela Butalanyi, Okumba Miruka, David Ochwangi, Sam Olendo, Reginald Okumu, William Oloo Janak, Cosmos Omondi, Bishop Dr Julius Mbagaya..... and the many institutions and NGOs who have been of support to us.

We cannot forget Jairus K'Oyiengo, Sam Okello, Dick Aduong'a, Dr George Omburo, Jorum Odus, Joe Omany, Carolone Otieno, Selline Oketch, Dennis Obiero, Herbert Omondi, Irene Wasike, Irene Ngugi, Shaun Barretto at Phoenix Aviation, Capt Himat at Capital Airlines, John Maina at Express Connections, Ashok Shah, Babu Shah, CD Shah at Text Book Centre, Aasif Karim at Aristocrats, Tetra Pak EA Ltd, Nestle Kenya Ltd, Chacha Odera, PLO Lumumba, Otiende Amolo and Enock Odhiambo.....

Akiba Uhaki Foundation, TaxPlus Consults, SGS Kenya Ltd, Mini Bakeries [Nairobi] Ltd, Eric Jangolo, Dave Ndolo, Phoenix Publishers, East Africa Educational Publishers, H2O Beverages Ltd, The Cradle, Elisabeth Onyango Auma, Kuria-Mwangi, Regem Lugonzo, Josephine Kamanthe, Dr Paul Nyandoto, Rodgers Orero, Bunge La Mwananchi, Ben Ondoro, Zedekiah Nyanchama, Partnership for Change, Truphena Awuor.....

If we have omitted your name, and you have been supportive, kindly bear with us. You are firmly in our minds.

We thank you all for encouraging us, giving us support, advising us and guiding us to the right path when we are almost missing it. We thank you all for sharing with us your resources and for making our work fairly easy.

It has not been easy and it will still not be easy. But with you behind us, we have all the courage.

As we encourage support from more friends, we invite you to share in our next events;
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

We are happy to report that progress is being made in mobilization for 'From talking to tasking, the Greening of Nairobi East; A KCDN Initiative' scheduled to take place on 5th September 2009. Companies, Institutions, individuals and NGOs and more so, Friends of KCDN have offered to join us on this mission. On this day, the children and the youth will have their way of saying thank you for the support you have given to them. They have committed themselves to ensuring that these trees are watered and taken care of as part of their responsibility in environmental conservation.

We are also happy to report progress on our biggest event; The KCDN Child Support Initiative scheduled for 4th December 2009. On this occasion, we will give educational materials [books, stationery, uniforms and shoes] to 1950 children in a ceremony that we will hold at Komarock Primary School.

Without you, we cannot do all these. And as we said in our blogspot, KCDN is a vehicle through which you can express your goodness to the children and to their deserving mothers. The fathers tend to be AWOL in most cases! Too sad.

Thank you all for those encouraging remarks. And thank you for supporting us. Kindly invite one more friend to join us.

Peace and blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi.
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

--- On Thu, 7/9/09, Elijah Kombo wrote:

From: Elijah Kombo
Subject: Re: [NewVisionKenya] Re: [MULEMBE] Thank you Janet; From KCDN
To: NewVisionKenya@yahoogroups.com
Date: Thursday, July 9, 2009, 1:02 PM

KCDN is a great initiative that has touched many - not only in Kenya but the mass on the outside of our country. Other than helping children to access to a brighter future, KCDN has impacted alot around the community in whihc it operates. And soon the same innotive concepts will be replicated through KenyaThe PEACE RUN was such a great venture. We saw the Administration partner and ensure that the mesage is sent across. And the upcoming event 'From Talking to Tasking - Greening Nairobi' will be bigger and will help in maintaining our environment in line with global warming initiatives. The Christmas gift for both old and young will demonstrate what the vision is. If i were you, i will not miss to be part of this great upciming events....BREAKFAST IS COMING SOON AND YOU RATHER PREPARE YOURSELF! Several CEO of INGOs will participate. ...see the extract of KCDN video on the upcoming event.

Kudos to all who have supported what is significantly tangible in our lives! I am encourage being part of this initiative.

Kombo Elijah

--- On Thu, 7/9/09, Shem Ochuodho wrote:

From: Shem Ochuodho

Subject: Re: [NewVisionKenya] Re: [MULEMBE] Thank you Janet; From KCDN

To: NewVisionKenya@ yahoogroups. com

Date: Thursday, July 9, 2009, 2:33 AM

Amena, Nd. Nyongesa.

S

--- On Wed, 7/8/09, George Nyongesa wrote:

From: George Nyongesa

Subject: [NewVisionKenya] Re: [MULEMBE] Thank you Janet; From KCDN

To: mbonbani@yahoogroup s.com, "mulembe" , "mwananchi" , mwananchi@egroups. com, mwanagetinge@ yahoogroups. com, NewVisionKenya@ yahoogroups. com, "Raila Odinga" , "panafricanist" , "progressiveminds" , "Sungu" , "ugandacom" , youngkenyansforchange@yahoogroups. com, youngprofessionals_ ke@googlegroups. com, MULEMBE@yahoogroups .com

Cc: mazingira@yahoogrou ps.com, net-kenya@yahoogrou ps.com, NewVisionKenya@ yahoogroups. com, next_kenya@yahoogrou ps.com, "Abuja Nigeria" , "p4c" , "Pamela Butalanyi" , "Publiceye" , "siasa" , smaitawi@yahoogrou ps.com, Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, TheBlackList@ yahoogroups. com, trueblackness@ yahoogroups. com, "Unnaanet unaanet" , "citizens against violence" , "VOA" , "VOU" , yiffkenya@yahoogrou ps.com, "youthagenda"

Date: Wednesday, July 8, 2009, 11:02 PM

Dear all,

I refer to previous communications.

Beyond our giving to KCDN, this activity is a great example and encouragement to what we can achieve when all of us come together in word and deed. Thank you OTO and KCDN for giving us opportunity to exercise the power of numbers.

George Nyongesa

--- On Wed, 7/8/09, odhiambo okeeth wrote:

From: odhiambo okeeth

Subject: [MULEMBE] Thank you Janet; From KCDN

To: mbonbani@yahoogrou ps.com, "mulembe" , "mwananchi" , mwananchi@egroups. com, mwanagetinge@ yahoogroups. com, NewVisionKenya@ yahoogroups. com, "Raila Odinga" , "panafricanist" , "progressiveminds" , "Sungu" , "ugandacom" , youngkenyansforchange@yahoogroups. com, youngprofessionals_ ke@googlegroups. com

Cc: mazingira@yahoogrou ps.com, net-kenya@yahoogrou ps.com, newvisionkenya@ egroups.com, next_kenya@yahoo groups.com, "Abuja Nigeria" , "p4c" , "Pamela Butalanyi" , "Publiceye" , "siasa" , smaitawi@yahoo group s.com, Ta_Seti@yahoo groups .com, TheBlackList@ yahoo groups. com, trueblackness@ yahoo groups. com, "Unnaanet unaanet" , "citizens against violence" , "VOA" , "VOU" , yiffkenya@yahoo grou ps.com, "youthagenda"

Date: Wednesday, July 8, 2009, 7:52 PM

This afternoon, Ms Janet Khaoya responded to our call for support. She sent KCDN CHF100 [Kshs 6,823.50].

On behalf of KCDN, I appreciate this positive gesture. It means that what we are doing at KCDN touches on the hearts of most people.

We are truly humbled and honoured by these Friends of KCDN;

- 1] Mr. Lenny Amolo; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 2] Dr. Shem Ochuodho; Kshs 2,500.00 sending
- 3] Mr. Maurice Odenyo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 4] Mr. Sam Olendo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 5] Dr. Matunda Nyanchama; $100 sending
- 6] Mr. David Ochwangi; $100 sending
- 7] Mr. Oduor Ongwen; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 8] Ms Janet Feldman; $50 [Kshs 3,693.00] received
- 9] Mr. Elijah Kombo; Kshs 6,000.00 received
- 10] Ms Arinolah EN; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 11] Mr. John Maina; Kshs 1,500.00 received
- 12] Mr. Otieno Sungu; Kshs 1,500.00 received
- 13] Mr. Reginald Okumu; Kshs 2,000.00 sending
- 14] Mr. George Nyongesa; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 15] Ms Jeanette M Khaoya; CHF100 [Kshs 6,823.50] received.
- 16] Mr. William Oloo Janak
- 17] Mr. Okumba Miruka
- 18] Ms Pamela Butalanyi
- 19] Mr. Cosmos Omondi..... And many more Friends of KCDN.....

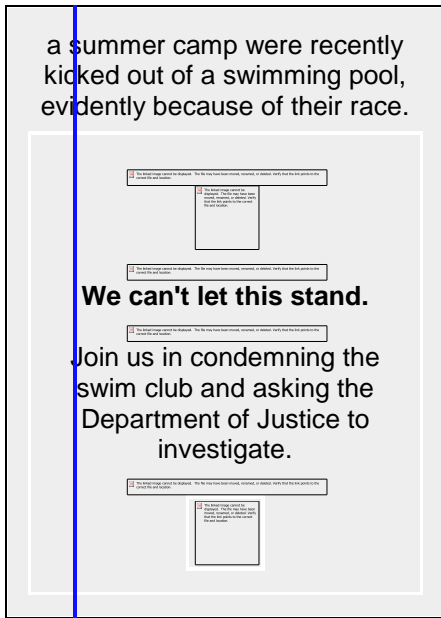

We are sure that by this Friday we shall clear all our bills.

Many thanks and blessings.

Odhiambo T Oketch,
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29318|2009-07-12 10:38:38|Ginger Daniels|Blacks not welcome: Condemn the Valley Swim Club|

"Whites only?" Sixty-five kids at

Two weeks ago outside Philadelphia, 65 children from a summer camp tried to go swimming at a club their camp had a contract to use. Seems like the club didn't know the kids were largely Black.

When the campers entered the pool, White parents allegedly took their kids out of the water, and the swimming club's staff asked the campers to leave. The next day, the club told the summer camp that their membership would be canceled and that their payment would be refunded. When asked why, the club's leader said that a lot of kids "would change the complexion ... and the atmosphere of the club."<sup>1</sup>

A "Whites only" pool in 2009 should not be tolerated. The club's actions appear to be a violation of section 1981 of the Civil Rights Act.<sup>2</sup> Whether or not any laws were violated, a "Whites only" pool should be something every American condemns.

Please join us in doing exactly that, and please email your friends and family and invite them to do the same. Your signature will also be used to call on the Department of Justice to evaluate suing the facility under federal law. It takes just a moment to do both, here:

<http://www.colorofchange.org/swim/?id=1825-646279>

Obama is President but that doesn't mean that suddenly all is fine when it comes to race in America. This is a vivid reminder of what we know still lies beneath the surface.

We all know stories like this one -- similar incidents play out quietly every day in different communities across the country. The difference in this case is that folks got caught and there was a contract in place that makes for a potentially illegal act.

Standing up now isn't just about making things right for these kids in Philadelphia or bringing consequences to this swim club (called the Valley Swim Club). It's about creating a climate of accountability everywhere. If we can publicly shame the Valley Swim Club and hold them accountable for this incident, it will make others think twice before engaging in what appears to be blatant discrimination.

Please join us in condemning the Valley Swim Club's behavior and calling on the Justice Department to investigate whether they violated civil rights laws. And please ask your friends and family to do the same.

<http://www.colorofchange.org/swim/?id=1825-646279>

Thanks and Peace,

-- James, Gabriel, William, Dani and the rest of the ColorOfChange.org team
July 9th, 2009

Help support our work. ColorOfChange.org is powered by YOU -- your energy and dollars. We take no money from lobbyists or large corporations that don't share our values, and our tiny staff ensures your contributions go a long way. You can contribute here:

<https://secure.colorofchange.org/contribute/?id=1825-646279>

References:

1. "Pool Boots Kids Who Might "Change the Complexion," NBC Philadelphia, 07-08-09
<http://bit.ly/90Zyr>
2. "Section 1981 Summary," Employment Law Information Network <http://www.elinfont.com/1981sum.php>

More Resources:

"60 Black Kids Booted from Philly Pool For Being Black -- Speak Out," Jill Tubman at Jack and Jill Politics, 07-08-09
<http://bit.ly/GkJTs>

VIDEO: "Please Don't Change the Complexion of our Pool," This Week in Blackness, 07-08-09
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=saTCMJVYljU>

"Swim Club Accused of Discrimination," FOX 29 Philadelphia, 07-08-09
<http://bit.ly/7EKGy>

"Valley Swim Club: Day Two," Adam B at Daily Kos, 07-08-09
<http://bit.ly/qbpSA>

---

Subscription Management:

This is a message from ColorOfChange.org. To remove yourself from our list, click here:

<http://colorofchange.org/subscription/?id=1825-646279>. To change your email address or update your contact info, send an email to subscriptions@colorofchange.org.

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC thats right for you.

| 29319|2009-07-12 10:38:52|Marc Taylor|Re: Ngkonga, Do Afr.am's want a homeland|

Why is the subject of this email "Do Afr.am's want a homeland"

--- On Wed, 7/8/09, tafari\_sudra@yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Ngkonga, Do Afr.am's want a homeland

To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com

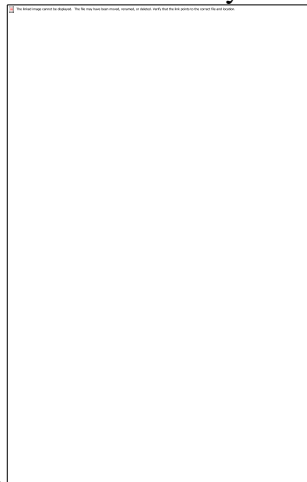

Date: Wednesday, July 8, 2009, 1:13 PM

<http://news.iafrica.com/worldnews/1786537.htm>

click above

cobalt

m/p has been told that no where on earth has large amt.s of cobalt been found but in the congo.....
..... .., so,,, all the great house's of investors have set/pun intended to take cobalt and titanium and uranium etc. from the congo(Ngco ngo my emphasis) without any regulation s or purchase's benefiting the people,... . once you know human nature you can manipulate the human animal only divinity can subdue Seth_TYpho on.

| 29320|2009-07-12 10:39:03|Cami McCraw|'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD|

David Rohl's special TV program 'Pharaohs & Kings' was FINALLY remastered & re-released last September, and there are only 5 copies left!

You can order both 'Pharaohs & Kings' and the David Rohl seminar shot in Florida ('Myth or Reality') here:

<http://stretchproductions.com/RohlProducts.html>

David Rohl video SAMPLES in the center of the page:

<http://www.youtube.com/StretchProductions>

Thanks!

-Cami McCraw

<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/newchronology/>

| 29321|2009-07-12 10:39:13|nathaniel x vance|Live coverage of the 100th NAACP Convention|
Live coverage of the 100th NAACP Convention begins Sunday July 12 at 12:30pm NY time.

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/The\_Zetaheaven\_Group/message/3887>

<<http://www.naACPwebcast.com/2009/naACP-09-front.html>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29322|2009-07-12 10:39:41|Ginger Daniels|Emmett Till's casket left to waste at Burr Oak|

The following article from the Chicago Sun-Times has been forwarded to you by gingerd2007@yahoo.com

To read the full story, click here:

<http://www.suntimes.com/news/mitchell/1660395,CST-NWS-mitch10.article>

---

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.

| 29323|2009-07-12 10:40:09|Art Vandalay|4oursons.com|

1 in 3 Black Boys born this decade will do some time in Prison. Spread the word!!

| 29324|2009-07-12 10:40:12|Sam|Debunking the Hyksos Hoax|

The whole Hyksos caper comes from 'Jewish' mythology

The latest joke is the Hyksos and the Israelites were the same dudes who controled Egypt in that period.

In all the funnies about the 10 commandments, they were writing in Hebrews.
According to the bible the Israelites were instructed to write the commandments in a book.

So if the Israelites were ruling Egypt, why is there no Hebrew text in all of those cities they were supposed to have ruled?

==

Ancient Egyptian text names an endless number of people, but in all of Egyptian text, in the context where those people are named, where is one of them identified as a Hyksos?

===

The whole Hyksos hoax comes from a European myth

European 'Jews' who write what Josephus wrote...

Josephus a mythical character who lived in Israel not Egypt.. a guy who lived 2000 years after the mythical Hyksos account..

Josephus then was supposed to have gotten his information from an Egyptian Manetho who lived in the times the Romans ruled.. over a thousand years after the Hyksos caper

If they existed, neither Josephus nor Manetho would know what happened centuries before they were born (with out a time machine) and OF course the actual written information about Hyksos from Manetho or Josephus is non existent.

There is NO ancient information in Egypt about the existence of any such people as Hyksos, the whole Hyksos caper can be traced to European Jews and NO where in Egypt.

I like Yahoo groups because I can get a lot of information, but you can not correct or update your info once it is posted.

I have a web site but I am an old man and I want my research to hang out for a long time so I created a google blog.

Once you post to a blog you can update/fix that post. People can also leave comments. If people add any thing there, I can update that section of the blog

<http://hyksos-hoax.blogspot.com/>

How long would it take a people to be assimilated and adopt the language of their host?

Nehemiah 13:23 In those days also saw I Jews that had married wives of Ashdod, of Ammon, and of Moab... And their children spake half in the speech of Ashdod, and could not speak in the Jews' language, but according to the language of each people In the accounts of Nehemiah, they had been in captivity LESS than 100 years and were being assimilated.

In the accounts of Exodus the Israelites had been in captivity for 430 years .. and of course the Israelites had produced their children with the Egyptians.
The 10 commandments would have been written in the language of the Egyptians for any Israelite to read it?

Of course there is no Hebrew text in ancient Egypt nor did any ancient Egyptian writer notice any such people as Israelites.

The Hykso funny is nothing more than a mythical account of European 'Jews'

| 29325|2009-07-12 10:40:17|pharoahisrael@yahoo.com|Fw: Re: [NorthAmexemObservers] A United States of Africa - NOW!/ I T|

Greetings,

Members. Thank you Brother Re for sending this response to the US of Africa proponents. My first concern is that We as Muurish Americans ( a.k.a. Black Americans;African-Americans ) ought to be trying to Establish or Re-Claim to Re-Establish Our Original Black American Homeland here in The United States. UNTIL WE HELP OURSELVES BY CREATING AND MAINTAINING OUR OWN ORGANIZED SOCIETY we can not help anyone else No Matter How Noble and well-meaningOur Gestures are.!

The first thing that foreign peoples including Africans/Asians notice is our Own Situation Among Ourselves here from Top To Bottom.! I don't think that WE as a Group get the message as to what it meanWORLD-WIDE fora UNITED BLACK AMERICA with a Identifiable Land Base out of these Fifty States and Territories of The USA.

Our OWN Support for such a thing is the only requirement and a must for a Homeland or RE-Colonization by Indigenous Black Americans to happen. If a person cannot or does not give Money at least Give Time, Labor and Word of Mouth as well as spread The Information of Such by Mechanical and Electronic means.!

See The Washitaw Muurs and PG-RNA. There are other homeland groups that Support The Muurs and PG-RNA too.

1. <http://www.thepetitionsite.com/1/Washitaw-Muurs-Human-Rights>
2. <http://www.geocities.com/khandipages/washitaw.htm>
3. PG-RNA, <http://www.geocities.com/pgrna68>
4. <http://www.stewartsynopsis.com/washitaw.htm>

( Also we can no longer HIDE from our situation here in America behind Religion, Racism alone, and Political Tokenisms )!

Everyone knows that with our situation going on here now in Politics, Race, Religion, Gender and The Social Culture that we are at a do-or-die crossroads. In every way our Human Necessities must pre-dominate or else these Indispensable Necessities being Land, Economics ( Money, Finance ), Education, Health-Care, Nutritious Food, Clothings, Housing/Shelter and Security. These Eight (8) are Indispensable and in Serious Jeopardy as we speak Among Ourselves and with the Caucasian, Hispanic and Asian-Americans that we share this Nation with but It Seems As If WE Are THE ONLY ONES Who Have To Wake Up to This Fact.!

No Tribe, Ethnic Group or Nation can Survive without these !

Now, for a USA of Africa I would like to know who would be the peoples in Control of its Infrastructure.???

Who would be in control of its Raw Materials and Products as well as its Industries and Economies???

You all here in Western Society and those in the Eastern World knows that Cultural Wars are All over Africa. For instance many of us here in The Western World are from the background of Christianity, Islam and Judaism. Would we RESPECT the Indigenous Traditions of African Peoples such as Vodun, Shamanism, Animist and Tribal Practices which are far older than we are????????

Would We RESPECT their Matriarchal Based Systems and The Facts That Their Indigenous Economics is Based On Communalism and Not Robbery like ours and Would We HELP them to Educate Themselves In Their OWN Ways and Traditions Instead of OURS !
????????????

There are a lot more questions that I would have such as helping the various countries and indigenous peoples recover from slavery, colonialism and imperialism as well as from despots, dictators and wars among themselves but I think that all concerned gets the message.!

Hetep!

MLP.,

The Nationalists, AFN.

--- On Thu, 7/9/09, deshon way wrote:

From: deshon way

Subject: Re: [NorthAmexemObservers] A United States of Africa - NOW!

To: NorthAmexemObservers@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, July 9, 2009, 3:45 PM

AFRICA IS NOT THE REAL NAME OF THAT CONTINENT. A US OF AFRICA WILL BE CONTROLLED BY THE PEOPLE WHO INVENTED AFRICA IN THE FIRST PLACE. CHANGE THE NAME, EMPOWER OURSELVES

"ONE DAY, NEW MOORS WILL COME IN WITH EYES WIDE OPEN, SEEING AND KNOWING, WHO WILL TAKE YOU OLD MOORS, SEAT YOU IN THE BACK, AND CARRY OUT MY LAW" - THE PROPHET, NOBLE DREW ALI.

---

This message is intended solely for the use of the individual and entity to whom it is addressed, and may contain information that is privileged, confidential, and exempt from disclosure under applicable state and federal laws. If you are not the addressee, or are not authorized to receive for the intended addressee, you are hereby notified that you may not use, copy, distribute, or disclose to anyone this message or the information contained herein. If you have received this message in error, immediately advise the sender by reply email and destroy this message.

--- On Tue, 7/7/09, mark wood wrote:

From: mark wood

Subject: [NorthAmexemObserver s] A United States of Africa - NOW!

To: cdemafa@yahoo. com, lashawn.williams@ nychhc.org, leesullivan98@ yahoo.com

Cc: askcathyharris@ comcast.net, Elitroussquires@ yahoo.com, asimmonds1@comcast. net, crh@afromerica. com, djata@verizon. net, Docblind@aol. com, dshariff@comcast. net, edincoro@edincorpor ated.com, gaoyibo@hotmail. com, goddess_isis_ loving@yahoo. com, holyspiritgod_ 3@msn.com, Hakimida@aol. com, hyerfrequency@ mindspring. com, info@reinstateton maddox.com, issinstitute@ yahoogroups. com, Jahpaint@aol. com, jerray.tillman@ ngc.com, jmphd4325@msn. com, jrswriter@comcast. net, ttmtchell4@ msn.com, keverv@hotmail. com

Date: Tuesday, July 7, 2009, 6:48 PM

You chose to allow NorthAmexemObserver s@yahoogroups. com even though this message failed authentication

Click to disallow

| 29326|2009-07-12 13:36:43|Michael Bayman|Knowing The Point Of Our Origin Must Be In Balance With Putting In T|

From: Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

Unto:All-Moors (Declared/Undeclared)/Original-men and women:
on-this-planet

Re: Latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Government
I.S.L.A.M.:

On the behalf of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial-Majesty:
Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey and the-entire: Amexem-Moor-Empire: National-Collective , peace,
good-health, and much-prosperity: be-upon-you.

For the record, please-find-below a link for the latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency by the order from the Operations-Director : Distinguished-Noble:
Seti-Hotep: Bey under the authority of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Minister For The Communications,

His-Excellency: Grand-Noble: Dan-El

For the record, we-request-that-you: share the link with brothers and sisters, in-yourcipher/circle, if-you-appreciate the information therein the video.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nCSGnMadaUA>

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency

| 29327|2009-07-12 16:43:52|Peter Gray|Re: 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD|

In one of Henry Louis Gates' TV video documentaries on AE, he walksthrough parts of Nubia with a female Italian Egyptologist who explanins the cover up ofancient Nubia's historical greatness on "racism". Does anyone know if Gates' TV series is available on DVD? I'm also searching for Basil Davidson's Africa series on DVD, if anyone can help with that as well. Many thanks.

Peter Gray

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: cmccraw@swbell.net

Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2009 03:54:40 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

David Rohl's special TV program 'Pharaohs & Kings' was FINALLY remastered & re-released last September, and there are only 5 copies left!

You can order both 'Pharaohs & Kings' and the David Rohl seminar shot in Florida ('Myth or Reality') here:

<http://stretchproductions.com/RohlProducts.html>

David Rohl video SAMPLES in the center of the page:

<http://www.youtube.com/StretchProductions>

Thanks!

-Cami McCraw

<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/newchronology/>

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29328|2009-07-12 22:14:50|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD|

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> In one of Henry Louis Gates' TV video documentaries on AE, he walks through parts of Nubia with a female Italian Egyptologist who explanins the cover up of ancient Nubia's historical greatness on "racism". Does anyone know if Gates' TV series is available on DVD? I'm also searching for Basil Davidson's Africa series on DVD, if anyone can help with that as well. Many thanks.

>

>

Peter, do you mean "Wonders of the African World? If so:

<http://www.amazon.com/Wonders-African-World-Henry-Louis/dp/B0000DG013>

Not sure if there is the Basil Davidson series is available on DVD. It is available on VHS ;) .

Snippets of the series can be found on YouTube:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jTr6JnKN3qo>

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 29329|2009-07-13 06:37:39|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Ngkonga, Do Afr.am's want a homeland| because looking at the actions and from the actions of Afr.am. considering a future of/for Afr.am. ,,,, It seems Afr.am. do not care for Africa or want to be part of its future, other than in a superficial manner., "Christian missionary work".

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 7/10/09, Marc Taylor wrote:

From: Marc Taylor

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Ngkonga, Do Afr.am's want a homeland

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, July 10, 2009, 11:17 PM

Why is the subject of this email "Do Afr.am's want a homeland"

--- On Wed, 7/8/09, tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@ yahoo.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Ngkonga, Do Afr.am's want a homeland

To: maatcollective@ yahoogroups. com

Date: Wednesday, July 8, 2009, 1:13 PM

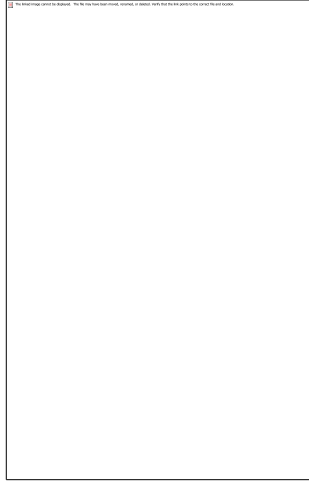

<http://news.iafrica.com/worldnews/1786537.htm>

click above

cobalt

m/p has been told that no where on earth has large amt.s of cobalt been found but in the congo.....
..... .., so,,, all the great house's of investors have set/pun intended to take cobalt and titanium and uranium etc. from the congo(Ngco ngo my emphasis) without any regulation s or purchase's benefiting the people,... . once you know human nature you can manipulate the human animal only divinity can subdue Seth_TYpho on.

| 29330|2009-07-13 06:52:18|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|The U.S. Geological Service issued a report in April ('08) that only|

The U.S. Geological Service issued a report in April ('08) that only scientists and oil men knew was coming, but man was it big. It was a revised report (hadn't been updated since '95) on how much oil was in this area of the western 2/3 of North Dakota ; western South Dakota ; and extreme eastern Montana ..... check THIS out:

The Bakken is the largest domestic oil discovery since Alaska 's Prudhoe Bay , and has the potential to eliminate all American dependence on foreign oil. The Energy Information Administration (EIA) estimates it at 503 billion barrels.. Even if just 10% of the oil is recoverable... at $107 a barrel, we're looking at a resource base worth more than $5.3 trillion.

'When I first briefed legislators on this, you could practically see their jaws hit the floor. They had no idea.' says Terry Johnson, the Montana Legislature's financial analyst.

'This sizable find is now the highest-producing onshore oil field found in the past 56 years.' reports, The Pittsburgh Post Gazette. It's a formation known as the Williston Basin, but is more commonly referred to as the 'Bakken.' And it stretches from Northern Montana, through North Dakota and into Canada . For years, U.S. oil exploration has been considered a dead end. Even the 'Big Oil' companies gave up searching for major oil wells decades ago. However, a recent technological breakthrough has opened up the Bakken's massive reserves.... and we now have access of up to 500 billion barrels. And because this is light, sweet oil, those billions of barrels will cost Americans just $16 PER BARREL!

That's enough crude to fully fuel the American economy for 2041 years straight.

2. And if THAT didn't throw you on the floor, then this next one should - because it's from TWO YEARS AGO!

U. S. Oil Discovery- Largest Reserve in the World!
Stansberry Report Online - 4/20/2006

Hidden 1,000 feet beneath the surface of the Rocky Mountains lies the largest untapped oil reserve in the world. It is more than 2 TRILLION barrels. On August 8, 2005 President Bush mandated its extraction. In three and a half years of high oil prices none has been extracted. With this motherload of oil why are we still fighting over off-shore drilling?

They reported this stunning news: We have more oil inside our borders, than all the other proven reserves on earth. Here are the official estimates:

- 8-times as much oil as Saudi Arabia
- 18-times as much oil as Iraq
- 21-times as much oil as Kuwait
- 22-times as much oil as Iran

- 500-times as much oil as Yemen
- and it's all right here in the Western United States .

HOW can this BE? HOW can we NOT BE extracting this? Because the environmentalists and others have blocked all efforts to help America become independent of foreign oil! Again, we are letting a small group of people dictate our lives and our economy.....WHY?

James Bartis, lead researcher with the study says we've got more oil in this very compact area than the entire Middle East - more than 2 TRILLION barrels untapped. That's more than all the proven oil reserves of crude oil in the world today, reports The Denver Post.

Don't think 'OPEC' will drop its price
- even with this find? Think again! It's all about the competitive marketplace - it has to. Think OPEC just might be funding the environmentalists?
Got your attention/ire up yet? Hope so! Now, while you're thinking about it .... and hopefully P.O'd, do this:

3. Pass this along. If you don't take a little time to do this, then you should stifle yourself the next time you want to complain about gas prices .. because by doing NOTHING, you've forfeited your right to complain.

-----

Now I just wonder what would happen in this country if every one of you sent this to every one in your address book.

By the way...this is all true. Check it out at the link below!!!

GOOGLE it or follow this link. It will blow your mind.

<http://www.usgs.gov/newsroom/article.asp?ID=1911>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29331|2009-07-13 07:19:42|Peter Gray|Re: 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD|

Many thanks, Paul. I will order Wonders of the African World from Amazon.

Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2009 05:14:22 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> In one of Henry Louis Gates' TV video documentaries on AE, he walks through parts of Nubia with a female Italian Egyptologist who explains the cover up of ancient Nubia's historical greatness on "racism". Does anyone know if Gates' TV series is available on DVD? I'm also searching for Basil Davidson's Africa series on DVD, if anyone can help with that as well. Many thanks.

>

>

Peter, do you mean "Wonders of the African World? If so:

http://www.amazon.com/Wonders- African-World- Henry-Louis/dp/B0000DG013

Not sure if there is the Basil Davidson series is available on DVD. It is available on VHS ;).

Snippets of the series can be found on YouTube:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jTr6JnKN3qo>

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.
| 29332|2009-07-13 07:21:11|odhiambo okech|Reginald Okumu, David Ochwangi; Thank you|
On Saturday 11th July, Mr Reginald Okumu, formerly the Chairman of the Institution of Surveyors of Kenya became a Friend of KCDN by giving us Kshs 2,000.00 in support. On the same day, Mr. David Ochwangi also become officially a Friend of KCDN by sending his pledge of $100 [Kshs 7,432.00].

We also received a commitment of Kshs 5,000.00 from Mr. Cosmos Omondi from Southern Sudan. He will pass this to us when he comes around shortly. To all of you we say; Thank you.

We are truly humbled and honoured by these Friends of KCDN. This is the response to our call for support so far;

- 1] Mr. Lenny Amolo; Kshs 3,000.00 received
  - 2] Dr. Shem Ochuodho; Kshs 2,500.00 sending
  - 3] Mr. Maurice Odenyo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
  - 4] Mr. Sam Olendo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
  - 5] Dr. Matunda Nyanchama; $100 sending
  - 6] Mr. David Ochwangi; $100 [Kshs 7,432.00] received
  - 7] Mr. Oduor Ongwen; Kshs 3,000.00 received
  - 8] Ms Janet Feldman; $50 [Kshs 3,693.00] received
  - 9] Mr. Elijah Kombo; Kshs 6,000.00 received
  - 10] Ms Arinolah EN; Kshs 2,000.00 received
  - 11] Mr. John Maina; Kshs 1,500.00 received
  - 12] Mr. Otieno Sungu; Kshs 1,500.00 received
  - 13] Mr. Reginald Okumu; Kshs 2,000.00 received
  - 14] Mr. George Nyongesa; Kshs 2,000.00 received
  - 15] Ms Jeanette M Khaoya; CHF100 [Kshs 6,823.50] received.
  - 16] Mr. Cosmos Omondi; Kshs 5,000.00 sending
- .....And many more Friends of KCDN.....

We are still appealing to as many friends to step forward and be part of us. KCDN is just but a means by which you can exercise your goodness to the less fortunate members in our society, particularly the Orphans and the Vulnerable Children.

Check out our next events on; <http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com> and be part of us.

We appreciate your support very much.

many thanks and blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi,
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557

| 29333|2009-07-13 07:52:19|Everett Prewitt|Re: 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD|

I have a copy of Basil Davidsons Africa on VCR. I just moved, so it is buried somewhere. If you want to borrow it, let me know.

J. Everett Prewitt, Author
Snake Walkers

---

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com ] On Behalf Of Peter Gray
Sent: Sunday, July 12, 2009 7:43 PM
To: Marc Washington
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

In one of Henry Louis Gates' TV video documentaries on AE, he walksthrough parts of Nubia with a female Italian Egyptologist who explanins the cover up ofancient Nubia 's historical greatness on "racism". Does anyone know if Gates' TV series is available on DVD? I'm also searching for Basil Davidson's Africa series on DVD, if anyone can help with that as well. Many thanks.

Peter Gray

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: cmccraw@swbell.net
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2009 03:54:40 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

David Rohl's special TV program 'Pharaohs & Kings' was FINALLY remastered & re-released last September, and there are only 5 copies left!

You can order both 'Pharaohs & Kings' and the David Rohl seminar shot in Florida ('Myth or Reality') here:

<http://stretchproductions.com/RohlProducts.html>

David Rohl video SAMPLES in the center of the page:

<http://www.youtube.com/StretchProductions>

Thanks!

-Cami McCraw

<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/newchronology/>

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29334|2009-07-13 09:20:33|Peter Gray|Re: 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD|

Thanks for your response, Mr. Prewitt. I'll keep trying to find it in DVD format, if such exists.

All the best, Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: prewitt@mindspring.com
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2009 10:52:07 -0400
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

I have a copy of Basil Davidsons Africa on VCR. I just moved, so it is buried somewhere. If you want to borrow it, let me know.

J. Everett Prewitt, Author

Snake Walkers

---

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com] On Behalf Of Peter Gray
Sent: Sunday, July 12, 2009 7:43 PM
To: Marc Washington
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

In one of Henry Louis Gates' TV video documentaries on AE, he walksthrough parts of Nubia with a female Italian Egyptologist who explanins the cover up ofancient Nubia's historical greatness on "racism". Does anyone know if Gates' TV series is available on DVD? I'm also searching for Basil Davidson's Africa series on DVD, if anyone can help with that as well. Many thanks.

Peter Gray

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: cmccraw@swbell. net
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2009 03:54:40 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

David Rohl's special TV program 'Pharaohs & Kings' was FINALLY remastered & re-released last September, and there are only 5 copies left!

You can order both 'Pharaohs & Kings' and the David Rohl seminar shot in Florida ('Myth or Reality') here:

<http://stretchproductions.com/RohlProducts.html>

David Rohl video SAMPLES in the center of the page:

<http://www.youtube.com/StretchProductions>

Thanks!

-Cami McCraw

<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/newchronology/>

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.
| 29335|2009-07-13 10:52:03|odhiambo okech|Tribe Kenya for a unified society.|

13th July 2009

On page 24 of the Sunday Nation of 12th July 2009, Mr. Reginald Okumu, a former chairman of the Institution of Surveyors of Kenya led a team from Tribe Kenya Initiative in urging Kenyans to refuse to answer to the tribe question in the forthcoming national census.

Tribe Kenya Initiative is a lobby group that seeks to encourage Kenyans to think more of Kenya than the tribe from which they come from.

And in their editorial of today, the Daily Nation seems to be encouraging the government to ask us about our tribes in the forthcoming census. In a strongly worded editorial, the author says such arguments border on facetious sophistry and are best discarded. He then says that what is important is finding out the relative numbers, not so that one tribe can go around proclaiming its majority, but for planning purposes.

I beg to differ.

For the last 46 years, and the Daily Nation knows this, the issue of tribe has been used to set Kenyans against each other. Is it not time we Kenyans confronted this issue and put it to rest? I am a Kenyan of Luo origin. Why should somebody ask me that in a government document? I bet the most important thing to do is to know that I am a Kenyan.

Secondly, our political leaders have failed to use our ethnic diversity to propel a national agenda. We all know that tribe has been an issue and our political leaders will always use this as a tool to disenfranchise us. Is it not time Kenyans revolted against this selfish scheme? Is it too much to just say I am a Kenyan?

Thirdly, I have not seen any planning purposes centred on the tribe. If it is the Luo, we have Luos across all Kenya. How will you factor on development with the Luo in mind? I bet development is either constituency or District based. If we were to factor on development in Nyeri, will we look at how many Kikuyus, Luos, Kambas or Luhyas are domiciled there? And then for planning purposes plan according to the numbers of each tribe in that particular District?

This is a tired argument and it is time Kenyans confront this issue head on. The author of that editorial at the Daily Nation cannot use such strongly worded jargons to stifle an idea whose time has come. For 46 years Kenyans have been shepherded like goats by politicians who use the issue of tribe to divide us. Dont we all know how the census has been used to hype the numbers of certain tribes?

I want to strongly urge Kenyans to ignore and refuse to answer to the tribe question. Let us all say we are Kenyans. It is time we took charge of our destiny by beginning to reclaim our independence from the manipulative politicians and their cronies from the media and the civil service.

For 46 years, tribal census has been used to make us fight, it is time to give it a kick. I am a Kenyan and I am proud to be one.

Odhiambo T Oketch,

Komarock Nairobi.

| 29336|2009-07-13 11:42:29|avdeelen@ziggo.nl|A United States of Africa - NOW!|
pharoahisrael,

MLP.,
The Nationalists, AFN

Fw: Re: [NorthAmexemObservers] A United States of Africa - NOW!/ I T

Hi,

It can be done. I think I have a governance model that will

- 1) Guarantee total equality and access to basic services for any citizen, no matter where in a country they live, and who is in power nationally
- 2) Is applicable to every single locality in Africa, and therefore can form the core of system of governance that is completely compatible with African Unity

My model is very simple: emphasis is given to local government, which is funded directly from 50% of national revenues, by an independent state agency, like the National Revenue Service. Local government is to provide basic services: education, healthcare, policing, public utilities and administration.

Today, most money is wasted at the ministerial level, which creates an ever greater emphasis on centralisation and removing government from where the people live - which is in the rural areas. It creates urban (capital city) elites.

On the other hand, when money is distributed to local government, there can be more oversight, government is where people live, the money spent by government stimulates the rural economies.

As a system of government, this is the way to go.

Economically, Africa must start keeping its money at home. The continent exports a trillion dollars in raw materials every year, and this money must go to reinvestment in economic sectors like agriculture, manufacturing and infrastructure. 'Donor aid' is only a quarter of a trillion dollars, and much of that is spent right back in the economies of the 'donor countries', by employing their firms, their expatriates, and ordering materials from their economies. Africa has the money, but it must be spent in Africa, by African firms, without the leaders who do that being murdered, villified, or have international media campaigns launched against them. (Patrice Lumumba, Kwame Nkrumah, Laurent Kabila, Robert Mugabe).

Remember that 60% of the world's gold comes from South Africa, 90% of the world's diamonds come from Botswana and South Africa, at one point 25% of copper and 50% of cobalt from Zambia and now the DRC, 10% of the world's oil from Nigeria, most of the world's platinum from Zimbabwe, there is chromium, uranium, tantalite/coltan (cell phones). Most of the Rift Valley has never been properly mapped. Most of the land is not under cultivation or irrigation. There is huge potential for cattle and crops, especially in combination with irrigation.

Africa is always portrayed as 'the poorest continent', but this is a lie. The people are poor, but the continent is blessed with the African Rift Valley, which opens the continent, making it very easy to mine all kinds of minerals and metals. This is why you have such a distortion in the international media about Africa, because they are covering up the massive yearly theft of Africa's trillion dollars of raw materials. Which is also why I don't care much about reparations - just stop robbing Africa today, and I'll be overjoyed. If a trillion dollars per year was put into Africa's economy, there would be no hunger, no war, no disputes over materials at all.

Alex

| 29337|2009-07-13 13:06:18|nathaniel x vance|UFOs or Hoaxes? [7-12-09]|

UFOs or Hoaxes? [7-19-09]

<<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YvexU5rVT30&feature=related>>

<<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=H8bptMpkjic>> Renown Jaime Maussan. Spanish 5-2009 UFO video.(Zeta approved!)

And lastly, will the Son of Man (The Madhi Master W.F. Muhammad) ever return on this "JUDGMENT DAY of the LORD"? Who are the Angels of God?

The Honorable Elijah Muhammad said:

So He took His leave, as it is said in Quran that the people are not worthy that God remain among them, but He makes a Messenger of that people that through that Messenger, He will reach the people, through him. And the Bible verifies such. And so, He left and He gave me hints about His return. But now there is just as much prophecy that He will not return as there is of His returning. The Bible says He will send His angels and they will take care of the gathering of His people. I don't expect Him to return in Person. Not like that. There is too much to us to look forward to that He will not. It is not really necessary, if He's going to send His own people, we refer to as angels, to gather the Believers of my people. Its not necessary."

More Mystery Crop Circles

Are Crop Circles caused by natural phenomena such as unusual forms of lightning striking the earth? Only a simpleton would believe this!

<<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/newsttopics/howaboutthat/5777580/Mayan-apocalypse-crop-circle-appears-at-Silbury-Hill.html>>

<<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bolF5zzmfDQ>> Summary of many recent Crop Circles

Fireballs (Bible: There will be signs in the sky!)

Meteor lights up Mid-Atlantic area's skies as startled observers report brilliant flash, 'thunderous' sonic booms

<<http://www.baltimoresun.com/news/maryland/bal-md.meteor07jul07,0,2101919.story>>

Coming November - An Endtime Movies! (Will 2012 be the END?)

Watch a trailer here by clicking below!

<<http://www.whowillsurvive2012.com/?hs308=email>>

[According to the STO Zeta space angels, planet earth can expect an increase in many more UFO/ET sightings]

<<http://www.zetataalk.com/index/blog0928.htm>>

Natural Solutions Alert

Dear Friends,

This following data received from Natural Solutions is comprised of facts that are worth paying attention to so you may be prepared for these potential difficulties and build your immune system. By being somewhat forewarned about these potentials, you give yourself the opportunity to remain in a state of peace while positively affecting your mental state and overall well-being as both are affected by your immune system. Please be also aware that the Hand of God through the "disruption on the earth plane" can upset the best laid plans of mice and men.

Blessings and Peace,

Rabbi Gabriel Cousens, M.D.

1. An "informal" [e.g., illegal] clinical trial of the Avian Flu vaccine on about 200 Polish vagrants resulted in 11 immediate deaths and an additional set of 20 later deaths (approximately 15% of the test population). The doctors and nurses involved were charged with murder. (Fact. 2008)

2. The Philippine High Court convicted WHO (The World Health Organization) of involuntarily sterilizing over 3 million Philippina women through the use of vaccines. (Fact)

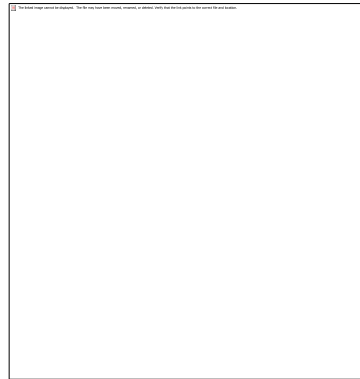

3. The WHO in 1985 documented that one of its' primary goals for the use of a sterility vaccine disguised as a smallpox vaccine was to "eliminate 150 million excess Sub Saharan Africans". (Fact, 1985-ongoing)

4. The WHO 5-shot vaccine programs for tetanus in third world countries in South and Central America caused the involuntary sterilization of millions of women. (Fact, ongoing)

5. Monsanto's MON 810 corn causes sterility according to studies published by the Austrian Government. (Fact, 2009)

6. Monsanto's MON 810 corn contains the Cauliflower Mosaic Virus which, when ingested, lowers the bodies CD 4 cells to a point which, on immune tests, indicate that a person has HIV/AIDS. The lowered CD 4 cells results from eating GMO corn, the staple of the diet in many parts of Black Africa. MON 810 is grown in Europe for animal feed and in many places, including the US, around the world for human food. (Fact, ongoing)

7. Merck's Gardasil vaccine causes death, collapse and chronic illness in young woman and girls, including a new, never-before described "disease" called Juvenile ALS, a fatal condition in which the nervous system is slowly destroyed while consciousness remains unimpaired. This vaccine increases cervical cancer by 44.7% in women and girls who already have Human Papilloma Virus. Cervical Cancer is easily detected and cured in early stages and is not a major killer of women. Gardasil contains substances which may cause sterility in women receiving it and any protection lasts only a few years, so 9 year olds will probably not be sexually active by the time this protection has worn off. (Fact, ongoing)

8. Baxter International Inc. was in the process of applying for a contract to provide Avian Flu vaccines to European countries in the event of an Avian Flu epidemic. Its Austrian laboratory shipped Seasonal Flu vaccines to 18 countries in Europe. A laboratory technician tested the Baxter Seasonal Flu vaccines sent to the Czech Republic and discovered that they were contaminated with a highly pathogenic version of the Avian Flu, 72 Kilograms of it, although Level 3 precautions were in place and such contamination "could not have happened accidentally" according to experts in the field. No documentation of the destruction of this highly infective material has been provided although the Austrian Health Ministry insists that the deadly viral material was destroyed. (Fact, 2008, 2009)

9. It normally takes a minimum of 12 to 18 months to create a vaccine after a specific virus has been identified. (Fact)

10. The "Seed Culture" for the Swine Flu virus was provided to vaccine companies in May, 2009. Baxter International Inc. announced in June, 2009 that they would have their vaccine ready in July, 2009 . (Fact, 2009)

11. The US Government has spent more than a billion dollars to develop and to make available the Swine flu vaccine for a disease which poses no significant health threat. (Fact, 2009)

12. A significant number of virologists and other scientists are on record stating that the Swine Flu was created in a laboratory and could not evolve naturally. (Fact, 2009)

---

Gabriel Urges Everyone to Sign the Following Petitions TAKE ACTION TODAY!

Educate Yourself and Take Peaceful Action

Protect Us From Compulsory Vaccination, Drugging

Demand Protection from Mandatory Vaccination, Drugging or Sanctions, Including Internment and Support for the Right to Self-Shield In the Event of a Pandemic. CDC and WHO are predicting that the H1N1 "Swine Flu" will be back this fall in a new and deadly form. WHO, after changing the definition to fit current conditions, declared a "Level 6" pandemic in mid-June, 2009. Since the organism appears to have been man made, this prediction may be one they can make "accurately."

ACTION:

http://salsa.democracyinaction.org/o/568/campaign.jsp?campaign\_KEY=27275

Protect our Rights to Organic Foods

We have just weeks to stop the take over of family farms and ranches, organic and natural foods.

H.R. 875 and S. 425 [and similar bills such as H.R. 759 and HR 2749]. We need to rally people immediately. The new administration is pushing new farm controls through Congress as fast as possible and have coordinated the bills so there will be no debate and the committee meetings are closed.

ACTION:

http://salsa.democracyinaction.org/o/568/t/1128/campaign.jsp?campaign\_KEY=26714

EDUCATE YOURSELF FURTHER

Stay Home, Stay Alive: Your Right to Self-Shield A Natural Solutions

Foundation White Paper

<http://www.healthfreedomusa.org/?p=2752>

Mandatory Swine Flu Vaccines - Untested, Unsafe and Unnecessary

<http://www.healthfreedomusa.org/?p=2764>

---

Protect yourself with an Advanced Bio Photon Analyzer
Call Thim or Dart 520 394 2520 ext 220/218

Dr Cousens highly recommends the Advanced Bio Photon Analyser as one of the best electronic protection device systems available in the world. It raises the deep primordial vital life force energy, anti-dotes, toxic viral, bacterial, fungal, chemical toxins such as chem trails, pesticides and herbicides, and works well for allergies and environmental sensitivities.

It protects you wherever you are in the world. We have a limited amount that we have made available at a $495 dicount.

Call Thim or Dart 520 394 2520 ext 220/218 and order today. Retail $1995, Tree of Life Price $1500

---

Tree of Life Nicaragua

Dear Ones,

Over the past year, a new vision for the expansion of the Culture of Life has emerged. It is a vision of creating a Culture of Life community in Nicaragua, the core of which will be the Tree of Life Nicaragua Non-Profit Organization serving as a philosophical extension of the Tree of Life US. Gabriel and the Culture of Life have been invited to take active leadership of this project with the sincere support of Joe Galaxy, who has a brilliant and profound understanding of real finance, essential for any project of this nature. The other major support person is a renaissance Italian named Sergio Boscaro. Sergio has lived in Nicaragua for thirty years and has deep, personal relationships within the complex social stratas in Nicaragua, Costa Rica, and Panama. This Culture of Life community has the preliminary blessings of the Nicaraguan government and the explicit support of the Minister of Tourism, who sees our community as a support to the Nicaraguan economy and tourism. As the Culture of Life, we believe we have the opportunity to bring a new vision of transformation to the world on an international level. This vision includes a variety of principles and purposes:

- * We will establish Culture of Life Consciousness in Central and South America, Nicaragua, and Mexico.
- * Through Tree of Life Nicaragua, we will establish our major teaching center in this region for Central and South America, and Mexico. We will teach: (1) advanced farming technique training for the building and feeding of local communities, (2) Conscious Eating, (3) Zero Point, (4) Spiritual Fasting, and (5) a "Reversing Diabetes Naturally" center to meet the growing needs of healing diabetes. It is predicted the rate will increase by 100% in this area within the next ten years. This healing center will also be open to other healers who want to share their healing skills with the local population.

* We will establish an international Culture of Life community where people would be free to live their full expression of the Culture of Life within a network context. At this time we have 400 acres extending down to Lake Nicaragua, the fifth largest fresh water source in the world, overlooking Ometepe Island. This island is considered a sacred pilgrimage site for all the Americas. These 400 acres also extend up into the mountains.

* We will establish a live food café and a teaching/meditation/yoga center. Next to the café will be an all-purpose general store selling superfoods, health products, and the basics for living in Nicaragua. This would form the core of the downtown which may expand as people choose to create arts, crafts, and other offerings.

* We are creating the opportunity for all economic levels of the Culture of Life to participate. This means we are offering 3 bedroom, 2 bathroom condominiums for approximately $70,000 with $30,000 down and a $500 per month mortgage. The exact price is yet to be determined and will depend upon the time and place of the final contract. In some locations, prices will be a bit more for lakefront properties. There is the possibility of up to three individuals sharing a condominium, which would put their ownership at $10,000 per room. It is also possible for individual bare acres with utilities to be bought for approximately $30,000 or slightly more depending on the exact location and time of the final contract. According to discussions with the Minister of Tourism, this ownership could allow people to immediately have a green card equivalent or a residency permit, a highly desirable benefit. As of right now, this has not been put into writing as a final document.

* The Culture of Life geographic location is very powerful for long-term sustainability and growth. We are blessed to be near the Pan-American Highway as the main road to our location. It is an excellent road that runs north and south going into Costa Rica. There is another excellent road that leads east to San Juan del Sur on the Pacific Ocean, twenty minutes away. The housing is set back approximately 100 yards from Lake Nicaragua. The waters in both Lake Nicaragua and the Pacific Ocean are unpolluted. The location is south of Rivas toward the Costa Rican border. An airport is located approximately an hour and a half from Managua and there is an international Liberia airport in Costa Rica about 45 minutes away. Nicaragua is unique in that it is socially and environmentally where Costa Rica was 30-40 years ago. This allows us to have a positive social impact by uplifting the consciousness and economy of Nicaragua through the development of eco-agricultural-educational health villages. We intend to create these throughout Nicaragua and Panama as a first step, followed by the rest of Central America and Mexico.

* We will establish a 1,000-person community on this equivalent of 400 acres with a 20-acre organic farm. The farm will feed everyone in the village, and will supply medicinal herbs, mushrooms, and superfoods for our "living pharmacy". David Wolfe has agreed to be a consultant for this superfood farm. These gardens will be placed in ideal locations for growing. We are also encouraging a few advanced herbal-neutraceutical superfood companies to set up satellite operations there, which will be particularly meaningful if Codex

Alimentarius manifests in the United States and in Western Europe.

- * We will establish an orphanage of 1,000 - 10,000 children, living with other villagers, on a 1,000-acre super farm. The farm will supply the children with food and education, and will be a central part of our independent localized commerce and community.

- * As a part of this localized commerce, we now have our own barter coins of silver developed by Joe Galaxy of Trillion Stars. We are currently organizing funding for these non-profit Culture of Life activities. These projects are explicitly independent of the 1,000 person Culture of Life community that is solely created by private investments.

Integrative Discussion:

The vision is modest, attainable, and has two phases. The first phase is completely dependent on economic participation from people who choose to be part of this project. It includes building a village of not more than 1,000 people who are aligned with the Culture of Life consciousness. It will be a vegan, live food village, with a 20-acre garden that will feed the people of the village, and an ecological vision that will both socially and physically support the elevation of all humanity. The garden will be a teaching center for advanced gardening skills that will support the surrounding areas. John Philips, the chief garden consultant for the Tree of Life U.S., has committed to help with the organization of this garden. Initially, the village will have a live food cafe and a general store purveying superfoods, health products, and other requested articles. As explained above, a local barter system based on our silver backed coin system has been set up to create a completely localized and sustainable economy not based upon the co-dependency and chaos stemming from international exchange.

The village is located on Lake Nicaragua, the fifth largest fresh water lake in the world. It includes housing within 5 minutes of the lakefront, all powered "off-the-grid". Gabriel and Shanti have already made a down payment on their house and invite you to become neighbors.

While Gabriel, Joe, and Sergio have created a visionary framework for this to unfold, it is designed to be a Culture of Life drug-free community in which every person or family can create their own expression within the larger context. The community will include the outreach of the Tree of Life Non-Profit Nicaraguan Foundation as an educational and "healing-diabetes-naturally" center, as well as a center for Tree of Life bi-lingual empowerment courses for Central and South America. This process is now underway as the Tree of Life US is in the immediate transition to a bi-lingual online Culture of Life Shop. Gabriels books are currently being translated into Spanish. We feel this will be a major gift to Central and South America and to Mexico for people who are ready to receive the teachings of the Culture of Life. This will be an international center serving the area. The Minister of Tourism in Nicaragua supports these plans as it also brings health and wealth to Nicaragua.

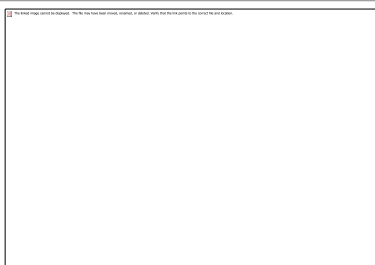

The second phase will be a 1,000 acre farm that could feed up to 10,000 orphans, both physically as well as intellectually. It will include a school for the area, and could potentially supply organic food for the orphans and throughout Nicaragua. It will be the focal point for the development of a local commerce and small Nicaraguan micro-loan businesses that will help upgrade the Nicaraguan economy. We have a bi-lingual global micro-loan expert who is committed to developing this part of the program. Although the phases are in two steps, the funding for the second, which is independent of the first, could happen simultaneously.

As previously explained, the vision of Tree of Life Nicaragua, a non-profit foundation, is one of bringing the Culture of Life consciousness to Central and South America, and to Mexico, as part of our vision to bring this consciousness to the whole planet. You would be directly participating in this. Although this vision our priority, we cannot ignore the impending reality of Codex Alimentarius driving efforts to outlaw organic farming (Bills 425 and 875) and to outlaw supplements. Additionally there exists the looming threat of forced vaccinations by the U.S. Government. The WHO has redefined the meaning of a pandemic grade six, while presently less than 200 people have died from genetically engineered swine, Spanish, and avian flus. The usual rate of flu death is somewhere between 200,000 and 500,000 per year without ever being called a pandemic. These facts call the basic intention of the U.S. government and WHO into question.

Gabriel lost 99% of his relatives in World War II because they refused to acknowledge that the forces of the culture of death could manifest. He is sensitive to this possibility, and is committed to providing doors for healthy options. Whatever issues arises, we present a vision of the Culture of Life reaching out to the world in the midst potential economic collapse, Codex, forced vaccinations, and the outlawing of organic farming in the United States.

To keep this at the highest ethical level, we invite you to create an option for yourself by looking at this opportunity in person. Presently, a Culture of Life tour is being organized by Joe Galaxy from July 25th 31st for the cost of $1,000. This covers the cost of the entire tour, including hotel accommodations and breakfast. It is also a good idea to bring supplemental superfoods, nuts, and seeds. To reach Joe or register for this, you can email: joegalaxy@trillionstars.com or call 888-978-6111 ext. 1.

We have options for how we wish to lead our life. We have the visionary options or we have the option of this very funny story included below. Gabriel and Shanti bless you all. May you be inspired at this point in history to actively participate in the living and sharing of the Culture of Life throughout the world. We invite you to join in the dance of the Culture of Life's party.
Blessings and Peace, Gabriel and Shanti Cousins

Rejuvenation Center

Leading the world in live food education, spiritual fulfillment and whole-person, whole-planet healing

Call: 866 394 2520

Reservations, Medical Services and Products

Online: www.treeoflife.nu

PO Box 778, 686 Harshaw Road
Patagonia, AZ, 85624

Join us on Facebook - FAN TREE OF LIFE

Join gabriel on Facebook - FAN GABRIEL COUSENS M.D.

---

Change email address / Leave mailing list
Powered by YourMailingListProvider

| 29339|2009-07-13 13:46:09|Tafari khumbaka|Re: 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD|

http://video.google.com/videosearch?sourceid=navclient&rlz=1T4RNWN\_enUS250US251&q=basil%20davidson%20series%20africa&um=1&ie=UTF-8&sa=N&hl=en&tab=vw#

click above

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 7/13/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD
To: "Marc Washington"
Date: Monday, July 13, 2009, 11:20 AM

Thanks for your response, Mr. Prewitt. I'll keep trying to find it in DVD format, if such exists.

All the best, Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: prewitt@mindspring. com
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2009 10:52:07 -0400
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

I have a copy of Basil Davidsons Africa on VCR. I just moved, so it is buried somewhere. If you want to borrow it, let me know.

J. Everett Prewitt, Author

Snake Walkers

---

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com [mailto:Ta_Seti@ yahoogroups .com] On Behalf Of Peter Gray
Sent: Sunday, July 12, 2009 7:43 PM
To: Marc Washington
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

In one of Henry Louis Gates' TV video documentaries on AE, he walksthrough parts of Nubia with a female Italian Egyptologist who explanins the cover up ofancient Nubia's historical greatness on "racism". Does anyone know if Gates' TV series is available on DVD? I'm also searching for Basil Davidson's Africa series on DVD, if anyone can help with that as well. Many thanks.

Peter Gray

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: cmccraw@swbell. net
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2009 03:54:40 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

David Rohl's special TV program 'Pharaohs & Kings' was FINALLY remastered & re-released last September, and there are only 5 copies left!

You can order both 'Pharaohs & Kings' and the David Rohl seminar shot in Florida ('Myth or Reality') here:

<http://stretchproductions.com/RohlProducts.html>

David Rohl video SAMPLES in the center of the page:

<http://www.youtube.com/StretchProductions>

Thanks!

-Cami McCraw

<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/newchronology/>

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29340|2009-07-13 13:49:30|Tafari khumbaka|Re: , heres some louis also...[Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD| meant 2 put this in also http://video.google.com/videosearch?sourceid=navclient&rlz=1T4RNWN\_enUS250US251&q=henry%20louis%20gates&um=1&ie=UTF-8&sa=N&hl=en&tab=wv#
click above

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 7/13/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, July 13, 2009, 3:46 PM

http://video.google.com/videosearch?sourceid=navclient&rlz=1T4RNWN\_enUS250US251&q=basil%20davidson%20series%20africa&um=1&ie=UTF-8&sa=N&hl=en&tab=wv#

click above

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Mon, 7/13/09, Peter Gray wrote:

From: Peter Gray
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD
To: "Marc Washington"
Date: Monday, July 13, 2009, 11:20 AM

Thanks for your response, Mr. Prewitt. I'll keep trying to find it in DVD format, if such exists.

All the best, Peter

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: prewitt@mindspring. com
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2009 10:52:07 -0400
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

I have a copy of Basil Davidsons Africa on VCR. I just moved, so it is buried somewhere. If you want to borrow it, let me know.

J. Everett Prewitt, Author

Snake Walkers

---

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com [mailto:Ta_Seti@ yahoogroups .com] On Behalf Of Peter Gray
Sent: Sunday, July 12, 2009 7:43 PM
To: Marc Washington
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

In one of Henry Louis Gates' TV video documentaries on AE, he walksthrough parts of Nubia with a female Italian Egyptologist who explanins the cover up ofancient Nubia's historical greatness on "racism". Does anyone know if Gates' TV series is available on DVD? I'm also searching for Basil Davidson's Africa series on DVD, if anyone can help with that as well. Many thanks.

Peter Gray

---

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: cmccraw@swbell. net
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2009 03:54:40 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] 'Pharaohs & Kings' - on DVD

David Rohl's special TV program 'Pharaohs & Kings' was FINALLY remastered & re-released last September, and there are only 5 copies left!

You can order both 'Pharaohs & Kings' and the David Rohl seminar shot in Florida ('Myth or Reality') here:

<http://stretchproductions.com/RohlProducts.html>

David Rohl video SAMPLES in the center of the page:

<http://www.youtube.com/StretchProductions>

Thanks!

-Cami McCraw

<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/newchronology/>

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

---

Windows Live SkyDrive: Get 25 GB of free online storage. Get it on your BlackBerry or iPhone.

| 29341|2009-07-13 16:31:26|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Yo! cousin is missing!!!!!!|

Uganda: Kony Abducts 80 in Congo

AllAfrica.com Mon, 13 Jul 2009 02:17 AM PDT

KInshasa □ gandan rebels kidnapped about 80 people during a raid earlier this week on a remote village in northeastern Democratic Republic of Congo, United Nations-backed radio reported on Thursday.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

| 29342|2009-07-14 06:22:06|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Fw: Re: [Ta_Seti] Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden|

here is isbn for hebrew mythe/bible myth,if anyone wants the book

0 8065 1970 3

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Thu, 7/2/09, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

From: Tafari khumbaka

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Thursday, July 2, 2009, 3:18 PM

Great paper,,, G.Greenberg is an excellent researcher his book hebrew mythe is good stuff!!, .. only if i remember correctly he does not give any credit to gerald massey or Dr.Ben .

He has/had a very high ranking in jewish historical and archaeological studies so ,, i really admire is stand for truth.

If (i=my person) i may i would like to say that since such a prominent jewish scholar is laying out truth..... .A great truth that is the(from ancient times) the mystical/mystery system of jewish/hebrew studies is Kabala/Quabala/ Cabaland they teach the whole of kabala is in the book of Genesis,.... .. an that the crown prince of ancient Egypt their moes wrote the secret doctrine of kabala in asecret language of mythe and numerology in the book genesis.
and that Kabala the teachings of Admon Cadmon is from the temple teachings of ancient Egypt and truly tell the accurate formation and creation ofthe world and man/woman.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Tue, 6/30/09, Asar Imhotep wrote:

From: Asar Imhotep
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com
Date: Tuesday, June 30, 2009, 8:41 PM

What do you think?

*****

<http://gggreenberg.tripod.com/ancientne/gener.html>

The Generations of the Heavens and of the Earth: Egyptian Deities in the Garden of Eden

Presented at the annual meeting of the American Research Center in Egypt, St. Louis 1996

ABSTRACT

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens . . . Gen. 2:4

The above quote from Gen. 2:4 introduces us to the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Many biblical scholars believe that the next few verses contain a slightly different version of Creation than that contained earlier in Gen. 1. What is especially unusual is the reference to the generations of the heavens and the earth. In the several other instances when Genesis says These are the generations of . . . , it refers to information about a parent and their children. This would imply that Genesis 2 is about the Children of the Heavens and Earth, a polytheistic throwback to an earlier cosmogony. But whose cosmogony?

This paper examines some of the verses and images associated with the story of Adam and Eve and compares them with elements in the Heliopolitan Creation myths. It will be suggested that Adam and Eve correspond in part to Geb and Nut and in part to Osiris and Isis. Additionally, it will be suggested that the three male sons of Adam and Eve Cain, Abel and Seth correspond to the three male sons of Geb and Nut Osiris, Seth, and Horus.

Although the main thrust of the paper will be on the Adam and Eve story, the paper will also look at the first Genesis Creation account as well as the story of Noah's Flood, originally, perhaps, a third Creation story, and suggest that the series of Creation stories in Genesis draws upon the Theban doctrine of Creation in which Amen appears in a series of forms representing the Memphite, Heliopolitan and Hermopolitan cosmogonies.

The paper will examine such common themes as the stirring of the primeval waters, creation by word, the separation of heaven and earth, the rising of a firmament between the heaven and earth, problems of childbirth as a punishment for disobeying God, the bruising of the serpent from the tree, the enmity between the child and the serpent, the killing of a brother as an agricultural myth, the introduction of civilization, the building of the first city, and the relationship between the husband/brother and wife/sister with the serpent.

---

This paper attempts to introduce the idea that the biblical Creation stories, from the dawn of Creation through Noah's Flood, derive from Egyptian cosmogony, more specifically, the Theban doctrine of Creation. Thebes came late to the political scene in Egypt and its view of Creation attempted to incorporate the ideas of Memphis, Heliopolis and Hermopolis into a new cosmology that subordinated the chief deities of those cults to Amen, chief deity of Thebes.

The Theban doctrine holds that in the beginning there was the great primeval flood known as Nu or the Nun. The god Amen then appeared in a series of forms, first as an Ogdoad, then as Tatenen (a Memphite name for Ptah identified with the primeval hill), then as Atum, who created the first gods, then as Re. After this he created humanity, organized the Ennead, appointed the four male members of the Hermopolitan Ogdoad as his divine fathers and priests, and appointed Shu as their leader. Another Theban tradition holds that Osiris built the first city at Thebes.

To equate all these ideas with the biblical Creation stories would be a massive undertaking, far beyond the scope of this short paper. Therefore I will deal only with a small piece of this very large subject. In this paper I will just compare some elements of the Heliopolitan cycle with the biblical account of Adam and Eve and the second day of Creation.

My point of departure is Genesis 2:4-5, which serves as a preamble to the story of Adam and Eve. Coming immediately after the account of the seven days of Creation, the text reads as follows.

These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the LORD God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

The phrase generations of appears eleven times in the Book of Genesis, but in the other ten instances it refers to stories about members of a family, such as in the generations of Noah or the generations of Jacob. This indicates that the noun or nouns following after the words generations of refer to a parent or parents. Genesis 2:4, therefore, implies that the heavens and the earth are anthropomorphic beings with children, and that what follows is about the family of these two entities.

This formulation clearly implies a pagan throwback to the idea of Heaven and Earth as deities, but biblical scholars, determined to preserve the monotheistic view of biblical history, are reluctant to accept such an interpretation. Instead, they wrench the phrase out of context and assert that it simply means things that are to follow or the history of.

A second major difficulty with Gen. 2:4-5 is the time frame in question. The passage indicates that the stories we are about to read take place in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens, and before the appearance of plant life. When is that day?

Biblical scholars tell us that the preamble refers to stories that take place after the seven days of Creation. But reading the passage literally and in context, it quite explicitly states that the stories we are about to read occurred on the day that God made the earth and the heavens and before the appearance of plant life. That time frame is clearly defined in the account of the seven days of Creation.

On the second day of Creation, a firmament arises out of the primeval waters and separates the waters above from the waters below. The biblical text says that the firmament came to be called heaven. On the third day of Creation, the waters below gathered in one place to create the dry land, which was then called earth, after which, plant life appeared. So the preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the upcoming stories in the period between the division of the waters and the appearance of plant life, in the middle of the third day of creation.

Biblical scholars, however, note an interesting problem with this division between the second and third day. The second day is the only day in the sequence that isn't blessed by God. Instead, the third day receives two blessings, one after dry land or Earth appears, and one after the arrival of plant life. As many of these scholars have recognized, the gathering of the waters to create dry land continues the second day's process of rearranging and dividing the primeval waters. For this reason, they argue that the second day's blessing is held off to the middle of the third day because that is when the task of rearranging the primeval waters is finished. I would propose instead that the biblical redactor simply made an editing error, and the first half of Day Three actually belongs with Day Two and the associated blessing belongs at the end of Day Two. This would be consistent with the text of Genesis 2:4, which says that heaven and earth were created on the same day.

To summarize briefly, so far: On the second day of Creation, God placed a firmament in the primeval waters, separating the waters above from the waters below. The firmament was called Heaven. Then He gathered the waters below into a single place and created dry land. The dry land was called Earth. The preamble to the story of Adam and Eve places the starting point for the biblical stories on the second day of Creation, before the appearance of plant life on Day

Three.

The arrangement of events on Day Two seems to closely parallel the Heliopolitan Creation myth. A great hill arose out of the primeval flood. This hill would obviously constitute a form of firmament. In some traditions that hill was Atum, the Heliopolitan Creator deity. In other traditions, Atum appeared at the top of the hill.

Atum, through act of masturbatory sex, brought forth two deities, Shu and Tefnut, representing air and moisture. These two deities gave birth to the male deity Geb, who represented the earth, and the female deity Nut, who represented the heavens.

Several Egyptian pictures portray Shu as lifting Nut into the air and separating her from Geb. Sequentially, then, Atum appears as a firmament in the middle of the Nun and creates Shu who ultimately separates heaven and earth and symbolizes the space in between. Shu, therefore, becomes the firmament between Heaven and Earth.

Consider now how Genesis says the waters were divided. First, the waters above were divided from the waters below. Next, the waters below were gathered into a single place. The waters above is an Egyptian concept signifying the sky. We see it most clearly in images of the solar bark sailing through the heavens. Although Genesis says the firmament was called Heaven, I believe this was a late gloss by the biblical redactors. The firmament stands below the waters above. It is the waters above that would correspond to heaven. The firmament would be the space in between heaven and earth, corresponding first to the primeval mountain and then to Shu.

This brings us to the question of where in all the middle east would any people have such a concept as all the waters gathering in a single place, leaving fertile land behind in its retreat. The most logical location is the Nile River in Egypt. The gathering of the waters in one place is the primary Egyptian agricultural phenomenon. It derives from the annual overflowing of the Nile, which fertilizes the land and then withdraws, leaving the dry land in its place. For Egyptians, the Nile was the one and only great water way. Even the Mediterranean Sea attaches to the Nile.

Elsewhere, throughout Canaan and Mesopotamia, there were numerous large unconnected bodies of waters that were well known to the inhabitants of those lands. They include the Mediterranean Sea, Persian Gulf, Reed Sea, Dead Sea, The Jordan River, the Tigris and The Euphrates. It is unlikely that the people of those lands would think of all these waters as gathering in a single place.

Returning to Genesis 2:4-5, we are told that when dry land was formed, no plant life existed because no man existed to till the ground. The next Genesis verses in sequence tell us: a mist rose up to water the dry land, God created the Adam out of the dust, (note that the bible says the Adam, not Adam), then he planted a Garden and put the Adam in it. Observe here 1) Adam appears before the plant life on Day Three and 2) that woman has not yet appeared. This is contrary to the sequence in the seven days of Creation, which places man and woman on the sixth day. Eve, or the woman, which is how she is described until after the expulsion from the Garden of Eden, appears later in the sequence, after plants and after other animal life.

This arrangement strongly suggests that the man and woman created on Day Six were other than Adam and Eve, who appear earlier. The confusion arises from the fact that Adam and Eve originally represented Heliopolitan deities, the most important of whom was named Atum, a name virtually identical in pronunciation to the Semitic word Adam, which was used to describe the human male. The later biblical redactors, unable to conceive of Adam and Eve as deities, thought of them instead as the first humans, and equated them with the man and woman created on Day Six, who actually are the first humans in the Genesis Creation story.

Chronologically and contextually, we see that Genesis introduces Adam and Eve as the anthropomorphic beings referred to in Genesis 2:4 as heaven and earth, and since Adam is created out of the dust of the earth, we can equate him with the Egyptian deity Geb or Earth and we can equate Eve with the Egyptian deity Nut or heaven.

Eve enters the story, however, only after she is physically ripped from the body of Adam. This separation of Adam (the earth) from Eve (the Heaven) closely parallels the Egyptian account in which Shu physically pulls Heaven from the Earth. It also incorporates the Heliopolitan idea that a male and female deity were created from a single male deity.

There are some other interesting parallels between Geb and Nut and Adam and Eve. According to Plutarch's account of the Osiris myth, Re, the chief deity, ordered Geb and Nut not to couple. They disobeyed his injunction and were punished. Re ordered Shu to separate the two bodies and declared that Nut would not be able to give birth on any day of the year. Thoth, sympathetic to Nut's plight, won some light from the Moon and created five new days. Since these days were not yet part of the year, Nut could give birth on these five days. She had five children, one on each day, born in the following order: Osiris, Horus, Set, Isis and Nephthys, the three males first and then two females. The Egyptians memorialized this sequence in their calendar, which names the last five days of the year after these five deities in the order of their births. Because of the role of Geb and Nut in birthing these deities, they were often known as the father and mother of the gods.

Observe the sequence of events: The chief deity gives a direct command to Heaven and Earth. They violate the order and as a penalty the chief deity makes child birth a difficult act for the female. Subsequently she gives birth to three sons. As we know from other Egyptian myths, one of those three sons, Set, kills one of the other sons, Osiris.

Genesis has a similar plot. God gives Adam and Eve (or Earth and Heaven) a direct order. They disobey that order and one of the punishments inflicted includes difficulties with child birth. Subsequently, Eve gives birth to three named sons, Cain, Abel, and Seth, one of whom kills one of the other brothers. Also, Eve is identified in the bible as the mother of all living, an identification similar to Nut's designation as mother of the gods. So, as with Nut, Eve disobeys God, is punished with difficulty in childbirth, has three male sons, one of whom kills one of the others, and she is thought of as the first mother.

Interestingly, the Hebrew name Seth and the Egyptian name Set are philologically identical and both children are born third in sequence. However, as some will note, in the biblical sequence it is not Seth who kills his brother. Instead, Cain does the killing. Cain, as the oldest brother, should correspond to Osiris and his killing of another brother is inconsistent with the Egyptian story. Why that occurs is too complex an issue to be resolved in this paper and we will let it pass. However, a little further below, we will see that Cain and Osiris share some other characteristics.

Although Adam and Eve start out as Geb and Nut they also share some aspects of Osiris and Isis. In this regard, we should observe that the Egyptians recognized a deity known as Geb-Osiris who was thought to have created the cosmic egg in Hermopolitan creation myths. Therefore, a merging of Geb and Osiris into a single character involved with Creation does not undermine the theme of this paper. However, I should observe that I believe the biblical character of Adam initially corresponds to the Egyptian god Atum and that Genesis incorporates within Adam all the members of the Ennead. This is consistent with the Egyptian view of Atum, who was also thought of as including within himself all the members of the Ennead.

The connection between Adam and Eve and Osiris and Isis is most apparent in the story of the serpent and the forbidden fruit. Osiris, as ruler of the afterlife, had to make two decisions with regards to the people who appeared before him. First he had to decide if the person lived a moral life; then he had to determine whether to grant that individual eternal life.

In Genesis, we learn that the Garden of Eden had two special trees. The fruit of one gave knowledge of good and evil; the fruit of the other gave eternal life. Thus, the ability of Adam to have control over the fruit of these tree would give him the same status as Osiris, but the biblical theology can not allow an Osiris to exist, so access to those fruits was forbidden by the one true deity. The nature of this conflict is even noted in the bible when God says to one of his angels, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

I suppose almost everyone who reads the story of Adam and Eve has at one time or another questioned why it was such a terrible thing for these two people to learn about the difference between good and evil. I suggest that to ask this question is to misunderstand what the story was really about. The story was not about good and evil. It was about the need to diminish the role of Osiris as a cult figure.

As a consequence of Adam and Eve eating the fruit, God administered some punishments. We have already mentioned the problem of childbirth. In addition, Adam lost his kingdom and was banished from the Garden. He journeyed to a new land where he became a farmer who had to suffer hard labor in order to produce food. As to the serpent who tricked Adam into losing his kingdom, God declared that there should be enmity between the woman and the serpent and between her seed and his seed. Furthermore, the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent and the serpent shall bruise the heel of the womans seed.

Again, these themes seem to be drawn from the Osiris cycle. In the Osiris myth, especially as related by Plutarch, Osiris and Isis ruled in a golden age. Osiris traveled far and wide teaching the people what he knew and Isis ruled in his absence. But the god Set, whom the Egyptians frequently identified with the serpent Apep, enemy of Re, conspired to take the throne for himself. Through trickery, he trapped Osiris in a chest, killed him, and hid the box away. Subsequently, Set hacked the body into pieces and buried them around the land of Egypt. Isis, fearing for the safety of Horus, her child, hid him away from Set. Still, Set managed to sneak up on Horus, and in the form of a serpent bit at his heel. But for the intervention of the gods, Horus would have died. When Horus grew up he avenged his fathers murder and defeated Set in battle.

In Genesis, the Osiris role is shared between Adam and Cain. For comparisons, we begin with the observation that the key scene in the Garden of Eden involves a serpent in a tree trying to kill Adam by tricking him into eating the forbidden fruit. The trick worked. Where Adam was essentially a fertile agricultural deity in the Garden of Eden, he has now been figuratively killed in that he now lives as a mortal and he must sweat out agricultural growth. He no longer rules as king in a golden age.

Indeed, the bible implicitly recognizes that the serpent killed Adam. The text explicitly says that if Adam ate from the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil he would surely die. Since the serpent tricked Adam into committing this life extinguishing act, he has, like Set, killed the king. That Adam didnt actually die in accord with the warning is no doubt due to the confusion of identities in later times between Adam and Eve and the first man and woman created on Day Six.

As to the serpent who tricked Adam, just as Set tricked Osiris, he and Eve became enemies, just as Set and Isis became enemies. Also, just as Set bit the heel of Horus, Genesis said that the serpent would bruise the heel of Eves children. And just as Horus avenged Set by beating him in battle, Genesis says that the seed of Eve will bruise the head of the serpent.

With regard to this last matter, let me call your attention to a well-known Egyptian scene generally identified as The Great Cat of Heliopolis. It shows a cat with a stick bruising the head of a serpent who is sitting in a tree. Egyptologists usually identify the Cat as Re and the serpent as Apep his enemy. Iconographically, while the Great Cat scene no doubt derives from the conflict between Re and Apep, the image portrayed seems remarkably consistent with the biblical story of Adam and Eve. I suspect that if we replaced the Cat with a more human image of one of the sun Gods, Re, Atum, or Horus, and left out the identifying words, many persons unfamiliar with the origin of the picture might consider it an illustration for the story of Adam and Eve.

As noted above Cain as the oldest of Eves three children should correspond to Osiris, and many such correspondences exist. To begin with, like Osiris, Cain is an agricultural figure associated with fruit farming. Osiris wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. Cain also wandered far and wide spreading his knowledge and teachings. In fact, Cains name is Semitic for smith, a craft figure, and Cains descendants, according to Genesis, are the founders of all the creative arts and sciences.

In Theban tradition, Osiris built Thebes, which was the first city. According to Genesis, Cain also built the first city. He built it in a land called Nod. Curiously, the bible refers to the city of Thebes by the name No, a rather close philological fit with Nod.

Finally, although we noted the anomaly of having Cain, the Osiris character, kill his brother instead of having the brother corresponding to Set do the killing, we do note that in both the Egyptian and biblical stories, we appear to have the story of the first murder and in each instance the killer buries the body and hides it from view, in the hope that no one will discover it.

Summary

In conclusion, I note that the bible places Israels formative years as a cultural entity in Egypt, and its leading figures, Joseph and Moses, were educated in Egypts traditions. What they new about the origins of the world they learned in Egypt, and what they wrote about those origins should surely have had an Egyptian influence.

Yet, while scholars are willing to admit all sorts of Semitic pagan influences on early Hebrew historical beliefs, they treat the idea of Egyptian influence as far too profane for intense examination. I hope in this paper I have been able to at least raise some interest in more closely examining the idea that Egyptian ideas greatly influenced the writing of early biblical history.

Asar Imhotep

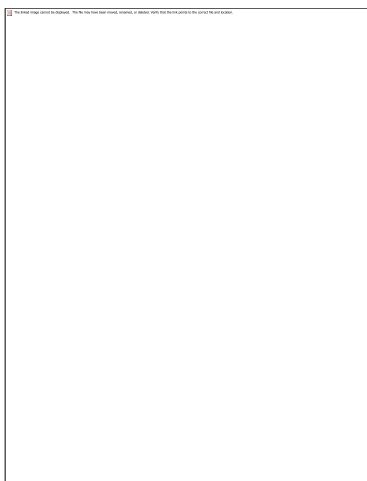

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29343|2009-07-14 07:11:36|Ginger Daniels|Jordan Chandler admits he lied about Michael Jackson|

Attachments :

June 27th, 2009

Admits he lied

After the sudden death of Michael Jackson Jordan Evan Chandler tells the truth.

In 1993, Chandler told a psychiatrist and police that he and Jackson had engaged in sexual acts that included oral sex, the boy gave detailed description of Jackson's genitals. The case was settled out of court for a reported $22 million, but the strain led Jackson to begin taking painkillers. Eventually he became addicted.

Now maybe for the remorse of his death Chandler decides to tell us the truth. I never meant to lie and destroy Michael Jackson but my father made me to tell only lies. Now I can't tell Michael how much I'm sorry and if he will forgive me. Evan Chandler was tape-recorded saying amongst other things, If I go through with this, I win big-time. There's no way I lose. I will get everything I want and they will be destroyed forever

Under the influence of a controversial father (Jordan Chandler the father) told his son (Jordan Evan Chandler) to tell that Jackson had touched his penis. Jordan Chandler then told a psychiatrist and later police that he and Jackson had engaged in acts of kissing, masturbation and oral sex, as well as giving a detailed description of what he alleged were the singer's genitals. Now for the first time I can't bare to lie anymore. Michael Jackson didn't do anything to me, all was my father lies to escape from being poor.

---

A Good Credit Score is 700 or Above. See yours in just 2 easy steps!

---

Lauren found her dream laptop. Find the PC that's right for you.

---

Windows Live Hotmail: Find, add, and share the best celeb pics, right from Hotmail. Check it out.

| 29344|2009-07-14 07:11:38|Ginger Daniels|Duke official molests adopted "black son"|

---

Bing finds low fares by predicting when to book. Try it now.

| 29345|2009-07-14 07:11:41|nathaniel x vance|Guess Who The Real Nigerians Scammers Are??|

Guess Who The Real NIGERIANS Scammers Are??

---

Dear Group,

Remember Susan Smith  [http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Susan\_Smith#The\_case ] of South Carolina when she lied that a black man had killed her children when she did this dastardly deed herself? Well, here we go again, except this time, it's a whole West African country [ Nigeria ] that is or was being blamed for numerous devious Madoff-like schemes and scams which are ripping off millions (if not billions) from innocent Americans left and right on the internet. Nevertheless, here is an article which defies reason and logic, as why would Israelis be conniving to rip off citizens of the USA, when this nation is generously giving all kinds of sanctimonious aid and assistance to Israel?

Read it as you will be very surprised!

By Yuval Goren, Haaretz Correspondent
9 Israelis suspected of scamming millions from U.S. pensioners

The Tel Aviv police fraud squad arrested on Sunday nine Israelis on suspicion of netting millions of dollars from U.S. pensioners in a so-called Nigerian scam.

Police raided an office in the city, which is suspected to have been the nerve center of the dodgy enterprise. The defendants, all in their 20s and 30s, allegedly phoned American pensioners, told them they had won the lottery and asked them for a fee of several thousand dollars for the transfer of the prize money, which in fact never existed.

The investigation has been conducted in conjunction with U.S. law enforcement agencies.

Last week, it was reported that the American agencies had urged Israel Police to step up the extradition procedure of another ten Israelis who were suspected of scamming $2 million in similar means.

Most of the ten defendants in the advance-fee scam, which was unveiled by police last September, are in their early twenties, without a criminal record.

The first hearing in their extradition plea took place last week, after a New York law enforcement official said many of the victims are old and frail, and urged the Israeli police to bring the alleged offenders to imminent justice.

<<http://www.haaretz.com/hasen/spages/1097901.html>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29346|2009-07-14 07:11:47|Michael Bayman|His-Imperial-Majesty Speaks About The Results Of Forging A Viable Ec|

From: Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

Unto:All-Moors (Declared/Undeclared)/Original-men and women:

on-this-planet

Re: Latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:

Imperial-Government

I.S.L.A.M.:

On the behalf of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial-Majesty:

Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey and the-entire: Amexem-Moor-Empire: National-Collective , peace, good-health, and much-prosperity: be-upon-you.

For the record, please-find-below a link for the latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:

Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency by the order from the Operations-Director : Distinguished-Noble:

Seti-Hotep: Bey under the authority of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Minister For The

Communications,

His-Excellency: Grand-Noble: Dan-El

For the record, we-request-that-you: share the link with brothers and sisters, in-your-cipher/circle, if-you-appreciate the information therein the video.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=h7voCQgm1NM>

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire:

Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency:

| 29347|2009-07-14 07:11:49|odhiambo okech|President Moi|

Former President HE Daniel T Arap Moi for the umpteenth time reminded Kenyans that no one will come from outside to solve our problems. That it is us who must do that.

President Moi was President of Kenya for a record 24 years. This will never be matched since the law now only allows for a maximum of 10 years at the top. If for those 24 years, he failed to solve our problems, could it not be wise for his advisors to tell him to keep quiet and enjoy his time?

I bet Kenya had enough of his rule and we might be reeling from the effects of his time. We need to move forward without necessarily being reminded of what he did not do at his time.

If his 24 years were of noble lead, Kenyans could listen to his advice. But given that we have nothing to be particularly proud of to associate with his 24 years, his advice might bring pangs of pains which are best forgotten.

Odhiambo T Oketch,
Komarock Nairobi.

| 29348|2009-07-14 07:11:53|Lamar Perryman|Re: A United States of Africa - NOW!|

Mr. Deelen,

I have no doubt that your plan will work if implemented as stated. There are other models and proposals that should be added along with yours.

The problem again is Implementation and Accountability. Now I am NOT saying that there are no African leaders who are Good Peoples and Accountable. There are a lot of them.

How do we support them and keep them in power.???

Furthermore we all know that the enemies, our own and others, are not going to be keeping still while this is going on.

As for Reparations I agree in part with what You say but that is a issue for Black/Moorish Americans to push. My point of of the matter Mr. Deelen is That we as Ethnic groups and a Race of Peoples is now beyond Philosophies. We are in a Time where PRACTICAL Application and Conduct is neccessary. In fact it is wanting to such a degree that socio-cultural suicide, ethnocide and genocide is the ONLY thing left that we are faced with now as far as a negative outcome is concerned in our places of domicile and and on The Continent.

To Sum It Up We are dealing With A Matter Of Strategy Here. That is The whole point now and it should top all other concerns at this point especially that of Names, Titles, Positions, Images, Organizations and Self-Negroisms. Investing TIME and MONEY in The Best Strategy is NOT what I have been hearing from The Political, Religious Leaderships, The Peoples and The NAACPs, NOI's, Rainbow-Pushes and all the likes etc....

If The USA is still considered the Most Influential nation in the world by a large part of the world's population then it makes sense to have a Independent United Black America Here To Lobby for Africa, Haiti and other Interests around the World that are crucial to our Ideology of Humanity, Evolution and Progress. The Fact of The Matter is that if we can't run our own business how can we advise other Brothers and Sisters to run theirs. This has Plagued Black America and Africa for far too long and SOMEBODY needs to break the pattern here. That's all I am saying.

Presenting a US of Black America, A Homeland here out of these Fifty States and Territories , A ORGANIZED SOCIETY in and of itself is far more easier to obtain and we are more closer to such than trying to unite the whole continent of Africa. We must Also remember that European Caucasian have the Same unity here among themselves and Uses America as A Foundation and Launchpad For The Interests Of Europeans-Caucasians AROUND THE GLOBE.!!!

Several other groups such as Hispanic/Latinos, Asian-Americans and The other Native Americans are doing the same thing and We as Black Americans have a Real Responsibility to use Our Presence in this Country for The Greater Purposes as well.

Now we should not try to follow them or do everything that they do But On This matter We have A Native Issue here as Our Ancestry In The Americas are of Native Black Indians and West Africans. I mean UNMIXED Native Black American Indians whose lands were taken as they were murdered and enslaved and West African Peoples were forcibly Brought Here and mixed in with them to MAINTAIN a Black American Slave Population for The Euro-Caucasian Imperialists.

We have too many Fires Burning at One Time and We Should Adopt A Strategy that we can Extinguish as MANY of Them as We Can At One Time.!

I am still in Full Support of A United Africa and well as A United Black America and I Stae that it is just a Matter of Strategy.

Sincerely,

MLP,

MAFN, The Nationalists.

--- On Mon, 7/13/09, avdeelen@ziggo.nl wrote:

From: avdeelen@ziggo.nl
Subject: [Ta_Seti] A United States of Africa - NOW!
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, July 13, 2009, 6:42 PM

pharoahisrael,

MLP.,
The Nationalists, AFN

Fw: Re: [NorthAmexemObserve rs] A United States of Africa - NOW!/ I T

Hi,

It can be done. I think I have a governance model that will

- 1) Guarantee total equality and access to basic services for any citizen, no matter where in a country they live, and who is in power nationally
- 2) Is applicable to every single locality in Africa, and therefore can form the core of system of governance that is completely compatible with African Unity

My model is very simple: emphasis is given to local government, which is funded directly from 50% of national revenues, by an independent state agency, like the National Revenue Service. Local government is to provide basic services: education, healthcare, policing, public utilities and administration.

Today, most money is wasted at the ministerial level, which creates an ever greater emphasis on centralisation and removing government from where the people live - which is in the rural areas. It creates urban (capital city) elites.

On the other hand, when money is distributed to local government, there can be more oversight, government is where people live, the money spent by government stimulates the rural economies.

As a system of government, this is the way to go.

Economically, Africa must start keeping its money at home. The continent exports a trillion dollars in raw materials every year, and this money must go to reinvestment in economic sectors like agriculture, manufacturing and infrastructure. 'Donor aid' is only a quarter of a trillion dollars, and much of that is spent right back in the economies of the 'donor countries', by employing their firms, their expatriates, and ordering materials from their economies. Africa has the money, but it must be spent in Africa, by African firms, without the leaders who do that being murdered, villified, or have international media campaigns launched against them. (Patrice Lumumba, Kwame Nkrumah, Laurent Kabila, Robert Mugabe).

Remember that 60% of the world's gold comes from South Africa, 90% of the world's diamonds come from Botswana and South Africa, at one point 25% of copper and 50% of cobalt from Zambia and now the DRC, 10% of the world's oil from Nigeria, most of the world's platinum from Zimbabwe, there is chromium, uranium, tantalite/coltan (cell phones). Most of the Rift Valley has never been properly mapped. Most of the land is not under cultivation or irrigation. There is huge potential for cattle and crops, especially in combination with irrigation.

Africa is always portrayed as 'the poorest continent', but this is a lie. The people are poor, but the continent is blessed with the African Rift Valley, which opens the continent, making it very easy to mine all kinds of minerals and metals. This is why you have such a distortion in the international media about Africa, because they are covering up the massive yearly theft of Africa's trillion dollars of raw materials. Which is also why I don't care much about reparations - just stop robbing Africa today, and I'll be overjoyed. If a trillion dollars per year was put into Africa's economy, there would be no hunger, no war, no disputes over materials at all.

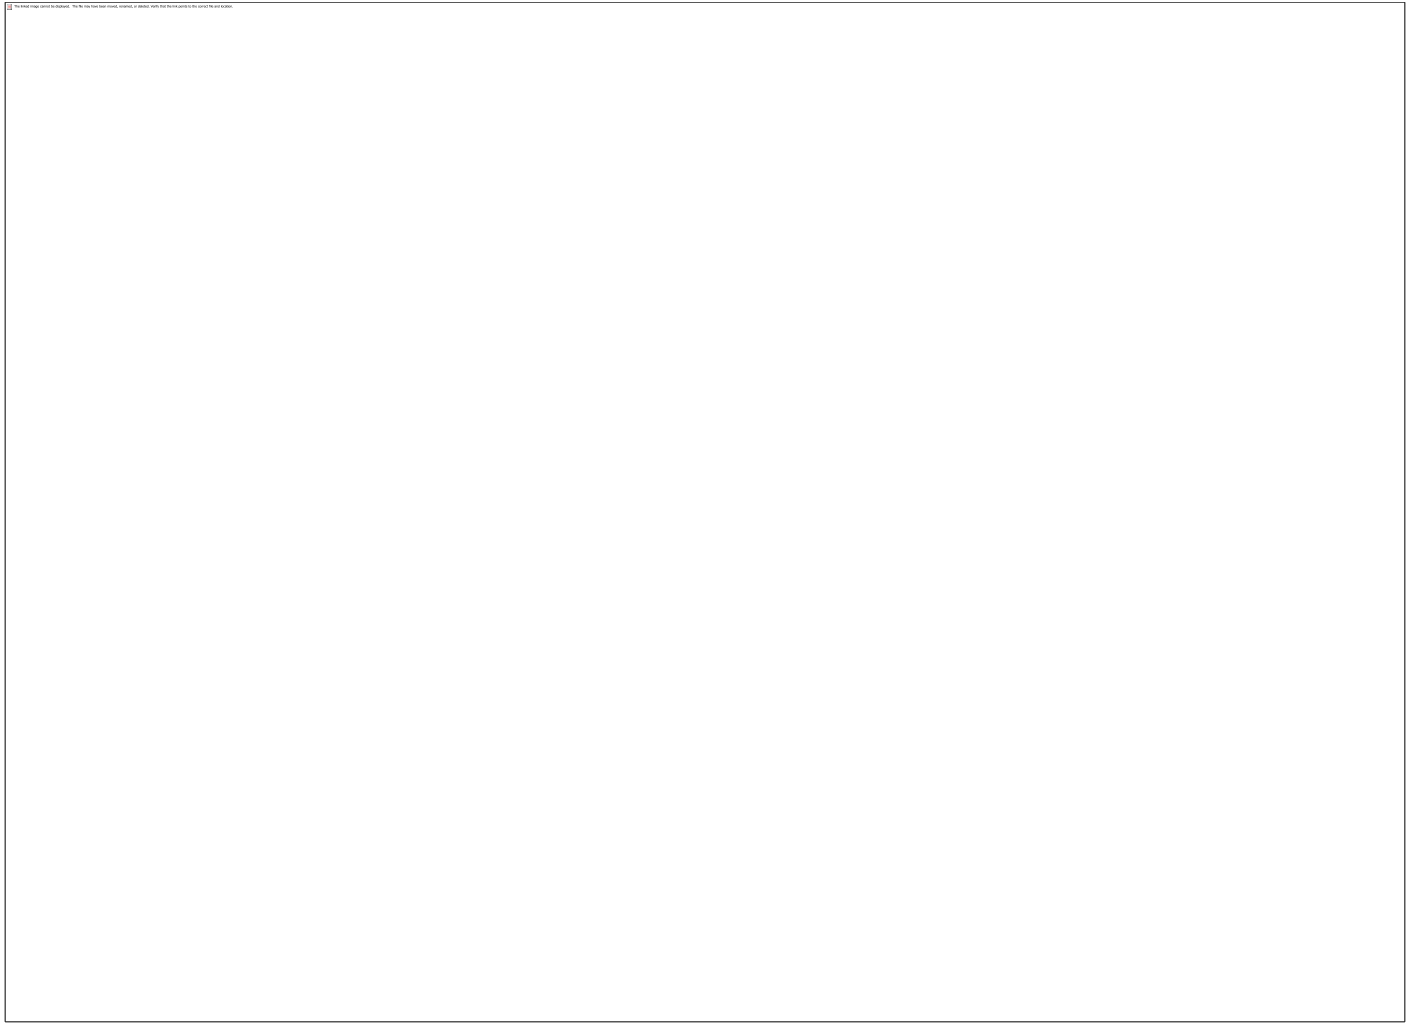

Alex

| 29349|2009-07-14 07:11:54|Ginger Daniels|Staples Center pixs, Fantastic memorial|

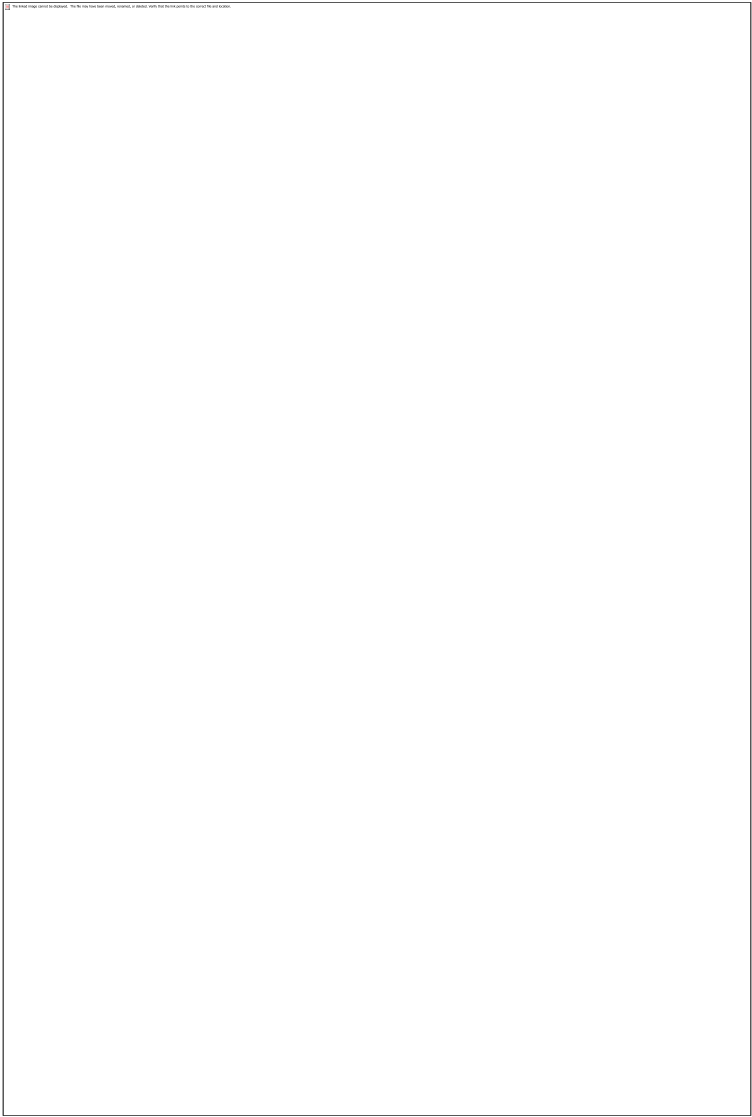

Attachments :
.....

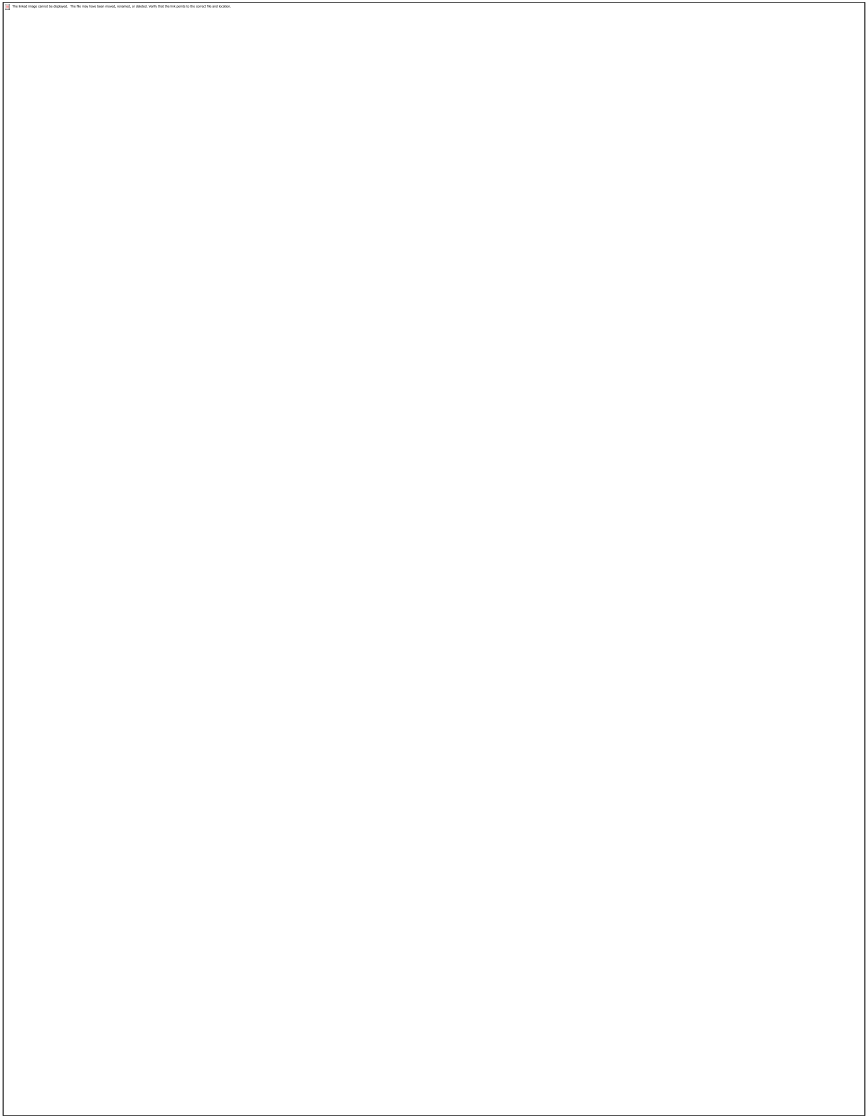

Staples Center pixs, Fantastic memorial:

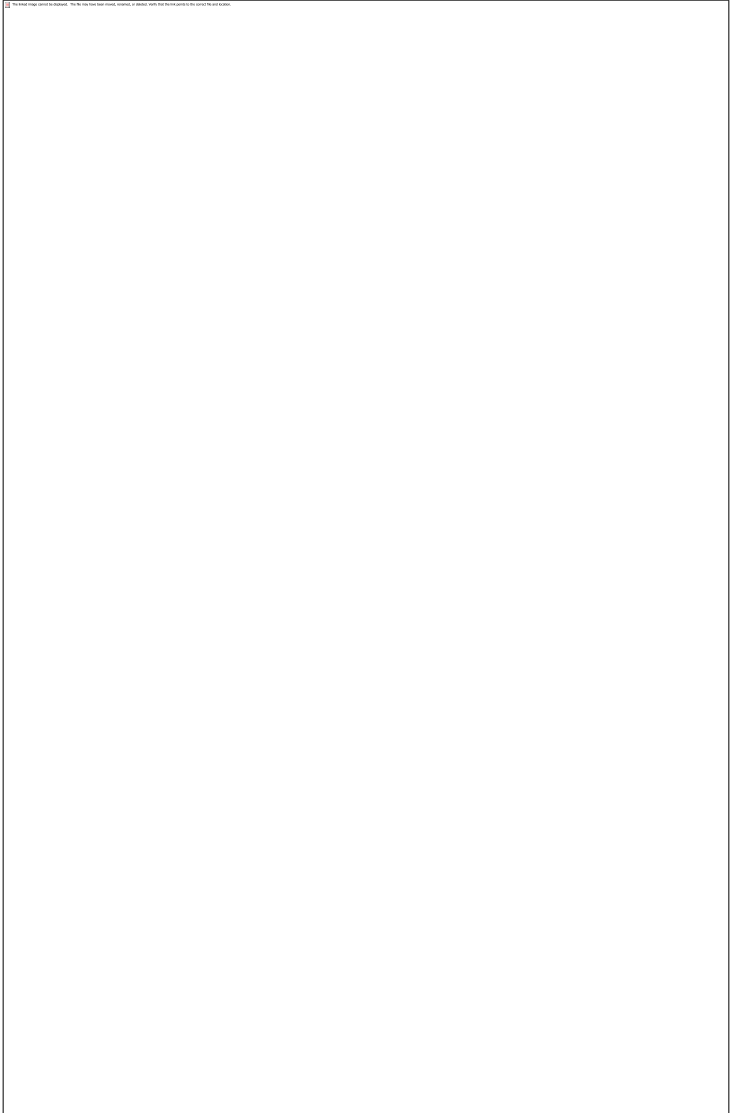

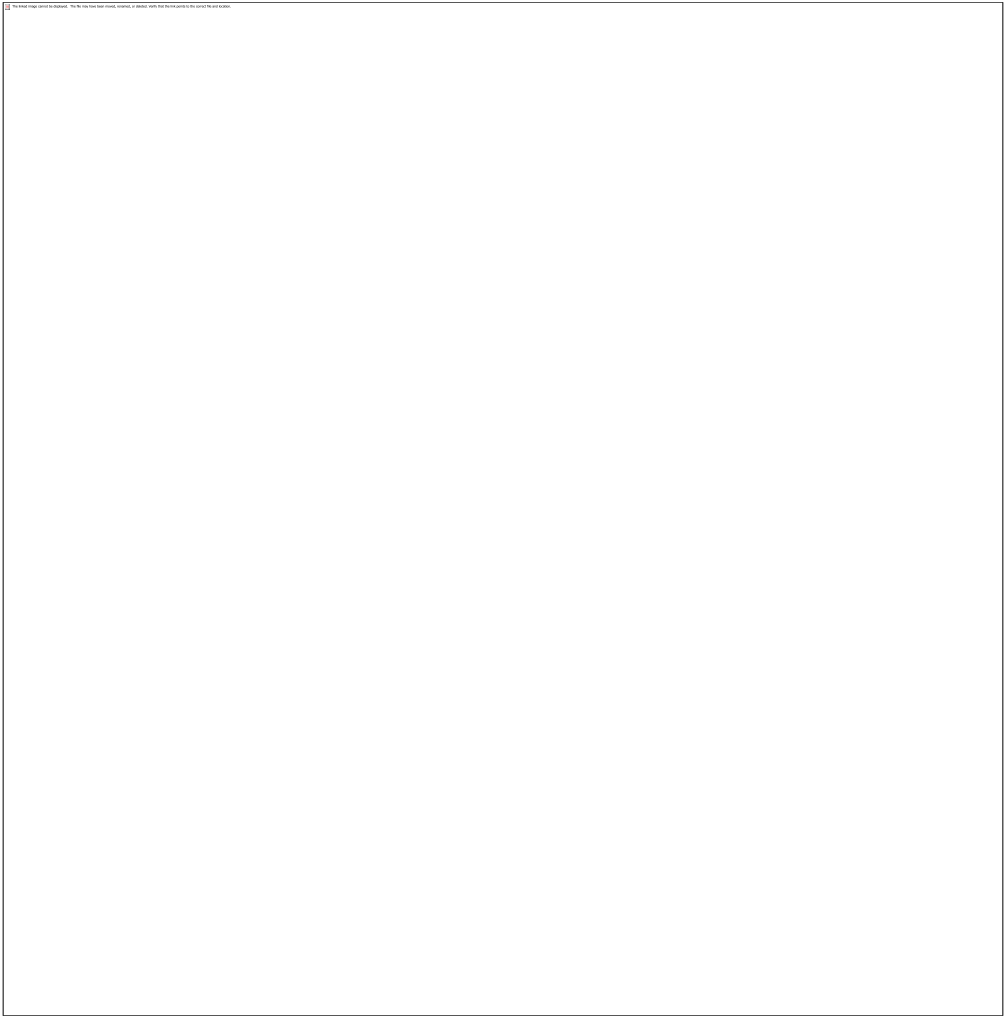

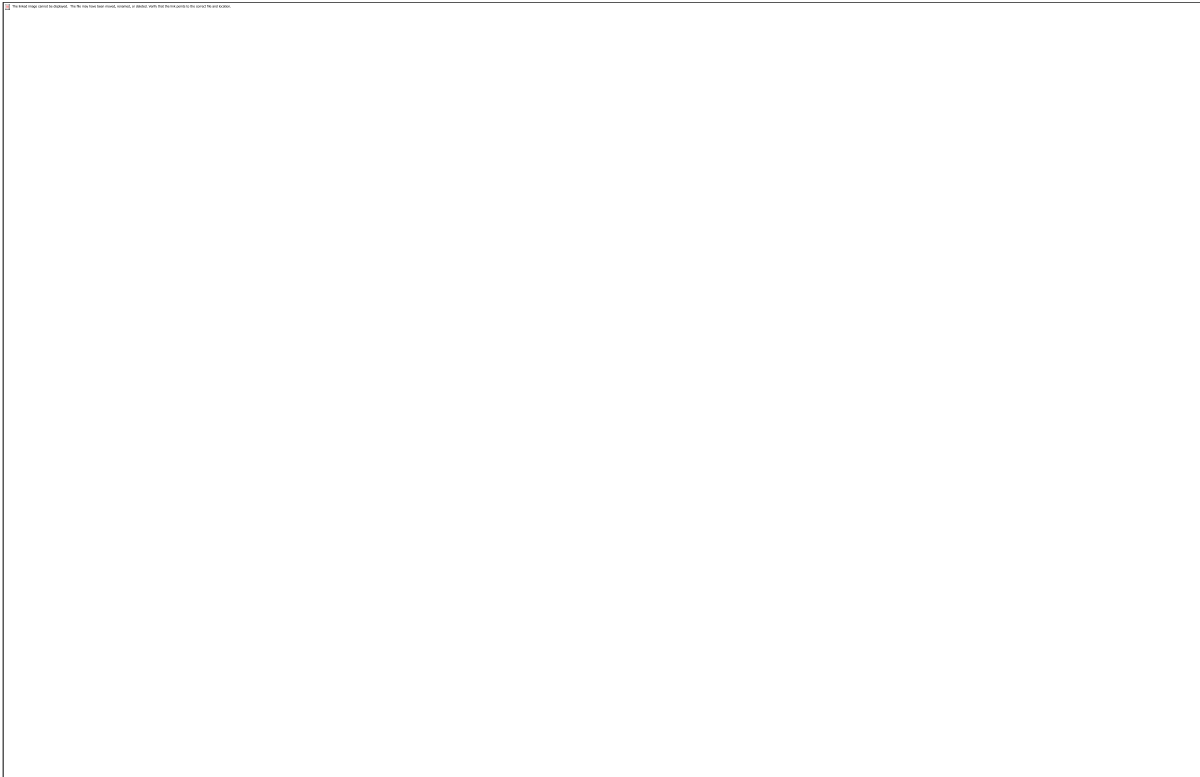

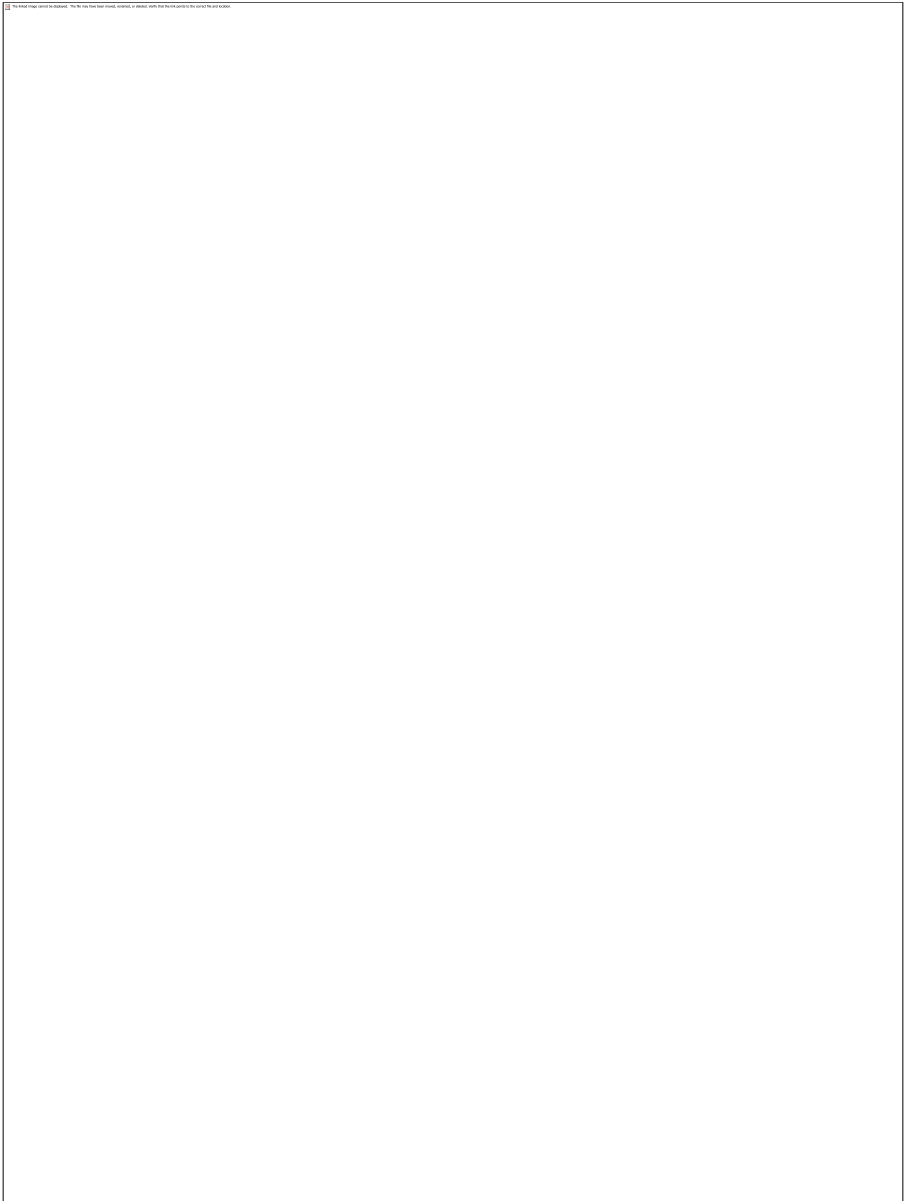

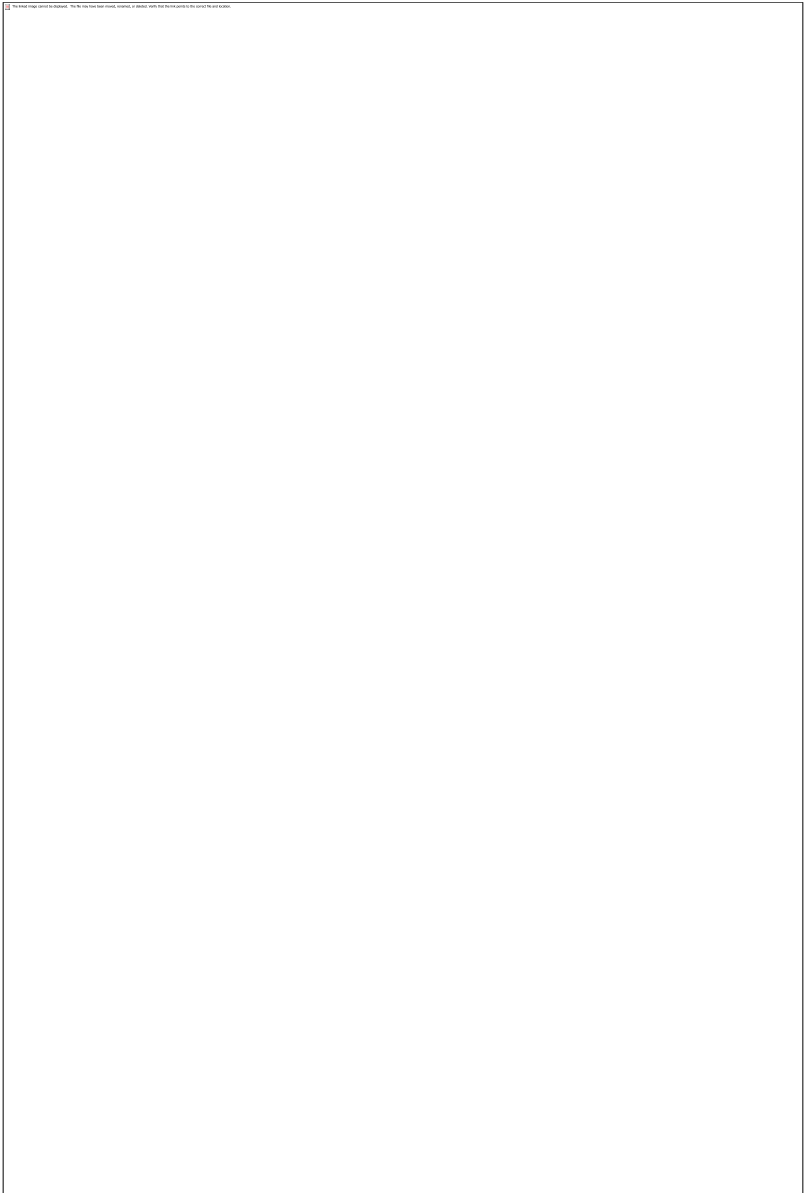

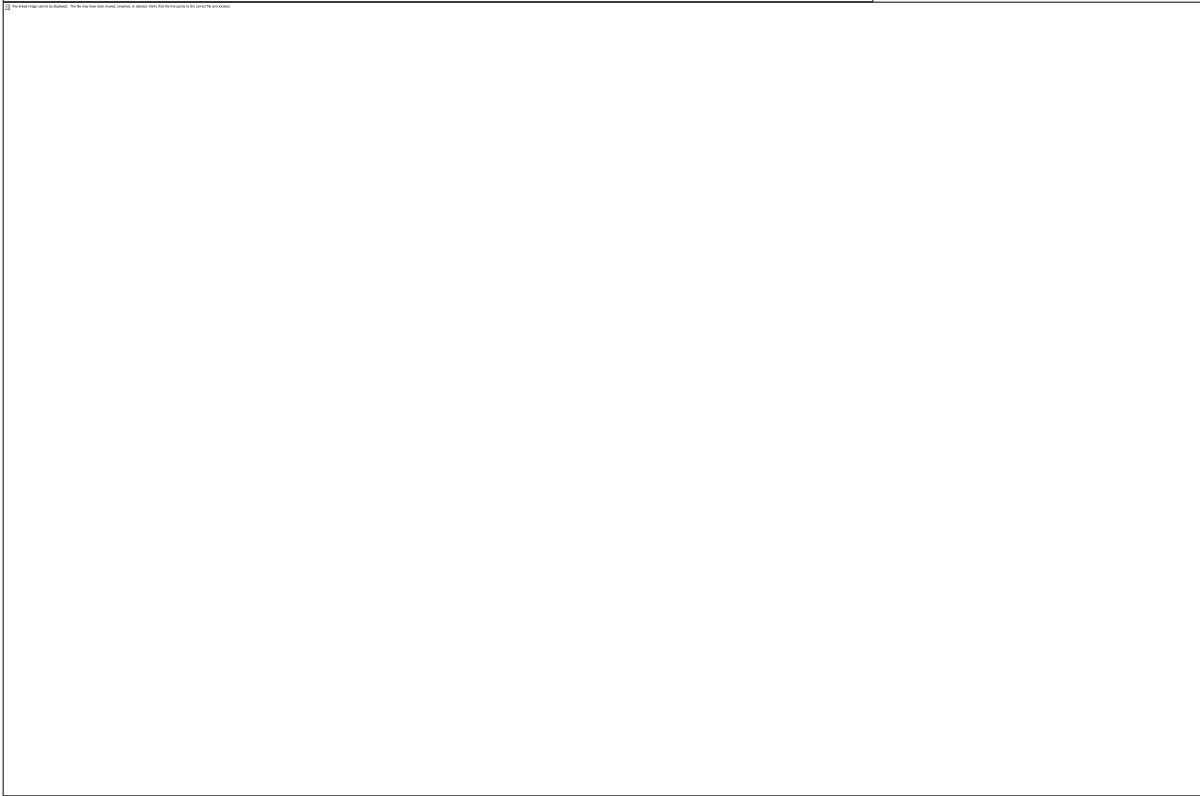

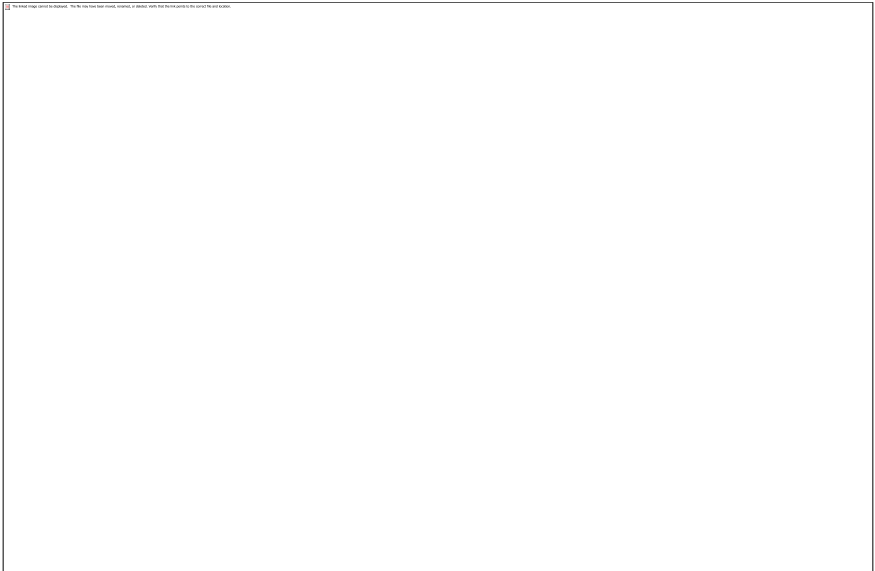

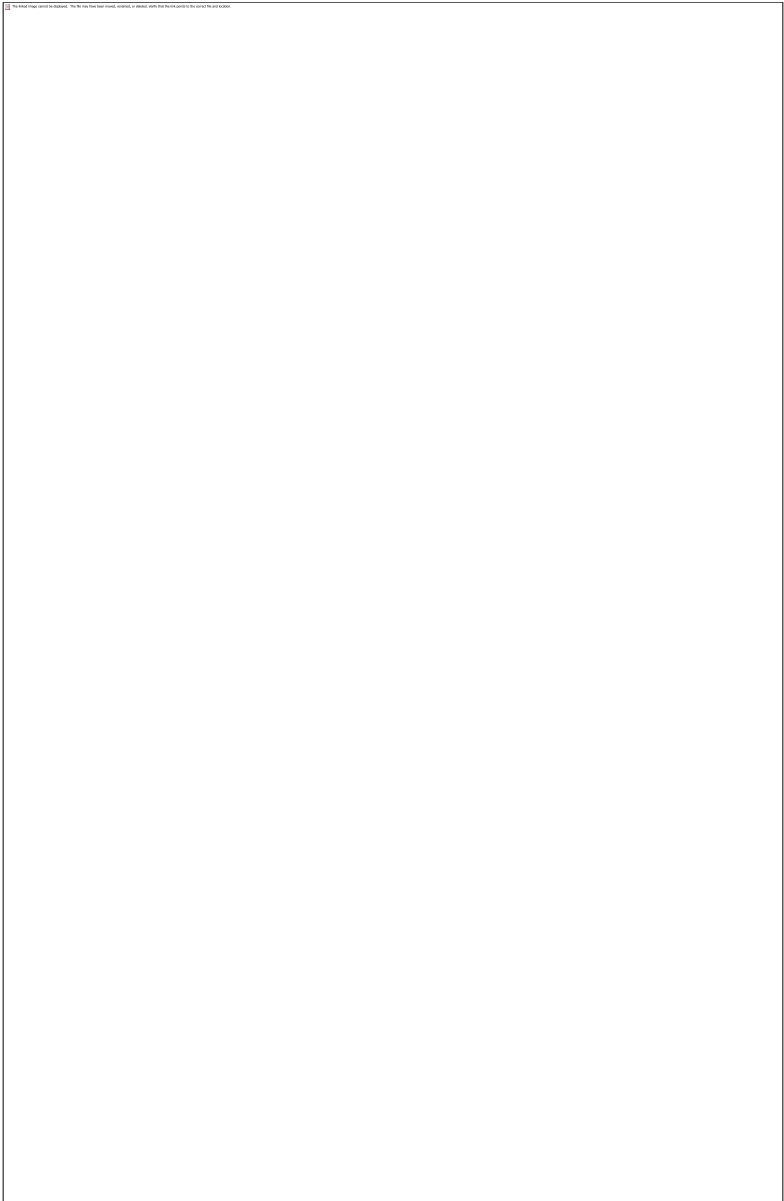

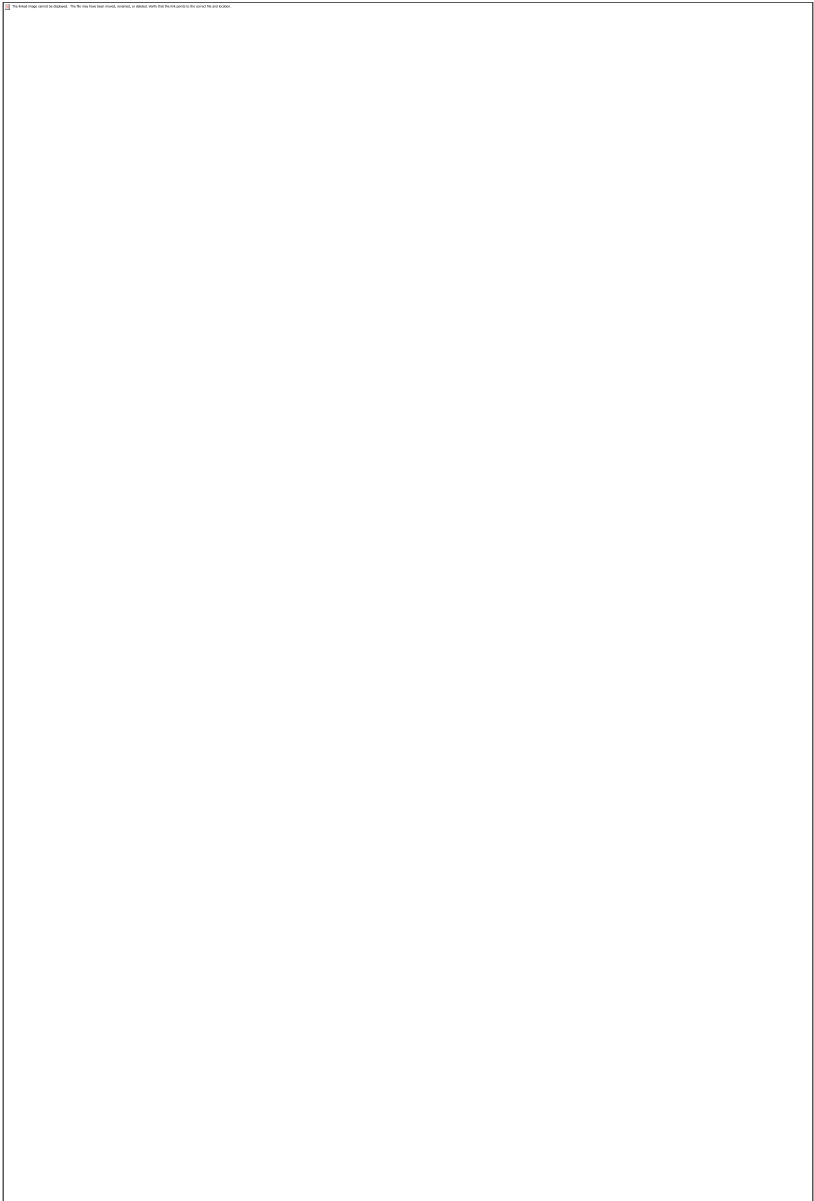

11 The first image is a photograph of a person. The person is a woman with dark hair, wearing a dark jacket. She is standing in front of a light-colored wall. The image is a black and white photograph.

12 The first image is a photograph of a person. The person is a woman with dark hair, wearing a dark jacket. She is standing in front of a light-colored wall. The image is a black and white photograph.

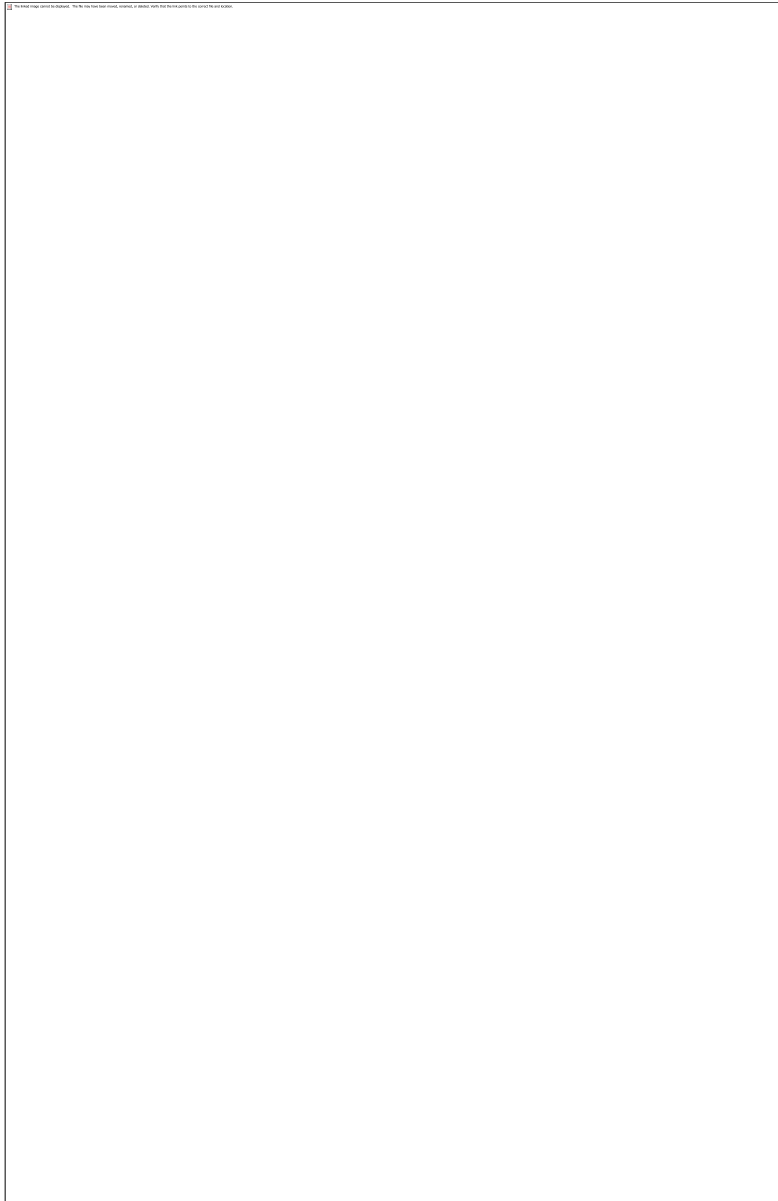

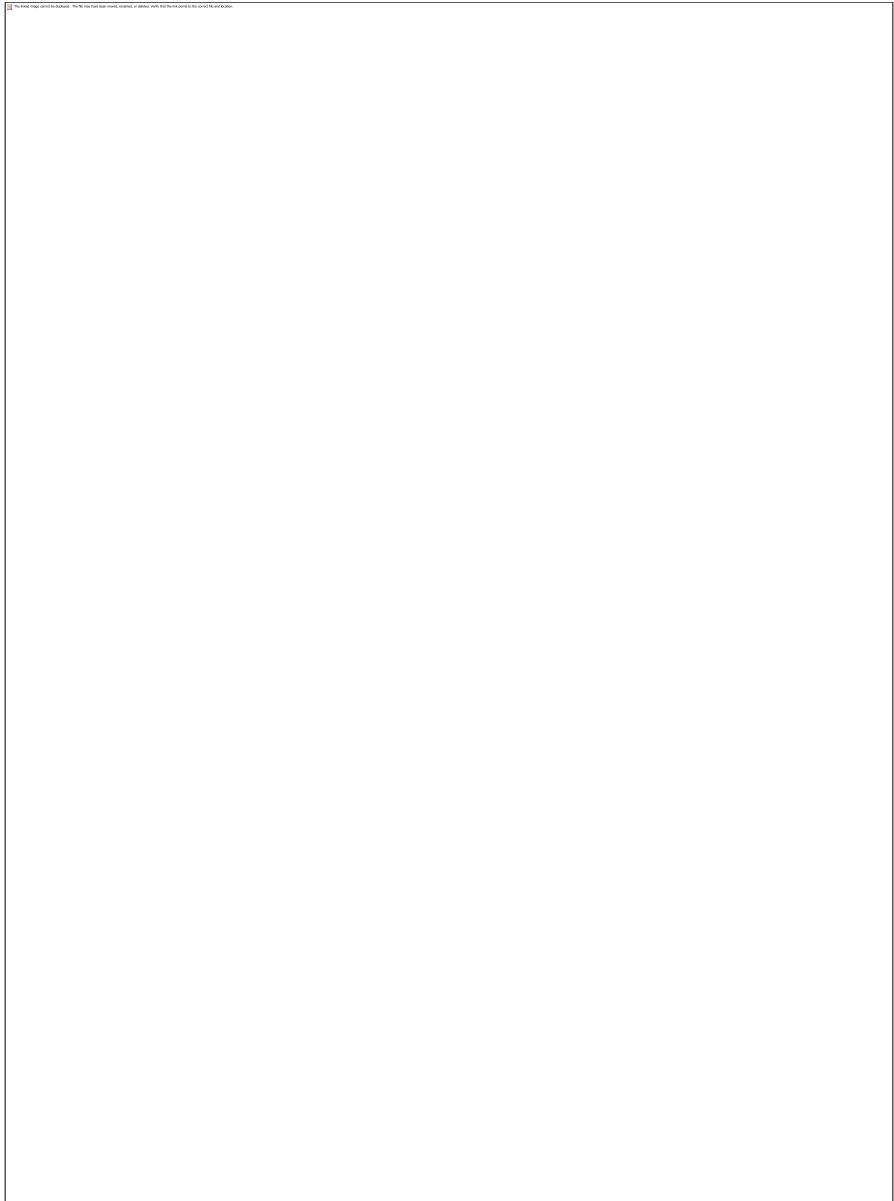

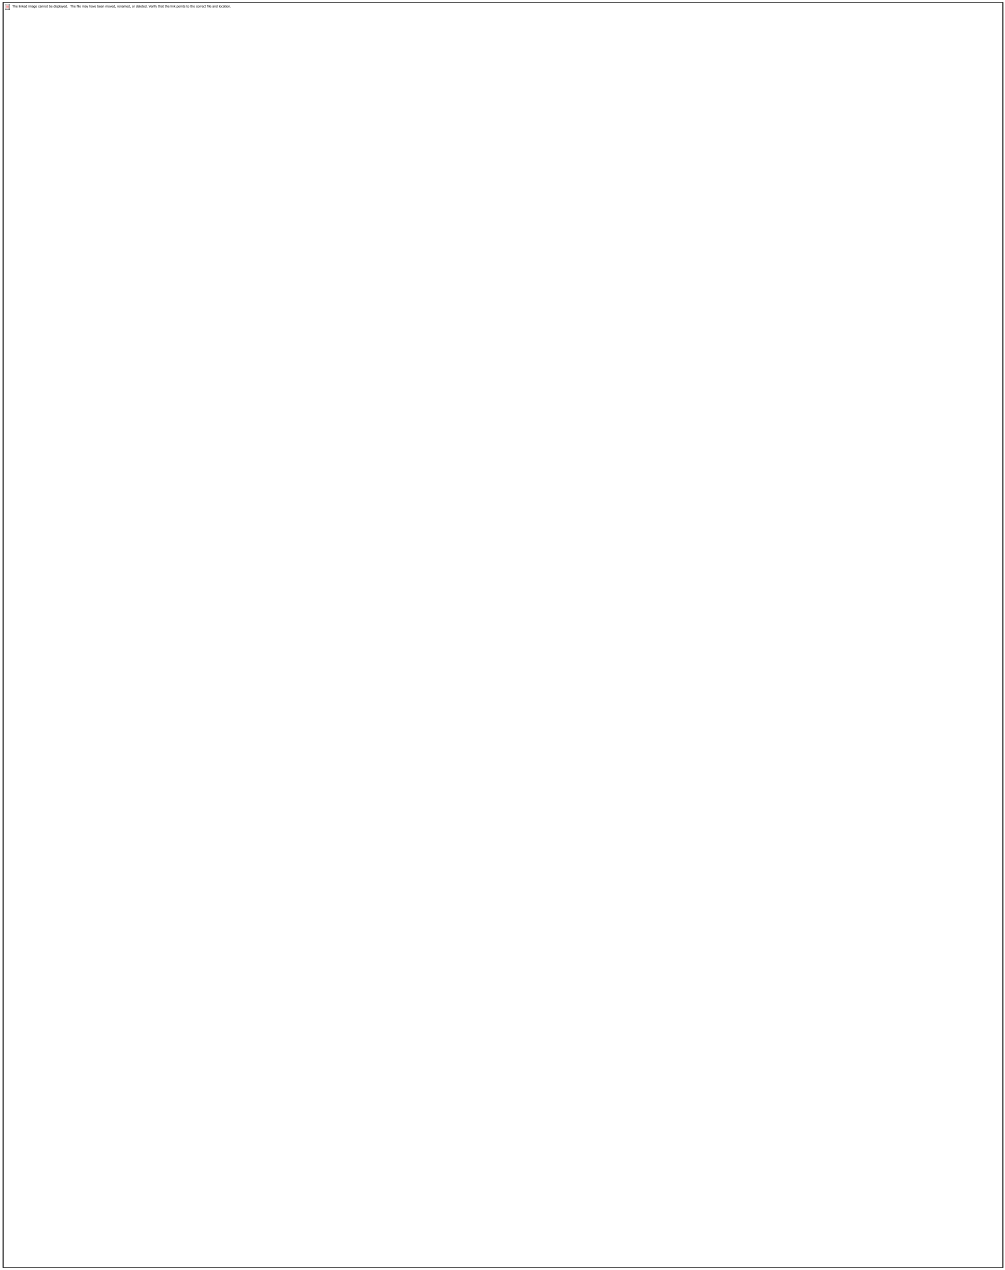

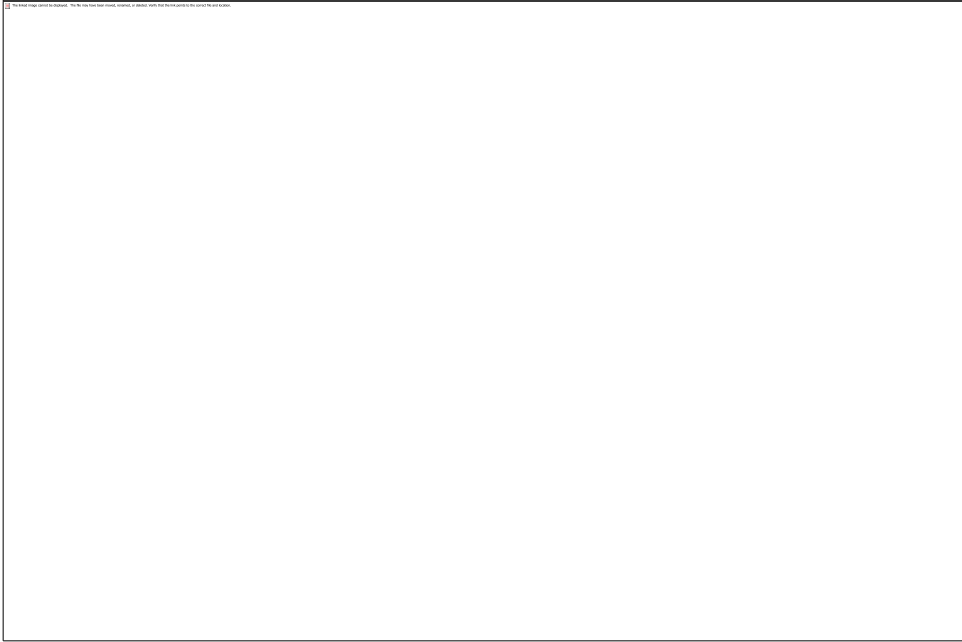

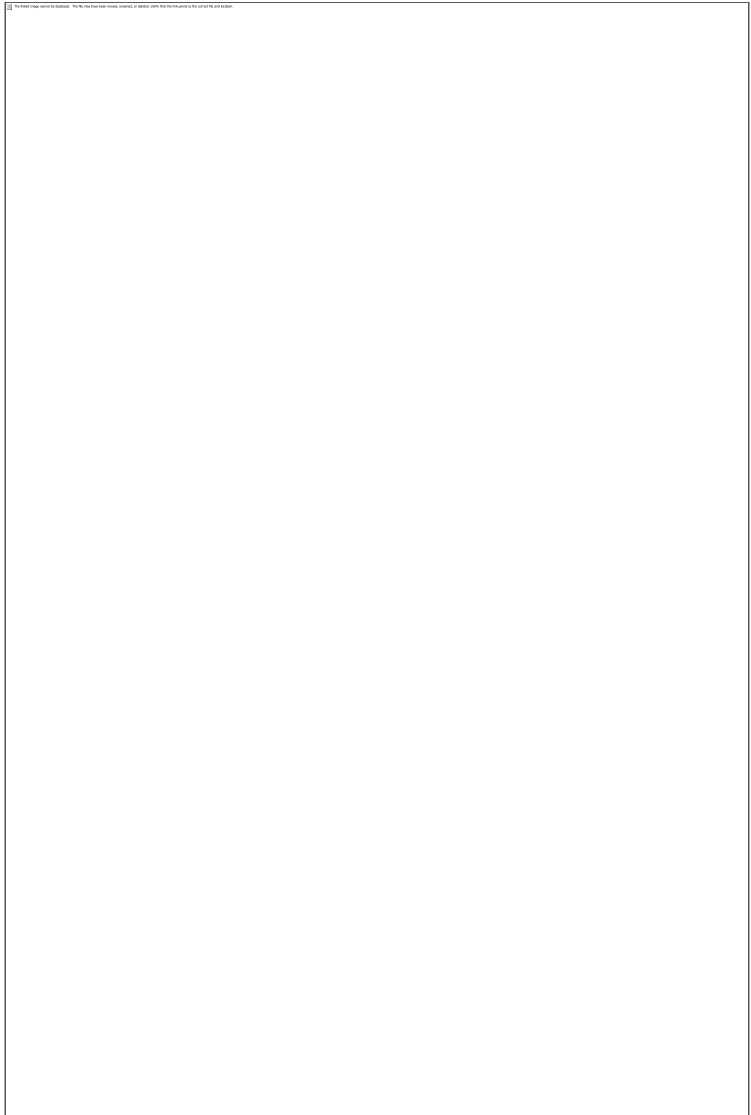

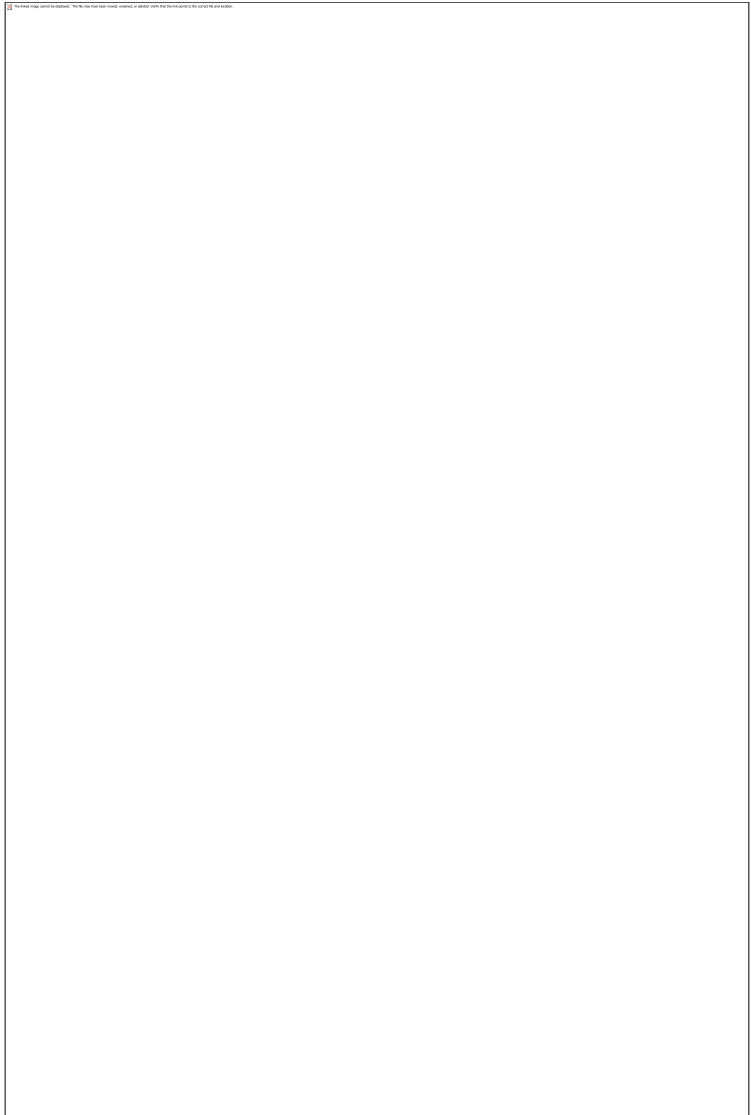

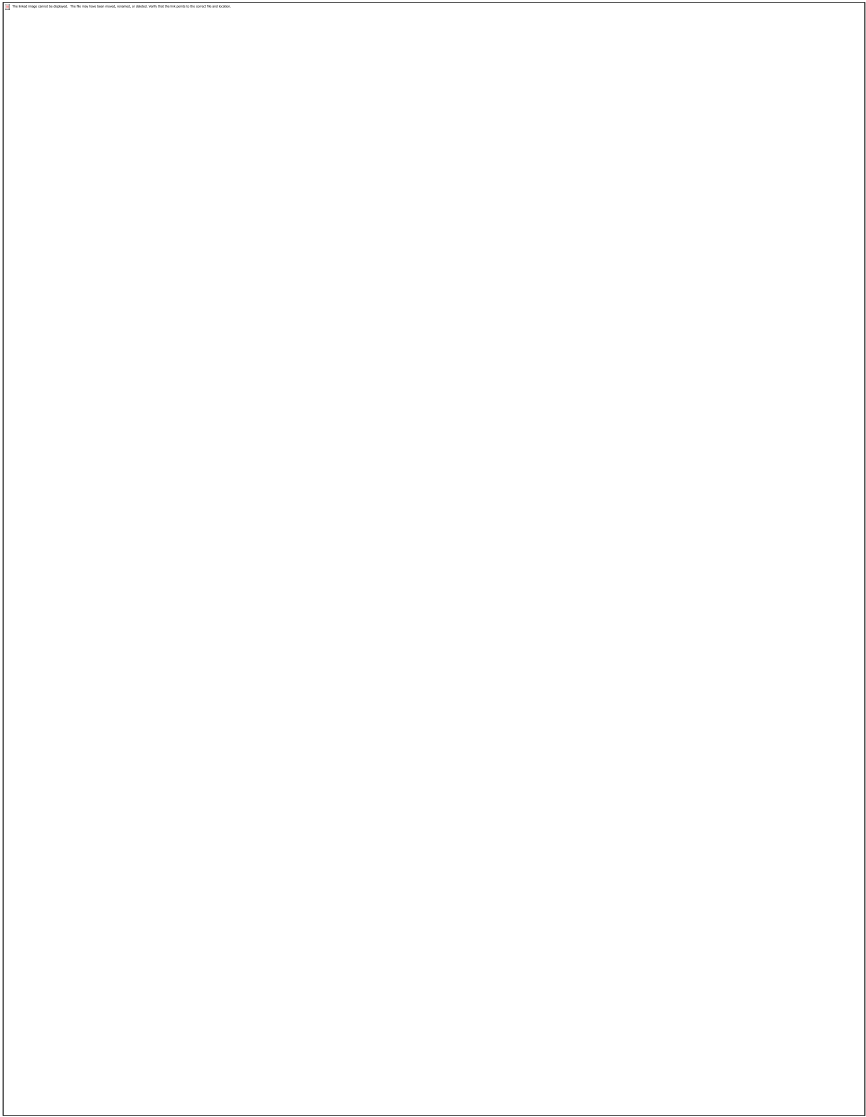

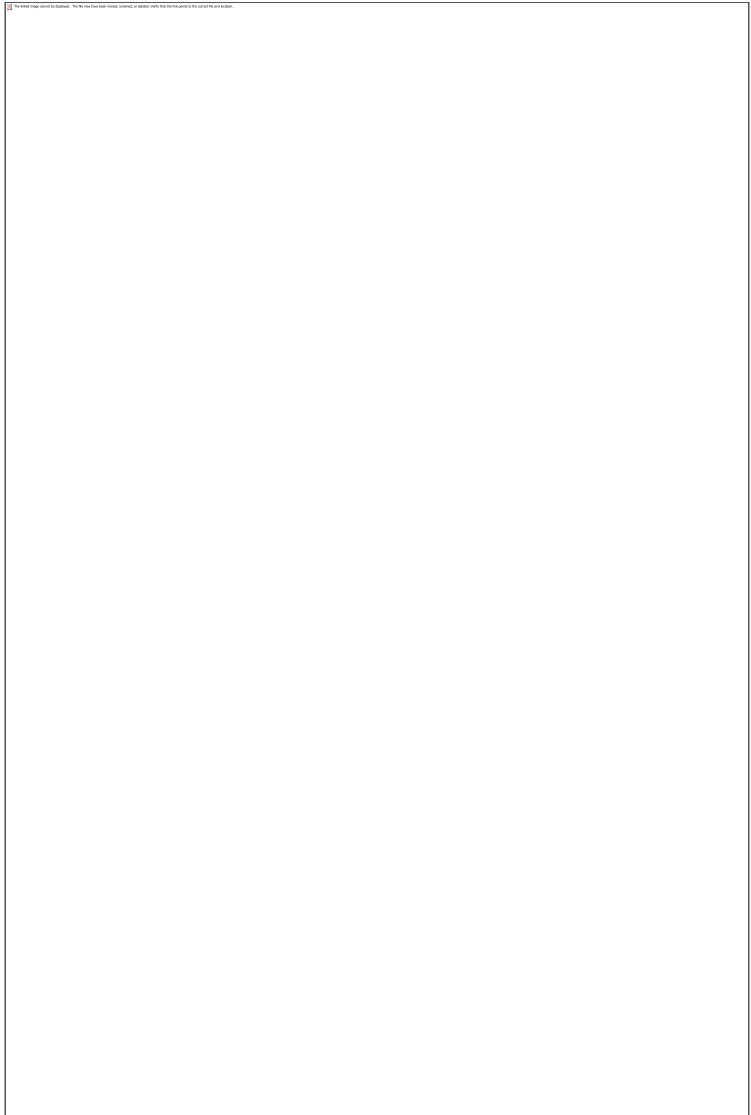

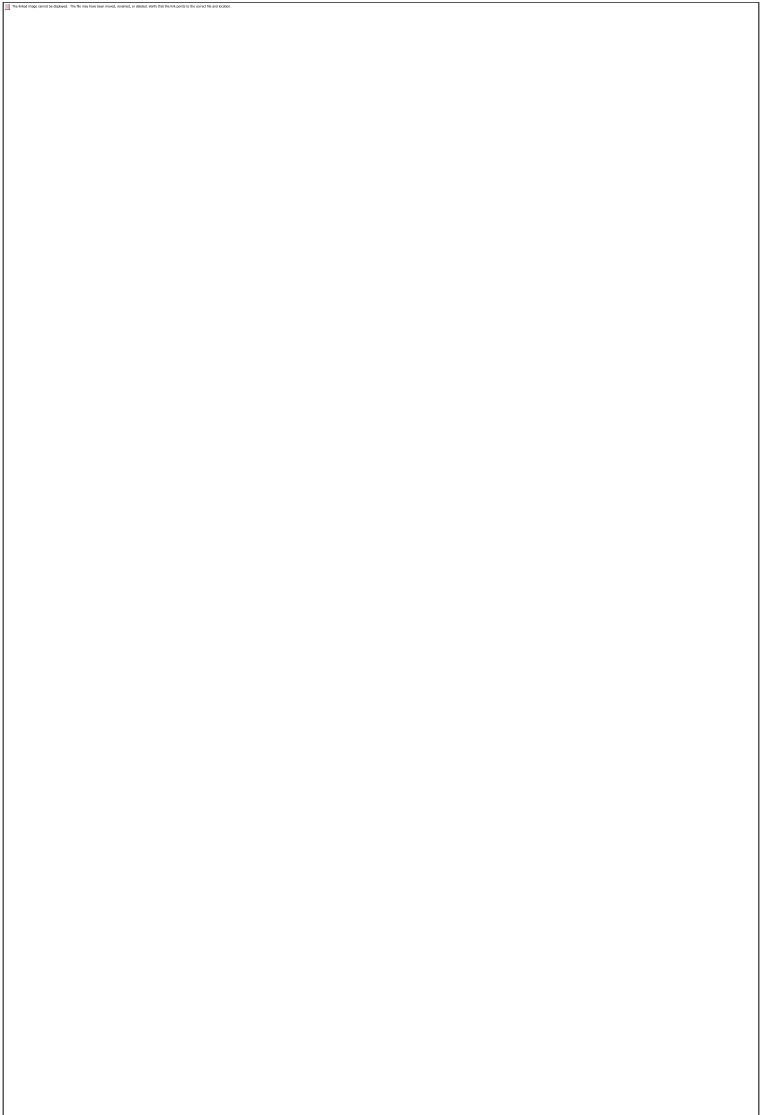

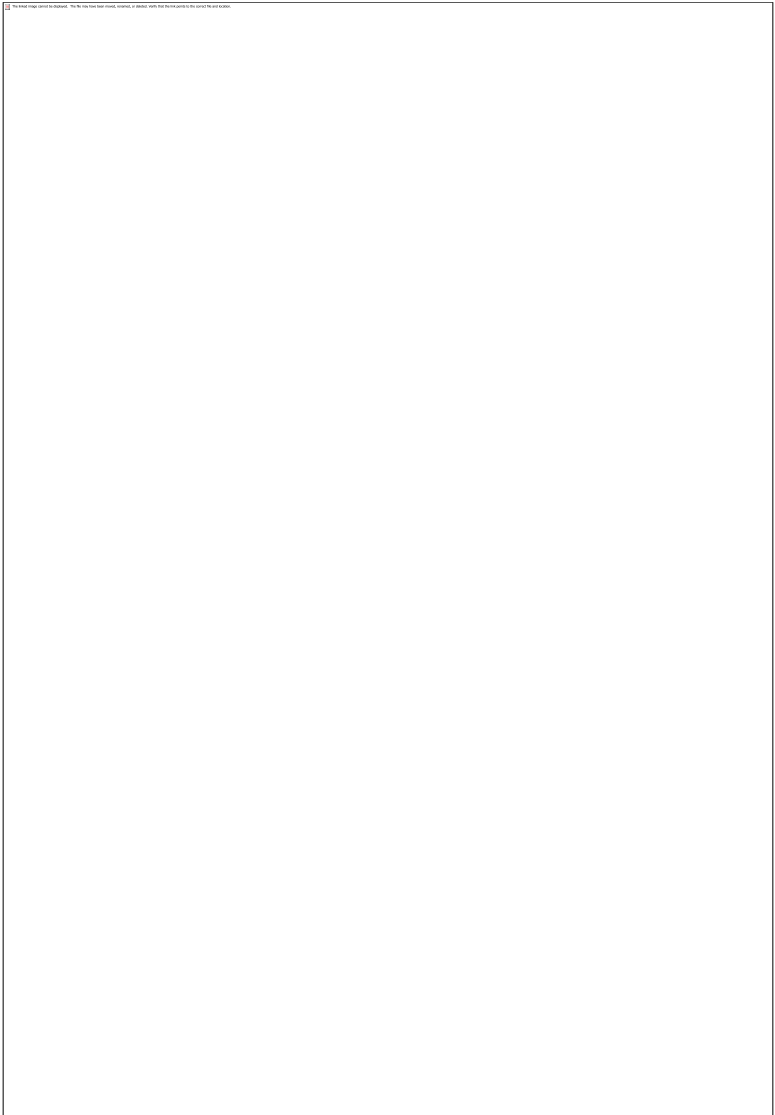

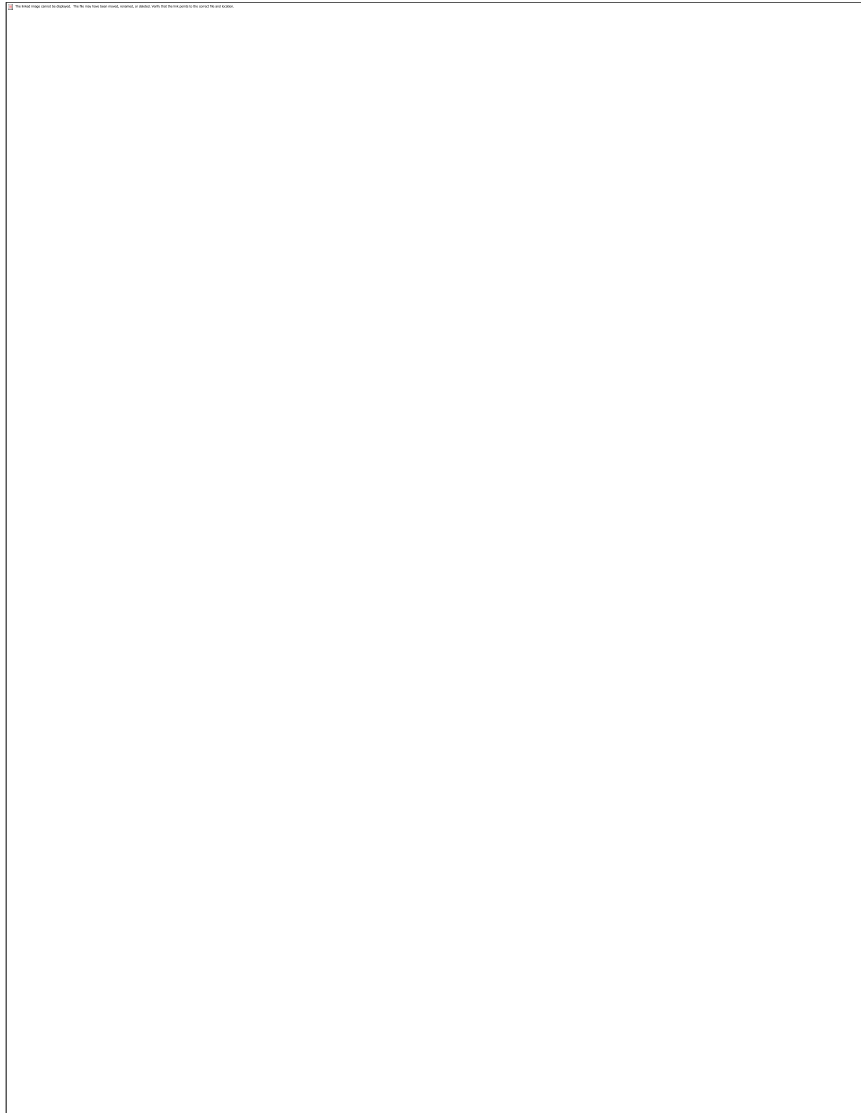

---

Hotmail has ever-growing storage! Dont worry about storage limits. Check it out.

---

Bing finds low fares by predicting when to book. Try it now.

| 29350|2009-07-15 03:56:45|Dexter Harper|Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt|

Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt

Pottery and arrowheads hint at military importance of eastern Delta site

By Rossella Lorenzi

updated 8:24 p.m. ET, Tues., July 14, 2009

Egyptian archaeologists digging near the Suez Canal have discovered the remains of what is believed to be the largest fortress in the eastern Delta, Egyptian Minister of Culture Farouk Hosni announced.

Located at the site of Tell Dafna, between El-Manzala Lake and the Suez Canal, the remains reveal the foundation of a military town about 9 miles (15 kilometers) northeast of the city of western Qantara.

"The fortress covers an area of about 380 by 625 meters (1,247 by 2,051 feet), while the enclosure wall is about 13 meters (43 feet) in width," Mohamed Abdel Maqsooud, head of the Central Department of Lower Egyptian Antiquities and the director of the mission, said in a statement.

-----

To read the rest of the article, please see the link below:

http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/31913753/ns/technology\_and\_science-science/

| 29351|2009-07-15 07:40:48|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: 1. ancient eyptian & nubian ,2. NgKongo informers missing|

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2wrW89h74fs&eurl=http%3A%2F%2Fwww%2Eyoutube%2Ecom%2Fuser%2FQueenTetisheri&feature=player\_embedded

click above, a modern showing of the anc.egyptian and anc.nubian types

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Subject: You may find this interesting

Your friend tafari\_sudra@yahoo.com thought you might like to visit this page on Amnesty International's website:

<http://www.amnestyusa.org/document.php?id=ENGUSA20090714002&lang=e&rss=recentnews>

| 29352|2009-07-15 08:10:33|JOSEPH|looking for the post on PTAH being a posible origin of BUDHA|

Can someone find me the post on PTAH being a possible origin of BUDHA from a Pharoah (Thutmose?)who established trade routes to indus kush.

| 29353|2009-07-15 12:02:27|Cairo Univeristy|Oracle Developer Course in CU|

The image cannot be displayed. The file may have been moved, renamed, or deleted. Verify that the path in the page is correct. The path is: /

| 29354|2009-07-15 12:02:44|odhiambo okechth|Fw: Nancy Wambui; Thank you|

---

Attachments :

PICT0100.JPG

PICT0097.JPG

PICT0095.JPG

PICT0094.JPG

PICT0093.JPG

---

Date: Tuesday, July 14, 2009, 7:25 AM

--- On Tue, 7/14/09, odhiambo okeeth wrote:

Date: Tuesday, July 14, 2009, 7:21 AM

We are pleased at KCDN to induct Ms Nancy Wambui amongst the Friends of KCDN.

Nancy has given us her support of Kshs 5,000.00 which we have received today. On behalf of the KCDN Management Team, our partners and Friends of KCDN and the parents and children who look to KCDN for support, I am honoured to be the one expressing our appreciation.

We have all said in one voice; Thank you Nancy.

KCDN is growing slowly but surely. Today, we were also honoured to host an explorer from Akiba Uhaki Foundation. To Kepta, Felix and Christine we say, thank you for that visit.

For our upcoming events, kindly visit our blogspot and be part of us;

<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

The photos that we have enclosed were taken today in the morning and this is the Komarock Canal that we have set our sights on for 5th September 2009.

We invite your support to help us clean this place and mobilize the local community to own the process. This is their mess and they must learn to clean it up. It needs that we create that awareness.

We are looking forward to all the support that you can give us.

Many thanks and blessings.

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi.

--- On Mon, 7/13/09, nancy wambui wrote:

From: nancy wambui
Subject: Re: [ProgressiveMinds] Reginald Okumu, David Ochwangi; Thank you
To: ProgressiveMinds@yahoogroups.com
Date: Monday, July 13, 2009, 7:55 AM

Hey guys, i would also to contribute kitu kidogo. will send 5,000 Kshs tomorrow. Kindly send me the the number that i should send the money to, the ID number of the recipient and the full names.

Thanx and God bless you

From: odhiambo okeeth
Subject: [ProgressiveMinds] Reginald Okumu, David Ochwangi; Thank you
To: "oyookraft" , "p4c" , "panafricanist" , "progressiveminds" , "siasa" , "Sungu" , trueblackness@ yahoogroups. com, "ugandacom" , "VOU" , youngkenyansforchange@yahoogroups. com, "youthagenda"
Cc: "Paul Nyandoto" , "Publiceye" , smaitawi@yahoogroups.com, Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, TheBlackList@ yahoogroups. com, "Unnaanet unaanet" , "citizens against violence" , yiffkenya@yahoogroups.com, youngprofessionals_ ke@googlegroups. com
Date: Monday, July 13, 2009, 1:54 AM

On Saturday 11th July, Mr Reginald Okumu, formerly the Chairman of the Institution of Surveyors of Kenya became a Friend of KCDN by giving us Kshs 2,000.00 in support. On same day, Mr. David Ochwangi also become officially a Friend of KCDN by sending his 1 of $100 [Kshs 7,432.00].

We also received a commitment of Kshs 5,000.00 from Mr. Cosmos Omondi from South Sudan. He will pass this to us when he comes around shortly. To all of you we say; Thank

We are truly humbled and honoured by these Friends of KCDN. This is the response to our support so far;

- 1] Mr. Lenny Amolo; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 2] Dr. Shem Ochuodho; Kshs 2,500.00 sending
- 3] Mr. Maurice Odenyo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 4] Mr. Sam Olendo; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 5] Dr. Matunda Nyanchama; $100 sending
- 6] Mr. David Ochwangi; $100 [Kshs 7,432.00] received
- 7] Mr. Oduor Ongwen; Kshs 3,000.00 received
- 8] Ms Janet Feldman; $50 [Kshs 3,693.00] received
- 9] Mr. Elijah Kombo; Kshs 6,000.00 received
- 10] Ms Arinolah EN; Kshs 2,000.00 received
- 11] Mr. John Maina; Kshs 1,500.00 received
- 12] Mr. Otieno Sungu; Kshs 1,500.00 received
- 13] Mr. Reginald Okumu; Kshs 2,000.00 received

14] Mr. George Nyongesa; Kshs 2,000.00 received
15] Ms Jeanette M Khaoya; CHF100 [Kshs 6,823.50] received.
16] Mr. Cosmos Omondi; Kshs 5,000.00 sending
.....And many more Friends of KCDN.....

We are still appealing to as many friends to step forward and be part of us. KCDN is just but a means by which you can exercise your goodness to the less fortunate members in our society, particularly the Orphans and the Vulnerable Children.

Check out our next events on; <http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com> and be part of us.

We appreciate your support very much.

many thanks and blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,
CEO KCDN Nairobi,
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557

| 29355|2009-07-15 12:03:00|Michael Bayman|His-Imperial-Majesty Receives A Brief From The Imperial-Research And|

From: Amexem-Moor- Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

Unto:All-Moors (Declared/Undeclared)/Original-men and women:
on-this-planet

Re: Latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Government

I.S.L.A.M.:

On the behalf of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial- Majesty: Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey and the-entire: Amexem-Moor-Empire: National-Collective , peace, good-health, and much-prosperity: be-upon-you.

For the record, please-find-below a link for the latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency by the order from the Operations-Director : Distinguished-Noble: Seti-Hotep: Bey under the authority of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Minister For The Communications, His-Excellency: Grand-Noble: Dan-El

For the record, we-request-that-you: share the link with brothers and sisters, in-your-cipher/circle, if-you-appreciate the information therein the video.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=72tK9ACT6II>

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency

| 29356|2009-07-15 12:04:39|Shu Tefnut|Fw: [ra! at CPIE 3084] INFO: NYC - Please Distribute - Flyer John |

Attachments :

Final

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: T MURRAY

To: CPIE

Sent: Monday, July 13, 2009 10:10:46 AM

Subject: [ra! at CPIE 3084] INFO: NYC - Please Distribute - Flyer John Henrik Clarke Tribute at Schomburg Library 7-19-09

| Please see attached Flyer and distribute widely

~~~~~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "Cross Posts Information Exchange" group.

To post to this group, send email to CPIE@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe from this group, send email to CPIE+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

For more options, visit this group at <http://groups.google.com/group/CPIE?hl=en>

~~~~~
| 29357|2009-07-15 12:05:04|odhiambo okech|Re: Tribe Kenya for a unified society.|
Hi Mike,

I do not know whether I have gotten you well. Are you responding to my posting? I have shared this so that all can help me understand you.

Blessings,

Odhiambo T Oketch,
Komarock Nairobi

--- On Tue, 7/14/09, micheal kamande wrote:

From: micheal kamande

Subject: Tribe Kenya for a unified society.

To: komarockswatch@yahoo.com

Date: Tuesday, July 14, 2009, 7:40 AM

Mr Odhiambo ,

Didn't you say your are a Luo? Tell me what is wrong with that and I will tell you there is nothing wrong but like I told you before your are squarely tribal in your thinking and in how you articulate your argument. First of all you are a self appointed and selfish leader of a group that does not represent the voice of vast majority of Kenyans.

Second, do you believe in the constitution of the land where all these info is indebted to. If you can only take your time to think or travel away from your home to another country in the world you would realize that the question of race or ethnicity is so appropriate. It is asked everywhere you go. The person in you thinks it is wrong because you wanna hide your identity, probably there is something in you that you don't like or you dont want to see some facts about another person who is not of your tribe-Tribalism. Man, when will you stop thinking like a war monger or like a tribal chauvinist who all he can do is breath hatred. Hey, you need to grow up and leave that brand of politics behind you.

Let me make this point clear to you and others that may be thinking like you. The problem Kenya has is not in the tribe pasee. It doesn't matter where you were born or by who the problem is using that thing called tribe, blending it with hate and what you get is tribalism. You could spend a whole day discussing how the Gov't should not be asking the question but again who is the gov't if not the people of the land. Kenya has a representative govt. The scheme of wanting a brand new constitution and all the talk about Koffi Annan Article 4 is clear to everybody who has been watching events unfolding for a long time. It is clear to some of us who read your blogs. It is all about trying to hide the bitter historical truth about the struggle for independence in Kenya. We respect and applaud our forefathers for their time, efforts and spirit of sacrifice. Do you think anybody gonna hide that in the sand? It is a great story of the founders of the nation of Kenya and so ya'll can use all the means you can but it will forever remain to be true. There will never be another struggle like you have suggested before, we are free from GB and you better face the truth and swallow your pride and know that trying to fight another person who doesn't belong to your tribe because of his accomplishments is both politically and morally wrong. I am a proud Mugikuyu and I love my country I am a Patriot. Do I sound different or like a rebel? I am old enough to remember every bit of history of how and when things started stinking. Last, have some respect for the for former President he will always bear that title. Don't forget he is a citizen of Kenya and he is entitled to the same rights you and me have. The right to express himself. Telling him to shut up does not only depict you as a hater(which is the last thing you would be advocating during this time you are looking for votes to become the next President I hope.) And also someone who has no respect for the constitution of Kenya. We have so much we are proud of and we can remember though he wasn't a perfect President.

Mwaura wa Kamand, USA.

--- On Mon, 7/13/09, odhiambo okecth wrote:

From: odhiambo okecth

Subject: [Mwanyagetinge] Tribe Kenya for a unified society.

To: "africa-oped" , "BBC" , "ccr" , "Kenya Community" , "Kenya Community" , editor@africanexecutive.com, editor@nation.co.ke, editors@newsweek.com, "An East African Online Forum Dedicated to Information Exchange." , "Guardian" , info@people.co.ke, "jalu" , jokanyanam@yahoogroups.com, KACA@yahoogroups.com, kalamkanews@yahoo.com, kenya@yahoogroups.com, "Mars Group Kenya" , kenya_pyla@yahoogroups.com, kenya-can@egroups.com, kenya-can@yahoogroups.com, kenyacitizensassembly@yahoogroups.com, kenyaclub@yahoogroups.com, kenyap2012g@yahoogroups.com, "kol" , letters@eastandard.net, "ramogi luo" , luo_forum@yahoo.co.uk, luv4self_network@yahoogroups.com, madaraka-kenya@yahoogroups.com, mailbox@nation.co.ke, mazingira@yahoogroups.com, mbonbani@yahoogroups.com, "mulembe" , "mwananchi" , mwananchi@egroups.com, mwanagetinge@yahoogroups.com, net-kenya@yahoogroups.com, newvisionkenya@egroups.com

Cc: "Africare- NewPublications" , news@ktnkenya.com, NewVisionKenya@yahoogroups.com, next_kenya@yahoogroups.com, "p4c" , "panafricanist" , peoplespeak@people.co.ke, "progressiveminds" , "Publiceye" , "Royal Media" , "siasa" , Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, TheBlackList@yahoogroups.com, trueblackness@yahoogroups.com, "White House U.S.A." , "Uganda House" , "ugandacom" , "Unnaanet unaanet" , "citizens against violence" , "VOA" , "VOU" , yiffkenya@yahoogroups.com, youngkenyansforchange@yahoogroups.com, youngprofessionals_ke@googlegroups.com, "youthagenda"

Date: Monday, July 13, 2009, 12:34 PM

13th July 2009

On page 24 of the Sunday Nation of 12th July 2009, Mr. Reginald Okumu, a former chairman of the Institution of Surveyors of Kenya led a team from Tribe Kenya Initiative in urging Kenyans to refuse to answer to the tribe question in the forthcoming national census.

Tribe Kenya Initiative is a lobby group that seeks to encourage Kenyans to think more of Kenya than the tribe from which they come from.

And in their editorial of today, the Daily Nation seems to be encouraging the government to ask us about our tribes in the forthcoming census. In a strongly worded editorial, the author says such arguments border on facetious sophistry and are best discarded. He then says that what is important is finding out the relative numbers, not so that one tribe can go around proclaiming its majority, but for planning purposes.

I beg to differ.

For the last 46 years, and the Daily Nation knows this, the issue of tribe has been used to set Kenyans against each other. Is it not time we Kenyans confronted this issue and put it to rest? I am a Kenyan of Luo origin. Why should somebody ask me that in a government document? I bet the most important thing to do is to know that I am a Kenyan.

Secondly, our political leaders have failed to use our ethnic diversity to propel a national agenda. We all know that tribe has been an issue and our political leaders will always use this as a tool to disenfranchise us. Is it not time Kenyans revolted against this selfish scheme? Is it too much to just say I am a Kenyan?

Thirdly, I have not seen any planning purposes centred on the tribe. If it is the Luo, we have Luos across all Kenya. How will you factor on development with the Luo in mind? I bet development is either constituency or District based. If we were to factor on development in Nyeri, will we look at how many Kikuyus, Luos, Kambas or Luhyas are domiciled there? And then for planning purposes plan according to the numbers of each tribe in that particular District?

This is a tired argument and it is time Kenyans confront this issue head on. The author of that editorial at the Daily Nation cannot use such strongly worded jargons to stifle an idea whose time has come. For 46 years Kenyans have been shepherded like goats by politicians who use the issue of tribe to divide us. Dont we all know how the census has been used to hype the numbers of certain tribes?

I want to strongly urge Kenyans to ignore and refuse to answer to the tribe question. Let us all say we are Kenyans. It is time we took charge of our destiny by beginning to reclaim our independence from the manipulative politicians and their cronies from the media and the civil service.

For 46 years, tribal census has been used to make us fight, it is time to give it a kick. I am a Kenyan and I am proud to be one.

Odhiambo T Oketch,

Komarock Nairobi.

| 29358|2009-07-15 12:15:15|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Re: looking for the post on PTAH being a possible origin of BUDHA|
that was the work of dr.Clyde Winters ., try his site and also Bro.Marc Washington's site

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 7/15/09, JOSEPH wrote:

From: JOSEPH
Subject: [Ta_Seti] looking for the post on PTAH being a possible origin of BUDHA
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, July 15, 2009, 10:10 AM

Can someone find me the post on PTAH being a possible origin of BUDHA from a Pharoah (Thutmose?)who established trade routes to indus kush.

| 29359|2009-07-15 17:52:58|JOSEPH PINCKNEY|Re: looking for the post on PTAH being a possible origin of BUDHA|

DUA NTJR!

Thankyou
Joseph Pinckney Jr
Unseen Handz Promotions
2618 Brooklyn Ave
Fort Wayne,IN 46802
260 415 4963
260 459 6009
www.myspace.com/unseenhandzzz
unseenhandz@gmail.com
unseenhandz@yahoo.com

--- On Wed, 7/15/09, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com wrote:

From: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] looking for the post on PTAH being a possible origin of BUDHA
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Date: Wednesday, July 15, 2009, 3:15 PM

that was the work of dr.Clyde Winters ., try his site and also Bro.Marc Washington's site

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

--- On Wed, 7/15/09, JOSEPH wrote:

From: JOSEPH

Subject: [Ta_Seti] looking for the post on PTAH being a posible origin of BUDHA

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Date: Wednesday, July 15, 2009, 10:10 AM

Can someone find me the post on PTAH being a posible origin of BUDHA from a Pharoah (Thutmose?)who established trade routes to indus kush.

| 29360|2009-07-15 21:23:51|Asar Imhotep|Was there ever an Aryan invasion of Europe?|
Peace Pham

Just wanted to introduce some of the members to this work which may enhance your studies. My own investigations into the term KAA and UMA has lead me into this work. Both of these terms are frequent not only all over Africa, but in the Indo-European languages as well.

*****

Subtitle: Indo - European and Niger - Congo

RRP$40.95
Price$36.86

Author: G.J.K. Campbell-Dunn

ISBN: 9781420868739

ISBN-10: 142086873X

Publisher: Authorhouse

DatePublished:8/03/2006

Format: Paperback Book

Pages: 84

Language: English

Book Description:

RECENT GENETIC RESEARCH AT UNIVERSIDAD COMPLUTENSE, MADRID, HAS FOUND NO SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE FOR AN ARYAN INVASION OF EUROPE. THIS INVASION IS A MYTH. WE USE MORPHOLOGY TO DEMONSTRATE THAT THE INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES CAME OUT OF AFRICA. THEY DERIVE FROM AN OFFSHOOT OF THE NIGER-CONGO GROUP. AGGLUTINATION GRADUALLY LEAD TO GRAMMATICAL FUSION, WITH FOSSILISATION AND LOSS OF THE PREFIXES. THE PRIMARY ELEMENTS WERE RELATIVELY INDEPENDENT MONOSYLLABLES, USED AS PREFIXES, ROOTS, INFIXES, SUFFIXES. THE INDO-EUROPEAN INVADERS WERE NOT STRANGERS, BUT WERE GENETICALLY RELATED TO THE ORIGINAL

Approx Delivery
15 Days
Paperback Book

BLACK INHABITANTS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN LANDS WHO SPOKE NIGER-CONGO LANGUAGES. GENETICS AND LINGUISTICS NOW LEAD US TO THE SAME CONCLUSION. AFRO-ASIATIC FARMERS, NOT CONQUERING ARYANS, GRADUALLY OVERLAID THESE BLACK ABORIGINAL INHABITANTS, GIVING RISE TO THE OLIVE-SKINNED MEDITERRANEAN RACE. THE VARIOUS ALPHABETS, WE NOW KNOW, DERIVE FROM AN AFRICAN SYLLABARY. THE HISTORY OF THE INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES IS ENSHRINED IN THEIR WRITING SYSTEMS. THE LETTERS WERE ONCE MEANINGFUL AFRICAN SIGNS USED TO CATALOGUE THE REALITY OF EARLY MAN.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29361|2009-07-16 11:20:14|Manu Ampim|Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt|

Greetings Dexter,

Interesting post.

The remains and plans of fortified cities in Kemet date back to the predynastic period, and although these cannot be called fortresses it is clear to see the use of military architecture. There are also numerous artifacts (such as arrowheads, knives, and maceheads) excavated by Quibell, Green, Petrie, Emery, etc. from the predynastic period to the 2nd dynasty that support this evidence of military activity. Likewise, there are various palettes which depict this early military actions, such as the Warrior Palette, Bull Palette, Battlefield Palette, Narmer Palette, and the Gebel el-Arak knife.

The texts indicate that the biggest military problem remained in the north, in the Delta region where a foreign group (identified with the Rkhyt bird) had fortified themselves. The posted article on the new discovery indicates that Ramses II (19th dyn) erected a fortress in the Eastern Delta, and later Psammetichus I (26th dyn) established a garrison of foreign troops to defend this area.

Before these efforts by Ramses and Psammetichus, the first evidence of military activity in the northern region under a unified Upper and Lower Kemet is when the 1st dynasty ruler Narmer established his capital city at Men-nefer ("Memphis"), which is the exact location of the joining of the Two Lands. The strategic importance of Men-nefer at the center of the Two Lands is indicated by one of the city's other names, Ankh-Tawy ("that which binds the Two Lands"). The other common name Ineb Hedj ("the White Walls"), suggests that Narmer established Men-nefer as a fortified city. The northern region (particularly the Eastern Delta) region continued to be an important military region in Kemet until the country was finally lost to foreigners.

Advancing the work,

Manu Ampim

---

Posted by: "Dexter Harper" dexter.harper@gmail.com dharp3r
Wed Jul 15, 2009 3:56am (PDT)

Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt Pottery and arrowheads hint at military importance of eastern Delta site

By Rossella Lorenzi updated 8:24 p.m. ET, Tues., July 14, 2009

Egyptian archaeologists digging near the Suez Canal

<<http://geography.howstuffworks.com/africa/the-suez-canal.htm>> have discovered the remains of what is believed to be the largest fortress in the eastern Delta, Egyptian Minister of Culture Farouk Hosni announced.

Located at the site of Tell Dafna, between El-Manzala Lake and the Suez Canal, the remains reveal the foundation of a military town about 9 miles (15 kilometers) northeast of the city of western Qantara.

"The fortress covers an area of about 380 by 625 meters (1,247 by 2,051 feet), while the enclosure wall is about 13 meters (43 feet) in width,"

Mohamed Abdel Maqsood, head of the Central Department of Lower Egyptian Antiquities and the director of the mission, said in a statement.

-----
To read the rest of the article, please see the link below:

http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/31913753/ns/technology\_and\_science-science/
| 29362|2009-07-16 13:51:07|Asar Imhotep|African Slavery in Mauritania in 2009|
Posted on paoc-usa@yahoo.com

Objet: [PAOC-USA] Slavery in Mauritania, 2009

Slavery in Mauritania

More than half a million slaves are at the heart of a presidential election battle in the former French colony of Mauritania.

By Nick Meo in Nouakchott, Mauritania

Published: 8:30AM BST 12 Jul 2009

A year after she ran away from her master, Barakatu Mint Sayed prays that the election on July 18 will mark the beginning of the end of slavery in Mauritania.

Her nation is one of the last places on Earth where large numbers of humans are still kept as property.

And like thousands of other slaves and freed slaves across the Saharan country, her hopes are fixed on an inspirational candidate, a man born to slave parents who has sworn to put an end to the practice of "owning" humans if he is elected president.

That candidate is Messaoud Ould Boulkheir, a 66-year-old former civil servant with a strong resemblance to the film actor Morgan Freeman. Mr Boulkheir has vowed that in power he would punish slave owners and do everything he can to free their human property.

His prospects of winning power are growing by the day - and he is being hailed as Mauritania's brightest star by his supporters.

"He is the Obama of Mauritania," said Boubacar Messaoud, an architect and veteran anti-slavery campaigner in the northwest African desert state. "He is going to bring change, and he represents social justice and equality."

Officially, slavery has long been abolished in Mauritania, but the law has never been enforced and there are an estimated 600,000 slaves, almost one in five of the country's 3.2 million people, almost 150 years since the American civil war.

Change will come too late to heal Mrs Sayed's ruined life. But she knows that victory for Mr Boulkheir could transform the future for the daughter and grandchildren whom she had to leave behind in captivity when she finally summoned the courage to escape.

A black African of Mauritania's Haratine caste, she was born into slavery about 40 years ago - she is illiterate and has only a hazy idea of time - and grew up as the property of an Arabic-speaking Berber family, in an oasis town deep in the desert.

While her master's children went to school, she was cooking, cleaning and washing from dawn to dusk. She slept on the floor, and suffered beatings.

"Sometimes I was too tired by the end of the day to eat my food," Mrs Sayed said at her new home in the capital, Nouakchott, where she now works as a paid housekeeper.

Aged about 10, she was separated from her mother by being given to a cousin of the master as a wedding gift. She remembers crying uncontrollably when they moved to a different town, where she was forbidden from leaving the master's house.

Another 20 years later she was separated from her own daughter, Mulkheir, when the girl was given away as a teenager a common trauma for slave families.

Mrs Sayed has never seen her three young grandchildren or met her daughter's husband. In fact she is not sure whether her daughter even has a husband, or whether Mulkheir's children were fathered by her master.

It is the kind of life that has been endured for centuries by Mauritania's slaves, since the first marauding Berber raiders rode out of the desert from the north in the 3rd century to carry off African villagers.

The former slave who would be president believes he can finally bring such suffering to an end.

"All that is needed to free the slaves is willpower," Mr Boulkheir told The Sunday Telegraph at his modest home in the capital.

A quietly spoken man with a commanding presence, he has a clean reputation in an Islamic nation which has suffered years of corrupt rulers.

The acting president and head of the senate, Ba Mamadou Mbare, is not contesting the election. Of his nine rival candidates, the man Mr Boulkheir has to beat is the self-appointed president of the Higher State Council, General Mohammed Ould Abdelaziz, who led a military coup last year and is the most powerful man in the country. He is the Arabic-speaking former head of security for Ould Taya - the deposed dictator who was driven out by an earlier coup in 2005 and now lives in exile.

Gen Abdelaziz - who has removed his uniform to contest the election in line with the constitution - and his political opponents including Sidi Ould Cheikh Abdallahi, the president he deposed last year, agreed to the polls in a deal brokered by Senegal.

The junta and its opponents had come under intense pressure from the international community to re-establish a democratic government, with the United Nations, European Union and African Union co-sponsoring the mediation.

Gen Abdelaziz's enemies stop short of claiming that he owns slaves he was in fact born in poverty and inherited nothing. But they insist that there are slave-owning masters among the ranks of his wealthy supporters.

The two candidates despise each other. Their electoral battle, a novelty in a ramshackle capital which is more used to coups, has enthused its residents, as much as anyone can be enthused in temperatures of 43 degrees centigrade.

Its streets, where sand drifts across the tarmac, are plastered with posters, and nomadic-style tents have been erected in every suburb. Blaring loudspeakers praise the rival candidates at such volume that passing camels and donkeys pulling carts are sent into a panic. With six days to go, diplomats consider the race too close to call.

The votes of slaves who have been registered by their masters may make a critical difference. But campaigners fear that in the great swathes of the country's dusty hinterland where most of the slaves are kept, thousands will be compelled to cast their votes for Gen Abdelaziz.

Mr Boulkheir's camp hopes it can pull ahead by energising the freed Haratine the slave caste which has grown in size and clout in recent years, especially in the cities, as slaves have gradually been freed or run away. Once free, they can join the workforce. Fishing, desert agriculture and iron and gold mining are the main sources of income for Mauritania, who on average earn little more than $2 a day, although that could rise if offshore oil exploration ever proves fruitful.

Mr Boulkheir also enjoys the kudos of having being jailed three times by Mauritania's former military dictatorship for advocating democracy when that looked impossible in the 1990s.

Arabic-speakers as well as black Africans back his bid for power, attracted by his promise of building democracy after years of economic stagnation under military misrule and a chaotic series of coups. He is regarded as the candidate with the best chance of ending conflict between the black majority and the Berber ruling elite. Slave-holding has been abolished three times, first by the country's former French overlords and then twice by different rulers of the independent state, most recently in 2007. But the law has never been enforced and no slave owner has ever been prosecuted.

"Many slaves have been freed in Mauritania now, and if I am elected I will speed up the process," Mr Boulkheir said. "Slave owners will be punished, for the first time in our history. Justice will be implemented."

"I will do everything in my power to end this curse of slavery."

In this, he has a deeply personal motivation. Soon after he was born his mother was beaten almost to death by the master from whom his parents had run away. They only managed to escape to freedom because of help from the French authorities.

Their son overcame the handicap of his birth to find a job as a civil servant and rise to a senior rank.

He knows that ending slavery will not prove easy, especially in the vastness of the Sahara where pastoralists and nomads endure a harsh existence which has barely been touched by the modern world.

Not all slaves suffer abuse. If they are lucky, masters feed and care for them as if they are family members, albeit inferior ones, and they will eat and pray with their slaves.

In bondage, the Haratine work as labourers: herding animals; working in date groves; or doing the household chores while the master's family laze around.

Centuries of indoctrination have persuaded the Sahara's captives that slavery is religiously ordained - slaves are taught that if they run away they will be barred from heaven. As a local saying puts it: "Paradise is under your master's foot." In some remote places a runaway will still be hunted down by nomad masters.

If they are brave enough, boys do often escape when they reach their late teens, but for women and children it is much harder. They know that with no skills or education a life of hunger or prostitution is the realistic alternative to captivity, and many escaped slaves return to their masters to beg forgiveness.

In the oasis towns of the desert masters are still powerful, but after 20 years of international pressure - and encouraged by such Western organisations as Anti-Slavery International, which help local campaigners to challenge the entrenched culture - few are prepared to discuss slavery openly.

A Berber driver, who would only give his first name, Mohammed, defended slavery. "It is our religion and custom," he said.

"Why does the international community try to stop it? The 20 slaves are better off with their masters. This is their fate. When they leave, they starve."

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29363|2009-07-16 17:43:05|Dexter Harper|Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt|
Udjahee,

Thanks for your insightful response professor Ampim. I was hoping that you would comment on the article and verify the authenticity of the remains and artifacts. This article peaked my interest because of Narmer and the significance of military.

Question(s):

On your next tour, do you plan to visit this particular site or are is it a restricted area being that it is a recent discovery?

Also, do you plan to do your own research regarding this discovery?

Thanks again for your insight.

Respectfully,

Dexter

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Manu Ampim wrote:

>

>

> Greetings Dexter,

>

> Interesting post.

>

> The remains and plans of fortified cities in Kemet date back to the predynastic period, and although these cannot be called fortresses it is clear to see the use of military architecture. There are also numerous artifacts (such as arrowheads, knives, and maceheads) excavated by Quibell, Green, Petrie, Emery, etc. from the predynastic period to the 2nd dynasty that support this evidence of military activity. Likewise, there are various palettes which depict this early military actions, such as the Warrior Palette, Bull Palette, Battlefield Palette, Narmer Palette, and the Gebel el-Arak knife.

>

> The texts indicate that the biggest military problem remained in the north, in the Delta region where a foreign group (identified with the Rkhyt bird) had fortified themselves. The posted article on the new discovery indicates that Ramses II (19th dyn) erected a fortress in the Eastern Delta, and later Psammetichus I (26th dyn) established a garrison of foreign troops to defend this area.

>

> Before these efforts by Ramses and Psammetichus, the first evidence of military activity in the northern region under a unified Upper and Lower Kemet is when the 1st dynasty ruler Narmer established his capital city at Men-nefer ("Memphis"), which is the exact location of the joining of the Two Lands. The strategic importance of Men-nefer at the center of the Two Lands is indicated by one of the city's other names, Ankh-Tawy ("that which binds the Two Lands"). The other common name Ineb Hedj ("the White Walls"), suggests that Narmer established Men-nefer as a fortified city. The northern region (particularly the Eastern Delta) region continued to be an important military region in Kemet until the country was finally lost to foreigners.

>

> Advancing the work,

>

> Manu Ampim

>

>

-----\n-----

>

>

> Posted by: "Dexter Harper" dexter.harper@... dharp3r

> Wed Jul 15, 2009 3:56 am (PDT)

>

> Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt Pottery and arrowheads hint at > military importance of eastern Delta site

> By Rossella Lorenzi updated 8:24 p.m. ET, Tues., July 14, 2009

> Egyptian archaeologists digging near the Suez Canal

> <<http://geography.howstuffworks.com/africa/the-suez-canal.htm>> have > discovered the remains of what is believed to be the largest fortress

> in the eastern Delta, Egyptian Minister of Culture Farouk Hosni > announced.

>

> Located at the site of Tell Dafna, between El-Manzala Lake and the Suez

> Canal, the remains reveal the foundation of a military town about 9 > miles (15 kilometers) northeast of the city of western Qantara.
>
> "The fortress covers an area of about 380 by 625 meters (1,247 by 2,051 > feet), while the enclosure wall is about 13 meters (43 feet) in width,"
> Mohamed Abdel Maqsoud, head of the Central Department of Lower
Egyptian
> Antiquities and the director of the mission, said in a statement.
>
> -----
>
> To read the rest of the article, please see the link below:
>
>
http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/31913753/ns/technology\_and\_science-science/
>
| 29364|2009-07-16 18:30:07|tafari_sudra@yahoo.com|Re: Check out YouTube - Egypton
History|

--- On Thu, 7/16/09, AUSAR65@aol.com <AUSAR65@aol.com

YouTube - Egypton History

click above

<http://affiliate.kickapps.com/service/displayDiscussionThreads.kickAction?as=35927&w=125219&d=272520&ac=new&d-1169404-p=1>

click above

---

Can love help you live longer? Find out now.

| 29365|2009-07-17 00:52:55|Asar Imhotep|Reference: Songye (Dem. Congo) /Egypt connection|
Thought this might interest the group:

Songye of the Democratic Republic of Congo - Autor : DR Nkamany Kabamba

---

Book Description

This book is a product of the study of history and culture of the Songye (the word songye' means summit or styled) from an African country, Democratic Republic of Congo. The book attempts to offer and explain the history and culture of the Songye People, also simply known as "The Songye". Historically, The Songye have been portrait and limited to the context of art and music. Little has been said or written about The Songye as a People.

The Songye People have a history before the colonial period, and that history is part of the consciousness of Africa.

At the turn of the 19th century, Europe started paying close attention to the continent of Africa. At the 1885 Berlin Conference, King Leopold II of Belgium carved out his personal property on the African Continent. Thus, the Belgium Congo was created and the People living within these new boundaries were subjected to the iron fist of the Belgium Monarch. The Songye People were one of many human entities in the Belgium Congo who found their lives scrutinized by European colonial interest. As such, a European perspective began to describe and explain the lives of native groups. The Songye People did not escape this scrutiny and faced many challenges in safeguarding their way of live and identity. In order to rescue the history and culture of the Songye People, there is need to describe and explain their way of life and identity using an African perspective.

Table of contents

Introduction

Preamble

Poems

Chapter I: Songye Historic Chronological Events

Chapter II: Inter-connectedness with Ancient Egypt and Peregrination (3,500 years)

Chapter III: Awakening and major contributions to familiar historical proceedings

Chapter IV: Disturbance in The Songye Territory

Chapter V: Education in Democracy: Cascading Elections

Appendices

Glossary

Indexes

Bibliography

Editor : Aglob Pub (30 avril 2004)

Format : Broch頭 122 pages

ISBN : 1594270074

About the author

Dr. Nkamany Kabamba, Medical Doctor, Researcher, Writer, Former International Civil Servant (United Nations) and Member of CICIBA (International Center for Bantu Civilization in Africa) is a native of the Songye People from the Democratic Republic of Congo, Africa. During his middle age, he had the opportunity to teach at the university level, as well as instructing future nurses. These valuable experiences proved to be beneficial in his work with USAID in Kinshasa; in planning a joint World Health Organization (WHO) United Childrens Fund (UNICEF) Nutritional Project in Niger; and ultimately in his status as World Health Organization (WHO) Representative (Ambassador) in sub-Saharan Africa. Currently in his later age, hes an independent researcher specializing in development projects. He learned different cultures and different languages (French, English, Portuguese, Spanish, Swahili, etc.) that have given him the ability to work with and consider different perspectives.

Dr. Kabamba is author of numerous books and articles in the field of Health, Nutrition, Ethnicity, Diversity, Aesthetics, Art, Music, and he continues to write articles and books on Education in Democracy because he thinks greatly of Empowerment through Education.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29366|2009-07-17 19:00:54|Manu Ampim|Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt|
Greetings...I would need to first read the detailed archaeological report once it is published to evaluate their findings. On the surface, the information is correct that during the Temple Age (New Kingdom) the "Ways of Heru" was a military road as a part of a defense system against Easterners, and to find a fortress in this eastern Delta region makes perfect sense. I trust what the Minister of Culture, Farouk Hosni, has announced thus far in their early excavations, but Zahi Hawass has also found a way to become a part of this excavation announcement. Anything Hawass says about new discoveries is automatically suspect because he is always looking for publicity.

<http://www.drhawass.com/blog/press-release-fortified-garrison-town-discovered-northeastern-delta>

I am leading another tour to Kemet in two weeks, but during my free time I will be focused on another project while I am in the Cairo area, so I will not have time to visit the Delta region or to look further into the recent discovery. I look forward to future announcements or publications regarding the Tell Dafna excavation project.

Advancing the work,

Manu Ampim

---

Udjahee,

Thanks for your insightful response professor Ampim. I was hoping that you would comment on the article and verify the authenticity of the remains and artifacts. This article peaked my interest because of Narmer and the significance of military.

Question(s):

On your next tour, do you plan to visit this particular site or are is it a restricted area being that it is a recent discovery?

Also, do you plan to do your own research regarding this discovery?

Thanks again for your insight.

Respectfully,

Dexter

---

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Manu Ampim wrote:

>

>

> Greetings

Dexter,

>

> Interesting post.

>

> The remains and plans of fortified cities in Kemet date back to the predynastic period, and although these cannot be called fortresses it is clear to see the use of military architecture. There are also numerous artifacts (such as arrowheads, knives, and maceheads) excavated by Quibell, Green, Petrie, Emery, etc. from the predynastic period to the 2nd dynasty that support this evidence of military activity. Likewise, there are various palettes which depict this early military actions, such as the Warrior Palette, Bull Palette, Battlefield Palette, Narmer Palette, and the Gebel el-Arak knife.

>

> The texts indicate that the biggest military problem remained in the north, in the Delta region where a foreign group (identified with the Rkhyt bird) had fortified themselves. The posted article on the new discovery indicates that Ramses II (19th dyn) erected a fortress in the Eastern Delta, and later Psammetichus I (26th dyn) established a garrison of foreign troops to defend this area.

>

> Before

these efforts by Ramses and Psammetichus, the first evidence of military activity in the northern region under a unified Upper and Lower Kemet is when the 1st dynasty ruler Narmer established his capital city at Men-nefer ("Memphis"), which is the exact location of the joining of the Two Lands. The strategic importance of Men-nefer at the center of the Two Lands is indicated by one of the city's other names, Ankh-Tawy ("that which binds the Two Lands"). The other common name Ineb Hedj ("the White Walls"), suggests that Narmer established Men-nefer as a fortified city. The northern region (particularly the Eastern Delta) region continued to be an important military region in Kemet until the country was finally lost to foreigners.

>

> Advancing the work,

>

> Manu

Ampim

>

>

----- -\

-----

>

>

>

Posted by: "Dexter Harper" dexter.harper@ ... dharp3r

> Wed Jul 15,

2009 3:56 am (PDT)

>

> Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt

Pottery and arrowheads hint

at > military importance of eastern Delta

site

> By Rossella Lorenzi updated 8:24 p.m. ET, Tues., July 14, 2009

> Egyptian archaeologists digging near the Suez Canal

> <

href="http://geography.howstuffworks.com/africa/the-suez-canal.htm"><http://geography.howstuffworks.com/africa/the-suez-canal.htm>> have > discovered the remains of what is believed to be the largest fortress

> in the eastern Delta, Egyptian Minister of Culture Farouk Hosni

> announced.

>

> Located at the site of Tell Dafna, between El-Manzala Lake and the Suez

> Canal, the remains reveal the foundation of a military town about 9 > miles (15 kilometers) northeast of the city of western Qantara.

>
> "The fortress covers an area of about 380 by 625 meters (1,247 by 2,051
> feet), while the enclosure wall is about 13 meters (43 feet) in width,"
> Mohamed Abdel Maqsoud,
head of the Central Department of Lower Egyptian
> Antiquities and the director of the mission, said in a statement.

>
>

-----

>
>

To read the rest of the article, please see the link below:

>
>

http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/31913753/ns/technology\_and\_science-science/

>

| 29367|2009-07-17 19:09:49|Manu Ampim|Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt|
Immediately after I sent off the previous response below, I received the following email regarding the foolishness of Hawass. He is the master of drama and misinformation.
MA

-----

"Prof. Manu,
Hotep! I trust all is well and in order for your next trip to Kemet. I just saw the last half of the History Channel's "The Lost Pyramid." A Hawass show, it focus a destroyed pyramid built by Djedefre, son of Khufu, who murdered his brother and married his sister to gain the throne. He is said to have been buried in the Bent Pyramid. Any insight into this? Answer at your leisure, I know you are busy.
Ankh, Wdja, Seneb,
Bro. Keita"

---

----- Original Message -----

From: Manu Ampim

To: ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Friday, July 17, 2009 6:59 PM

Subject: Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt

Greetings...I would need to first read the detailed archaeological report once it is published to evaluate their findings. On the surface, the information is correct that during the Temple Age (New Kingdom) the "Ways of Heru" was a military road as a part of a defense system against Easterners, and to find a fortress in this eastern Delta region makes perfect sense. I trust what the Minister of Culture, Farouk Hosni, has announced thus far in their early excavations, but Zahi Hawass has also found a way to become a part of this excavation announcement. Anything Hawass says about new discoveries is automatically suspect because he is always looking for publicity.

<http://www.drhawass.com/blog/press-release-fortified-garrison-town-discovered-northeastern-delta>

I am leading another tour to Kemet in two weeks, but during my free time I will be focused on another project while I am in the Cairo area, so I will not have time to visit the Delta region or to look further into the recent discovery. I look forward to future announcements or publications regarding the Tell Dafna excavation project.

Advancing the work,

Manu Ampim

---

Udjahee,

Thanks for your insightful response professor Ampim. I was hoping that you would comment on the article and verify the authenticity of the remains and artifacts. This article peaked my interest because of Narmer and the significance of military.

Question(s):

On your next tour, do you plan to visit this particular site or are is it a restricted area being that it is a recent discovery?

Also, do you plan to do your own research regarding this discovery?

Thanks again for your insight.

Respectfully,

Dexter

---

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Manu Ampim wrote:

>

>

> Greetings Dexter,

>

> Interesting post.

>

> The remains and plans of fortified cities in Kemet date back to the predynastic period, and although these cannot be called fortresses it is clear to see the use of military architecture. There are also numerous artifacts (such as arrowheads, knives, and maceheads) excavated by Quibell, Green, Petrie, Emery, etc. from the predynastic period to the 2nd dynasty that support this evidence of military activity. Likewise, there are various palettes which depict this early military actions, such as the Warrior Palette, Bull Palette, Battlefield Palette, Narmer Palette, and the Gebel el-Arak knife.

>

> The texts indicate that the biggest military problem remained in the north, in the Delta region where a foreign group (identified with the Rkhyt bird) had fortified themselves. The posted article on the new discovery indicates that Ramses II (19th dyn) erected a fortress in the Eastern Delta, and later Psammetichus I (26th dyn) established a garrison of foreign troops to defend this area.

>

> Before these efforts by Ramses and Psammetichus, the first evidence of military activity in the northern region under a unified Upper and Lower Kemet is when the 1st dynasty ruler Narmer established his capital city at Men-nefer ("Memphis"), which is the exact location of the joining of the Two Lands. The strategic importance of Men-nefer at the center of the Two Lands is indicated by one of the city's other names, Ankh-Tawy ("that which binds the Two Lands"). The other common name Ineb Hedj ("the White Walls"), suggests that Narmer established Men-nefer as a fortified city. The northern region (particularly the Eastern Delta) region continued to be an important military region in Kemet until the country was finally lost to foreigners.

>

> Advancing the work,

>

> Manu Ampim

>

>

----- -\

-----

>

>

> Posted by: "Dexter Harper" dexter.harper@ ... dharp3r

> Wed Jul 15, 2009 3:56 am (PDT)

>

> Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt Pottery and arrowheads hint at > military importance of eastern Delta site

> By Rossella Lorenzi updated 8:24 p.m. ET, Tues., July 14, 2009
 > Egyptian archaeologists digging near the Suez Canal
 > <<http://geography.howstuffworks.com/africa/the-suez-canal.htm>> have > discovered the remains of what is believed to be the largest fortress
 > in the eastern Delta, Egyptian Minister of Culture Farouk Hosni > announced.
 >
 > Located at the site of Tell Dafna, between El-Manzala Lake and the Suez
 > Canal, the remains reveal the foundation of a military town about 9 > miles (15 kilometers) northeast of the city of western Qantara.
 >
 > "The fortress covers an area of about 380 by 625 meters (1,247 by 2,051
 > feet), while the enclosure wall is about 13 meters (43 feet) in width,"
 > Mohamed Abdel Maqsoud, head of the Central Department of Lower
 Egyptian
 > Antiquities and the director of the mission, said in a statement.
 >
 > -----
 >
 > To read the rest of the article, please see the link below:
 >
 >
 > http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/31913753/ns/technology\_and\_science-science/
 >

| 29368|2009-07-18 08:43:23|Tafari khumbaka|Fw: [Ta_Seti] Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt|

<http://www.touregypt.net/featurestories/djedefre.htm>

click above

check this out, the history channel docu. is well done one may be able too find the vid somewhere on the net.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

--- On Fri, 7/17/09, Manu Ampim wrote:

From: Manu Ampim

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt

To: ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Date: Friday, July 17, 2009, 9:09 PM

Immediately after Isent off the previous responsebelow, I receivedthe following email regarding the foolishness of Hawass. He is the master of drama and misinformation.

MA

-----

"Prof. Manu,

Hotep! I trust all is well and in order for your next trip to Kemet. I just saw the last half of the History Channel's "The Lost Pyramid." A Hawass show, it focus a destroyed pyramid built by Djedefre, son of Khufu, who murdered his brother and married his sister to gain the throne. He is said to have been buried in the Bent Pyramid. Any insight into this? Answer at your leisure, I know you are busy.

Ankh, Wdja, Seneb,

Bro. Keita"

---

----- Original Message -----

From: Manu Ampim

To: ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Friday, July 17, 2009 6:59 PM

Subject: Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt

Greetings... I would need to first read the detailed archaeological report once it is published to evaluate their findings. On the surface, the information is correct that during the Temple Age (New Kingdom) the "Ways of Heru" was a military road as a part of a defense system against Easterners, and to find a fortress in this eastern Delta region makes perfect sense. I trust what the Minister of Culture, Farouk Hosni, has announced thus far in their early excavations, but Zahi Hawass has also found a way to become a part of this excavation announcement. Anything Hawass says about new discoveries is automatically suspect because he is always looking for publicity.

<http://www.drhawass.com/blog/press-release-fortified-garrison-town-discovered-northeastern-delta>

I am leading another tour to Kemet in two weeks, but during my free time I will be focused on another project while I am in the Cairo area, so I will not have time to visit the Delta region or to look further into the recent discovery. I look forward to future announcements or publications regarding the Tell Dafna excavation project.

Advancing the work,

Manu Ampim

---

Udjahee,

Thanks for your insightful response professor Ampim. I was hoping that you would comment on the article and verify the authenticity of the remains and artifacts. This article peaked my interest because of Narmer and the significance of military.

Question(s):

On your next tour, do you plan to visit this particular site or are is it a restricted area being that it is a recent discovery?

Also, do you plan to do your own research regarding this discovery?

Thanks again for your insight.

Respectfully,

Dexter

---

--- In Ta\_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Manu Ampim wrote:

>

>

> Greetings Dexter,

>

> Interesting post.

>

> The remains and plans of fortified cities in Kemet date back to the predynastic period, and although these cannot be called fortresses it is clear to see the use of military architecture. There are also numerous artifacts (such as arrowheads, knives, and maceheads) excavated by Quibell, Green, Petrie, Emery, etc. from the predynastic period to the 2nd dynasty that support this evidence of military activity. Likewise, there are various palettes which depict this early military actions, such as the Warrior Palette, Bull Palette, Battlefield Palette, Narmer Palette, and the Gebel el-Arak knife.

>

> The texts indicate that the biggest military problem remained in the north, in the Delta region where a foreign group (identified with the Rkhyt bird) had fortified themselves. The posted article on the new discovery indicates that Ramses II (19th dyn) erected a fortress in the Eastern Delta, and later Psammetichus I (26th dyn) established a garrison of foreign troops to defend this area.

>

> Before these efforts by Ramses and Psammetichus, the first evidence of military activity in the northern region under a unified Upper and Lower Kemet is when the 1st dynasty ruler Narmer established his capital city at Men-nefer ("Memphis"), which is the exact location of the joining of the Two Lands. The strategic importance of Men-nefer at the center of the Two Lands is indicated by one of the city's other names, Ankh-Tawy ("that which binds the Two Lands"). The other common name Ineb Hedj ("the White Walls"), suggests that Narmer established Men-nefer as a fortified city. The northern region (particularly the Eastern Delta) region continued to be an important military region in Kemet until the country was finally lost to foreigners.

>

> Advancing the work,

>

> Manu Ampim

>

>

----- -\

>

>

> Posted by: "Dexter Harper" dexter.harper@ ... dharp3r

> Wed Jul 15, 2009 3:56 am (PDT)

>

> Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt Pottery and arrowheads hint
at

> military importance of eastern Delta site

> By Rossella Lorenzi updated 8:24 p.m. ET, Tues., July 14, 2009

> Egyptian archaeologists digging near the Suez Canal

> <<http://geography.howstuffworks.com/africa/the-suez-canal.htm>> have > discovered the remains of what is believed to be the largest fortress

> in the eastern Delta, Egyptian Minister of Culture Farouk Hosni

> announced.

>

> Located at the site of Tell Dafna, between El-Manzala Lake and the Suez

> Canal, the remains reveal the foundation of a military town about 9 > miles (15 kilometers) northeast of the city of western Qantara.

>

> "The fortress covers an area of about 380 by 625 meters (1,247 by 2,051

> feet), while the enclosure wall is about 13 meters (43 feet) in width,"

> Mohamed Abdel Maqsoud, head of the Central Department of Lower
Egyptian

> Antiquities and the director of the mission, said in a statement.

>

> -----

>

> To read the rest of the article, please see the link below:

>

>

> http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/31913753/ns/technology\_and\_science-science/

>

Egyptian Ethnic Names and their Possible Mineral Correspondences

In my examinations of certain names associated with certain people of the ancient Nile Valley, I have noticed a pattern that may or may not prove to be instructive upon further investigation in our quest to better understand ancient Nile Valley history. Some of the names for major groups of people in the Nile Valley have names in the kiKani language that are a match phonetically and, more often than not, use the exact same glyphs. Not only that, there is usually a color correspondence as well. Please observe the three examples below:

NAME MEANING GRAMMATICAL FUNCTION GARDINER SIGN VALUES

RED

TmHy red ochre [ noun - min. ] U33 - G17 - V28 - M17 - M17 - N33 - Z2

TmHw Libyans [ noun ] U33 - G17 - V28 - M17 - T14 - A1 - B1 - Z2

The TmHw are usually associated in Egyptian myth with the Dsrt and the deity of Set. This aspect of the myth may actually be talking about astronomical phenomena. As Obenga notes (2004: 351),

For the Manja people, the star system called SETO [Orion] (Set?) appears on the horizon in November, around 8pm. It is thus a dry season constellation.

Set is also associated with the dry drst of Libya and his color is Red. Im not sure if Set was ever associated with Orion or Orions belt (as is usually Asar), but more investigation is needed.

BLACK

kmw (a mineral) [ noun - min. ] I6 - G17 - Z7 - N33 - Z2

kmt the Black Country, Egypt [ noun - loc. ] I6 - G17 - X1 - O49

The mineral mined is a black manganese ore. In the Egyptian myth, the Kmtjw are associated with Heru as his children. This myth may have a basis in reality. Anthony T. Browder (quoting John G. Jackson in Introduction to African Civilizations) observes that:

The Edfu text is an important source document on the early history of the Nile Valley. This famous inscription, found in the Temple of Horus at Edfu, gives an account of the origin of Egyptian civilization. According to this record, civilization was brought from the south by a band of invaders under the leadership of King Horus. (Browder 1992:44)

Diodorus Siculus supports the above story as well in Book III. As Charles S. Finch (2001:34) observes:

Thus to the dynastic Egyptians, smithing, that is to say iron-working, was a technique that was known in pre-dynastic times and was of such importance that it was associated with Horus himself. Since every pharaoh was considered the human manifestation of Horus, it seems evident that the archaic pharaohs must themselves have been smiths or connected to smithing.

Among the Bambara people of West Africa, there exist a priest class by the name of KOMO and they are BLACKSMITHS (see Amadou Hampate Bas essay The Living Tradition 1976:168). Here we have a consonantal match of KM in Bambara and Egyptian. Not only do we have a consonantal match, but we have a conceptual match as well, for KMT is represented by a charred piece of coal and charcoal is the item most associated with traditional Blacksmiths. Also, KOMO is not only the name of the priesthood, but the God of the priesthood. This is very interesting for us because Budge in his Hieroglyphic Vocabulary to the Book of the Dead pg 410 has an entry for KMT (meaning Egypt) with the God determinative. The god determinative is used not only to represent divinity, but the priests as well.

RED/YELLOW

sty ochre (red, yellow ?) [ noun - min. ] J32 - X1 - X1 - N33 - Z2

sty ochre (red, yellow ?) [ noun - min. ] J32 - X1 - Z4 - N33 - Z2

sty Nubian mineral (ochre ?) [ noun - min. ] J32 - X1 - Z4 - N33 - Z2

sty Nubia [ noun - loc. ] J32 - X1 - Z8

Although the word sty does not mean gold, often around the world the color yellow is associated with gold. Whats interesting about this possible correlation is that the god Set is also known as a bowman (Finch 2001:180). Ta-Seti is usually translated as land of the bow in relation to the Nubian archers.

The observant reader may also notice that the sty ochre is also RED: the same color associated with the god Set and the red Dsrt (Libya). Lybia and the Sudan are in close proximity to each other; and who knows where the exact borders were in ancient times. Anyone who has visited the Sudan will undoubtedly notice the red color of the sand and architectural structures. Set is supposed to be a deity from Libya imported into the Nile Valley. This may be important later on in this discussion.

CONCLUSION

What this seems to suggest is that color association in the ancient Nile Valley may be associated with occupations and/or the color of mineral material in the area in which the people reside. Whats interesting about the importation of Set into the Nile Valley pantheon of deities is that .

I have mentioned in previous conversations that in African societies, myths are a way to preserve actual history. From my personal dealings with African sacred societies and independent research into the lineages of kings in certain African groups, it is clear that certain stories are about migrations of people (as an ethnic group) into certain areas and not of a certain person. I know for a fact that Odudua (whose liturgical meaning is he of the black character (meaning invisibility think Amen of Egypt)) represents a people that migrated to Ile Ifa in ancient times.

The Dogon people are not just a people who live in the Badiagara cliffs of West Africa. They are a priesthood that stretches a number of ethnic groups including the Garamatche and the Bambara.

Speaking of the Dogon, in relation to color association and occupations, they divide their towns in the same manner as in ancient Egypt (upper and lower) and each district is given a color to represent it. The upper region is given the color white and is associated with the agricultural trade. The lower region is given the association of Red and is associated with success in cattle herding.

This is very instructive as ancient Egypt was divided in the same way (upper/white lower/red) and may prove to be a deliberate practice which divided the empire by occupation. This would give us a better understanding of the union of the two lands as the working together of two major industries at the time. What's also interesting is that Asar was a king of Upper Egypt and all kings wear the WHITE crown of upper Egypt. It is well known that Asar is the deity of AGRICULTURE. Also, if consistent with Dogon culture, Ta-Seti or Nubia is known for its cattle with deformed horns. Old proto-Saharan rock art shows the proto-Saharans as cattle herders also with the deformed horns as in Nubia. It is understood that Libya was occupied by Black Africans in ancient times and they have migrated out as a result of the Sahara drying and because of Arab/Berber invasions. Many of the cattle herding groups are associated with the color red. The most famous being the Masai of Kenya.

What I provide as a hypothesis is that the names associated with the three major civilizations in North Africa probably was in association with the minerals found in the area first and later applied to the people as a whole (as we have done with the Nubians for they are known for the Gold in their area). I also provide as a hypothesis the notion that the stories in which Heru gave birth to the Kemites and Set gave birth to the Tmhw is a true story that speaks of migrations of people into a given area. I am working on a paper that will attempt to demonstrate the Zulu in early times as being the Horus kings who invaded and started Egyptian civilization.

There may be several naming conventions at play here and hopefully with more research with can get some clarity on the issues raised. What do you think?

References:

Ba, Amadou Hampate. (1981). The Living Tradition. In General History of Africa Vol. 1: Methodology and African Prehistory. Heinemann/UNESCO. University of California Press: 166-205.

Budge, EW. (1991). A Hieroglyphic Vocabulary to the Book of the Dead. Dover. New York, NY.

Browder, Anthony T. (1992). Nile Valley Contributions to Civilization. IKG Publishing. Washington, DC.

Finch, Charles S. (1998). The Star of Deep Beginnings: The Genesis of African

Science and Technology. Khenti Inc. Atlanta, GA

Obenga, Theophile. (2005). African Philosophy: The Pharaonic Period: 2780-330 B.C. Popoguine, Senegal: Per Ankh [First published 1990, Paris: LHarmattan]

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.asarimhotep.com>

| 29370|2009-07-19 06:22:49|Shri Sa Hetep|When Europeans were Enslaved by North Africans|
Please find link for article:

<http://researchnews.osu.edu/archive/whtslav.htm>

WHEN EUROPEANS WERE SLAVES: RESEARCH SUGGESTS WHITE SLAVERY WAS MUCH MORE COMMON THAN PREVIOUSLY BELIEVED

COLUMBUS, Ohio A new study suggests that a million or more European Christians were enslaved by Muslims in North Africa between 1530 and 1780 a far greater number than had ever been estimated before.

In a new book, Robert Davis, professor of history at Ohio State University, developed a unique methodology to calculate the number of white Christians who were enslaved along Africa's Barbary Coast, arriving at much higher slave population estimates than any previous studies had found.

Most other accounts of slavery along the Barbary coast didn't try to estimate the number of slaves, or only looked at the number of slaves in particular cities, Davis said. Most previously estimated slave counts have thus tended to be in the thousands, or at most in the tens of thousands. Davis, by contrast, has calculated that between 1 million and 1.25 million European Christians were captured and forced to work in North Africa from the 16th to 18th centuries.

Robert Davis

Davis's new estimates appear in the book *Christian Slaves, Muslim Masters: White Slavery in the Mediterranean, the Barbary Coast, and Italy, 1500-1800* (Palgrave Macmillan).

Much of what has been written gives the impression that there were not many slaves and minimizes the impact that slavery had on Europe, Davis said. Most accounts only look at slavery in one place, or only for a short period of time. But when you take a broader, longer view, the massive scope of this slavery and its powerful impact become clear.

Davis said it is useful to compare this Mediterranean slavery to the Atlantic slave trade that brought black Africans to the Americas. Over the course of four centuries, the Atlantic slave trade was much larger about 10 to 12 million black Africans were brought to the Americas. But from 1500 to 1650, when trans-Atlantic slaving was still in its infancy, more white Christian slaves were probably taken to Barbary than black African slaves to the Americas, according to Davis.

---

Enslavement was a very real possibility for anyone who traveled in the Mediterranean, or who lived along the shores in places like Italy, France, Spain and Portugal, and even as far north as England and Iceland.

---

One of the things that both the public and many scholars have tended to take as given is that slavery was always racial in nature that only blacks have been slaves. But that is not true, Davis said. We cannot think of slavery as something that only white people did to black people.

During the time period Davis studied, it was religion and ethnicity, as much as race, that determined who became slaves.

Enslavement was a very real possibility for anyone who traveled in the Mediterranean, or who lived along the shores in places like Italy, France, Spain and Portugal, and even as far north as England and Iceland, he said.

Pirates (called corsairs) from cities along the Barbary Coast in north Africa cities such as Tunis and Algiers would raid ships in the Mediterranean and Atlantic, as well as seaside villages to capture men, women and children. The impact of these attacks were devastating France, England, and Spain each lost thousands of ships, and long stretches of the Spanish and Italian coasts were almost completely abandoned by their inhabitants. At its peak, the destruction and depopulation of some areas probably exceeded what European slavers would later inflict on the African interior.

Although hundreds of thousands of Christian slaves were taken from Mediterranean countries, Davis noted, the effects of Muslim slave raids was felt much further away: it appears, for example, that through most of the 17th century the English lost at least 400 sailors a year to the slavers.

Even Americans were not immune. For example, one American slave reported that 130 other American seamen had been enslaved by the Algerians in the Mediterranean and Atlantic just between 1785 and 1793.

Davis said the vast scope of slavery in North Africa has been ignored and minimized, in large part because it is on no one's agenda to discuss what happened.

The enslavement of Europeans doesn't fit the general theme of European world conquest and colonialism that is central to scholarship on the early modern era, he said. Many of the countries that were victims of slavery, such as France and Spain, would later conquer and colonize the areas of North Africa where their citizens were once held as slaves. Maybe because of this history, Western scholars have thought of the Europeans primarily as evil colonialists and not as the victims they sometimes were, Davis said.

Davis said another reason that Mediterranean slavery has been ignored or minimized has been that there have not been good estimates of the total number of people enslaved. People of the time both Europeans and the Barbary Coast slave owners did not keep detailed, trustworthy records of the number of slaves. In contrast, there are extensive records that document the number of Africans brought to the Americas as slaves.

So Davis developed a new methodology to come up with reasonable estimates of the number of slaves along the Barbary Coast. Davis found the best records available indicating how many slaves were at a particular location at a single time. He then estimated how many new slaves it would take to replace slaves as they died, escaped or were ransomed.

The only way I could come up with hard numbers is to turn the whole problem upside down figure out how many slaves they would have to capture to maintain a certain level, he said. It is not the best way to make population estimates, but it is the only way with the limited records available.

Putting together such sources of attrition as deaths, escapes, ransomings, and conversions, Davis calculated that about one-fourth of slaves had to be replaced each year to keep the slave population stable, as it apparently was between 1580 and 1680. That meant about 8,500 new slaves had to be captured each year. Overall, this suggests nearly a million slaves would have been taken captive during this period. Using the same methodology, Davis has estimated as many as 475,000 additional slaves were taken in the previous and following centuries.

The result is that between 1530 and 1780 there were almost certainly 1 million and quite possibly as many as 1.25 million white, European Christians enslaved by the Muslims of the Barbary Coast.

Davis said his research into the treatment of these slaves suggests that, for most of them, their lives were every bit as difficult as that of slaves in America.

As far as daily living conditions, the Mediterranean slaves certainly didn't have it better, he said.

While African slaves did grueling labor on sugar and cotton plantations in the Americas, European Christian slaves were often worked just as hard and as lethally in quarries, in heavy construction, and above all rowing the corsair galleys themselves.

Davis said his findings suggest that this invisible slavery of European Christians deserves more attention from scholars.

We have lost the sense of how large enslavement could loom for those who lived around the Mediterranean and the threat they were under, he said. Slaves were still slaves, whether they are black or white, and whether they suffered in America or North Africa.

#

Contact Robert Davis, (614) 292-5324; Davis.711@osu.edu
Written by Jeff Grabmeier, (614) 292-8457; Grabmeier.1@osu.edu
| 29371|2009-07-19 08:55:59|Shu Tefnut|BLACK EGYPTIANS TODAY.|

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Google Alerts

To: shutefnut@yahoo.com

Sent: Wednesday, July 15, 2009 3:45:08 PM

Subject: Google Video Alert - Black egypt

Google Video Alert for: Black egypt

Black Egyptians Today

05:01

Black Egyptians Today. Lower Nubia has been part of Egypt for 5,000 years, and yet back in the 1980s, there was a debate on the controversiality ...
youtube.com

| 29372|2009-07-19 08:56:08|odhiambo okechth|Let's Conserve our environment|

Attachments :

PICT0100-29372.JPG

PICT0097-29372.JPG

PICT0095-29372.JPG

PICT0094-29372.JPG

PICT0093-29372.JPG

16th July 2009,

Lets conserve the environment

In todays issue of the Standard, Prof Wangare Maathai has put up a strong case in support of conserving our environment in an open letter she has written to the Right Hon Prime Minister.

She has touched on 6 cardinal issues that are also very dear to our initiative, From Talking to Tasking, the Greening of Nairobi East; A KCDN Initiative;

1] Environmental education; in our mobilization process, we are encouraging the youth and their parents to each become personally responsible for our environment. We must each plant a tree and attend to it. We must each keep clean our water points and stop throwing garbage into the streams. This clogs the rivers and the water points. The enclosed photos attest to what environmental degradations can do to our rivers and water points.

2] Vanishing wetlands; we all know that rain has not been as consistent as it was some times back. This has led to drying up of wetlands. There has also been that threat from invasion by man. What is our collective responsibility in galvanizing the populace to conserving and preserving our wetlands. It is our responsibility to impart information to the youth and the parents in this regard.

3] Flimsy plastic bags; this is the biggest menace affecting our environment. If you take a look at the enclosed photos, you will notice that most of the dirt is plastic. What then is our role in making sure that we dispose of plastic in a manner that becomes environmentally friendly? In the run up to From Talking to Tasking, the Greening of Nairobi East; A KCDN Initiative, we are engaging the youth and their parents with hard facts about this. We must do all that it takes to make the all needed difference. The government also needs to come up with a clear policy on manufacture of flimsy plastic bags. In the same vein, the government must also enforce rules on disposal of such paper. Can we attach instant fines to all those caught in the act?

4] Clearing of vegetation on road reserves; it must be our responsibility to plant and water trees along road reserves. In the East of Nairobi we have concrete jungles competing for all space. In an estate like Komarock, the road sides are all tarmac and it becomes very tricky planting trees. But it is our responsibility as Kenyans to ensure that we plant trees along the roads and in our compounds. This is the drive that we are initiating on 5th September 2009 and we call upon all people of goodwill to join us in this exercise. Let us all make it our responsibility. And at KCDN, we are sensitizing both the youth and our parents on this need.

5] Rain water harvesting; Kenya has been procrastinating with this for ever. Just after Independence, we used to have lots of rain. Compared with the trends now, we could predict with certainty when the rains would fall. This calls to mind our planning capacity. It is sad to note that Masinga Dam was built in 1942 and has served Nairobi and the Metropolis with distinction till now. If the government put in some little planning, we would have had various methods of water harvesting and storage. Isn't it time we put pressure on our government to become serious with planning. We can do it so let us do it.

6] Conservation of the 5 water towers; for 46 years now, little effort has been put into conserving the water towers by the government. We all know how Mau Forest Complex was given out to politically correct individuals and how that has led to massive rape of the water catchment area. We all know that when Aberdare Ranges was under threat from the government, it was the private sector that came up with a road map to fence the forest and guard against government instigated encroachment. We must all loud Mr. Kiboro, formerly the CEO at Nation Media Group for doing a sterling job in this. Kenyans must all join and help guard against government instigated encroachments into the 5 water towers namely; Mau Forest Complex, Aberdare Ranges, Mt Kenya, Cherengani Hills and Mt Elgon.

We all know that when it comes to environmental destruction, the government has been in the front line. We have forest guards employed by the relevant ministries to guard our forest, yet, the worst forest destructions have been supervised by these people who were meant to safe guard the same forests.

All is not lost at least. If we put our act together now, we can help give life to our children. If we enjoin our children in environmental education now, we will create a future that will be green. If we join hands with the relevant ministries and put them to task, become partners in the process, our guards will not destroy our future any more.

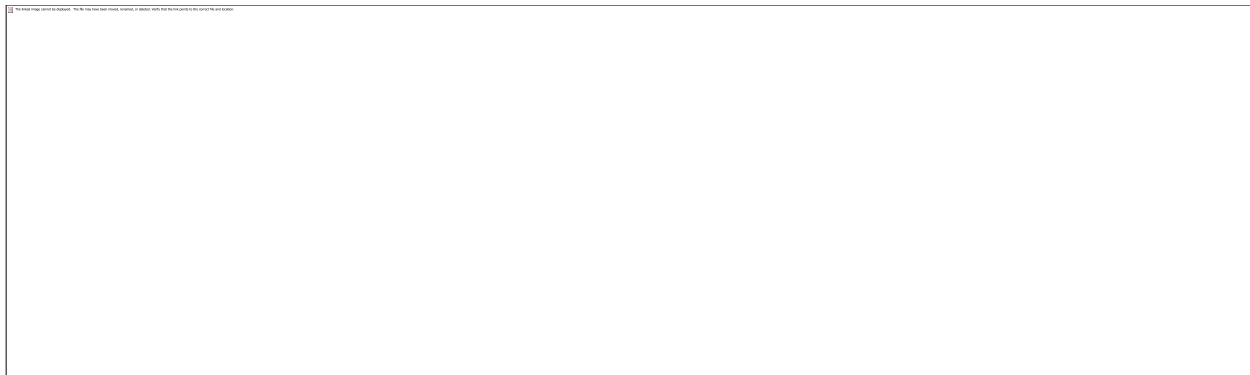

This is why we enjoin Prof Wangare Maathai in also appealing to the Right Hon Prime Minister to lead from the front and help mobilize the youth of Kenya through Kazi Kwa Vijana Initiative in playing a greater role in creating environmental awareness and conservation.

The Kazi Kwa Vijana Initiative if well handled can clean the Nairobi River and help make Nairobi green again. And this is where KCDN comes in. And we have invited Total Kenya Ltd, Green Belt Movement, UNEP, the Ministries of Environment and that of Forestry, the City Council of Nairobi and some more companies and institutions to kindly join us on 5th September 2009 at 8.00am at Komarock Phase 2 to push forward From Talking to Tasking, the Greening of Nairobi East; A KCDN Initiative.

We owe this to our children.

Odhiambo T Oketch
CEO KCDN Nairobi.
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557,
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29373|2009-07-19 08:56:24|Pearl Jr|EXCLUSIVE-Michael Jackson's Band Rehearsal May 2009|

~~~~~
in association with

Elbow Grease Productions

presents:

Michael Jackson's Band Rehearses on May 14, 2009

Our Mission Continues to uplift and ensure
Mr. Michael Jackson's proper and deserved LEGACY!

Please take a few moments out to watch the rehearsal that was to be the GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH!

WATCH IT NOW

www.MichaelJacksonInsider.com

Our Mission Continues . . .

DVD- "Michael Jackson The Trial and Triumph of the King of Pop" Documentary (amazon.com)

| 29374|2009-07-20 13:19:13|nathaniel x vance|ZetaTalk: GodlikeProduction Live [7-18-09]|

ZetaTalk: GodlikeProduction Live

Written on the July 18, 09 GodlikeProduction live [Zeta pace angel] chat

Arctic Goo, Subconscious visitations, 2012 date, July 2010 date, Moon landing photos, Last weeks travel, Caucasus visitations, July 22 eclipse, Soul senses, Disclosure, Multiple personality, Dams, Farmland, Chemtrails, Electromagnetic interference, Having babies, Flaming water, H1N1 vaccines, Elcipse anomalies, Iran plane crash, Oak Island, New Madrid pending, Swiss crop circle, Telepathy, Past life memories, Spiritual polarization,

<<http://zetatalk.com/index/zeta522.htm>>

The ZetaTalk Newsletter

Issue 142 Weekly news and views from around the world and beyond.

Sunday Jul 19, 2009 Mexico UFO; Homelessness; Yemen Airbus Crash; Disney Monorail Crash

<<http://zetatalk.com/newsletr/issue142.htm>>

[According to the STO ZetaTalk space angels, planet earth can expect an increase in many more UFO/ET sightings]

<<http://www.zetatalk.com/index/blog0928.htm>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29375|2009-07-20 13:19:35|nathaniel x vance|UFOs or Hoaxes? [7-19-09]|

UFOs or Hoaxes? [7-19-09]

PICT0101.JPG

20th July 2009

In the recent past, there has been a concerted effort at environmental conservation. And I think that's how it is supposed to be.

At KCDN, we had identified this as a major issue and designated 5th September 2009 as the day in which we will be doing something in support. As we approach this day, we are engaging school children, the youth and the parents in topical discussions that create environmental awareness.

If you look at the pictures we have been posting, you will notice that man is the root cause of environmental degradation. It is us who defecate upon our land. It is us who litter our river canals. It is us who fail to maintain our surroundings and it is us who adopt an I don't care attitude.

On 5th September 2009, we want to invite all people of goodwill, more so, the residents of Komarock to come out in large numbers to help make a difference. We will be cleaning the Komarock Canal on this day and we will thereafter plant trees along the same Canal. We will also be encouraging the school children and the youth to each plant a tree in the family compound.

We want to encourage the parents to become the supervisors in this exercise. Let us task our children with environmental conservation issues from an early age, and let us watch them grow to be our pride and joy in the coming years.

We appeal to all those who are passionate about environmental conservation to give us the seedlings that we can plant on the day. We also appeal for the equipments to help us do the work. The Corporates can also identify segments that they might want to be identified with. We are open to working with all interested parties to help do something for our environment, our communities and the future of our children.

We have invited the Minister for Environment Hon John N Michuki to be our Chief Guest on this day. We have also invited the support of Prof Wangare Maathai and the Green Belt Movement, Total Kenya Ltd, the Nairobi City Council and the ministries of Environment and Mineral Resources and that of Forestry and Wildlife Services.

If we join hands as a people, we can help make Nairobi a Green City in the sun again. It is our responsibility to do so, so let us do it.

Odhiambo T Oketch
CEO KCDN Nairobi.
Tel; 0735 529 126, 0724 365 557
<http://kcdnkomarockswatch.blogspot.com>

| 29377|2009-07-20 13:19:58|nathaniel x vance|Min. Farrakhan CNN Michael Jackson Interview|
Dear Group,

Here is beloved Minister Farrakhan of the NOI speaking on the late great Michael Jackson! The CNN interview is less than eight minutes. Min. Farrakhan says that yes indeed, Michael - like so many of us who share the African-american experience, suffered from a lack of self-love, but MJ was on an inward Journey, and it was here that he was a most beautiful soul!
Thus, Michael Jackson Lives!

<<http://newsroom.blogs.cnn.com/2009/07/13/louis-farrakhan-on-michael-jackson/>>

The earthly ENDTIME of the Wicked - Not the RIGHTEOUS. Is GOD MOCKED?

salaam akwaaba jambo ashogee

<http://zetaheaven.org>

| 29378|2009-07-20 13:20:08|odhiambo okech|Waki list; is it the panacea?|

18th July 2009

At long last, Mr. Louis Moreno-Ocampo has opened the famed Waki Envelope, read the content and re-sealed it. At the same time, may be to steal the thunder from the Ocampo dossier, KNCHR has also opened their envelope.

I want to believe that time has come for us Kenyans to take a critical look at our problems and solve them. In solving the same, we will draw support from Friends of Kenya amongst them President Barrack Obama of US whose father was a Kenyan. We will also draw support from the European Union, the African Union, the Panel of Eminent African Personalities, Mr. Ocampo and all those people of goodwill.

Time has come when we must punish impunity once and for all. Time has come when we must chart all these Kenyans who believe that they can do anything and go scot free to the courts to answer for their crime.

Time has come for us to put a stop to impunity and ones office status must not be an excuse. They must all face the law and answer for their crimes against Kenya which range from impunity to corruption, tribalism, nepotism, cronyism, wanton destruction of our environment, bad governance that has consigned Kenya to the status of a failed state, sponsored killings, property destruction etc.

In solving our problems as Kenyans, we must take an honest look at the root causes. We must not treat the symptoms as we soothe the root causes. When you want to uproot a tree, you do not cut the stem. When you want to treat cancer, you go deep into the skin.

What made us fight and kill each other? Was it planned that we fight as soon as the election results are announced or was the conduct of the process what made us fight? Who did what to merit the immediate out pour of the kind of violence we saw then?

These are the issues we must deal with. Disbanding the Electoral Commission of Kenya and thanking them with such a huge pay off is like thanking them for a job well done. They ought to have been arrested and charged with dereliction of duty in the process causing the deaths of many Kenyans as well as lose of property.

They would have been the first people on the dock.

Secondly, we need to know that they bungled our elections on whose orders. Once we determine who gave them such orders, such people must face the law and account for their actions in subverting a democratic change of government. We must hold this people to account.

Thirdly, people were killed. We must identify all the killers and subject them to tough justice. There is no justification for killing. The police who killed many Kenyans must account. Kenyans who killed their colleagues must account.

Property was burnt and looted. We must isolate these people who did such things and put them on the dock.

We must then engage in a civil drive that teaches the people that democracy is not fighting. You can agree to disagree. You can vote differently and still eat from the same bowl.

But as it appears, we are being taken around in a circus again. If the Waki list does not address these issues, then it will just be another moribund commission akin to the Ringera one which alleged to have done a radical surgery on the Judiciary.

It later turned that the act was neither a surgery nor was it radical. It was meant to entrench impunity and offer solace to the corrupt. Let the Waki list not be a striving after the wind.

Odhiambo T Oketch,

Komarock Nairobi.

The wheels of change are raging on across Kenya, and nothing, no amount of intimidation is going to stop it.

After failing to offer sound leadership for 46 years, the political class is getting cornered. We must put on some more pressure from across Kenya.

We must condemn the arrests of these colleagues. They have been doing a sterling job at sensitizing Kenyans on the basic rights and abuses.

The government must stand condemned for becoming intolerant when their thieving ways are questioned. Kenyans must demand sound government, accountability and proper use of our funds.

I bet it must not be made criminal when we question how decentralized funds are used. So far, the country is dotted with half baked projects in the name of CDF and LATF. We must put a stop to this gravy train.

It is our right to good governance, accountable governance and social justice.

The arrest of George and colleagues stands condemned.

Odhiambo T Oketch
Komarock Nairobi

--- On Sun, 7/19/09, nmatunda wrote:

From: nmatunda
Subject: [africa-oped] Re: Bunge la Mwananchi arrested in Limuru
To: africa-oped@yahoogroups.com
Date: Sunday, July 19, 2009, 1:13 PM

Ndugu,

I'll call you on Monday to see how we can help create needed pressure for their release.

The government should know that they cannot stop the wheels of change.

Matunda Nyanchama

--- In africa-oped@ yahoogroups. com, Okiya Omtatah Okoiti wrote:

>

> George Nyonges and 27 members of Bunge have been arrested in Limuru and are being held at Tigoni Police Station. I have spoken to lawyer Haroun Ndubi who, together with Tom Kagwe, are making frantic efforts to have them released.

>

> Nyongesa and a few others had gone to join the Limuru Bunge in a meeting to interrogate and audit the use of CDF funds in the area. It is alleged that the same are being grossly abused.

>

| 29380|2009-07-20 13:21:27|Kakav Redera|His-Imperial-Majesty Finishing Up Another Session/Conducting The Bus|

From: Amexem-Moor- Empire: Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency: Staff

Unto:All-Moors (Declared/Undeclared)/Original-men and women:
on-this-planet

Re: Latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:

Imperial-Government

I.S.L.A.M.:

On the behalf of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial- Majesty:
Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey and the-entire: Amexem-Moor-Empire: National-Collective , peace,
good-health, and much-prosperity: be-upon-you.

For the record, please-find-below a link for the latest-video from the Amexem-Moor-Empire:
Imperial-Broadcasti ng-Agency by the order from the Operations-Director : Distinguished-Noble: Seti-Hotep: Bey under the authority of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Minister For The Communications,

His-Excellency: Grand-Noble: Dan-El

For the record, we-request-that-you: share the link with brothers and sisters, in-yourcipher/circle, if-you-appreciate the information therein the video.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OhZJwtloiaE>

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire:

Imperial-Broadcasting-Agency

| 29381|2009-07-20 14:43:45|arumese|Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt|

Perhaps the "good" doctor's own words provide the best explanation to his intriguing and persistent ability to put forth misinformation even though much of what he claims contradicts sound historical evidence.

"Many people make the mistake of thinking that dreams cannot come true, but they can. You have to believe, and know that they are more than just imagination."

? Zahi Hawass

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Manu Ampim wrote:

>

> Immediately after I sent off the previous response below, I received the following email regarding the foolishness of Hawass. He is the master of drama and misinformation.

>

> MA

> -----

>

> "Prof. Manu,

>
> Hotep! I trust all is well and in order for your next trip to Kemet. I just saw the last half of the History Channel's "The Lost Pyramid." A Hawass show, it focus a destroyed pyramid built by Djedefre, son of Khufu, who murdered his brother and married his sister to gain the throne. He is said to have been buried in the Bent Pyramid. Any insight into this? Answer at your leisure, I know you are busy.

>
> Ankh, Wdja, Seneb,
>
> Bro. Keita"

>
> -----

>
> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Manu Ampim
> To: ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Sent: Friday, July 17, 2009 6:59 PM
> Subject: Re: Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt

>
>
> Greetings...I would need to first read the detailed archaeological report once it is published to evaluate their findings. On the surface, the information is correct that during the Temple Age (New Kingdom) the "Ways of Heru" was a military road as a part of a defense system against Easterners, and to find a fortress in this eastern Delta region makes perfect sense. I trust what the Minister of Culture, Farouk Hosni, has announced thus far in their early excavations, but Zahi Hawass has also found a way to become a part of this excavation announcement. Anything Hawass says about new discoveries is automatically suspect because he is always looking for publicity.

> <http://www.drhawass.com/blog/press-release-fortified-garrison-town-discovered-northeastern-delta>

>
> I am leading another tour to Kemet in two weeks, but during my free time I will be focused on another project while I am in the Cairo area, so I will not have time to visit the Delta region or to look further into the recent discovery. I look forward to future announcements or publications regarding the Tell Dafna excavation project.

>
> Advancing the work,

>
> Manu Ampim

>
> -----

>
>
>
>
> Udjahee,

>

> Thanks for your insightful response professor Ampim. I was hoping that > you would comment on the article and verify the authenticity of the > remains and artifacts. This article peaked my interest because of Narmer > and the significance of military.

>

> Question(s):

>

> On your next tour, do you plan to visit this particular site or are is > it a restricted area being that it is a recent discovery?

>

> Also, do you plan to do your own research regarding this discovery?

>

> Thanks again for your insight.

>

> Respectfully,

>

> Dexter

>

> -----

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Manu Ampim wrote:

>>

>>

>> Greetings Dexter,

>>

>> Interesting post.

>>

>> The remains and plans of fortified cities in Kemet date back to the > predynastic period, and although these cannot be called fortresses it is > clear to see the use of military architecture. There are also numerous > artifacts (such as arrowheads, knives, and maceheads) excavated by > Quibell, Green, Petrie, Emery, etc. from the predynastic period to the > 2nd dynasty that support this evidence of military activity. Likewise, > there are various palettes which depict this early military actions, > such as the Warrior Palette, Bull Palette, Battlefield Palette, Narmer > Palette, and the Gebel el-Arak knife.

>>

>> The texts indicate that the biggest military problem remained in the > north, in the Delta region where a foreign group (identified with the > Rkhyt bird) had fortified themselves. The posted article on the new > discovery indicates that Ramses II (19th dyn) erected a fortress in the > Eastern Delta, and later Psammetichus I (26th dyn) established a > garrison of foreign troops to defend this area.

>>

>> Before these efforts by Ramses and Psammetichus, the first evidence of > military activity in the northern region under a unified Upper and Lower > Kemet is when the 1st dynasty ruler Narmer established his capital city > at Men-nefer ("Memphis"), which is the exact location of the joining of > the Two Lands. The strategic importance of Men-nefer at the center of > the Two Lands is indicated by one of the city's other names, Ankh-Tawy > ("that which binds the Two Lands"). The other common name Ineb Hedj

> ("the White Walls"), suggests that Narmer established Men-nefer as a > fortified city. The northern region (particularly the Eastern Delta) > region continued to be an important military region in Kemet until the > country was finally lost to foreigners.

>>

>> Advancing the work,

>>

>> Manu Ampim

>>

>>

> -----\

> -----

>>

>>

>> Posted by: "Dexter Harper" dexter.harper@ dharp3r

>> Wed Jul 15, 2009 3:56 am (PDT)

>>

>> Ancient fortress city unearthed in Egypt Pottery and arrowheads hint

> at

>> military importance of eastern Delta site

>> By Rossella Lorenzi updated 8:24 p.m. ET, Tues., July 14, 2009

>> Egyptian archaeologists digging near the Suez Canal

>> <<http://geography.howstuffworks.com/africa/the-suez-canal.htm>> have >> discovered the remains of what is believed to be the largest fortress

>> in the eastern Delta, Egyptian Minister of Culture Farouk Hosni

>> announced.

>>

>> Located at the site of Tell Dafna, between El-Manzala Lake and the

> Suez

>> Canal, the remains reveal the foundation of a military town about 9 >> miles (15 kilometers) northeast of the city of western Qantara.

>>

>> "The fortress covers an area of about 380 by 625 meters (1,247 by

> 2,051

>> feet), while the enclosure wall is about 13 meters (43 feet) in

> width,"

>> Mohamed Abdel Maqsood, head of the Central Department of Lower

> Egyptian

>> Antiquities and the director of the mission, said in a statement.

>>

> > -----

> >

> > To read the rest of the article, please see the link below:

> >

> >

> http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/31913753/ns/technology_and_science-science/

> >

>

| 29382|2009-07-20 19:19:49|Shu Tefnut|Fw: You have received a YouTube video!|

----- Forwarded Message -----

From:

To:

Sent: Monday, July 20, 2009 7:46:20 PM

Subject: You have received a YouTube video!

Click on below:

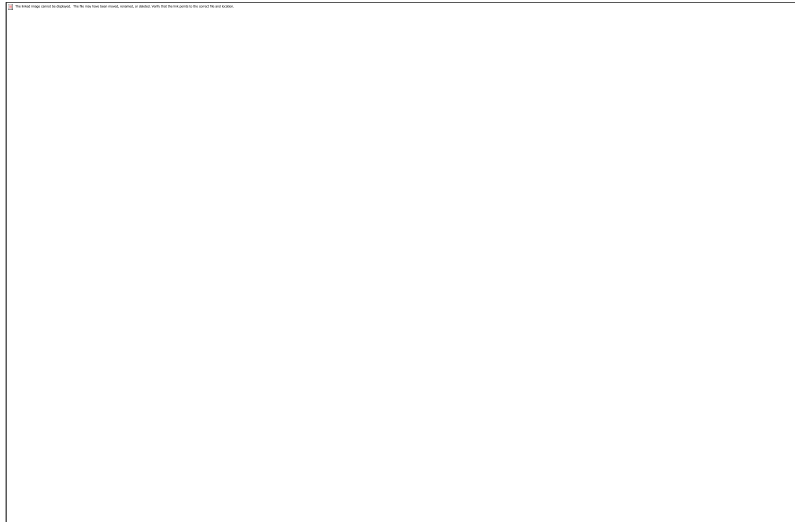

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vbMvSdGloW0>

| 29383|2009-07-20 19:25:25|Paul Kekai Manansala|Henry Louis Gates Jr. arrested after woman reports him prowling arou|

Lawyer's Statement on the Arrest of Henry Louis Gates Jr.

Charles Ogletree gives Gates' side of the story in controversial arrest of The Root's editor-in-chief.

- By: The Root Staff | Posted: July 20, 2009 at 7:26 PM

RELATED TAGS

- arrested
- cambridge police
- henry louis gates jr.
- Politics

Henry Louis Gates Jr. Arrested

Charles Ogletree gives Gates' side of the story in controversial arrest of The Root's editor-in-chief.

TheRootStaff

Henry Louis Gates Jr. was arrested at his home in Cambridge, Mass. after a white female passerby thought he was breaking into his own house and called police.

Henry Louis Gates Jr. was arrested at his home in Cambridge, Mass. after a white female paaserby thought he was breaking into his own house and called police.

07/20/2009 19:26

Statement on Behalf of Henry Louis Gates, Jr. -- by Charles Ogletree

This brief statement is being submitted on behalf of my client, friend, and colleague, Professor Henry Louis Gates, Jr. This is a statement concerning the arrest of Professor Gates. On July 16th, 2009, Professor Henry Louis Gates, Jr., 58, the Alphonse Fletcher University Professor of Harvard University, was headed from Logan airport to his home [in] Cambridge after spending a week in China, where he was filming his new PBS documentary entitled □Faces of America□. Professor Gates was driven to his home by a driver for a local car company. Professor Gates attempted to enter his front door, but the door was damaged. Professor Gates then entered his rear door with his key, turned off his alarm, and again attempted to open the front door. With the help of his driver they were able to force the front door open, and then the driver carried Professor Gates□s luggage into his home.

Professor Gates immediately called the Harvard Real Estate office to report the damage to his door and requested that it be repaired immediately. As he was talking to the Harvard Real Estate office on his portable phone in his house, he observed a uniformed officer on his front porch. When Professor Gates opened the door, the officer immediately asked him to step outside. Professor Gates remained inside his home and asked the officer why he was there. The officer indicated that he was responding to a 911 call about a breaking and entering in progress at this address. Professor Gates informed the officer that he lived there and was a faculty member at Harvard University. The officer then asked Professor Gates whether he could prove that he lived there and taught at Harvard. Professor Gates said that he could, and turned to walk into his kitchen, where he had left his wallet. The officer followed him. Professor Gates handed both his Harvard University identification and his valid Massachusetts driver's license to the officer. Both include Professor Gates's photograph, and the license includes his address.

Professor Gates then asked the police officer if he would give him his name and his badge number. He made this request several times. The officer did not produce any identification nor did he respond to Professor Gates's request for this information. After an additional request by Professor Gates for the officer's name and badge number, the officer then turned and left the kitchen of Professor Gates's home without ever acknowledging who he was or if there were charges against Professor Gates. As Professor Gates followed the officer to his own front door, he was astonished to see several police officers gathered on his front porch. Professor Gates asked the officer's colleagues for his name and badge number. As Professor Gates stepped onto his front porch, the officer who had been inside and who had examined his identification, said to him, "Thank you for accommodating my earlier request," and then placed Professor Gates under arrest. He was handcuffed on his own front porch.

Professor Gates was taken to the Cambridge Police Station where he remained for approximately 4 hours before being released that evening. Professor Gates's counsel has been cooperating with the Middlesex District Attorneys Office, and the City of Cambridge, and is hopeful that this matter will be resolved promptly. Professor Gates will not be making any other statements concerning this matter at this time.

Read the police report here.

| 29384|2009-07-20 20:44:58|Tafari khumbaka|Dr.Cousens|

Spiritual Nutrition
Six Foundations for Spiritual Life
& the Awakening of Kundalini
Rabbi Gabriel Cousens M.D.

"There is Enough Protein in Vegan Foods"
"The Human Crystal Crystalline Properties of the Body"

"There is Enough Protein in Vegan Foods"

Excerpt from Spiritual Nutrition by Gabriel Cousens M.D.

The biggest fear generated by pro-meat eaters and new vegetarians is about not getting enough protein. The real problem is just the opposite: we take in too much protein. According to the Max Planck Institute for Nutritional Research in Germany, considered by Paavo Airola to be the most respected and reliable nutritional research organization in the world, there are many vegetable sources of protein which are superior or equal to animal proteins. The Max Planck Institute found complete vegetarian proteins, those which contain all eight essential amino acids, to be available from almonds, sesame, pumpkin, and sunflower seeds, soybeans, buckwheat, all leafy greens, and most fruits. Fruits supply approximately the same percentage of complete protein as mother's milk. Airola feels "it is virtually impossible not to get enough protein, provided you have enough to eat of natural, unrefined foods."

Twenty-five to thirty grams of protein are more than sufficient for our protein intake. If the protein is taken in its live-food form, even less is needed. In many cases, as our system changes with meditation, fasting, eating lighter, and increasing live-food intake, our basement membranes become clear, more porous, and thinner, so the protein we take in moves into the cells more readily. With reduced blockage, more of the protein we eat pushes itself through the basement membrane into the cells, so our protein needs spontaneously drop. Perhaps over time we might find that no more than the 1.4 percent protein in mother's milk is all we need. The lower limits are not clearly established on the materialistic plane for one who is undergoing a spiritual metamorphosis.

Protein and Spiritual Evolution

